

THE IMPERIAL GAZETTEER.

THE IMPERIAL GAZETTEER;

A GENERAL

DICTIONARY OF GEOGRAPHY,

PHYSICAL, POLITICAL, STATISTICAL, AND DESCRIPTIVE

WITH A

SUPPLEMENT,

BRINGING THE GEOGRAPHICAL INFORMATION DOWN TO THE LATEST DATES.

EDITED BY

W G BLACKIE, PH D, FRGS,

EDITOR OF THE IMPERIAL ATLAS.

ILLUSTRATED BY ABOUT 800 ENGRAVINGS ON WOOD

VOLUME II

LONDON
BLACKIE AND SON, PATERNOSTER ROW, GLASGOW AND EDINBURGH.

CLASSTW
W. O. BLACKER AND CO. PRINTERS, VILLAGEFIELD.

IMPERIAL GAZETTEER;

A GENERAL DICTIONARY OF GEOGRAPHY,

FTO. ETC.

J

[Names beginning with J are sometimes also written Dj. For Spanish names not given here, see X, for LISSAN ones, &c., I, & and T]

JAAK

JAAK a vil Hungary co Eisenburg 12 m from Steinmanger. It has an abbey, with an ancient Gothic church, the roof of which is supported by 12 pillars manufactured of earthenware, and a trade in cattle. Pop 1115

JAAK a vil Hungary, Thibler Theiss, co. Kraana, 10 m from Oravitz, on the Kraana with a Greek church. P 1142

JAAKSVIL a vil Holland prov of and 1 m S.W. Utrecht, with a Calvinistic church and a school. Inhabitants engaged in agriculture, market gardening and raising casks. Pop. 1079

JABARY or JIBARY, river S America. See JAYARI.

JABBEKE, a vil and com. Belgium, prov W Fland, 7 m W Bruges, a station on the railway thence to Ostend. Weaving and agriculture are the chief employments but it has also brick works, two breweries, and two mills. Pop. 1740.

JABEA a tn. Spain Valencia, prov and 48 m N.E. Alicante, l. bank Jalón near the sea, surrounded by a wall, indifferently built, with narrow, steep, and ill paved streets, a church, and several chapels, a townhouse, prison, storehouse, and three schools. Near it silk worms are extensively reared, and fine grapes grow in quantities of which are sent to England. Pop 3654.

JABLONKA several places, Austria, in Galicia and Hungary, particularly—A tn Hungary, co Arva, near the frontiers of Galicia, 40 m S.W. Cracow with a handsome courthouse, and considerable manufactures of linen. 1 8659

JABLUNKAU, a tn. Austria, Silesia, circle Teschen, in a wild and mountainous district of the Carpathians, on the Olza, 70 m. E. Olmutz. About 4 m S.W. is Fort Jablunau, commanding the pass which leads over the mountains into Hungary. Pop. 2100

JABUNAH a tn. Hindustan, presid Bengal, prov Malwa lat. 22° 46' N lon 74 39' E. 80 m S.W. Ojola in a rich and fertile valley. Inhabitants chiefly the more civilized classes of the Bheels.

JABOK, or KEKKA a river Asiatic Turkey, push Damascus an affluent of the Jordan. It rises in the Hazran mountains, flows E to W passing to the N, Mount Gilboa, and falls into the Jordan about 30 m N the Dead Sea, after a course of about 45 m. It is mentioned in Scripture as the boundary which separated the kingdom of Sibil, king of the Amorites from that of Og, king of Basan. In its passage W across the plains, it more than once passes underground, and in summer the upper portion of its channel becomes dry.

JABIGO (Z.) a tn. Spain Andalusia, prov and 51 m. N.E. Huelva. It has well-built houses, and regular, paved, clean streets, a parish church, a courthouse, circular springs, and a trade in chestnuts, oil, and wine. Pop. 2108

Vol. II

JACMEL

JABUKA, two places, Hungary.—1, A vil Banat, co of, and 62 m. S.S.W. Temesvar, l. bank Temea, with a church. Pop. 2148.—2 A vil Thibler Theiss, co Temes var 4 m from Versec, with a church. Pop. 1285

JACA, a fortified city, Spain, Aragon, of which it was once the capital, prov of and 32 m. N by W Huesca, near 3 bank Aragon. It is well built, surrounded by walls, with 23 towers has several gates, and a citadel two square, and generally regular and well-paved streets, a handsome cathedral, three chapels, five convents, a college, two schools, town and session houses a prison hospital, barracks, and storehouse. Manufactures—linen and hempen fabrics cloth, stockings, soap, leather, earthenware, and white wax. The surrounding district is fertile. 1 op 3120

JACAREHI a tn Brazil, prov of, and 60 m. E. N. E. Rio-Franco, l. bank Parahiba, on the road from Rio-Franco to the provinces of Minas-Geraes and Rio-de-Janeiro. It has a church a considerable trade in coffee tobacco, and other agricultural produce raised within the district. Pop 7000.

JALUTRA Java. See JAKATRA

JACINTO (Sax) a river U States Texas, which, after a S.E. course of about 100 m and receiving numerous affluents, as Big Dry Creek, Spring Creek, and Cypress river falls into the upper part of Galveston Bay. It is partly navigable. General Juan Anna was defeated by the Texans, and taken prisoner, on the banks of the San Jacinto, April 21, 1816.

JACKSON numerous places, U States, among which are—1, A tn., cap of Mississippi 165 m. N by W, New Orleans. It is regularly laid out, has a handsome stationhouse, a governor's house, a penitentiary, a U States land-office, two churches, a bank, and is connected with Vicksburg by a railway 45 m long. Pop. 2100.—2 A vil Louisiana, 124 m. N.W. New Orleans, with a college, three academies and two schools. Pop 932.—3, A vil Missouri, 136 m S.E. Jefferson city with a courthouse and jail &c. Pop 800

JACKSON (Prov) Australia. See STURGE

JACKSONVILLE, a tn. U States, Illinois, is a rich and highly cultivated prairie, 89 m W Springfield, with a market and a courthouse a jail, four churches, lyceum, college, mechanics institute, an academy, a distillery, tannery, and mills of various kinds.

JACMEL, or JACOMETT, a seaport, l. and empire Hayti, S. coast, at the head of a bay of the same name, 23 m S.W. Fort-de-France lat (wharf) 18° 13' 30" N, lon 73 56' W (Z). The upper part, built on a rising ground, is usually named Belair in the lower part the streets are narrow. It has a considerable trade, and is a place of call for the W India mail steamers. The roadstead affords anchorage for 1 every description of shipping, but is exposed to S. winds, and a heavy sea sets in towards the shore. Pop. 8000.

JACOB (St.) a town, Switzerland. See BASEL.
JACOB PASQUES (St.) a large thriving vil. Holland prov. Friesland 9 m. W. Leuwarden, with a Calvinistic church, three schools, and two breweries. Agriculture and cattle-rearing are the main occupations. Pop. 3416.

JACOBINA ISLAND one of the Nikis Islands, (George III. Atropelago) Russian America, well supplied with wood, chiefly pine, larch, and cedar.

JACOBINA a to Brazil prov. of and 213 m. W. N. W. Bahia 1 bank Itapicuru where it is joined by the Oaro, here crossed by a bridge. It consists of a principal street which traverses the town through its whole length, and is intersected by several cross streets. Houses of stone. It has a parish church, and two other churches a Latin, and a primary school. The district though hilly has a great deal of excellent arable land, well adapted for the sugar-cane, cotton, tobacco, rice, and millet. The orange, vine and guava also thrive admirably, and of the fruit of the last large quantities of marmalade are made and exported to Bahia. There is a considerable trade in agricultural produce, horses, cattle, and goats. Pop. 414. 10. 80.

JACOBSTADT a to. Prussia prov. Pomerania gov. of, and 37 m. E. Stettin on the N. shore of a small lake. It is very old and has a court of justice, a church, and a trade in salt. Pop. 1619.

JACOBSTADT two places, Russia. —1 A seaport to. Finland, gov. of and 53 m. N. E. Vaasa, on a bay in the Gulf of Bothnia with a church, pulp-churns and a small but well sheltered harbour, at which a considerable trade in carried on, particularly in pitch, timber, butter and other provisions. It has also a small building-deck. Pop. 1505. —2, A to gov. Courland 1 bank Dwina 80 m. E. S. E. Mitau, with three churches and several distilleries. Pop. 1448.

JACOBSTADT two parts Eng. —1 Cornwall 4551 sq. f. Pop. 467. —2 Devon 2848 sq. Pop. 255.

JACOBSTADT DE, or KORTAARNA, a vil. Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. of and 81 m. S. E. Oppeln with a church and manufacture of iron, copper tin, and brass ware. Near it are blast-furnaces. Pop. 911.

JACOTT A a to Hindoostan, presid. Madras, coast of, and 10 m. N. Cochin lat. 10° 10' N. lon. 76 14 E.

JACOVA A or YAKOVA, a to. European Turkey Albania, pash. and 67 m. E. N. E. Soutari near the white Drin.

JACQUEMILL a to. Hayti. See JACMIER.

JACQUEMILL a river Lower Canada, which after a tortuous course, N. to S., through a mountainous and imperfectly-known country, falls into the St. Lawrence 26 m. S. W. by St. Quebec. Its banks are very steep and its stream so rapid that it cannot be navigated even by canoes.

JACQUINOT ISLAND off N. coast Papua, lat. 5° 24' S. lon. 144° 24' E. It has a very pleasant appearance, being agreeably varied by level beaches, scattered with clumps of cocoa-nut trees, and hills covered with shady woods.

JACUTI a river Brazil prov. São Pedro-do-Rio-Grande formed by numerous head streams in the W. part of the province near lat. 28° S. E. flows S., and then E., receiving numerous affluents and falls into Lake dos Patos. Total course about 300 m. much of which is navigable.

JADRAQUE a to. Spain, New Castile, prov. Guadalajara, 1 bank Henares, 55 m. N. E. Madrid. It has a parish church, townhouse, prison, two schools, an old Capuchin convent, manufactures of linen and hempen tissues and a trade in corn, wine, wood and fruit. Pop. 1428.

JADPIL a to. Russia gov. of 113 m. W. Kazan 1 bank Bura. Pop. 1083. 8078.

JAFPA a to. Spain Andalusia, cap. prov. of same name, finely situated on a terrace-slope of Mount Castillo, near the S. bank Juen, 122 m. E. E. Sevilla. It consists of an old town, formerly surrounded by a Moorish wall, flanked with towers, of which some well preserved remains still exist; and of a new town which stretching beyond the narrow limits of the old, has extended itself downwards and reached the plain. From the nature of its site, many of the streets are steep and those of the old town, as particularly are very irregular narrow and winding. Those of the new town, on the contrary, are generally spacious, and most of the houses which line them are not only substantial but often elegant. Not a few of them, particularly in the suburbs, have good gardens attached to them. The largest and best-built squares are those of St. Maria, San Francisco, and Mercado; and the Carrera, which stretches between the latter two, is the most spacious street. The principal buildings are the cathedral, a vast and magnificent structure, in the form of a Latin cross, with a fine facade, flanked by two towers above 200 ft. high, a richly-decorated interior, 800 ft. long by 150 ft. wide, with numerous paintings and sculptures seven other parish churches, several of them large and handsome, several suppressed convents, the buildings of which still remain, and form conspicuous objects, four existing nunneries generally in large and handsome buildings, but occupied by few nuns—only about a dozen in each; the episcopal palace, college, museum, diocesan seminary, superior and primary school general and founding hospitals, the theatre, the palace of Count Villar Don Pardo, the buildings of the Inquisition and the ball room, only completed in 1847 and capable of seating 6000 spectators. The manufactures, not of much consequence include woollen and linen cloth soap, and brandy. There are also an extensive silk and numerous oil mills. The trade is chiefly confined to wine and articles of primary necessity, exposed at the two annual fairs, one of which lasts three, and the other nine days. Jaen is a place of considerable antiquity and several Roman remains have been found in it. Its present name was given it by the Moors, who made it the capital of the kingdom of Jaen the smallest of the four into which Andalusia was divided, and not so extensive as the modern provinces 1 17 387. —The ruins here bounded N. by that of Ciudad-Real, E. Albaroz and Granada, S. Granada, and W. Cordova, is about 80 m. E. to W. with a mean breadth of about 70 m. The surface is generally mountainous, being governed, in the N. by ramifications of the sierra Morena, in the S. by the mountains of Granada and in the E. by those of the sierra de Segura. The highest portion is in the W. on the frontiers of Cordova. The centre is occupied by a valley, forming the banks of the Guadalquivir, which receives all the waters of the province, directly or by affluents, the most important of which is the Guadameles. The lower districts are necessarily devoted to pasture, but the W. plains and lower valleys are fertile though not well cultivated. The forests have some excellent timber. The minerals, particularly argentiferous lead and copper are very valuable, and have long been worked extensively. For administrative purposes the province is divided into twelve districts. Jaen is the capital. Pop. 507 410.

JAFPA (RHO) a to. river, Spain Andalusia. It rises in the S. of prov. Jaen in the plain of Angul in the sierra de Valdepeñas flows N. and joins 1 bank Guadalquivir, after a course of about 45 m.

JAFPA DE BRACACORNE a to. Ecuador dep. Azuay cap. prov. of same name, in a mountainous region, 240 m. P. R. I. Guayaquil near the junction of the Chunchupe with the Marañon. Gold is obtained in the vicinity. Pop. 4000.

JAFPA or YAFPA (anc. Joppa) a maritime to. Asiatic Turkey, pash. Damascus, in Palestine 81 m. N. W. Jerusalem lat. 32° 3' 24' N. lon. 34° 44' E. It is picturesquely situated upon an eminence or promontory crowned by a castle, the houses and streets, all of which are narrow, ill paved, and dirty rising regularly above one another in tiers, and many of them crowded by flights of steps. It has a khan, large convent for the reception of pilgrims, some small churches and mosques a large citadel, with a roof resting on Saracenic arches, and a large soap-manufacture. Jaffa still enjoys a considerable trade with the neighbouring countries, in corn, fruits, cotton, and coral and exports large quantities of soap to Cairo and Damascus. Fish is plentiful, and several kinds of its kind but, like provisions generally, is dear, and in the harbor there is a profuse display of the sweet fruits and vegetables, more especially of famed water-melon. The harbor, which is close to the town, is merely a long narrow shallow basin, enclosed by rocks and the roadstead is not safe even for the boats and vessels belonging to the country to the N. A little to the W. is the celebrated tower of Babel, 120 ft. in height, from which an extensive view is obtained. The monument is reached by a staircase within. Jaffa or Joppa is a very ancient town, having been a considerable seaport in the time of Solomon while there are traditions of to exults long prior to its period. By St. Jerome it was called Japha, and in the time of the Crusades Japha. It was the port of Jerusalem and the landing-place of the cedar with which the Temple in that city was built. In 1799 it was taken, after a sanguinary siege, by Napoleon, who here put to death 1200 Turkish prisoners, who had broken their parole, and subsequently poisoned a number of his sick soldiers, on the plea that it was to keep them from falling alive into the hands of a cruel enemy. Pop. 5000.

JAFFATHI, or JAFFATHI, a group of five isls., Red Sea, the largest of which is 24 m. long and very narrow, lat. 8° 37' 12" N lon. 54° 1' 30" E.

JAFFIEHGUNGE, a town in Hindoostan, prov. Bengal, 1 bank Ganges, near the junction of the Aizi, about 42 m W by N Dacca.

JAFFNAPATAM, or JAFFNA, a town and fortress, on an island off the N.W. extremity of Ceylon, facing Palk's Strait, lat. 9° 47' N, lon. 80° 9' E, 219 m. N Colombo. The town is built in the form of a pentagon and contains, besides the barracks, a few good buildings, and a Dutch church, which is made use of by the English.—The town or petah about 1 m. E. the fort, contains many large broad streets, lying parallel to each other and crossed at right angles by smaller ones; houses in general large and convenient, of one story, with very wide verandahs. It contains the Cathedral, a church belonging to the Tamil Protestant Christians, called St. John's, and a Wesleyan chapel, and has a trade in clove shells, Palmyra timber and tobacco which last is cultivated in the vicinity. There is some 1 m. distant a large and magnificent Hindoo temple. Pop. 8000.

JAGARAGA in Java. See DJAGARAGA.

JAGATTY a river Persia, prov. Azerbajan, rises about lat. 38° N, and flows N.W. till it falls into the E. end of Lake Urumia. Total course, about 100 m.

JAGHEPOOR, a town in Hindoostan, prov. Bengal, 1 bank Orissa, dist. of and 35 m. N.E. Cuttack, 1 bank Bytaria; which during the rainy season, is here nearly 4 m. broad. It is large and straggling, composed of thatched mud huts, contains numerous Mohammedan and Hindoo temples and was at one time regarded by the latter as a place of peculiar sanctity and has extensive manufactures of cloth.

JAGHENDORF or KANSOW a town in Austria, Silonia, circle of, and 14 m. N.W. Troppan cap. duchy of same name, beautifully situated at the foot of the Burgberg in the valley between the great and the little Oppa. It is walled has three suburbs, spacious well paved streets, a handsome parish church, with two towers 280 ft. high, the loftiest in Silonia; a royal palace, townhouse, high school, Minorite cloister and hospital, and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, bleach fields, and a paper-mill. Pop. 4800.—The duchy of Jagendorf area 144 sq. m., since 1630, has belonged to the prince of Liechtenstein. Pop. 40,000, almost all R. Catholic.

JAGO, par. Teri Kidore 1621 sec. P. 256.

JAGO (S) several cities, isle. &c. See SANJAGO.

JAGODIN a town in European Turkey, Servia, 55 m. N.W. Nissa, near 1 bank Morava, containing about 800 houses.

JAGUAN, a town in Brazil, prov. Minas-Geraes, on S. slope of Serra de Itaquaquecetuba, on the road from Rio-de-Janeiro to the town of São-Paulo and Campinas, with a church, court-house, and prison, and a trade in cotton, hides, and leather.

JAGUARIBY a river, Brazil, which rises in the mountains of Boa-Vista a branch of the Cordillera of Himaeyaba, prov. Ceara, flows N. till it reaches the town of São-João-do-Principe, where it turns first S.E., then N.E. passes the towns of São-Bernardo and Aracati, and about 19 m. below the latter, falls into the Atlantic, about lat. 4° 8' E, lon. 37° 30' W. Its principal affluents are the Balgaço and the Rana-baiba. Total course, about 460 m. The influence of the tide is felt beyond Aracati, to which crossing vessels can ascend, though with considerable difficulty, owing to sandbanks and other inequalities of depth. It is subject to extensive inundations.

JAGUARIBE, a town in Brazil, prov. of and 45 m. W.S.W. Bahia, 1 bank Jaguaribe. Its streets are paved with tiles, and its houses are of earth. It contains a parish church, a Latin and a primary school, is the seat of an electoral college and residence of a justice of the peace and has some trade in bricks, tiles, and earthenware of its own manufacture.

JAHDE a small river Germany, duchy Oldenburg. It rises in the S. of abbe Neumunster, near Rastedt, flows N., and, after a course of about 15 m. falls into a sandy bay on the N. Sea, which, though of great width continues to take the name of the river Jahde.

JAHIOOS, a town in Brazil, prov. Parana, 70 m. E.S.E. Oeiras, near 1 bank Itahim. It has three churches and, on Sundays and other festivals, when there is a great attendance of people from the country have a very stirring appearance, but on other days seems almost deserted. District of great extent and very fertile. Pop. 2000.

JAHJOW a town in Hindoostan, prov. Bengal, prov. of, and 15 m. S.W. Agra, the scene of two decisive battles, the first in 1656 when Dara Shooah was defeated by his brother Aurengzebe, the second in 1707, when Shah Alim defeated Azim Lashan.

JAHNEVI a river Hindoostan, prov. Bengal, prov. Gurkhal, one of the early affluents of the Ganges which it joins near Gangpott.

JAHNDORF a village Saxony circle Zwicken, ball and near Chemnitz. It is well built, contains a picturesque situated church, is one of the principal seats of the hosiery manufacture in Saxony, and has several mills. Pop. 1400.

JAJCZE, a town in European Turkey, Croatia, 40 m. S. Ban-Jaliska 1 bank Verba, here crossed by a stone bridge. It is walled, and defended by towers, and a fortress, and near it salt-petre is manufactured. Pop. 2000.

JAILUM or JILUM, JILUM, JILUM, or JILUM (Himalaya) the most W. and probably the principal of the five great rivers that intersect the Pamir E. from the India. The earlier part of its course is somewhat erratic. According to Hügel, it rises near the extreme S. point of Cashmere in about lat. 33° 33' N lon. 75° 40' E. whence it flows N.W. along the centre of the valley of Cashmere, the whole of which it drains, passing Shababad, Islamabad, Bernagar and some other places of note, till it falls into Lake Wallar or Wullar on the S.W. extremity of which it again issues, flows W.S.W. and, finally its way through the base of Baranulla in the lofty range of the Hs-Pamir, enters the Pamir about lat. 34° 10' N lon. 74° 40' E. From this point it flows W. N.W. till it merges within 3 m. of Muzartal, where it is joined by the Kishan Gunga, a stream of nearly equal volume, which rises in Bulit. Here it turns sharply S., and holds on a general N. course till it falls into the Chenab at lat. 31° 10' N lon. 72° 30' E. 75 m. N.E. Moolian. The whole course of the Jailum through the valley of Cashmere, before it finds an outlet through the Pass of Baranulla, is, including windings about 120 m. for 70 m. of which it is navigable. It is navigable also from its junction with the Chenab up nearly to its emergence from the mountains. It abounds in fish, and is infested by alligators. Its turn course, about 450 m.

JAILUM or JILUM a town Pamir 1 bank river of same name, about 8 m. N.N.P. of the junction of the Khan, lat. 32° 2' N, lon. 78° 36' E. It is of considerable extent, and tolerably clean, though the streets are narrow and intricate. It is however, rendered unhealthy by the inundation which extends widely over the E. bank of the river. A little above the town there is a ford, by which the British army crossed the Jailum, in December, 1839 on its return from Afghanistan.

JALME (Sax), a town, Saxony, dep. Apule, on a height, 1 bank Portuguese, 38 m. N.W. San Fernando lat. 8° 12' N, lon. 68° W with some trade. Pop. 7000.

JALPITZ or ART JALPITZ a town in Austria, Moravia, circle of, and 10 m. N.W. Zasin on a height above the Gersowka, with a church, an old castle, and four annual fairs. Rock crystals, chalcedony, and other pebbles, are found in the vicinity. Pop. 1040.

JALPOTPO, a town in Hindoostan, prov. Gujerat, 20 m. N.E. Junagarh lat. 20° 42' N lon. 70° 48' E.

JAJARPOTE a town Nepal 256 m. W.W. Khatmandoo lat. 28° 51' N, lon. 81° 8' E., cap. dist. of same name.

JAKATRA—1 A former kingdom, lat. Java, now divided into the Dutch provs. of Batavia, Batavia, Bantam, Krawang and Praeger.—2 A former town, the cap. of kingdom, its site is now occupied by Batavia.—3 One of the divisions of Batavia.—4 A bay, N. coast Java, into which falls a river of same name; also called Tjilawong.

JAKO a vil. Hungary Thither Danube, co. Vasvár on the Balva 11 m. S.E. Paps, with a church and several mills. Pop. 1842

JAKOHLAVN a vil or Danish settlement, Greenland, N. isopetrate, opposite Disco Island, with a seminary for educating native catechists, under the direction of the missionaries. Pop. 200

JAKOHALMA, a vil. Hungary Jazygus dist. on the Tarna, about 4 m. from Jazy-Berény with a townhouse and a handsome church situated on a hill in the centre of the village. Pop. 1433.

JAKUIMA or JAKOBIAU a vil. Hungary Hither Thence, on Zips, 10 m. N. E. Loutschan, with a handsome Greek church. Iron is worked and smelted in the vicinity. Pop. 900.

JAKUTSK a vil. and gov. Siberia. See LAKUTSK

JALACHO a vil. Yucatan, on the main road between Merida and Campeche with an annual fair lasting eight days, which, after that of Xauimil is the greatest in Yucatan

JALAMA, a vil. Spain Valencia, prov. and about 60 m. from Valencia, in the valley of the Cofrentes, at the confluence of the La Hoz, with the Júcar here crossed by a wooden bridge of four arches. The houses are generally well built and the streets in the modern parts of the town spacious and regular but in the older parts narrow and winding. Jalama has a parish church, townhouse, school and prison, manufactures of linen and woollen cloth a silk and several oil and flour mills, and a trade in wax, silk, leather, horses, and cattle. Pop. 127

JALAPA or XALAPA a city Mexico dep. of and 50 m. N. W. Vera Cruz at the foot of the basaltic mountain Ma. cutepet, 4300 ft. above the sea-level. It is irregularly built but the houses with barred windows reaching to the ground have a picturesque appearance. It has a church and to have been founded by Cortes and a Franciscan convent and near the town are several cotton factories. In the vicinity is found the Ixmiqué purgum from which Jalapa is obtained, a name derived from this town. In certain seasons the climate is moist and disagreeable, but as at all times extremely healthy. Pop. 17,000

JALHAY a vil and com. Belgium prov. of, and 19 m. S. E. Liège, near the frontiers of Prussia. It has a considerable trade in agricultural produce, cattle, and oak bark, and two annual fairs. Pop. 2649

JALISCO, XALISCO or GUADALAJARA a maritime dep. Mexico, bounded W. by the Pacific, and on other sides by the States Michoacan, Guanajuato, Zacatecas, Durango, and Sonora between lat. 18° 46' and 24° N. lon 101° 15' and 106° 15' W. It is one of the finest provinces of Mexico. The E. portion, although traversed by the cordillera of Anahuac, is extremely fertile the central division being less elevated, has a much higher temperature and, besides every variety of corn produces cotton, cochineal, and vanilla. The districts near the coast are very fertile and covered with luxuriant forests, but the climate is unhealthy particularly to strangers. The gold and silver mines are not of great importance. Jalisco is intersected by the Colorado and its numerous affluents and on its S. side, has the large lake Chapala. Besides Guadalajara, the cap. the principal towns are San Blas, Colima, Lagos, and Aguan Calientes. Pop. (1841) 680,000

JALLAIS, a vil. France, dep. Manche-et-Lore, 7 m. E. Beaupré, with manufactures of woollen stuffs. Pop. 1139

JALIBU a vil. France, dep. Isère, 25 m. N. W. Grenoble with manufactures of printed cotton goods and paper and wine trade in hemp. Pop. 2145.

JALORE, or JHALORE, a vil and fortress Hindoostan, Aymer princip, and 70 m. S. S. W. Jodhpore the strongest fortress in this part of India, and the state prison of the rajah. Pop. 17,000

JALOMINTZA a river Wallachia which rises in the Carpathian mountains in the frontiers of Transylvania, flows S. E. and E. receives numerous affluents, of which the united stream of the Provas and Telesti is the chief and falls into the Danube, about 8 m. N. Hurovera. Total course, 170 m.

JALON a river, Spain, which is formed by two torrents, dist. Melilla, prov. Bona, Old Casale, flows N. E. through dist. pro. enters Aragon, traverses prov. Calatayud, and, at the town of that name, receives its chief affluent, the Jiloca or Xiloca. It now flows easterly first N. then E., then N. and N. E., and joins v. bank Elbr, 13 m. above Segovia after a course of about 120 m. It is nowhere navigable, but its waters are much used in irrigation. Its banks are well wooded, and generally very picturesque.

JALON or XALON a vil Spain Valencia, prov. of, and about 45 m. from Alicante, on a plain 1 bank Xalo, with a church a castle with a tower a townhouse, prison, primary school, and charitable endowment, manufactures of earthenware several flour mills, and a trade in agricultural produce and raisins. Pop. 2276 JALOUN a considerable vil. Hindoostan, prov. Agra, on a gentle elevation 28 m. W. Kalpee lat 26° 10' N. lon 75° 15' E., once a place of considerable traffic especially in cotton which is still raised in the neighbourhood.

JALOUTROVSK, a vil. Siberia, gov. Tobolsk cap. dist. of same name, on the Tobol, a little above its confluence with the Isat lat 56° 38' N. and lon 61° 20' E. Pop. 2070—The harvest in the S.W. of the gov. is undulating contains many marshes and lakes, produces some barley in the lower grounds, and rears great numbers of cattle.

JALPUCH river and lake, Russia. See LALPUCH.

JALTA in Russia. See LALTA.

JAMAICA one of the Antilles or West India Islands, the third in extent, and the most valuable of those belonging to the British lat. 17° 45' to 18° 3' N. lon 76° 5' to 78° 25' W. 145 m. in length E. to W. and 49 m. broad at the widest part. Area, 4556 sq. m. of which 110,000 ac. are cultivated chiefly as sugar plantations. Jamaica is from 80 to 100 m. W. His. and, 80 to 90 m. S. Cuba. It is divided politically into three counties, Cornwall Middlesex and Surrey the first and last occupying respectively the W. and E. parts of the island with Middlesex between. The general appearance of the island, on approaching it is extremely beautiful. On the N. it rises into hills of gentle ascent, covered with punaño groves, and a brilliant verdure, and intersected by vales, which exhibit the most romantic scenery while on the S. it presents abrupt precipices and inaccessible cliffs, the general effect being heightened by the profusion of streams which pour from every valley and which frequently project themselves from the overhanging rocks into the ocean. The coast line is 500 m. long and is indented with a great number of good harbours perhaps not fewer than thirty of which Port Royal is the harbour of Kingston is the most considerable. The island is traversed by lofty mountains in all directions the principal chain, called the Blue Mountains, occupying the centre of the island and stretching E. to W. with so sharp a crest that in some places it is only four yards across. The range varies from 7000 to 8000 ft. in elevation and covers the whole of the E. portion of the island with its effects, some of which are of great height. The more elevated ridges are flanked by lower ranges, descending to verdant savannahs. The escarpments are with the declivities steep, and covered with stately forests. There are numerous valleys but all very narrow not more than a twelfth part of the island being level ground Still several extensive level tracts occur the principal Iguazua, of no great fertility commences a little E. from Kingston, and extends W. for about 30 m. with an average breadth of 5 m. and that of Vere, still less fertile, stretches N. W. to E. 18 m. with a breadth of 7 or 8 m., it lies W. of Liguazua plain, on the W. side of Old Harbour. Near the centre the hills present the characteristics of the lunar formation, of which they consist. Caverns occur in several places and some of them are very extensive. Jamaica is well watered having numerous small rivers, rivulets, and springs but none of the first are navigable, excepting Black River, which falls into Black River Bay on the S. W. coast, and has, at its entrance, about 18 ft. of water. Earthquakes of a violent character have been frequent the most tremendous on record occurred in 1693, when the ground swelled and heaved like a rolling sea, and was traversed by numerous cracks or rents, which opened and closed rapidly again, swallowing up many people. At the same time a large portion of the houses and other buildings of Port Royal sank down with their inhabitants entirely under water, to the depth of from 24 to 48 ft. The houses sunk so deep as that they sank and were long distinctly visible in their entire state in clear weather, while their ruins have been seen as late as 1825.

The climate of Jamaica is in most places, exceedingly hot and unfavorable to European constitutions; but this is the case in the lower plains along the coast only for, on the high lands, the air is temperate and pure, and fever is unknown at an elevation of 2500 ft. while, even on the low grounds, the heat is greatly moderated by the cool sea-breezes which set in every morning about nine or ten o'clock. The mean summer heat is 80° of Fahrenheit, and that of winter 75°. There are two rainy and two dry seasons. The rains last from May till July or August, and during October and November. The dry seasons occur between these periods. The sea and land breezes are pretty regular from the latter end of January until May. On the N side of the island, during the greatest part of July and the whole of August, the sea-breezes generally blow hard, with frequent squalls. On the S side, southerly winds generally prevail. The hurricane months are August, September and October.

The soil of Jamaica is so exceedingly various as to occasion very remarkable differences in the sort of its agricultural productions, it is not, on the whole, however, very fertile, being greatly inferior in that respect to Barbadoes. The indigenous vegetable productions comprise a variety of forest trees, the principal, mahogany, lignum-vita, iron wood, logwood, brazilwood, &c. some of which rise to a great height. The native fruits are numerous and many of them delicious. They include the plantain guava, custard-apple, pine-apple, cocoonut, sour-op, sweet-op, papaya, mabbay apple, grandolla, and prickly pear. The orange tree, lemon, mango grape, breadfruit tree, and cassava tree have all been naturalized in the island, and thrive well. The cultivated vegetable products and chief articles of export, are sugar indigo, coffee, and a little cotton. The only native quadrupeds now remaining on the island are the agouti and monkey, although, when first discovered, there were several others, including the armadillo opossum racoon and muskrat. Lizards are numerous and some of them very beautiful. The wild fowl are the ring-necked, the rice-bird of South Carolina, which visits the island in vast numbers in October and January. Domestic fowls also. Horned cattle of large size and males are numerous; the latter employed on the sugar estates; the horses being fit only for the saddle and harness. Sheep, goats and hogs are plentiful; the mutton is excellent, but the wool is very inferior. Fash of all kinds abound on the coasts and in the rivers. The principal articles of export, besides those above named, are arrowroot, pimento, rum, ginger oases, logwood molasses, and tobacco. The exports for 1848 amounted to £1,206,259 and the imports for the same year to £245,004.

The government of Jamaica is administered by a governor an executive and a legislative council appointed by the crown and a house of assembly elected by the freeholders of the island. The military establishment generally comprises four European regiments of the line, one W India regiment, a strong detachment of artillery and of colonial militia. The revenue for 1848 was £187,892 the expenditure £306,868. The Established church is presided over by a bishop, whose see extends over the Bahamas and Honduras. There are twenty-two rectories in the island and fifty inland curates, eight stipendiary curates, and ten curates paid by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. The British Presbyterian church has four clergymen, the Wesleyans, twenty-four ministers the Baptists sixteen and the Moravians eight. Education is rapidly extending, there being eight free schools connected with the Established church, eighty-two public schools, nine free, forty-six Wesleyan mission, twenty-one Moravian one R. Catholic, two Jews, and thirty-three miscellaneous.

From the report of a committee appointed by the House of Assembly in Jamaica, in 1847, to inquire into the distressed state of agriculture in the island, the most distressing results would appear to have followed the passing of the British Slave Emancipation Act—the report stating that since then 146 sugar estates out of 654, and 465 coffee plantations, have been abandoned, and their works broken up; and that sugar as far from being a profitable manufacture, was attended with a loss to the cultivator of 7s 7½d per cwt., the consequences of slave competition. Still the quantity of sugar manufactured has not greatly fallen off for in 1848, the yield was 42,468 hogheads—value, £1,218,214; and the average of five years, ending 1861, gives 41,878 hogheads—value, £306,913, the hoghead having fallen from £20 in 1843 to £18 since 1846. Labour is deficient the African population preferring to squat in idleness on waste or unappropriated lands and those of them who are more industrious being able to purchase lands on easy terms and thus become, after a sort, independent cultivators. The choice was taken the island in 1801-3, and carried off 40,000 people. Spanish-town the capital and Kingston, the principal port, are united by a railway, the other chief ports are Montego Bay, Falmouth, and Yfema, on the V coast, and Morant Bay on the E coast. Besides which there are the smaller towns of Black River, Savannah la Mar and Port Morant, on the E coast and St. Ann's Bay Port Maria, Austru and Antonio, on the N coast. Jamaica was discovered by Columbus in May, 1494 and was first colonized by Spaniards in 1603. It remained subject to the crown of Spain until 1655 when it was taken by the English and has since remained undisturbed in their possession. The aborigines have long ceased to exist, there having been no traces of their even at the time the island was taken from the Spaniards, nearly two centuries ago. Pop. (1848) 877,433. (See SUPPLEMENT.)

JAMAICA a vill. U. States, New York 12 m. L. New York city on the Long Island railroad. It has five churches, a female seminary and manufactures of pianofortes, carriages, &c. Pop. 3781.

JAMARI or CAMDEAR, a river, Brazil, prov. Mato Grosso. It rises in the N slopes of the serras Parana, flows N W and falls into the Madeira, about lat. S 40° S, lon. 63° 20' W. Total course about 800 m.

JAMBE, a vill and com. Delphin, on the Meuse, opposite to and properly a suburb of Namur, with manufactures of tobacco and clover; a salt refinery a brewery and two distilleries. Pop. 1778.

JAMBI, or JAMBEH a to Sumatra cap state or dist of same name on both sides of the Jambi S. E. side of the island lat. 1° 32' N. lon 108° 35' E. It is about 8 m. in length and consists chiefly of marsh lands and bogs, interspersed with a few of a superior description. The principal exports are dragon-blood, benzoin, and rattan imports—mostly European and Chinese ware, opium and Siamese salt. The trade is almost wholly confined to Singapore.—The district is flat and swampy on the one coast, but rises as it recedes from the shore.—The river, formed by the junction of several streams about 20 m. above the town, flows thence N E and falls into the China Sea; about lat. 1° N., total course about 100 m.

JAMBURG, a to Russia, gov of and 69 m. S.W. St. Petersburg cap circle of same name, r. bank Luga, here crossed by a long wooden bridge. It has a large octagonal market-place adorned with an obelisk three churches, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, canals, and silk, hosiery glass-works, sawmills, and some transit trade. Pop. 1500.—The climate is well wooded and well watered but only of indifferent fertility. Area, 883 geo sq m. Pop. 48,006.

JAMES.—1 A large bay forming the S E. extremity of Hudson's Bay British America, extending from lat. 51° to 56° N. lon. 78° 25' to 92° 30' W. length, N to S, 280 m., breadth, 75 m. to 170 m. It is situated with numerous islands, of which the Agassiz and the Charlton are the principal and receives the R. Main, Rupert, Moose, Albany and other considerable rivers.—2, An isl. Pacific Ocean, one of the largest of the Galapagos, about 16 m. E. Albemarle Island lat. 0° 12' 6' N., lon 90° 55' 48' W. It is about 20 m long by 20 m broad of volcanic origin mountainous and barren, and on its W side has an inlet, called James Bay. Its coasts are frequented by great numbers of birds and crabs, and the interior swarms with tortoises of a large size.—3, A British fort and station, W Africa, on the Gambia.—4, A British fort, W Africa, belonging to the settlement at Accra on the Guinea coast lat. 5° 30' N. lon 0° 12' W.

JAMES RIVER U. States Virginia, formed by the union of the Jackson's and Cowpasture rivers, in the Alleghany mountains, whence it flows E. to the entrance to Chesapeake Bay having previously expanded in an estuary of considerable width. It is navigable for 40-gun ships to Jamestown, 32 m from its mouth, and for vessels of 120 tons to near Richmond, 48 m further up.

JAMES (Sr) and Sr PAUL, two pars. Eng.—1 Glou. ocean, 490 sq. Pop. 7885.—2 Kent, 199 sq. Pop. 8838.

JAMES (St.)—1 A. in France, dep. Manche, 12 m. N. by E. Avranches. One of the strongest fortresses in the country was built here by William the Conqueror and remained in possession of the English till 1448. The main entrance consists of clock work known as the drop of St. George, dragged, &c., and there is a considerable trade in corn, cattle, sheep, thread and flax, particularly the last. Pop. 1938.—2, A. emp. Anom. S. coast lat 10° 1' N. lon 107° 5' E.

JAMESTOWN—1 A. in Ireland, co. Leitrim 3½ m. S.E. Carrick, on the Shannon, here crossed by a bridge of seven arches, and formerly a fortified town. Pop. 212.—2 A. in 1 States, New York, 387 m. W by S Albany with four churches, an academy and various manufactures.—3 A. former city L. States, Virginia, on the James River 8 m. S.W. Williamsburg, but now in ruins. Pop. 1447.

JAMNAY a vil. Bohemia circle Chudim. In a mountainous district about 30 m from Leitensuhl. It has a chapel and a school. Pop. 1152.

JAMNIZ a. in AMERICA, Moravia, circle of and 25 m. N.W. Znojmo on a height above the Zaleslava, with a castle, four churches, a synagogue, and two breweries. Argentiniferous lead is worked in the vicinity. Pop. 1440.

JAMOUËNE, a vil and com. Belgium prov. Luxembourg on the Semois, 18 m. W. Aillon, with a dist. furnace on oil a saw and three flour mills. Pop. 1217.

JAMU, or JUMU a. in Punjab among the mountains, on an affluent of the Chenab 87 m. N. by E. Lahore. It has a handsome palace a large and well-supplied bazaar and a fort. The rajah has a beautiful and extensive pleasure-ground and in the vicinity are numerous and extensive ruins. P. 8000.

JAN (St.) a vil. W. India See JOAN (St.)

JAN MAYER or JEAN MAYER an isl. Arctic Ocean, 150 m from the coast of F. Greenland, frequented by sea-fowl, bears and a few deer. It is a mere mountain in this island, 6870 ft. high is in lat. 71° 4' N. lon. 7° 30' W. There is also a volcano, 1500 ft. high, an eruption of which occasionally takes place. It was discovered in 1611 by the Dutch navigator Jan Mayen.

JAN-REKLEIN ISLAND, or the WAAHNS, an isl. Holland prov. W. Holland, in the N. 1½ m. S. Zaandam. It is uninhabited, marshy and covered with reeds.

JANA (L.), a. in Spain, Valencia, prov. of and about 40 m from Castellón-de-la-Plana, a bank Carrot. It is old, but on the whole regularly built, has a modern parish church, townhouse with prison, hospital boys and girls school, manufactures of white soap, three distilleries, a trade in fruit, wine, and oil and a much-frequented fair which lasts three days. Pop. 1244.

JANE ISLAND one of the Carolines, N. Pacific Ocean lat. 7° 33' N. lon. 156° 3' E. It is dangerous to approach in thick weather, being very low. Extent, about 4 m. It produces coconuts and bread.

JANEIRO, in Brazil See RIO-DE-JANEIRO

JANETOWN a vil. Scotland, co. Ross, par. of, and 1 m S.W. Lochmorton. Pop. 513.

JANINA, JANINA, JOANINA, JANINA, a. in Turkey in Europe, cap. of prov. Albania, peak of same name, 425 m. W. S.W. Constantinople lat. 39° 40' N. lon. 21° E. beautifully situated on the margin of a lake of several miles in extent and stretching along the greater part of its W. shore. The streets are spacious and the houses and many of the houses, particularly in the centre of the city are wretched mud-built cottages. The habitations of the middle rank make a nearer approach to comfort, being constructed of wood with a small open gallery under the projecting roof. The dwellings of the higher classes partake more of an oriental character being quadrangular structures surrounding an open court, and having wide galleries running round the sides, but almost destitute of windows towards the street. The houses, as in all other Turkish towns, have a lively and bustling appearance, and consist of ten or twelve streets, intersecting each other at irregular angles. Each house is appropriated to the sale of one particular description of goods, and those selling jewellery and articles of dress are richly and abundantly furnished. There are sixteen mosques in the town, each standing on an open space of ground, and generally surrounded by large yppresses; there are also about seven or eight Greek churches. In front of the town a pebble beach stretches into the lake and terminates in two distinct promontories of rock, on one of which stands a large Turkish mosque, with a lofty minaret and extensive piazzas, and on the other the old seraglio of the pasha of Janina. The whole of this peninsula is fortified, and is isolated from the city by a lofty stone wall and bastion. A considerable amount of trade is carried on here. The chief article of importation is cloth of French, German, and English manufacture. The articles of exportation are—oil, wool, corn, and tobacco, for the Italian ports and for inland circulation through Albania and Roumelia. Spain, cottons, stocks of guns and pistols, mounted in chased silver unadorned velvet, stuffs, and cloths. The banks of the lake are studded with numerous objects of a picturesque description, while the lofty mountains, nearly 5000 ft. high, by which it is surrounded and which stand abruptly and majestically from the water's edge, directly opposite the town, impart to the whole scene a singularly grand and imposing appearance. The lake is of no great depth, and at either extremity, terminates in low marshy land. During the life-time of Ali-Pasha, Janina enjoyed a great degree of prosperity and its population was computed at 60,000 but since his death in 1822 the town has fallen off very much and new numbers, according to some authorities, 20,000 according to others only 10,000 inhabitants.

JANOS (Szent) a vil. Hungary Thälher Thaus, co. Bih. has on the White H. 4 m from (Groszwarden), with a Protestant parish church. Pop. 1157.

JANOSDA a vil. Hungary Thälher Thaus, co. Bih. dist. of, and 6 m. from Kelenföld. It has a Greek non-united parish church. Its inhabitants are Wallachians. Pop. 1000.

JANOSHAZA a market in Hungary Thälher Thaus, co. Eisenburg, near the Marcell 12 m. N.W. Bismuth. It has a church, synagogue, and a trade in tobacco, chemicals, other agricultural produce, and poultry. Pop. 2200.

JANOSI several places Hungary particularly—1 J. Keszthely a vil. Thälher Thaus, co. Somethur dist. of and 59 m E. Nyle-Bator, with two churches and a synagogue, and a trade in corn, wood, and wine. Pop. 1732.—2 A vil. Thälher Thaus co. Gümör on the Rima, 3 m from Munkacs, with two churches and an abbey. Pop. 878.

JANOWITZ several places (army) particularly—1 (Alt-)Janowitz, A vil. Prussia, prov. Posen, cov. of, and 24 m. S.E. W. Lagnitz, on both sides of the River, here crossed by a stone bridge with a church and a castle, paper, saw and other mills. In a beech forest in the neighbourhood are the ruins of three old castles. Pop. 1148.—2 A. in Holstein, circle of, and 7 m S.W. Lütten on the Angel, at the confluence of the Dümme with a church school, synagogue, a paper and other two mills and a trade in wood. Pop. 1210.

JANSHORE or JUMSHORE a vil. Bohemia, circle Chudim, 8 m from Leitensuhl, on a small stream, on the frontiers of Moravia, with a church, school and two mills. Pop. 1288.

JANTIRA, a river European Turkey Bulgaria. It rises in the N. slope of the Balkan mountains 8000 ft. and falls into the Danube, 25 m. S.W. Rusechuk, after receiving several affluents, of which the Perakita, Raltar, and Rouda are the chief and a total course of above 60 m.

JANUARIA or BOBART a. in Brazil, prov. Ceara, in a plain watered by the Araro, 120 m. W.N.W. Fortaleza. It contains two churches, two primary schools, a coarboas, and prison, and has a trade in cotton, and raw and dressed hides.—The district, which is of large extent, is fertile, but suffers much from drought in the dry season. The sugar-cane, however, is extensively cultivated particularly near the centre Marauco and large quantities of corn are made. Some gold also is obtained. Pop. of dist. 15,000.

JANUARIA, a. in Brazil, prov. Minas-Geraes, near the streams Pardo and Preto, each of which is here crossed by a bridge, 150 m. N. Minas Nova. The houses are built of unburned brick, with a framework of wood, and the only buildings descending of nodes are the townhouse and prison. The trade is chiefly in horses, timber, and cotton. Pop. of dist. 6000.

JANUTZPOL, a tn. Russia, gov. Volyhna, dist. of, and 36 m S Jitomir. Pop. about 1600.

JANZE, a tn. France, dep. Ille-et-Vilaine, 18 m. S.E. Rennes. It has manufactures of sailcloth, and a considerable trade in poultry—known as the poulaillerie de Rennes. P. 1877. JAPAN (Exarus) an island-empire in the N. Pacific Ocean off the coast of China, consisting of an archipelago, comprising three large mountainous and volcanic islands—Niphon, Kjusiu, Sikok—and an immense number of smaller, of which the most important are Hodo, Tsushima, Awadai, Tanegashima, Yki Yakushima, and Oosima, with the groups Okidama, Gotsushima, and Kuskikushima, forming Japan proper and the large island of Yesso N. of Niphon, and separated from it by the strait of Kossor or Matsunai, with the S. half of the island of Taraka Kralor or Baghalla, and the larger and more S. Kurile islands, forming a dependency, called the province of Matsuei. Including the dependency of the Loo-Choo Islands, Japan extends from lat. 34° 10' to 50° N. and lon. 128° to 151° E. being about 28° of lat. and 23° of lon. It is bounded N. by the Sea of Okhotsk, E. and S. by the Pacific Ocean W. and N.W. by the strait of Corea, the Sea of Japan and the Gulf of Tartary. The following table gives a general view of the extent of the empire, and of the number of islands of which it is composed:—

Principal Islands.	No. of small Islands.	Area in sq. m.
JAPAN PROPER—
Niphon	1,209
Kjusiu	1,116
Sikok	436	97,804
Yki	201
TSUSHIMA
DEPT. MOUNTAINS—
Yesso	83	40,723
Kuriles	46	14,128
Kralor or Baghalla	37	11,186
Hodo or Hodo	29	30
Loo-Choo Islands	83	3,010
	3,681	152,756

The population is variously estimated at from 15,000,000 to 50,000,000. The state of our information, in almost every particular respecting this extensive empire, is very imperfect and unsatisfactory.

Physical Features.—The largest island, Niphon or Nippon, is upwards of 700 m. long N. E. and S. W., breadth varying from 80 m. to 100 m. Kjusiu separated from Niphon by a channel, which in one part is narrowed to 3 m. width, is about 200 m. long N. to S. and 120 m. broad. Sikok the third and smallest of the three principal islands, is 140 m. long by 60 m. broad. It lies E. of Kjusiu from which it is separated by the strait of Bonnae which, throughout its extent, is limited by the W. coast of Sikok and its narrowest part is not more than 10 m. broad. The straits to the N. and E. which divide Sikok from Niphon, are scarcely broader, while they are so thickly set with small islands that the passage is frequently not more than 1 m. wide. Yesso is of a triangular form, the sides of which are respectively 300 m. 380 m., and 290 m. in length. It is separated from the Niphon on the N.E. by the strait of Sangar about 8 m. broad in the narrowest part. W. of Niphon lies the important island of Fudo, between Cape Noto and Russian's Cape, it is supposed to be about 45 m. long, and 21 m. to 24 m. broad. The narrowest part of the channel separating it from Niphon, is about 30 m. wide. No European navigator has ever yet visited this island. The coasts of the larger islands are extremely irregular, being deeply indented with gulfs, bays, and inlets. The surface, also, is generally uneven and, in many instances, rises into mountains of great elevation. This is especially the case in the island of Niphon, which is traversed throughout its whole length by a regular chain of mountains; the highest peak of which, Fusi—a dormant volcano, covered with perpetual snow—is 12,000 ft. high, but the elevation of the range is in general so low as to admit of cultivation up to the water-level of its streams. The Japanese islands form a part of the line of volcanic action which commences in the N. with the Aleutian Isles, passes through the Philippines, Sumatra, and Java, to Sumatra, and then, in a N.W. direction to the Bay of Bengal. The volcanic vents, which indicate the direction of the line, are numerous in Yesso, Niphon, and Kjusiu earthquakes, often causing great devastation, are of frequent occurrence in Yesso some dreadful eruptions have occurred—one, in 1783, destroyed 23 villages and the volcano of Wumatsake, one of five active in the island of Kjusiu is the terror of the surrounding inhabitants—an eruption of it, in 1792 having destroyed 55,000 people. The prevailing formations in these islands are trachyte and basalt, plastic clay marl, and talus occur in various localities, and there are whole mountains of porcelain earth. The metallic wealth of the empire is said to be very great, comprising gold, silver, copper, tin, lead, and iron. The island of Sado is particularly mentioned as rich in gold. Both the tin and copper of Japan are considered to be of very superior quality. Coal is found in various parts; sulphur abounds, thermal and mineral springs are of frequent occurrence, and ambergris is met with on some of the shores. Streams are numerous in Japan but have very short courses, and are, for the most part, rather torrents than rivers. Of the lakes too little is known to warrant any attempt at giving an account of them.

Climate.—The climate of Japan though extremely various—being intensely cold in the N. and about as warm as the S. of France in the K.—is, on the whole, much milder than its latitude would indicate owing chiefly to the influence of the surrounding ocean. A remarkable difference of climate exists also between the E. and W. shores; the cold, during the rigorous season, when this difference is most perceptible, being more intense on the latter than the former, owing to the proximity of the Asiatic continent, the low temperature of which has a material effect on the climate of the W. coasts of the large islands nearest it. While the E. coasts are protected from the cold continental winds by the lofty central ridge of mountains that traverses the islands, N. to S. In Kjusiu, and the S. parts of Niphon the thermometer ranges between 24° and 104° Fahrenheit, 80° being the average in the middle of summer, and 85° in the coldest months of winter. In lat. 33° N. ice is formed of several hours in thickness, in lat. 36° the lakes are covered with a sheet of ice, and in 38° to 40° the ice becomes so thick that the rivers may be crossed upon it, while in Yesso, near Cape Sado, lat. 45° 21' N. wheat yields but a poor return and winter is so severe as to drive the savage but vigorous Amos to the protection of caverns. Rain is very frequent, hurricanes and storms also occur often, and are sometimes very violent.

Vegetation.—Partaking, as the climate does, of the advantage and disadvantages both of the torrid and of the temperate zone, the vegetation of the islands is exceedingly various. The palm, banana, bamboo, figumora, and myrtle, flourish in the S., while in the N. more especially in Yesso and Baghalla, oaks and pines abound but sweet oranges, pomgranates, pears, apricots, peaches, many plants known in botany as Japanese, and above 600 of the principal ornamental and useful plants, are of foreign origin, having probably been introduced from Corea and China. The temperate varieties are indigenous. The soil of Japan is naturally infertile, but the patient industry of the agriculturists, favoured by the general climate, has covered with vegetation every spot capable of bearing anything. In the S. the sugar-cane is cultivated with success; and rice yields two harvests, and constitutes the chief article of food. According to situation wheat and barley are also grown to a limited extent, and buckwheat, soy, potatoes, melons, pumpkins, and cucumbers, in great abundance. Ginger, pepper, cotton, and tobacco, are also cultivated in considerable quantities, and there are extensive plantations of the tea, plant—yielding, however, a product inferior to that of China.

Zoology.—Basilisks and snakes are common, but, being for the most part, and agricultural purposes. Horses of various breeds—and, though small, and to be very excellent—are numerous, but are only used for the saddle, and that by the nobility. There are neither asses, mules, elephants, nor camels, and sheep and pigs are few. Small bears, hyenas, deer, hares, and immense numbers of foxes, are among the principal wild animals. Dogs are common, and are held marred but, though cats exist in thousands, and are esteemed great favorites with the Japanese ladies, yet the country is stated to be over-run with rats and mice. There is a great variety of birds, including falcons, which are much esteemed pheasants, ducks, geese, teal, storks, penguins, ravens, larks, pelicans, cranes, herons &c. Snakes are not unfrequent. One species of which, the Orobanch attains an enormous size. There are also tortoises and lizards, scorpions, centipedes, and the insect fauna is innumerable. The cats abound in fish which are taken in great quantities, and form the chief subsistence of the inhabitants.

People, Religion and Language.—The Japanese belong to the great Mongol Tartar family and are distinguished, like all the other branches of this stock by broad skulls and high cheek bones, small black eyes, obliquely set long black hair and a yellow or sallow olive complexion. Some are good-looking and many are well made, active, and shrewd. Se-build divides them into inhabitants of the coasts, inhabitants of the country, and inhabitants of the towns. All of which he alleges, differ in physical appearance, language, and manner. They are divided as only into eight classes—princes, nobles, princes, soldiers, civil officers, merchants, artisans, and laborers—which are kept distinct, with all the strictness of caste, each person following invariably the profession of his fathers. Their principal moral characteristics are skill perseverance, courage and frankness; with much good-humour, natural politeness and courtesy of manner. The latter qualities are particularly observable amongst the agricultural population, who are, besides, industrious, temperate, and hospitable. The Japanese dress consists of loose garments of silk or cotton. The men of the higher orders wearing a kind of petticoat-browsers, and those of the highest rank two awnings. They wear no hats, except in rainy weather; and shave the whole front and crown of the head, forming the rest into a tuft on the bald skull. The women, again, wear their hair very long with numerous costly ornaments of tortoise-shell but none of any other material. They destroy their natural complexion with paint, colour their lips purple and when married, blacken their teeth and pluck out their eyebrows. Polygamy is not practiced, although the moral code of the Japanese is not otherwise, by any means, particularly rigid. Various laxities being indulged in without scandal. All are slaves to custom, and ridiculous, often oppressive, etiquette. The established or state religion is that of Buddha, although another and older form also exists, called Shinto or Shu-Sin (faith in gods, or way to gods). The priests of this sect are allowed to marry. The language is polysyllabic, and has an alphabet of 47 letters which are written in four different forms, one of which is used exclusively by men, and another by women.

JAPANESE TOWN'S PEOPLE.

From Nichol. Artiste au Japon. Image au Japon.

JAPANESE COUNTRY PEOPLE.—From Nichol.

Manufactures and Trade.—In manufacturing industry and ingenuity the Japanese are, at least, equal to the Chinese. Their works in copper, iron, and steel bear a high character. Telescopes, thermometers, watches and clocks, of good quality are made at Nangasaki: one of the five imperial cities, on the W coast of the island of Kiusiu. Glass is made, but not very successfully. Silk and cotton cloths are manufactured and porcelain, said to be superior to that of China. The art of Japanizing, as it is called with us, or more properly lacquering, is practiced with great success, and specimens are produced far surpassing in brilliancy and enduring any that are ever seen in Europe. Good paper is made from the bark of the mulberry and other trees and coriages from the fibres. But neither ship-building nor house building are well understood. The houses are almost universally constructed of timber, plastered on the outside and consist of two stories divided into rooms by slight paper partitions. Foreign commerce has been hitherto rigidly limited to the Dutch and Chinese, but the traffic of the former does not at present exceed £70,000 per annum—two vessels only being allowed to remain in the harbour (Nangasaki) at a time. The importations of the Dutch into Nangasaki consist chiefly of wax, spices, ivory, beads, quicksilver, glass wares, cotton linen, and woollen goods, for which they take back copper, Japanese or lacquered ware, porcelain, and camphor. Silk, tea, and dried fish, are amongst the chief imports of the Chinese, who also take in return the articles above enumerated. Both the coasting and internal trade of the empire are, however, extensive.

Government.—The government is a hereditary absolute monarchy shared between two sovereigns, the one ecclesiastical, called the Mikado or Dairi Sane, who resides at Miako, the other military called the Shogun or Yohu, who resides at Yeddo the capital. The latter is the true sovereign, as regards the civil government, the former being merely a secondary personage although in possession of the entire superintendence of religion and education and surrounded by officers, who treat him with almost divine honours. The Shogun or principal ruler who resides at Yeddo, is assisted by a council of five hereditary princes and by a senate, which forms the legislative body and decides in all civil and criminal cases. The empire is divided into 8 great circles or Do, and these again into 68 provinces, subdivided into 633 districts, governed by officers appointed and dependent on the Shogun, whose power is thus at once extensive and absolute. The principal towns are Yeddo the capital, on the island of Nippon, Miako and Obowaka, on the same island, the latter the commercial capital and Nangasaki, on the island of Kiusiu. The laws are severe, and even sanguinary; torture, and death by decapitation or impaling on a cross, are ordinary punishments. The public revenues are derived solely from taxes on land and houses, which are assessed to be the property of the state. The army, in time of peace, is rated at 100,000 infantry and 30,000 cavalry. There is no armed navy. Discipline and the art of fortification are little understood.

History.—Marco Polo is the first European traveler who speaks of Japan, called by him Cipango or Sanguo. In 1542 it was reached by Miguel Plante, and shortly afterwards the Portuguese obtained permission to settle at Nagasaki and established a highly lucrative trade. In 1549, the Jesuit missionary, Francis Xavier, arrived, and by his means, and that of his followers, many of the natives were converted to the church of Rome. But the government becoming jealous of the Portuguese, and irritated at the interference of the missionaries with the religious profanity of the people, in 1585 expelled the traders, and compelled the native converts to return to their former faith. In 1600 the Dutch, with difficulty, prevailed upon the Japanese to allow them to trade, on condition of not interfering with the national religion, and they still continue the only nation having direct intercourse with them. The trade, however is carried on under great disadvantages, and is subject to numerous vexatious restrictions. An Englishman, named William Adams, a master in the navy was wrecked on the coast of Japan during the reign of Queen Elizabeth and kept a prisoner for life. His gained favour with the emperor and succeeded in opening commercial relations between England and Japan, which for several years flourished vigorously, but during the reign of James I the English flag was withdrawn, and the English shared in the general expulsion of Europeans above adverted to—among which time the ports of Japan have been closed upon us.—(Stobold's Japan, A. Sanger, &c.)

JAI AN or DUAI is a town in Java, prov. of and about 25 m W.S.W. Boreibaya, 1 bank Kediri. It is a large populous place, the residence of the provincial governor of the interior and has several mosques, and a good island trade. Near it are the ruins of the old town of Medan and Kamalan.

JAPAN (Sea of) that portion of the Pacific Ocean enclosed by the Japan Islands, on the E. and S. and the countries of Manchuria and Corea on the W. and extending from lat. 35° to 52° N., terminating in the N. with the gulf or channel of Tartary through which it communicates with the sea of Okhotsk. It communicates with the Pacific E. by the strait of Le Maire or Saunders and S. by that of Corea. It is about 540 m wide at the broadest part.

JAPARA or DIAPARA is a town, cap. raudony or prov. of same name, lat. Java, N. coast, about 8 m from the mouth of the Japara, 36 m N.N.E. Samangay, lat. 5° 32' S. lon. 110° 43' E. It has an elegant mosque, a fine governor's house, a good school, and a fort and carries on a considerable amount of trade. Three miles inland are the ruins of the Javanese city of same name.—THE PROVINCE OF REMBANG is bounded S. by prov. Samangay and on the other three sides by the Java Sea. It forms a projection of peninsula, and is about 40 m long N. to S., and about 25 m broad. Inland, it is rather hilly, but towards the shores the ground is marshy, and the climate unhealthy. It is fertile, yielding excellent crops of rice, coffee, and Turkish wheat and the woods, which cover the uplands, swarm with wild animals and birds of many kinds. Soil is plentiful. Pop. (1840), 400,000.

JAPURA, or CAQUETA, a large river, S. America, an affluent of the Amazon. It has its sources in the Andes of Ecuador, about 50 m N.E. Pato, lat. 1° 20' N., lon. 76° 50' W. whence it flows E. by S. and then S.E., forming the boundary between Ecuador and New Granada from about lat. 1° 5' N., lon. 75° 15' W., to lat. 0° 25' S. lon. 78° 20' W. when it becomes the line of demarcation between Ecuador and Brazil finally entering the latter at lat. 1° 20' S. lon. 78° 20' W. from which its course, with a few deviations, is nearly due E., to lat. 1° 50' S., lon. 65° 15' W., when it suddenly takes a S. direction and falls into the Amazon at lat. 5° S., lon. 65° W. having been for upwards of 800 m of the latter part of its course, wholly a Brazilian river. Its whole length is upwards of 1000 m. It has numerous affluents from both the N. and S., the principal of which are the Fragas, Capana, Canuari, Apuraya, and Poroca. The navigation of the Japura is interrupted by a great cataract, which occurs in lat. 1° 10' S., lon. 74° 30' W.

JARAFUEL, a town in Spain, prov. of, and 45 m W.S.W. Valencia, 1 bank Nor, tolerably built, with two squares, a church, townhouse, prison, two schools, and a public granary. Manufactures of linen and woollen fabrics, shoes, soap, and Pot. II.

white wax, and a trade in wine, wax, honey, and vegetables. Pop. 2078.

JARAGUA.—1 A town in Brazil, prov. of, and 70 m E. Goyas, with two churches, one of them a handsome edifice and a considerable trade in cattle—said to be the best in the province. Pop. dist. 2500.—2 A port, Brazil prov. Alagoas, on the S. side of the promontory of Ponta Verde, 4 m E. Macao. It is one of the most frequented ports in the province.—3 A river Brazil prov. Santa-Catharina, an affluent of the Iaplares from the S. It is navigable for oxen for about 20 m.

JARAGEJO, a town in Spain, Extremadura, prov. of, and 40 m E.N.E. Caceres. It is a poor place, consisting chiefly of one wide and dirty street, traversed by a number of dark and filthy lanes, and has a church, a townhouse, manufacture of linen and soap, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1096.

JARATZ, a town in Spain, Extremadura, prov. and 54 m E. Caceres. It is an old place, poorly and irregularly built, though having paved and clean streets, contains two churches both an usual a courthouse, prison, primary school and hospital and manufactures of linen several oil and numerous flour mills and a trade in payments, milk, oil, and wine. Pop. 3500.

JARANDILLA, a town in Spain, Extremadura, prov. of and 60 m N.N.E. Caceres at the confluence of the Jaranda and Jarandilla, nearly surrounded by hills of the sierra de Hajar and Grado. It is very poorly built has a church in its structure more resembling a fortress than an ecclesiastical edifice an old turreted palace, partly in ruins, an hospital and townhouse and several oil and flour mills. Pop. 2191.

JARCY JARX or JARX a vill and town France, dep. Savoie, 1 bank Charn about 16 m from Chambéry. It is surrounded by lofty peaks but has some good land in its vicinity a trade in dairy produce and in apples pears, and nuts. Pop. 1215.

JAREK, a vill Hungary Hither Danube, co. Bacs, m a plain about 2 m from Lemercs, with a church, and a trade in corn and potatoes. Pop. 1210.

JAREMBINA or JARABINA, a vill Hungary Hither Theiss, co. Zips, in a mountainous district 20 m N. Louche, with a church, manufactures of linen and leather and a trade in sheep and cattle. Pop. 1640.

JARENBK, a town Russia, gov. of, and 960 m E.N.E. Vologda, cap. circle of same name, on the Wytschega, which remains frozen for five months. It has a church and manufactures of ironware a trade in fur, and other articles, sent chiefly to Archangel and several annual fairs. Pop. 1128.

—THE CIRCLE is extensively covered with lakes and morasses, is not well adapted for agriculture and has even very indifferent breeds of cattle but a tolerably rich in minerals, particularly iron. Area, 859 sq. m.

JAROGEAU (anc. Jeropontum) a town France, dep. Loiret 10 m E. Orleans, 1 bank Loire, here crossed by a handsome bridge. Near it good red wine is made Jarogau was formerly fortified, it was besieged and taken, in 1428, by the famous Earl of Salisbury. Pop. 1452.

JARKOVACZ, a vill Hungary Hither Danube, co. of and 30 m S.W. Temesvar, on the Berava canal. It contains two Greek non-united churches. Pop. 2406.

JARLESBERG or Laurvig, a vill Norway, prov. Christiansund, bounded N. and W. by Islands Bukard and Reasberg, E. by the gulf or fiord of Christiansund and S. by the Skager Rack, about 56 m long N. to S., by 25 m broad area 678 sq. m., cap. Tonsberg. It belongs to the less mountainous regions of the country and depends chiefly on agriculture and cattle-rearing though there are likewise some iron-mines, and ship-building, wood-floating fishing &c. are carried on. Besides its capital, it possesses the towns of Holmestrand, Aasgaardstrand, Handeljord, and Laurvig. Pop. (1845), 63 076.

JARMAN, a town France, prov. Puenteasa, gov. of and 61 m N.W. Metz on the Preuze. It occupies a low flat has a parish church, a fishery and a trade in horses and cattle. Pop. 998.

JARHAC, a town France, dep. Charente, agreeably and advantageously situated among extensive meadows, 1 bank Charente here crossed by a handsome suspension-bridge, 16 m W.N.W. Angoulême. It is well built and has a considerable trade in Cognac brandy red wine, cattle, and leather, and several annual fairs, each of which lasts three days.

Jarocin is memorable for the defeat sustained in 1580 by the Protestants under the command of Gollgny and the Prince of Condé, when the latter was killed. Pop. 2,383.

JAROCIN, or JAROSZCZ, a town in Prussia, prov. of, and 79 m. S.E. from . It has a court of justice, a M. Catholic church and a trade in horses, cattle and swine. Pop. 1604.

JAROMERITZ, or JAROMERITZ, a town in Austria, Moravia, circle Znaim 1 km. from Rokitna, 38 m. W. from Brno with a castle, a church, and two mills. Pop. 2018.

JAROMERITZ, a town in Austria, Moravia, circle Olmütz, about 10 m. from Goldenbrunn, with a church, a castle, and several mills. Pop. 1630.

JAROMIRZ, a town in Bohemia, circle Hainburg, at the confluence of the Aupa with the Elbe, here crossed by a chain bridge, 68 m. E. of Prague. It is walled has two gates, three suburbs, a demerary church, chapel and hospital, manufactures of cloth and a walk, a saw and other mills. It is an old place and suffered greatly during the Hussite war. Pop. 9490.

JAROSLAV [pronounced Jaroslaw] a town in Russia, bounded N. by the Volga, E. by the Kama, S. by the V. Tver and N. by the Kama. lat. 56° 45' to 57° 15' lon. 37° 35' to 41° 50' E. But for a projection on the N.E. it is nearly of an oval form, greatest length N. to S. 160 m. greatest breadth 140 m. area, 9600 sq. m. The surface, though somewhat elevated is generally flat, being only occasionally broken by the high banks of its streams, or by low ridges. In several places it becomes very marshy. It wholly belongs to the basin of the Volga, which enters it on the N.W., traverses it first in a N.W. and then abruptly in a N.E. direction, quitting it on the E. Beyond thus draining a large part of the surface directly it returns within the gov. the Molozh, Shkama, and Kotorosl. Several lakes are found in different directions. The largest is the Yero, in the S. near the town of Rostov. The air is pure and the climate healthy though winter is severe, a lot of summer comparatively short. Considerable tracts are covered with marshes and wood which not being generally of superior quality is chiefly useful for fuel. With exception of the ground thus occupied, almost the whole gov. may be considered fertile. The soil, however, is by no means fertile. Much of it consists of a thin sand or gravelly detrital clay and hence, notwithstanding the large portion of surface under the plough, the grain produced falls short of the home consumption. After grain the principal crops are hemp and flax. In the S. apples and cherries are abundant. Domestic animals are comparatively few in number, and of indifferent breeds. The rivers particularly the Volga and the Kama, are well supplied with fish. There are no minerals of the least consequence. Manufactures which are carried on with considerable activity consist chiefly of woollen linen, cotton, and silk goods, hosiery, gloves, leather harness, wooden toys, &c. The chief export of the gov. is fish, but there is a considerable transit trade in corn. Many of the inhabitants seek employment in other govts. For administrative purposes the gov. is divided into ten uyezds, of which Jaroslav is the cap. Pop. (1846) 1,068,100.

JAROSLAV, a town in Russia, cap. above gov. & bank Volga at the confluence of the Kotorosl 102 m. S. E. Moscow. Its site is somewhat elevated, and it is surrounded by a palisade, and defended by a fort, though otherwise open. The houses, though mostly of wood have a massive appearance and are tolerably well built, but the streets are very irregular and narrow and only partially paved. Jaroslav is the seat of an archbishop, the residence of a governor and the seat of several important courts and public offices and contains no fewer than forty four churches, all of these of stone, several of them handsome and generally surmounted with domes and spires, which particularly at a distance, produce a striking appearance. The other buildings and establishments deserve of notice are the seminary or college, richly endowed by Prince Demidoff, possessed of a library a cabinet of natural history, and other good collections and attended by 600 students a gymnasium and several other public schools, three monasteries, a general and a funding hospital, several poor-houses, and a house of correction. The manufactures consist of linen and silk goods soap, raddier leather paper, plated tin, and iron, tin and copper ware. The trade—partly transit, and partly in the above articles of manufacture, particularly linen and leather—is of considerable importance.

Jaroslav derives its name from the celebrated son of Vladimir the Great, Jaroslav who founded it in 1095. It owes much of its prosperity to the linen manufacture, first introduced into it by Peter the Great. Pop. (1846) 25,000.

JAROSLAW, a town in Austria, Galicia, circle Przemysl 1 km. S. 38 m. W. N. W. Lemberg. It is situated in a beautiful district, contains a handsome cathedral church (Domkirche) and a normal school, and has manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, yarn, rascogin and refined wax, a considerable trade in these articles, and in honey, salt, and ship masts, the last sent chiefly to Danzig, and a weekly market, once famous, and still of considerable importance, though greatly fallen off. Pop. 3372.

JARROW, a town and par. England co. Durham. The village, 5 1/2 m. W. S. W. of S. Shields, & bank Tyne, is about 1 m. long, well kept and has an ancient church in the vestry of which is kept a rude oaken chair said to have belonged to the venerable Bede, who was born in the parish, and buried in the church.—The parishes contain the townships of S. Shields Jarrow Heworth, Halwether, Monkton, Harton, and Westoe. Area 5782 ac. Pop. 42,448. chiefly employed in sailing.

JARIN, or JARON, a town in Persia, prov. Fars, 93 m. S. S. E. Shiraz, on the road thence to the Persian Gulf. It has some trade in cottons tobacco and iron and is remarkable for the number and beauty of its palm-trees. Pop. 4000.

JARIN, a small coral island N. Pacific Ocean lat. 0° 2' 33" S. lon. 159° 54' 11" W. 12 m. E. to W. and 1 m. N. to S. without tree or shrub.—2 (Chamisso), An inlet of the Gulf of Georgia, British N. America Oregon Territory lat. 49° 35' N. lon. 124° W. length 35 m. average breadth 5 m.

JASENA, or JASANA, a scattered vil. Bohemia, circle Küniggrätz, with a church and a school. Pop. 1067.

JASLISHA, a market in Austria, Galicia, circle and 20 m. S. W. Sanok on the Jaslo among the Carpathians, on the frontiers of Hungary with a parish church. Pop. 2000.

JASLON, a town in Austria, Galicia, cap. circle of same name at the confluence of several small streams with the W. Vysloka 183 m. W. by S. Lemberg. It has a law court, offices for the circle, a parish church, two schools, an old castle, a sulphur bath, and a considerable general trade and trade in horses. Pop. 1800.—The climate is mountainous being partly covered in the S. by the principal chain and in other directions by ramifications of the Carpathians belongs to the basin of the Vistula, which receives its drainage chiefly by the W. Vysloka, and is well wooded but by no means fertile most of the soil being sandy stony and almost barren. Area, 9600 sq. m. Pop. 260,810.

JASSY, or JASY, (anc. Jassorum Jassagense) the cap. of Moldavia, and residence of the Hospodar on the Prut 162 m. W. N. W. Odessa lat. 40° 10' 34" N. lon. 27° 34' 44" E. It is built partly on a hill and partly in a valley where the prevalence of marshes makes the air very unhealthy. A very large space is covered by the town, the houses being generally provided with gardens. The streets are mostly narrow and winding and several quarters of the town have a very mean appearance. But at great fire in 1823 having destroyed nearly 5000 houses, new buildings have sprung up, generally of a handsome appearance. Some streets are long and spacious. This is particularly true of the principal street which is the great place of commerce and business, and is lined on each side by a long row of shops generally kept by Jews. Many of the public buildings, having been of wood were destroyed by the fire, but the ecclesiastical edifices being all solidly constructed of brick or stone, escaped. They are very numerous. Among them may be mentioned the metropolitan church of St. Nicolas, the churches of St. Nicholas, Theodosius, and Galata, the archiepiscopal palace, the convent of Trilivitch, in which the archbishops are buried, the R. Catholic and the Lutheran church. St. Jassy has, besides, a large banner public baths, a Wallachian press, the only one existing in the country, a small prison, a seminary and several primary schools. There are scarcely any manufactures, but the trade is of some importance, and a great deal of business is done at the fairs. Jassy was a place of considerable importance in the time of the Romans, and is said to have contained 90,000 inhabitants. Its subsequent history is a series of great disasters. It was almost entirely burned down in 1728 and was fearfully ravaged by the plague in 1779. Still its population exceeded 40 000 but since the Jesuits set fire to it in 1822 it is diminished at least one-half, and cannot now be estimated at more than 28 000.

JASTROW, a tn. Prussia, prov W Prussia, gov and 90 sq. W. W. Marienwerder on the Wulst, with a civil and a criminal court, a Protestant and a R Catholic church, a synagogue, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 3,088

JANÁ APATNÍ, a free market tn. Hungary, co Havel, in a plain 48 m. E. Pesh, with a handsome R. Catholic church, and an important yearly market. Around it large crops, particularly of wheat, are raised Pop. 8800

JÁZGY-BÉSZÉNY, a market in Hungary, near Jazyga dist.
38 m. E.N.E. Pesth. It is prettily situated on both sides of the Jazyga which forms two islands near the centre of the town. These have been planted and laid out as walks in the public square nearly opposite, are the remains of an ancient Roman temple, the site of which is marked by a cross have been buried at a 468. The buildings most deserving of notice are, a large and handsome R. Catholic church, a Franciscan monastery, with church attached a Protestant church, townhouses, with register office, guardhouse, and royal gymnasium. The district around is of considerable importance producing much corn, and rearing many cattle, sheep and horses. There are three important annual fairs. Pop 1840: 18,900.

JAGZ-PENZANCE a vil Hungary Jasygia dist on the Zagyr, 10 m W N W Jasz-Berezy, with two churches and a mineral bath. Pop 8439

JASZENICZA, a vil Hungary Nither Danube so Arva, about 24 m. from Kابل. It has manufactures of linen, and a trade in it: a distillery, and a smelting furnace.
Pop. 1089

JABRENOVA a vil Hungary military dist. Temesvar about 8 m. from Lagerdorf with a parish church P 1890 JASZBA a market in Croatia, Nithar Sava, co of and 20 m. N.W. Agram with a castle, church, and Franciscan monastery. Pop. 1212

co. Jászó is a market in Hungary. Ithier Thales. co. Alanya, in a beautiful valley 1 km. from Bodro 80 m. S. E. Leuvenburg. It contains a magnificent old Franciscan 8 m. E. Leuvenburg, the church of wigs, surrounded by two guided towers and a richly painted dome, and within limestone. It is entirely covered with marble and alabaster is one of the finest in Hungary. There is also an excellent library contained in a splendid hall and enriched with numerous valuable collections. The chief manufactures is earthenware and there are extensive markets chiefly for fat cattle. In the vicinity are paper-mills, a marble quarry iron mines, and blast furnaces. Pop. 1799

JATIVA or XATIVA (SAN FILIPE) is a city 500
 prer of and 36 m S.E.W. (Valencia) on the slope of a hill, crowned by an ancient and strong castle, with 30 towers and a double fosse round the confluence of the Guadamaral and Alibeyta. The houses are in general well built, the streets generally wide, clean and paved. The principal and elite leguate church is on the form of a Latin cross, is a fine structure with a dome, and a fine tower. The church of the Holy Spirit having a handsome dome there are also three other churches, seven convents, several public and private schools, a townhouse, prison, hospital, storehouse, theatre, institution for the reception of poor widows, fifty three fountains, and a palace of the counts of Mucedada. In the environs are a bull ring and two public walks, decorated with trees and fountains.
 Manufactures:—linen and woollen fabrics hats, soap, earthen ware, leather, and wine. Principal exports:—sugar, coffee, guano, silk, rice, wheat, oil wine, honey, perfumery, hardware, poultry, &c. Pop. 12,168

JAVER, a in Prumia, prov. Silesia, gov. of and 10 m. S. S. K. Lignita, cap. crome of same name, i. bank Wild Nemes. It is surrounded by a fertile well, with four gates; has two suburbs, several courts and offices for the estate, two churches, several schools, a savings-bank, houses of correction, manufactures of linen, gloves, hosiery, ribbons, starch, and tobacco a worried and several other mills, tile-works, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 7106. —The climate is hilly, watered by the Neesee and Javer, yields good crops, and has excellent pastures. area, 423.99, sq. m. Free. 80,274

JALERNIG, a tn. Austria, Salza circle of and 52 m N W Troppau, on the Prussian frontier. It has a church a courthouse, and manufactures of woollen cloth and rusoglo and several mills. Pop 1900

JAUYA, a tu Peru, dep. Junin 120 m E Lima, 1 bank river of same name. It has a fine cavalry barrack, and carries on a considerable trade in cattle and agricultural produce. Near it are silver mines. Pop. 15 000. — The seven ruas in Lake Obincheycocha, flows in a sinuous S.E. course for 400 m and, under the name of Mantaro, joins the Apuriman, near lat. 12° S., lon. 79° 35' W.

JAI RU a river Brazil which rises in the Serra of its name—a branch of the Cordillera of Parecis—in prov. Mato-Grosso, flows first N. then S.E. and, after a course of about 220 m joins T. bank Paraguay, 40 m below Aldeia-Maria. Its principal affluents are the Aracuael and Robim.

JAVA, palms, Java rice, Italian, Cocos] an ml Indian Archipelago, and the principal seat of the Dutch power in the E. esp. Batavia. Next to Sumatra and Borneo, it is the largest in the Sunda group and is bounded N by the Java Sea, and S. & W. by the Indian Ocean separated W by the straits of Sunda from Sumatra, and E by that of Ball from B. lat. 5° 38' to 8° 51' E. and lon 105° 15' to 114° 35' E. In shape it somewhat resembles a parallelogram, the greater axis of which lies E. and W. with a slight inclination N at the W. end. It is 630 m. long, by 85 to 196 m. broad, area, 49 730 sq m.

Divisions.—Java and the smaller adjacent island of Bali are divided into twenty-two provinces, as follows:—

[illegible]

CARRY FORWARD 5 526 000

The population in 1881 amounted to 18,019 108

Physocell, Scaevola—The Indian Ocean, which bounds both great coasts along the S coast, has prevented the formation, on that side, of even alluvial plains as extend along the N parts. From the same cause the S coast is generally unsafe for shipping while the N affords excellent anchorage at almost all times and places. The S presents a continuous front of crags and rocks forming the outer edge of an extremely unobscure country the N is flat and low, and covered in many places with mangrove swamps. The principal bays, and harbours formed along its coast are, Java Head or Cape, at the entrance of the Strait of Sunda from the Indian Ocean, Cape St Nicholas where that strait opens into the Java Sea, Cape Pankaj at the W and Cape Beendano at the E entrances of the Strait of Malacca, Cape Kaso and South Cape at the E extremity of Java, Wynncopo, and Slongo at Poppo Bay at the end of the island Nure Kaso, and the Poppo Bay at the Pempasir, Puchua, Pangol Sambrang, Segara Weda, Dampier and Grandjean Bay. The chief harbours are those of Batavia and Sourabaya, on the N, and that of Chali Pajang formed by the small island Nure Kaso, on the S.

The island is traversed in its whole length by two chains of mountains, which sometimes unite, and at other times descend apart from each other forming ramifications alonging gently down to the shore. The two chains, from 10 000 to above 20 000 ft. high are thickly set with volcanoes, active and as yet extinct. From 6000 to 9000 ft. in height some of them, rising to 19 000 ft., are seen at sea from a great distance, and form a headmark to the navigator. These mountains are intersected by large and beautiful valleys, watered by numerous rivers, and covered with forest. Through alluvial plains, everywhere found, whether the ground be more or less elevated, yet the formation of the island is generally trachytic, with a few spots of granite, and some of mica-schist, mica-schist, limestone, sandstone, and other species of mixed rocks.

Each family has its own portion of land, varying from half an acre to six acres. About a third of the cultivated ground is supposed to be thus occupied. After various unsuccessful experiments, the Dutch have succeeded at last in effecting such a commutation of the imposts formerly levied by the native sovereigns, as without trenching too much on the settled notions of the natives, enables them to draw from the soil a large amount of valuable tropical produce for transmission to Europe. This is called 'The system of culture,' and was introduced in 1822. A certain proportion of the land is now set apart for whatever crop the Government may direct, it taking on itself the risk of failure. This forms one part of the commutation; the other is taken in labour applied to the Government ground and so as that one part of the villagers succeeds another from the preparation of the soil until the crop is reaped. It is then transferred to mill-owners and others, who according to a different class of arrangements, prepare the produce for market, and hand it over to the Government for that purpose. All is superintended by the native authorities, who are stimulated to activity and fidelity by liberal remuneration. In this manner large supplies of produce are procured for transmission to Europe, and a large surplus revenue has replaced a yearly deficit. At the same time—partly by improved methods of culture and irrigation, partly by the clearing of fresh ground—the staple food of the peninsula has been augmented, and the population is contented and rapidly increasing.

Zoology.—Including domestic and marine animals, 100 kinds of mammalia inhabit Java. Though so close to Sumatra and the Malay Peninsula, neither the elephant nor is tiger are found in it; but, in the W part, the one-horned rhinoceros is not uncommon, and in numerous more, especially higher districts the royal tiger, panther and tiger-cat keep the inhabitants in constant alarm by their depredations. The Balyroum is nowhere so plentiful and it, along with two kinds of wild hog (Sus verrucosus and verruca) form the large game of the island. Hylarchia leucotis two species of Scap. niphobius, and the cosmopolitan Cercopithecus cynomolgus, are the only representatives of the ape kind, but they people the forests in countless numbers. Two kinds of lemur (Scenops Javanicus and tardigradus) inspire the inhabitants with superstitious fear by their mysterious nocturnal habits and this island may be esteemed the native seat of the largest bats (Myotis edulis or Javanicus), the largest of which measures 5 ft. across the wings; they may be seen suspended from the branches in hundreds during the day and at night they devastate the orchards and gardens. Two civets (Viverra zibethica and malayana) are common, and supply a perfume of which the Javanese are passionately fond; the wild ox (Bos sondaicus) a beautiful and graceful animal which has hitherto been found unamenable, abounds in the woods; and the Buffalo (Bos bubalus arm.) said to have been brought from continental Asia in the 12th century by the same prince to whom tradition ascribes the introduction of the rice plant is the only animal in agricultural labour, and is doubtless more numerous than the oxen and horses united. The large animal is small but vigorous. The ornithology of Java is rich and varied, both in genera and in species; almost all the known generic groups of rapacious birds are found here, and in great numbers. The peacock (Avus sphenoceros) spreads his brilliant plume in the hums of the tiger of which it forms the favourite prey. Thrushes of various kinds are common and near the principal craters may be seen a kind of blackbird (Turdus fumidus), which never departs from the localities exposed to eruptions and igneous matters. Gallinaceous fowls are plentiful, more especially Turdus pugnax and pugax Coturnix chinensis, and Bendic cock. Both the rivers and the surrounding seas supply a great variety of fish, and pearls and coral fish abound. Insects cover the grounds and plants in countless numbers; but few are distinguished for brilliancy or variety of colour, or are remarkable in form.

Manners, Customs, Religion, &c.—The Javanese are small in size, of a yellow hue, superstitious, careless of the future, inclined to laziness, sober, compassionate, loyal, without being holier-than-thou, patient, enduring, and easily led when convinced that the orders given are not contrary to the ancient laws and customs of the country, which are held in religious reverence. They are respectful to parents, and venerate the tombs of their ancestors. They are, however, very susceptible of efforts, which they are not slow to avenge with the kris, which is invariably worn and they are frequently likewise armed with the sabre or pika. In religion they are Mahomedan, a faith introduced in the 14th century by the Arabians, and which has since almost entirely displaced both Hinduism and Buddhism of both of which numerous imposing relics are to be met with in various parts of the island. The mass of the Javanese take only one wife, who is treated with respect and consideration, but people of quality and wealth take advantage of the latitude allowed by the Koran, and practise polygamy. The dancing masters of the Gamelan, and the movements of professional dancers are the great sources of amusement on festival days and great entertainments, all, without distinction are passionately fond of gaming, more especially of cock-fighting, and the children in imitation of the parents, amuse themselves with combats between insects, whose bellicose disposition they endeavour to stimulate. The Javanese are good farmers, and have made some progress in metallurgy, in carpentry and cabinet-making. They weave and dye well, make paper from the mulberry (Morus papyrifera) and many are engaged with poisoned arrows in obtaining fish, which being salted and dried, constitute a great dainty. The great mass, however, of the people are devoted to agriculture.

Trade and Commerce.—The great bulk of the foreign trade is carried on through the ports of Batavia, Samarang and Soerabaya, and is chiefly in the hands of the Dutch and Chinese. The following tables exhibit the nature and extent in recent years.

VALUE OF TOTAL IMPORTS AND EXPORTS FROM JAVA AND MADAGASCAR, IN 1848, AND 1861.

Year.	Imports.	Exports.
1848	3,010,067	6,045,115
1861	2,442,458	6,019,964
1861	3,400,000	4,104,045
1861	2,853,046	4,400,545

VALUE (KNOWN WEIGHT OF SPECIES) OF IMPORTS INTO AND EXPORTS FROM JAVA AND MADAGASCAR, IN 1848 AND 1862, SHOWING THE COUNTRIES WHENCE IMPORTED AND TO WHICH EXPORTED.

	Imports from		Exports to
	1848.	1862.	1848.	1862.
Holland	691,067	1,783,648	1,144,462	2,481,650
England	280,948	710,581	51,638	36,028
France	30,910	35,000	98,961	153,650
Belgium	33	—	27,455	—
Sweden	9,121	8,441	60,190	—
Denmark	1,093	1	11,532	—
Hamburg	15,112	11,828	46,737	—
Bremen	1,807	—	85,96	266
Genoa	170	—	40,430	—
America	23,858	4,081	8,185	24,588
Oceania of Good Hope.	30	13	1,655	—
Mauritius	1,000	3	14,668	—
Singapore and Ceylon	9,110	15,173	1,123	—
Persian Gulf	6,134	8,478	3,894	9,565
Malacca	17,238	—	167,068	—
China and Macao	68,091	150,221	6,701	35,185
Siam	20,181	26,248	15,023	11,160
Japan	10,508	6,416	15,467	14,468
Australia	1,000	33,630	665,905	75,459
Indian Archipelago	497,025	600,49	30,828	718,010

VALUE OF THE PRINCIPAL EXPORTS FROM JAVA AND MADAGASCAR IN 1858 AND 1862.

	1858.	1862.
	£	£
Rice.	200,000	231,018
Coffee	70,000	490,738
Sugar	1,46,331	1,437,379
Rubbers	97,025	8,229
Wax	26,674	—
Cloves.	24,040	64
Tea.	440,780	30,252
Indigo.	307,600	180,100
Cinnamon.	14,446	80
Pepper.	32,792	640
Pimento.	14,372	20,320
Starch.	27	—
Tin.	67,808	1,488
Tobacco.	35,000	160,668
Corn-starch Soap	1,011	—
Hides	—	77,419
Cassia-bark	—	51,619

Governments and Revenue.—A governor-general or viceroy is supreme ruler with command both of the army and navy in all the Dutch provinces in the Indian Archipelago. He is assisted by the council of the Indies, composed of a vice-president and four members named by the king and is in correspondence with the governors of the different dependencies of Java, namely, Ambon, Borneo, Celebes, Sunda, all of whom are under his orders. A high court of appeal sits at Batavia and courts taking cognizance of civil and criminal cases among Europeans sit in all the principal towns. The natives are under native tribunals, superintended, in certain instances by Europeans. Government has established schools for primary instruction at Batavia and the other principal towns, and has salaried vaccinators and medical practitioners in all the residences to attend to the wants of the natives. In 1845 the Government expenditure amounted to 46,591,190 which was considerably exceeded by the revenue, of which about 2300,000 were derived from the monopoly in opium alone.

History.—Ancient Javanese history is written in the still existing magnificent remains of temples and other public buildings, which are plentifully scattered over the island. These attest that the worship of Brahma and Buddha once prevailed in the island under the splendid Hindoo empire of Matipahit the dismemberment of which was consummated by the Arabs, A.D. 1478 by the destruction of a vast capital of that name. Islamism had previously supplanted the rival worship, and had driven their last adherents into the neighbouring island of Bali. The island then fell under the dominion of numerous petty chiefs and was found in that state by the Portuguese, the first European settlers on the island, who arrived in 1511. They were followed in 1596, by the Dutch who soon expelled them. Though their views were at first directed wholly to commerce the Dutch merchants like our own E. India Company soon found it necessary to assume the position of a governing power and treated accordingly with the native princes, with whom they were frequently at war. In 1811 Java was taken from the Dutch by the British, who, however, restored it after the peace of 1816 since which time it has remained in their hands. Up till 1830 various portions of the island were still under native princes, who paid tribute to Holland but in that year a revolt took place, which resulted in the whole island falling under the Dutch sway with exception of two provinces, which were then left under the government of Javanese princes—Boracabari, under its Soemboehana, and Djepokabari, under its Sultan. Both princes have a court, nobles, ministers, &c. but are the mere instruments of the Dutch government by whom they are allowed a handsome pension. Since the close of this war the island has been rapidly increasing in population and prosperity.—(Van der Aal. Tennink's Java, Neerlandische Monument des Indes, Lyall's Geology, &c.)

JAVA SEA. that portion of the S. Pacific Ocean lying between the islands of Borneo and Java, and between lon 107° and 116° E. Width of the sea, from one island to the other, about 250 m. It is traversed by two approved routes to China, the one by Pit's Passage, and the other by the Strait of Macassar.

JAVALI NUNGO a vil Spain prov. of and about 4 m. from Murcia, a bank village, with a church two primary schools and a trade in silk and pimento. Pop. 1563.

JAVALKINTO a tn. Spain, Asturias, prov. of, and 14 m. N. from Oviedo, a height above r. bank Gudisulm, it has narrow and ill-paved streets a parish church, townhouse, prison, and school, a flour and several oil mills, and a trade in oil and corn. Pop. 1061.

JAVLER (Bak) a tn. Spain prov. of and 21 m. S.E. Murcia, about 4 m. E. of the Mediterranean. It is well built, has spacious though unpaved streets a church and a primary school gymnasium and lime kilns; several oil and flour mills and a trade in corn and barley. Pop. 2540.

JAYRON a tn. France, dep. of, and 15 m. N.E. Mayenne, 1 bank river Mayenne. Near it is the extensive slate-quarry of Chateaugay, which employs above 800 workmen. P. 810.

JAWANA DAWARA, or JOANA a tn. ul. Java, prov. of, and 30 m. S.E. of Jopra, near the mouth of the Jawana. It has a fort, a square, and a governor's house and carries on trade. Pop. 10,000.—The river, one of the largest on the N. coast of Java, rises in an inland lake, whence it flows generally N.E. to the Java Sea. Its mouth is encumbered by a bank, but yet prisms navigates the stream to its source in the inland lake.

JAWORNIETZ, a vl. Bohemia, circle Kooaggritz, 4 m. from Reichenau. It stands on a small stream, and has a church, a school, two mills, and a trade in wood. Pop. 1803.

JAWOROW a tn. Austria, Gailthal, wood Presnyal, on a lake abounding with fish, 80 m. W. N. W. Lemberg. It is built in the form of a square, has extensive suburbs, a parish church, and mineral springs. Here Peter the Great first met with Catherine, afterwards Empress of Russia. Pop. 8985.

JAWUD a tn. Hindoostan prov. Ajmeer 80 m. E. by N Odeypoor lat. 24° 38' N lon 74 56' E. It is surrounded by a stone wall, and has good gateways, but is of no strength.

JAXARTES river Asia. See Sin.

JAXT—1. A river, Wurtemberg, which rises near the confines of Bavaria, about 10 m. S. E. Ulm, after reaching which it flows N.W. to the frontiers of Baden where it turns S.W., forming, for a short distance, the boundary between Baden and Wurtemberg and ultimately joins r. bank Neckar 7 m. N. Hellbrunn total course about 100 m. It is nowhere navigable.—2. One of the four circles of Wurtemberg, forming the N.E. part of the kingdom area, 1000 sq. m. It contains the towns of Crailsheim Ulm, and Gmünd, &c. Pop. 365,607.

JAXTHAUSEN a vil Wurtemberg circle Neckar r. bank Jaxt, 40 m. N. N. E. Stuttgart, with a church and three castles. Pop. 1107.

JAYSUI MIE. See Jamsulzeu.

JAYI OWICE a tn. Austria, Galicia, on r. Stry, 86 m. S.E. Lemberg, with a church 1 op. 2100.

JAZYGIA a dist. Hungary surrounded by the cos. of Heves and Pesth cap. Jasz-Beregy. It is watered by the Keosza, Zagyva, and Tarna yields grain, wine, and tobacco and rears horses and other domestic animals. For administrative purposes it is united with the districts of Great and Little Cusana. Area, 279 sq. m. Pop. 49,200.

JEAN or JUAN RANET, a maritime tn. and empire Illyri N. peninsula, 63 m. W. by N Cape Hayden, with good safe anchorage in 15 fathoms.

JFAN D'AMULEY (Sr) [Latin Ingrown] a tn. France dep. Charente-Maritime agreeably situated r. bank Bouteigne, here navigable by barges 85 m. E.S.E. Rochelle. It is a very irregularly built, but has a cheerful appearance, from the whitewash of the houses and remarkable cleanliness of the streets; is the seat of a court of first resort and commerce has an agricultural society and communal colleges, two churches, a handsome market hall, hospital, theatre, and ancient abbey and manufactures of gunpowder, distilleries of Cognac, and a trade in wine, brandy, timber, clover lucerne, and elegant goods. Pop. 5147.

JIAN D'AMULEY (Sr) a tn. France dep. Haute-Savoie prov. of (valley, S m. S.E. Brot in a valley of same name) bank Dragne. It once possessed a Cistercian abbey which has been suppressed. It has a trade in cattle, and cheese of excellent quality. Many of the inhabitants emigrate to obtain employment. Pop. 2258.

JEAN DE BOCKHAT (Sr) a tn. France dep. Isere 14 m. E. Valence, on the Veron, a small stream which after giving motion to many mills is lost in the ground and does not reappear. There are here a refinery of beet-root sugar, several sawmills and tanning mills. Pop. 1631.

JEAN DE LOREY (Sr) a tn. France dep. Cote d'Or, 18 m. S.E. Dijon, pleasantly situated in a plain, r. bank Saône, where it is joined by the canal of Burgundy and near the mouth of the canal from the Rhone to the Rhine a position enabling it to carry on a trade in grain, wine, iron, wood, and charcoal. Pop. 2280.

JEAN DE LUX (Sr) a small seaport and frontier tn. France, dep. Basses-Pyrenees, 12 m. W. B. Bayonne, at the mouth of the r. on r. bank Nivelle, across which is a wooden bridge to the suburb of Sibeon. It is defended by the forts of St. Barthe and Sibeon. The sea has washed away many parts of the town, and the shifting sands at the mouth of the river have almost entirely blocked up its port. Its trade is trifling and consists principally in fish. Pop. 2124.

JEAN DU BRUEL (Sr) a tn. France, dep. Aveyron, 89 m. N. N. W. Montpellier, at the foot of a branch of the Cevennes.

It consists of a long street running from N to S, and in the centre of which is a spacious square. It has manufactures of woollen stuffs, cotton hosiery, and hats, and a trade in cattle, sheep, timber, deals, fruit, corn, and cattle. Pop. 1446

JEAN DU GARD (Str), a tn France, dep. Gard 9 m. W Alais, l. bank Gardon d'Anduze. It has a church, and many features of silk stuffs, silk stockings, and silk thread, paper, leather earthenware and beer. Manganese is worked in the neighbourhood. Pop. 2818

JEAN PIERRE-POUR (Str) a small fortified tn France, dep. Basses-Pyrénées, formerly cap. of Navarre. It is picturesquely situated on the Nive, 26 m. S S.E. Bayonne, and owes its name to its position between France and Spain, its outlet, on a height overlooking the town commanding the three passes leading from France to Spain. The town consists of a few narrow streets, and in itself is of no importance. In the vicinity are some traces of considerable mines of silver. Near the town is the Pass of Roncoeur, rendered famous by the defeat of the army of Charlemagne, in 778 when Roland, the famous Paladin, was mortally wounded. Pop. 1798

JEBA, or GEBA, a river of W Africa, Guinea, S of the Gambia. At its mouth—lat 11° 40' N lon 16° 14' W—it is 15 m across but only small vessels can ascend it to any distance. Its channel is encumbered by many dangerous banks. It preserves a great width till above the confluence of the Courbaal about 80 m. from its mouth, but beyond that it narrows rapidly, and in the dry season, is not more than 60 ft. broad though, during the rainy season, at several places, it is over 2 m. wide. The tide is felt above the village of Jéba, which lies on the r. bank of the river about 80 m. above its mouth. The upper course of the river is unknown.

JEHAH GERAIL, or JERAIL (anc. Byblus) a maritime tn Asiatic Turkey, Syria, pass. of and 20 m. S.W. Tripoli, lat. 34° 12' N lon 35° 31' E. It is enclosed by a wall 1½ m. in circumference, with many towers and intervals, especially at the times of the Crusades, it contains a castle and a bridge. Numerous relics of antiquity consisting of pillars of red and grey granite, are strewn about, and built in the walls. There is also a high tower the lower parts of which are bevelled in the Phœnician form and evidently extremely ancient. The place is now of no importance, and retains only a small trade in tobacco and sponges.

JEBELIYAH an isl. E coast Arabia the most E of the Curia Minus group a barren granite rock, 560 ft. high in the centre.

JEHENHAUSEN a vil Württemberg circle Danneberg, bail. Göppingen, with a parish church, a castle, and two mineral springs. Pop. 1153.

JEDBURGH a parish bar. market tn and par. Scotland, co. Roxburgh. The town, 42 m. S.E. Edinburgh, beautifully situated in the valley of the Jed, here crossed by two bridges, is embosomed among venerable orchards and has broad, clean streets, and well-built houses. The principal edifices are the remains of the celebrated abbey a magnificent structure of the 12th century, part of which is now used as the parish church; the ancient castle, now converted into a prison and bridewell; and the county and town halls. It has also a Free and three U. Presbyterian churches, an Episcopal chapel, a grammar and numerous other schools, several public libraries, two reading rooms, a savings-bank, dispensary, and several friendly and charitable institutions. Blankets, carpets, flannels, and other woollen fabrics are extensively manufactured. Iron-forging and printing press-making are also carried on. Jedburgh united with Haddington &c. in returning one member to the House of Commons. Pop. 1856. Area of par. 23 669 ac. Pop. 5476

JEDDO, city Japan. See YEDDO.

JEENDU, or JAKENDU, a tn Hindoostan, presid. Bengal prov. of, and 70 m. N.W. Delhi, r. bank Chittang. It is about ½ m. long, by ½ m. broad, built of brick, surrounded by a wall, but has no ditch. Inside of the wall is an old brick fort.

JENDANA See SARDAL-WOOD ISLAND

JEFFERSON, a city U. States, cap. of Missouri, 386 m. W Washington, r. bank Missouri, with a cathedral, governor's house and academy. Pop. 1174

JEFREYSTON par. Wales Pembroke 5443 ac. P. 679.

JEGEMOW a tn Russia, gov. of and 75 m. S.E. Tula, cap. circle of same name, l. bank Meteha. It consists of a rally of indifferent, thatched houses and contains one stone and six wooden churches. The inhabitants are chiefly agricultural. P. (1850) 7087.—The ONCE, in the S.E. of gov. is well watered, scantily wooded, and not fertile. Pop. 128,000

JEFFERYSKATA, a tn Russia, gov. Don Comacks r. bank Medveditsa, 230 m. N.E. Novo-Tcherkassk, in a densely wooded and great cattle-rearing district.

JEGHEDERTPOOR, or JAKHEDERTPOOR, a tn Hindoostan presid. Bengal prov. Orissa 247 m. S.W. Cuttack near the Indravaty.

JEGHEDERTPOOR or JAKHEDERTPOOR, a vil and par. Switzerland, cant. of, and 8 m. N.N.E. Bern. It was nearly burned down first in 1784, and again in 1820, but has been rebuilt in a much improved form. It contains a parish church and an old feudal castle with four conspicuous towers. Pop. 2728

JEGOHILVER, a tn Russia, gov. of and 60 m. N.W. Riazan, cap. circle of same name, on the Gzelsk, with two churches, and a trade in hops. Pop. (1849) 8712.—The CIRCLE is extensively covered by larch, morasses, and forests, and is not well adapted for the growth of corn.

JEHANABAD a tn Hindoostan presid. Bengal prov. Bahar 33 m. S. by W. It is famed for its manufactures of cotton fabrics. Pop. 5000

JEHAT Hindoostan a vil and com. Belgium prov. of and 11 m. S.W. Liège, on the Sambre, with a fine antique castle, a brewery, a flour mill and a trade in agricultural produce, wood and coal. Pop. 1187

JHON a tn China. See GENO

JEHOSHAPHAT (VALLEY OF) a deep and narrow gl. r. Asiatic Turkey in Palestine, along the walls of Jerusalem E. side, having Mount Moriah on one side, and the Mount of Olives on the other. The brook Cedron or Kedron which is of a dull red tint, flows through it N to S across which is a bridge of a single arch which is however unnecessary during the greater part of the year as the channel of the stream is perfectly dry excepting after the fall of heavy rains.

JEJURRY a tn Hindoostan presid. Bombay prov. Aurangabad 25 m. S.E. Poona lat. 19° 16' N lon 74° 19' E. It has a fine mosque temple to Siva, and is a favourite resort of the Mahatmas for performing the ceremony of swinging.

JEKATERINOSLAV JEKATERINBURG, JEKATERINOGRAD JEKATERINODOL, the Russia. See JEKATERINOSLAV JEKATERINODOL JEKATERINODOL JEKATERINODOL

JEKILALVA or JEKILALVA, a vil Hungary. Hieser

Thema, co. Zips, on the Gzelsk, 30 m. from Leutschau with a church, and near it iron-works and smelting furnace. Pop. 982

JEKIL-IRMAK, or YENIL-IRMAK, and Jesil a river Asiatic Turkey pass. Room of Sivas. It rises from seven small streams, about lat. 39° 50' N lon. 37° 40' E, flows N.W. past Tokat, after which it sweeps round N. and then N.E. past Amassia, and falls into the Black Sea on the E. side of the Bay of Samsoon. Total course about 200 m., the upper part of which is through an elevated wild country. After the Hays or Kilik Irmak it is one of the largest rivers in Asia Minor. It receives numerous affluents, of which by far the most important is the Kelik (anc. Lycus) which joins it on the right, about 20 m. N.N.E. Amassia after an E. course longer than its own.

JELABUGA, a tn Russia gov. of and 210 m. S.S.E. Viatka, cap. circle of same name, r. bank Kama near a small lake. It contains three churches, and has manufactures of woollen, linen, and cotton cloth, and articles in gold and copper. Here is the ruins of a Sarman temple, where there was long a celebrated oracle. P. (1850), 4740.—The CIRCLE, in the S.W. of the government, is well wooded and has rich tracts of arable land, particularly along the banks of the Kama. Pop. 88,000

JELALABAD, two tns Afghanistan—1, Cap. prov. of same name, 76 m. S.N.E. Cabul ½ m. from r. bank Kabul river, here about 450 ft. wide, and not fordable. It lies between two parallel ranges of snowy mountains, the N. and S. and is the centre of a considerable commerce, has a house of about fifty shops, but is wretchedly built and is mentioned by Burnes as one of the filthiest places he had seen in the East. It is rendered famous by the memorable and successful resistance made to an Afghan army, in the winter of 1841-2 by a handful of British troops, under Sir Robert Sale.

The fortifications were destroyed in October, 1842, on the evacuation of Afghanistan by the British. Bishamary pop. about 2000, which, in the cold season, is increased twofold by the people flocking to it from the neighbouring hills. The ravines, 80 m. E. to W. and 80 m. broad. lat. 34° 15' to 34° 45' N. lon. 70° to 71° E. forms a natural subdivision of the great valley of Kabul. It is well watered by the Kabul and its affluents; is fertile, and possesses a fine climate and beautiful scenery.—2. A tn formerly Doshak, cap. of prov. Hindustan, 240 m. W. by S. Kandahar. It appears to have been built on the ruins of another important town, and consists of well-built brick houses and a handsome bazaar. It is governed by a prince of an ancient and independent family who assumes the title of king of Beshan. P. 10,000.

JELALPOOR, several places Hindoostan.—1. A vil., grand Bengal, prov. Allahabad, 11 m. S.E.E. Jaunpur. Near it is a massive bridge over the Sre.—2. A tn. prov. Agra, 19 m. S. Kalpa, sumatxavira, bank Batwa, houses of brick and loop-holed for defence.—3. A tn Punjab. See JALALPOOR.

JELATMA, or JELATON, a tn. Russia, gov. of, and 150 m. N. Tambov, cap. dist. of same name. A bank Oka with two wooden and eight stone churches, and several other public buildings, and manufactures of linen, ryal-works and a trade in tallow, cane, hemp, wax, and honey. The extensive iron-works of Jeremolinsk are in the vicinity. Pop. 5600.—THE CANALS are old-fashioned and has many fine forests, particularly of oak timber, but is not very fertile. Area, 62 sq. m. P. 77,993.

JELATON (JES and LEXA) two nearly contiguous vils. Bohemia, circle Kvasitzky, with a church, two mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1915.

JELATZ, or JELATZ, a tn. Russia, gov. of and 102 m. E.S.E. Orsk, cap. circle of same name. A bank Soma, at the confluence of the Jelatz and Latchia. It is old but regularly built has paved streets, twelve stone and two wooden churches, three porthouses, and manufactures of soap, leather, ironware and jewellery. A ball foundry, numerous lock smiths, and an extensive trade in corn. Iron abounds in the vicinity. P. (1851) 24,340.—THE LATCHIA, in the E. of the government has an undulating surface, is well wooded, and very fertile, but producing much corn and rearing many cattle. Pop. 170,000.

JELLA, a tn. Beloochistan, cap. of the Margharas, and residence of their amir, 70 m. S.W. Kalat. It is surrounded by dilapidated mud walls, 15 ft. high is entered by three gates, and has an indifferent bazaar. Cotton is extensively cultivated in the neighbourhood. P. about 3000.—(Masson.)

JELLASOBE, a tn. Hindoostan, prov. Bengal, 66 m. S.W. Calcutta, 1 bank Saharooka.

JELLING, a vil. Denmark, Jutland, bail. of, and 6 m. N.W. Vejle. It contains a parish church, a normal and an agricultural school. It is of considerable historical interest, as the site of one of the most ancient palaces of the Danish kings, called housgaard. The tombs of Gorm the Old and the queen Thyra, in the form of large tumuli stand on each side of the church and within it are the famous Jellinge Runic stones, which Harald Blaatand erected in honour of his father and mother. The inscriptions on them are still perfectly legible, and they are regarded as the most remarkable monuments of Scandinavian antiquity.

JELLINGHY, a tn. Hindoostan, prov. Bengal, dist. Rajshahi, 30 m. E. by S. Moorshedabad, on a branch of the Ganges.

JELNIA, a tn. Russia, gov. and 45 m. S.E. Smolensk, cap. circle of same name, on the Dnepr, at the confluence of the Orudochanka. It has some general trade, and two annual fairs. P. (1850) 2478.—THE CANALS, in S.E. of the government is well watered and densely wooded. Pop. 96,300.

JELSA (see. elca) a tn. Spain, Aragon, prov. of, and about 28 m. from Saragossa, on a wide plain, 1 bank Ebro. It contains a palace of the Count de Montijo, a church, nursery, townhouse prison, hospital, and primary school and has manufactures of bombazine and blankets; oil and flour mills, and a trade in wine, oil and silk. Pop. 1772.

JEM, or JE, JEMU (see. Typhus) a tn, N.W. Africa, state and 134 m. S.E.E. Tunis. It contains a magnificent amphitheatre, in good preservation, with a number of fine statues, and other antiquities.

JEM a river W. Asia. See EZZA.

JEMALABAD, a tn. Hindoostan, grand. Madras, prov. Canara, 110 m. N. by W. Calicut, lat. 11° 8' N. lon. 75° 22' E. with an almost inaccessible fort, built by Tippon, on an immense rock.

JEMARU, a territory of W. Africa, Senegambia, 1 bank Gambia, immediately E. of McCarthy Island and Fort George.

JEMETTE, two vils and cons. Belgium.—1. Prov. of, and 8 m. W. Namur 1 bank Sambre, with two flour and five malt mills, two breweries, and a steam brewery. Inhabitants chiefly employed in agriculture, in the woods, and in molasses. Pop. 1478.—2. Prov. of and 44 m. S.W. Liege, with flax and hemp spinning, two breweries, five flour mills, two large collieries, and several brick works. Pop. 2287.

JEMGUM a tn. Hanover, gov. Aurich (E. Friesland) 10 m. S.E. Emden, esp. bail. of same name, on the Ems, with a church, manufactures of thread, and a small harbour, at which some trade is carried on. P. 1230. bail. 7068.

JEMMAPES, a vil. and cons. Belgium, prov. Hainaut, on the Sambre, at the confluence of the Trouille, and on the canal from Mons to Condé, 2 m. W. Mons. It has several breweries, a salt-refinery, a soap-works, some forges, a tannery, four flour-mills, limestone quarries, and a trade in coal, which is extensively worked in the vicinity. The French under Demouras, here, in 1793, gained a great victory over the Austrians. After the union of Belgium with France, Jemmapes gave its name to a department which since 1815 has formed nearly the present province of Hainaut. Pop. 4697.

JEMTILAND a former political division of Sweden which now, with Hargadalen the most barren portion of the kingdom forms the county or lise of Osterund.

JENA, a tn. Saxo-Weimar principality of and 12 m. E. Weimar, in a valley surrounded by naked hills, 1 bank Saale, here crossed by a handsome stone bridge. It consists of the town proper surrounded by a wall, flanked with towers, and of four suburbs and is a dull, antiquated place. It is the seat of several courts of law one of them a superior appeal court for the Saxo-Anhalt and the principality of Reuss, and contains a R. Catholic and three Protestant churches, a school, in which one of the collateral branches of the Weimar family long resided and several hospitals. But it is to its university that Jena is indebted for any celebrity which it possesses. It was opened in 1559, and attained its highest prosperity towards the end of the last century when it numbered Schiller, Humboldt, Fichte, Schelling, and Grisebach, among its teachers and was attended by above 1000 students. In 1844 the number had dwindled down to 411. It is a very complete establishment, has 23 professors, who lecture on the different branches of law, medicine, philosophy and theology and possesses an anatomical theatre, botanical garden, observatory, good physical and chemical cabinets and a library of 100,000 volumes. In 1806 the Prussians here sustained a severe defeat by the French. Pop. 5165. Area of bail. 44 sq. m. Pop. 15,600.

JENIDGI, three tns Turkey in Europe.—1. (Karsen), A tn. Armenia, 58 m. N.W. Gallipoli. Near it is cultivated the best tobacco in Turkey. Pop. 1500.—3. (Kra) (Kra) A tn. Romania, 1 bank Tisza, 28 m. N. by W. Adramople. Pop. 2300.—3. (Fardar) A tn. Macedonia, 25 m. W.N.W. Salonika, with numerous mosques and schools. Near it are the ruins of the town of Pella, the birth-place of Alexander the Great and the Lake of Jeundje, an expansion of the Vistritza.

JENIN or GITEA, a tn. Asiatic Turkey, Palestine, near Damascus, 48 m. N. Jerusalem, on the route thence to Nazareth, at the entrance to the valley of Esdraslon. It is surrounded by gardens and hedgerows of prickly pear; contains about 500 stone-built houses, many of them in ruins and is traversed by a copious streamlet of the purest water. P. 3000 to 3000.

JENISFI, a river, Siberia. See YESHIE.

JENNE, or JENNA, a tn. W. Africa, Senegal, on an isl. of same name, formed by the Joiba or Niger 285 m. S. by W. Timbuctoo lat. 15° 31' N. lon. 4° 50' W. It is surrounded by a silted wall, about 10 ft. high, and 2½ m. in circumference. Houses of one story, built of sun-dried bricks, they have no windows externally the apartments receiving air and light from an inner court. It is a place of great commercial activity, and is resorted to for trade by the people of the surrounding country. In the shops printed muslin, earthen cloths, hardware, and numerous other articles of British manufacture, are to be found. The inhabitants seem to be in comfortable circumstances; they are all Mahomedans, and do not permit idleness to enter the town. Pop. 9000.

JENO numerous places, Hungary, particularly — 1 (Barce-Jeno), A market in Thüroer Thoms, co. of, and 23 m N E Arad, on the White Kikrá, here crossed by a bridge. It has two churches, and the remains of an old castle, proved, by an inscription on part of it, to be of Roman origin. Some trade in corn and wine, and important annual fairs. Pop. 1608. — 2 (Dos-Jeno) or Jenoe, A vil. Hither Danube, co. Neograd, at the foot of a hill 6 m. W Metragh, with a church, and a mineral spring, used both internally and as baths. Near it are the ruins of the old castle of Kanor. Pop. 1886.

JEPFAN a tn Russia, gov of and 46 m. S.E. Tula, cap. circle of same name, r bank Don, with seven churches and manufactures of ironware. Pop. (1850), 5124. — The cracks, in the S.E. of the government, stretches along the Don, and has good arable land with considerable tracts of marsh and heath. Pop. 27,000.

JEQUINHONIA or RIO-GRANDE DO BELMONT, a river, Brazil, which rises in the serra Pedra do Lenda, about 80 m. W S W the town of Noro in prov Minas-Geraes flows first N through that province, then N.E., enters prov Bahia, and shortly after, passing the town of Belmonte falls into the Atlantic. Its principal affluents are the Aracuaçu on the right, and the Vazéria on the left. It comes with fish from its source to its mouth. But, unfortunately is not of much navigable importance, the water at its mouth, even in the highest tides, having no greater depth than 10 f. or 12 f.

JERANI a river, Icaria, Khuzistan. It rises in the Bakhtiari mountains flows S.W. past Behbahan thence it flows first N.W. and then W.S.W. past Dorak, above which it becomes navigable. Below Dorak its waters become much diminished from being taken off by six canals for irrigation, and one of which, connecting with the Karoon has been mistaken for a branch of the Jerani. A further portion of the waters of this stream is lost in some marshes and the remainder reaches the Persian Gulf—about lat. 30° 15' N., lon. 49° E.—under the name of the Lereh and still navigable for boats. Total course about 30 m.

JERASH, Syria. See GERARA.

JERASHAN a river, Russia. See TEROOLAN.

JERBA, or GERBA an isl in the Mediterranean, belonging to Tunis, on the E. side of the Gulf of Onbes and separated from the mainland by a very narrow channel. lat. (Boukal) 38° 41' 5" N. lon 11° 10' E. (n.)

It is 23 m. long, E. to W., by 14 m. broad level, fertile, and in a high state of cultivation.

Large quantities of live stock are reared here and the manufacture of shawls, linen, and woollen cloths, is carried on to a great extent. Pop. about 30,000.

JEREMIE, a tn, in isl empire Hayti, W and of the S. peninsula, 115 m E. Port Maitland. Near it coffee sugar and indigo are cultivated.

JERIZ or JANES see MARGHABAD a tn, Spain, Andalus, prov sev and about 55 m. from Granada, with dirty houses, and still dirtier streets, a palace of the Duke d'Osuna, a church, rich in relics, a townhouse with prison; a primary school manufactures of iron and copper ware, limestone quarries, and a trade in fax. Pop. 1720.

JERIZ-DE-LA-FRONTIERA, or JERES, a tn, Spain, Andalus, prov sev and 16 m N W E Cadix, on a beautiful and fertile plain. It was formerly surrounded by walls, flanked with towers, of which only portions now remain in a very dilapidated state. It consists generally of well built houses, of two or three stories, arranged in regular squares, or spaces, paved clean and well-lighted streets. The principal buildings are—the collegiate church (Iglesia Colegiada), a large structure, but heavy and tasteless, consisting of three naves, and surmounted by a dome the church of San Miguel, with some fine sculptures and reliefs, several other churches, not much deserving of notice; seven monasteries and twelve suppressed monasteries, the Alcazar, an old Moorish castle, in ruins, the townhouse, an ancient and elegant structure, with a facade of Corinthian pillars a college or gymnasium, and several public schools a general, a foundling, and two other hospitals. The manufactures are of little consequence, but the trade, of which the staples are corn and wine, is very important. The corn is derived from the surrounding districts, and either sold in the market of Jerez, or shipped directly at what is called the Puertal de Jerez. The quantity annually exported, on an average of the five years ending 1846, was 16,000 qrs. The annual export of wine, of which the greater part is sent to Great Britain, and there well known under the name of Sherry was, on an average of the ten years ending 1846, 1,082,388 gals. Jerez-de-la-Frateria is a place of some antiquity, but its history possesses no interest. Pop. 33,104.

JERIZ-DE-LOS-CABALLEROS, a city, Spain Extremadura, prov sev and 40 m S. Badajoz at the foot of a hill crowned by a castle, near r bank Arzila. It is partly surrounded by an old Arab wall entered by six gates, and is in general well built. It has mostly clean, wide, and paved streets; eight squares, four parish churches, nine chapels, four convents, handsome and substantial town and court houses, with prisons a college, several schools, two hospitals, a theatre, storeroom and cavalry barracks manufactures of linen and woollen cloth soap, leather earthenware, wax, bricks and tiles and a trade in its manufactures, pigs, and fruits. Pop. 6130.

JERICA, a tn Spain Valencia, prov sev, and 27 m W.S.W. Castellon-de-la-Plana, on the side of a hill, above l bank Pascueta. It is ancient, possessed considerable importance both in Roman and in Saracen times, and consists of an old and a new town, the former surrounded by a wall flanked with towers. It rises in the form of an amphitheatre and at a distance presents a fine appearance but internally has little beauty. It contains a parish church, a solid and well proportioned structure, with a facade of black marble a townhouse, in a very dilapidated state, a school, and hospital and has manufactures of linen, strong paper and copper ware and several distilleries, oil and flour mills. P. 2579.

JERICHO (Jericho, Pala or Erba), a famous ancient city of Palestine, now represented by the wretched village of Erba, 18 m. N by N Jerusalem lat. 31° 57' N., lon. 35° 33' E. It is merely a congeries of miserable huts, built of loose stones, and covered with flat roofs, composed of reed or straw plastered over with mud, the whole hemi, surrounded by a fence of the same material, enclosing a small yard. It contains a ruinous square tower with a dirty court 30 f. or 40 f. square, and about the same height, of doubtful antiquity but regarded by pilgrims as the house of Ezechias. The inhabitants have a sickly appearance, and are reckoned vicious and insolent; while everything about them bears the mark of squalid poverty. They keep a few cattle and sheep, and till a little land for grain, as well as for garden. In the latter are some vines, and in the vicinity of the village some fine Agave, while, on the W. a noble grove stretches away N. to the distance of upwards of 2 m., and a few miles S.E. lies the mouth of the Jordan and the Dead Sea. Pop. about 300.

VIEW INTO OF JERICHO, the Dead Sea in the distance. From Fakhri. Voyage dans le Liban.

JERICHOV a tn Prussia, Saxony, gov of, and 80 m. N N E. Magdeburg, cap. circs Jerichow II., r bank Elbe, with two churches, several distilleries and mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1012. The circuit properly consists of the two circles of Jerichow I and Jerichow II. Area of the former, 417 sq. m. Pop. 55,500—Area of the latter, 402 sq. m. Pop. 46,411.

JERN a tn Central Asia, Badukistan, l bank Kokshu, lat 38° 50' N; lon 74° 47' E. Though the largest place in the khannat, it consists merely of an extensive cluster of scattered hamlets, with a substantially-built fort. P about 1,000.

JERMILLO a tn Portugal, prov Beira-Alta, near the Serra do Zazrala, 8 m. from Guarda. It is famous for its cheese. Pop. 1068.

JERPOINT three pars. Incl Killybegs—1 (Abbey) 1008 sq. P Big 4 (1640) 1595 sq. 1 956—3, (West) 5517 sq. Pop. 1016.

JERICHMA NITZ, a v of Bohemia, circle Domanau about 7 m from Aloia. It consists of Upper and Lower Jerichmau, and has a number of well-built houses, and a church with a tower and some hewn-roofing, but the greater part of the inhabitants are employed in agriculture. Pop. 1040.

JERSEY one of the Channel Islands, belonging to Great Britain the largest and most valuable of the group, about 15 m. off N. coast France, lat (N. point) 49° 18' 54" N lon. 2° 18' W (N.) greatest length, E and W about 12 m. greatest breadth, 7 m. area about 40,000 sq. Its coast, particularly on the N. is extremely rugged and precipitous and is formed by the waves into the most fantastic and picturesque shapes. It is deeply indented all round and has a number of good bays and harbours the chief of which are Bockley St. Catherine, Granville, St. Helier, and St. Bricks. The bay of St. Helier, on the S. W. being open to the strong influx of the Atlantic Ocean, forms an excellent anchorage ground. Granite rocks, in some localities overlaid by schists, are the principal formation, and in the centre of the N. coast, situated, of a flash coral abounds, which is susceptible of a high polish. The interior of the island is fertile, and intersected by deep beautiful valleys. It is abundantly wooded and has altogether a singularly rich and picturesque appearance. The climate is peculiarly mild and agreeable the mean annual temperature being 52° F. Agriculture has, in recent years, greatly advanced. Land brings a high rent and holdings do, not on an average, exceed 15 ac. resulting from the operation of the French law respecting the equal division of property. Wheat is the principal cereal raised besides which, a little barley is grown. Potatoes and pease are extensively cultivated, particularly the former and various kinds of fruits attain the utmost perfection here, including the Chamois, pear, melons strawberries peaches and apricots. Cider of which about 2000 bushels are exported annually as one of the principal produce, a considerable portion of the land being laid out in orchards. Cows of the Alderney breed are reared and exported in great numbers but sheep are comparatively neglected, owing to the limited extent of pasturage. The horses are small but well qualified for the work required of them, and the breed has lately been much improved. The trade of Jersey is very considerable, and increasing, owing to the particular privileges its inhabitants enjoy, especially their almost total exemption from taxation, they being allowed to export their own produce to England, subject only to the same duties imposed on the produce of Great Britain, and to the absence of export duties. The exports to England consist chiefly of cattle, potatoes and oysters, of the last of which considerably upwards of 200,000 bushels have been shipped yearly. The imports consist chiefly of woollen fabrics, hardware, and cutlery, glass, soap, nutmegs, &c. In 1845 Jersey had 311 registered vessels, of the burden of 37,651 tons in 1853 the number had increased to 370 vessels, of 24,000 tons; and the number of a considerable number of large boats, mostly engaged in the oyster fishery. Great numbers of vessels are annually built in Jersey in consequence of the timber and cordage being situated duty free. In 1851, 31 new vessels were added to the port of Jersey, measuring 2500 tons; besides these, several large vessels were built for merchants in Liverpool. Jersey has its own legislature the 'States, consisting of the governor and the bailiffs of the Royal Court, both appointed by the Crown the 12 judges of the Royal Court, elected for life and the rectors of the 12 parishes, and 12 constables, elected every three years by the ratepayers. Appeals lie to the Queen in Council. The natives speak corrupt French, and are very industrious. The island is divided into 12 parishes, and is attached to the diocese of Winchester. Principal towns, St. Helier, situated on the S.W. side of the island. Pop. (1841) 47,544, (1851) 57,020.

JJ-RSEY CITY a tn U States, New Jersey, r bank Hudson, opposite New York, with which it is connected by a steam-boat ferry at the termination of the Morris canal, connecting the Delaware with the Hudson, 53 m. N. E. Trenton. It is regularly laid out with broad streets, at right angles to each other. It has four churches, a lyceum, a female academy and a high school for boys, an extensive pottery, glass factory and several iron-foundries, a rope-work, and a starch factory. By railway Jersey city is directly connected with all the N., N. and W. railway systems of the U States. Pop. (1850) 6895.

JJ-RSEL (New) one of the Eastern U States bounded N. by New York E. by the Atlantic Ocean and the Hudson River S. by the Atlantic and W. by states Delaware and Pennsylvania, from which it is separated by the Delaware River lat 38° 56' to 41° 20' N lon 73° 54' to 75° 27' W length 165 m. breadth 53 m. area, 8330 sq. m. The coast, being low and shifling has no harbours, except for small vessels but the bays of Newark, Raritan, and Delaware, form excellent harbours for ships of the largest burthen. The principal capes are Cape May and Sandyhook the former on the N. side of Delaware Bay and the latter at the entrance to New York harbour. The N.W. part of the state is mountainous, being crossed by two ranges of the Appalachian chain, of which the W. is called the Kittatinny ridge, and the E. the South Mountain. Schooley's Mountain, the highest range, is much resorted to in summer, on account of its climate and scenery as well as for its mineral waters. A range of trap or granite on the Hudson, called the Palisades, is principally in this state. Towards the river it presents a steep and sometimes perpendicular face of from 200 ft. to 500 ft. high, and is about 2½ m. wide, with a summit of table-land, from the margin of which there is a gradual slope to the W. The chief minerals are iron, which abounds, especially the kind called bog ore, and copper. In the prairie tracts are mica, red shale of lime, clay, limestone, and serpentine. The middle portion of the state is agreeably diversified by hills and valleys, but the R. part is level and sandy and to a great extent barren yielding naturally little else than shrub-oaks and yellow pine but marl, which is plentiful greatly improves its fertility. The other portions of the state have a good soil and, besides excellent pasturage produce the usual cereals, with Indian corn, buckwheat, and potatoes. The fruits are good especially apples, pears, cherries, plums, and peaches. The climate is mild and nowhere is the cold severely felt in winter except in the mountainous regions of the N., where the finest cattle are reared and large quantities of butter and cheese made. The Hudson and Delaware flow partly in the state and it is, besides, intersected by other rivers, including the Raritan the Passaic, and the Hackensack, all of which are, to a greater or less extent, navigable for small craft. The principal manufactures are iron and ironware, nails, cotton fabrics, shoes, hats, carriages, red and white lead, and some articles of brass and copper. Oyster and other shell-fisheries are also carried on to a great extent along the coast. Its principal exports are agricultural produce, cattle, sheep, horses, leather, cloth, leather, and iron, but they are to a very limited extent. The state is intersected by several railways, communicating with the lines of the N. E. and W. states and by two canals, uniting the rivers Hudson and Delaware, and the Raritan and Delaware.

The principal seat of learning and education is the college of New Jersey or Nassau Hall, in Princeton, one of the prinsical colleges in the U States besides which there are Rutgers' college in New Brunswick, Presbyterian and Dutch Reformed theological seminaries, and numerous schools of various kinds. The government is vested in a governor, chosen for three years, a senate, likewise elected for three years, and a general assembly chosen annually. The principal towns are—Trenton, the capital, Newark, New Brunswick, Paterson, and Burlington. New Jersey was first settled by the Dutch, from New York, between 1614 and 1630. It adopted the constitution of the U States in 1787. It is divided into 20 counties. P (1840), 878,300, (1850) 489,381.

JERSE, a co. Spain, Extremadura, prov of and 66 sq. N N E. Cáceres, in a valley watered by a river of same name. It is a poor place, consisting of one wide and irregular street lined with houses built of wood and mud. has a parish church, with a very ancient tower, a townhouse, including a prison and school, several flour mills and a trade in wine, oil, and olivestones. Pop. 1098. —The Araya rises on the frontiers of Old Castle, flows S. through prov. Cáceres, rejoining the Gufo and Berrada, passes Plasencia, and joins I. bank Alagón, after about 30 m.

JERUMENHA a co. Brazil, prov. Piauí I. bank Guarguá, 100 m. W. Orlândia, with a parish church; and a trade in cattle, tobacco, rice, mullet, and cotton. The district is fertile, but has extensive flats, with much stagnant water, which makes it unhealthy. Pop. of dist. 3000.

JERUSALEM (Arabic, Al-Quds [the Holy]), one of the most ancient, and from the wonderful events of which it has been the theatre, one of the most interesting cities in the world situated in Asiatic Turkey. Palestine, peak, and 126 m. S. W. Damascus at the height of 2500 ft. above sea-level. lat. 31° 40' 45" N. lon 35° 13' E. The district in which it stands, forming part of the elevated plateau which extends from the plain of Kedron to a line connecting the S.E. corner of the Moudernanah with the S. extremity of the Dead Sea, has a rugged and somewhat sterile appearance, being composed of a series of ridges of limestone, intersected by narrow and precipitous ravines. In many places the rock is seen pattering the surface in blocks and patches, almost devoid of any covering of soil, and though the olive evidently thrives well and much ground is under regular culture, vegetation is, on the whole, by no means luxuriant. The site of the city itself is well defined. A broad swell of ground commencing in the W. near the summit of the plateau above mentioned, and almost on the line of watershed between the Moudernanah and the Dead Sea, descends with considerable rapidity to the E., and then terminates on the precipitous edge of a ravine called the Valley of Jehoshaphat.

A similar ravine, called the Valley of Hinnom commencing in the W. runs first S. and then E. till it unites with the former. Jerusalem occupies the greater part of the space included within the fork of these two ravines. This space, however, is not continuous. A valley less precipitous than the two already mentioned, and called the Tyropoon or Valley of the Chananogara, traverses it nearly from N. to S. and divides it into two nearly equal portions, while these portions are again subdivided by two minor transverse valleys, thus forming, in all, four distinct ridges or hills—Zion on the S. W., Akra on the N. W., Moriah on the S. E., and Bezetha on the N. E. The bottom of the Valley of Jehoshaphat forms the bed of the brook Kedron, which flows only in the rainy season and on the opposite side of Akra, on the E., rises the Mount of Olives, overlooking the city, and commanding the finest view of it. To the S. of the Mount of Olives, and properly a continuation of it, is a hill called the Mount of Offences. On the S. of the Valley of Hinnom is another called the Hill of Evil Counsel; and, considerably to the N., beyond a W. sweep of the Valley of Jehoshaphat, a series of lofty summits are conspicuous, and thus, on all sides except the W., Jerusalem may be truly said to be encompassed by mountains. In ancient times, when this city was in its greatest glory, not only were the four hills of Zion, Akra, Moriah, and Bezetha, but also a considerable space, both to the N. and W. of them, included within its walls. The actual walls are of more limited extent, and have only a circuit of 2½ m. They were built by the Turks, about three centuries ago partly on the site, and, for the most part, with the materials of the ancient walls, and, following the inequalities of the ground, have a height varying from 20 ft. to 60 ft. They are composed of heavy stones, some of which, particularly in the lower parts, where the original walls appear to have been left untouched, are of enormous magnitude, surmounted by a battlemented and loop-holed breastwork, and flanked at intervals, by massive towers. The E. wall stretches, nearly in a straight line, from S. to N. along the edge of the Valley of Jehoshaphat, and has, nearly in its centre, a gate—called by the Franks St. Stephen's, and by the Mahometans Bab-es-sabat [Gate of the Tribes]—leading down to the brook Kedron, and across it to the Mount of Olives and to Bethany. The N. wall runs at first nearly due W. and then curves gradually round in a W. S. W. direction, till it reaches a second gate—called by the natives Bab-ai-Amud [Gate of the Pillar] and by the Franks the Gate of Damascus, because in the line of the great road leading to that city and to the other important towns in the N. The W. wall is very irregular. Commencing at the gate now mentioned, it proceeds first in a S. S. W. direction then winds round a prominence which juts out considerably to the W., and then runs irregularly in a S. E. direction along the W. side of Mount Zion. In this wall, immediately S. of the prominence, is a third gate, called the Jafa, Bethlehem or Kedron Gate; because on issuing from it, two roads branch off, one W. to the first and another S. to the last two of these cities. The W. wall originally was continued S. to the abrupt termination of Mount Zion, above the Valley of Hinnom. At present it stops short considerably to the N. of its ancient termination and is succeeded by the S. wall which, after running a short way due E. along Mount Zion is continued in an N. E. direction, across the Valley of Tyropoon, and thence traversed by Mount Ophel forming the S. part of Mount Moriah to its junction with the S. E. corner of the E. wall. A considerable part of Mount Zion, which was wholly included within the ancient, is thus excluded from the modern city, and, being mostly under regular culture, presents a remarkable fulfilment of the prediction that Zion should become a ploughed field. In this S. wall there is a fourth gate, called the Gate of Zion but it merely leads out to the adjacent parts of the mount, and is not in the line of any thoroughfare. Besides these four gates still open, are others four which have been built up. and on the W. side, near Bethlehem Gate, advantageously situated on the highest part of Mount Zion is a citadel, called also David's Castle and the Tower of Hipp place, surrounded by strong walls flanked with towers. This bastion, the massive structure of the walls, and the preceptum ravines along which they are partly built, must have made Jerusalem capable of offering a very powerful resistance when attacked by any of the ancient modes of warfare, but a besieging army, with regular artillery by occupying the hills which command it, more especially the Mount of Olives could easily force it to submit.

THE RETIRED BAYS AND CASTLE OF DAVID, JERUSALEM
From Fort St. Vierge, about 1860.

The interior of the city is not attractive. A large part of it is occupied by mosques, churches, and convents, and the number of inhabited houses being, in consequence, comparatively small there is a great want of animation in its streets.

THE VIA DOLOROSA, JERUSALEM
From sketch by A. Campbell, Esq.

The houses too though built of stone and for the most part very substantially with flat roofs, from which numerous small domes rise, and have occasionally an imposing appearance present no windows to the streets, which accordingly, generally narrow ill paved, and sloping to the centre—are merely long lanes with dead walls on each side of them. The only street, well known by its name, is the Via Dolorosa, so named because our Saviour is said to have borne his cross up it when about to be crucified. It runs from W to E, across the hill of Acre, and then after a short turn to the N. is again continued E. between the hills of Bezatha and Moriah to St. Stephen's Gate. Another principal street proceeds in a direction nearly parallel to the former from the hill of Bezatha to the S. wall, E. of the Gate of Zion. This street, and more especially the part of it occupied by the hamam, the shopkeepers in which are mostly Christian, is the grandest thoroughfare, and the only one in which a spirit of activity is seen.

The public buildings are numerous, and either by themselves or their enclosures, occupy the far larger part of the space within the walls. The largest of these enclosures is that of Moriah, now called by the Mahometans El Haram Ech Sherif [The noble sanctuary]. It is in the form of a regular parallelogram surrounded on all sides by a lofty wall. This wall on the E. and for nearly two-thirds of its length on the S., is the same as that of the city and the whole enclosure is deemed so sacred, that none but Mahometans are permitted to enter it. The consequence of this bigotry is, that this most interesting locality where Abraham's faith was so remarkably proved, and where, long after, the most glorious temple in the world was reared can only be viewed by Christians from a distance, or approached more nearly by stealth and at great personal risk. This risk however, has been run by more than one European traveller and all which the enclosure contains is tolerably well known. Its area is computed at one-eighth of that of the whole city and, where not built upon, is laid out as a beautiful lawn planted sparingly with olive, cypress, and other trees. The most conspicuous building is the Mosque of Omar called also Khutbat-ol-Bakrah [Dome of the rock] a splendid structure of an octagonal form, situated near the centre of the area, on an elevated terrace, approached by four porticoes one of them with an elegant marble colonnade, lighted by 48 windows of stained glass, and surmounted by a magnificent dome. This mosque occupies the site, and is understood to contain some remains of the Jewish temple. Another mosque, called El Akra, also a magnificent structure, and supposed to have been originally a Christian church covers a large space in the S. part of the enclosure. On the opposite side of the city on the N. brow of Acre, and a little S. of the Via Dolorosa, is the Church of the Holy Sepulchre so called because alleged to contain under its roof the very grave in which our Saviour lay. The accuracy of the allegation unfortunately is more than doubtful and the hallowed feelings which the very idea of standing on such a spot is fitted to produce, are rudely disturbed by the immunities and impurities which are continually practised at it. The church built in the Byzantine style, was erected by Helena, the mother of Constantine the Great and though not possessed of much architectural merit, is remarkable for the richness of its decorations, and the number of pilgrims by whom it is visited. The other buildings of greatest note within the city are the convents. Immense indeed W. of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre and only separated from it by a street are the Greek and Coptic convents. The Latin convent, situated further to the W. and partly enclosed by the W. wall is a large and massive structure, with extensive courts and gardens, and is the place where European visitors usually take up their abode. The Armenian convent, built on a still more extensive scale, and capable of accommodating 1000 pilgrims, is finely situated on

THE POOL OF BETHSADA, JERUSALEM — From sketch by A. Campbell, Esq.

Mount Zion in the angle formed by the junction of the W. with the S. wall. Immediately to the E. of it is a chapel said to mark the site of the house of Anna. Considerably to the S.W. and immediately outside of the S. wall, opposite to the Gate of Zion, another building with an Armenian convent adjoining, is pointed out as the house of Calaphat. Still farther S. on the mount, and forming one of the most conspicuous objects which Jerusalem presents when approached from the N., is a lofty mosque said to be erected over the tomb of David. The traditions which fix these localities are of very doubtful authority, but the vicinity presents various other localities, better authenticated, and possessing, at least, equal interest. Among them may be mentioned Aseldama or the Field of Blood, purchased, as a stranger's burying-ground, by the money which Judas had received for his treachery, and situated on the S. edge of the Valley of Hinnom, the pool of Siloam, situated near the junction of the three valleys of Hinnom, Tyropoeon and Jehonaphat; the pool of Bethesda, close to the E. wall, near St. Stephen's Gate and the garden of Gethsemane situated at the foot of the Mount of Olives, on the E. side of the brook Kedron, and still containing venerable olive trees, orientally of such ancient growth, that their existence at the time of our Saviour's agony w. to say the least, not impossible.

Jerusalem, if identified as many have supposed, with Salem where Melchisedech reigned must have existed about 2000 years before the Christian era but it is not mentioned by its own name till about a. c. 1600 when it was in the hands of the Jebusites, and was wrested from them by the prowess of Joshua. The citadel however, continued in their possession till the time of David, who having succeeded in finally dislodging them, took up his residence in the stronghold of Zion, and made Jerusalem the capital of his kingdom. Under him it rose rapidly in importance, and received numerous embellishments but these were all eclipsed by the more magnificent structures of Solomon, whose crowning work was the erection of a temple more gorgeous than any which the world had previously witnessed, and infinitely distinguished above them all by its possession of a visible symbol of the Divine presence. The rash proceedings of his successor Rehoboam and the consequent revolt of ten tribes must have shewn Jerusalem of much of its glory but it still continued, for several centuries, to take precedence as one of the most distinguished cities of the East. At length, having awakened the jealousy or excited the aversion of neighbouring potentates, it was attacked in succession by the Egyptians, Assyrians, and Babylonians. The last was headed by Nebuchadnezzar who a. c. 588 having made himself master of the city, destroyed it, burnt down the temple, after rifling it of its treasures, and carried off those of the inhabitants whom the sword had spared as captives to Babylon. After 70 years of captivity, Cyrus permitted the Jews to return and the temple, though on a scale of much less magnificence than before, was rebuilt a. c. 515. Jerusalem now enjoyed a period of repose, and had regained a considerable degree of prosperity when, on the dissolution of the Macedonian empire, which Alexander had established it was seized and sacked by Ptolemy Soter who carried off a great number of the inhabitants to Alexandria. By the victorious achievements of the Macedonians, the Macedonian yoke was thrown off, and Jerusalem in common with Judea became once more independent, 166 B.C. It next became tributary to Rome but, continuing to be governed by its own sovereigns, had not ceased to exist as the capital of a kingdom when the Barbarians appeared. By the unfeeling rejection of Him it soiled its doom; and, about 40 years after it had wounded its King, the curse which, during the perpetration of that atrocity, it had impetrated on itself and its children, was realized, and after enduring a siege by the Romans under Titus Vespasian, in which unexampled horrors were endured it was swept with the besom of destruction, A.D. 70. At a subsequent period, A.D. 135, Adrian destroyed any portion of it that had escaped, ploughed up its ruins, and endeavoured to extinguish its very name, by founding the new city of Ælia Capitolina in its site. It continued thus depressed till the beginning of the 4th century, when, Rome having become Christian, Jerusalem shared in the benefit, and assumed the appearance of a distinguished Christian city under the fostering care of Helena, mother of Constantine the Great. This period of prosperity prolonged by a succession of Christian emperors, was suddenly terminated in 636, by the conquest of the Mohammedans, under the Arabian Khalif Omar, whose dynasty was afterwards succeeded by that of the Turks. The intelligible and credulous heaped upon the Christians, and the utter desecration of their most holy places, roused the indignation of Europe and led to the Crusades. In 1099 the Crusaders took Jerusalem by storm, and made it the capital of a Christian monarchy which with difficulty, maintained its existence till 1187 when it was finally overthrown by the celebrated Saladin. Since then, Jerusalem has continued to be trodden under foot of the Gentiles, and now has no higher honour than that of giving its name to a sayrak in a Turkish pashalik. Its inhabitants, composed of nearly equal proportions, of Mohammedans, Christians, and Jews, have been variously estimated and may amount to about 15,000 — (Robinson's Researches in Palestine, Wilson's Lands of the Bible, Cluett's Explorations Expéditions, Kitto's Biblical Cyclopedia.)

JERVIS.—1, A beautiful bay and harbour Australia, New S. Wales, about 80 m. S.W. Sydney lat. 35° 8' S. lon. 155° 5' E. (c.) The entrance is 2 m. wide and inside there is a bay or harbour about 10 m. in length and between 3 m. and 4 m. in breadth, capable of containing 1000 sail. It is easy of access, sheltered from all winds, and is abundantly furnished with wood and water.—2, A cape, S. Australia, S.E. side of the entrance into the Gulf of St. Vincent, opposite the N.F. end of Kangaroo Island lat. 25° 38' S. lon. 138° 9' E. (n.)—3, A small isl. Torres Strait, lat. 9° 55' S., lon. 142° 10' E. (n.)

JERAN port, Arabia. See GUERAW
JERLEGG a vil. Hesse-Cassel, Niederhessen cap. hall of same name 2 bank Rhine, 29 m. S.W. Cassel, with a ruin of an old castle, and several mills. Pop. vii 1280 hall 8408

JESI a m. Papal State. See Italy
JESOOI, a small to 1 m. high, 57 m. N.W. Madras, near L. bank Indus. Some of the houses near the river are built on platforms, supported by strong posts, 12 ft. or 15 ft. high, they are used as places of refuge during the inundations of the Indus, which often overflows the country for 20 m. from its banks.

JESSAYA, a river Turkey-in-Europe R. of an affluent of the Danube, which it joins at Semendria, after a N.E. course of about 80 m.

JESSAN, a to Prussia, prov. Saxony, gov. of, and 55 m. N.F. Merseburg on the Black Elster, with a court of law two churches an hospital, manufacture of linen, and a bakery Pop. 2420

JESSENFY, or GUERNAY a vil. Bahama, circle of, and about 20 m. from Dunham with an elegant castle, two chapels, a courthouse and near it, iron-works Pop. 1148

JESNITZ a to Anhalt-Deserz r. bank Mulde, here crossed by two bridges, 10 m. S.E. Dessau. It is entered by two gates, has two suburbs, a church and manufacture of woollen and linen cloth a factory and several mills. P. 2478

JF480, an isl. Japan. See Yezo

JESSORE, a dist. Hindoostan presid and prov. Bengal, in the centre of the delta of the Ganges; between lat. 23° 38' and 23° 46' N. The B. portion though in the Sunderbans, and composed of salt marshy islands, is extremely fertile and well adapted, in every respect for growing rice in addition to which it produces malt, indigo, tobacco, and pepper. Much of the district however still continues covered with jungle Area 3519 sq. m. Pop. 381,744 — Jessore, the capital, lies 77 m. N.E. Calcutta, is the seat of the civil establishment, and has a large jail and an elegant school.

JESSULMEER, or JAYULMEER, a to in the N.W. of Hindoostan Ameer, cap. principally of same name which is the most westerly of the Rajpoot states, 200 m. N.W. Hyderabad (on the Indus) lat. 26° 55' N. lon. 71° 28' E. It is a large and handsome place, of an irregular oval shape, about 2 m. in circuit surrounded by a wall or rampart of loose stones about 12 ft. high and defended by a shield in the form of an irregular triangle, with towers of half square stone, situated on every acclivity of the hill on which the town stands but all the defences are in a very ruinous condition. The houses are lofty, and occasionally spacious, but the roofs are built of a hard, dark-yellow primitive limestone, which is sometimes elegantly carved; and the streets, wider than usual in the East, are laid out with tolerable regularity. Pop. about 36,000 — The Rajpoots of an irregularly-oblong shape, with a length from N.E. to S.W. of about 180 m., an average breadth of 60 m., and an area of 12 253 sq. m. is barren and unproductive, with an uneven surface, covered either with rock or mud, and containing very little arable land. In some parts, however, good crops of hay (sulfur) and mowing, which form the food of the inhabitants, are raised. Cotton also is grown, but under circumstances so unfavourable, that three years' storage can meet the demand between such crops. Many districts have tolerable pastures, but neither herds nor flocks are abundant. The wool of the latter is of superior quality. A number of opulent merchants reside in the capital, and the trade is considerable, about 25 000 manure of opium passing annually through the country to Selah. The returns are sulphur, anafidula, rice, and tobacco. The ruler bears the title of Kauru, and resides in the above fort. The great bulk of the inhabitants are Hittites Rajpoots. Few of them are Mahomedans. Pop. 74,000.

JESTETTEN, a vil. Baden, circle Upper Rhine capital of same name, on the Swiss frontier with a parish church and two castles in ruins. Pop. vil. 890. hall 8185. JESUS, an isl., Nova Canada, 8 m. N.W. Montreal formed by the Praire and St. John rivers, the two branches of the Ottawa, before its junction with the St. Lawrence. It is 35 m. long by about 6 m. broad, is fertile, and well cultivated, and produces abundant crops of grain, pulse and fruit. Its S.E. part is covered with excellent pasturage and fine forests.

JESUS-MARIA an isl. S. Pacific Ocean W. New Ireland, lat. 3° 22' S. lon. 147° 48' E. (n.) JETHOL one of the smaller Channel islands 1 m. E. Guernsey, surrounded by rocks, and having a picturesque appearance. Pop. 6.

JITTINGEN, a market in Bavaria, circle Swabia, on the Rhine here crossed by a bridge 21 m. N. Augsburg. It contains a castle and has a trade in corn. Pop. 1631.

JEVLEH, a tn. W. Germany, county Oldenburg, cap. circle of same name 33 m. N.W. Oldenburg on the Elbe, a navigable canal which communicates with the port of Hookkuk is surrounded by walls and ditches, and entered by four gates has an old castle, of large dimensions; a Protestant and a Catholic church a synagogue, orphan hospital, poorhouse, townhouse, and several superior schools manufacture of tobacco, lace, and other goods, a saw and other mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 3561. The castle is a low tract, bounded on the N. by the German Ocean, and only preserved from inundation by a system of carefully managed sluices. Area, 103 geo. sq. m. Pop. 1,867, almost all Protestants.

JEYING LOAN for Eng. Suez, 2093 ac. 1 up. 32. JEW ALA MUKI [Mouth of flame] a tn. Punjab, in the Jalandhar Doab, 10 m. N. N. Malana. It is dirty and neglected but has an extensive hamlet, containing numerous huts and votive gardens. There are several temples, in one of which dedicated to Siva a flame, produced by indelible gases issuing from fissures in the rock, burns continually and draws thither annually many pilgrims, who present offerings of butter sugar, &c. Near the town is a valuable mineral spring. Pop. about 3000.

JLYPOOR, or JERPOOR, a principality Hindoostan, Ajmeer, one of the E. Kaypoot states, tributary to the British, between lat. 26° and 28° N., cap. Jeypoor. Area, 15,251 sq. m. The soil is in general sandy and strongly impregnated with alk. large quantities of which are manufactured for exportation. Certain parts of the state produce wheat, cotton and tobacco. Sheep are reared in some localities for their wool, and in most parts there are good cattle herds of deer also roam over large tracts. In some of the towns, cloth, swords, and matchlocks are manufactured while fine cloths Banars manufactures, Cashmere shawls, opium, lead, sheet-copper, fruit, and horses, are imported. Most of the villages in Jeypoor are fortified with walls and ditches. It contains also some of the strongest fortresses in Hindoostan, and numerous small forts or garrisons and Jan temples. P. 1,891, 124.

JLYPOOR, or JERPOOR, a tn. Hindoostan, Ajmeer, cap. above principality in an irregular valley, 150 m. S.W. W. Delhi; lat. 26° 50' N. lon. 75° 55' E. It is 8 m. long, 14 m. broad, surrounded by a substantial stone wall, encircled by a canal, with a line of fortifications extending along a range of neighbouring heights. It is said to be the handsomest and best-built town of Hindoostan, and many of its streets and squares, both as regards width and architectural effect, would bear a favourable comparison with those of most of the cities of Asia, or even of Europe. The houses are generally of stone, three or four stories high and covered with a fine stucco. The facades are, in many instances, embellished with fresco paintings and numerous marble porticoes and sculptures are to be found on all sides. The projecting stone balconies, with which the houses in general are furnished, have a remarkably grotesque effect. It contains a magnificent palace, and temples of greater dimensions than any that are to be found in Upper Hindoostan, built in the purest Hindoo style. About 4 m. W. is Jeypoor Ghant, a dreary dale, where a palace was built and gardens laid out by one of the rulers. 1 up. about 60 000.

JEED a city Punjab. See YEEN.

JEZIRAH ILLALANYAR, the largest of the Cura Maria Isle (which see.)

JEZARAH-NU-ONAN [anc. Ereboid] a tn. Asiatic Turkey, 200 ft. and 120 m. S.E. Diarbekir on a treeless island 90 ft. above the sea, about 24 m. in circumference, formed by the Tigris, and nearly all of which it occupies. It is of an oval form, and is surrounded by a low wall, which as well as the houses, is in many places in ruins. The remains of a bridge, built over both branches of the river by the minister Neursidin, still exist.

JE/REEL, a tn. Palestine. See JEKRAH.

JELVENY, a vil. Hungary Thier Thiem co. Temeswar near Mohacs, with a Greek non-named church 1 1500. JIALAWAN a prov. Balochistan, bounded N. by Sarawan and Khet. E. by Cutch Gendava, and Schinde, S. by Las and Mekran, and W. by Mekran and Barawan between lat. 28° and 29° N. lon. 68° and 67° 30' E. Length N. to S. 200 m. breadth, E. to W. 150 m. Area, about 20,000 sq. m. It is extremely mountainous, and in general barren, and very thinly peopled. The inhabitants, who are chiefly engaged in pastoral pursuits, are estimated by Masson at about 80 000. Its principal places are Nal Khundar and Gekera.

JIANSI, a tn. and fort, Hindoostan, Mandelcan cap. of a small principality, 63 m. S.E. Gwalior. It has considerable manufactures of bows arrows, spears, and carpets, and is a great thoroughfare between the Deccan and the upper provinces of Bengal. Area of princip. 2532 sq. m. 100 000.

JHOONJOUNA a tn. Hindoostan in Aymer 125 m. S.W. Delhi lat. 28° 3' N., lon. 75° 22' E. It is handsome, and ornamented with trees and gardens, which give it a pleasing appearance.

JHOU a tn. Balochistan, prov. Mekran cap. of a small dist. of same name lat. 26 11 N. lon. 65° 25' E.

JHYLUM river Punjab. See JATHAN.

JIDDAH or DUNDAR [anc. Eddoe-Regum] a tn. and seaport, one of the chief trading ports of Arabia, prov. Rijda, on the Red Sea lat. 21° 28' 15' N. lon. 38° 13' E. (n.) 68 m. W. Mecca, of which it is the port, on a low sandy and arid plain, badly supplied with water in front of a range of hills 10 m. from the sea. It is of a square form about 1500 paces in length, and half as many in width and is enclosed by a wall with small towers at intervals, and having two forts with about ten embrasures each, at the angles towards the sea, but there are few guns mounted. A long well built street of two-storyed houses, lined with shops, and containing several good khans, runs parallel to the sea. The other streets are not paved and are generally narrow and irregular, although some of them are wide and airy, houses mostly composed of mudbricks, and, being whitewashed, present a striking appearance from a distance. It is comparatively clean, but has mean suburbs. There is an extensive hamlet well supplied with meat, fruit, vegetables, and grain, but strangers are charged exorbitantly. There are three entrances to the town on the sea-side of which the embre and only public one is that at the Jety, but the others are allowed to be used occasionally. There is also a gate on each of the other sides; that on the S. side is seldom opened; the N. one is common to all; but to the E. is the Mecca gate, through which none but the professors of Islamism are allowed to pass. The port, which is very indifferent, has two petty quays, adapted for small vessels only; the larger being obliged to anchor in the roadstead, about 8 m. from the shore, where there is excellent anchorage. It has a very mixed and stirring active population carrying on a considerable trade Jiddah being in some degree the port of India, Egypt, Africa, and Arabia many of its merchants are very wealthy; some of them possessing property, it is said to the amount of £200,000, while there are at least a dozen mercantile houses, each of which has a capital varying from £40,000 to £50,000. In 1848, the imports amounted to £498,000, of which a third part came from India and the Indian Archipelago. Jiddah receives from Egypt all kinds of provisions including grain, legumes, &c. from Europe, through Egypt, tin, lead, mercury, copper, and other metals, glass, for mirrors, and in the form of bottles for essences, &c. of various kinds, cutlery, leaf sugar, soap, cloths, silks, and cottons from India, narcotics, animals for barbers, finely made girdles, and raw sugar from Africa, elephants teeth, ostrich feathers, musk, mules, and camels; from Arabia Pezom, dates from Lobos, pearls and saffron, and from Hodeida and Mekka, incense, medicinal plants, and timber and a considerable amount of merchandise is brought by pilgrims, of whom 120,000 pass through annually on their way to Mecca. The exports consist of gums, incense, saffron, medicinal plants, such as saffron and cassia torresana-shell, and coffee. Population estimated at from 12,000 to 20,000, or including the suburbs, which are equalled in the extreme some make the total 40,000.

JIGA-GOUNGGAL [Port of the White Town] the largest town in Thibet, after Lassa, from which it lies S. W. on the r. bank Yarou-Dzangbo. lat. 29° 58' N. lon. 91° 28' E. Pop. said to be 20,000 families.

JIHOUN, river Asia. See OXUS.

JIJILLI or JIJILLI, a fortified maritime in Algeria. 50 m. N. W. Constantine lat. 36° 50' N. lon. 5° 54' E. It has a handsome hospital, a little maritime commerce, and regular steam boat communication with Algiers. It was taken possession of in 1664, by the Duke of Beaufort, who laid the foundations of the fort which still defends the town. Pop. including garrison, 1560.

JIJONA, a city, Spain, Valencia, prov. of, and 15 m. N. Alicante on an activity surrounded by the remains of an ancient Moorish castle. It is indifferently built, has steep streets, lined with substantial dwellings, several squares, a spacious parish church four chapels, a townhouse, prison, hospital, storehouse, bath, and four other schools. Five fountains, and in the environs are some agreeable public walks. The vicinity though hilly yields good grain, fruits, and vegetable, wine and oil and sheep and goats are reared in considerable numbers. Pop. 4735.

JIKALDE, or SANJALDE, a town, Tibet, near r. bank Yarou-Dzangbo, 160 m. W. S. W. Lassa, close by Chah-lo-tun-ho, the residence of the Desho Lama. Pop. estimated at 100,000.

JILOLA, a river Spain, Aragon. It rises in the N. slope of the Sierra Albarran, near the town of Colla, prov. Teruel, flows circuitously N. W. passing the town of Daroca, prov. Saragossa, and after a course of about 70 m., joins r. bank Jalon, opposite the town of Calatayud. It is well supplied with fish, and its waters are much used for irrigation.

JIMAMAILAN a small town, Philippines, on a shallow bay W. side of the Iloilo peninsula, opposite a few miles, and near the confluence of the rivers Tabunan and Vignin. It is a poor place, and the navigation of its river is obstructed by a bar at its entrance. Pop. 1682.

JIMENA, a town, Spain, Andalusia, prov. of, and 14 m. from Jerez, consisting generally of old houses, and narrow, winding streets. It has a Gothic church, surrounded by towers, and said to have been once a Moorish mosque, a court house, and primary school, a flour and several oil mills. The inhabitants are almost all engaged in agriculture, and raise grain, olives, and fruits. Pop. 1607.

JIMENA-ANZA, a town, Spain, Andalusia, prov. of, and 46 m. E. Cadix, on the E. declivity of the Sierra de Gades, crowned by an old Roman fort. It is regularly built, with steep but clean streets, and possesses two parish churches, four chapels, a townhouse, prison, five schools, and a cemetery; with manufactures of linen, hats, soap, leather, earthenware, bricks, and tiles; and a trade in its manufactures and fruits. Pop. 5618.

JIMERA-DE-LYVAN, a town, Spain, Andalusia, prov. of, and 46 m. W. S. W. Malaga, on a slope near the foot of a lofty mountain range. It is a differently built, has a parish church, with a Moorish tower adjoining, which is used as a bellry; a conthouse, prison, and primary school; manufactures of soap, a distillery of brandy and several flour mills. Pop. 1083.

JIRGEE, in Egypt. See GIZA.

JITOMIR, or ZITOMIR, a town, Russia, gov. Volhynia, 1 bank Teteriv, 670 m. S. S. W. St. Petersburg lat. (Baranovsk convent 50° 15' 26" N. lon. 28° 40' 44" E. (n.) It is the seat both of a Greek and a R. Catholic bishop, has manufactures of leather and hair, an active trade in woolen, linen, and silk goods, wax, honey, Hungarian wine, salt, and tallow; also four important annual fairs. Pop. (1846) 28,000.

—The climate is well wooded and fertile, producing much corn and flax, and rearing great numbers of cattle.

JIZDRA, a town, Russia, gov. of, and 80 m. S. W. Kaluga, cap. circle, and on the N. shore of a lake formed by a river of same name. It has a stone and a wooden church, tanneries, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 6880. —The climate has an unobscuring surface, one-half of which is occupied by fine timber. The greater part of the other half is only of indifferent fertility. Area, 1964 sq. m. Pop. 110,000. —The river runs W. of the town, proceeds across gov. Kaluga very circuitously, but nearly E. N. E. past the city of Kozelsk, and after a course of about 100 m., joins 1 bank Okla above Jerusalem. Its chief affluents are the Reseta, Vitoh, and Berona. Great quantities of timber are floated down its stream.

JOA—1, a large flourishing town, Punjab, on the Salt range, about 110 m. N. W. Lahore. Near it there are said to be good indications of coal. —2, a mouth of the Indus during inundations, but in the dry season merely a salt-water creek. lat. 29° 18' N., lon. 67° 19' E.

JOACHIM, one of the Columbianas (Islands) (see)

JOACHIM (St.) a vil France, dep. Loire-Inférieure, 12 m. W. W. Bayeux, amidst extensive marshes, formed by the Briere the inundations of which in winter convert the site of the village into a kind of island. The ground around it in the best state, is mere bog, out of which great quantities of peat have been cut since the commencement of 1711.

JOACHIMSTHAL, a town, Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. of, and 49 m. N. E. Potsdam, on the lakes of Grunow and Werbellin. It contains a gymnasium and has distilleries, tile-works, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1647.

JOACHIMSTHAL, a town, Bohemia circle Eibenbogen on the Weesitz, in a valley between lofty mountains of the Erzgebirge, near the frontiers of Saxony, 70 m. W. N. W. Prague. It is the seat of a mining department, contains a treasury, and several other churches and depends chiefly on the valuable lead and silver mines which are worked in the vicinity. Dollar pieces were first coined here. Pop. 4986.

JOAG, a town, Senegambia, kingdom of, and 18 m. E. Gambia, on an affluent of the Senegal, lat. 14° 22' N. lon. 10° 20' W. It is surrounded by a high wall, and the environs produce a good deal of tobacco. Pop. 2000.

JOANKO, a lake, Siberia, on the Arctia circle, m. lat. 175° E. in the territory of the Tchukotka. It is about 24 m. long by 12 m. broad, and discharges itself through the Anadir which issues from its W. extremity.

JOANNINA, in Turkey. See JANINA.

JOAO, with effluents, the names of three places, Portugal. —1, João-da-Foz (Sko) a town, and par., prov. Douro, 3 m. W. Oporto, at the N. corner of the mouth of the Douro with a small harbour defended by a fort, and provided with a light. It is much resorted to by the inhabitants of Oporto for sea-bathing. Pop. 8050. —2, João de Arcas (Sko) a town and par., prov. Beira-Alta, about 20 m. from Viseu. Pop. 2904. —3, João-da-Paquerana (Sko) a town, prov. Beira-Alta, near 1 bank Douro, where the navigation is interrupted by a cataraet, 55 m. E. Oporto. It has four churches, and a grammar-school. Pop. 1350.

JOÃO-DA-BARRA (Sko), a town, Brazil, gov. of, and 80 m. E. N. E. Rio-de-Janeiro, r. bank Paraíba, near its mouth, on a barren, sandy flat. It has a parish church and a primary school, and builds some coasting vessels; inhabitants chiefly employed in fishing. Pop. dist. 2000.

JOÃO-DA-PALMA (Sko) a town, Brazil, prov. of, and 400 m. N. V. Goyaz, on the singular piece of ground between the Palma and Parana, which, by their junction form the Paranaíba.

It has a parish church, primary school, and a trade in cattle. JOÃO-DE-REI (Sko), a town, Brazil, prov. Minas-Geraes, in a valley between two mountain ridges, 70 m. S. W. Ouro Preto. It is traversed by the united streams of the Tijoso and Barreiro, which is crossed by two handsome stone bridges, and lined on both sides by an elegant stone wharf. The principal streets, on either side of the river, lie parallel to it, and are crossed by several minor streets, which are less regularly formed. The houses, with scarcely a single exception, are well built. The buildings most deserving of notice, are the church of Nossa Senhora do Pilar a large and handsome edifice of stone, with a facade adorned with sculptures, and surmounted by two towers; the church of São Francisco do Paula, an elegant structure with rich internal decorations; several other churches of less architectural merit, the residences, containing the smelling and refining establishments, the college, with various professorships; the public library; the hospital of Mercy a large and richly-endowed institution; two primary schools, and the townhouse, with an old and new prison. The trade is of great importance, the town being the outlet for the produce of the province, and the returns from Rio-de-Janeiro. This produce consists chiefly of coffee, cotton, and hides, and the principal returns are calico prints, woollen alkis, salt iron in bars, and various utensils and articles of European manufacture. The district is the richest in the province. The few lands, though not of the first quality, raise in abundance all the ordinary crops of the climate, and the mountains abound in gold, iron and other minerals. P 5000

JOJO-DO-PRINCIPE (Rio), two to the Brazil — 1 More commonly São João-Amaro, prov Rio-de-Janeiro, 26 m. N. Angre dos Reis. It contains a church townhouse, primary school, and prison. The trade is chiefly in coffee, sent to Rio-de-Janeiro by land-carriage but, in addition to it, sugar-cane, mandioc, and millet are extensively grown in the district, which has a population of 6000 — 2 1 to prov Ceará, on the Jaguaribe, lat. 6° 58' S. It is a small miserable place consisting of a few mean houses many of them ruinous, but the district is of great extent, rears considerable numbers of horses and cattle, abounds in copper iron, and other minerals, and has a population of 9604

JOBB (SEXT) a market in Hungary Thither Thiers co. Bihor on the Bereyete about 6 m. from Szekelybad in a fertile district, with two churches and a very ancient abbey. It was once strongly fortified. Pop. 1200

JOHIE is an Indian Archipelago, at the entrance to the Great Bay N side of Fayal lat (W point) 1 34 S lon. 13° 21' E. (n.) It is about 90 m long E. to W by a breadth varying from 28 to 12 m and is traversed throughout its whole length by a ridge of mountains, decreasing in height towards the W. The coast is high steep covered with woods, and without openings there not being a single cove or creek fit to receive a large ship.

JOJOCAIMA is a prov Java. See DOJOCAIMA

JOCKMOCK, a in Sweden prov Umeå, dist. Fick. Lagmark, on an affluet of the Lulea, about 140 m N N W. From. An iron mine is worked in the vicinity P 1400

JODAN, a in Spain, Andalusia, prov and 24 m E Jaco. It is built hill, has mean dirty streets, a church chapel townhouse, with prison attached two schools, and an old castle, now in ruins manufactures of capote alheros, soap, earthen ware, &c. but inhabitants chiefly agricultural raising grain wine oil, and honey in which a little trade is carried on. Pop. 2614

JODOGNE (Flemish Goldenscheide) a vil and com. Belgium, prov S Brabant, on the Grande-Grôte, near the confluence of the St. Jean 24 m. S.E. Brussels. It contains a superior primary school and has manufactures of soap, a self-work, oil mill breweries and distilleries, and an important trade in corn and cattle. Jodogne once possessed a castle, in which the dukes of Brabant, reduced by the salubrity of the air caused their children to be brought up. This castle was burnt down in 1578. Pop. 8258

JOHANN-GEORGENSTADT a in Saxony circle Zwickau, on a height above the Schwarzwasser in a bleak and mountainous district near the frontiers of Bohemia, 69 m. S.W. Dresden. It takes its name from the Elector John George I, who built it as an asylum for the Protestants driven out of Bohemia by Ferdinand II. In 1654 contains a handsome church a townhouse, mining and lace schools, the seat of a mining directory and has manufactures of flannel, needles, lace, tobacco, and rumel. It stands in the heart of a district rich in minerals, including silver tin lead, iron, cobalt, bismuth, &c. Pop. 8895.

JOHANN (Sancs) three places, Hungary — 1, A vil, co. Lipina, near Okolena, with a castle, a parish church, and much frequented mineral springs. Pop. 907 — 2 A vil co. Wessenberg, in a fertile district, with a church. It is inhabited chiefly by Germans, who cultivate the ground, and send large quantities of hay and fodder to Vienna. Pop. 2231 — 3, A market in. co. of and about 35 m. from Pressburg, in a fertile and well-wooded district, near the confluence of the Theya and Mura with the March. It has several mills, but the chief employment is agriculture. Pop. 1764

JOHANNA (French, dynamos or dynamos), one of the Comoro Is., E. Africa, Mosambique Channel, about equal distant from Comoro and Mayotte, having a central peak of great elevation, in lat. 13° 18' S. lon. 44° 29' 30" E. It is 24 m long by 18 m broad of triangular form abounds in wood and water and presents a pleasing and highly picturesque appearance. The soil is fertile, and produces rice, millet and a variety of fruits. The inhabitants, who appear to be a mixture of Arabs and Negroes, are clothed in the Turkish fashion speak the Arabic language, and are all Mahometans. They are fond of butter. All their trade is carried on through the port of Johanna, on the N. side of the island. The town is surrounded by a high wall has very narrow streets, a mosque and a fort and contains about 2000 inhabitants. Pop. of all 2000.

JOHANNEBERG a vil Bohemia circle Bumlau, on the Neiss, 9 m from Miesenburg with a church a school, several mills, and some general trade. Pop. 1163

JOHANN-THAL, a in Austrian Galicia, circle of and 28 m. N W Troppa with a chapel, and in the vicinity, names are worked. Pop. 2000.

JOHANNEBERG a vil Nassau on a rising ground above a bank Rhine, about 12 m W by S. Mainz. It contains a parish church and a large castle now belonging to Prince Metternich and standing conspicuously among the vineyards which produce the Johanneberg, the finest of the Rheinhessen wines. Pop. 844

JOHANNEBURG a in Prussia, prov F. Posen, gov. of and 68 m S S W Gumbinnen gov. circle of same name, on the Pannoch or Pynoch, near Lake Ruck or Wanscho. It is the seat of a law court, and of several public offices; has a church castle, and infirmary and a trade in cattle. Pop. 2663. — The climate is flat, and not fertile. Area, 608 sq m. Pop. 34,100

JOHN (Str), several pars England: — 1 Cornwall 823 ac. 1 id. — 2 Northumberland, 2758 ac. 1 31 146. — 3, York (F. Riding, 9280 ac. P 1248 — 4 (The Baptist Hereford 48 ac. P 1800 — 5 (The Baptist Northampton 6810 ac. P 6478 — 6 (The Baptist with St. Michael's War wick 4723 ac. P 2* 698 — 7 (Berkshire) Cumberland 2752 ac. P 641 — 8 (Leeds) Northumberland 15 660 ac. P 2074 — 9 (2 Arthroppe) York (F. Riding) 6280 ac. P 1248 — 10 1st of Jersey 1 2821 — 11 Par Wales, Glamorgan 431 ac. P 121.

JOHN (Str), a city and seaport, British N America, cap. prov New Brunswick on a rocky peninsula projecting into the harbour at the mouth of the river St. John, lat. (Partridge Island), 45° 14' 6" N, lon 66° 58' 30" W (n). It stands on rugged and barren ground, but the shores are regularly laid out and well built, though some of them are inconveniently steep. A projecting rock divides the city into two parts, which are called the upper and lower town, in the former of which the principal wharves and warehouses are situated. The buildings are now principally of brick, and many of the public structures have a respectable and even elegant appearance. The principal edifices are, the Episcopalian and Presbyterian churches, St. Catharine, Methodist and Baptist chapels; together with a marine hospital, two handsome ranges of barracks, a poorhouse, jail and Government storehouses. It has a grammar-school a central Madras school, and two public libraries several religious and charitable societies, a providential and savings bank and a chamber of commerce. Carlton, a in. on the W side of the harbour is included in the municipality and contains some good streets, with a handsome church, a meeting-house, and several fine buildings. The harbour is commodious, safe, and never obstructed by ice. At its mouth is Partridge Island, having a battery light-house, and an hospital for sick emigrants on their arrival in the country. Between this island and the mainland extends a bar, which is entirely dry at low water and which is furnished with a beacon, surmounted by a light. The fishery within the harbour is valuable, yielding annually from 10,000 to 15,000 barrels of herring, 8000 barrels of salmon, and about 2000 barrels of shad. The commerce of St. John is very considerable. The principal imports consist of British manu- factures and colonial produce while the exports are timber, fish, furs, and lime. Ship-building is carried on to a great extent. St. John was founded by American loyalists in the latter part of last century and though it has frequently suffered from severe conflagrations, it has steadily continued to improve and prosper. Pop. in 1840 exclusive of the suburbs of Portland, 28,718. The strait of St. John runs in the U. States, near the source of the Connecticut, and after flowing N. E. through Lower Canada for about 200 m. enters New Brunswick, near the parallel of 47° N. when it takes a S. E. direction and, after a total course of about 400 m., falls into the Bay of Fundy, by an estuary 5 m. wide, at the city of St. John. Its navigation is obstructed by several falls and rapids one of which, called the Engaged Narrows occurs about a mile above the city of St. John, it can be passed, however, by sloops and schooners at certain times of the tide. The great falls are formed shortly after the river enters New Brunswick, and extend over half a mile, in which distance it falls 75 ft. The river is navigable for flat-bottomed boats of 30 tons burthen up to the foot of these falls. Its chief tributaries are the Matamoras, Tobique, Aroostook, Salmon, Washademoak and Kenabesago.

JOHN (St.) — 1. A river or creek, U. States, N. America, Florida. It runs in an extensive marsh and after a course, first N. and then E., of about 200 m., falls into the Atlantic. It has 12 ft. water on the bar at its entrance, and is navigable for small craft for 150 m. from its mouth. — 2. A lake, Lower Canada, 120 m. N. Quebec nearly circular and about 30 m. in diameter. It receives several rivers, and on the N. E. side has two outlets, which unite shortly after leaving the lake to form the Saguenay river which falls into the St. Lawrence. This lake abounds in excellent fish.

JOHN (St.) several isles. — 1. (Bruce or Scheraga), an isl. Red Sea, coast of Nubia, at the entrance of Foul Bay; lat. 23° 46' 18" N. lon. 36° 9' E. (n.) It is of a circular form, about 700 ft. high, rising in the centre in a sharp peak, of volcanic origin. It is steep on all sides, and utterly barren, affording neither water nor any respectable vegetation. It was at one time famous for its emeralds but is now inhabited by two or three fishermen only, on the look-out for turtle which are rather numerous. — 2. An isl. S. Pacific, off Cape Santa Maria, Isl. New Ireland; lat. 4° S. lon. 155° 47' E. (n.) It is about 50 m. in circumference well covered with large trees, and to a considerable extent cultivated. — 3. (Or St. Jan), One of the Virgin isle, W. Indies, belonging to Denmark. lat. (middle), 18° 18' N. lon. 64° 49' W. (n.) about 19 m. long by 4 m. broad, rising to a considerable height in the centre, and having generally a very broken, uneven surface, and in different water courses, some sugar and cotton are grown. On its S. coast, on Cruz Bay, at the small town of Christiansburg, with 120 inhabitants. The bay affords good anchorage. Pop. lat. 25° 60' — 4. (Or Scropea) a small isl. Grecian Archipelago, lat. 26° 30' N. lon. 26° 41' E. (n.)

JOHN (St.) a tn. British N. America, esp. Isl. and colony Newfoundland, near the extremity of the most E. portion of the island lat. 47° 28' 3" N. lon. 52° 48' W. (n.) on an acclivity and consisting chiefly of one street about 1 m. in length, rather irregularly built, but containing many good shops and stores the former mostly of stone. The houses in this part of the town are small, and built of brick, but in the upper parts they are of wood, and are very awkwardly disposed. The town, however, has, upon the whole, been much improved since the fire of 1846, both as regards the style of building, and the width and regularity of the streets. It is well supplied with water and gas, the former brought from a pond on an adjoining eminence, called Signal Hill. The public buildings, exclusive of the churches are, the Government-house, a large plain structure, house of assembly, a handsome building of granite a lunatic asylum, hospital, and the market and custom houses, the upper story of the former used as a court room. There are nine places of worship—three Episcopalians, one Established Church of Scotland, one Free Church, one Methodist, one U. Presbyterian, and two E. Catholics. The educational institutions comprise two schools in connection with the Church of England, one in connection with the Established Church of Scotland, and two in connection with the E. Catholic church. There are several societies religious and benevolent, a mechanics institute with museum library, and reading-room attached and an agricultural society a brewery, distillery flour-mill and foundry a botanic garden, marine promenade, and three secretaries. The trade of St. John's consists chiefly in supplying the fishermen, most of whom are E. Catholics with clothing provisions and fishing and breeding gear. The harbour of St. John's is excellent, although narrow at the entrance, the channel from point to point, being only 260 fathoms wide. The tide rises 5 ft. neap-tides 3 ft. but very irregularly being much influenced by the winds. The narrows leading to the harbour are protected by a battery. During the spring season, the harbour is thronged with merchant vessels from London Liverpool, Poole, and Greenock, laden with dry goods, and salt for curing cod, from Hamburg and Copenhagen with biscuits, butter, pork, glassware, leatherware, and hosiery, from the U. States with butter, pork, beef and flour, from Spain and Portugal with salt, wines, and preserves and from Barbadoes, and some of the other W. India islands, with sugar, molasses, and rum. The export fish trade commences early in August, when, and for some weeks previously, numbers of Spanish vessels arrive, bringing cargoes of sugar and molasses, the proceeds of which they invest in cod-fish. The ports to which the British vessels are consigned with fish are, Bilbao Oporto Cadix, Figuera, Lagnora, Naples, Barbadoes, and the Brazils. Besides its fisheries, St. John's is extensively engaged in sealing from 150 to 200 schooners and brigs, varying from 70 to 120 tons, winter in the harbour in the months of February and March, preparatory to proceeding to the sealing ground. The town is overrun with dogs, which make a great noise during the night, but are tame, and although of vicious temper, being employed in dragging catamarans loaded with wood. St. John's was nearly destroyed by fire in 1846. Pop. resident, 19,000 fishermen, 6000 — (Private Communication.)

JOHN'S HAVEN a vil. and seaport Scotland, on Kin-cordine 8 m. N. E. Montrose. A few sloops belong to the port, which are chiefly employed in importing coal, and exporting grain. The inhabitants are principally occupied in fishing and linen-weaving. Pop. 1172

JOHNSBURG (St.) a vil. and township, U. States, Vermont, 37 m. N. E. Montpelier, containing a church, several taverns, potteries, and mills. Pop. 1887

JOHNSTON, a large manufacturing vil. Scotland, on the Forth, on the Black Cart, 8 m. W. by S. Paisley. It is regularly laid out, with several elegant and well-built streets, and a number of handsome shops; houses in general substantial, of two and three stories. It has an elegant octagonal Established church, with a handsome spire; a Free, and two U. P. Presbyterian churches, several schools, and libraries. The cotton manufacture, the chief source of employment here, is carried on to a great extent, and some brass and iron foundries are also done. By every communication with Paisley Glasgow Greenock, Ayr &c. Pop. (1851) 5873.

JOHNSTON, par Wales, Pembroke 1283 ac. P. 265. JOHNSTON, or CORNWALLS ISLAND, a group, N. Wales. Lat. 53° 53' 20" N. lon. 109° 51' 30" W. They form a lagoon, surrounded by a reef stretching N. E. and S. W. 10 mi., and 5 m. broad. Two low isles are on the N. W. side, the one a madbank and the other covered with bushes.

JOHNSTON STRAIT, a narrow channel British N. America, Oregon Territory, separating Vancouver's Id. from the mainland. Having Queen Charlotte's Sound on the N. W. and the Gulf of Georgia on the S. E.

JOHNSTON, par Scot. Dumfries 15,500 ac. P. 1261. JOHNSTON, several places, U. States, particularly—
1. A town New York on elevated ground 46 m. N. W. Albany. It has a courthouse, a jail six churches, and manufactures of various kinds. Pop. 5409.—2. A town Pennsylvania, 150 m. W. Harrisburg, with streets at right angles to each other, and mills of various kinds. Pop. 1713.

JOHNSTON, a dist. Upper Canada, including Col. Leeds and Grenville, bounded S. E. by the St. Lawrence and on other sides by the East, Bathurst and Midland districts. It is traversed by the Rideau river and canal, and is watered besides by several lakes. It contains a considerable quantity of good land, and is altogether well settled, chiefly by Scotch and Irish. Pop. (1852) 45,935.

JOHNSTON, par Irel. Kildare 1248 ac. P. 201. JOHNSTONVILLE, par U. States, a vil and township, U. States, New York 60 m. N. W. Albany with a church, tannery, distillery, mill factory and several mills. Pop. 1293.

JOHORE, or DUTONG, a town Malacca, cap. territory of same name forming the S. extremity of the Malayan peninsula, 35 m. N. N. E. Singapore, on the Johore lat 5° N. lon. 104° E. It was founded in 1511 by Sultan Mahmud Shah the Twelfth king of Malacca, after the Portuguese had expelled him from his residence at Malacca and rose to be a place of considerable importance, but has dwindled down into a mere fishing village of about thirty huts.

The TERRENOIR in its interior is very imperfectly known but the coast has been carefully explored and has an extent of about 50 geo. m. It presents a series of sandy bays alternating with rocky headlands, and is lined by two chains of islands, running nearly parallel to the coast for nearly 40 m. The land along the shores is generally low and appears to continue swampy for several miles inland. The greater part of the drainage is received by the Johore which flows N. W. to S. E. parallel to the coast, at the distance of 15 m. to 20 m. The other streams, though numerous, are mere creeks. None of the products of the interior have as yet acquired any commercial importance.

JOHNSDALE, a town Saxony circle Zwicken on the Schwarzwasser, 45 m. S. W. Dresden. Its manufactures consist of lace, ribbons, parchment, and needles and it has several flour and saw mills. Mines are worked in the neighbourhood, and afford the chief employment. Pop. 1778.

JOHNNY (see JOHNSON) a town France dep. Yonne beautifully situated on the Yonne, which is crossed by a handsome bridge, and above which it rises in the form of an amphitheatre 15 m. N. W. Auxerre. A beautiful and spacious quay extends along the river over the whole length of the town. The town proper is indifferently built and the streets, from the nature of the site, are not only irregular and crooked, but sometimes so steep, that, in several of them, the passenger lays hold of to ascend the ascent. The only buildings deserving of notice are the cathedral an elegant and ornate edifice of the 15th century; and the remains of an ancient castle, finely situated on the highest ground of the town. The manufactures consist of coarse woollens, linen, leather, laundry liquors, and vinegar and the trade includes, in addition to these articles, corn, wine, casks, wood and charcoal. The grain markets held twice a week are important; and there are five annual fairs. Pop. 6688.

JOINVILLE, a town France dep. Haute Marne, 25 m. N. Châlons, on the Marne, at the foot of a hill formerly crowned by a celebrated castle. It is a very ancient place, but has lost almost all its importance. It has manufactures of woollen hosiery, serge, druggists, and worsted mills. Near it are valuable mines of iron, which employ several blast-furnaces and other iron works. Pop. 3069.

JOKA (see JAGY and JAGNY) a vil Hungary, Hither Danube. co. of and about 16 m. S. E. Presburg, near the Krich-Ujvar arm of the Danube with a church. Fine meadows are grown in the vicinity. Pop. 1914.

JOKÉO, or GORTWENIC a market to Hungary, Hither Danube co. Neutra, near Vag-Ujhely, on the Rava, in a narrow valley surrounded by lofty precipices. It contains a church, situated on a height, and two castles, one of them very ancient, and said to have belonged to the Templars has manufactures of earthenware several distilleries, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1428.

J(II) IBA, a river W. Africa. See NIGER. JOSEFA ALVIRA, or ELIZAC a market in Hungary, Hither, Thelen, on Górnir in the valley of the Elatch, 14 m. W. S. W. Rosenau with a church, fine castle a considerable trade in iron mined and smelted in the vicinity and quarries of white marble, resembling that of Carrara. Pop. 4045.

JONAS, a vil Sea of Okhotsk lat 56° 25' 30" N. lon. 143° 18' E. about 9 m. in circumference, and 1300 ft. high. A crowd of detached rocks lies off its W. side, on which the waves beat with great violence.

JONFV a vil and par Switzerland can. St. Gall, circle of and about 1 m. from Rapperswil in a beautiful district. It is well built, has an old parish church finely situated on a height, and containing in its wall a Roman altar with an inscription found in the neighbourhood two extensive spanning miles, dry rocks and meadows. Pop. 2111.

JONSBOROUGH par Irel. co. Armagh 2186 ac. Pop. 1897.

JONSBOROUGH numerous places in the U. States particularly a vil Tennessee on Little Limestone Creek, 150 m. E. by N. Nashville. It has a courthouse, a jail two churches, and two societies. Pop. about 900.

JONKOPING a town Sweden cap. lan. of same name at the S. extremity of Lake Wetter on the tongue of a narrow strait between that lake and Lake Boche. March 3d 1836. E. N. E. Göteborg. It lies on low land that part of it is protected by embankments from inundation. It is in general well built, having substantial looking houses and wide streets and contains a handsome church governor's residence, townhouse, theatre, and grammar school. It also has manufactures of cards and tobacco and a haven in the Munk lake, at which the trade, formerly important, has been greatly increased by the completion of the Göta Canal. In the vicinity are the mineral springs of Lendel and Morsdal and at a short distance, at Haggarna, a manufacture of armour. Pop. 4749.

The lake is bounded N. and N. E. by Linköping, E. Kalmar S. Halmstad, W. Elfsborg, and W. Wästmanad or Kvarberg, and Lake Wetter. It belongs partly to the lagoon of the Rattapet, and partly to that of the Baltic, the former draining it chiefly by the Nies and the latter partly by the Åman, and partly by Lake Wetter. It is partly covered with mountains, but has much fertile soil, on which good crops of corn, potatoes, hemp, and flax are grown. Feeds many cattle, swine and poultry. It is well wooded, and rich in minerals, particularly iron which is worked to a considerable extent. The chief exports are corn, cattle, butter, cheese, pitch, tar, iron, and ironware. Area, about 4000 geo. sq. m. Pop. 143,300.

JOAQUINES, a town France dep. Varcelles, 4 m. E. S. E. Orange on an island of the Ouveine. It has some trade in silk, the silk worms being extensively reared here, and in ordinary red wines. Pop. 1140.

JONSWELL or JOHNSWELL, a vil and par Switzerland, can. nt, and about 20 m. from R. Gall with a R. Catholic church, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1024.

JONZAC, a town France dep. Charente-Inférieure, on the Sologne, 66 m. S. E. Rochelle, with manufactures of serge, druggists, camel, and other coarse woollen stuffs, which has a market at the fairs of Beaune and Dardennes. Its chief trade is in brandy, of superior quality, corn, cattle, sheep, and poultry. An old castle, seated on a mound at the E. extremity of the town, has an imposing appearance. Pop. 1985.

JOORUL, a tn. of N Hindoostan between the Jamma and the Sullaj; lat. $31^{\circ} 10' N$, lon. $77^{\circ} 50' E$; cap. principally of same name.—The FRANCISVILLE, one of the hill states, area, 160 sq. m., is bounded E. by the river Paber, W. by the rivers Poodur and Balesa, N.E. by Basseher, and S.E. by Hirmore. Pop. 15,000.

JOORUL-KANNA, a bay, E. Africa, Denakil country, at the head of the Bay of Tuloch, with which it is connected by two narrow channels. lat. $11^{\circ} 29' N$, lon. $43^{\circ} 54' E$. It has N.W. by W. and S.E. by E., and is 15 m. long by nearly 6 m. broad, its N. and S. sides are formed by precipitous limestone cliffs, 400 or 500 ft. to 2000 ft. above high water with very deep ravines. In the S.E. portion the depth is 115 fathoms, and in the W. extremity there is a small basin with 15 fathoms, surrounded by precipitous volcanic cliffs, but the entrance of which is closed at low water. Large masses of lava are found in this part of the bay.—(Lieut. Barker in Jour. Roy. Geog. Soc. 1848.)

JOOD, JON, or JAKD, a vil. Hungary. Thither Thais, or Marzaro, on a small stream of same name, 25 m. from Seghed, with a Greek church, and a synagogue and a trade in corn and cattle. The lake of Joser, in the neighbourhood, abounds with pike. Pop. 1870.

JOODPOOR, JOODPORE, or MAWAR a tn. in the N.W. of Hindoostan cap. principally of same name, which forms the largest of the Nagpore states, 285 m. P. N. F. Hyderabad (on the Indus), lat. $26^{\circ} 18' N$, lon. $73^{\circ} 12' E$. It stands on an affluent of the Loony, in a hollow enclosed by rocky and barren, on which are three forts, and is a large place, surrounded by walls. One of the forts contains the palace of the rajah which is a very extensive edifice of solid though simple architecture, and, from its commanding position, forms a very conspicuous object at a great distance. Pop. about 50,000.—The FRANCISVILLE, which is about 260 m. long E. to W., and nearly the same in breadth—area 85,675 sq. m.—is well watered by the Loony and its affluents, and though arid in many parts, yields in others good crops of wheat, barley, millet, &c. Irrigation is well understood, and generally practised. Besides grain, considerable quantities of inferior opium and some tobacco are raised. The most important mineral product is salt. This general, and especially the transit trade, is very important, and has its central locality at Palies, which stands about 40 m. S.E. of the capital, and is the entrepot between the W. coast and Upper India. The principal article is opium of which 2000 camel-loads are frequently exported. Next in importance to it are wheat and salt. The cereals of the country also are cultivated and are in great demand in the surrounding territories. The whole transport of goods throughout Joodpoor is performed by them. The towns next in importance to the capital are Palies, Nagora, and Meerta. Owing to the absence of hills, there are few strongholds. The most celebrated are Jalore and Seewane. Pop. 1,785,600.

JOOGDEA a tn. Hindoostan prov. Deogal, 76 m. S.E. Decca, lat. $22^{\circ} 50' N$, lon. $91^{\circ} 12' E$. Salt is manufactured in the neighbourhood by Government, but it is not held in equal estimate by the Hindoos with that extracted from the smaller branches of the Saltpetre in the Sunderbuds.

JOONAGHUR, or JUNAGHUR, a city of W. Hindoostan prov. Gujerat, at the entrance of a beautiful valley; lat. $21^{\circ} 41' N$, lon. $70^{\circ} 21' E$, 235 m. N.W. by N. Bombay. Its low walls are nearly hidden by the surrounding jungle the only conspicuous object being an old citadel, called, from its elevated situation the Uparkot, a fine place of fortification, situated within, and on the E. side of the modern city. The straggling walls occupy an extensive area, not more than half of which is inhabited. The streets are narrow and dirty and the houses badly built. In the centre of one of the bastions is the Rajah's palace, an imposing building, as are all the other modern edifices, excepting a few mosques and tombs. The Uparkot, already mentioned, though now in ruins, is a noble specimen of eastern fortification, its walls being unusually high, with immense bastions. The highest part of the interior is occupied by a handsome mosque, much damaged by the earthquake of 1819 but still a very magnificent building.

JOONERK, a tn. and fort, Hindoostan, presid. Bengal, prov. Arracanabad, cap. dist. of same name, 45 m. N. Poonah. lat. $19^{\circ} 12' N$, lon. $74^{\circ} 10' E$.—The town has seven gates, of masonry, one within the other, and contains the ruins of many Mahometan tombs, as well as Hindoo excavations.

JOORLA, a tn. of W. Hindoostan, prov. Gujerat, on the Gulf of Cutch, 78 m. N. Joonsaghar, lat. $22^{\circ} 37' N$, lon. $70^{\circ} 28' E$. A considerable trade is carried on here with Mandrie, and other parts in the Gulf of Cutch, and with Bombay.

JOEPA a tn. Palestine. See JAVVA.

JORABATAR, or JONABATTA, a vil. Spain, Andalucia, prov. and 85 m. S.E. Granada, on the side of a hill covered by the ruins of a Moorish castle. It has a parish church, and a primary school, distilleries, oil, and flour mills, and a trade in wine, brandy and figs. Pop. 1873.

JORAK, or TORONAK (anc. Dampas) a considerable river, Asiatic Turkey. It rises in a mountainous district in the past. Karsroom, near the sources of the Euphrates about lat. $40^{\circ} 10' N$, lon. $40^{\circ} 30' E$, whence it flows N.E. to about lat. $41^{\circ} 5' N$, where it turns somewhat suddenly N.W. and falls into the Black Sea, near Cape Patusi; lat. $41^{\circ} 40' N$, lon. $41^{\circ} 40' E$. Entire length about 180 m. Half some down the Jorak from Atrm to the sea, in three days and sometimes, though rarely track up against the stream in eight or ten days. It is believed, however, not to be navigable for boats, on account of rapids and rocks.

JORAT, a small mountain-range, Switzerland which, commencing in the Pays-de-Vaud, breaks off from the calcareous Alps of Moleson and Jaman, and, stretching W. and N.W. links on with the Jura, near the town of Lausanne. The culminating point of the Jorat is Mount Peleret, 4087 m. The highest point at which it is raised is at the Chalet-Guesit, on the road from Lausanne to Bern, 8037 ft.

JORDAN (Arabic, Siwar or Kabar) a river Turkey in Asia, pass Damascus, forming the E. boundary of Palestine, and from the frequency with which it is mentioned in Sacred Scriptures, as the scene of numerous remarkable events in the history of the Jews, one of the most celebrated rivers in the world. It rises from several sources, all in Anti Lebanon, uniting in Lake Haur Huleh or the waters of Meron, which lies lat. $33^{\circ} 6' N$, lon. $35^{\circ} 56' E$. From this point it flows at first with a rapid current in a narrow bed about 80 ft. broad, and 4 ft. deep but subsequently it becomes more sluggish and after a S. course of about 10 m. it expands into Lake Thiberea—(which see). Shortly after leaving the S. end of this lake, it receives the Yarmak on the left, and enters El Ghazir, or the great depression through which the Jordan flows; and continuing a S. but singularly crooked course of about 70 m., direct distance, or 200, including windings, falls into the N. end of the Dead Sea, having received the Zerka, also on the left, and numerous smaller affluents. The upper part of the valley of the Jordan is hilly and barren but it soon becomes more level and fertile and, as it approaches the Zerka, it becomes well cultivated and beautiful. Excepting in the upper part, it is very populous. The river is muddy and full of small fish. In the dry season it is shallow, numerous places occurring where it may be crossed on the stones without the feet being wet; but in some places it is much deeper with banks 20 ft. high. It is subject to great inundations during the winter season, when the river attains a breadth occasionally of half an hour across. It is crossed by numerous weirs, which divert the water for the purpose of irrigation and its course is interspersed with many islands, and ennobled by 27 threatening besides many lesser, rapids. It is a dark-coloured, rapid stream (varying from 2 to 8 m. an hour) and empties daily into the Dead Sea about 8,000,000 tons of water. The valley of the Jordan forms one of the most remarkable depressions in the world, being wholly below the level of the sea. The lake of Thiberea, at its N. end, is 238 ft. and the Dead Sea, at its other end, is 1812 ft. below sea-level.—(Chenevix Trenchard, Lieut. Molyneux, in Jour. Roy. Geog. Soc., Lynch's Dead Sea, &c.)

JORDANOW a market in Galicia, cradle of, and 21 m. S.E. Wadowice. It has a church and is the central locality of the linen trade of Galicia. About 8000 persons are sent annually into Hungary, and ordinary linen-prices are sent hither from Kismark.

JORDANSTON, par. Wales, Pembrokeshire 1876 ac. P. 144.

JORGE (Sr.) one of the Azores. See GRONCH (Sr.)

JORGE (Sr.)—1, a river, New Granada, flowing N.E. for about 160 m., and falling into the Cauca, 25 m. S.W.

Mompos.—3 (Of Olinda) a tn. Central America, state Honduras, 80 m. S. W. Tuxtla.

JOSGE (San), several places, Spain, particularly—1, A tn. Valencia, prov. and 40 m. from Castellon-de-la-Plana, on a hill above r. bank Cerdal, with a church, townhouse, prison and school, and a trade in wine and tere. Pop. 857.—3 (San Jorge-de-Florida) a tn. Extremadura, prov. and 17 m. from Merida, with a church, and a trade in corn and oil. Pop. 678.

JOSGE-de-Florida (Rio) a tn. Brazil, prov. of, and 140 m. S. W. Bahia, on the S. bank of the bay and river Ilheus. It has three churches, a harbor, defended by several forts and capable of admitting large merchant vessels and a considerable trade with Bahia in manilla flour, timber, rum, coffee, and cacao. Pop. dist. 3000.

JOSIMATH a tn. Upper Amazon both sides the Ducha, an affluent of the Brahmaputra; lat. 26° 48' N., lon. 94° 6' E. once the capital of a province.

JOSQUEIRA, a tn. Spain, New Castle, prov. and 18 m. N. E. Alcala, l. bank Júcar. It is walled, has a parish church, courthouses, prison two primary schools, and an old Franciscan monastery, in a ruinous state manufactures of linen and hemp goods particularly shoes and a trade in these articles and in corn, silk, wool, and cattle. Pop. 1778.

JORILLO Xontulco or Jontulco, a volcano Mexico, dep. Mexico, 160 m. S. W. Mexico lat. 19° 6' N. lon. 101° 30' W., 80 m. distant from the Pacific. It is situated on the plain of Malpas, which forms part of an elevated plateau, between 3000 ft. and 3000 ft. above sea-level and is bounded by hills, composed of basalt, trachyte, and volcanic tuff. Though these rocks must have been produced by igneous action, the district had continued undisturbed from the discovery of the New World, and the plain of Malpas was covered by fertile fields of sugar-cane and pulglo, and watered by the two streams of Cuatitlan and San Pedro. This state of tranquillity was suddenly disturbed in June, 1769, by fearful hollow sounds, succeeded by earthquakes. These had continued for two months, when, on the night of September 28th to 29th, flames burst forth from the ground, and fragments of burning rocks were thrown up to prodigious heights. On the line of a chasma which had been made, six volcanic cones, consisting of scoria and lava, were formed. The least of them was 300 ft. high, and the loftiest, to which the name of Jorillo has been given, was 1600 ft. above the level of the plain. It continued to send forth great streams of basaltic lava, containing fragments of granite, till February 1769, when its eruptions ceased. The ground to the distance of nearly two leagues round the volcano, was thrown up like a bladder forming a steep precipitous round its margin of 30 ft. to 35 ft. in height. From the precipice the ground rises with a gentle slope, till it attains the height of 2890 ft. Above this slope, the N. W. edge of the crater rises other 1250 ft., making the whole height 4140 ft. above the sea-level. When Humboldt visited this volcano in 1803 forty-five years after the eruption, a mass of lava, 500 ft. thick, was found still smoking and the uppermost slope was covered with a vast number of small cones, called horn too, which had a high temperature, and threw out watery vapor. The two streams which watered the plain had lost themselves below its E. end, and re-appeared as hot springs at its W. extremity. In 1827, Burckhardt found that the borates had ceased to send forth steam, and that the greater part of them had altogether disappeared. Vegetation also had made great progress on the sides of the new hills, and the surrounding country, which had been deemed as uninhabitable, was again sown with luxuriant crops of sugar-cane and indigo.

JOSGE (San), a tn. and post military station, Bolivia, prov. Chuquis, lat. 17° 40' S., lon. 64° 40' W. about 3 m. N. W. a chain of hills called the Sierra de San José. It is regularly built contains a college, a handsome and spacious structure a church, with a fine facade manufactures of swinging Indian hats and cotton tinajas and a trade in tamarinde, wax, and salt—the last of which is obtained from two extensive salt-water lakes about 120 m. S. E. W. It is the principal whence the W. Jesuit missionary stations are supplied, and was at one time capital of the province, and the head seat of the Jesuits. Pop. formerly 5000, now, by small pov. reduced to less than 3000.

JOSGE (San)—1 (Of Villavieja de San José) a city, Central America, cap. of Costa Rica lat. 9° 22' N.; lon.

84° 5' W. It lies in a deep valley, is pretty well watered with canals, and has three churches, and some fountains. Pop. 10,000.—3, A small tn. Upper California, 45 m. S. W. San Francisco and capital of the state. It lies in a fertile district, and a little way up from the mouth of a stream that falls into the most S. reach of the bay of San Francisco.—5, (San-Jorge), a mining vil. Mexico, dep. and 100 m. S. Chihuahua, E. side of the Sierra Madre. Pop. 5000.—4, A small vil. of California lat. 24° 30' N. about 36 m. long by 7 broad.—5, One of the Pearl Is., Bay of Panama.—6, A vil. Uruguay, 37 m. N. W. Montevideo on river of same name.

JOSGE (Rio) several places, Brazil.—1 A tn., prov. Minas-Geraes, near r. bank Montes, 200 m. S. W. Ouro-Preto. The houses, though of earth have a handsome appearance. Its principal buildings are—the church of Santo Antonio, richly equipped and decorated in its interior, the churches of Nossa Senhora do Rosario and Rio-José-Evangelista, the prison, and a bridge over the small river Carandé. The trade carried on with Rio-Janeiro is chiefly in cattle, swine, and cheese. The district is well cultivated well watered and has rich pastures. In the mountainous part of it many of the inhabitants are affected with gout. Pop. dist. 12,000.

—2 A tn., prov. and 60 m. N. E. Rio-Paulo near r. bank Parahiba lat. 23° 12' S. lon. 45° W. It was originally founded by the Jesuits, who established a college here, in which, in the beginning of the last century they trained and educated a great number of Indians. The church which they built is now the parish church. There is some export trade in cattle and swine. Pop. dist. 4000.—3 A tn. prov. Santa Catharina, on a creek in the bay of Catharina, 4 m. W. Desterro with a church, townhouse and primary school, and a trade in sugar rum, and fish. Some of the inhabitants engage in the whale fishery. Traces of coal have been discovered in the district. Pop. 5000.—4 A bay E. side of Isl. Maranhão, by the mouth of the Mearim and Itapicuru. It is about 20 m. long, from N. to S. by about 5 m. broad.

JOSPHI (St.)—1 A tn. W. India, at Trinidad in a well cultivated plain, on a river of same name, 5 m. E. Port of Spain. It consists of mud houses covered with palm leaves and, although formerly the chief place in the island has now no commerce. Pop. about 8000.—2 A peninsula E. coast of Patagonia, between lat. 42 and 44 ° S. and intersected by the meridian of 64 ° W. It is 69 m. long N. to S., 24 m. broad E. to W. and is united to the continent by an isthmus about 5 m. wide. On its W. side is a capacious bay of same name, and on the S. W. it has the Gulf of Nuevo.—3 A lake British N. America, lat. 50° 45' N., lon. 91 ° W. It is about 45 m. long by 10 m. broad receives the Cat Lake River and discharges its superfluous waters, by the Albany into James Bay.—4, A tn. Isl. Upper Canada, in the channel between Lakes Huron and Superior having S. E. Drummond Island, and N. W. Sugar Island. Greatest length, 20 m. greatest breadth, 15 m.—5, A small Isl. Indian Ocean, one of the Seychelles lat. 0° 27' N. on 55° 40' E.—6, A bay U. States, formed by the Gulf of Mexico, on the W. coast of Florida, immediately N. W. Cape St. Blas—7 A river, U. States, Michigan, flowing chiefly W. for 140 m. into Lake Michigan. It is navigable to Lookport, a distance of 180 m.

JOSEPHOVA a vil. Hungary, Thither Thelce, ex-Torontal, on the Thauze, near Kas-Kanissa, with two churches, a factory, and an active trade in cattle. Pop. 1422.

JOSLPHSDORF formerly SCHNALL a vil. Austria, Sclavonia, 11 m. S. E. Feterwardein on the maras Alyanaka River. It has several annual fairs. Pop. 8545.

JOSEPHSTADT, a tn. in Robins, circle of and 9 m. N. E. Kinsley, on the Elbe, at the confluence of the Appa and Metta. It occupies a gentle height, and is a place of considerable strength, being not only surrounded by walls and ditches, but defended by outworks, which are placed on both sides of the river. It consists of two principal, and several minor streets, all of which are well paved with squared stones and the houses are both substantially and regularly built. Pop. exclud. of garrison, 1800.

JOSEPHSTADT, a vil. Austria, Croatia, 34 m. S. W. Carlsburg with a R. Catholic church. Pop. 1162.

JOSIMATH, a tn. of N. Hindostan lat. 26° 40' N. lon. 76° 40' E. The houses are neatly built of gray stone, and roofed with shingles.

JOSLOWITZ, or JOSLOWITZ, a vil. Austria, Moravia, circled, and about 16 m. from Koudon, on the Upper Thaya. It has a church, a castle, a flour-mill, and a trade in Passenau and other places. Pop. 1688.

JOSSE, Tux-Nous (St.) a tn. and town Belgium, prov. Drenth, about 1 m. E. Brumma, of which it is properly a suburb. It contains many fine modern mansions, and is part of the historical garden of Brumma in which it. Pop. 8879.

JOSSELEIN, a tn. France, dep. Morbihan, agreeably situated on the Oust, 24 m. N. E. Vannes, with one of the most beautiful castles in Brittany, once a fortress of considerable importance. The original building was taken and razed by Henry II. of England, in 1169. The present edifice was built in the 14th century, and belongs now to the Duc de Rohan. Josselein has a somewhat important grain market. Pop. 2665.

JOUARRE [Latin, Jotum] a tn. France, dep. Seine-et-Marne, 12 m. E. Meaux, finely situated on a height near the Little Marais. It has a church with a very ancient and remarkable crypt, the remains of the old abbey of Jouarre, now partly converted into a private mansion, and a trade in corn, cattle, and milchcows. Pop. 1345.

JOUDOMA, a river, Siberia, which rises in the mountains of Obkhat, in lat. 69° 20' N. and lon. 140° E. flows easterly 8.5 W. and joins r. bank Mau, after an impetuous course of about 170 m.

JOUDPOOR, Hindustani. See Jodhpur.

JOUG, or Jua, a river, Russia, which rises in the S. of gov. Volodga, passes a very curious, but generally N. E. course, to its junction with r. bank Shushana, a little below the town of Galing-walk. Its principal affluents are, the Pushana and Lusa, the Shwarkanga and Kichkanga. Total course, about 220 m.

JOUNA or KYUN PAK, a large river Russian America supposed to rise about lat. 65° 15' N. lon. 136° W. It flows S. W. as far as lat. 61° 40' N. whence, taking a N. W. course, it enters Behring's Sea by two channels, after receiving numerous affluents. It is perfectly navigable to Noulata, about 800 m. from its mouth. On the S. side, the bank is often low, and the country is covered with small detached hills; the r. bank is bordered by a chain of hills in some places 3000 ft. high and partly formed of chert. On both banks are several villages, whose inhabitants are chiefly employed in trapping animals for their fur in fishing, and in trading. Large troops of foxes and lynxes frequent the banks, and black bears are often met with.—Howe Ann. Voy. 1850.

JOUNK-KA, a river, Russian America, on an affluent of the Jouna, which it joins in lat. 64° 50' N. Its banks are fringed with pine, poplar, aspen, larches and a species of willow, often of a large size. It is throughout at least 1 m. broad and is well stocked with fish.—Howe Ann. Voy. 1850.

JOURBOURG, or GLORIOBOURG, a tn. Buenos gov. of and 110 m. W. N. W. Wina, r. bank Marum, where it has a harbor. It is an important customhouse station, and has a considerable trade, both import and export.

JOURE, a market tn. Holland, prov. Friesland 6 m. N. W. Heerenveen, consisting chiefly of one long straight street of well-built houses. It has four churches, a courthouse, weigh-house, post-house, a Latin, and a town school, a boat-building yard, saw-mill, tannery, manufacture of tobacco, cheese and clock work several ancient windmills, two potteries, &c., and a considerable trade in grain, butter, cheese, pigs, horses, and watch and clock work. Pop. 2454.

JOUX, a lake Switzerland, can. de Vand, at the N. end of the valley of same name, on the Jura mountains, near the French frontier, about 2500 ft. above sea-level 18 m. N. W. Lesanmo. It is formed by an expansion of the Orbe, has 6 W. to N. E., about 6 m. long by 1 broad, and is surrounded by most beautiful scenery. Mont Tendre, on its S. E. side, rises to a height of 6790 ft.—The CHATEAU DE JOUX is a fortress, France, dep. Doubs, 4 m. E. by S. Tonterre, and 16 m. N. by E. Les Joux, in the Jura mountains. It is picturesquely situated on an isolated rock, above 600 ft. high, overlooking the Doubs river, defends a pass, and has been successively the prison of Minibon, Tournel L'Orverture, Calvinet governor of Rome, and General Dupont.

JOWAL, a tn. and maritime dist. Hindustani presid. Bengal, prov. Arrangabad. The summit is bounded W. by the sea, and E. by the W. Ghats, from which latter numerous streams flow to the ocean.—The town is 44 m. S. E. Dacca, lat. 19° 55' N. lon. 78° 25' E.

JOWRAH, str. Hindustani presid. Bengal, prov. Malwa, 50 m. N. W. Ouyas, lat. 23° 58' N., lon. 75° 11' E., and 1437 ft. above the sea. Pop. 1651.

JOYEUSE [Latin, Gaudiosa] a tn. France, dep. Ardèche, 25 m. S. W. Privas, r. bank Baume at the foot of the Cevennes. It has silk mills, and carries on a considerable trade in silk. Pop. 2107.

JUAN numerous places, Spain particularly:—1 A tn., la Mojaca, on the side of a hill, with a church, courthouse, prison, and primary school. Pop. 1575.—2, (Juan-de-Albano), a vil. Valencia, prov. of, and 4 m. N. E. Alcaniz, in a plain near the Castilla or Montserrat. It consists of houses generally of one story, contains a parish church, courthouse, and primary school and has manufactures of capote and a trade in wine, barley, flax hemp and other agricultural produce. Pop. 8775.—3, (Juan-del-Puerto, San), a tn. Andalusia, prov. of, and about 5 m. N. E. Huelva, on a large and fertile plain, near the Tinto. It consists of tolerably well built houses, part of them forming regular squares, and the rest arranged in irregular and ill paved streets. It is well supplied with water, contains a parish church, and a primary school and has a considerable transit trade in corn and wine. Pop. 1851.—4, (Juan Reyón), an alio, Cantabria, Isl. Laneroia. It is one of four alios which form the port of Aracife, once of great importance, but now almost deserted.—5, (Juan-de-la-Hoya), a tn. Old Castile, prov. of and 16 m. from Avila, on the side of a lofty hill which links with the sierras of Avila. It is poorly built, contains a parish church, courthouse, prison, and primary school, and has several flour-mills, and a trade in cattle and wool. Pop. 692.

JUAN (San) a prov. La Plata, with cap. of same name mostly between lat. 30° and 35° S. lon. 67° and 70° W. It occupies the space between the great Cordillera of the Andes and the mountains of Cordoba, as far N. as the Llanos, or plains of Rioja, while S. it is bounded by prov. Mendoza. In the W. it is mountainous, and in the S. E. at the large lake of Guanaesche. The climate is dry and remarkably healthy and the soil, by artificial irrigation, exhibits extraordinary fertility yielding in some instances, above two hundred fold. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture, and in the cultivation of vineyards and gardens. Corn, wheat, and brandies of excellent quality are produced, and exported in considerable quantities to the other provinces. In the N. part of the province are several gold mines, which are wrought to a very limited extent. Pop. 20,000.—The CAPITAL is situated on the river of same name, 120 m. N. of Mendoza, lat. 31° 4' S. lon. 68° 57' 50" W., and has a considerable trade in wheat, flax, and brandy.—The river rises in the Andes about lat. 33° 30' S., near the Puesto Pasa, flows thence N. E. under the name of Rio-de-la-Pasada, to lat. 30° 50' S. where it turns abruptly S. E. and, after passing the town of San Juan, it takes a S. course to its mouth, on the lake of Guanaesche after a course of about 200 m.

JUAN DE LOS RINCONES, a port, Cuba. See Rincones. JUAN DE NOVA.—1 A group of isle, Indian Ocean, off N. end Madagascar extending from lat. 10° 35' S. to 10° 26' S. centre in lon. 61° 3' E. They consist of two islands of non considerable extent, and 10 small ones, and mostly coral, on which grow trees of small size. Turtle, and fish of various kinds are plentiful and some fresh water is to be obtained by digging.—2, (or St. Christopher), Mozambique Channel, lat. 17° 5' S. lon. 42° 47' E. about 1½ m. or 2 m. in length. It has a small elevation, not exceeding perhaps 40 ft. in the centre, covered with shrubs.

JUAN DE NICARAGUA (San)—1, A seaport, Central America. See GREY TOWNS.—2, A river, Central America, issuing from the S. E. part of Lake Nicaragua, in the state of same name, and, after a S. E. course of about 120 m. falling into the Caribbean Sea by several mouths, the principal of which is in lat. 10° 55' N. lon. 88° 45' W. It is obstructed by some cataracts, but in the rainy season it is navigable throughout. Steamboats now ply on this river, and convey passengers across the lake of Nicaragua, on their way over the isthmus.

JUAN-DEL-RIO (San), two tns. Mexico.—1, Dep. Durango, between the rivers Nuevo and Guanaual, with rich mines, extensive trade in a kind of brandy called vinomestel

Pop. 11,000.—2, Dep. of, and 50 m. S E Quereara, in a lofty situation, surrounded by beautiful gardens, and having important fairs. Pop. 10,000

JUAN FERNANDEZ, or Mas a Tierra, an Isl. E. Puenia, about 400 m. off W coast Chili, to which it belongs; lat. (S. point) 33° 45' S. lon. 79° 2' W (A.) 19 m. long by 6 m. at its greatest breadth and on its N. E. side is the excellent harbour of Cumberland Bay. It is formed of a series of elevated mountains, of rugged and arid aspect, those in the centre more level and continuous, but either extremity of the land terminating in a point and gradually declining hills. Its loftiest summit is 1 m. (the arvil), rising 8000 ft. above a shore which is formed by an abrupt wall of dark-coloured bare rock 800 or 900 ft. high. Basalts, granites, and trap rocks, are the principal geological formations. The Yungue is wooded nearly from summit to base, whence an extensive and fertile valley watered by two streams extends to the shore. The higher parts of the island are generally thickly wooded, but in some places are grassy plains of considerable extent, abundantly supplied with a species of oat which grows very luxuriantly and towards the W. covers the ground for many miles. The neighbourhood of Cumberland Bay is covered with trees, berries, plants, wild radishes, mint, and halm, besides peach, apple, cherry, and fig-trees, which are found everywhere wild. Wild guats are plentiful in the more inaccessible parts, whilst they have been driven by swarms of wild dogs, that occupy the lower grounds. Huts are numerous. Excellent fish may be caught in Cumberland Bay and large crabs abound the latter are taken in numbers by the residents, who dry and cure the tails for exportation to Chile, where they are highly prized. The island is now (1850) leased by the Chilean Government to a party of settlers employed in taking seals and fish, and drying the latter for the Chilean market. Juan Fernandez was a favourite resort of the Spaniards in their expeditions against the Spanish American possessions. In 1741 Lord Anson here refitted his vessels, and in 1749 the Spaniards formed a settlement in the island which was subsequently abandoned. De Foë is supposed to have founded his Life and Adventures of Robinson Crusoe, on the history of the solitary resident here, for four years, of a Scotchman named Alexander Selkirk. 1 op. about 40

JUANES, a river Spain, which rises about 2 m. N. N. Yator, in Valencia flows first E. till it reaches the Magro on the right then S. E., forming the marsh of Rambla Algeza; and joins L. bank Jucar after a course of about 45 m.

JUANPURA, a dist. Hindoostan, presid. Bengal between lat. 23° and 26° N. and surrounded by Orissa, and the districts of Amgahar, Alidulah, Benares, and Ghazipur. The soil is highly productive and well cultivated, and yields great quantities of sugar—2 A. in. esp. above dist. 40 m. H. W. Benares, on the Goomty which is here crowded by a fine old substantial bridge. It has a lofty fort of solid stone-work, and many respectable buildings. Near it are the ruins of numerous mosques and monuments. It was formerly the capital of an independent sovereignty.

JUBA, or GOVIND [called also Pando Pao das Fugas or Bayas River], a river and m. E. Africa. The former after a S. E. course, perfectly known falls into the Indian Ocean, in lat. 0° 14' S. lon. 42° 32' E. It is said to rise in Abyssinia. Across the bar at its entrance, is a narrow channel, with plenty of water. Boats may be navigated up from its mouth for three months. The river which is situated on the summit of a lofty hill 1 m. from the entrance of the river is a place of considerable size, surrounded by a wall and has buildings in the Arab style. The natives are fierce and treacherous.

JUBBILPUR, a ts. Hindoostan, presid. Bengal, S. W. territory 155 m. N. by E. Nagpore. It is densely built, and has an appearance of industry and prosperity. A considerable cotton manufactory and a brisk trade is carried on in cotton silk sugar and other articles. At the Great Exhibition, in 1851 was shown a beautiful sarong, manufactured by reformed Thugs at the Government school of industry Jubbalpur.

JUBEKA, a ts. Spain, Old Castle, prov. of and 20 m. S. E. W. Logroño, in a plain, a bank Juba. It has a church, townhouse, and primary school several flour-mills, and a trade in wool and charcoal. Pop. 1201 JUBBIQUE LA KUYA, a ts. Spain, Andalucia, prov. of, and 56 m. from Malaga. It consists of a number of steep, irregular, ill paved, and dirty streets, contains a very ancient mosque, formerly a Moorish mosque, a courthouse, and school, and has manufactures of coarse woollens, numerous distilleries, and flour-mills. Near it traces of copper silver, gold, and other metals are found, the attempts to work which have not succeeded, but a good deal of lapa (lead) has been obtained and exported to England. Pop. 2030.

JUBY (Cape), Africa, N. W. coast, opposite the Canary Islands, lat. 37° 58' N. lon. 13° 50' W (A.) It is low and sandy having near its termination a hummock covered with bushes, which, from all directions, looks like an inlet.

JUCAR, an un navigable river, Spain having its source in the confines of New Castle and Aragon whence it flows N. and S. E. across prov. Cuenca and Valencia, and joins the Mediterranean 4 m. S. Cape Cullera, total course, about 221 m.

JUDEA, see PALESTINE.

JUDENBURG [Latin, Judeum] a ts. Austria, Tyrol, cap. circle of same name v. bank Mur, here crossed by a bridge, 40 m. W. N. W. Gellu. It stands at the foot of a hill about 2268 ft. above the sea is surrounded by old walls, and has an old dual castle, two churches a convent, gymnasium, high school and hospital. In 1807 the greater part of it was burned down. In the Middle Ages it carried on an important trade with Italy and the Levant, but at present it has scarcely any trade, and its only manufacture of any consequence is gunpowder. It has also an saw and a number of flour mills. In the neighbourhood is the modern palace of 1 renaissance. An armistice with Napoleon was signed here, in 1797. Pop. 2658.—The coast is the largest in Tyrol. It is mountainous, but has many valleys of great fertility. Cattle-rearing is the most important occupation. The minerals are lead, copper iron cobalt, coal and salt. The last, particularly has an immense bed, and is largely exported. The lakes are very numerous and well stocked with fish. The principal crops are wheat and flax. Area, 1681 sq. m. 1 op. 101,200

JUGDULAK, a vil Afghanistan on the declivity between Jelakabad and Cabool 3615 ft. above sea level. It was the principal scene of the measures of the British troops in their attempted retreat from Cabool in 1842 and here also, in August of the same year, a numerous Afghan army was totally defeated by the British, under General Pollock.

JUGGERNAUTH [Jagernath 'lord of the world, one of the names of Vishnu] called by the natives Pooro, a ts. and celebrated temple, Hindoostan, presid. Bengal prov. Orissa, on the Bay of Bengal 43 m. S. Cuttack lat. 19° 50' N. lon. 86° 06' E. The town derives all its importance from the temple. The most celebrated shrine in Hindoostan, was completed in the 12th century, at an enormous expense and 12 great festivals are held at it annually. The main street at the extremity of which the temple stands, consists entirely of religious structures built of stone, with plantations of trees interspersed, and has an imposing, and picturesque appearance but filthy in the extreme and swarming with religious mendicants. The gardens and groves by which the town place is surrounded, produce the finest fruit in the province. From the salubrity of its climate, Juggernauth has been called by Europeans the Montpellier of the East. It is visited annually by upwards of 1,000,000 pilgrims. Pop. 20,000

JULI or JULI, a vil Bende 15 m. N. W. Lake Manchar, surrounded by a dilapidated wall built 15 ft. high. It consists of mud huts, with a flourishing bazaar, and a mosque. 1 op. about 1000

JULYU, a ts. La Plata, dep. of, and 40 m. E. N. E. Bahia, on the Julyu. It is handsome and well built, and was formerly a place of considerable trade. Near it are several rich mines. Pop. about 4000.—The river, called likewise Rio Grande de Julyu and in the lower part of its course also Lavayen rises on the foot of the Andes, flows S. to Julyu thence E. to the junction of the Lavayen whence it flows S. E. to the Verardo, which it joins in lat. 23° 5' S. lon. 63° 40' W. Total course about 500 m. It receives numerous affluents.

JULALPOOR—1 a ts. Punjab, in a fertile valley, r. bank Jullian, 90 m. N. W. Lahore supposed by Europeans to be the scene of the battle between Alexander the Great and Porus; but Barnes places the spot higher up the river.—2, A vil. Punjab, l. bank Chasab, 60 m. S. W. Vaseahad.

JULI, a tn. Peru, dep. of, and 58 m. S.E. Puno, on the S.W. shore of Lake Titicaca, between two hills of red porphyry, 18,100 ft. above sea-level. It is well built, and contains four neat churches of stone. Sheep and llama wool and ponchos formed of those materials, are the principal articles of trade. In the vicinity are mines of copper and lead, which are not wrought, and rich veins of silver, which were formerly worked on a grand scale, but are now nearly abandoned. Pop. 600 of cas. 6000.

JULIANSTOWN, par. Ire. Meath; 1819 an. P. 645. JULICH [French, Julliers, anc. Juliacum], a tn. Rhinish Prussia, gov. of and 17 m. N.E. Aix-la-Chapelle, emp. circle of same name, at the confluence of the Eifelbach and Nür, in a fertile plain surrounded by swamps and stagnant ditches, which make it very unhealthy. It is strongly fortified, contains two churches, one of them collegiate and a superior town school, has a court of law and several public offices, manufactures of common and white leather, soap and vinegar, a cotton mill, and a trade in the above articles of manufacture and in corn, cattle, and colonial produce. Coal is worked in the neighbourhood. Julich is of Roman origin and has been supposed, though fancifully to take its name from Julius Cæsar. It was long the capital of an independent duchy. Pop. 4201.—The climate is flat, well adapted for agriculture, and so fertile in corn that part of it has received the name of the Kornkammer or Granary. Area 93 geo. sq. m. Pop. 58,418.

JULIEN (Max) two places, France.—1. A tn. dep. Haute-Savoie prov. Geneva on an extensive plain watered by the torrents Aire, Aranda, and Darse, frontiers of the sea and 6 m. S.W. the tn. of Geneva. It has an ancient castle and gypsum quarries. Pop. 1118.—2. A vil. and com. Savoie, prov. Maurienne, on the Comba, near its confluence with the Aire, 3 m. S.E. St. Jean de Maurienne. It has an Augustus abbey and a trade in corn, wine and fruit. The surrounding district is rich in minerals. Pop. 834.

JULIEN or JULIEN (St.), a tn. France, dep. Yonne, 21 m. N.W. Auxerre, prov. Yonne, with manufactures of coarse cloth, worsted and leather. Pop. 1750.

JULIEN or JAMET (St.) a tn. France, dep. Loire, about 6 m. N.E. Mienne, on the Gier with an iron foundry, and a manufactory of fire-arms. Pop. 1862.

JULIERS, a tn. Prussia. See JOLICH.

JULIOT (St.) par. Eng. Cornwall; 1689 an. P. 256. JULIUSBURG, a tn. Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. of, and 18 m. N.E. Breslau. It contains a Protestant church town school, castle, and hospital and has dye-works, a weekly market and four annual fairs. Pop. 977.

JULLA, a tn. Beloochistan prov. Cutch Gundava, 15 m. S. Gundava, on the road from thence to Larkhana, lat. 28° 10' N. lon 67° 38' E.

JULIUNDI, R. or JULIUNDI, a large tn. Punjab, 82 m. E. by S. Lahore lat. 31° 19' N. lon 75° 26' E., finely situated in the Jalandhar Doab, a fertile tract between the Beas and the Sutlej and surrounded by great numbers of handsome man. colonies. It was formerly the residence of the Lothi Afghan dynasty. Pop. about 40,000.—The JULANDHAR Doab, was ceded to the British in 1848 at the close of the Sikh war.

JUMBOOKER a tn. Hindoostan, prov. Gujerat, 85 m. S.W. Baroda, near a lake, the banks of which are covered with Hindoo temples. A considerable trade is carried on from this place to Bombay, the exports consisting of cotton, oil, grain, and piece goods. Pop. 10,400.

JUMET a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Hainaut, on the road from Charleroi to Brussels, 21 m. E. Mons. It has very extensive glass-works, breweries, distilleries, a tannery, &c. The extensive coal-works in the vicinity give employment to a great proportion of the inhabitants. Pop. 6027.

JUMIEGES [Latin, Gemones], a vil. and com. France, dep. Seine-Inférieure, arrond. of, and 11 m. W. Rouen agreeably situated near r. bank Seine. It owes its origin to a monastery which was founded in 661 and the remains of which, though in a very dilapidated state, are still very extensive, and attest its ancient splendour. They consist chiefly of a large church, the roof of which has fallen in, and two lofty towers, of a white colour which are seen from a great distance, and form a conspicuous landmark to vessels coming into the Seine. As a seat with such offices, it is of various dates. The plain but stately W. facade has been compared with the romanesque churches of the Rhine. This part, along with the nave, surmounted by a more massive central tower, one side of which is alone standing, is of early Norman (A.D. 1067) The E. end, which was in the pointed style of the 18th century is no longer in existence, having for a time been used as a quarry by the inhabitants around, whence to obtain stones for their barns, &c. For extent number of inmates, and the share it took in promoting learning during the dark ages, the Abbey of Jumieges was the most important monastic establishment on the banks of the Lower Seine. It still contains some interesting monuments. Adjoining the monastery are the ruins of a royal seat, which was a favourite residence of Charles VII. Pop. 1678.

THE ABBEY OF JUMIEGES, from the West. From Voyages de St. Antoine de France.

JUMILLA, a tn. Spain prov. of and 25 m. N.W. Murcia, at the foot of a hill called the Sierra del Castillo. Its houses are generally well built, and arranged in streets, which though not spacious are paved and clean. It has two parish churches, one of them a handsome structure of the Corinthian and Ionic order, adorned with fine frescoes and paintings, some of them said to be by Raphael, and the other side a handsome structure, with paintings by the first Spanish masters, an old hospital, the chapel of which is now used as a court-house, a Latin and two primary schools; and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, soap, and fire-arms, brick and tile works, salt works, potteries, numerous oil mills; and a trade in the above articles of manufacture, and in hemp, cotton, and cattle. Pop. 8897.

JUMILLAL, LE-GRAND a tn. and com. France, dep. Dordogne, 20 m. E. Nontron near the source of the Isle. It contains an old castle, which shew several stages and figures in the wars of the English in France and has blast furnaces, and other iron works, and seven annual fairs. Pop. 3259.

JUMNA a river Hindoostan, prov. Bengal. It rises in the Himalaya mountains at an elevation of 11,200 ft. above sea-level, at Jemantrol. From this point it flows, first S., and then S.E., passing through provs. Gurhal and Delhi and, after a course of about 700 m., falls into the Ganges at Allahabad. It varies in breadth from 100 to 1000 yds. according to the season of the year. It is generally shallow, and suits for navigation, but its waters supply All India's canal on the W., and the Doab canal on the E. The cities of Delhi and Agra, as also the towns of Kalpee and Etawah, are situated ated on its banks. The lands through which it flows are in general well cultivated.

JUMNOUTHI a celebrated place of pilgrimage, in N Hindostan, prov Gurhwal, 185 m N N E Delhi. lat. 21° 18' N, lon. 78° 40' E, at the source of the Jumna. The name of the place has distinct reference to the spot where ablution is performed. It is also remarkable for its hot springs. The latter have their source in a ledge of rock 10 or 12 ft above the bed of the river and fall down into the stream, covering the rock with a sediment of variable colour, but chiefly yellow and soft and spongy to the touch. Above the ledge the hot water forces its way through a cleft, in a smoking jet of 5 or 6 ft in height, which has melted the snow around in the distance of 20 or 30 yds. These springs are said to be 10,848 ft above sea level. The bathing place of the Hindoos is a small basin where the waters of the river are mingled with those of the hot springs, and remains sensibly warm. After bathing the pilgrim is marked on the forehead with the yellow sediment which is deposited by the water. The ravine through which the Jumna here pours its waters presents some of the most transcendent scenery conceivable. Cliffs of gray granite rise at the sides almost perpendicularly to the height of 12,000 or 14,000 ft, and huge piles rooted in the rocky cliffs, and overhanging the ravine, add to the sombre character of the scene. The height of the enormous mountain Jumnooti, one of the loftiest peaks of the Himalayas, is 25,500 ft above sea level.—(Four Voy. Geo. Soc.)

JUMOT a town in Punjab, See JAMOT

JUMI D a Central Asia khanat of 70 m. N W W Khiva. It is surrounded by a dilapidated wall consists of 90 towers and is inhabited by Tatars, who cultivate the ground and rear cattle.

JUNDIAH a town in Brazil, prov of 30 m N W Rio Paulo, near L. bank river of same name, here crossed by a bridge. It contains a parish church and a Benedictine convent, and has manufactures of saddles and other harness for mules, in which animals the trade is very considerable. The sugar-cane is extensively cultivated in the district. P 3000 JUNEDA a town in Spain, Catalonia, prov and 16 m S E Lerida, at a hill foot. It is well built contains a parish church, churches, process, and primary school; and has several oil and flour mills and a trade in oil and tann. Pop 1600.

JUNDA a town in Bohemia, circle of and 12 m. from Taber on the Blawitz. It has a ducal chateau, a town house, a school, a fine old castle situated in the centre of the town, manufactures of linen, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1812

JUNGBUNZAU a town in Bohemia. See BUNZAU

JUNGLEYPOOK, a town in Hindostan prov Bengal 22 m. N W Moorabaddah. The manufacture of silk here at one time gave employment to 3000 persons.

JUNGFRAU [Maiden] a mountain in Switzerland, in the Bernese or Helvetic Alps, on the frontier between Bern and Valais, 6 m. S. S. E. Lauterbrunnen. It is one of the most magnificent mountains in Switzerland and the loftiest calcareous mountain in Europe height 13,174 ft. It was first ascended by the brothers Mevor of Aarau in 1804 again by the same persons in 1817 by six persons from Grindelwald in 1826 and by Augustus of Viedenthal and Farber of Edinburgh in 1831. The height of the Jungfrau entitles it to rank as the eighth European mountain.

JUNJA (Jé) a town in France, dep Haute-Vienne, beautifully situated on the slope of a hill above bank of river at the confluence of the Ghene 19 m N W W Limoges. It is built in the form of an amphitheatre, surrounded by finely planted lawns, contains an ancient and beautiful parish church, with a fine light altar and bell-tower and has manufactures of serge, woolen, and cotton cloths, gloves, stoneware and porcelain, dyestuffs, raw materials, tanneries, numerous paper-mills and a trade in horses and mules. Pop 3265.

JUNJA or JUNJA a town in Peru dep Juma, 108 m E N E Lima, E. side of lake Chumlayococha with some ruins belonging to the times of the Incas. Near it is the temple of Junin, where, on August 24 1824 the Spanish troops, under General Cantero were beaten by Bolivar.—The department, formerly called Tarma, stretches quite across the Andes, and includes the valleys of Juma and Guanocho.

JUNKELION or SALANG an isl Lower Siam, off W coast Malay Peninsula, from which it is separated by a narrow channel, called Papa or Pak Pa Strait, navigable only by small prahus lat. 8° 18' N, lon. 98° 30' E. It is 25 to 37 m. long, and about 10 m. broad, lying nearly N and S. The hills are of moderate elevation slope gradually and are clothed with wood to their tops, while the levels are covered with grass and forest, excepting where cleared for cultivation. Streams abound. The soil is various—clayey on the E. side, sandy on the W and where hilly, composed of the debris of granite rock and vegetable matter. The extensive flats and gentle slopes are fitted for tropical productions, and the lower ranges of hills, to whose summits cultivation appears to have once extended, seem well adapted to the cultivation of lodges and coffee. But it is the product which gives to the island its chief value, about 500 tons having been at one time raised yearly, although several of the richest mines are said to be now pretty well exhausted. The animals are buffaloes, hogs, and deer. There are no wild elephants, but leopards are numerous in the wilder parts. Common poultry may be procured, but not in very great abundance. Both the E and W coasts may be closely approached by large vessels, but the W being a lee shore, the chief harbour has been chosen on the E. side. The latter is crooked, and is covered by two islands in front. The population of the island is about ex. clusively Siamese, the exceptions being Chinese. There are two priests here and a pagoda. Pop about 5000.—(Journal of the Asiatic Soc. of Bengal)

JUNQUERA, several places, Spain—1, (La Junquera), a town in Catalonia, prov of, and 25 m N E Girona, partly in a plain, and partly on a slope near the foot of a lofty mountain. It is well supplied with water contains a parish church, a townhouse, a Latin and a primary school, and the old castle of Rocafort, famous in Spanish history, and has manufactures of cork and a trade in cork and cattle. Pop. 1165—3, (Santa Maria Junquera de Andorra) a town in Galicia, prov and 13 m S E Ourense, on the Arroyo, with a Gothic church a primary a handsome townhouse and prison, a primary school, and manufactures of woolen and linen. Pop 700

JUPANOWA Sopka a mountain, Kamtschatka lat 53° 45' N; and lon 156° 30' E. It is of volcanic formation and still indicates the presence of volcanic agency by the smoke which issues from its summit, and the subterranean sounds which are heard within its bowels.

JUJILLIE, a vil and com. Belgium, prov and 3 m E. Lage, v. bank Meuse. It is an ancient place, known under the name of Joli Vill, and was the favorite residence of Pepin d'Héristal who died here in 714. It has manufactures of nails and steam-boilers paper, worsted and flour mills, and three annual fairs. The extensive collection in the neighborhood employ a great part of the inhabitants. Pop. 2323 JUKA a river which rises in the W. of the Russian gov. of Wladi near Istawa, flows S., enters E. Prussia, and joins v. bank Niemen or Memel above Tilsit, after a course of about 75 m.

JURA [Dore, Red deer] one of the minor Hebrides, Scotland, on Argyle. N. E. Islay from which it is separated by a narrow strait, 12 m. wide, having the Gulf and Strait of Corryvreckan at its N. extremity between it and the island Skerza. The centre of Jura is in lat 56° 2' N lon 5° 51' W its length, S. W. to N. E., 38 m. near breadth, 7 m. Coast-line about 45 m. exclusive of the narrow, deep indentations called Loch Turbert, which divides the island nearly into two parts, penetrating from the W. to within a mile of Turbert Bay on the E. The general aspect of the island is exceedingly wild and rugged presenting apparently, a continuous mountain ridge, uninterrupted by any visible plain or valley and rising at three different points, into lofty conical peaks, called the Paps of Jura, the highest of which attains an elevation of 2700 ft, the other two summits being but a very little lower. On the E. side are some angular crags, of igneous formation, with dry level floors, and having lofty and beautifully marked rocks. The centre and W. coasts of Jura are composed of quartz rock, often alternating with conglomerates of other materials. On the E. side the quartz rock gradually gives place to clay slate, alternating with mica, chlorite, and talc slate. Trap veins, conspicuous for their size and extent, are also common. The soil of Jura partakes of the barrenness of the rock on which it lies, being sandy, and, from the weakness of the climate, and want of ready drainage, much encumbered with peat. It contains but little land really arable, and is chiefly devoted to the raising of black cattle, of which 1000 to 1500 head are usually carried. Much, however, has been done of late years in the way of draining waste and pasture lands to the best advantage. Hill-draining is extensively followed out, and large tracts, covered formerly with stunted heath, are now clothed with verdure. The island abounds in game, and still retains its ancient reputation for the size of its red deer, though their numbers have much diminished. Pop. (including Follongey), 1901

JURA, a dep. in the E. of France, bounded N by Haute-Saône, from which it is separated by the Ognon, N E Doubs, E Switzerland, S. and S.W. Ain, and W Saône-et-Loire, lat. 48° 35' to 47° 30' N. lon. 5° 17' to 6° 11' E. length, N to S. 73 m. greatest breadth, 40 m., area, 1817 sq. m. The surface is very mountainous, being covered in the E. by the principal chain of the Jura, and in other directions by its ramifications. The loftiest summits within the department have an average height of above 4000 ft. The whole of the surface belongs to the basin of the Rhone, which drains it chiefly by the Ain and the Ognon. The lakes are numerous, but small. The climate necessarily varies with the elevation of the surface, but, even in the lower grounds, owing to the snow, which covers the heights to the month of April the winter and spring are colder than usual in the same latitude. Mist and rain also are very prevalent. The quantity of arable land is rather more than one-third, and of that under wood rather less than one-fourth of the whole. The corn raised meets the natural consumption. The vine also is an important object of culture, and in the summer spots produces a wine of good quality. The pastures are both extensive and rich, and the cattle reared on them, together with their dairy produce, form the chief source of wealth. Sheep are so few in number that a good deal of wool is imported into the department. The rivers and lakes abound with fish. The minerals include several metals, but the only one so abundant as to be worked to advantage is iron. Coal also is said to exist, but is not worked. Marble and alabastrer abound, and there are salt springs in different quarters, from which a good deal of salt is made. The staple manufactures is iron. The only others deserving of notice are cutlery coarse woollens, linen, mineral acids, leather and clocks and watches articles in wood and ivory. The chief exports are wine, brandy, Gruyère cheese, timber, and the above articles of manufacture. For administrative purposes the department is divided into four arrondissements—Lons-le-Saunier the capital, Dole, Poligny and St. Claude subdivided into 32 cantons, and 684 communes. Pop. 316 150

JURA, True (German Leobersberg Italian Gress) a chain of mountains, Europe, belonging to the system of the Alps. The name is sometimes confined to the ranges which overlie the lake of Geneva, on the W and N.W. and proceeding thence in the latter direction, terminate at the Rhone. More properly, however the chain includes also the ramifications which lie N.W. of the principal chain, and also all the heights between Switzerland, the lake of Geneva, the Rhone, the Saône, the Doubs, and the plains of Alsace. According to this view they may be subdivided into six minor chains, stretching S.E.W. to N.N.E. The greatest length of the range is 209 to 220 m. from Delémont in France, dep. Ain, to the banks of the Rhine, and the greatest breadth about 68 m., between the lake of Geneva and the banks of the Doubs. The part of the Jura nearest the Alps is the loftiest, the height gradually diminishing as it recedes from them. From this circumstance—viewed in connection with the other facts that the steepest side of the principal chain is in the same direction, and that the subordinate chains have a marked parallelism with that of Mont Blanc and the adjacent mountains—the Jura may be considered as a terrace of the Swiss Alps, with which it was probably united before the excavation of the intervening valley. The principal geological formation is Jura limestone, with green sand belonging to the lower Cretaceous series, gypsiferous shale, beds of lignite, oolite, marls, local abundance, and sulphurous and saline springs. Siliceous rocks are numerous. The principal lakes, forming a kind of reservoirs of the waters of the Jura, are those of Neuchâtel, Mont, Joux, and St. Point. The valleys are almost all longitudinal, following the N.N.E. direction of the principal chain. The two chief rivers which have their source in the chain are both French—the Ain and the Doubs—and, descending from its W. slopes, belong to the basin of the Rhone. Seen from the lake of Geneva, the Jura presents a long wall of about 5000 ft. The line is generally unbroken, but occasional prominent peaks stand up and form the culminating points. The highest of these are the Boudoir, Mont Tendre, the Colombier and the Dole, the heights of which are, respectively, 5632, 5645, 5587, and 5515 ft. This comparatively low height, at least 1500 ft. below the snow limit, cannot be expected to furnish the sublime scenery of the Alps, but presents numerous basins of a less obtrusive kind—hills covered with waving woods, from which picturesque masses of bare rock occasionally project, and fresh streams, forming beautiful cascades or gushing from sunny slopes, and shortly after following a meandering course through meadows covered with a carpet of the richest green. Even scenes of grandeur occasionally occur as in the Val de Montmor and Münster Thal, between Basal and Buhl; the lake of Joux, and the Kins pass, at the foot of the Ober-Haemstein. Numerous wolves and a few brown bears frequent the woods.

Vol. II.

JURANÇON, a tu France, dep. Basen-Pyrénées, about 1 m W Pau on a hill whose slopes grow some of the best wines in the department. 1 pop. 1523

JURÉY, par Isle of Mar. pop. 930

JURIEV POLAKOV, a tu Russia, gov. of and 83 m. N.W. Vladimir cap. circle of same name, on the Koloksha, at the confluence of the Snikolska, in an extensive plain. It is an ancient place, and has five churches, a monastery, manufactures of silk and cotton, a printfield, several breweries, and a trade in the above articles of manufacture and in garden stuff which are extensively grown in the environs. Pop. 8887

The cradle, in the N.W. of the government, is for the most part flat, and in many places nearly, but has several fertile tracts, and produces much hemp and flax. Pop. 85,000

JURIEV POTOMAKOV, a tu Russia, gov. of and 80 m. E.S.E. Kostroma cap. circle of same name, 1 bank Volga, a little below the confluence of the Unja. It has three churches, a convent, and a trade in tallow, hogs and corn. Pop. 2830

The cradle, in the S. of the government, is fertile well cultivated and well wooded, and has a large part of its inhabitants employed in the manufacture of linen. Pop. 111 000.

JURJURA (Latin, Ferrata) a mountain chain, Algeria, an offshoot of the Lesser Atlas. It extends S.W. to N.E. from prov Algiers into prov Constantine. On the frontier between the two provinces is the defile of Hibon or the Fortes-de-Fer, through which the French, under the Duke of Orleans and Marshall Valée passed, in 1839

JURRUK, or JERRA, a tu Selinde near some low rocky hills, 7 bank Indus, 30 m. S. by W Hyderabad lat. 25° 8' N. lon 68° 15' E. It carries on a good trade in manufactured wares with Beloochistan, and has manufactures of lacated highly-finished turnery. Pop. about 1500

JURUA, or JURUHA, an affluent of the Amazon principally in Brazil, prov Para, but having its sources in the N.E. part of Peru lat. 8° 45' S. lon 87° 55' W. from which it flows with little deviation N.W. and falls into the Amazon at lat. 2° 40' S. lon 65° 40' W. after a course of 540 m.

JURUENA, a river S. America, which, during a great part of its course forms the boundary between Brazil and Peru. It rises about 80 m. N.W. of the town of Maca-Grocco, in the N. slope of the Taro mountains, lat. 14° 42' 30' S. lon 69° 45' W. 6 m. W. the source of the Guapore, and, shortly after tumbling over a lofty height, proceeds N.W. a little W. for about 460 m. forms a junction with the Arinos, in lat. 9° 30' S. These united streams take the name of Tapayoc. The principal affluents of the Juruena are the Juna and Sucum. Its fertile banks are peopled by uncivilised Indians.

JURZEN a river Russia, which rises in gov Orenburg, on the W. slope of the Ural Mountains near the source of the Ural, flows first N.W. then W. and joins 1 bank Ural a little above the fort Jeldimskaya, after a course of about 140 m. Valuable seams of iron are found upon its banks.

JURSEY, a tu France, dep. Haute-Saône, 19 m. N.W. Vesoul, 7 bank Aunance, near its confluence with the Saône. It is built in a wide and fertile valley between lofty hills. It is a place of great antiquity, was formerly fortified, and endured a memorable siege, in 1555. Pop. 2661

JUST (Gr) a vil. and p. England, on Cornwall. The village is situated about 1 m. E. Cape Cornwall, and 26 m. W. Falmouth, on ground rising about 800 ft. above sea-level. It is indifferently supplied with water; but the streets are well kept, and the houses in general have a respectable appearance. A literary institution, opened in 1847, is a handsome edifice; there are, besides, a good market-house, a parish church, and two Dissenting chapels, with several day schools, a museum, library, and some charitable institutions, supported by subscription. There are several mines in the parish, which appear to have been worked at a very remote period, and are still productive. The produce of 1851, arising chiefly from tin, amounted to £38,800. The inhabitants, who are principally employed in mining are intelligent and temperate, and in general their dwellings are kept scrupulously clean. Area of par 7421 sq. Pop. 8759.—(Local Correspondent).

JUST IN ROSELAND (St) a par Eng Cornwall 4192 sq. Pop. 1557

JUST ET-CHEVALENT (St) a tu and com. France, dep. Loire, 15 m. R.W. Roanne, l bank Aiz, with several fairs. Pop. 2757

JUST-LA PERDUE (St) a tu France, dep. Loire, 12 m. S.E. Roanne. Pop. 1065

JUST-LE-LOUVE (St) a tu France, dep. Loire, 12 m. S.E. Montbrason, l bank Loire, here crossed by a suspension bridge. It has manufactures of shawls and printed cotton goods, bottles, and chemical products. Pop. 1231

JUSTO DE LA VEGA (St) a vil Spain, prov. Leon, on the sides of two hills, near the Tago, about 1 m. from Astorga. It contains a parish church and a primary school, and has manufactures of serge, and two flour mills. Pop. 1000

JUTTAJ JUTTAJ or JUTTAJ a river S America, an affluent of the Amazon, principally in Brazil but having its sources N.E. Peru, about lat. 11° 40' S. lon. 68° 15' W. It enters Brazil, where its head streams first unite, about lat. 2° 30' E. and holding on a N course, falls into the Amazon at lat. 2° 40' S. lon. 66° 40' W., after a course of nearly 700 m. This river throughout its whole length, runs nearly parallel with the Jutras at a distance of about 70 m.

JUTEROGK, a tu. Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. Potsdam, cap. circle of same name, on the Havel, 23 m. S.W. Berlin. It consists of the town proper surrounded by walls with three gates, and of three suburbs. contains one church in one of which is preserved Tesla's indulgence box [Ablasskasten] taken from him, and its contents appropriated, by a knight, who, at the same time, administered to the arch-indulgences under a well-merited censure all under the shelter of an indulgence, for future and undefined sins, obtained from Tesla himself. It has manufactures of woollen and linen cloths, a trade in horses, cattle and wool and four annual fairs. Pop. 3318.—The climate is fine and well watered, but arid. Area, 299 sq. m. Pop. 45,097

JUTLAND (Jutland, Jylland, Jutland, or Golland, Latin Jutia, Characina Cambrica), the name sometimes given to the whole of the Danish peninsula, extending N. from Holsten to the Skager Mack, but more properly confined to the N. division of this peninsula, which forms the province of N. Jutland. This province is encompassed on three sides by the sea—the Skager Mack, on the N.W. and N. the Kattegat on the E. and the N. Sea or German Ocean, on the W. Its only land side is on the S., where it is bounded by Schleswig. It lies between lat. 55° 25' and 57° 44' 55" N. and between lon. 8° 7' and 16° 46' E. and is very irregular in shape. In the N. it suddenly narrows to a mere tongue of land which continues to taper gradually till it terminates in a point; its base in the S. is about 70 m. and its width across the centre, measured on a parallel of latitude, about 106 m. Its greatest length, measured in a slanting direction from its S.W. extremity, through the tongue of land already mentioned is 182 m. area, 7450 sq. m. It then occupies not much less than a half of the whole surface of the kingdom, and though neither the most populous nor the most fertile, is in many respects its most characteristic and important province. Its coast-line has been estimated at 593 m. Of these, 277 m. belong to the E. coast on which there are several good harbours and deep openings leading into navigable waters; and 246 m. to the W. coast, which possesses scarcely a single harbour or navigable creek, and is bordered almost without interruption over its whole extent, by a long line of sandbanks and reefs. Geologically the whole province belongs to the upper part of the secondary formation, and is composed of immense beds of chalk or liasstone. The climate on the whole is temperate, but variable. On the W. coast particularly mists are so very prevalent that a bright clear sky is seldom seen. One of the most remarkable features of N. Jutland is a vast expanse of inland lakes, extending across it from the very edge of the W. to its outlet on the E. coast. It is comprehended under the general designation of Lum-ford a name which it owes to the strata of chalk or lime which line its shores but it properly consists of three principal divisions, each of which forms a distinct lake, and of a great number of minor branches, which ramify like networks, and often assume the most fantastic shapes. Numerous small streams send their waters into the ford. Its only outlet is near Aalborg, where it empties into a narrow neck, which, though still retaining the name of Lum-ford, is to all intents a river, and the most important river of the province. The area of the Lum-ford is 434 geo. sq. m. The other streams are not of much consequence. Those deserving of notice are the Guden, Ror, Skjern, Warde, Lønborg, Kjøge, Skive, and Halm. The lakes are scattered with such profusion over the province, particularly in N. divisions, that it were almost endless to enumerate even those of them which in most other countries, would be deemed important. The principal water-shed is formed by an elevated tract, of considerable width, which extends through the province in a slanting direction from N.E. to S.W. Its highest point, the Himmelberg, is only 550 ft. above the level of the sea. It exhibits almost throughout a dreary expanse of moorland waste. The ground slopes gradually from either side of it, to the opposite coasts, and presents a very different appearance, according to the direction in E. or W. In the latter direction the land and sand continues to prevail, and the soil in general is so barren, that nothing but the most laborious and persevering industry enables the husbandman to draw from it profitable returns. The only exception is in the S., where the general barrenness is compensated by a series of low alluvial tracts, generally used as meadows, and covered with luxuriant verdure. Towards the N. on the contrary, the natural barrenness is increased and the land carried about in clouds is continually meeting new encroachments, converting arable and pasture land into desert wastes, filling up lakes, burying forests, and occasionally even engulfing villages. But, on the E. coast, numerous tracts occur, distinguished alike by the calm beauty of their landscapes and the fertility of their soils. Here hills and dale, lofty woods of beech, and waving fields of corn are finely intermingled. The inhabitants of this province are considered to be the most genuine specimens of the old Danish stock and have preserved both the language and the manners and customs of early times in their greatest purity. For administrative purposes, N. Jutland is divided into 10 amts or bailiwicks—Hjorring, Thisted, Aalborg, Viborg, Jylland, Århus, Skanderborg, W. Rind, Rind, Viborg and Ribe. Pop. 677,000.—(Bjergum, Der Danske Stater)

JUTHAAR, a vil Holland, prov. of, and 3 m. S.W. Utrecht, on the canal thence to the Lek, with two churches, two schools and a fort. Pop., agricultural, 1464.

JUTHOSZYN or JUTHOSCHIN a tu Prussia, prov. and 64 m. S.E. Posen, on the Odra, with two churches a synagogue and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth. P. 1776.

JUTTEFL. MOUNTAINS, a mountain range, Scania, stretching S.W. from Skarva to Doda about 70 m. lat. 25° 25' to 26° 20' N. lon. 67° 45' to 67° 55' E. They are steep, and above 2000 ft. high.

JYHON.—1 [see Fyrmus] A river Asiatic Turkey, past Marash and Ishak. It rises in Mount Taurus, about lat. 37° 52' N. lon. 37° E., flows S.W., past Marash, and, after a course of about 160 m., falls into the Bay of Iskenderon, N.W. side.—2 or JYHON Turkistan. See Oxus.

JYNTEAH a dist. Hindoostan, beyond the Bherapootra, between lat. 25° and 30° N. lon. 81 and 82° E.; bounded N. by Assam E. by Cachar, S. by the dist. of Sylhet, and W. by the Garrow Mts. It is about 100 m. long, by 57 m. broad and is divided into a N. central, and S. district, the last of which is composed of well-watered and fertile plains. The other divisions are hilly, but the highest mountains do not reach an elevation of more than 1000 ft. During the Burmese war it was taken under British protection, and has since been annexed to the district of Sylhet.—JYNTEAH, the cap. of the above dist., and residence of the Rajah, is at the foot of a range of mountains 20 m. N. by E. Sylhet.

K

[For articles not found under K look C and Q]

KAADEN or KADASTA, a tn. Dohemia, circle of, and 19 m W W. Sams, in a fertile valley, 1 h. back Eger, here crossed by a bridge. It is walled, has four churches, a convent, Plarist college, and an old castle, converted into barracks. Manufactures of cloth and hosiery, and several corn markets. (a) is worked in the vicinity 1 op. 3229

KAAGÖE, an ul. off N W coast Norway properly forming part of the Lofodden group lat. 70° N lon. 21° E It is about 18 m. long, by about 9 m. broad, and is chiefly composed of lofty mountains, which are seen far off at sea

KAALJ, a vil. Hungary co. Herve, on the Tarna, about 12 m. from Erlau. Inhabitant agricultural Pop. 2291

KAARTA, a country of W Africa, between lat. 14° and 15° N., and lon. 8° 30' and 10° 30' W. It is bounded W by Kasso, E by Bambarra, and, though mountains, is fertile. It is under the sway of the Bambarras

KAATSHU/UVEL (Dr) a vil. Holland prov. N. Brabant, 12 m. W S. W. Hartingebusch with a large church and a school. The inhabitants make sulphur matches and butter which are sent to all parts of the country Pop. 886

KABA NAOR a vil. Hungary Thutler Thoms, co. Bihar 6 m. from Biholozlo, with a Protestant parish church. It has a fertile district where much grain is grown and many cattle are reared. Pop. 6179

KABAH a ruined city Lucania about 30 m. S E Ugenti. The ruins are very extensive and contain some curious specimens of sculpture and engraving on wood.

KABAN MARANS See KANAN MARANS

KABARDIAH a dist. Russia-in-Europe in the N. of Circassia, separated N. by the Terek from gov. Caucasus bounded, S. by the country of the Ossetes, and W. by Little Abkhassia. It is partly covered by some N. ramifications of the Caucasus has a mild climate, fine meadows, a fertile soil, and raises cereals and legumes and pastures great numbers of horses, cattle, sheep, and goats. The country is usually divided into Great and Little Kabardiah the former the W., and the latter the E. portion.

KABE NDA, a report in Africa. See CARENDA

KABEN, a tn. Tunis See CAREN

KABO FLOBOH, an uninhabited hl. Indian Archipelago, on the N. E. coast of Molangit. It is esteemed holy by the inhabitants of the Moluccas, affording, as it does excellent shelter to their frail vessels during heavy weather

KABOOL, or CAPOOL, a river Afghanistan, prov. Cabool. It rises on the E. declivity of the Omana ridge, about lat. 34° 20' N, lon. 68° 30' E at an elevation of about 8000 ft. flows N. E., past the city of Cabool till it is joined by the Panshir from the N. W. whence it flows E. E. till it falls into the Indus, near Attock after a course of about 320 m. At first it is an inconsiderable stream but, subsequently receiving many large tributaries, becomes a formidable river sweeping, with prodigious rapidity and violence along the N. base of the Khyber mountains and, in consequence of its boiling eddies and furious surges, not navigable except on rafts of hides. E. of these hills it divides into three branches, which afterwards re-unite at Dabundee where it is about 800 yards wide, and whence it is navigable for boats of 40 or 50 tons, to Attock. Its principal tributaries are the Logur, which joins it from the S. the Panshir, the Tagus, and the Kama, with several others of lesser note, from the N. The Kabool is the only great tributary to the Indus from the W.

KABOOL, or CAPOOL, a city See CAPOOL

KABOU a country of W. Africa, Upper Guinea, between the rivers Gambia, Cahaio, and Juba. It is for the most part level, and covered in some places with thick forests. Rain is very abundant from May to October, climate warm, moist, and unhealthy; the soil very fertile, yielding rice, millet, and Indian corn indigo and cotton. Mandingoes are the most numerous of the inhabitants, and Shillu is the only language in use. They have large and numerous villages, well cultivated fields, are possessed of considerable riches, but are turbulent, insatiable, avaricious, and unkind to their

KABR-IRAWAT or KHATAT a tn. Palestine, the modern name for Hebron (Jebok see)

KABREHA or CABREHA, a Greekian lat. S. coast, between Cape Gallo and the mt. Sapeama lat. (S. extremity) 86° 40' N lon. 21° 47' E. (n.); about 5 m. long and 3 m. broad. At a distance it appears like a high and circular mass of land, serving to point out the adjacent harbours.

KABROUANG, an isl. Indian Archipelago Salibaboo group, between Mindanao and Gilolo lat. 8° 47' N lon. 127° E (n.) It is about 20 m. in circumference, well cultivated and has a high peaked hill in the centre. Pop. 4090

KABSHARY a tn. Central Africa, Somaliland, lat. 11° 15' N, about 85 m. from its mouth in Lake Toba and about the same distance W. Kouka lat. 13° N lon. 19° 10' E.

KACHAO, a city Anam. See CHIAOAN

KACHAR a dist. Hindoostan See CACHAR

KACHGAR, a tn. Central Asia See CASHGAR

KACHVAL-BERAT, a considerable tn. Hindoostan prov. Malwa, in a well-watered district and having several bazars; lat. 24° 30' N lon. 77° 35' E.

KACHPOUR a tn. Russia, gov. Simbirsk, circle of, and 6 m. S. Syran r. bank Volga. It still possesses the remains of towers and bastions and has three churches. 1 op. 1200

KACI NDA or BUNDIA a tn. of W. Africa, Guinea, r. bank Niger about 35 m. below Egga lat. 8° 15' N, lon. 8° 22' E. It consists properly speaking of three or four villages each of considerable size, but unconnected, though situated within a very short distance of each other, but circular and built of clay. It is the capital of a state or chiefdom of same name. Pop. 3000

KADARKUT a vil. Hungary Thutler Danubio, co. Szeged 14 m. N. W. Szeged, with a Protestant church and a synagogue. Pop. 1206

KADDO, one of the Dhalan isls. Red Sea, near the N. end of a sandy and rocky bank. It is about 2 m. long, E. to W., and rather high, with a rocky ascent off its W. end.

KADIAK or KODAK, the largest of the Aleutian Islands, and separated from the mainland of Russian America by the Straits of Cheligo about 40 m. wide lat. 53° 20' to 57° 45' N lon. 152° to 154° W, length N. E. to S. W. 120 m. breadth, N. W. to S. E. 60 m. Its mountains, of granite, are of considerable height, and have, for the most part, a slight covering of soil. The valleys are narrow, and interspersed with rocks of a schistous nature, and in some localities chalk is found. The coast is much indented and contains good harbours.

Kadiak is watered by numerous streams, and its climate and vegetation are superior to those of most of the other Aleutian islands. The land, particularly near the coast, is fertile, and is covered with thick grass. It also produces abundance of strawberries and gooseberries and oats, barley, and the common kitchen herbs are raised. In the interior are forests of pine, birch, poplar, and various species of willow. Bears and foxes are very common but the beaver, reindeer, lynx and other animals yielding fur, have become comparatively rare. The coast is abundant with whales, seals, shell fish, and sea-fowl.

The island is said to have been won by Behring, but possession of it was first taken, in 1764, by Cheligo, in name of Russia, to which it still belongs. A fur company then established with important privileges, still exists, and has its chief establishment on the Bay of Lakhik, where, in addition to the buildings of the company are a church, several shops and dwelling-houses, possessing gardens and patches of cultivated ground. This settlement is the depot where all the furs of the Aleutian Islands are deposited, before they are sent off to Russia. Pop. 3600

KADIN, or KANNO, a tn. Russia, gov. Mohilev, circle of, and 19 m. N. W. Mohilev, r. bank Gorodna. It has an important annual fair.

KADJANG a small native state, mt. Calabon, S. W. peninsula, a dependency of Bond, and on W. coast gulf of that name. Its capital, of same name, lies on the small river Kadjang, in about lat. 6° 20' S.

KADNIKOV, a tu. Russa, cap. circle of same name, gov. of and 23° 30' N. E. Volodja lat. 59° 24' N. lon. 46° 40' E. on the Russa, with a church. Pop. 2035.—
The circus (area, 5073 sq m) contains 78,061 inhabitants, employed chiefly in the preparation of brick-ud, and producing various wooden articles, and in hunting.

KADUO, or Kanoo, a central prov. in Java, bounded N. E. by Samarang, S. by Soerakarta, S. by Lijepokarta, and W. by Baguwa. It is hilly elevated, and consequently has a comparatively mild climate. Its soil is volcanic, watered by numerous streams, and the most fertile in Java. Rice, cotton, pepper, poppy-oil, sugar, unseasoned tobacco, numerous edible roots, and all kinds of tropical fruits, are among its products. It yields likewise about 9 000,000 pounds of coffee annually a small quantity of indigo and the inhabitants prepare a kind of leaf-mat for stools, etc. The horses of Kaduo are large strong, and fast. Pop. 323 119.

KADOLABER, a market in Bavaria circle Middle Franconia, 9 m W. Rinkburg. It contains two castles and a Protestant parish church and has some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. of in 1750 of dist. about 60,000.

KADON, a tu. Russa, gov. of, and 130 m. N. Tambor on the Molokca. It is built chiefly of wood, but contains three churches, and has a considerable trade particularly in honey and several well frequented annual fairs. It is inhabited chiefly by descendants of the Tartars, who are said to have founded it. Pop. 5500.

KAECHIKI, a city China, Manchouia, E. side and 8 m. from head of the Gulf of Lencung lat. 40° 35' N. lon. 121° 47' E. Its trade is very considerable, the produce of the surrounding country being collected here, and exported to Fokien, Canton and Hong-kong.

KAFI, a country of E. Africa, S. of Abyssinia, and within, or on the borders of which are the sources of the Bah-el Abiad, or of its chief tributaries. Kafi was visited for the first time by a European traveller (M. Aub. D. Abbadie) in 1843 but as the narrative of that journey has not yet been published, our information respecting the country in question remains still very scanty. Kafi is an elevated plain or table-land extending along the S. of Ennara its N. boundary being formed chiefly by the River Gadofo called by the Gallas Gofeb, which rising in a forest, in about lat. 7° 40' N. lon. 33° 30' E. flows E. N. E. about 150 m. till it joins the Lma.

This great river formed by the junction of two or more streams, called Gilbe (in old writers Eoleky) runs S. on the E. side of Ennara and Kafi, and then turning S. W., joins the Tuhur, or Bah-el Abiad after a course of 500 m. or 600 m. The extensive region thus encompassed by the Lma and its affluents, and which has been vaguely entitled the island of Kafi, embraces the following countries.—1. On the E. in the angle formed by the Gadofo and the Lma, lies Kilo an elevated and mountainous tract inhabited by the Omani. 2. B. of Kilo is Gobo, also peopled by Omani—opposite, on the E. beyond the river, are the Negroes called Doklo.

3. Kafi proper is situate to the W. of Kilo—the capital, Bonga, standing in lat. 7° 10' N. lon. 36° 24' E., at no great distance from the Gadofo. 4. Omura, W. of the preceding, is occupied by a people who call themselves fiay probably a branch of the Bakas (Bikis), who were established in Great Damor, in Abyssinia, previous to the irruption of the Tallas. 5. The country of the Buro 150 m. or 200 m. S. W. Bonga, and which producing barley in abundance, appears to be a continuation of the table-land, and to have an elevation of at least 7000 ft. 6. B. of the Buro are the Negroes called Mshango. Kafi has been hitherto erroneously described as a country of lofty mountains. It proves to be a uniform plain bearing palms and characterized by the production not of coral grains, but of the casia, a plant resembling the manna or banana. Thus, it would appear to have an elevation barely exceeding 5000 ft. The source of the Gofeb has a height of 4800 ft. The application of gum-ether is used in Kafi as a term of contempt: the casia furnishes the staple subsistence of the people. The lang or lato, as he is called, of Kafi has at the command 10 000 horsemen, but rule seems to be absolute. It is not quite clear whether Christianity in any form, is still recognized as the religion of the country, but we are told that there are at least two churches in it, and the people are still called fidelmis a name which appears to have at one time distinguished the Christians of E. of Abyssinia.

It is certain that Kafi is the native country of the coffee plant (the Indica of the Arabs) and a very large proportion of the coffee now exported from Mocha, arrives in that market from the N. frontier of Kafi, and the S. part of Ennara. Coffee, civet, cardamum, and khar are the chief productions of the country which find their way into commerce, the last named of these—a kind of tea plant, the leaf or young twig of which is used by the Arabs as a masticatory—seems to be here, like the coffee plant, on its native ground. The people of Kafi are of the Abyssinian type, their language belongs to what M. D. Abbadie calls the Hamitic group, and is related to that of the Gallas, who dwell on the Abbat or Blue Nile, at its S. W. bend.

KAFERHIAU or Hissar, a river Central Asia, Turkistan, an affluent of the Upper Oxus. It has its sources in the Pamir table-land, about lat. 35° 30' N. lon. 70° 30' E., from which it flows S. passes the town of Hissar and falls into the Oxus, 60 m. N. E. Balkh, lat. 36° 50' N. lon. 68° 30' E. after a course of about 210 m.

KAFERHAL, a vil. Haden, circle Lower Rhine, 8 m. S. E. N. Mannheim, with a parish church, manufactory of soda, and a mill. Pop. 1543.

KAFI now Feudonia [anc. Theodonia] a tu. Russa, W. angle of a magnificent bay in the S. E. of the Crimea, lat. 40° 6' N. lon. 35° 20' E. It is walled and well fortified and contains numerous public buildings of which the most worthy of notice are the three churches—a Greek, a Catholic, and a mosque, two mosques, a spacious and commodious quarantine, and a college, founded by the Emperor Alexander, chiefly for gratuitous instruction in the modern languages. There is also a botanical garden, and a museum which is rich in the antiquities of the neighbourhood. The site and excellent harbour of Kafi would seem to mark it out as a place of great trade, but it has formidable competitors in Odessa and Kerch and does not seem destined to recover its lost importance. It is a place of great antiquity having been founded by a colony of Greeks from Ionia. It received the name of Theodonia from the wife of Lencung, King of the Bosphorus, who took it after a long siege, and soon made it a place of great importance. In the Middle Ages it passed into the hands of the Genoese by purchase from the Khans of the Crimea, and became the seat of an extensive commerce with the East, by the way of the Caspian and Astrakhan. At this time it is said to have had a population of 60 000, but, having been taken by the Turks in 1474 its prosperity rapidly declined. Much has been done for it since it came into the possession of Russia, and it is still one of the most important towns in the Crimea. Pop. (1843) 8450.

KAFRARIYA a populous and fertile country of S. Africa annexed to the colony of the Cape of Good Hope, on the E. Jo. in order to find a general name for a number of different kindred tribes, the Dutch colonists adopted the word Kaffir, learned by the Portuguese from the Arabs, who apply the epithet Kafir signifying in their language, an unbeliever or pagan to the wild and unconverted African natives. In this sense the term is inconveniently comprehensive, as nations have, at different times, applied it arbitrarily to very different groups of African nations. The inconvenience of a vague and inappropriate expression may be best avoided by using it in its narrowest acceptance. We shall therefore here take the name Kaffir in the colonial sense, as meaning the tribes who occupy the maritime region or from the mountains to the sea between the E. frontier of the colony and the British settlement at Natal, and who have one language and a common descent.

In 1795, the Kaffirs extended their dominion to the Great Fish River in lat. (nearly) 32° 27' S. lon. 27° E., retaining upon the territory which had belonged to the Gossaga Hottentots, who appear to have become mingled with their conquerors. But, soon after they came into collision with the Dutch Boers, who, having advanced 600 m. E. from Cape Town, were in danger of finding that the Kaffirs had advanced 40 m. in the opposite direction. The natives were repulsed, and driven, for the most part, beyond the Kalkalamma but they never renounced their claim to, nor wholly withdrew their cattle from, the country between the rivers which, for some years, bore the title of the Neutral Territory, till 1836, when, being defeated in the war which they waged on the colony, the Kalkalamma and Kat rivers were fixed definitively as their W. boundary. From the Kalkalamma to the Lmudukile (lat.

80° 28' E.), the farthest extent of the Kaffra towards the N. E., is a distance of 350 m. The breadth of the territory, from the mountains to the sea, is about 80 or 90 m. Formerly the E. limit of Kaffra was at or near the Unamvubu (Hippopotamus river), whence 109 m. S. W. of the Unamvubu (Great Road), or, at least the country E. of the former river, towards Tala, had, till after 1830, little or no population. But the retrenchment of territory on the W. seems to have constituted an extension on the E. Within the limits thus described, Kaffra has an area of about 20,000 sq. m.

The mountains which, running parallel to the sea-coast, bound Kaffra on the N. W. are called by the colonists the Winterberg, and, further N. E. the Stormberg. The natives do not seem to have a general name for the range, but a considerable portion of it, next the colony, is called by them Ivaga. These mountains rarely exceed the height of 3000 ft. Their most elevated summits are composed of trap-rocks, clay-slate and sandstones appear lower down, and limestone has been found in small quantity near the coast. The level plains terminate about 20 m. from the sea, then follows a land of hill and dale extremely varied and picturesque. Numerous rivers cross the country to the sea. On its W. side, indeed, or between the Kelekatama and the Great Kal though the brooks are numerous in the hills the lower tracts still resemble the colonial districts in deficiency of water, but this defect rapidly disappears as we advance to the N. E., where the country grows at every step more fresh and irriguous. The chief rivers beyond the Kai are the Mabi Umkila, Unamvubu, Umkatama, and Unamvubu. These rivers all run in deep beds with steep banks, and, in the rainy season, swelled by the countless mountain-streams that join them they become immense torrents. But their course is rapid the floods soon pass off, and, in the dry season the lower part of the river often exhibits but a chain of pools. None of the rivers of Kaffra are accessible even by small vessels, except, perhaps, the Buffalo between the Kelekatama and the Kai.

The country between the Tuh river and Kelekatama, formerly the Neutral Territory, is nearly all a thicket, or, in colonial language, a bush, of thorny acacias. Between the Kelekatama and the Kai the country is more open. The banks of the rivers are shaded by large trees in the small thickets, scattered over the elevated grounds, the aloe and euphorbia are conspicuous. On the downs at the mouth of the Kai, the banana grows wild. The forests on the hills, contain among other varieties iron wood, yellow wood a magnificent acacia, with leaves 8 ft. long and a spruce sap-palm. The grass in these countries are all very rank and tough, and grateful to cattle only when throwing out new shoots after the old crop has been destroyed with fire. Indeed, S. African cattle may be rather said to browse than graze. The Kaffra women cultivate a little maize, millet, and water-melons, with some tobacco and hemp, for smoking. In a few instances, near the frontiers, the labours of the field are now performed by men, who migrate, with ability and success, the husbandry of their white neighbours; but where the national habits remain, the extent of the cultivated fields or gardens is inconsiderable.

As the vegetation rapidly improves N. E. from the colony, increasing to vigour and abundance, so also the animal species undergo a change. On the W. of the Kelekatama, the quagga and smaller antelopes, of many kinds, are numerous. On the E. are the large antelopes, the dorcas, eland, &c., the hippopotamus, and the elephant. The chase of these animals is a source of profit to the Kaffra, the abundance of wild honey, found in the clefts of rocks, or in hollow trees, and in the search for which he is guided by the honey bird, adds also to his resources. But honey cattle constitute the Kaffra's chief wealth. The Kaffra cows are ordinarily very large, but there is also a small breed, and the colonial breed has also been introduced by stealth or purchase. It is said that the native breeds yield much less milk than the European but we know not whether this inferiority may not be ascribable to the want of succulent food. Horses, purchased or stolen from the colony are now multiplying rapidly in Kaffra, where, on the other hand, there are no sheep, goats, pigs, or poultry. The Kaffra, with the simple tastes of a pastoral people, prize strange articles of food; they will not taste small game, hare, birds, &c. nor fish; which, though abundant in their rivers, they hold in abhorrence.

Kaffra differs materially from the Cape Colony in climate, whence originates its difference of vegetation. In the former country the seasons are regular, and have the tropical character, that is to say, the winter or cool season, from May to August, is dry and clear, the summer or hot season is also the rainy season. The rain always falls in the afternoon, with great violence, and generally attended with thunder storms. The summer heat varies from 70° to 90° F. in the shade, in winter the mercury rarely falls below 50° during the day but at night there are hour-frosts, and snow falls on the mountains. Thick and humid mists are also not unfrequent in winter. In winter the N. W. wind often blows with incredible violence, carrying with it clouds of dust from the dry plains. Sudden changes of temperature are not uncommon during the rainy season, and the climate, though perfectly salubrious, is disagreeable to those habituated to the equability of the Cape climate.

The Kaffra, within the limits which we have assigned to them, consist of three nations, namely—the Amakka, or as the missionaries write the name, Amakka (the representative a clucking sound borrowed from the Hottentots), the Amatambo, called by the Boers, Tambocor or Tambocook, and the Amaponda or Mambook. The Amakka (pl of Amakka) occupy the country from the Kelekatama to the Bush (about 80 m.) and from the foot of the mountains to the sea, and, being in immediate contact with the colony and often in hostility against it, they are more especially named by the expression Kaffra. The Boers call them Kooles which is perhaps not derived from their national name but rather from the title of their chiefs (Aka), with the natural sound of the A. The Amaponda extend along the coast from the Bush towards the Unamvubu. The Amatambo possess the elevated land at the sources of the rivers, and the valleys between the mountains V. of the Amakka, and nowhere approach the sea-side. The common ancestor of these three nations was Zwida, who lived 14 generations (at least 300 years) anterior to Hirta, who fell in the Kaffra war of 1835. Kaa, or Koon, the great warrior who gave his own name to his tribe (the Amakka) lived five generations later than Zwida. The original affinity of these three nations is still kept in view by some remarkable customs. The chiefs of the Amakka and probably of the Amaponda also, take wives from the Amatambo and the children of these wives alone inherit their fathers rank. Thus Masodoo, a chief of great natural ability governed the Galla branch of the Amakka for some years, till his younger brother Sandili, the issue of the Amatambo wife came of age, when the latter (1832) chief assumed the reins of government. It must be observed that, at the termination of the war in 1835, the country between the Kelekatama and the Kai was placed in some measure under British control and received the name of British Kaffra. It is divided into the counties of Hadford, Lencola, Middlesex, York, Northumberland, Sussex and Cambridge. A large body of captives (the Amakka) found in the villages of the conquered Kaffra, were then located in the lower part of that territory. These people, called in the colony Amakka, are of the Zeis or Amakka nation (W. by S. of Delagoa Bay) and, though now settled in Kaffra, are quite distinct from the Kaffra.

The appearance of the Kaffra is highly prepossessing, tall and beautifully formed, with fine eyes and open countenance, every movement, look, and carriage show vigour and animation. Their colour is a dark iron-grey except thick lips, they have no Negro feature their heads are well formed their hair is woolly and in little tufts. The men, the chiefs particularly, exceed the stature of Europeans, the women, on the other hand, are small, but elegantly formed. Vivacity and good temper characterise both sexes. The men take as many wives as they can buy but it does not appear that polygamy among them ever runs to great excess. The fact is, that the purchase of a wife in Kaffra is analogous to the making of a marriage settlement in England. The wife provides for herself a cottage and cows, but, as she is not individually consulted, the whole affair being settled with her parents, it is obvious that inconsiderate marriages are not likely to take place in Kaffra. On the women devolves the care of the house, which is a spherical hut, framed of branches of trees, plastered with mud and cow dung and covered with rushes or palm-leaves. They also cultivate the fields and gardens, which give them little trouble, and they prepare the skins used for clothing, beating and rubbing them until they have completely pulverized the inherent gluten. The men, on the other hand, are occupied with war and their cattle. These last constitute the Kaffre's wealth, they are the constant object of his thoughts and admiration; he is always happy when looking on his cows. He knows how to train the growth of the horns by nicking them. He teaches the bullocks to race, and constantly rides them. Instances are not wanting of great chiefs who claimed their horned cattle in regiments, according to colour, and trained them to join in the dance. Milk is the Kaffre's chief sustenance, and always in the curdled state. It is kept in baskets made of rushes, and so closely plaited as to be water-tight. These, when frequently used, imbibe the lactic acid, so that the new milk poured into them very soon curdles. Venison, beef, marmosade of the water-melon, and various fruits, season the Kaffre's repast, but in small quantity. He may be said to live on milk, and a little millet or Kaffre corn. Their dress is simple; the men are always bareheaded and wear a cloak (karoo) of skin, which they wrap close round them in winter; with the hair made the exposed side being reinforced with ochre. They are often tattooed on the shoulders, and wear copper arm, or ivory rings and strung shells on their arms and legs. The karoo of the chief is generally of leopard's skin. The chief distinction of the female dress is the cap of lynx-skin, Talambi, whose followers probably amount respectively to 50,000, 45,000 and 40,000. The inferior chiefs could add perhaps another 40,000. The Amatembe under one chief (Unyaka we believe), do not probably exceed 70,000. The Amasopda, removed from the external frontier and with ample territory, are probably increasing rapidly in numbers, reaping the chief benefit of the disorder in the W. and may be taken at 100,000. Their great chief is Faka. The latter two nations are not avowedly at war with the British but there can be no doubt that they take part in the contest. It is said that the Kaffres can arm one in six of their entire population, boys of sixteen are reckoned as the best troops. If this be correct, then the Kaffres have a force of at least 50,000 fighting men war is not sport to them. They are a shrewd and observant people, they know their deficiencies in the S. & N., and are rapidly supplying them and should they but add a military organization like that of the Amasulu to improved arms, they will become truly formidable.

KAFFRE VILLAGE (KABAZ) — From August Port Natal in the Mountains of the Kaffres.

KAFIRISTAN, CAUPHISTAN or CAPHISTAN [Land of infidelity] a country of Central Asia, bounded N. by Badkshan W. S. and E. by Afghanistan and N.E. bordering on Central, lat. 35° to 36° N. and lon. 68° 30' to 71° 30' E. length, E. to W. about 110 m., breadth about 69 m. It includes a considerable portion of the Hindoo Koosh mountains, and part of those of the Bolso-Tagh and consists wholly of snow-capped mountains whose sides are covered with vast pine forests, deep and narrow chasms, and small but fertile valleys which produce large quantities of grapes, wild and cultivated, and feed flocks of sheep, and herds of cattle, while the hills are covered with goats. Grain is scarce and of inferior quality. The common kinds are wheat and millet. The S. part of the country, towards Afghanistan, is more level. It is traversed everywhere by innumerable torrents but its principal drainage is by the rivers Tagos, Aloulung, Alingar, and Kama, all of which flow S. towards Afghanistan. The roads are only fit for men on foot, and are often crossed by rivers and deep torrents which are passed by fixed or swinging bridges. The inhabitants of this wild district constitute an independent nation, and claim a European descent, priding themselves on being 'brothers of the Persians,' and are so considered by the Mahometans, by whom they are surrounded, and who, accordingly, call them Kaffres—that is, infidels. They allege that they are descendants of the troops of Alexander the Great, who passed through their country and it is certain, whatever truth may be in the allegation, that in many points, of both which is made of a conical shape but the cone laps forward, and, being fringed with blades, rings, or shells, hangs over the brows.

KAFFRE CHIEF OF THE BALI TRIBE.—From August.

The Amakcan at present (1857) obey several chiefs, three of whom are nearly equal in power, namely, Sandili, Kivili, and character and personal appearance, they much resemble the Greeks, being fair complexioned, regular featured, remarkably handsome, and intelligent. Their intelligence is displayed in the construction of their houses, which are in general of wood, several storeys high and embellished with much carving. They are also good smiths, and their silver drinking-cups and bowls are worked and embossed in a very elaborate and tasteful manner. They believe in one God, but also worship numerous idols made of stone or wood. Liberality and hospitality are their favourite virtues, and are largely practiced amongst them. Their food consists chiefly of cheese, butter, milk, bread, flesh and a variety of fruits. Both sexes drink wine to excess and get merry in their cups, but never quarrelsome. Their favourite amusement is dancing, which they perform with great volubleness. Their music is generally quick, but varied and mild. They are a warlike people, and are not known to have been conquered, though surrounded by Mahomedans, whom they detest and with whom they live in a constant state of warfare, and who take every opportunity of harassing and oppressing them, invading their territory and carrying them off as slaves. Though often provoked to extremes by the persecutions of the Mahomedans whom they slay without mercy, they are generally a humane, hospitable, and kind-hearted people, merry playful fond of laughter, and altogether of a sociable and joyous disposition.

The Kafirs, from their black goat-skin dress hang downwards are also named Siyah Pahl [black clad]. They do not sit cross-legged, like other Arians, but use stools and chairs after the manner of Europeans. They have no general name for their nation but are divided into tribes, occupying different valleys, each tribe having a peculiar name. They have hereditary priests, who have no great influence. It is not known that they have any regular government. All state affairs being managed, it is believed, by consultations among the influential persons. The property of the wealthy consists in cattle and slaves—[Tiphinians's Cashul, Burmes Bohara &c.]

KAFF KOT [the Infidels fort] an extensive ruin, Punjab, 8 bank India lat 32° 50' N lon 71° 21' E. It consists of a number of towers bearing every mark of extreme antiquity, rising on the very summit of a mountain plain. A dishevelled wall extends from them to the river.

KAGAI NIK, a town, which runs near the centre of Measrabar, about 18 m. W. Kumbum, flows S.E. and after a course of 110 m., discharges itself into the Black Sea by a large lagoon. The principal affluents are the Telaga and Chinghura, both of which it receives on the left.

KAGBUZWARA a populous vil Hindoostan presid Bombay, prov Arrangabad on the margin of a small lake, built of black stone, and noted for the manufacture of paper.

KAGUI, a lake, Kusma, S.W. of prov Measrabar near the confluence of the Pruthi with the Danube, greatest length, 24 m., breadth about 9 m. It falls into the Danube.

KAHERLEK, a town, Punjab, near bank India, here 1010 yds. wide, lat. 31° 25' N lon. 70° 57' E. Here is one of the principal fortresses of the Indus.

KAHLA, a town, Germany, Saxony, cap. circle of same name, 1 bank Saale, here crossed by a bridge, 18 m. S.E. Weimar. It is walled, has three gates, three suburbs, several courts and public offices, two churches and an hospital and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, tanneries, dyeworks, tile-works, and a trade in wool and cattle. On the opposite side of the river is the old castle of Leuchtenburg now a prison, and on a hill overlooking the public road, the ruined castle of Oranienburg. Pop. 2468.—The Cassin ann. 96, pp. 54 m. 10 p. 15, 18, 19.

KAHOOWAWE, one of the Sandwich isles, off S.W. point Maui, and, from its shape and appearance, apparently one part of that island. It is 14 m. long, and 5 m. wide, low, and almost destitute of every kind of verdure or shrub, excepting a species of coarse grass. It is inhabited by a few poor fishermen only, and is used as a place of exile.

KAHLN a fort and in Afghanistan, in an extensive valley or plain, 16 m. long, and 16 m. broad lat. 29° 30' N lon. 66° 15' E. It is generally well built and is surrounded by a wall. Water is scarce, the towns depending wholly on rain collected in a tank. Kahlm was garrisoned by the British in 1846. Some months afterwards, a detachment which was sent from Peshawar to relieve the fort, was attacked by the Belooches, in a narrow pass, within a few miles of Kahlm, when 179 of the British were killed, 92 wounded, and 1076 animals, a great quantity of ammunition and stores, and three pieces of artillery, fell into the hands of the enemy.

KAIAH A, a town in Finland. See KAJIAH.

KAIFFA, a small walled town, and seaport, Asiatic Turkey Syria, about 6 m. S.W. Akko lat. 32° 50' N lon. 34° 55' E (n.). It has a mole and anchorage, defended by a castle.

KAIFUNG or CAI FONG, a large city, China, cap. prov Honan, 8 bank Yellow River 350 m. S.S.W. Peking, lat. 34° 55' N lon. 114° 20' E. It is a very ancient city but was destroyed in the 12th century by the overflowing of the river. Previous to that century it contained numerous palaces, gardens, and government houses and though it has been rebuilt, it has never attained to its ancient splendour. It has also been frequently inundated by the Yellow River but not with such serious results as in the instance above mentioned. The last calamity of this kind occurred in recent years, by which part of the city was destroyed and the inhabitants dispersed. The dikes erected in the vicinity of the city to prevent a recurrence of this visitation extend many miles, and are under the superintendence of the governor of the river. Kaifung is noted as the principal seat of the Jews in China, who have here a place of worship between 300 and 400 ft. in length, and about 150 ft. in breadth comprising four successive courts, various halls, and other apartments and a synagogue.

KAILAS MOUNTAINS, Tibet. See CANAN.
KAIN, a vil and com. Holguin prov Hainaut, on the Scheldt, 28 m. W. W. Mons with two breweries, a distillery and two oil mills, a considerable trade in agricultural produce and vegetables, particularly asparagus, for which the district is famed. Near it are chalky steeps. Pop. 4003.

KAINOURA District, a small vil of W. Africa, 1 bank Faidme lat. 14° 22' N lon. 12° 10' W, supposed by the traveller Reumont to be the site of the ancient fort of St. Pierre though the people of Mondou with more probability point out Kaira Tala as the site of this fort.

KATNEK, a town in Siberia, cap. circle of same name, gov. and 260 m. W. S.W. Tomsk, on the Oni lat. 53° 30' N lon. about 78° 30' E. It is walled, and has three churches, and in 1850 had 3407 inhabitants, maintained by agriculture, the fur trade, and furs, one of which is frequented by people from all parts of Siberia. The climate consists, in its N. half of an extensive plain watered by several streams. The S. half, which is equally well watered, has a milder climate, is better cultivated and more extensively wooded. The chief occupations are hunting and fishing.

KAIPARA a harbour New Zealand, 131, W coast, lat. 36° 29' N lon. 174° 51' E. a little W from the settlement of Auckland it branches off N and S, into two completely landlocked harbours, each running about 15 m. into the land. The N. arm is the recipient of several rivers including one of the same name, which enters its S. extremity.

KAIRA a town in Hindoostan, presid. Bombay prov Gujerat, cap. dist. of same name, 63 m. S.W. Baroda, lat. 22° 47' N lon. 72° 46' E. near the confluence of the Wat-rock and Seyres, affluents of the Sahyadris. It is a large and tolerably neat town, surrounded by a lofty stone wall, with semicircular bastions. The streets, though narrow are clean, and the houses solid and lofty, with sloping tiled roofs, and a good deal of carving in the wood work of their gables and verandahs. Most of the walls in the town and neighbourhood are brickwork, and the situation though selected for the castlements, which are about 1½ m. distant, is unhealthy. In the centre of the town is a Jain temple, exhibiting much gaudy ornament, and some beautiful wood carving. Among other buildings are a large European church, erected in 1834 and a library for the use of the soldiers.—The Muzuruz comments chiefly of lands ceded, at different periods, by the Guicowar and Peshwa, and so straggling in form, and intermingled with other districts as not to be easily defined. The Kaira, which forms the boundary between it and Ahmedabad, indicates a considerable portion of the surface. Much of the soil is good, and it was thought that the cultivation of Bourbon cotton might succeed. The attempt, however failed, in consequence of a succession of severe frosts, by which the plantations were completely destroyed. Area, 1868 sq m. Pop. 536,513.—(Trigon. Survey of India)

KAIRWAN a large town, w. of 60 m. S.E. of Tunis, lat. 35° 57' N. lon. 10° 15' E., in a barren sandy plain, and surrounded by a wall. It is badly supplied with water, the inhabitants depending on a capacious reservoir filled by the rains, and a pond, which becomes nearly dry in summer when it emits noxious exhalations. Notwithstanding its ill-omened situation it ranks second only to Tunis in trade and population. Kairwan was the first seat of Saracenic empire in Barbary and still exhibits many fine relics of its ancient grandeur, in the fragments of beautiful architecture which abound in it, besides one of the most magnificent mosques in Barbary. Pop. estimated at 50,000.

KAISARIYAH or KASAKIRYEH (anc. Caesarea), a town in Asiatic Turkey, near Karamana, cap. dist. of same name, 143 m. S.E. Angora, on a fertile plain lat. 38° 40' N. lon. 35° 20' E. It is walled; the houses are of stone and well built, though many of them exhibit cracks and dilapidations, produced by an earthquake in 1835; the streets are narrow and so very dirty, that the whole town may be said to breathe pestilence. Among objects worthy of notice may be mentioned a bridge erected by Soliman the Great, and several mosques. The Armenians have two churches, with a bishop; there is also a Greek church. The bazars are extensive and well supplied. The principal Armenian merchants exhibit their goods in a large place, called the Yasar Khan these consist chiefly of iron wares (many of them of German manufacture) snuff boxes, glass beads, shells, from the Red Sea in strings, for ornamenting pack-saddles &c. scissors, paper and cards. The chief articles of native produce are yellow beehives and gill nets, which are sent to Smyrna; also trigonometrical mounds and a blue dye made from the loss of wine. The number of houses is estimated at 10,000 of which 5000 may be Turkish, 2500 Armenian and 500 Greek. Pop. above 80,000—(Hamilton's Asia Minor)

KAISARIYAH is in Palestine. See CESAREA
KAISERBERG is in France. See KATZENBERG

KAISERLACKTERN a town in Bavaria, Palatinate cap. dist. of same name on the Lautern here crossed by a bridge, and on the Main-Ludwig Railway 43 m. S.E. W. Mainz. It is walled has several public offices, a L. school, and two Protestant parish churches a normal and other schools and the remains of an old castle, built by Frederick Barbarossa, and now converted into a central prison. Manufactures of woollen cloth, cotton goods, hosiery and leather a paper and other mills, and important iron works, supplied from iron mines in the neighbourhood. Three successive engagements were fought here, in 1793—between the French and Germans. Pop. to 6500 dist. 47 674.

KAISERSWALD a village in Bohemia, circle of, and 85 m. N.N.E. Leitmeritz, near the frontiers of Saxony at the foot of the Böhmerwald, with a school, manufactures of linen and two mills. Pop. 1707

KALOFRIVELI is a town in the Rhodanese, gov. of, and 6 m. N.W. Dalmatide parish church, a Capuchin monastery and a large Protestant establishment, comprehending a female normal school, an orphan asylum, a hospital and a seminary of deaconesses, in which evangelical classes of charity are trained and has manufactures of silk velvet, tobacco, and earthenware cotton and worsted mills some shipping a considerable shipping trade, a ferry across the Rhine, and three annual fairs. Pop. 1919

KALSTEN (Owen and Letzen), two contiguous villa, forming a pair Wasserscheid, cau. Argen, circle of, and about 2 m. from Leuzenbourg, in a small and somewhat rugged valley. They contain a parish church and have a trade in corn and wine, grown in the district. Pop. 1134

KALITZ a market and village in the Caylon, N. end. Hence generally of a name descriptive, with a small, near E. Catholic church, and a courthouse. Its harbour affords safe anchorage at all seasons, and is much frequented by country craft and small vessels. There are here the ruins of an old Portuguese fort. The greater portion of the inhabitants are employed in fishing. Kalitz was in former times subject to dreadful inundations, by which many of the inhabitants, and great numbers of cattle perished—(Ceylon Gazetteer)

KAJAL, a village in Hungary Thither Uniole, co. Presburg, in a fertile district, about 14 m. from Nagy Komlath with a Protestant parish church. Pop. 1260

KAJANA, or KAJANA, a town in Russia, principality Pskov, gov. of, and 64 m. S.E. Usladborg, cap. dist. of same name, on a stream which flows out of Lake Nisnevskij into Lake Uda, and forms two remarkably fine cascades, one immediately above, and one below the town. It was a place of some importance, and was defended by a castle, which still exists, but in so dilapidated a state as to have been converted into magazines. It has a church, and several well-frequented fairs. Pop. 815.

KAJAHS, two places, Hungary—1. A village Thither Danube, gov. of, and 34 m. S.E. Usladborg, cap. dist. of same name, on a stream which flows out of Lake Nisnevskij into Lake Uda, and forms two remarkably fine cascades, one immediately above, and one below the town. It was a place of some importance, and was defended by a castle, which still exists, but in so dilapidated a state as to have been converted into magazines. It has a church, and several well-frequented fairs. Pop. 815.

KAJDATE, a village in Hungary co. of, and 13 m. N.W. Tolna, on the Palatinat Canal, with two churches, and a trade in corn and tobacco. Pop. 1234.

KAKASD or KOKAS, a village in Hungary, co. Tolna, near Szaszard, with a R. Catholic parish church, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 999.

KAKAYA an island in Asiatic Turkey, near Anadolu S. coast lat. 36° 36' N. lon. 29° 53' E. about 5 m. long, but of unequal breadth—the S.W. half being very narrow and the other exceedingly irregular. It has a small harbour at its N.E. extremity called Jort Rhiphano.

KAKISIA is in Asiatic Turkey See KARAKISIA

KAKOVA,—1. A village in Hungary, Thither Thrus, co. Krasova, 44 m. N.E. K. Temesvar in a beautiful district on the Karas. It contains a parish church. Pop. 1532—2. (Aulova or Arkhelo) a village in Transylvania, co. Noida-Welsenburg, on a mountain slope, 12 m. from Hermannstadt, with a Greek non united parish church. Pop. 1063

KALABACH or KALABACH, a town in Punjab, bank Indus, 68 m. S.W. Attock, lat. 32° 37' N. lon. 71° 37' E. It rises on the foot of a steep eminence, overlooking the road and the river. There are extensive ruins, in the vicinity, the efforts from which, added to the extreme natural heat of the place in summer renders the air unwholesome. Great quantities of salt also are extracted here for the supply of W. India and Afghanistan. There is, likewise, a salt in the vicinity but it is of poor quality and in unequal demand. The Indus is navigable to this town at all seasons. Pop. about 2000

KALABISIEF (Ria), a village in Nubia, bank Nile, 80 m. N.N.E. Iker, lat. 23° 30' N. lon. 32° 55' E. Here are the ruins of the largest temple in Nubia, consisting of a nave, portico, and area but having sculptures of very inferior style. The ancient town stood on the N. and N. of the temple and extended along the hill behind towards the Bay of W. Nile, which is strewn with bricks and broken pottery.

KALACSA two places Hungary—1. A village Thither Thrus, co. Temesvar 2 m. from Mosoncor with a church Pop. 1263—2. A village, co. Bihar 12 m. from Balonta with a church and a trade in corn. Pop. 839

KALADY, or KALADY, a village in the Polotsk, circle and 20 m. N. W. of, on the Lomskits with a chapel, gymnasia, school manufactures of potash, and a saw mill. Pop. 971

KALAFAT a town in Little Walacha, cap. dist. and on a plain of same name, bank Danube about 3 m. E. W. of, on the opposite bank, and 370 m. N.W. Constantinople. It is surrounded with walls consists of about 2000 houses, and has three churches, a town hall, custom-house, quarantine, and cavalry barracks. It has recently become a strong military position, the Turks having (1853-4) thrown up formidable redoubts and other works partly on two high hills in the plain while availing the attack of the Russians.

KALAH-JIK, a town in Asiatic Turkey, near Anadolu, 34 m. E.N.E. Angora, at the foot of a hill, crowned by a fine old, but rather dilapidated castle. It contains 600 Mahomedan and 60 Armenian houses, 14 mosques, a Khan a public bath, an Armenian church, and the ruins of a Moslem monastery.

KALAJICH is in Punjab, 10 m. S. Dera Ismael Khan, with a considerable commerce, lat. 31° 48' N. lon. 70° 50' E.
KALAMAKI BAY, Asiatic Turkey, near Anadolu, S. coast lat. 38° 10' N. lon. 29° 38' E. At the extremity of the cape, which forms the W. side of the bay, are the ruins of the ancient Palaea.

KALAMATA, a to Group. See KALAMATA.
KALAMAZOO, a river, U States, Michigan, rising near the E. extremity of the state, and, after a winding course, generally W N W, of 80 m., falling into Lake Michigan, 41 m. N. the St. Joseph. It has an average depth of 15 ft. for 8 m. from its mouth, and is, at all times, navigable for small craft 88 m. upwards.

KALAMO, a lat Greece. See KALAMO.
KALAMIA, or KALAMIA, a vill, lat Ceylon, once the cap. of a principality, pleasantly situated on the banks of a river of some name, about 10 m. N E Colombo. It has a number of neat houses, a Protestant and a E. Catholic church, and some native places of worship, with a large figure of Buddha in a sitting posture, which attracts an immense concourse of pilgrims from every part of the island, during the celebration of the principal festival in July.

KALANNA, a to Nigritia, cap. kingdom of same name about 246 m. S. S. W. Timbuctoo. It has a numerous and industrious population.

KALANATA, a state, Malay Peninsula. See KALANATA.
KALASANO, or KALASANO, a vill Hungary, Thither Danube, to of, and about 15 m. from Vienna. It is a thriving place, with a Protestant parish church two mills, and a trade in corn, wine, and tobacco. Pop. 827.

KALAT, a to Beloochistan. See KALAT.
KALAFIA, a lat Indian Archipelago Flores Sea lat. 7 12 S lon 121 45 E, called Old Klaut by the Dutch. It is pretty large, and is inhabited by a treacherous people.

KALAU, or KALAU, a to Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. and 50 m. S. W. Frankfurt-on-the-Oder, cap. circle of same name, on the Oder. It has two churches and many factories of woollen and linen cloth, a trade in wool and cattle, and two mills. Pop. 2177. — The KAUEN is flat and sandy. Area, 291 geo. sq. m. Pop. 40,606.

KALAVITIA, a to Greece, more Achana and Elis, 27 m. S E Patras, on the edge of a plain on both sides of a torrent which descends from Mount Olympos, whose W summit, covered with snow is seen over the back of the town. In a cave in the vicinity are two ancient catacombs on the side of a hill. Though Kalavritia is supposed to be the site of the ancient Cynopetra, these are the only remains of antiquity which it possesses. Pop. about 2160.

KALHE, a to Prussia. See KALHE.
KALBOH, or KALBOH, a vill Transylvania, co, and 3 m. from Fogaras, on a mountain, with two churches. Pop. 1069.

KALD (also and FELD), a vill Hungary Thither Danube, co Eisenburg, about 10 m. from Salabach with a church, a castle, and a trade in corn and wine. 1 op. 1040.

KALDENKIRCHEN, a to Rhenish Prussia gov. of and 27 m. N W W Düsseldorf, on a height. It was once well fortified, but only small portions of its walls now remain; has a Protestant and a E. Catholic parish church manufactures of linen and cotton goods, ribbons, soap, vinegar, curry, and tobacco and a trade in these articles. Pop. 1707.

KALE SUNA, a vill and caravanerai, Hindoostan, Punjab, 32 m. S. E. Attock, on the halce, a tributary of the Rurreto, lat. 33 44 N, lon 72 49 E. At a short distance to the N W of the village is a banal or great well, the water of which is reached by a descent of 100 steps. The surrounding country is remarkably rocky rugged, and barren.

KALENBERG, or KALENBERG, a principality Hanover, prov. or landgraviat Hanover bounded N and E by the co of Hoya, and the principalities of Lüneburg and Hildesheim, and S. and W. by Brunswick, Lippe, Lippe-Deimold, &c. In the N it is flat and marshy. In the E hilly and fertile. It contains ten towns, of which the chief is Hanover. Area, 800 geo. sq. m. Pop. 169,318.

KALGAN, a to China, prov. Chihli, 100 m. N W Peking, 1 bank of the most N of the head-streams of the Hsiao-Hsi; lat. 40° 50' N, lon 115° 8' E. It is a depot of the overland trade between China and Russia.

KALGUSSEW, or KALGUSSEW, an island Russia, in the Arctic Ocean, N of gov. Arhangelsk, between lat. 63 41 and 69 27 N, lon. 65° and 65° 10' E, length, N to S, about 60 m., and breadth 40 m. It is about 60 m. distant from the mainland, and is surrounded by shoals. The ground, which is at first gently undulating, rises towards the centre, which is covered by some hills of considerable height, the far greater part of the surface being covered with mosses, swamps, and shrubs of no value. Its few inhabitants live chiefly by fishing, and gathering eggs and feathers, for which they are valued by the merchants of Moscow and Archangel.

KALIE, CAIA, or CAIA, a river, Hindoostan, prov. Malwa, joining the Chumbul, 62 m. N by W Ujain, after a N course of 140 m., none of which is navigable.

KALIMNO, or KALIMNO, an island, Grecian Archipelago off the coast of Asia Minor between Cos and Lero; highest summit, 2200 ft., lat. 36 68' 43" N lon 27° E. (a) It is of triangular shape, 11 m. long, and about 5 m. broad, mountains, but the soil is fertile, and celebrated for its honey. On the S. side of the island is the port of Kalimno, on the W the village of Lissos, below which there is anchorage, and on the E the ports Validi and Katsouli, both having a good depth of water, but open to E winds.

KALINFULVA FELAO, or KALINTERTY, a vill Hungary, Thither Thelso, co Marmaros, on the Kaszo, 12 m. from Salgeth with a Greek church. Pop. 1062.

KALISCH, or KALING, a city, Russian Poland, on the Prussian frontier, cap. palatinat of same name, on an island in the Prosna, 132 m. W S. W. Warsaw lat. 51 45' N, lon. 19 13 E, considered one of the best cities of Poland, and one of the principal places in point of mercantile wealth and trade. It is surrounded by a wall, flanked with numerous towers, and entered by four gates, and has ten churches, three convents, one synagogue a E. Catholic gymnasium, with a fine library and extensive scientific collections, a military school theatre, public garden, house of charity and three hospitals. The streets are spacious, and well paved and some of them adorned with trees. The houses are well built. The most remarkable edifices are, the palace of the volodves, in which the court of law is now held, the cathedral of St. Joseph, the church of St. Nicholas, and that of the Lutheran. It has linen, woollen and leather manufactures, and six fairs are held annually. Kalisch was founded about 855 and was long the residence of the dukes of Great Poland. At a little distance from the city the Swedes were defeated by the Poles, in 1706; in 1835 a grand military review was held here attended by the Emperors of Austria and Russia, and the King of Prussia. July 18 and 19, 1852 a considerable portion of the city was burned down 1 up. 11,000, of whom 2500 were injured.

KALIKAS, or KHALIKAS, a country, Chinese empire, the N part of Mongolia bounded N by Siberia, and S by the desert of Gobi, and extending from the Altai and Tianshan mountains E. to the sources of the Amoor, about lat. 45 to 52 30' N, lon 88 to 115 E. Much of the surface is mountainous but much of it is also covered by vast plains or steppes. The numerous head-streams of the Selenge, and some of those of the Yenisei and Amoor rise in this territory, and in the W part are several lakes of considerable size, smaller ones being scattered over the central and E parts. Many of these lakes have no outlet, and are salt. The kalikas or inhabitants of this territory do not cultivate the soil to any extent. They render an annual tribute to the Emperor of China of horses, camels, sheep, &c., or their skins, but receive presents in return, of many times the value of those they give. Their tents are made of a framework of cane covered with layers of felt, the hearths are in the centre, and few of them have more than two apartments. The lodges of the wealthy, however, have several, and are elegantly furnished; but destitute of cleanliness, comfort, or ornaments. Most of their clothes, utensils, and arms, are procured from the Chinese. Many of them derive a livelihood from conducting caravans across the country, but chiefly depend on the produce of their herds and hunting. A considerable trade is carried on with Russia, through Melmaolin and Khatika. The territory is divided into four khanates, governed by native chiefs, each claiming descent from Genghis Khan, who was a native of the Kalik country. These chiefs or khanes are subordinate to two Manchoo superintendents, resident in Kharu or Orga, the largest town in Mongolia. Much of the real power however, is in the hands of a kind of high-priest, called the butshu, also resident in the capital. The religion is Buddhism.

KAL KOON, or TUNKER Island, a group of islands, Java Sea, N E Kangleang lat. 6° 31' S; lon. 118° 39' E. (a) They are low and small, with dangerous coral banks projecting from them far out to the E.

KALLAKANDI, a tn. of W Adfoa, N from Dahomey, about 70 m. S. by W Adfoa, lat. 12° 2' N, lon. 1° 25' E. It is a place of considerable importance, and on market-days presents a scene of great bustle and activity. Sheep, goats, oxen, and small, but handsome horses, are here exposed for sale, amongst numerous other commodities. There is also a slave-market, where great numbers of slaves are bought and sold. Gold-work is done in a vigorous manner, and billhooks and axes neatly fabricated. The warrers also display considerable taste in the manufacture of a cloth peculiar to the place. The country around is well cultivated, the inhabitants being excellent farmers.

KALLAVESI, a lake, Russia, Finland, circle Kuopio; greatest length, N W to S.E., about 34 m. mean breadth about 6 m. It is of very irregular shape, contains a great number of islands, and lies between the lakes of Ruokovani and Eokavani, communicating with the former on the N.W., and with the latter on the S.

KALLMUNZ, a market tn. Bavaria, Upper Palatinate, at the confluence of the Mal with the Vils, which is here crossed by a bridge, 13 m. N.W. Ratisbon. It has a parish church, townhouse, and hospital, manufactures of muslin, strings, and two mills. Hops are much cultivated in the vicinity. Pop. 1128.

KALLO a vil. Hungary. Hither Danube, co. Xetograd about 20 m. from Matvas with a R. Catholic parish church, and a trade in timber. Pop. 1343.

KALLO (NAGY), a market tn. Hungary. Thither Theres, emp. co. Szabolcs 25 m. N.N.E. Debrecen. It has county buildings, two churches, manufactures of potash, and several annual fairs. Pop. 5349.

KALLHOLM, a lake, Sweden in the N.W. of lin Osterund, about 15 m. long N.W. to S.E., by about 9 m. broad. It is connected with a chain of lakes which extend to the frontiers of Norway, and is enclosed by lofty mountains, one of which on its S. side, is 4900 ft. high. It communicates, by the Holmsund, with Lake Storsjön on the S.E.

KALLUNDBORG or CALUNDORP, a tn. Denmark, W side St. Seeland, but Holboek on the inner part of the deep fiord of same name, 57 m. W Copenhagen. It is an ancient place, and was formerly one of the most important towns in the kingdom, but has suffered much from war, at different times, and more recently in 1658, when it was devastated by the Swedes. It contains an ancient church, with five towers and the remains of a strong castle, in which King Christian II. was confined, and has an excellent winter harbor, of the 4th class, which admits vessels drawing 10 ft. to its quay and a trade in corn and wool. Steam-packets sail regularly between Kallundborg and Aarhus; there is also a ferry to Hemsbyvælle, in the island of Samsø. Pop. 2400.

KALMAR, or CALMAR, a seaport tn. Sweden, emp. lin of same name, beautifully situated on the W. part of the mouth of the same, between Sweden and Gland, 315 m. S.S.W. Stockholm (lat. church) 59° 30' N lon. 16° 22' E. (n). It consists partly of the town-proper situated on an island, and partly of a suburb on the mainland, and connected with it by a bridge and is generally built of wood, but with considerable regularity. It is the see of a bishop, residence of a governor, contains a handsome stone cathedral, finely situated in an open space near the centre of the town, surrounded by a colonnade, and remarkable for the loftiness of its ceiling, unsupported by pillars; a town-house, a gymnasium, with library, and collections of natural history, and rooms of convocation for the lin, and an old castle, surrounded on three sides by the sea, and celebrated in the early history of Sweden, and has manufactures of woollen stuffs and tobacco, a sugar-refinery, and several tanneries, two dockyards and a good harbour, at which a considerable trade is carried on. The principal exports are wood and masts. Pop. 6964. The L.I. is bounded N and N.W. by Linköping, W. by Västervik and Westra, S. by Carlskrona, and E. by the Baltic Sea. It is rather mountainous in the N., but flattens towards the S. It is watered by the Åmne, contains several small lakes, and has a bold rocky coast, lined by small islands. The soil in the higher districts, is covered with rocks and stones, but in other quarters is light and tolerably fertile, producing corn sufficient for the home consumption, and a good deal of flax. Numerous cattle are reared; the forest, chiefly of beech and pine, are extensive, and furnish excellent fuel and timber; and the productive fisheries on the coast furnish employment and subsistence to a considerable number of the inhabitants. Area, about 2600 sq. m. Pop. (1840), 155,041.

KALMINA, or CALMINA a tn. of W. Africa, Dahomey, about 15 m. S.E. Abomey; lat. 7° 25' N, lon. 3° 25' E. Pop. 18,000.

KALMIUR, a river, Russia, which rises in gov. Ekaterinodar flows S.E.W., forming the boundary between that gov. and that of Don Cossacks, and after a course of nearly 90 m., falls into the Sea of Azov at Mariupol.

KALMUCKS a tribe. See CALMUCKS.

KALNA, a vil. Bohemia, circle of, and 20 m. N.E. Bidachow, on a small stream of the same name, an estate of the Edla, with a church, school, manufactures of cotton, a saw and other mills. Pop. 1469.

KALO GURBA, a river of Ceylon. It rises near Adam's Peak, and falls into the Gulf of Mannar at Calcutra. It is only 60 m. in length, but is sufficiently large to be navigable for boats for three-fourths of its course.

KALOCSA two places, Hungary.—1, (Kalocsa, or Kalocse), a vil. Thither Theres, emp. co. Marosmar on the Tisza, 35 m. from Raasdorf near the frontiers of Galicia. It consists of five distinct portions, and contains a Greek parish church. Pop. 3323.—2, (Kalocsa, or Kalocsa), a vil. Thither Danube, co. of, and 67 m. S. Pesth, in a marshy and unhealthy district, near L. bank Danube. It was once strongly fortified and was a place of great importance, till it was almost destroyed by the Turks. It is still the see of an archbishop, has a cathedral several other churches, a bishop's palace, ecclesiastical seminary, Mariet college, lyceum, gymnasium, and head national school, and several fairs. Pop. 6000.

KALOOPASS a lofty pass in N.E. Afghanistan, over the R. Hindu Kohat, 50 m. W by W Cabool; lat. 34° 40' N lon. 67° 45' E. with an elevation of about 13,000 ft.

KALOOGKONG a native state. Indian Archipelago, S.E. coast of Bali. It is the oldest and poorest native state in the island, having a rocky, unfertile soil.

KALOZ, a market tn. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. of and 16 m. S.E. Schremsburg, in a fertile but marshy district on the Palatin Canal, with a castle, two churches, an infirmary and a trade in horses and cattle. Pop. 2760.

KALPÉE, or CALPÉE, a tn. Hindoostan, prov. Agr. R. bank Jumna, about 60 m. S.W. Calcutra; lat. 26° 10' N lon. 79° 41' E. The original town stood on the plain remote from the river, but repeated Marhatta incursions induced the inhabitants to remove it to its present position among extensive ravines, where there is a small fort which commands the navigation of the Jumna. The town is large and populous, and carries on a considerable trade. It is an entrepot for the cotton of the B.W. territories, and is noted for its paper and sugar-candy.

KALPUN, two of the Laccadive Is., Indian Ocean, off W coast Hindoostan joined together by a reef above water. lat. (S. point), 10° 5' N lon. 75° 35' E. (n). They are narrow and low, with a steep coral reef on the W. side. The S. and largest island, on which there are a few small villages, is well planted with coco-nut trees.

KALSHING or KALSTH, a market tn. Bohemia circle of, and 14 m. S.W. Budweis, in a valley on the Blitzebach. It contains a parish church, and a hospital; and has several mills, a weekly corn-market, and four annual fairs, chiefly for the sale of woollen articles and earthenware. P. 835.

KALSEE, a tn. of N Hindoostan, prov. Gujerat, near the junction of the Tense with the Jumna, 180 m. N.N.E. Delhi; lat. 30° 55' N lon. 77° 50' E. It is one of the chief marts in this part of the country.

KALTENBRUNN a vil and par Switzerland can. of, and 28 m. S.W. St. Gall, on the road from Glarus to Zürich. It is well built, contains a handsome parish church, with a lofty bellry, forming a conspicuous object at a great distance and has an important annual fair chiefly for horses. Lignite is found in the vicinity. Pop. 1455.

KALTENBRUNN a vil Austria Tyrol, dist. Leodach. It is chiefly situated in the valley of Kamm, and contains a church, to which numerous pilgrimages are made.—S. A vil. Hungary, co. and 3 m. from Frensbury, with a church and a trade in corn and wine. Pop. 421.—S. A vil. Hungary, co. Himmberg. See Himmberg.

KALTENSDORFHEIM, a tn. Germany, Saxa-Wesmar, Kamenetz, circle and 21 m. S.W. Kamenetz, cap. hall. of same name, on the Fulda, near the Bavarian frontier. It has a court of justice, a castle, and two churches; manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, a tannery, blacksmith, and wrought and several other mills. Coal is worked to some extent in the vicinity. Pop. 1900 Area of hall. 40 sq. m. Pop. 7500

KALTENWESTEN, a vil. Württemberg, circle Neckar, hall. Balingen, 18 m. N. Stuttgart. It has a parish church and in the vicinity are the ruins of the old feudal castle of Leichenstein. Pop. 1871

KALTERHERRBERG a vil. Ehrenb. Prussia, gov. of, and 18 m. S.E. Aix-la-Chapelle, with a church, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, and a worsted mill. P. 1872

KALTERN, a tn. and com. Austria. See CALBERN.

KALUGA, a central gov. Russia; bounded, W and N.W. by Smolensk, N.E. Moscow, E. Tula, and S. Orel; lat. 58° 24' to 56° 30' N., lon. 35° 40' to 37° E. The country presents the appearance of an almost uninterrupted flat. It is well wooded, having no fewer than 18 streams, some of them of considerable size, particularly the Oka, which is navigable by barges throughout the year, and the Upa, navigable only when the water is high. There are also several small lakes, and occasional morasses. The climate is one of the most temperate in Russia. Winter sets in about the end of November and disappears by March. There are quarries of millstones, and the mineral productions are bog iron-ore, chalk, and gypsum. About one-half of the surface is covered by forests, and the greater part of the remainder is fit for cultivation. The soil is of a clayey and sandy nature and with difficulty yields a return of five-fold. The favourite crop is barley, but other cereals—wheat, rye, and millet, and also buckwheat and beans—are likewise grown, though to a less extent, and the quantity produced does not meet the consumption. Hemp and flax are grown to a large extent, and though much of it is worked up in the district, a considerable surplus remains for export, along with oil and cake. Not many cattle, but a considerable number of horses are bred. Neither game nor fish abound. Though the district is not rich in iron, the ample supply of fuel has made it the seat of an important iron trade. A large quantity of iron, both pig and malleable, is produced. Manufactures are also successfully carried on; and woollens, linen, silks, calicoes, silk velvets, ribbons, leather, paper and glass are largely exported. There are also numerous distilleries for brandy. The inhabitants are active, very temperate, and, in general, in comfortable circumstances. Area, about 10,000 sq. m. Pop. (1850), 1,036,500

KALUGA, a tn. Russia, cap. of above gov., stands on an elevation, r. bank Oka, 98 m. S.W. Moscow; lat. 54° 30' N., lon. 36° 10' E. It is nearly 7 m. in circumference, though the number of houses does not exceed 4000, and it is surrounded by a rampart, which has been turned into a walk. The town is of an inferior description; the streets being narrow and crooked and the houses for the most part of wood though several of the public buildings, which are built of stone, are handsome. It has 23 churches, a college for priests, a nursery, a foundling hospital, and a theatre. No mineral manufactures, but particularly of silks to supply the navy, make Kaluga a stirring place, and entitle it to be regarded as one of the most important manufacturing towns in the Russian dominions. Pop. (1850) 38,560.

KALUMULLE, a small tn. Ceylon, on the road from Colombo to Galle, about 4 m. S. Galle, with a Wesleyan mission school, and several R. Catholic chapels. The district hitherto of search is carried on here to a considerable extent. Pop. about 1000. (Open Gazetteer.)

KALUSKA, a tn. Austria, Galicia, circle of, and 38 m. S.E. Strzy, among the Carpathian mountains, on the torrent Lomnica, by which much wood is here floated down. It contains a R. Catholic parish church, in which both the Greek and the Latin rituals are used and has salt-works. P. 3000.

KALWARIA, a tn. and com. Austria, Galicia, 19 m. S.W. Olesow, in a mountainous district. It is poorly built; and has a parish church, a castle, and a Bernardine monastery with a chapel in the vicinity, to which numerous pilgrimages are made. There is a large number of fields and meadows, and a good trade in them is carried on.

KALWARIA, or KALWARIA, a tn. Russian Poland, prov. Augustow, cap. dist. of same name, 176 m. N.E. Warsaw.

lat. 54° 36' N.; lon. 23° 14' E. It is well built, but the streets are not paved; has three R. Catholic churches, a synagogue, and two well-frequented fairs. Barren fertile, but marshy. Pop. (1841) 7628.

KAMA,—1, A river, Russia, the largest tributary of the Volga. It rises in a branch of the Ural mountains, on the E. border of gov. Viatka, lat. 53° N., lon. 58° 40' E. First taking a N., and then a N.E. course, it enters the gov. Perm, turns E. and pursuing a winding course, mainly S., reaches the town of Perm. Next, taking a S.W. course, it again enters and forms the S.E. boundary of the gov. of Viatka. Finally, entering the gov. of Kazan it proceeds S.W. and, after a course of nearly 1000 m., and about 40 m. from the town of Kazan it meets the l. bank of the Volga, and, by the accession of its waters, almost doubles that mighty river. It is navigable almost throughout its course. About 168 m. N. by W. Perm, it receives the Inga Kama on the l. bank, thus stream is connected by canal with the Sivera Kama, an affluent of the Volga, thus uninterrupted water-carriage is established between the Caspian and the Arctic Seas—2 (or Kozner), a river Central Asia, rising in Gilgit, in the Hindoo-Koosh. It flows S.W., across Kashmir, enters Cabool and joins the Cabool river on its l. bank lat. 34° 34' N. lon. 70° 55' E. Total course, 290 m., but still not a large river.

KAMAKURA, a small tn. Japan, on the S.E. coast, lat. Nippon. It is a place of banishment for the grandees who have fallen into disgrace.

KAMAL, a tn. Indian Archipelago, S.W. coast, lat. Madura, with a good haven. It is the landing-place coming from Soerabaya, and a canal leads from it several miles inland.

KAMALIA, a small ancient-looking tn. Punjab, 8 m. from r. bank Ravi, lat. 30° 44' N.; lon. 73° 38' E. built of burnt bricks, with fortifications and houses of the same materials.

KAMAR (23), Mountains of the Moon. See ARECA.

KAMARAN, or KAMARAN, a tn. Red Sea, W. coast Yemen, near Cape Isad, lat. 15° 17' N., lon. 49° 32' E. (n) The island, which is about 15 m. in length, N.E. to S.W., and 5 m. broad is composed of hard rock, intermixed with sand, in some parts very capable of cultivation, and has some spots on which date-trees flourish. It is generally low, swampy in the N. bet. toward the S. are a few small hills. Including Kamaran there are seven small villages on the island, consisting mostly of a few miserable huts belonging to slaves employed on the pearl banks, turtle islands, &c. in its neighbourhood. There is good anchorage in the small bay of Kamaran near the S.E. part of the island.

KAMATA, a considerable tn., W. Africa, dist. Koronko, N.E. Sierra Leone on the route between Rokelle and Palaha. lat. 9° 15' N. lon. 11° 6' W. It is built on the pinnacle of a hill, and quite inaccessible, excepting by its two entrances which are thickly stocked on their sides with strong palisades, and guarded by double and massive gates of hardwood.

KAMBARA, one of the Peleje islands, S. Pacific. lat. (S. point) 18° 55' E. lon. 178° 25' W. (n) It is of a rectangular form, about 3½ m. long and 2 m. wide, fertile and well wooded, the timber is esteemed above that of all the other islands of the group for canoe-building. On the N.W. side of the island, a remarkable bell-shaped peak, covered with rich verdure, rises to the height of 850 ft.

KAMBING, or KAMBORA, lat. Flores. See CAMBING.

KAMBURG or CAMBURG a tn. Germany, Rhenish-Prussia, cap. circle of its own name, 84 m. S.E. Leipzig, r. bank Saale, here crossed by a bridge. It has a church, two breweries, two tile-works, and some trade with wool. Near it are a mill, two tile-works, and a stone quarry. The circle was once a county. Area, 40 sq. m. Pop. 8311.

KAMBURI, a tn. Siam See CAMBORA.

KAMEL, a vil. of W. Africa, Fouta-Djalla, l. bank Senegal, lat. 15° 22' N.; lon. 13° 55' W. Its market for millet is much frequented.

KAMENETZ, or KAMENETZ See PODOLSK.

KAMENETZ, or KAMENETZ, a tn. Russian Poland, cap. prov. Podolsk, on the Smerech, about 12 m. from its junction with the Dniester, lat. 48° 45' N. lon. 30° 30' E. It is defended by a fortress built upon a rock, which, however is commanded by a neighbouring height. The town is well built, without being regular. The most remarkable public buildings are the R. Catholic cathedral, the church of the Dominicans, three other R. Catholic, one Armenian, and four Black, abundant; with several convents, the Government strongly, and new greenhouses. It was for a long time considered the principal husband of Poland on the side of Turkey. Pop. 12,000.

KAMENITZ, or KAMENICE, three towns, Austria.—1, in Bohemia, circle of, and 18 m. S.E. Tabor. It is a plain, but poorly-built place; contains a deanery church, a court-house, town-hall, school, and a large old castle, and has two mills and six annual fairs. In the garden of the castle is a gigantic lime-tree, 400 years old, from which the town sometimes receives the surname of Kamenitz-am-der-Linde. Pop. 2361.—2, A market town, Moravia, circle of, and 11 m. E. Igla, with a parish church, a church, a school, a saw and numerous other mills. Pop. 1669.—3, A market town, Bohemia, on Silesia, 7 hank Danube, in a beautiful plain, 2 m. S.W. Peterwarden, with two churches. Pop. 1944.

KAMENSKOE, a vil. Asiatic Russia, gov. Okhotsk, near Penzhin, at the mouth of the Penzina.

KAMENSKOI, a market town, Russia, gov. Perm S.W. near Kamyshkova, at the junction of the Kamenska and Iset with an iron forge and cannon foundry. Pop. 6000.

KAMIN, or a vil. Prussia, gov. Posen, gov. Oppeln circle

Buckow, with a parish church, Macklin, and mills. P. 538.

KAMIONKA, a town, Austria, Galice, circle of, and 13 m. N.W. Zloczow. 1 hank. Bur. with a Greek and 8 Catholic church. It stands in a district covered with magnificent timber. Pop. 2345.

KAMIK, or KAMIKER, a maritime town, Persia, on the Persian Gulf prov. Laristan, opposite al. Kishm lat. 27° 0' N. lon. 55° 40' E. There are sulphur mines in the vicinity, the produce of which is shipped here for Muscat.

KAMISHIN, or a vil. Russia, gov. of and 99 m. S.W. Saratov, lat. 50° 5' N. lon. 45° 30' E. It is a large vilage, at the confluence of the Kamyshenka, which runs through the town. It is walled, and has two churches. On the opposite side of the Volga are large magazines for salt, which is obtained in vast quantities from Lake Elton. Pop. 8100.—THE CIRCLE forms an extensive steppe contains a number of salt lakes and several fertile tracts but not much wood.

KAMIRILOV, or a vil. Siberia. See KAMTSCHLOWA

KAMITZ, or a vil. Prussia, gov. Posen, gov. Oppeln circle Nasse, with a parish church, a saw and two other mills. P. 1548.

KAMM, or a vil. of W. Africa, lat. 16° 28' N. lon. 16° 19' W. The women fabricate mats, which are highly valued by the negroes and which they sell to the French they also devote themselves to the drying of fish. The plains in the vicinity unutilized during winter produce in abundance cottonseed rice.

KAMMENOI-Ostrov two small isls. Russia. The one is in gov. Petersburg, at the mouth of the Nava, and immediately N.W. of the capital, with which it communicates by a bridge. It contains a palace, in which different superiors have occasionally resided, and a small Gothic church. The other island is in the N. of the Caspian Sea, near Girav.

KAMERSWALD, or a vil. Prussia, gov. Posen, gov. Oppeln circle Legnica, circle Schönnau, with a Protestant and a Catholic church, a castle, and several mills. Pop. 1245.

KAMNITZ, or a vil. Bohemia, circle of, and 26 m. N.N.E. Leutenants, on a small stream of same name, in a mountainous district. It contains a church, a school, and a hospital. Pilgrimages are made an old castle, in ruins, and an hospital and has a brewery, distillery and two mills. Pop. 2221.

KAMOCZA, or KAMOTZA, a vil. Hungary Thüder Danube, co. of, and 12 m. N.W. Komern on the Waag. It contains a Protestant parish church and has a considerable trade in corn, fruit, and tobacco. Pop. 1380.

KAMOTTA, one of the Nicobar isls. See CANOTTA

KAMOUKASKA—1, A co. Lower Canada, 7 hank St. Lawrence lat. (centre) 47° 13' N. lon. 69° 43' W. 168 m. long by 40 m. broad area, 4300 sq. m. The surface of this county is uneven and mountainous, particularly in the S.E. section. The soil is diversified, but in many places excellent. It is well watered by lakes and rivers.—2, A river which flows N.W. through the same county, and falls into the St. Lawrence about lat. 47° 33' N. lon. 69° 43' W.—3, A group of small rocky islets in the St. Lawrence, opposite the mouth of the Katoconkwa river. They are almost bare rocks, but are of great utility in sheltering small vessels, and form the stem of some extensive fisheries of herring, staid, salmon, spruce, flounder and mackerel.—4, A vil. pleasantly situated near the mouth of the Katoconkwa. The houses are nearly of wood, but a few are well built of stone. During summer, it is much frequented by visitors for the benefit of some bathing, being reputed one of the healthiest spots in the province.

KAMP (Gnase), a river, Lower Austria, which rises on the N. frontiers of Bohemia, flows first E., past Zwettl, then S.E., and joins 1 hank Danube, about 9 m. below Krems, after a course of about 60 m. Its chief affluents are, on the right, the Klein Kamp, and, on the left, the Zwettl.

KAMPEN, a town and port, Holland, prov. Overijssel 45 m. E. N. E. Amsterdam, 1 hank and near the mouth of the IJssel, born crossed by a dike-bridge. It is walled but not fortified has several gates, towers, and remains of its former defences and is intersected by sundry canals. The centre of the town is densely, and the outskirts sparsely built and, stretching as it does along the river it is in shape long and narrow. Its principal buildings are an elegant town-house, built in an antique style, and a convent house. It has, likewise, two Calvinistic churches, both of which are fine, a Baptist and a Catholic church, several hospitals, and other benevolent institutions and numerous schools. Anciently it was one of the most flourishing of the Hanse towns, but its commerce is now limited to a few vessels trading to Hull. Its main features have also suffered but still it carries on to some extent damask calico, plush, and blanket-weaving, and ropemaking and has a tile and three brick fields, a pottery a cigar factory a distillery and two breweries. Pop. (1850) 10,879.—(Van der A.)

KAMPIHEE, a military station, Hindoostan, Madras, presid. prov. Gundwana about 10 m. N.E. Nagpore.

KAMTSCHATKA a long and rather narrow peninsula in the N.E. of Asia, forming a part of Siberia or Asiatic Russia, lat. 51° 01' N. lon. 155° 30' to 174° E., bounded N. by the country of the Tschuktschi, W. by the gov. and Sea of Okhotsk S. and S.E. by the N. Pacific, E. by the Sea of Kamtschatka length 870 m. breadth very irregular owing to numerous deep indentations, which exist on the E. and contrast with the regular uniformity of the W. side. At the middle, where it is widest, the breadth is 280 m. towards the N. it varies from 10 to 150 m. while in the S. it narrows rapidly on both sides, till it terminates in the long and narrow tongue of land which forms Cape Lopatka. The country, as seen from the sea, is rugged and desolate. Through its whole length, from N. to S., it is traversed by a chain of lofty mountains, crowned with numerous volcanoes, many of them extinct, but many also highly active. The names, positions, and heights of the most remarkable are as follows:—Awatshinskaya, lat. 53° 1' N. 8780 ft. Japanova, lat. 53° 35' N., 9060 ft. Korjakaya, lat. 53° 19' N. 11,215 ft. Kromokaya, lat. 54° 6' N. 10,450 ft. Kachinskaya, lat. 56° 40' N. 10,600 ft. and Khatibskaya, lat. 56° 6' N., 16,512 ft. The last is particularly described by Erman, who, in 1829, ascended within 8000 ft. of the summit and saw it in sublime activity pouring forth a continuous stream of lava, which, at first opposed in its progress by masses of snow and ice, soon burst the barrier, and precipitated itself into the sea, with a noise which was heard for a distance of more than 50 m. This mountain rises from a large base, which swells in an elliptical curve, surrounded by deep ravines, and crowned by four cones. There is nothing in its structure resembling a granitic mountain, or any other primitive rock. It is an igneous, and strongly bilaterated mass, with large crystals of Labrador felspar. The volcanoes of Kamtschatka are evidently part of a continuous line of volcanic action, which commences in the N. of the Aleutian Isles, in Russian America, and extends, first in a W. direction, for nearly 200 geo. m., and then S., without interruption, through a space of between 60° and 70° of latitude, to the Moluccas where it sends off a branch to the S.E. while the principal line continues W., through Borneo and Java to Sumatra, and then, in a N.W. direction, to the Bay of Bengal.—(Lyeil.) No part of Kamtschatka appears to be of primary formation. Supposing it divided into two sections, by a line drawn near its centre from N. to S., the E. section is wholly of igneous origin. The W. section may be divided into two heads, one of which comparatively narrow running N. and S., consists of the tertiary formation while the remainder, forming the W. side of the peninsula, is wholly necessary. The only river of any extent is the Kamtschatka, which rises at the foot of a mountain-knot in lat. 54°, and at a level far lower than might have been anticipated in a country abounding in lofty mountain-ranges, the heights of the source, above the level of the sea, being not more than 1500 ft. It has a course of about 500 m., and is navigable for about 150 m. Its basin, forming the valley of Kamtschatka, becomes hummed in by precipitous rocks toward the mouth of the river, but, farther S., it swells out sometimes to 40 m. and is by far the most fertile part of the peninsula.

The climate is very severe, and much more so on the E. coast than on the W. At Petropaulshafen on the E. coast, the mean annual temperature is only 28° 30', whereas that of Tigil, on the W., is 43° Fah. On an average of four years, the temperature of the former was, for spring, 81° 80', summer, 85° 80', harvest, 87° 30' and winter, 15°. In very severe frost the temperature falls far below the winter average, and has sometimes been — 15°. On the sea-coast, vegetation does not begin before the end of April but in the vale of Kamtschatka, in good shelter it is a month earlier. Notwithstanding the severity of the climate, forests of considerable extent occur, consisting of several species of birches, pines, poplars, and willows, while there is an undergrowth of shrubs, on which numerous berries grow; among others the raspberry and currant. On many of the tundras or moor levels, particularly when the ground is dry or strong, grows a Lonicera, called by the inhabitants Jusokot, bearing a close resemblance to the Lonicera Coerulea of our gardens with berries of a particularly pleasing taste, and said to be very nourishing. The natural pastures are also numerous, and their rank luxuriance sometimes so great, as to make journeying across them almost impossible. Agriculture is necessarily restricted to a few favoured spots, as both climate and animals fit for proper tillage are wanting. Cereals, however, such as, on the S. slopes, near the village of Kiliha, are seen in patches of rye and potatoes, and also stems of hemp of the tallest growth. He adds, that both summer and winter-sown wheat, barley and oats, thrive so well that were the surrounding plains carefully cultivated, they could furnish enough to supply the greater part of the inhabitants of the peninsula with bread-corn. In the same neighbourhood also he got ruder and finer favoured cow-milk than he had ever tasted.

The wild animals were at one time very plentiful, but have been much thinned by the hunters. Among them may be mentioned reindeer, wild sheep, bears, otters, beavers. The skins annually obtained consisting chiefly of those of the fox and sable, have been estimated at 30,000. Wild fowl abound. Ducks, of which at least twelve kinds are enumerated, are seen in all quarters, and lakes which, from being fed chiefly from hot springs, never freeze are the winter resort of flocks of swans. The rivers and coasts teem with fish. In the former are several varieties of salmon, some of them peculiar to the peninsula and on the latter are shoals of herrings and cod. Large numbers of seals are caught, and whales occasionally make their appearance.

Great attention is paid to the rearing of the sledge-dog a pack of which, consisting of six to twenty, every Kamtschatka justly regards as one of the necessities of life. These dogs are strongly built, rather long with a high step and short smooth hair, of a colour varying between yellowish fawn and jet black. They are very sagacious, and seem to enter into the very feelings of their masters. In summer they are set loose, and become their own purveyors, but with the return of frost their working season commences when, harnessed two and two, in trains perhaps of forty dogs, to sledges called arshas, consisting in their most primitive form, of a box of boards about 3 ft. long, and 1½ ft. in width and height, fastened to wooden runners, they often travel, at a rapid pace, 40 m. a day.

Though the extent of Kamtschatka is nearly equal to that of Great Britain, the inhabitants are estimated at not more than 5000. Of these, about a third are Russians. The remainder, forming the native population, consists of Korjaks and Kamtschadals. The former belong to the nomadic tribes of the N., and appear to have chosen Kamtschatka as an asylum after their defeat by the Tchukchi. The W. coast, from Tigil northwards and indeed the whole peninsula beyond lat. 55° N., is occupied by them. They are of middle stature, tawny and alpsy, with black, smooth, and rather long hair. Their language differs so much from that of the Kamtschadals as to indicate a different stock. Their great occupation is hunting the reindeer. The Kamtschadals present considerable diversity both of speech and exterior, and the Sedankais on the W. regard themselves as a different race from the inhabitants of the valley of Kamtschatka. One of the best features in the national character is the love of hospitality. The stranger is always sure of a welcome reception.

INHABITANTS OF KAMTSCHATKA. — From Litton, Voyage autour du Monde.

NATIVE HOUSE, KAMTSCHATKA. — From Litton, Voyage autour du Monde.

The inhabitants are nominal converts to Christianity, but in some parts, particularly in the N. E., the old superstitions are said to linger. There evil spirits, and what are called Kutchas, are the objects of worship. The trade is very limited, the only export being furs, and the imports chiefly flour and spirits to the latter of which the natives have become greatly addicted. — (Erman Reise um die Kola in 1828-30, vol. III.)

KAMYSCHLOWA, or KAMENLOV s. ta. Duma, gov. and 250 m. S. E. Perm, say circle of same name, on the Pyschma. It is wholly built of wood and contains a church. Pop. agricultural 1925. — The climate, generally flat, is extensively covered with wood, has good arable and pasture land, and in the higher districts, is rich in copper and iron. Area, 4804 geo. sq. in. Pop. 140,800.

KAN-CUOW, a seaport in China, prov. Shantung, E. coast, near Shao so or Te-shan-so, with a market for Indian and European merchandise.

KAN KIANG, a large river, China, prov. Kiangsoo, which it traverses S. to N., dividing it into two nearly equal parts, and ultimately falling into the Poyang lake by numerous mouths. The banks near the lake are flat, and not highly retreated, but the scenery becomes more varied and agreeable the further the river is ascended. Some rapids occur about lat. 35° 30', but they are not so formidable as to obstruct navigation seriously except at low water. The shores here are exceedingly beautiful, being lined with bold rocks fringed with wood, while the stream itself is perfectly transparent. The hills back are in many places covered with the Camellia oleosa, whose white blossoms give them the appearance of snow when the plant is in flower.

This river forms one of the great internal lines of communication in China.

KAN TOW a city China, prov Kiang-soo, near the junction of two considerable rivers, one of which has banks so high that stone terraces are needed for the support of the wall built on the summit; lat. 25° 53' N lon. 114° 00' E. Trees producing varieties of the finest quality grow in great numbers in the vicinity.

KANADEI, a in Russia, gov. of, and 62 m. S.W. Sambrak, L. bank Syr-darya. It contains two churches. P (1851) 2583

KANAGA, or KONNAGA, one of the Aleutian Is. lat. 55° 4' N, lon. 176° 50' W (a.) It is from 21 to 24 m. long, by half that breadth. The N. part of the island exhibits a high smoking volcano, one of the highest in the chain; the rest of the island is not very high.

KANARA, prov Hindoostan See CAHARA

KANARAK, or KANRANCE, an emporium vi Hindoostan, prov Bengal prov Orissa, 50 m. S.S.E. Cuttack, situated amidst sand-hills close by the shore. Here are the remains of an ancient temple the sun called by Europeans the Black Pagoda, one of the most remarkable edifices in India. It is constructed of prodigious blocks of stone, and massive beams of iron the walls are 60 ft. high, and in some parts 20 ft. thick. Several of the iron beams are nearly a foot square, and from 12 to 15 ft. long.

KANARY ISLES, a cluster of small is. S. Pacific Ocean, Pitca Passage, and at the S. entrance to the Gilbert Passage, off the N. of the island of Yap. The larger or Grand Kanary is in lat. 1° 48' S, lon. 139° 54' E. (a.) They are flat, and covered with trees, but uninhabited. On its S. side fresh water may be obtained also anchorage in six or seven fathoms.

KANATHIA, one of the most E. of the Fæloe is. S. Pacific Ocean, lat. 17° 16' S, lon. 179° 9' W from S to 4 m. in length N to S, by 2½ m. E. to W. It rises into numerous verdant and fertile hills has a central peak, sharp and lofty formed of beautiful columns, is surrounded by a reef with low entrance, and has on the N. a break. P 800

KANAWHA (GREAT) a navigable river, U States. It rises in the Alleghenies, in N. Carolina, on the borders of Virginia, flows first N.E. into Virginia, then turns abruptly in a N.W. direction, which course it continues till it falls into the Ohio, at Point Pleasant, 2½ m. below Pittsburgh. Total course, 800 m. About 100 m. from its mouth are the great falls, 50 ft. perpendicular. It is navigable to Kanawha, 60 m. from its mouth, where are salt-works, producing 1,500,000 bushels annually; the salt is obtained from brine springs. The chief tributaries of the Kanawha are the Green River, the Elk, and the Coal.

KANDABOU, or KANTAWA, the most S.W. of the Fæloe Islands lat. 19° 5' E, lon. 177° 57' W (a.) It is 25 m. long, and throughout its whole length is high and mountainous, except a small part at its centre, where it is nearly divided into two—the isthmus being so low and narrow that the natives frequently transport their canoes over it. On the W. end of the island is the peak of Kandabou, a mountain in the form of a cone, very much truncated at the summit, and the sides descending with a direct and rapid inclination to the sea; height estimated at 2000 ft. The island is well covered with pine timber resembling the New Zealand Kanari pine; and most of the large canoes used in the Fæloe are built here. Many white ships stop here for supplies. There are 45 houses or villages in the island. Pop about 10,000.

KANDAHAR, or CANDAHAR, one of the chief cities of Afghanistan, the capital and stronghold of the Durrannies, on a fertile and well-cultivated plain, 2484 ft. above the sea, near L. bank Urganahab, 300 m. S.W. Cabool lat. 31° 37' N lon. 65° 28' E. It is in the form of an irregular quadrangle, enclosed by a mud wall, 77 ft. high with a large tower at each of the four corners, 54 second-cylindrical bastions, and a broad and deep ditch in front, capable of being filled with water from the river. There are six gates, each protected by double bastions. The circumference of the city is nearly 4 m. It is regularly built, the two principal streets crossing each other at right angles, with a circular space, formed of shops, and about 45 yards in diameter at the point of intersection. Within this space, which is covered with a dome, proclamations are read, and the bodies of criminals exposed. The houses, seldom more than two stories high, are built of mud, and have a massive appearance. Those of the wealthier classes are enclosed with high walls, and have several courts, with gardens and fountains. The public buildings, mosques, and caravanserais, are underscoring of notes, with exception of the tomb of Ahmed Shah which, however though superior to the other structures of a similar kind is so very remarkable, being built of coarse stone, intermixed with sun-dried bricks, and having a coating of stucco outside, gaudily painted. The town is well supplied with water which is conveyed in conduits, both above and below ground, to almost every street and the site of the town is so moist, that water may in any part of it be obtained by digging down 5 or 6 ft. The women, as in Cabool wear the burqa when they go abroad. Fuel is scarce and dear which is severely felt by the inhabitants, as the winters are rigorous, although the summer is extremely hot; the thermometer sometimes reaching 110° in the shade. Provisions are abundant, cheap, and of excellent quality, with a profusion of fruit, which is sold at extremely low prices several pounds of grapes being obtainable for a sum not exceeding a halfpenny. The population being composed of a number of different races, an extraordinary diversity of costume is exhibited in the bazars and crowded parts of the town. The principal business is the transit trade. The commercial transactions are generally managed by Hindus, but these are probably rather very numerous now extensive, as the town appears to be sinking into poverty and decay, many of the houses and gardens within the walls are in a ruinous condition, although the streets still continue to be thronged with a noisy, bustling population. The country, for several distances around the city, is fertile, and produces grain and fruit in abundance. The present town was built by Ahmed Shah, but a large town has always existed in the vicinity from the most remote antiquity. The population consists chiefly of Afghans, with a mixture of Persians, Uzbeks, Baluchians, Jews, Hindus, and other races. The number of inhabitants has been stated at various amounts from 25,000 to 100,000, but is believed to be actually about 50,000.

KANDAHAR.—From the Palace of the Durrannies

KANDIAKASKA, a bay of N Russia, formed by the W part of the White Sea, and penetrating deeply into Russian Lapland; greatest length, S.E. to N.W., 180 m.; average breadth, nearly 40 m. It receives the waters of numerous rivers and lakes; and many small islands line its shores.

KANDEL, CANDEM, or KANDEM-KANDEL, a market to. Bansk-Banars, chief of, and 10 m S.E. Lenden, on the Dnieper, with a local court. Pop. agricultural, 8600.

KANDERN, a to. Baden, circle Upper Rhine, on a hill 57 m S.W. Freiburg, with a church, a savings bank, iron-works, tile-works, manufactures of woollens and silks, paper, oil, saw, and other mills, a ball foundry, and several iron smelting furnaces. Pop. 1880.

KANDILI, a vil. Asiatic-Turkey on the Bosphorus, about 5 m. N by S Bostanz. Its situation is singularly beautiful, the houses on the heights commanding the most exquisite views on the Bosphorus embracing at the same time both the upper and lower mouths of the channel, the Black Sea, and the Sea of Marmara.

KANDLER, a vil. Saxony, circle Zwickau, hill of, and near Chemnitz, with two bleachfields, a cotton and three other mills. Pop. 933.

KANDY, or KANDY (Cingalese, Maha Nuwara, 'great city,' a city, Ceylon, near the centre of the island, 72 m N.E. Colombo; lat. 7° 21' N lon. 80° 45' E on the margin of a fine artificial lake, in a spacious and fertile valley 1467 ft above sea-level, surrounded by beautifully-wooded hills and mountains. This ancient capital of the Kandian kings has been greatly improved since it came into the possession of the English in 1815; many new and commodious houses have been erected, new streets have been formed, and the old ones widened. It now consists of three principal streets two stretching E and W, and the third N and S the chief houses being situated at the point of intersection. There are also a number of handsome houses and villas dispersed over the face of the lower hills, about 300 ft high, immediately overlooking the town. At the N.E. extremity of the town stands the pavilion, the residence of the governor the finest structure in Ceylon. Near this edifice is the residence of the major-general, a large and commodious building. The king's or two mosques, two public libraries, and an agricultural society. Provisions are abundant, but dear, much more so than at Colombo; and houses-rents are high. In the houses and shops there are exposed for sale tea, woollen shawls, rice, salt-fish, curry stuffs, crockery, and cloth, for which a considerable demand exists, Kandy furnishing all the supplies for the labourers on the surrounding estates. In the immediate vicinity of the town is the royal cemetery, enclosed by a wall, and having a small temple. Here were deposited, through many generations, a long line of native kings and heroes but the ancient tombstones, and other monumental erections which marked their places of sepulture, have been nearly all destroyed or removed. The lake of Kandy, a beautiful sheet of water, adding much to the appearance of the town, is about 1½ m in length, and from 100 to 500 yards in breadth, it was formed by the late king out of a number of paddy fields, and is 1680 ft. above the sea. Notwithstanding the beauty of its situation and appearance, Kandy is not without its drawbacks. Situated in a basin, and on soil exceedingly pervious to wet, the streets are extremely unpleasant in rainy weather and at no time can it be considered particularly clean or healthy. The climate is generally much cooler than that of Colombo, but much more variable and trying to some constitutions, the range of the thermometer being from 54 to 87°, the mean about 74°. Deposits of magnesian limestones exist in the vicinity of Kandy, from which good lime for building purposes is obtained. Bricks and tiles are baked to some extent by the natives, and there is a very extensive brick kiln kept constantly at work by Government, elephants being employed to tread the clay. Pop. exclusive of the military estimated at about 7000—(Fridham's Ceylon, Oriental Interpreter &c.)

KANDYAN, or KANDYAN PROVINCE, a general appellation for such districts in the interior of Ceylon as were formerly under the dominion of the kings of Kandy, but which now form a part of the British empire. They were estimated to comprise 14,144 sq. m. with a pop. of only 288,485. The kings of Kandy were possessed of absolute and uncontrollable authority and assumed great state. The last of these barbarous princes, remarkable for his ruthless ferocity and cruelty, so oppressed his people as to induce them to solicit the interference and protection of the British Government, a request which was the more readily complied with, that this sovereign had a short time previously caused to be murdered in cold blood several hundred British troops, 120 of whom were in hospital at the time, the others his prisoners. Having been captured by a party of his own subjects, in Feb. 1815 he was delivered into the hands of the British who had invested his capital, and kept a state prisoner in Vellore, near Madras till his death, which occurred in Jan. 1833—(Giles's Ceylon).

KANE, a par. Incl. Louth 750 ac. Pop. 801.

KANEM, a territory, Central Africa, N.E. side of Lake Tchad, and comprising the whole of its banks on that side, between lon. 14 and 19° E.

KANEY, a to. Russia, gov. of, and 89 m. S.E. Kiev, a bank Delage. It was formerly a place of strength, and stood on a high point of land.

repeated sieges. It contains a castle, three churches, and a Greek monastery. Pop. (1848) 4425.

KANGAROO ISLAND, a large id. of S Australia, at the mouth of the Gulf of St. Vincent, 96 m. long, E. to W., and, with exception of a narrow point projecting from its E. end about 25 m. broad; area, 3,500,000 ac. Mount Torrens, a height at its W. end, visible at a distance of 40 m. at sea, is in lat. 35° 50' S. lon. 138° 35' E. It contains some very fine pasture and timber, though in some parts the soil is composed of sand, left by the retreating sea, mixed with a small portion of vegetable mould. The want of rain upon land so dry renders it impossible to produce vegetables, except during the rainy season. About 200 or 300 yards from the sea, good soil is found, where young potatoes, plants, palace, and buildings connected with it, now used as government offices, occupies a considerable space of ground and the front, which was about 200 yards long still presents an imposing appearance. The other public buildings, exclusive of the churches, are the principal Buddhist temple of Dehala Malagawa [place of the tooth], a lofty but unpretending structure, into the monastery of which day-light never penetrates; the medical hall, and post-office, the jail, barracks, and offices of the bank of Ceylon, and the Oriental bank; and the military magazine, situated in the middle of the lake. The places of worship are, an Episcopalian a Scotch Presbyterian, a Baptist, and a R. Catholic. The Church Missionary Society has a neat residence and school-house, used as a place of worship on Sundays. There are also one and pass, will thrive, but no sooner is the rain over than the earth is so heated, that every vegetable perishes. Nine miles in the interior there are belts of iron and limestone running through the island. Kangaroos were once numerous here, as the name implies, but are now very scarce. The other animals are the wallaby, a creature of the kangaroo species, only of a smaller kind, the opossum, the bandicoot, or Antechinus, the Norway rat, and the guinea. Snakes, scorpions, scorpions, and mosquitoes, are numerous. There are several bays in this island, the principal of which is Nepean Bay, at the E. end, capable of accommodating some hundreds of vessels; its N.W. side is formed by Point Marion lat. 33° 33' S. lon 137° 41' E. (s.)

PALACE OF THE KING OF KANDY

KANGELAG or GAYOYANG, an isl. Java Sea lat. 6° 50' S. lon 116° 15' E. (s.) It is of irregular form, about 25 m. long and 8 m. broad. On the E. coast it is indented with several bays. It is well wooded surrounded by numerous islands and rocks, which render landing difficult, and is much visited by pirates. Inside an isl. on the W. side, is a good harbour, capable of containing 20 to 30 ships. Pop. 1500.

KANIA a tn. of W. Africa dist. Kerenko N.E. Sierra Leone, on the route from Rokelle to Fala, lat. 8° 5' N. lon. 11° 9' W. It is remarkably neat and clean, the outside of the houses being whitewashed, and the premises tastefully enclosed with wicket-work.

KANISA several places, Hungary particularly—1 (O-Kanisa, or Als-Kanisa) a market tn. to Bacs, in a very fertile district on the Theiss, here crossed by a ferry opposite to Turkish Kanisa. It contains a K. Catholic and a Greek non-union church, a synagogue and a Pietist gymnasium, and has a trade in corn, tobacco and cattle and several annual fairs. Pop. 9070—2 (Saggy or Jaggy-Kanisa) a market in Thuler Donau, co. Szabol in a marshy district on the Kanizs, a small affluent of the Tisza, 21 m. N.N.E. of Keszthely. It contains a parish church, Protestant academy, townhouse and Pietist gymnasium and a large trade in fat cattle, for which important markets are held here. Pop. 8897—3 (Als or Tisza Kanisa) a vill. Thuler Theiss, co. Terenath, 65 m. W.N.W. Temevar on the Theiss, over which there is here a ferry. It stands in a very fertile district, and has a trade in cattle, wine, and tobacco. Pop. 1817

KANIXA or KANIXA, a vill. Austria, Slavonia, geographically Peterwaradin, near the Tisza, and about 14 m. from Puden, with a parish church. Pop. 1100

KAN-KAN, a tn. and dist. S.E. of Senegal. The town carries on a profitable commerce with Sego and Timbuctoo and is said to have a pop. of 5000.—The district lies between lat. 10° and 11° N. and about lon. 8° and 9° W.

KAN-KARI, or KAN-KU, a tn. and dist. Asiatic Turkey, prov. Anatolia. The town 70 m. N.E. Angora lat. 40° 56' N. lon. 34° 5' E. on a small affluent of the Kizilirmak is of considerable extent, containing about 2000 houses, 8 large and several smaller mosques, six khans and four public baths. There is a castle on a height close by, a barracks, and a singular and ancient Mahometan building, called the Mejid Tash, which appears to have been a convent of dervishes, and a burial-place for holy men. Pop. 18,000.—The district is composed of a cold upland of gypsum, interspersed with volcanic cones and some cultivated valleys amongst the latter of which that of Tuz-yah is remarkable for its fields, gardens, and vineyards.

KANKHUL, a large and handsome tn. Hindoostan, prov. and 100 m. N.N.E. Delhi r. bank Ganges, lat. 29° 56' N. lon. 78° 8' E. Many wealthy natives reside here.

KANNAGHEKKY a tn. Hindoostan, prov. Bombay. Situated on the coast, in a valley between two wooded ridges, and accompanied on two sides by the rocky bed of a rivulet, 190 m. S.W. Hyderabad, lat. 18° 35' N. lon. 73° 30' E. It was formerly the capital of a Hindoo principality, and a place of considerable note, but many of the buildings have gone to decay. The principal street traversing the town, E. to W., is remarkably spacious, and terminated at one extremity by a magnificent pagoda, dedicated to Krishna. Several other temples have been converted into dwelling-houses or stables, by the Mussulman inhabitants. The neighbourhood is rich in remains of Hindoo sculpture.

KANNETADT a tn. W. Germany. See Garmstadt.

KANO a tn. Central Africa, W. Sudan, prov. of same name lat. 12° 4' lon. 8° 40' E. It stands upon, or rather is divided into two parts by a narrow, the residence of every kind of filth, including even the dead bodies of slaves, which renders it extremely unhealthy. The town is of an irregular oval form about 15 m. in circumference, and surrounded by a clay wall, 30 ft. high, with a dry ditch along the inside and another on the outside. There are fifteen gates, made of wood and covered with sheet-iron, which are regularly opened and shut at sunrise and sunset. Although, however, the walls are of the extent above mentioned, not more than a fourth of the space they enclose is occupied by houses, the remainder being laid out in fields and gardens. The houses are built of clay and are mostly of a square form, in the Moorish fashion, and have many conveniences and accommodations which could scarcely be looked for in so barbarous a city. It is a place of great trade, and a general mart for all sorts of merchandises, Arabs and Moors from Barbary resorting to it in considerable numbers for commercial purposes. The market, which is crowded from sunrise to sunset every day, is well supplied with every necessary and luxury as request among the people of the interior and particular quarters are appropriated to distinct articles. Transactions are conducted with the utmost fairness, and the regulations of the market strictly and impartially enforced. Kano is celebrated for the dyeing of cloth, for which process there are numerous establishments in the town. Tanning and the manufacture of southern jars, in which some ingenuity is shown, are also carried on to a considerable extent. Kano is supposed to occupy the site of the ancient town of Gharra, some centuries ago the chief seat of the Arabian power in Africa. Pop. estimated at 20,000.—(Lander's Records, Clapperton and Denham's Travels)

KANQUE, or KANQUE, an ancient tn. Hindoostan, prov. Agra, once the cap. of a powerful empire, on a plain about 2 m. W. from Bank Ganges, about 70 m. W.N.W. Lucknow lat. 27° 8' N. lon. 79° 47' E. By means of a canal, the Ganges has been brought close to the citadel. The modern town consists of one tolerable street, with several smaller lanes branching off, and covers a considerable space of ground; but the ruins of the ancient city extend over several miles. Many of the buildings are of brown stone, with beautiful carving, but in a very heavy style of architecture. Scarcely are ornamented in a better taste, with the light, airy pavilions so characteristic of the East. They contain chiefly of the tombs of Mahometan saints. The ancient language of Kanika is said to be the basis of the modern Hindoostani.

TOWN OF MESBULAN SAHTE, KANQUE.—From Drawing by Capt. R. Smith, 44th Regt.

KANOWTA, a tn. of W. Hindoostan, Ameer 11 m. S.W. Jaggoo. It is mostly built of stone, and contains several temples one of which is curiously adorned with mythological paintings.

KANSAKI, a vil Japan, in the valley of Sakai-bara, in Kin-sai. It contains about 1000 houses.

KANSAS, a river U States, an affluent of the Missouri, formed in Kansas territory by the union of the Blue River, Republican Fork, Smoky Hill Fork, and other streams. From the source of the Smoky Hill Fork, which may be considered the main stream to its mouth in the Missouri, 150 m. W. W. Jefferson, its course is about 1900 m. It is 690 yds. wide at its mouth and is navigable for 900 m.

KANSAS, a ter, U States, named from above river and formed by act of Congress, May, 1854 lat. 37 to 40° N lon 94 30 to 107 W length 680 m. E. to W greatest breadth, 208 m. area, 114,798 sq m. Bounded N by Nebraska, W by state of Missouri, S Indian ter and New Mexico, and W New Mexico and Utah from the latter of which it is separated by the Rocky Mountains. Pop. 1850, 8500

KANSK a tn. Anaton Russia, gov Yemulak, cap. circle, 1 bank Kama, 180 m. S Krasnoyarsk on the road from that town to Irkutsk. It was once fortified, and still bears the name of Ostrog or fortress. It has important animal furs. Many of the inhabitants are convicts. Pop (1850) 1730

KANSUO or KANXU (Voluntary reverse), an island prom in the N of China, bounded N and N E by the desert of Gobi and Mongolia, E. by Shensi, S by Szechuan, S W by Koko-nor and the desert. It extends between lat 32 30' and 40 N and between lon 98 50' and 106 35' E, and comprises a large part of the ancient kingdom of Tangut, area, 60,606 sq m. The country is mountainous, some of the peaks rising more than 10 000 ft above sea-level the principal chain is a spur from the Fuh ling or Lung mountains, which running N E, bounds the valley of the Yellow River on its E side, and forces its waters N it also forms the E watershed of the Wei, and other tributaries of the Yellow River in Shensi. The Yellow River flows through the province in a N E direction and receives a few large affluents to its course. Near the termination of the great wall a range of hills, called Ki lun also forms the water-shed between the valley of the Tzu-ling and a number of small rivers which flow N into the desert. The climate of Kansuo is rather cold, and the inhabitants make use of skins and furs in their clothing. The soil is in general sterile, but the country E of the Yellow River is fertile, and produces wheat, barley, millet, &c. Wild animals abound, and large stocks and herds are also maintained by the Tartars living within the province. In the mountains copper, jade, gold and silver are met with. The trade of Kansuo is very considerable, and has greatly increased of late years. Lan-chao-foo is the cap. Pop 15,103,125

KANTA, or KANT, a vil Austria, Transylvania, co Ober-Wessensburg on a stream opposite to Kanti Yasarhely and about 44 m from Kronstadt. It is a very stirring place, and has two churches, and a gymnasium. Pop. 1109

KANTALIGOUNDA, a vil of W Africa, r bank Senegal, lat. 15 35 N lon 51 51 W There is here an English factory at which various commodities, and especially salt, are given to the natives in exchange for skins, ivory, and wax. The inhabitants of the district are Mandingoes, organized after the manner of those of Bambock, and suffer much from the incursions of the Fula of Djallon. The willow of Europe is common in the neighbourhood of Kantaligounda, and is made into various articles of wicker-work.

KANTAVU, an isl. See KANADAVU

KANTURK, a market in Ireland, co. of and 26 m. N W Cork, at the confluence of the Avon and Ballin, by which it is traversed. It consists chiefly of several short streets, irregularly built, but of late years its appearance generally has been much improved. The public buildings are a sessions house, and a large brewhouse, a neat parish church and a handsome cruciform E. Catholic chapel. The churches contain a dispensary, a free, and several other schools. There is a brewery in the town, and in the immediate vicinity are extensive holding mills. Pop 5602

KANUM, a city, Central Asia, Balkh, r bank Upper Sulaj, lat. 31 37 N lon 75 25 E, nearly 9000 ft above the sea. The houses are flat-roofed, and clustered together; some of them 7 or 8 stories high. There is here a Lama temple, and an excellent library, said to contain a copy of every work to be found in the great library at Chino-lo-an-hoo. The table-land on which the city stands is fertile and well cultivated.

KANUM, a city, Central Asia, Balkh, r bank Upper Sulaj, lat. 31 37 N lon 75 25 E, nearly 9000 ft above the sea. The houses are flat-roofed, and clustered together; some of them 7 or 8 stories high. There is here a Lama temple, and an excellent library, said to contain a copy of every work to be found in the great library at Chino-lo-an-hoo. The table-land on which the city stands is fertile and well cultivated.

KANUM, a city, Central Asia, Balkh, r bank Upper Sulaj, lat. 31 37 N lon 75 25 E, nearly 9000 ft above the sea. The houses are flat-roofed, and clustered together; some of them 7 or 8 stories high. There is here a Lama temple, and an excellent library, said to contain a copy of every work to be found in the great library at Chino-lo-an-hoo. The table-land on which the city stands is fertile and well cultivated.

Vol. II

KANYABAC, one of the Bissagos isls, W coast, Africa, between the isl. of Orange and the mainland, from the latter of which it is distant about 16 m.; lat. (S sud), 11 10' N lon. 15° 40' W. Like the other islands of the same group, it is of volcanic origin, and is covered with luxuriant vegetation. The natives rear large herds of cattle, of small ass, but well proportioned and in excellent condition. Elephants and hippopotami, the latter of great size, abound in the island. There is a bay on the island, called Demason Bay, where wood and water may be easily obtained, and in any quantity.

KANYALAZA, or KALIBERT, a vil Hungary, Thither Themas, co. Szathmar, about 18 m. from Aranyas-Magyas, in a fertile district, with a Greek church. Pop. 1063

KAO, a prefix to the names of many ts. in China, amongst which the principal are—1 (Kao-Tsue) prov. Quingtung, l. bank of a river, and about 88 m. from the sea, and 170 m. S W Canton lat. 21 50' N lon 110° 45' E. The river is navigable up to the city, which is enclosed by walls, and has manufactures of nankeen. The surrounding district is fertile, and produces a species of marble or Jasper—2, (Kao Tsue) prov. Kiang-soo, r bank of the Imperial Canal, 65 m. S E Shanghai—3, (Kao-Hsiang), prov. Quingtung, r bank of a small stream that falls into the west E. branch of the Canton river in the delta, 40 m. W by R. Canton—4, (Kao-Tsue) prov. Homen near r bank Hoang-Ho or Yellow River lat. 34 45' N, lon 115° E

KAO one of the Longs isls, a vast conical rock N E of Tufona, 5000 ft. high lat. 19 45' E. lon 175 W (s.)

KAPIL LA a mountain range Austria Croatia, which forms the connecting link between the Julian and the Dinaric Alps, and consists of two distinct parts, the Great and the Little Kapella. The former the more elevated of the two, has its culminating point in Mount Klek and has a length of about 35 m. The general direction of the range is from N W to S E, and nearly parallel to the Wallatich mountains, which skirt the Adriatic

KAPELHA, a vil. Austria, Slavonia, co. Veroco, on the Karaszeza, about 24 m. from Siklos, with a Jewish church and a mill. Pop. 930

KAPL, or KAPUSMART a vil Hungary Hither Themas, co. Baros on the Szekes 6 m. N E Eperies, with a Catholic church, the ruins of an old castle, situated at a considerable height, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1046

KAPINI, an isl, S Pacific. See CLAR ISLAND

KAPITO an isl New Zealand See ENTRY ISLAND

KAPLITZ GAPLITZ or WOLLEKE, a market in Bohemia, circle and 17 m. S Budweis, 1 bank Muloch with a church, chapel, townhouse, school infirmary, hospital, and brewery. Pop. 1892

KAPLOVY, a vil Hungary, Thither Themas, co. Sz. h. about 2 m. from Nagy-Karoly. It has a Protestant, a Greek, and a E. Catholic church and a Franciscan monastery with a church and chapel. Pop. 1048

KAPNIK BANYA (Latin, Opavens) a mining tn, Hungary, co. Szathmar, 12 m. E Nagy Banya, with two churches, and mines of gold, silver, and lead. Pop. 8000

KAPNIKINO, a tn Russia, gov Vladimir circle of, and 18 m. W N W Pereslavl Zaleskoi, on the Trubets, with manufactures of linen and linen yarn, and a paper-mill.

KAPOLNA a vil Hungary Hither Themas, co. Heves, on the Themas, 18 m. S W Ecsiz, with a church, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1247

KAPOLITZ, a vil Hungary, co. Szabolc, about 13 m. from Tapoleza. It stands in a mountainous district; and has a church and a trade in corn and wine. Pop. 1290 KAPORNAK (Kas) a market in Hungary, Thither Themas, co. Szabolc, about 9 m. from Ecsiz-Egerseg, with a church, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 883.

KAPOS (Kas) and Kaj two nearly contiguous vils, Hungary, Thither Themas, co. and 15 m. W N W Tapoleza with two Protestant churches, sawy barracks, and many several good minor houses, and a trade in corn and timber. Pop. 1264

KAPOSVAR, a tn. Hungary, Thither Themas, cap. co. Szathmar on the Kapos, at the foot of a hill, 80 m. N W Fintkivosen. It has a E. Catholic church, a handsome townhouse, the ruins of an old castle, and a trade in wine and tobacco. Pop. 8900

KAPOSZTAFULVA, or KARNOV, a market in Hungary. Higher than the village, in a plain, on the Hemed, 10 m. S.W. Lantabach. It has 1 w. church, a courthouse, and hospital and iron saw, and other mills. Large caravans are found in the vicinity. Pop. 1054.

KAPPL, a market in Austria, duchy Carinthia, circle of, and 16 m. S.E. Klagenfurt, among lofty mountains, v. bank. Falls. It stands on the line of a mountain pass, and once had strong fortifications, of which only traces now remain. It has three churches, to one of which numerous pilgrimages are made. Lead and quicksilver are worked in the vicinity. P. 993.

KAPPL, two places Baden—1 (Kappel-Rudels) a village Middle Rhine, bail. Achen, with a parish church. Pop. 1876—2, (Kappel-Wiedens), a village Middle Rhine, bail. Buhl, also with a parish church. Pop. 1278.

KAPPELV or KAPPELVORST a village Denmark, Schleswig bail. Hottorf, on the left bank of the Schlei, in a beautiful district, 26 m. N.E. Rendsburg. It contains a new and handsome church and has a valuable fishery small building yards, and a small winter haven, admitting vessels drawing 7½ ft. and carrying on a considerable trade with Copenhagen, in fish and provisions. Pop. 2100.

KAPSATI a town in Hungary. See CAPTALL.

KAPTOL, or CAPTOL, a market in Austria Slavonia co. and 6 m. from Foposa in a mountainous district on the Vercas, with a church and an old castle. Pop. 990.

KAPUVAL, a market in Hungary Thither Danube co. and 22 m. S.E.E. Oldenburg on the Raab, not far from the extensive morass of Hainang. It contains a castle belonging to Prince Esterhazy and a parish church and has a trade in corn and tobacco. Pop. 5175.

KARA—1 A sea, N coast of Russia, forming part of the Arctic Ocean having the ist. of Nova Zembla on the N.W. the gov. of Archangel on the N. and that of Tobolsk on the E. It opens N into the Arctic Ocean with which it is also connected on the W. by the Straits of Karikie-Vyrot. This sea, towards the N., is almost always frozen—2, A gulf or bay, S.W. coast of Tobolsk, bounded by the ice of some parts. 3 A river of N. Russia. It rises in a branch of the Ural mountains and forms part of the boundary between Europe and Asia and between the govts. of Archangel and Tobolsk. During its course, which is N.E. it joins the river Selova. The united streams fall into the sea of Kara.

KARA AKAZDA, a European Turkey Bulgaria, 45 m. S.E. Silistra, near the head of one of the sources of a small river that falls into the Danube, a little W. of Ramova.

KARA BOUTAT (anc. Boutat) a village in Austria Turkey pash. and 55 m. E. by R. Kowle. It is composed chiefly of mud cabins, but contains a spacious khán a handsome mosque, with two minarets and a last-roofed college, now deserted and in ruins. There are extensive nitre works in the vicinity, the whole and round the village is strongly impregnated with this substance, which effloresces on the surface after rain. The surrounding district is all volcanic and not far from the town is a tracheitic crater with a smaller cone rising up in the centre.

KARA CUCURUCHA, a town Central Asia, Khanat and 190 m. N.E. Khiva, in a flat district, liable to inundation by the Amoo, from which it is about 8 m. distant. It is partly surrounded by a dilapidated wall. The inhabitants live chiefly by fishing.

KARA DAON a group of lofty rugged mountains, Asiatic Turkey pash. Karamania, about 60 m. S.E. Konia. They rise from the surrounding plain like a volcanic island from the sea, and are completely isolated and unconnected with any other range. In this group are the celebrated ruins of the Br. Kiliush.

KARA HEMAR [Turkish, Black castle], several towns Asiatic Turkey—1 A town, pash. Karamania, small and ruined, built on the sides and slopes of a steep acclivity 25 m. S.W. Katarbach lat. 38° 21' 20" N lon 30° 6' E. Close by on the loftiest summit of two volcanic cones, are the ruins of an ancient castle, one of the most remarkable objects in these districts. The declivities of the adjacent hills are covered with cacti. Attempts have been made to identify the ancient Cythra with Kara Hemar, but with doubtful success. Kara Hemar is chiefly remarkable on account of its having been the military station of China, while watching the motions of the Parthian army which threatened Galcia and Cappadocia from the side of Syria.—2, A town, pash. and 110 m. S.E. Sivas, lat. 40° 10' N lon 38° 13' E. It is built on the summit of a hill, and is overhung by a perpendicular rock crowned with the remains of a fortress. The houses, of which there are about 2500, are built of mud. The bazaars are extensive, and well stocked with country-made cotton cloths Aleppo and Damascus wools, and some English manufactures. Some English cotton-twist is employed in the manufacture of cloth and unbleached muslin and indigo are imported—the latter being used to dye the former with indigo, the cloths are retailed in the country. The traders procure their supplies from Constantinople. Karaheon or Korseon distant about 75 m. N.N.W. is the port on the Black Sea with which its communications are most active. Near the town are extensive mines of rock-salt from which the town takes the distinctive appellation Shib-Khesh, alum-office or alum works.—3, A town, pash. and 85 m. S.W. Adana.

KARA-SC [Black water] numerous rivers, particularly—1 (Kereoon or Tubess) An affluent of the Euphrates, Asiatic Turkey which rises in Karamania, near Kasarah—2 A river which has its mouth a little E. of Malatia.—3 An affluent of the Aras in Persia, which receives its S.E. of Mount Ararat.—4 A river Asiatic Turkey pash. Aleppo, which flows S.W. and falls into the N. shore of Lake Deng.—5 An affluent of the Euphrates, Asiatic Turkey which issues from Lake Basit in lat. 38° 40' N. and flows N.W.—6 A river Asiatic Turkey pash. Sahel, marshy Taurus, which falls into the Mediterranean.—7 (Or Aksoy), A river Turkey in Europe Rousmelia, which flows S.E. into the Aradgiphe, exactly opposite to the ist. of Thess.—8, (Or Stroum) a river Turkey in Europe Rousmelia, which rises in the H. slopes of the Balkan, to the N.E. of Ghinazoul flows S.E. expands into Lake Takhos, and, shortly after quitting, it falls into the Gulf of Constantine, in the Archipelago, near Orphanie.—9, A river Turkey in Europe, which rises on the E. frontier of Albania flows S.E. and joins the Terna, an affluent of the Varhar.

KARA 1 A town in European Turkey See YEASA. 2 KARABAGH a town in large fort, Afghanistan 20 m. S.W. Ghaznee on the road thence to Kandahar lat. 33° 10' N lon 69° E. The surrounding district also called Karabagh, is remarkably fertile, well cultivated productive in grain, populous and crowded with forts and villages.

KARACHEE a town in Sindh See KURACHEN.

KARACSOND a village Hungary Thither Thoms co. Hoves, about 4 m. from Gyonyos with a parish church and a trade in corn cattle, and timber. Pop. 1315.

KARAD two places, Hungary—1 A village Thither Thoms co. and 18 m. S.W. Zemplin, in the island of Bodrogkus on the Thelva. It stands in the midst of swamps, contains a Protestant parish church, and has several mills. Pop. 1869.—2 A village Thither Danube co. Sough, 46 m. N.W. Eluf kirchen, in a hilly but fertile district, with a parish church and a trade in corn and wine. Pop. 2440.

KARADIVE, two islands east of Ceylon—1 A small island, Gulf of Manar 15 m. N.W. Ceylon. It is about 9 m. long, and from 1 to 2 m. broad. It is a low island, from its advantageous situation for fishing, forming the rendezvous for fishermen from Manar and Nagumbo during the N.E. monsoon. There is no timber on the island except Kari trees, which shelter large herds of deer.—2, A small island W. of Jaffnapatam lat. 9° 51' N lon 80° 1' E 5 m. long, and 2 m. broad soil sandy but productive, yielding paddy coconuts, palm-tree, jack, mangoes, and allipe nuts, which latter yield a kind of oil much used in lighting houses. The inhabitants maintain themselves by tillage, rearing cattle, and fishing. Pop. 5572. (Ceylon Quarterly).

KARAGHINSKY—1, An island about 30 m. off the coast Kamtschatka lat. (4 north), 59° 13' N lon 164° 55' E. It is 85 m. long and an uninterrupted chain of heights traverses its length deforming towards the S.W. and rising again at the S. end, forming a hill about 700 ft. high. From the N.E. extremity to the S.E., in the centre of the island, a chain of steep mountains extends, 2000 ft. in height, on the S.E. side it reaches to the sea coast, forming generally high abrupt spurs. Throughout the mountains are deep ravines and gorges. The island was formerly inhabited by Karahs, but now is only temporarily so, by some other tribes who come here to hunt. There is no wood on it. Bears and red foxes are numerous. Large quantities of geese and ducks frequent the lakes. Fish abound in almost all the small rivers, and fresh water is plentiful.—3, A bay, in the S. side of above id. It penetrates 9 m inland, with a breadth of 4 to 8 m. It receives the river Kargai; the mouth of which is in lat. 59° 5' N. lon. 126° 59' E.

KARAKI, or KARAKIN, an Isl. Persian Gulf coast of Persia, prov. Kerm. lat. 39° 17' N. lon. 50° 30' E. (J) is about 44 m long, N.W. and S.E. of moderate height. Water is to be had on the N. side of the island, firewood is scarce. Fish, which are plentiful, and dates form the principal food of the inhabitants for they have no grain but what is imported, and very few vegetables. Bullocks, sheep, and poultry are to be procured but at exorbitant prices.

KARAKAKOON a lay Hawaii. See KALAKAKUA.
KARAKALPAK a tribe of Turcomans, inhabiting a steppe along the E. shore of Lake Aral, and along the Syr-Daria, which though treeless and shrubless, affords excellent pasturage for the cattle which form the chief riches of these nomads. The Karakalpak likewise work in iron and make good arms. They are divided into two sections and many of them have spread out into the khams of Khiva. They are said to count 25 000 warriors.

KARAKITIA, or PAMAGE ISLAND, a group of five idls., and several rocky islets, Indian Archipelago lying between the S. end of Fongor and Rian lat. 5° 14' N., lon. 123° 44' E. (a) The westernmost island is high, and the E. one, called Pala, projects out on a low point to the E.

KARAKOOL, a tn. Bokhara 1 bank Zer-Afshan 88 m S.S.W. Bokhara lat. 29° 30' N. lon. 6° 45' E. Pop. estimated at 30,000.

KARAKORAM PASS, a pass Central Asia, Chinese Turkestan between the towns of Ith and Larkand, in what has been called—there being no native name—the Mustang or Kemsula range of mountains, situated in lat. 33° 30' N., and about lon. 77° 41' E. at an elevation of 18 200 ft. above the sea-level, described by Th. Thomas Thomson the only European who has visited it as a rounded ridge connecting two hills which rise somewhat abruptly to the height of perhaps 1000 ft. above it. Vegetation and snow are entirely wanting on the top but the loose shingle with which it is covered is unfavorable to the growth of plants otherwise no doubt, beneath at least would have been seen. Large ravens were circling about overhead apparently quite unaffected by the rarity of the atmosphere as they seemed to fly with just as much ease as at the level of the sea. Towards the N. there is no distinct view. On that side, the descent is steep for about 500 yds. beyond which distance a small streamlet occupies the middle of a very gently sloping valley and disappears to the left, at the distance of half a mile behind a stony ridge. The rocks in the neighbourhood are a dark-blue slate, containing much pyrites, and a hard limestone.

KARAMAN (anc. Laranda), a tn. Asiatic Turkey pass Karamania, in an extensive valley to the N. of Bedier-tag, a lofty mountain in the chain of the Taurus lat. 37° 12' N., lon. 35° 5' E. Every house being surrounded with a garden makes the place appear much more extensive than it really is. The Turkish castle consists of a square keep with several round and square towers, surrounded by an outer wall, within which there are about 100 houses. In the town are a large and handsome Armenian church and several ruined mosques, of graceful Saracenic style. One of these of marble, ornamented with arabesques, and supported in the interior by rows of columns. Most of the houses are in a ruined and dilapidated state, and the bazaars are very differently supplied. There are considerable manufactures of blue cotton and other cloth and an active trade is carried on with Smyrna, Kalesieh, and Tarsus in cotton goods, hides, and nut galls. Karaman was founded by Karaman Oguz in the 14th century and is built out of the ruins of the ancient Laranda. It was formerly the residence of the Pasha, who still retains the title of Pasha of Karaman, though he resides at Ioudum. The houses are 3000 to 8000, and the pop. probably near 13 000.

KARAMANIA, CARAWANIA, KARAWAN, or KHARID and from its capital also KONTA or KONIKER, a pass Asiatic Turkey Asia Minor, having pass, Ithid or Adana S. Anadolus and Sivas W. and N. and Marash E. lat. 37° to 39° 40' N., lon. 38° 30' to 38° 50' E. area, 37,662 sq. m. A large portion of it is mountainous, the Taurus range traversing its entire length, E. to W., separating it in part from pass. Ithid and forming the greater portion of its S. boundary. Its principal rivers are the Kish-Trank and the Sytkon. In the S.W. portion are numerous small lakes. The mountains are covered by forests of oaks, and some species of pines rising 100 ft. in height. The vine and fig-trees exhibit the most luxuriant vegetation, the laurel myrtle, and the olive, together with numerous odoriferous shrubs, flourish in profusion, and abundant harvests are reaped from its rich deep soil, while the climate is so genial, that the inhabitants can pass three-fourths of the year under the shade of the trees. The scenery in the mountainous districts is singularly fine. The houses throughout the pashalls are constructed of earth or of bricks baked in the sun, and many of them are miserable dwellings, but the villages of the Turcoman shepherds are composed of neat huts, covered with skins. The rivers, and numerous small streams by which the country is intersected abound in fish, but the inhabitants, it is said, will not be at the trouble of taking them. Tobacco, silk, cotton, saffron, and excellent fruits are raised but the principal occupations is rearing live stock. It is divided into seven sanjaks. Principal towns Koma, Kalesar, Ak-Shehr, Bug-Shehr, Nigeli, and Karaman. It includes ancient Lyonnania, and a portion of Phrygia Major Galatia, and Cappadocia and it formerly included the maritime pashahs of Ithid or Adana which in its turn is composed of ancient Cilicia, Isauria, and Pamphylia.

KARAMASY, a tn. Central Asia, Khamsat and 20 m. E. Khiva, on a canal of some name, led from the Amoo-Daria. It is surrounded by a dilapidated wall, and consists of about 200 houses, inhabited by Uzbek, Sarts, and Persian slaves who have obtained their freedom. It is very subject to inundation, the water often standing high in the streets. The ground is not fertile but the cultivation of it, partly as gardens, is the chief employment.

KARAMYLI, a river Russia, which rises in the W. of gor. Astrakhan, about 45 m. N. W. Y. Kamshin pursues a tortuous course of about 70 m., first E. then N. and then W. and joins 1. bank Medveditsa at the village of Karamsh.

KARANCZ Kassa, a vil. Hungary on a bograd about 6 m. from Szekes. It has a R. Catholic parish church an elegant castle, and a trade in corn and timber. Pop. 980.

KARANG ASAM, a native state, Indian Archipelago, N. coast Isl. Bali. It is the most powerful state in the island neighbourhood but fertile and well watered the principal streams uniting in the Gigit. Through the port of Padang near its S.W. point, it carries on a trade in krises, pikas, firearms, salt cotton and silk, with Chinese, Macassar, and Bugia. Pop. 200 000.—Its CAPITAL of same name, lat. 8° 23' S., lon. 115° 34' E. is the most important town in the island and has a good haven, the only one in which large ships can anchor.

KARASERBS, a tn. Hungary Banat, co. Krasso in a fertile district r. bank Temis, 50 m. S.E. Timisoara. It has two churches a synagogue, and a normal school. It is the see of a Greek bishop, the seat of a military commissariat, the headquarters of a Wallachian Illyrian government, and has a gold washing and a considerable transit trade in Turkish wares, for Transylvania. Pop. 8400.

KARANTS, a vil. Hungary Thither Danube, co. Baranya, in a fertile district, 46 m. S.E. Püfölkirchen, with two churches, and a trade in corn and excellent wine, the produce of the district. Pop. 2561.

KARASICA—1, a river Hungary, Thither Danube, which rises in co. Baranya, to the N. E. of Fülöpháza, flows first S., then E., and joins r. bank Damba at the S. extremity of the island of Margits, after a course of about 50 m.—2, a river Slavonia, which rises near Vuchin, to the N. of Mount Papuk flows easterly to E. E. and joins r. bank Drava, about 9 m. N. W. Essek, after a course of about 55 m. Its chief affluent is the Vuconia.

KARASUBASAN, a tn. Russia, in the Crimea lat. 45° N., lon. 24° 40' E., r. bank Karak, near its source, in a fertile valley, surrounded by hills, about 90 m. E. N. E. Sin-furup. Morasses in the neighbourhood, and bad water make it rather unhealthy. It is built of bricks, in the Asiatic manner; houses, in general, mean, and the streets narrow and crooked. It has several mosques a Greek, an Armenian and R. Catholic church an extensive bazaar, and a great number of shops. It is a place of considerable trade in celebrated for its manufactures of morocco leather, has a considerable weekly market for cattle and a great annual fair. P. 15,000

KARASELO (also), or KARASELO a vil. Hungary. Thence to Ujpest, on an open valley on the Borsos, 14 m. N.W. Huns, with a parish church, and has some trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1219

KARATAI, a vil. Central Asia, Khamt, and 56 m. N.E. Khiva, 1 bank Amu Darya, over which there is here a ferry. It is inhabited by Uzbeks, who trade in salt and timber KARATOGIN a tn. and river. Central Asia, in the Pamir tableland. The town is in lat. 38° 50' N. lon. 70° 5' E. about 300 m. W. by S. Kashgar, on the 1 bank of the river of the same name. The latter is an affluent of the Upper Oxus, runs about 30 m. N. from the town and flowing N. falls into the Oxus a little E. of Kurgan-dappa, or lat. 37° 40' N. lon. 68° 55' E. after a course of about 110 m.

KARATOVA or KARATOVA, a small tn. Turkey in Europe, Macedonia, 1 bank Egredra, at its junction with the Brannista, 35 m. S.E. Uskup. In the vicinity are silver and copper mines.

KARATSCHEV a tn. Russia, cap. circle of same name gov. of, and 47 m. W.W. Orsk lat. 53° 8' N. lon. 84° 50' E., traversed by the Sargol. It is built of wood, and has some wooden churches, besides three of stone. The inhabitants are sustained chiefly by agriculture, the ordinary handicrafts, and sheep-rearing. Hops and twine are made to some extent for exportation. It has several fairs. Pop. (1851) 8174. The circles as rich both in woodland and arable land and raises a considerable number of cattle

KARAYUKOVA, or KARAYUKOVA, a vil. Hungary. Hither Danube on of and m. N.W. Beck, is a mostly district, near 1 bank Roon, with a R. Catholic church. Fruits and hemp are extensively grown, and some wine is produced in the vicinity. Pop. 1929

KARBACH a vil. Bavaria, circle Lower Franconia, dist. of and near Rothemle, with a R. Catholic church and oil and several other mills, and a trade in corn, wine, and fruit. Pop. 1190

KARHILZ, or KARHILZ, a tn. Bohemia, circle of and 12 m. N.W. Litomysl, with a handsome parish church, many features of castles, the works several chancelleries and mills and near it a mine of lignite. Pop. 1841

KARHUJCH KHERUTZ, a tn. Bohemia, circle and 18 m. S.E. of Tabar in a plain, where a stream issues from Lake Kerdach. It has a parish church and school on old castle now used as a courthouse, and a tannery, manufactures of linen tile-works, and several mills. Pop. 2035

KARIDZAG or KARIDZAG-US-SALLAR, a market in Hungary. Great Comana, on the Hircopolis as are of the Thracians and on the road from Szekes to Dobren, 28 m. W.S.W. Dobren. It is a large, struggling place, contains a Protestant, a R. Catholic and a Greek non-united parish church, and has a considerable trade in corn, cattle, wine and fruit, particularly melons, which are here in great abundance, and of excellent quality. Large numbers of tortoises are taken in the vicinity. Pop. 11,424

KARFNS, a race inhabiting all the mountain regions of the S. and E. portions of Russian proper and all parts of the Transcaucasian provinces, extending into the W. portions of Islam, and thence N. amongst the Shyans. Their numbers cannot be well ascertained, but have been estimated at about 33,000

KARGOPOI, a tn. Russia, gov. Olonets, 1 bank Onega, 310 m. E.N.E. St. Petersburg. It is of great antiquity, well built, contains 20 churches and two convents, makes great quantities of tallow has a candle manufacture and several tanneries. Pop. (1849), 1681

KARIKAL, a tn. Hindostan, presid. Madras Carnate, dist. Tanjore, on the coast of Coromandel, near the mouth of one of the branches of the Carver, and about 8 m. S. from quarter lat. 10° 55' N. lon. 79° 55' E. In the Carnate wars, it was a place of considerable importance, and it still occupies a considerable space. It was ceded to the French by the Rajah of Tanjore in 1759; taken from them by the British, in 1803 and restored by the treaty of Paris, in 1814. The French have been making efforts to renew its importance, and the trade, particularly in rice, is said to be considerable, but there is a large bar across the mouth of the river by which the navigation is much obstructed. Pop. 15,000

KAPITENA a tn. Greece, Moros, r. bank Rousph, 17 m. W. Tripoliza. It lies near the centre of the Moros, and is one of its most important military points, occupying the sides of a hill the summit of which is lofty and precipitous. It is crossed by a bridge which was long the stronghold of the celebrated Klephtic chief, Colocotroni. Pop. 1000

KARKELANG one of the Takutai Is., Indian Archipelago lat. (N point) 4° 22' N., lon. 137° E. of triangular shape, hilly towards the V and X, but the greater part is flat. It contains 10 villages. Pop. 2970

KARKANA ISLANDS, a cluster of low islands, Mediterranean N.W. coast of Africa Tunis at the entrance to the Bay of Gabes lat. 34° 33' N. lon. 11° 30' E. The most W. is called Fera-Lakalia, having a tower erected on its W. end. The middle island is large and irregularly formed with seven villages on its W. side, and three on its E. side the principal of these is called Shraga, which frequently gives its name to the whole island. The other islands are smaller but they are all inhabited. They are dangerous to approach KARKISSA, KAKISSA, or KARKISSAN (anc. Caraceni) a tn. Assate Turkey. Bagdad, 1 bank Euphrates, near the junction of the Abshier 150 m. S.W. Mosul lat. 33° 12' N. lon. 40° 30' E. It is now called Ab-Sher (Father of palace) and as built on an extensive heap of ruins.

KARKOCZ, or TARKOVITZ, a vil. Hungary, Hither Danube, co. Neutra, about 4 m. from Galgoc, on the road to Tyrnan, on the Danube with a R. Catholic church. P. 995

KARLHURG or OMORVAY (anc. Carus Geroldus) a market in Hungary, co. Wieselburg, in a beautiful and fertile district, on an arm of the Danube 37 m. E.R.E. Vienna. It contains a Protestant and a R. Catholic church, a synagogue, and an elegant castle, with fine gardens, and has a trade in corn and several annual fairs. Pop. 2005

KARLEBY—1 (Gumla), or OLD KARLEBY (Finnish Karleby) a small seaport in Russia Finland, Gulf of Bothnia, 71 m. N.W. E. Vasa, on a spacious bay. It is well and regularly built, contains a church, and has building-yards, several tanneries, and pitch-ovens and a considerable trade in pitch butter, deers, tallow and provisions. Pop. 2627—2 (Isle) a tn. S.W. of the fortress on the Lapok the mouth of the Neva forms a harbour in the Gulf of Bothnia. It has a considerable trade in tar. Pop. 2000

KARLENBURG (Gonos and Kikon) two nearly contiguous villa. Bavaria Palatinat, con. Grunstadt with a Protestant and a R. Catholic church, and several mills. P. 1680

KARLOVICH a vil. Austria, Slavonia, generalship Fawarwarden, about 9 m. from Golanabue with a Greek non-united church. Pop. 934

KARLOVITZ (Loj) a vil. Austria, Slavonia, generalship Fawarwarden, about 5 m. from Bosnka, with a Greek non-united church. Pop. 1200

KARLOWITZ, a tn. Austria, Moravia, circle of and 37 m. E.S.E. Prazau on a high hill near the frontiers of Hungary. It contains a church and a custom house, and has glass-works and several mills. Pop. 2437. See KARLOWITZ.

KARLSBAD a tn. Bohemia. See CARLSBAD

KARLSBURG, a tn. Transylvania. See CARLSBURG

KARLSHAGEN, a tn. Sweden. See CARLSHAGEN

KARLSHAGEN (originally Sylt) a tn. Hesse-Cassel cap. hill of same name, in a deep valley, enclosed by red sandstone cliffs on the Weier at the confluence of the Diemel here crossed by a bridge 13 m. N.W. canal on the railway thence to Hanover. It consists of two large and of two small quarters, separated from each other by a canal, which is partly sanded up. It contains a church, attached to a house of invalids, a merchant-house, and several large magazines, belonging to the Elektor and has manufactures of soap, leather, and tobacco a family vinegar-works, and several distilleries a considerable trade in corn and colonial products, and several annual fairs. A great many of the inhabitants are descendants of French Hugonots, who, having been driven from their homes, settled here in 1699. Pop. of tn. 1708; of hill 7416.

KARLSKRONA a tn. Sweden See CARLSKRONA

KARLSRUHE, a market tn. Prussia, prov. Rhine, gov. of, and 18 m. N.W. Oppeln. It has a dual castle, a Protestant and a R. Catholic church manufactures of potash, tile-works, and Himeklins. Pop. 1513

KARLSTAD, a tn. Sweden. See CARLSBAD

KARLSSTADT—1, A tn. Bavaria Lower Franconia, on the Main, 15 m. N.W. Würzburg. It has two churches, a chapel, Capuchin monastery hospital, and the ruins of an old castle; manufacture of leather and some trade in fruit and wine. Pop. 2160.—2 (or Karlsstadt) A tn. Czecho. See CAKLSSTADT.

KARLSSTHAL, a vil. Austrian Silesia, circle and about 32 m. W.N.W. Troppau, on the Gold and Kobel, with many factories of linen, and a paper and two other mills. Pop. 1144.

KARMEI, a vil. Punjab, 6 m. N. N.W. Ramnagar lat. 32° 28' N. lon. 78° 34' E., r. bank Chenab, which, when fullest, is here 1 m. broad. There is a considerable traffic across the river by the ferry at this place.

KARNAC, ruins, Egypt. See THEBES.

KARNTHEU, a duchy Austria. See CAKNTHEU.

KAROLY (Nagy), a market tn. Hungary, cap. co. Szathmar 40 m. E.N.E. Debrecin. It contains a large marketplace, a R. Catholic, two Greek, and two Protestant churches a castle, with fine gardens, a synagogue, Parist monastery gymnasium, head national school, and county buildings; and has a trade in corn and cattle, and several important annual fairs. Pop. 13,065.

KARPATHEN, mountains. See CARPATHIANS.

KARPFEN a tn. Hungary co. Sold on the Kremlins, 12 m. N.E.E. Schomru, finally situated at the foot of lofty hills which shelter it from the N. blasts. It has two churches a townhouse, a Piarist college, and school, and a considerable trade in wine, which is extensively grown in the district. Karpfen is one of the richest towns in Hungary. P. 3800.

KARROOS, table-lands or extensive plains between the mountain-ranges at Cape Colony (see CAPS or GOOD HOPE, vol. I. p. 592). They are exuberantly fertile for a time but, as this period is of short duration, the repair of cattle to graze on them forms a sort of holiday with the Dutch farmers and their servants, as giving variety to their usually monotonous existence and the expression of a Karroo life has come to be considered in the colony synonymous with whatever is frolicsome and merry-making, and relieved from wonted restrictions. During the dry season they become parched arid deserts. The Kioef a sort of companion name to the karroo is the name of the longitudinal valleys extending between the ranges of the deserts mentioned. Some of them are of great extent, the Lange Kioef or Long Valley being upwards of 100 m. in length.

KARS, a city Turkish Armenia cap. pash. of same name, picturesquely situated on the Kars, in an elevated plain, about 6000 ft. above the sea, in a rocky amphitheatre of black basaltic hills, 90 m. N.E. Erzeroum lat. 40° 32' N., lon. 43° 10' E. The houses are all built of black basalt, and this circumstance combined with the total want of trees, gives the town a dismal appearance. It stands on both sides of the river.

On the E. side is the Armenian suburb built on a gentle elevation, and nearer the river rises a lofty hill, crowned with the Turkish citadel, now in ruins. A good bridge leads to the other side, where the town, properly so called is situated, and is surrounded by a wall. It suffered greatly from the attack, and subsequent occupation of it by the Russians. Pop. 13,000.—The PASHALIK, bounded N. by pash. Akhalzik, N.E. by Russian Armenia, S. and W. by pash. Erzeroum, lies between lat. 40° 8' and 41° 18' N. and lon. 43° 25' and 43° 34' E. It forms part of the Armenian plateau, is surrounded by lofty mountains some of which are covered with perpetual snow, and has a severe climate, and a soil sterile and stony in the mountains, but rich in the valley. It is watered by the Arax, and several of its tributaries, as the Kars and Arpaek. Cattle and silk worm rearing form the chief occupation of the inhabitants, who are Turks, Armenians, and nomadic Turcomans.

KARSOUN a tn. Russia, cap. circle of same name, gov. of, and 65 m. W. Simbirsk. L. bank, Barab, where it joins the Karsunka. The manufacture of common and shaggy leather employs the most of the people. A considerable fair at Easter, lasts more about a fortnight. Pop. (1831) 8040.

KARTASANA, a market tn. al Java, prov. Kediri, l. bank Kediri, 40 m. W.N.W. Soerabaya. It has a fine bazaar, a vast mosque, and carries on a good trade in rice. Pop. 4000.

KARTHAUS, a tn. Prussia, prov. E. Prussia, gov. Danzig, cap. circle of same name, with a chapel an old Catholic monastery, and a paper-mill. Pop. 510.—The climate is well watered but not very fertile. Area, 417 geo. sq. m. Pop. 37,883.

KARTOUM a tn. Nubia. See KHARTOUM.

KASUN (anc. Shilwa), a river Persia, having its sources in the mountains of Awa, prov. Lenk Ajem, for Lenk, lat. 32° 15' N. lon. 50° 40' E. From its source, the Kasun is a large river. At first it flows due W. but when about to enter the province of Khuzestan, bends round to the S., traverses that province nearly at its centre, till it approaches the coast, when it takes a S.E. direction, and falls, by two outlets, into the Persian Gulf, about lat. 29° 55' N. It is perfectly easy of navigation, at all seasons, to vessels drawing 4 feet water, and admirably adapted for steam communication to within 6 m. of Shuster 150 m. from the sea.

KARYSTO, a tn. Greece, on the E. extremity of Peloponnesus, 40 m. E. Athens. It is situated on a rock near a small bay and defended by a fort, is the see of a Greek bishop and has a small harbour, which, lying exposed to violent winds is visited only by a few coasters. Pop. 8000.

KASAN KAZAN or CASAN a gov. E. Russia, bounded N. by gov. Viatka, E. by Orenburg S. by Simbirsk and by Nijni-Novgorod lat. 54° 20' to 55° 45' N., lon. 46° 40' to 51° 40' E. Length averaging 215 m., and breadth 125 m. Area about 25,000 sq. m. On entering the district from the W., the ground descends at first gradually, but afterwards more rapidly almost to the level of the Volga, and spreads into a plain clothed with the richest green, intersected an elevated plateau on the r. bank of the Volga, and terminating S or 4 m. E. in a range of hills. From this point the ground on the l. bank of the Volga rises rapidly, and strikingly contrasts with the low plains on the opposite side. The summit of the table-land thus formed is covered with well grown oaks which form the commencement of an extensive forest. Many of the hills consist of brilliant white slaty limestones the strata of which have a considerable dip, and are occasionally pierced by natural passages, one of which about 230 ft. long terminates in an alabaster cavern 60 ft. wide. Though the surface is thus occasionally diversified by hills, and a low branch of the Ural Mountains comes in upon the S.E., the general appearance is that of an extensive plain watered by large navigable rivers. The Volga, proceeding from the W., winds along in a tortuous course for nearly 180 m., the Kama, from the E. after a course of nearly 100 m., joins the Volga, whose united streams, occupying a channel 900 yards wide, proceed S. In addition to these are numerous smaller tributaries and lakes, which though individually not of large extent, are scattered throughout the district. The climate, on the whole is mild. Winter is keen but not protracted. Both spring and summer are usually serene, and in autumn all the vegetable productions of the same latitude come freely to perfection. Among others, apples pears cherries plums, and apricots, abound. Agriculture is extensively carried on, but not in a very perfect form. In some parts, however, the Tartars seem to be careful husbandmen and are particularly attentive to the harvesting of their grain. Hemp is grown to a great extent, and of excellent quality and the oil obtained from its seeds, and from a kind of pistachio nut which abounds, forms an important article of commerce. Flax, both in quantity and quality, is deficient. The inhabitants generally seem fond of horticulture. Almost every cottage has its garden and patches of tobacco are often seen, particularly in the neighbourhood of the Tartars, who raise it for their own use. The raising of cattle forms a profitable employment in the meadows and pastures of the rich flats which border the numerous streams. There, also, much attention is paid to the dairy the cows yielding a rich milk, of which large quantities of butter and cheese are made. The Russians form nearly a half of the whole population. The greater part of the remainder are Tatars, Cherenkeses, and Chuvashes. The Cherenkeses, who are most numerous in the W. part of the district, are much smaller and weaker than the Russian peasantry, and are characterized by a peculiar chryseous tint of look and demeanour. Their dress, which is the same for both sexes, consists of white linen trousers and an upper garment of the same material fastened round the loins with a girdle, and generally embroidered in various colours on the breast and shoulders. Strips of cloth which they wind round the leg from the foot to the knee, are always black. Both men and women allow their long black holy to hang about them in the wildest disorder. The dress of the Chuvashes very much resembles that of the Charentsians, the chief difference being in the buskas, who wear a plate of copper hanging from the girdle behind, and strung with all kinds of metallic ornaments, which keep tinkling as they walk. The Chuvashes are remarkable for timidity. This quality, which the first accounts of these nations as their most striking feature, seems still, notwithstanding of their long intercourse with Russia, to continue unimpaired. In the neighbourhood of Kasan the Tatars predominate, and are easily distinguished from the Russians by the dark colour of their lean muscular and, as it were, angular visage, by the close-fitting cap on their closely-shaved skull and a certain smartness of gait and demeanour. They have made considerable progress in civilization, and often contrast favourably with the Russian peasantry. The inhabitants of the district, generally are active and industrious. Besides agriculture and wood-cutting fishing, in the numerous lakes and rivers of the district, is a profitable occupation, and employs a great number of hands. The district, moreover possesses numerous manufactures, and has an extensive trade both internal and external, which the large navigable rivers greatly facilitate. Indeed boat and barge building for the traffic of the Volga, is not an unimportant branch of trade. Pop. (1856) 1,370,000.—The kingdom of Kasan comprehended the govs. of Kasan proper, Yuzh, Perm, Souborsk, and Pensa. It was originally peopled by Finns, who were vanquished and driven out by the Tartars. These in the 13th century established the extensive khannat of Kaptlak, which, in the 14th century was subdivided into four khannats, of which Kasan was one. In 1552 Ivan-Vassilievitch II. by the taking of Kasan destroyed the Tartar power and annexed the territory to Russia as a kingdom. In 1753, Peter the Great subdivided the kingdom into the five govs. mentioned above.

KASAN or KARIN a fortified city, Russia, cap above gov., 460 m. E. Moscow, lat. 56° 47' N. lon. 49° 20' E.; between 1 bank Kazanka and its tributary the Bulak, occupying a tongue of land which gradually rises, like an island, to a considerable height above low plains liable to inundation. It covers a space nearly 6 m. in extent and properly forms three towns—the kremlin or citadel the middle town, and the lower town, or rather suburbs. The citadel, which occupies the highest position presents a very picturesque appearance. It is still surrounded by a stone wall of great height, which was built by the Tatars, and is flanked by 14 towers. The buildings in it most worthy of notice are the palace of the governor and the archbishop, the barracks, prisons, and workhouses for criminals, and more especially the great cathedral of the place, the cathedral of the Kasan Mother of God. A picture kept here is held in the highest reverence and is believed to possess miraculous powers. In many parts of Russia, churches have been built for the Holy Mother of Kasan, and copies of the picture set up, and alleged to have powers almost as miraculous as those of the original, a faded and smaltine painting with a drapery of rich and fantastic ornaments, wrought in metal, and set with precious stones. Many of the other 35 churches contain specimens of an architecture even more elaborate than those of Moscow. Among them may be named as remarkable edifices, the cathedral of Nikolski, that of the Annunciation a Byzantine structure, and the cathedral of Peter and Paul more modern than the two last named. It has also 9 convents, and 16 mosques. Among the former the monastery of St. John the Baptist is an extensive edifice of an imposing aspect. In the middle town which adjoins the fortress, the grand appearance of some of the private houses, and the great extent of the bazaar or Gostinny Dvor, attest the high importance of Kasan at an early period. The bazaar is surrounded by lofty buildings, chiefly of stone; and exhibits an immense quantity of skins piled up in the fur stalls, an immense variety of vegetable productions and fruits, both green and dried, and great supplies of fish, brought from the different provinces bordering on the Volga. The chief object of interest in the lower town is the university built of white hewn stone, and its principal fronts adorned with Corinthian columns. It was founded to be a school of western civilization in a semi-barbarous district, and well fulfils its purpose. Besides the different branches of natural sciences the study of Eastern languages in carried on at the very source; while that of national history is encouraged, not only by the peculiar character of the library but also by a remarkably rich collection of Russian and Tartar coins. In addition to the usual branches of manufactures, CATHEDRAL OF VIRGOLIN, IN THE GREAT BAZAAR, KASAN.

From Described, Engraving, Photographs, and Antiquities in Russia.

Kasan has some which are peculiar to itself. One is the preparation and staining of Russian leather a business in which the Tatars are particularly expert and another the making of a particular kind of soap called musko which cut into small pieces, and packed in boxes, is sent over all Russia. Kasan is well situated for a transit trade, carrying the manufactures of Europe to and from Asia and bartering them for the peculiar productions of those regions. In this way particularly by the trade in furs and in u.s., many of the storerooms of Kasan are said to have accumulated great wealth. Kasan was originally built by the Tatars, and, under them was almost as large as the present city. The walls were 28 ft. thick, and were formed of two parallel wooden fences, having the space between them filled with wood and clay. In 1552 it was attacked by Czar John Basilievich, at the head of a numerous army. For six weeks it made a vigorous resistance but was ultimately taken, scarcely any of its valiant defenders surviving the event. Since then, it has experienced several dreadful conflagrations the last in 1815, by which more than the half of it was destroyed. It has, however, quite recovered from the disaster. Pop (1840) 41,804.

KASANLIK a tn European Turkey. See KASAPAR.

KASAWAT a tn Asia, khannat, and 20 m. N. Khiva, on the canal of same name led from the Amoo-Darya. It lies low and is partly surrounded by a wall contains a mosque and 25 shops, and is inhabited by Persian slaves who have been freed, and live by agriculture and trade.

KASHFK a vil Russia, in the Caucasus Mountains, and occupying both sides of the Terek, lat. 42° N; lon 49° E. It stands at the foot of Mount Kasbek, is inhabited by Georgians, and has a church built, six centuries ago, by the Georgian Prince Tamar, who converted her subjects to Christianity.—Kasbek, the mountain forming part of the chain of the Caucasus, is about 14,000 ft. high. Its higher regions are usually covered with snow and glaciers, which, in grandeur and extent, equal, and even surpass those of Switzerland. On its E. slope is a monastery of Georgian monks.—(Wagner's Kaukasus.)

KASHIN, a tn. Persia. See GABRIEL.

KASCHAU or Kosmas [Latin Cassovia] a to. Hungary, Hither Thren, esp. ab. Absyria, beautifully situated in a valley enclosed by sloping vineyards, r. bank Hernad, at the confluence of the Cernai, 124 m N.E. Pesth. It consists of the town proper nearly in the form of an oval, intersected by the Cernai which here forms an island crossed by several bridges and of several suburbs and in proportion to its size, is one of the best built towns in Hungary. The principal buildings are the cathedral, a large and venerable structure in old Gothic, with a lofty tower covered with copper and adorned internally with fine glidings, carvings and sculptures; the church of St. Michael also Gothic but of small dimensions; the Protestant church, neither handsome nor well situated, the old Jesuit church, surmounted by two towers, the court-house, the townhouse, surrounding a house the bishop's palace and several splendid mansions of the nobility; the Ursuline convent, the gymnasium normal school, schools of design and music, a large and handsome infirmary; a public library of 10,000 vols; a theatre, and several hospitals. The manufactures and trade are not of much importance. The former consist of Lather wool, cloth, hats, tobacco, stoneware, paper, and gunpowder; and there are also brick and stoneware, linoleum, stone and slate quarries. The trade is partly in these articles of manufacture, but chiefly in wine. Kaschau is the see of a bishop and the seat of several superior courts and public offices. It was first surrounded by walls in 1270, and has repeatedly suffered both from war and from fire. Both German and Latin are said to be generally spoken here in great purity. Pop. (1846) 18,700.

KASHA, a to. Persia, prov. Irak Ajeroi. 90 m S. Isfahan. lat. 34° N., lon. 61° 30' E., in a fertile and productive plain. It is about 8 m in length E. to W. and upwards of 15 m in breadth, and contains a royal palace, many fine mosques, bazars and caravanserais. Coloured and flowered silks of great beauty are manufactured here also carpets and cotton cloth. All kinds of copper utensils are made, and the artists are skilful workers in gold and silver. The houses are infested with scorpions. Pop. 50,000.

KASHGAK, a to. Central Asia. See CASHGAR.
KASHGAI, a to. Russia, gov. of 30 and 30 m N.E. Tver lat. 57° 25' N., lon. 37° 30' E., on the Kasliutka a tributary of the Volga. Though old and ill built, it is rather a stirring place. The chief employment is tanning, and there is also a manufacture of some note, which produces a kind of paint used in the tanneries. It has no fewer than three monasteries, and 25 churches, though its population is only 4947.

KASHIRA, a to. Russia, cap. circle of same name gov. of, and 60 m N.N.E. Tula, on the Kasira, a small stream which joins the Oka. Pop. (1850) 5133.

KASHMIR a country. Asia. See CASHMERE.
KASHINA, CASHNA, KASHNA or KATSHNA a to. Central Africa, cap. princely of same name, 85 m. N.W. Kano, lat. 12° 59' N., lon. 8° 30' E. It is surrounded by clay walls, enclosing a very extensive space, of which not more than one-fourth is built upon the rest being laid out in fields or covered with wood. Most of the houses are in ruins, in consequence of the preference given to Kano, since the Fallah conquest. The governor's house, about 3 m. E. of the other buildings, resembles a large village. The manufactures are chiefly tanned bullock hides, and various articles in leather; and the trade, though greatly decayed, is still considerable. The inhabited houses number about 700.

KASKAKIA, a to. U. States Illinois, on the fork near the junction of the Kaskaskia and Mississippi lat. 37° 55' N., lon. 89° 50' W. It contains a courthouse, jail, R. Catholic church, a university and female boarding-school, with 800 dwellings. — 2. A river same State. It rises about lat. 40° 30' N., lon. 89° 50' W., flows S.E. W., and falls into the Mississippi, lat. 37° 48' N., lon. 89° 40' W., after a course of about 200 m. It is navigable, in high water up to Vandalia, 150 m.

KASMAEK, or KEMANE [Latin, Foras Casorum] a to. Hungary, co. Zaps, pleasantly situated r. bank Poprad, not far from Mount Tatras, the most elevated of the Carpa. Tatras, 11 m. N.W. Lentschau. It is an ancient place, once surrounded by double walls, and well entered by three gates and consists chiefly of a number of long streets, lined by tolerably well built houses. It contains a R. Catholic church, a handsome structure, with a fine crucifix and high altar, a handsome church, a Protestant church, large, but only of wood, a townhouse, with an elegant tower, an old castle, in ruins. A Protestant hospital, with library and cabinet of natural history, and a R. Catholic high school, and has important manufactures of linen and iron, parts of which about 800,000 ells are annually exported, and a considerable trade also in wool and wine. The removal of the old walls, and the occupying of their site by orchards and gardens, have made the environs very pleasant. Pop. 5000.

KASPI LA, a river Russia, which rises in the W. of gov. Simolensk, flows W. N.W. past Novotok, enters gov. Vitebsk, and joins bank S. Dvina, at Saraj after a course of about 80 m, the greater part of which is navigable.

KASSABA a to. Asiatic Turkey, prov. Karamania, 70 m N. Konia. It is built of stone, is surrounded by a wall flanked by redans and has some handsome gates of European architecture. It has a well supplied bazaar.

KASSATUTCHY one of the Aleutian is. It is a mountain rising at once out of the sea. The crater on its summit is said by the inhabitants to be full of water.

KASHEGOWITZ, or KASOWITZ, a market in Bohemia, circle Psekau. 31 m N.W. Plock, with a church, school, townhouse, hospital, the ruins of the old east of Kaschitz, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1251.

KASSEI a vil. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, dist. Orlu, with a church and oil bark, and flour mills. Pop. 1036.

KASSIMOV a to. Russia, cap. circle of same name, gov. of and 70 m P.N.E. Ruzan lat. 54° 50' N., lon. 41° 20' E. It stands on a height formed by the bank of the Oka, which here takes the name of Balowka, and is surrounded by a wall along which a walk has been formed. The streets are narrow and crooked and though there is excellent building stone in the neighbourhood the houses are of wood. Its manufactures are ropes, virtual leather and particularly, earthenware. Many of the inhabitants are Tatars, who carry on a considerable trade with the East by way of Bokhara, in furs, and silk and cotton goods. Under the Tatar dominion Kassimov had the name of Goroletsk, and was a place of note as is shown by numerous interesting ruins in the town and neighbourhood. Pop. (1849) 7781.

KASSON a country W. from Senegambia traversed by the Fouta de N. of Bambari, intersected by lat. 14° 30' N., lon. 11° W. It was formerly a powerful state, formed by colonies of Foulas from Fouta-Jallon but is now a prey to anarchy. The inhabitants, particularly on the bank of the river being exposed to the oppression and depredations of the Bambaras, the scourge of the country. The Foulas of Kasson are far inferior to those of Bondou, in religion, manners, and every other estimable quality. Thieving and idleness are their prevailing vices. Having little agriculture, or industry of any kind, they are very scantily supplied with the necessities of life. Some of the more adventurous engage in hunting the elephant or go in caravans into the neighbouring countries, bringing back articles wanted for export to Europe.

KASTAMUN, a to. Asiatic Turkey. See CASHMERE.
KANTELEKORIT or KANTELEK a to. Tyrrol. See CADRETTEN.

KATFORPA, or KASHAN [anc. Caledonia] a to. European Turkey, Macedonia, on a peninsula stretching into Lake Kastoria, 28 m. S. Monastir. Pop. 1800.

KASTRI a vil. Greece. See DELPHI.
KASIRIKUM or CASIRICUM a vil. Holland, prov. V. Holland, 16 m. S.W. Amsterdam. It has a neat church, with a heavy tower surmounted by a spire and a council house, with a school under the same roof. Near this village the Dutch and Russian met the Dutch and French troops, on 6th October 1799 and, after thirteen hours fighting, and heavy loss, were obliged to retire.

KASZA, KOMI, or KOMENKA, a market in Hungary, co. of, and 12 m. N.E. Tretschin on the Wag here crossed by a stone bridge. It has a R. Catholic parish church, a castle, and manufactures of linen. Pop. 1023.

KASZON (Maz or Maszvan) a market in Hungary, co. Boregh 18 m. S.W. Munkacs, with two churches. P. 1477.
KATA (Nay) a market in Hungary, co. of, and 51 m. E.S.E. Fesh with a R. Catholic church, a castle, and a trade in corn and wine. Pop. 851.

KATAFANGA, one of the smaller Foeje is. lat. 17° 30' S., lon. 179° 2' W. (s.), of volcanic formation, and about 150 ft. high, labeled during the turk's season only. On its N. E. point are some huts, and it produces in abundance sugar-cane, fruit, and vegetables.

KATAGUM, or KATASOOM, a tn Central Africa, Senegal, cap prov of same name, about 230 m. W. Lake Tchad lat. 12° 17' N, lon 11° E. It is in the form of a square, the sides being the cardinal points, with four corresponding gates. It is defended by two parallel walls of red clay and three watchtowers, one without, one within, and the third between the two walls, which are about 20 ft. high, and 10 ft. broad at the base gradually decreasing upwards. The house of the governor which stands in the centre of the town, and those of the principal inhabitants, are built entirely of clay flat roofed, with square or semicircular openings for windows. Pop. 7000 to 8000.—The province is bounded E. by Bornu, and W. by Kama. Its principal productions are gum and bullocks which with slaves from the adjoining territories, are the staple articles of trade. It can send into the field 4000 horse and 20,000 foot, armed with bows, swords, and spears.

KATALINFALVA, or KATARKFELD, a vil. Hungary, Thibster Theres, co. Tormont, in a fertile district 11 m. N. E. Batschke, with a R. Catholic church. Pop. 1864.

KATANKA, a river Amharic Rasna, which issues from a lake in gov. Yemassik, lat. 6° 5' N. lon. 36° E. flows first E. N. E. then N. W. E. past the town of Katanka, and falls into a bay of the same name in the Arctic Ocean after a course of about 600 m. Its principal affluents are—the r. the Pajigal and the r. the Madvaya and the Noraya.

KATCHA a river Russia, gov. Taurida. It rises on the N. side of the mountains of Ede, in the S. of the Crimea flows W. N. W. and, after a course of about 45 m. falls into the Black Sea, below Melaschaki, and 18 m. N. Sebastopol.

KATCHALLA, or KATACULLA, one of the Nicobar islands, Bay of Bengal S. W. from lat. Camorta, lat. (N. point) 8° 1' N. lon. 93° 58' E. about 19 m. long. N. W. to S. E. and about 9 m. in greatest breadth. On the N. E. side is a deep bay but greatly encumbered with coral reefs, as is also all the E. side, and indeed to a greater or less extent, the whole coast of the island. On the S. side a heavy surf beats, but on the S. W. side is a deep bay which, though also partly filled with coral reefs is clear in its N. part, and presents a anchorage. On the shore here are some villages, but elsewhere, the island being thickly covered with wood, seems uninhabited.—(Steinthal, Bericht über die Reise der Corvette Galesche von der 17de m. 1844—47).

KATHARABERK, several places, Bohemia, particularly—1. (or Katerberg) A mining tn. circle of, and 24 m. N. W. N. W. Saaz, among mountains, on the Schwitz. It contains a parish church and has several mills and smelting furnaces. There are mines of silver and copper in the hill on which the town stands. Pop. 1250.—2. A vil., circle Bunzlau, on the Mark Naiste, at the foot of the Drehsenberg in a wild, romantic district, surrounded by steep, but well-wooded hills. It has a school and several cotton mills. Pop. 617.

KATHEK, prov. India, beyond the Ganges. See CANARY KATHU, a co. Darma, r. bank Irrawadi, 156 m. N. Aye. It is a thriving and increasing place, of about 400 houses, and its harbor is well supplied with vegetables, fresh and salt fish, pork, dried coco-nuts, sugar-cane, and rice. It is also supplied with British piece-goods and inferior stock-lac. There is a large wooden, beautifully carved kyoung or monastery on the banks of the river which are here lofty and not more than two furlongs apart.—(Four Asiat. Soc. Trans., April, 1857).

KATIF, or KU-KATIF a dist. and seaport, Arabia, on the Persian Gulf, in lat. 26° 25' N. lon. 50° E. about 85 m. N. W. Bahrein. The bay, on the W. side of which stands the town of Katif is formed N. by a long, narrow, sandy neck, and S. by a flat, sandy plain. The bay is 70 m. wide at the entrance—the points terminating it respectively being Ras-el-Tamrah and Zaharan and in the middle is the island of Tarik, 10 m. long N. W. to S. E. well watered, and covered with date-trees. A bank, projecting from the island, divides the bay into two channels, of which the E. is extremely shallow. The anchorage in the R. channel is well sheltered, but on a sandy bottom, and a long way from the town. On the S. side of the bay, where there are several villages, the water is so shallow that, even from boats, people must land by means of camels or horses. Respecting the town of Katif, we have only obsolete accounts by Arab writers. The place is so unhealthy that it is thought dangerous to spend even a single night in it. It contains some good houses; and outside of it is held a weekly market, well supplied with meat, grain, dates, and water-melons. About 3 m. off, in the S. side of the bay is a fort. Wheat and barley are here less abundant than rice, the cultivation of which is ascribed to the establishment of the place. In the gardens, between the desert and the sea-shore, are numerous hamlets. The fruits cultivated are figs, pomegranates, mangoes, apricots, grapes, citrons, and lemons.—The district embraces some walled and seven open villages, containing a population of 25 000; of which number 6000 belong to the town and suburbs. The place is said to have little trade, Bahrein having engrossed all the commerce of the coast.—(Capt. Sadler's Trans. Asi. Soc. Bombay).

KATILBLGA, a lake, Russia, prov. Bessarabia, 13 m. E. N. E. small, greatest length 18 m. greatest breadth 5 m. It communicates with lake Tschiquanar, Sulfan, and Kodscheul and sends its waters to the Danube.

KATRAMAG, or KANDRUKANAG, a celebrated place of Hindoo pilgrimage in Ceylon 118 m. E. S. E. Colombo. Here within two enclosures, are a number of temples erected to Hindoo deities and two belonging to the Buddhists. The principal temple is that dedicated to Skanda, the god of war and so great is the veneration in which the shrine of this deity is held, that pilgrims from every part of India resort to worship it, frequently bringing with them pots of water from the Ganges at Benares.—(Ceylon Gazetteer).

KATHINE, CATERAN, KATERNER, or KETORIN (Loom), a lake Scotland, on Perth 5 m. E. Loch Lomond, and 8 m. W. Callander. It is of serpentine form 10 m. long, an some places 2 m. broad, and remarkably deep with an island near its E. end commonly called the Lady's Isle. It is encircled by lofty mountains, and rocky ravines clothed with trees, and reveals numerous mountain treasures. As it is one of the celebrated passes of the Trossachs, rendered famous by Scott's Lady of the Lake. Through this pass a stream flows, carrying the surplus waters of the lake to Loch Achray.

KATSCHALINKA, a tn. Russia, gov. Don, Cossacks, l. bank Don, 36 m. N. W. Taurin lat. 49° 6' N. lon. 40° E. Its only importance is as an entrepot for the produce of N. Russia, which, brought by the Volga to Donbavia, is carried by land to Katschalinak, and thence by the Don. P. 4189.

KATSCHER or KATSKA, a tn. Prussia, prov. Sillesia, gov. and 41 m. S. Oppeln, on the Dreybach. It has two churches, a synagogue, and hospital, manufactures of cotton and woolen cloth; several dye-works, a tobacco factory, a weekly market and five annual fairs. Pop. 3639.

KATT, a tn Central Asia, Khelat, of 27 m. N. Khiva, on the canal of Jernyngh surrounded by a dilapidated wall, and consisting of houses which are almost all ramshackle. It contains about 40 shops, inhabitants chiefly Tartars.

KATGESAT, or KATGEAT, a large arm of the N. Sea or German Ocean. In a more general sense it sometimes includes the Skager Rack, but is more properly confined to the sea, which has Sweden on the E. and Jutland on the W. united by the Skager Rack on the N. and communicates by the Sound and the Great and Little Belts, with the Baltic on the E. Thus restricted, its length, from N. to S., is about 150 m. and its central breadth nearly 90 m. It is of very unequal depth and is not only very shallow towards its shores but has a number of sandbanks—one of them near its centre, and dangerous to navigation. The only islands of any consequence it contains are Læsø, Anhelt, and Samøe.

KATTYMAR, a vil. Hungary. Higher Danube, co. of and 45 m. N. Bacs, with a R. Catholic parish church and a trade in corn wine, and cattle. Pop. 5440.

KATTYWAR, a dist. Hindoostan, Golewar's dominions, peninsula of Gujarat, near its centre. It contains no town of any consequence. It derives its name from its inhabitants, called Kattys. The name is also at times applied to the whole peninsula.

KATUNGA, or EXBO, a tn. W. Africa, esp. Yoruba, 61 m. S. Bonon lat. 8° 59' N. lon. 4° 25' E. situated on the side, and around the base, of a small range of granite hills, huge masses of which threateningly overhang the valley below. The town is surrounded by a wall and ditch, the former of mud, and 20 ft. high, with 10 gates. There are seven different markets, which are held every evening, and where the chief articles exposed to sale are yams, corn, plantains, bananas, vegetable-butter, seeds of the cocoyam, which form a great article of food, sweetmeats, goats, fowls, sheep, and lambs, also native cloth, and various instruments of agriculture. Near the town are the houses of the king and those of his women, which occupy 1 sq. m., and have two large parks attached.

KATWIJK AAN DEN RIJN a vil Holland, prov. S. Hol land, 4 m. N. Leyden, intersected by the Rhine, here crossed by a fine stone bridge. It is a neat, well built place; has a Calvinistic church, townhouse, weighhouse and two schools. Pop. agricultural, 1906.

KATWIJK AAN ZEE a vil Holland, prov. S. Holland 8 m. N.W. Leyden, on the sea-coast, at the mouth of the Rhine. It has a Calvinistic church, orphan hospital and two schools, is inhabited chiefly by seamen and fishermen, possesses four herring-boats, which fish mostly on the English coast, off Yarmouth, and has salmon herring-curing establishments. Some support themselves likewise by gathering shell fish and by cultivating potatoes. Pop. 3204.

KATZBACH a river Russia, prov. Silesia. It rises near Behlins. flows N. past that town to Goldberg when it turns E.N.E. passes the towns of Jergnitz and Pochwitz, and, about 5 m. below the latter, joins 1 bank Oder, after a course of about 40 m. On its banks, in 1813, the Prussians under Hübner defeated the French.

KALZENFLEBOGEN a market tn. Nassau, 16 m. N.W. Wiesbaden. It has an old castle, in which the counts of the name were wont to reside, four mills, and a smelting-furnace supplied from iron mines in the vicinity. Pop. 902.

KALEHITTY a vil Germany, principality Schwarzburg-Rudolstadt, at the confluence of the Kalz and Schwarzburg. It contains a parish church, and has a blast-furnace, and other extensive iron works. A lead mine is worked in the vicinity. Pop. 1185.

KALFLEUREN, a tn. Navarra, circle Bivar, cap. dist. of same name on the Werth, here crossed by a bridge, 48 m. W. N.W. Múñich. It is surrounded by walls has a court of justice, several public offices, three churches, four chapels, to one of which pilgrimages are made, a Latin rural school and agricultural school, an orphan, and ordinary hospital, manufacture of linen, cotton and woollen dye-works, bleachfields, paper and iron mills and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. tn. 4050 dist. 77,717.

KALFUNGEN (Osnab.) a tn. Hase-Channel Niederweser, circle and 5 m. S. Cassel, on the Looze with alum pits, coal mines, and paper-mills. Near it is the ancient abbey founded by the Empress Kunigunde in 1008 and suppressed in 1527. Pop. 1800.

KALNITZ, or KONIG a vil Bohemia, circle and 8 m. N.W. Kassin with two churches, a castle, school and hospital, manufacture of potash, and several mills. P. 1148.

KALEZIM, a tn. Bohemia, cap. circle and on a stream of same name, 25 m. E.S.E. Prague. It consists of the town proper surrounded by a wall, and of several suburbs, contains a demeray church, two chapels, a townhouse, hospital, and posthouse, and has a trade in cattle. Pop. 2170.

KAUTH, GAUTZ or KAUTZ a vil Bohemia circle of and 20 m. W. Klatzau, with a chapel school courthouse, and cattle manufacture of linen and several mills. Pop. 1063.

KAUTOKIINO a vil and sea Norway, Fushmark on the Alken, about 180 m. S.S.W. Hammerfest. It consists of small wooden houses generally well constructed and is visited by the merchants from Torshuk, who barter articles of hardware, and other necessaries, for the skins of reindeer, birds, sealers &c. furnished by the Lapland inhabitants.

KAYALA [anc. Nepolis] a maritime tn. Turkey-in-Europe, in the S.E. of Macedonia, N. side bay of same name, 89 m. E.N.E. Salonika; lat. 40° 55' N. lon. 24° 25' E. It is surrounded by a wall in bad repair, and defended by a fort, situated on a rock. The chief objects of notice are the market-place, which is of great extent; and an aqueduct, which supplies water from the neighbouring mountains. The harbour is small, but a considerable trade is carried on in tobacco and cotton. Pop. 4000.

KAYEN, or CAVREZ ISLAND, Marshall's Archipelago, Caroline Islands, N. Pacific Ocean. This group, consisting of 64 islands, is 80 m. long, N.W. and S.E., and 11½ m. broad. Kaven, the largest, 2½ m. by ½ m. is in lat. 8° 54' 21" N. lon. 170° 48' E. Good water may be obtained in some of the smaller islands, but provisions are not abundant.

KAWBCHANI a tn. Russia, prov. Rostow, cap. circle of same name, 1 bank Botnia, about 13 m. S. Bender. It is walled, but poorly built, consisting of wooden houses, and narrow ill-kept streets. It has a Greek and an Armenian church, a synagogue, a mosque, and mineral springs, with several bathing establishments. A great many of the inhabitants are Jews, who engross nearly all the trade which is carried on. Kawbchani was once a large and flourishing town of nearly 20,000 inhabitants, but is now in a very decayed condition.—The climate though of great extent, is thinly peopled and remains in a waste and deserted state.

KAYIS, an isl. N. Pacific, Russian America, lat. 59° 48' N. lon. 144° 28' W. (s.) Viewed from the E. it presents the appearance of two islands. The E. is a high table-land, free from trees or vegetation and of a whitish hue, the other is moderately high land for this region with three peaks, its lower parts being well wooded. Towards the sea, the island terminates in a kind of bare, sloping cliffs, with a narrow stony beach at their foot and interrupted with some gullies, in each of which is a rivulet or torrent, and the whole surmounted with a growth of smallish pine-trees.

KAYSERBERG [anc. Civitas Mosu] a tn. France dep. Haut-Rhin 7 m. N.W. Colmar, agreeably situated near the source of the Weiser, which issues from Lake Hottel. It has manufactures of coarse cottons, as well as sennet, flax and hemp-spinning mills, dye-works, and tanneries, and some trade in the wines of the district, which are of good quality. Kayserberg was anciently a place of great strength, and in 1295 was declared a free imperial town by Adolphus, king of the Romans. Near it a hill which rises over Lake Blaud is crowned by the ruins of the castle of Kayserberg. Pop. 8056.

KAYTS, a seaport and vil. in Mandchou or Leydon, off N. coast in Ceylon Palu Strait, at the extreme end of a harbour which is formed by an opening, about ½ m. broad between Karadive and Mandchou, connecting the lake of Jaffa with the sea. Its harbour affords safe anchorage for shipping at all seasons of the year and is much frequented by country craft and small vessels. The village contains small St. Catharine church and a court-house. The greater part of the inhabitants are fishermen. Fish is exceedingly plentiful and there was formerly a depot for orchards here.

KAYVA a market tn. Russia, gov. Orenburg, circle Omsk, near the S.W. frontiers of the gov. It carries on an active trade. Pop. 1800.

KAZA, or KAZO a vil Hungary Thutser Theles, ca. Borsod about 30 m. from Miskolca, on the Sajó, with a Protestant church, and a trade in corn, wine, and timber. P. 4553.

KAZAN a tn and gov. Russia. See KASATKA.

KAZANKA a river, Russia. See KASATKA.

KAZANKSAIA, a tn. Russia, gov. Don Cossacks 1 bank Don, on the frontiers of gov. and 150 m. S.S.E. Yermak. It has a large church, and a great number of well furnished shops, and is famous for its cutlery particularly salars.

KAZBEK, Caucasus. See KASAKK.

KAZEMBE, or CAMEROON, the title of a sovereign in the interior of Africa, whose dominions occupy a very important position in the geography of that country as viewed under the relations of intercourse and commerce. The capital, or residence of the Kasembe, is named Losenia, and stands in the land of Kuelinga, in about lat. 9° 30' S. lon. 26° 16' E. It occupies a position easily defended and selected probably on this account, being nearly surrounded with water. At a little distance to the N.W. and N. flows the river Lusilla, N. E. to the lake Nyassa on the E. close to the town, in the marsh at hagen called Mova, which, being connected with the Lusilla in lower down forms a protection on the E. while the Bafingi, Cassinga, and other streams, running into the Lusilla and Mova, impede the access from the W.

Position, Extent, &c.—The extent of the Kasembe's dominion can be traced, on express authority only in the directions W. and S.E., but the outline may be completed by probable inference with little risk of error. About a month's journey W. of Losenia is the highland of Lubah or Lubin, through which the road continues W. as far as the river Camero, where it turns to the N.W., nearly in the meridian of 24° E. Here ends the territory of the Kazembe, 250 m. W. of his capital, and that of the Muevanga begins. The highest of Leburi, which seems to have an extent of 80 or 80 m. W. to E. is remarkable on two accounts, first, it is at the head of two great valleys running in different directions, namely, that of the Laila (the main branch of the Zambezi) which goes N.W., and that of the Luviri, which falls into the Laila, and runs easterly to the E.; and, secondly, it produces in abundance two of the most important articles in the traffic of the African interior—namely salt and copper. Numerous streams run S. or N.W. from these heights, and are collected by the Laila, which joins the Laila. The distance between the Laila and Luviri is about 150 m. Many rivers cross the road between them but to which valley they hasten is not known, there is reason however to suspect that the separating ridge in this latitude (10°) between the basins of the Laila and Luviri is near the meridian of 28° E. Towards the S.E. the authority of the Kazembe reaches about 150 m. to the Zambezi (called, by the Portuguese, the New Zambezi) which river descending from the highlands round the S. extremity of the lake, takes a curvilinear course, N.W. and N. till it enters the Luviri. There is no reason to believe that the sway of the Kazembe extends beyond or V. of the Laila in the neighbourhood of his capital nor yet to any distance E. for in this direction the Kafue, and beyond them the Muevanga, on the shores of the lake, are his determined enemies. S.W., or along the course of the Zambezi, and up the Luviri, we have no information beyond vague indications of a vast extent of marsh. But the relative importance of an African king would be imperfectly estimated from the superficial extent of his territory. The Kazembe is master of a large portion of the established line of communication across the African continent. This line, marked out by nature and the only route across hitherto distinctly traced proceeds from Congo up the valley of the Laila and then down that of the Luviri to the lake, round which, but chiefly on the E. side, is a great demand for the salt and copper of Leburi. At the S. end of the lake, and in the hilly country S. of the New Zambezi, are tribes wholly mercantile, who continue the traffic to the coast. In the interior of Africa, where the people travel on foot, it is evident that there can be no frequented road where there is not a line of population, and the Kazembe is sovereign of such a line for 300 m., it is probable not only that his authority reaches but a short distance laterally from this line, but that it diminishes also as the distance from the capital increases so that the chiefs near the Laila and Zambezi are rather his unwilling tributaries than obedient subjects and while they acknowledge his sovereignty exercise, in most respects, a complete independence.

Face of the Country.—Of the 250 m. of territory to the W. 2500 feet to be highland or elevated plains but the descent into the valley of the Luviri conduces to a totally different region which extends, with slight exception nearly to the Zambezi, and presents low swampy tracts, stagnant waters and sluggish streams and occasionally traces of great size and luxuriance, which reminded the Portuguese traveller Lucinda, of the forests of Brazil. The only intrusion of rocky heights and rugged grounds comes in reference to the copper mines, which are situated near the W. limit of the Kazembe's empire. There, we are told the ground is all strewed with green stones (copper ore). On the high ground between the Laila and Luviri, game, antelope, ostrich, and water-fowl, particularly geese, seem especially numerous they assemble in thousands round the numerous shallow marshes. Elephants, on the other hand, frequent the low and well-wooded country along the Zambezi. The country immediately N. of Lucinda was, at the end of the last century infested by lions to such a degree that the villages were all deserted.

Zambezi.—The river within the Kazembe's line of territory are extremely numerous but it will be sufficient here to enumerate those which are not fordable, though we cannot answer for the constancy of this condition. The Laila is 400 yards wide at the town of I uburi, which stands apparently on high ground, and where it is at least 1800 m. (allowing for windings) from the point where it reaches the sea. The Luviri has a width of 25, the Luviri of 112 yards at the mouth; we have no account of its magnitude near Lucinda, after it has been increased by the numerous rivulets of the plain. From Lucinda N.E. the lowlands are overgrown in the wet season with lagoons, which the traveller is obliged to wade through for hours at a time. The rivers, though many, are fordable. The New Zambezi, though a great river during the rains, is ordinarily but 50 yards wide, and easily forded. The Zambezi, a branch flowing nearly parallel to it on the N., is deeper and more violent, though narrower. From the Zambezi to the Kazembe half way to Lucinda, extends the populous country of the Fimo Chipelo, nominally a vassal of the Kazembe.

Climate and Vegetation.—The climate of Lucinda and the surrounding country is extremely insalubrious, the air being constantly loaded with the exhalations of stagnant waters, into which is periodically swept the decomposing waste of a rank vegetation. Fever, dysentery and ophthalmia are the prevalent complaints, and so severe their attacks at times, that the site of the town has been changed in consequence more than once, though never removed beyond the limits of the southern region. When strangers complain of the cold sensation produced by an atmosphere loaded with humidity the uniform heat of the climate is attested by its vegetation. Palm wine is in the greatest abundance, bananas of several kinds, growing wild exceed plenty the sugar-cane is common Sesamum and some other oil-plants are cultivated as well as batatas, pumpkins, and various fruits but the chief food of the people is manioc or cassava, which like their field produce they reap and sow indifferently at all times of the year—the ordinary practice being when they pull a stem, to plant another in its stead. The rains are abundant and regular beginning, probably in October and continuing till March.

Cattle, &c.—The Kazembe regards the possession of horned cattle as a royal prerogative. His subjects have only a few goats but to make up for the want of domestic quadrupeds, they breed fowls in abundance and take great quantities of fish as well as game. cattle here graze for horses perhaps only by night and sleep during the day. The chief does not kill his cattle for beef because he looks upon them as Fimo that is nobles' food himself nor does he give them to others for that purpose because he requires all their blood for his medicines.

Trade.—The chief source of the Kazembe's revenue lies in the produce of his salt pans and copper mines. There are several salt marshes at Carnegui and Pangayi, in the low country N. and S.W. of Lucinda, resembling probably the more famous salt marsh of Quigila, at the confluence of the Luviri and Laila. But the salt of Quigila is nothing more than an alkaline ley, obtained by washing the ashes of saline plants that grow in the marshes and are burned during the dry season. There is said, however to be a deposit of rock salt in the same district, which may explain the reputation of those mines, as they are called. It is remarkable that the Kazembe's people, who take fish in great abundance in their lakes and rivers, are ignorant of the art of salting it and thus lose a great resource, for salt fish is to constant demand in the interior and reaches Lucinda from both coasts. The copper is made into small bars, which with green stones (malachite and other copper ore) are carried across the lake in great quantity. With these productions, the Kazembe and his people satisfy all their wants. Among the treasures of the former are silk robes, shawls chinwaru and printed cottons. These, with beads, cowries, and various trinkets, acquired by the Barotsa, chiefly arrive from Kilwa and Zanzibar. He also possesses a few muskets and ammunition.

Race, Manners, &c.—The nation who possess Lucinda and its neighbourhood and who may be regarded as the Kazembe's own people, are the Arunda or Arunda (in the singular M'unda), whose original seat was at the head of the valley of the Laila, between the Chibuto and Laila. In the original country of the Arunda the soil is left uncultivated, the industry of the people being confined, by seasonal custom, to the mines of salt and copper. Such a custom obviously implies a commerce of equal antiquity, and the Arunda, in their new settlements, exhibit, in their want of domestic animals, and in their agriculture confined merely to the necessary supply of food, the continued influence of ancestral habits. With trade, on the other hand, they are acquainted, and having seized its main channel, they exhaust by laying sieges on it. They are described as tall, strong, and well made Negroes, who adhere to the teach, not raise, nor mark themselves with incisions. In war they are rendered formidable by a certain degree of military discipline and organization. Their arms are a spear, a broad-bladed knife, and an oblong shield of very light wood. They acknowledge a creator of the world, but worship only the shades of their ancestors. The dread of witchcraft, and of the accusations springing out of the belief in it, keeps them in perpetual alarm. Every month the Kasembe's doctor compounds the great medicines which he to preserve the chief insect from witchcraft, mixing with it the blood of a human victim. This medicine in the form of a thick ointment, is smeared on the points of bones of various kinds, which are hung up within and around the Kasembe's dwelling. The ordinary dress of the M'winda is a cotton cloth or wrapper from the waist to the knee bordered with red and fastened with a broad leathern belt. On great occasions a handsome kind of shirt is worn with a broad red-coloured border, and gathered with ample folds in front, the arms are leaved with beads and rings of copper the feet covered with string shells, and the hair adorned with plumes of handsome feathers. The women, on whom falls all the labour of the house and field, and who are no better than slaves, are physically inferior to the men. Polygamy is allowed and indeed the social rank of a M'winda depends chiefly on the number of his wives. There are no marriage ceremonies, beyond carrying home the bride, riding on a man's back. Funerals are celebrated with great pomp and expense. When the Kasembe dies, he is buried with all his property, including some wives and slaves and there is a license to rob on all his lands for several days. But such occasional license is counterbalanced by habitual rigour, death and mutilation, particularly loss of the hands, are ordinary and frequent punishments, and those who become obnoxious to the king or people, even without criminality are easily sacrificed by the charge of witchcraft.

History.—It was about the year 1740 according to the native traditions, that Ganga Ahlunda, who, originally a slave, had been appointed lord of the salt marsh of Quilele, carried his arms E. and expelling the Yao, occupied the land of Kasembe. Perhaps it may be inferred from this account that the officers (slaves) of the Maropla, boldly advancing with intrigue and dissension (Kanga means priest or wizard) and breaking bounds in the direction suggested by the active trade which he witnessed rendered himself at once independent. The new sovereign, however, while appropriating the names entrusted to his care, nominally acknowledged the supremacy of the Maropla and the latter is still styled Father (that is, superior) by the Kasembe whose title seems to signify Little King or Vicar. In 1798, Colonel Laocada, an experienced and accomplished traveller was selected by the Portuguese government to visit the Kasembe, respecting whom information had been received through Creole traders settled on the Zambezi. That zealous officer after a three-months march, reached his destination but died of fever before he entered the town. His followers, a very numerous body remained ten months in Luanda and owing to their misconduct, suffered much on their return. The Kasembe complained after much solicitation, to allow two soldiers to pass westwards to Angola, but this arrangement never took effect. In 1803, two Portuguese or native mercantile travellers started from Angola with instructions to proceed to the E coast. Delayed by the jealousy of various chiefs, they did not reach the Kasembe till the last day of the year 1806. They afterwards proceeded S.E. to Tete on the Zambezi, delivered their letters, and returning by the same road arrived in Angola in 1814. In 1831 a second Portuguese expedition, numbering 420, was dispatched from Tete to the Kasembe, with whom it remained four months, but of its results nothing has been divulged. We only know that Colonel Monteiro, the leader of the expedition, described the Kasembe as 'a robber, who charged the highest price for his provisions' but there is reason to believe that the Kasembe could retort with perfect justice in language equally severe. His father, who received Laocada's followers—a body the too numerous for the scanty resources of African hospitality—manifested towards his turbulent and dissolute visitors such lenience generosity, and consideration. When ultimately ill, he particularly requested that, in the event of his death, his people would not hurt the Musungus (white men), who were merchants and strangers. The direct communication across the continent, the establishment of which was among the objects of the Portuguese expeditions, is diametrically opposed to the policy of the native chiefs, who prefer a trade from hand to hand, each striving for monopoly.—(Bovdwin's Discoveries of the Portuguese, Don Nerves, Overlandroute across the Peninsula das Portuguesas, do, 1880; Anuário Marítimo y Colonial 1842-6.)

KAZLROUN, a tn Persia, prov Fars, 60 m W Shiraz, in a rich and fertile valley, 30 m long by 7 m or 8 m wide about 2800 ft above sea level; lat. 29° 37' N lon 51° 35' E. It takes its name from Kazz 'fortress,'—its fortifications being strong and the gates covered with iron. It is surrounded with date plantations, and consists of a central portion, composed of houses clustered round the residence of the authorities, and numerous houses scattered in gardens round about. Though once a place of great importance, and containing 50 000 to 60 000 inhabitants, its population is now under 5000. The ancient Shapur or Chapour stood in the immediate neighbourhood, and is still indicated by numerous ruins of great interest to the antiquary.

KAZIMIRZ, several places, Russian Poland, particularly—1 A tn w Poland, 37 m N Kenna, surrounded by walls and having an old Bernardine monastery. Pop 1128.—2 A tn w Poland and 25 m WNW Lublin between rocky heights, near a bank Vistula. It has some general trade, and was the scene of an action between the Poles and Russians, April 10 1831. Pop. 2189.

KAZINCZ, or KAZO, a vil Hungary, Elther Theles, co. Rorvad 12 m N W Munkacs with a Protestant church, synagogue and the ruins of an old castle. Pop 1031

KAZVIN a tn Persia. See CAJABY

KEA par Eng Cornwall 6938 ac. Pop 8752
KFA mte-roo, a walled and fortified city, China, prov Chekiang 20 m N W Ningpo on the Imperial canal. Its walls and ramparts are in a most dilapidated condition. Outside the walls, and W from the city is an extensive cemetery. Pop. about 270 000.—(Potters's The Districts of China)

KEADLE a small tn, Ireland, co. Roscommon 8 m N N W Carrick-on-Shannon consisting of several streets composed of detached and slated houses. It has a market-house, courthouse, and dispensary. The only place of worship is a R. Catholic chapel, and two schools. Inhabitants chiefly agricultural. Pop. 320.—(Local Correspondent.)

KEADY a par and small market tn, Ireland, co. Armagh The town on the Ouliff 7 m. 8 by W Armagh, has a church a R. Catholic chapel, and places of worship for Presbyterians and Wesleyans corn mills a flax-spinning mill and now it are extensive linen factories and bleachgreens. Pop. 1322 Area of par 15,852 ac. Pop 6348

KEAL two parts Eng Lincoln—1 (East), 1860 ac. Pop 476.—2 (West) 2020 ac. Pop 549

KALAKEAKUA or KARAKAKOIA (Path of the gods), a bay W coast Isl Hawaii in which this famous ocean navigator, Captain Cook, was killed. It is about 3 m broad, penetrates 1 m inland, and the shore all round is covered with black coral rock, rendering landing very dangerous in rough weather except at the village of Kakeo, where there is a fine sandy beach. Anchorage about 3 m from the N side, sandy bottom, thirteen fathoms. Perpendicular bluff rises directly from the water in some parts of the bay. In them are numerous nearly inaccessible caverns, formerly and still used as burial places, and the resort of innumerable sea-fowl.

KEBAN MADEN or KARAN MAJADAN a mining tn, Turkish Armenia, past and 80 m N W Diarbekir 1 bank Euphrates, near the confluence of the Karakhoi, in a ravine. It contains about 400 or 500 families, the greater number Greeks, all employed in mining or in supplying the wants of the miners and their families. The mine is of argentiferous galena, occurring at the junction of granite with schistose rocks.

KEBIR KAH (st) a tn Morocco. See BARBA (AL)

KECHAN a tn Turkey in Europe, Roumelia, N of Gallipoli. Pop 1000

KECHERMET, a tn Hungary. See KETSCHERMET

KEZEL, a vil Hungary co. and 85 m W Pesth with a church and a trade in corn, wine, and cattle. P 3089

KEDDAH, or QUDDA, a state and in Malay peninsula, the west. The state extends from the Caray to lat. 5° to the Telavara river, lat. 7° N. It is thus 140 m. in length, with an average breadth of 50 m. It is traversed by numerous streams, generally flowing in a W direction, among which are several navigable by the common trading vessels of the Malays. The coast is studded with islands, but owing to the shallowness of the water large vessels must keep at a considerable distance. It contains several lofty mountains—the highest, Gunung-Gesal or Keddah peak, a mass of granite, rises to a height of 3000 ft. N from this mountain is an immense plain, almost level with the sea, and covered near the coast with a belt of rising mangroves, from ½ m. to 1 m. in breadth. The plain is of gentle elevation, bounded to the E. by a small chain of hills, 16 or 20 m. in length. Out of this plain rises abruptly a remarkable one called Elephant Hill of an oblong shape, about 1 m. in length, and ½ m. in breadth, composed of cavernous limestones and calcareous breccia, containing fossil shells. It presents on every side bold and craggy precipices, between 300 and 400 ft. in height, with a number of needle-like pinnacles, shooting up like the spires and turrets of a cathedral. Gold, tin, and iron, used to be found formerly in Keddah. Rice, coco-nuts, plantain, betel nuts and fruit-trees of different kinds, are amongst the vegetable productions of this territory but at present the state of agriculture here is in most places at a low ebb. This state was conquered by the Siamese in 1821. Pop. estimated at 21,000.—The town, the capital of the state, stands on both sides of the entrance of the river of that name on lat. 6° 0' N. lon. 100° 20' E. in 1'. The river has sufficient depth of water within for sloops and brigs to anchor and is navigable for 10 or 12 m. further up.

KEDDINGTON par Eng. Lincoln 1190 ac. P 166
KEDDI a vil, W Africa, Fouta Djam, 1 bank Senegal lat. 15° 46' N. lon. 13° 2' W. It is inhabited by a small number of very laborious families, who cultivate millet.

KEDDERP, or KEDAR a vil Hindoostan prov Bengal a bank and near the mouth of the Hooghly here almost 9 m. across lat. 21° 52' N. lon. 88° 16' E. where, during the many seasons, winds are often detained by long freshets. In the banner many of the tropical fruits and other refreshments are to be procured.

KEDINGTON or KEITON par Eng. Suffolk and Essex, 2542 ac. Pop. 772

KEDIRI an E. prov. in Java S coast esp. of same name bounded, N by provs. Rembang and Soerabaya, E. Pannooroen, S. the Indian Ocean, and W. provs. Patjitan and Madelon. Its S. coast is composed of steep, rocky cliffs, in which a few edible birds nests are found. The interior of the province is well watered by the Kediri or Brantas and numerous other streams and torrents and yields rice, sugar and camellia, as its chief products. It is well wooded, formerly beset with tigers, and has several good roads. Pop. 460,000

—The town, 60 m. S.W. Soerabaya, 1. bank Kediri, here crossed by one of the most beautiful bridges in Java, is the residence of the governor has a small bazaar, and a mosque, built from the ruins of a temple. In the environs are numerous remains of an antient and civilizational age—probably of temples destroyed by the Mahomedans, to preserve materials for mosques. To the E. are the considerable ruins of Sontol and Preadang. Pop. 6000.—The river, Kediri or Brantas is formed of two streams, the one rising in prov. Pannooroen, and flowing W. and then N. W. meets with the other which, rising near the S. frontier of prov. Patjitan, flows E. and N.E. the united stream formed about 20 m. S. Kediri, flows N. and N.E. and falls into the strait of Madura one arm at Soerabaya, the other 25 m. further E. at Bangli. It is one of the most considerable streams in the island, and flows through a beautiful and fertile country. Tidal course, from junction of the two head streams, about 100 m.

KEDJE, a vil Belochistan, cap. prov. Mekran, 1 bank Dunes, or Mookhach; lat. 26° 12' N., lon. 62° 12' E. The chafel or argh—which from its being also called seer or palace, was probably intended both as a fortress and the residence of the chafel—stands on a high precipice, naturally so strong, that the natives consider it impregnable. The town is at the base of the eminence on which the fort is built, and surrounds it on three sides. It once was a place of some importance, and carried on a considerable trade with Kandahar, Kabul, Shikarpoor &c., but the insecurity of property and commerce under the rule of Kabul, has driven away the Hindoo and other opulent traders, and the town, and at one time to have contained 8000 houses has much decayed.

KEDLESTON, par Eng. Derby, 850 ac. 1 op 83

KEDOE a prov Java See KADON
KEDROV or KEDRON a brook Asiatic Turkey Palestine, near Jerusalem. It flows through the valley of Jehoshaphat, but is dry in summer, and sometimes even for years. It flows S.E. from the city, towards the Dead Sea, through a singularly wild gorge.

KEDYWARRE, an offset from the W. side of the Sata, the great E. mouth of the Indus (Scindia) lat. 24° 7' N. lon. 67° 28' E. It is broad and shallow, but, excepting the Hyazares branch, is the only navigable channel by which access can be gained to the main stream.

KEEL par Eng. Stafford 2,778 ac. 1 op 1287

KEELBY par Eng. Lincoln 1861 ac. Pop. 859

KEELING, or COCOS ISLAND. See COCOS.

KEER (V) or ARY-KER, a vil Hungary co. Dacs, with a church and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 2447

KEERBERGEN, a vil and com. Belgium, prov. Drahant, on the Dyle, 16 m. N.E. Brussels. The greater part of the inhabitants are employed in agriculture and in leaving wood in the neighbouring forests. Pop. 3087

KEERPOOL or KUZPOOL a tn. Hindoostan, prov. Bengal, 60 m. W. N. W. Calcutta. It is the seat of a commercial agency and carries on an active trade in cotton-stuffs, which it manufactures to a considerable extent. Pop. about 10,500.

KEEVILL a tn. U. States, New York, 4 m. W. Lake Champlain, with about 300 houses, four churches, and a number of manufactures and mills. Pop. 2000

KLEVIL, par Eng. Wilt 2883 ac. Pop. 720

KLEFFING or KLEFFING (GREAT and LITTLE) two isls Indian Archipelago, Moluccas, S.E. coast Isl. Ceran; lat. (E. point Great Keeling) 3° 50' S. lon. 130° 40' E. (E. Great Keeling is united to Ceran by a coral reef. They are well peopled, and contain numerous villages, each with its own mosque.

KLEWORTH a vil and par. England, co. Leicester

The village, situated on the Soar, 1½ m. N.W. Leicester, about a mile from its station on the Midland Railway has a handsome church three Dissenting places of worship, a free school, several small charities and two breweries. Many of the females are engaged in frame-work knitting and this figuring of lace. Area of par, 2260 ac. 1 op. 1354

KEHL, a tn. Baden, Kreis Middle Rhine at the confluence of the Kinzig and Elz with the Rhine, here crossed by a bridge of boats, and on the railway from Baden to Strasburg opposite to the latter town. It was once an important frontier fortress, and its figures much in the wars between France and Germany but its fortifications have been dismantled and it has now a mean appearance. It contains two schools, and has manufactures of carpets, wire-cloth, and tobacco some transit trade and a trade in wood. Pop. 1304.

KEIDANI a tn. Russia, gov. Wilna, and 35 m. L.S.E. Rostov, on the Avurga. It is well built, and has four churches, a Carmelite monastery a Protestant gymnasium, two hospitals, and an active trade. Pop. 5000

KEIG par Scot. Aberdeen 7900 ac. Pop. 772

KEIGHLEY or KETLEY a market to and par. England co. York (W. Riding) The town, 36 m. W. by R. York, is picturesquely situated in a deep valley at the confluence of two rivers, which here form a considerable stream and flow into the Aire about ½ m. below. The houses are built chiefly of stone, and the streets are well paved and lighted with gas.

The church is a spacious structure, with an octagonal tower. There are several Dissenting places of worship, a meet E. Catholic chapel a free grammar a national and other endowed schools a mechanics institution, and several charities. The worsted manufacture is carried on very extensively and there are two large cotton-spinning establishments, two paper and several corn mills. The machinery used here in the factories, for spinning and other purposes, is also for the most part manufactured in the town. Area of par 10,850 ac. Pop. 16,250

KEINTON MANSFIELD, par Eng. Somerset, 770 ac. Pop. 564.

KEIR, par Scot Dundee 11 sq m. Pop 980
KEIR, or KEIR on Isl. Persian Gulf, off the coast of Lascien lat. 26° 59' N lon. 64° 3' E. It is 6 or 7 m. in length, and is low but fruitful, well inhabited, and better planted with trees than any island in the gulf. There is a town or village on the N side, and water and other refreshments are to be obtained.

KEISKAMMA, a river, S Africa Cape Colony 30 m.
 N N E the Great Fish River. It rises in the district of Adelaide, near Mount Kempt, lat. 28° 30' S, lon. 27° 10' E. from which it flows S S W to lat. 33° when it suddenly bends round to the E. then, taking a S S E direction falls into the Indian Ocean in lat. 38° 18' S. lon. 27° 30' E forming for the greater part of its course, the line of demarcation between British Kaffraria and Cape Colony. Total course about 90 m.

KEITH a market in par Scotland coo. Banff and Elgin. The town is situated on both banks of the firth, 16 m S E Elgin, and consists of three villages, Old Keith, New Keith, and Fife Keith, the last two, neat, clean, modern villages, the first, old, as its name indicates, and irregularly built. Fife Keith is on the bank of the river over which there are two bridges connecting it with Old Keith and, as this last is contiguous with New Keith the whole three villages appear to form one town. The parish church is a substantial structure, with a square tower 120 ft high. The other places of worship are a Free and a Unitarian church and Independent, Episcopalian and R Catholic chapels. It has several corn and flour mills, two for carding and spinning wool, and a fax mill & tannery & distillery and a bleachfield. Time is quarried in the vicinity. James Ferguson the natural philosopher was a native of this parish.
 Area of par 68 sq m. Pop 4966

KEITHFALL-AND-KINELL, par Scot Aberdeen 11½ sq m. Pop 940

KEKKEO MODRI KAKER, or DWACENTREIS a market in Hungary Hither Danube. on a bogged in a narrow valley 1 bank Kertze, 1½ m. S S E Kapfen, in a district extensively covered with chestnut plantations. It has a fine old castle and five annual fairs. Pop. 1645

KELA N4, or KARLANS a small Isl. Indian Archipelago, off the W extremity of Ceram lat. (W point) 5° 14' S. lon.
 127° 40' E. (N.), 20 m. in circumference. It contains good timber but its vegetable produce, as a whole, is scanty and its inhabitants few.

KELAT HAIAT or HUKAT the cap city of Beloocheetan and of prov of same name, and residence of a khan on the E declivity of a hill called Shah Miran, 6000 ft. above the sea, lat 29° 8' N lon 65° 45' E. Its form is an irregular oblong 600 yards long N to S and 300 yards wide E.

THE KANDAHAR GATE AND FORT OF KELAY—From Sir A. Keith Johnston's View in Afghanistan to W surrounded by a mud wall about 18 ft high, flanked, at intervals of 250 yards, by bastions, and pierced with immense loopholes for muskets, but not surrounded by cannon, because scarcely able to support their weight. The wall has three gates and near the W side, where it skirts the summit of the ridge, stands the Mari or Khan's palace, which, though of some antiquity dating from the time when the country was governed by Hindoo princes, is only an irregular collection of mud buildings, with flat terrace-roofs. The town has a miserable appearance, houses wretchedly built of mud, strengthened by wooden frames, and streets filthy in the extreme. The bazaar occupies nearly as much space as the town, and is well supplied with wares and provisions both cheap, and of excellent quality. There are two suburbs, one to the S., and another to the N W in which the houses consist of half burnt bricks with wooden frames, and peeples so far into the streets, that the opposite upper stories almost meet. To the W of the town for a considerable distance, are ravines and low barren hills, to the E. a cultivated plain about 1 m. wide, with numerous gardens, which produce large supplies of fruits—apricots, peaches, grapes, almonds, pomegranates, figs, quinces, &c. A large number of Afghan merchants are domiciled at Kelat and derive a considerable transit trade between Sindh, Bombay and Kandahar. There is also a little retail trade, and a few manufactures, chiefly the making of muskets, swords and spears. The trade and prosperity of the country have suffered much from the introduction of a debased coinage to which the necessities of the rulers have tempted them to resort. Kelat was stormed by the British in 1839 when the khan was killed fighting sword in hand.

 In the following year, it was recaptured by some insurgent Beloochees, from a weak garrison of Sepoys and the British officer in command put to death, but was soon after retaken again by the British. Pop. in last suburbs, 12 000—
 The province bounded N N E and W by Saravac, and S and S E by Jalalwan; lat. 28° 32' to 30° 12' N lon. 65° 25' to 66° 50' E, is about 100 m. in extreme length, by 49 m. in extreme breadth, area, 2000 sq m. No part being below 5000 ft. above sea-level it is extremely cold in winter though sufficiently agreeable in summer. In the former season, a piercing N. E. wind blows without intermission long, and often with great violence bringing heavy falls of snow aloft, and rain KFLA1 A GRUZEK (Port of the Ghilgies a fort, Afghanistan, 63 m N N E Kandahar on the route to Ghazni, lat. 33° 30' N lon. 65° 45' E. It occupies a conical and very steep hill, about 800 ft. high having on its summit space for a considerable fortress, and two abundant springs of water.
 It was garrisoned by the British, who successfully resisted all attempts to dislodge them and were withdrawn without loss, on the evacuation of the country, in 1842.

KELBRA, a town Russian Saxony gov. and 43 m W by N Merseburg, on the Helme and Golden Aue with two churches, and an old and other mills. White and red slate, & susceptible of a fine polish are found in the vicinity. P. 1073.

KELHAM, par Eng. Not. 1837 as 1. 137

KELHFIM a town Lower Bavaria, cap. dist. of same name, on a height above the Ludwig Canal where it joins the Danube which is here crossed by a bridge of 14 arches, 11 m S W Regensburg. It consists of the town-proper and two suburbs is entered by four gates, and well built. It contains four churches and an infirmary, and has manufactures of potash, several mills and quarries, a building yard, and a trade in corn.
 Pop. in 1809, dist. 17 141

KELIOUB a town and dist. Lower Egypt, both in the upper part of the delta of the Nile.
 The town is 10 m N Cairo, on bank Nile, lat.
 30° 10' N; lon 31° 17' E. It has a large government cotton factory and iron foundry. The district, or province of which it is the capital, is mostly on the 1 bank of the Damietta branch, and between it and the most E arm of the Nile.

KELKOM, a vil. W Africa, Senegambia, 10 m E by S St Louis. Inhabitants said to be industrious carefully cultivating indigo, and dyeing cotton cloths blue.

KELLAWAYS, or CALLOW, par Eng.
 Wilt. 140 sq. Pop. 15

KELLING par Eng. Norfolk 2311 sq. Pop. 310
KELLINGHAUSEN, a vil. Denmark, Slesvig Holstein, 20 m S S E Rendsburg on the Elbe here crossed by a bridge. It has a church, is surrounded by fertile meadows, and has a tolerably active trade, chiefly in wood Pop. 1800.

KELLINGTON, par Eng. York (W Riding) 7223 ac. Pop. 1450.

KELLISTOWN par Irel Carlow, 4406 ac. Pop. 414.

KELLOE, par Eng Durham 11119 ac. Pop. 12,278.

KELLS, an incorporated market tn. and par Ireland, co. Meath. The town, pretentiously situated on a small hill near the Blackwater 35 m. N W Dublin, has straight, tolerably well kept streets, a fine ancient church, with an elegant spire, and a handsome R. Catholic chapel near the church are the remains of an ancient round tower in good preservation; and in the market place a beautiful stone cross of the 8th century. Other public buildings are the courthouse, the fever hospital and dispensary the bridewell or house of correction for the county an almshouse, a parochial, national, and several private schools. Its principal trade is retail. In 1550 a monastery was founded here by St. Columb and in 1156, the town with its magnificent ecclesiastical edifices was destroyed by fire. It has been restored, it continued to rank as one of the principal towns in Meath till the dissolution of its religious establishments. Area of par 8697 ac. Pop. 6638 — (Local Correspondent).

KELLS par Irel. Kilkenny, 4410 ac. Pop. 1672.

KELLS par Scot. Kirkcaldy 74 sq m. 11091.

KELLY par Eng Devon 1721 ac. Pop. 206.

KELMAK, a vil Hungary Hunat co and 42 m N E Temesvar in a mountainous but well wooded district on the Maros, with a Greek church. Pop. 1120.

KELMASH par Eng Northampton 2751 ac. Pop. 162.

KELSALE par Eng Suffolk 2647 ac. Pop. 1157.

KELLY two par Eng Lincoln.—1 (North) 6370 ac. Pop. 918.—2 (South) 4980 ac. Pop. 623.

KELSHALL, par Eng Hertford 2090 ac. Pop. 396.

KELSO a tn. New S Wales, co. Roxburgh on the Mersey river near Rathnall 112 m N W Sydney.

KELSU a market in Dor of Harrow and par Scotland co. Roxburgh a vil. It is beautifully situated near the confluence of the Tyvet and Tweed, L. bank of the latter, which is here crossed by an elegant stone bridge of five arches 88 m. S E Edinburgh a station on the Berwick and Kelso railway. It consists chiefly of four streets, paved and lighted with gas, diverging at opposite points from a spacious square, used as a market place. Houses mostly of freestone and in general handsome. It has a respectable townhouse in the Grecian style two established churches, one of which is a fine Elizabethan structure with a quadrangular tower 70 ft. high, a Free, and two L. Presbyterian churches, a small but neat Episcopal chapel, and places of worship for Reformers Presbyterians and Original Seceders a number of good schools, including a grammar and several other schools a dispensary three public libraries, two new-rooms, a school of arts, and a physical and antiquarian society possessing a valuable museum. Being situated in the midst of a populous and wealthy agricultural district, its retail trade is considerable, forming in itself its chief dependence. Still it has some manufactures, of which those which are sent to all the neighbouring and many of the English shires, for the most important branch. A good trade is also done in dressing sheep and lamb skins, and in currying leather. There is a large iron foundry, and some woollen, linen, and stockings are manufactured but to a limited extent. Races are held in spring and autumn. In the outskirts of the town are the magnificent ruins of Kelso abbey founded and endowed by David I. in 1128 for Tironensian monks. It is in the form of a Latin cross, and is a fine specimen of the early Norman style of architecture. It was twice burned during the contest between Bruce and Balliol, suffered severely at the hands of the English in 1523 and 1545 and what remained of the furniture and decorations were entirely destroyed during a popular tumult in 1550. In the immediate vicinity of the town, also, is Fiers Castle, the seat of the ducal family of Roxburgh. Kelso was originally a kind of suburb to the ancient borough of Roxburgh, destroyed by James II. in 1460 which stood on the opposite bank of the Tweed. It owes its rise to the foundation of the abbey. Pop. 4783.

Area of par 4400 ac. Pop. 1624.

KELLSKRAACH a vil Hesse Darmstadt, prov. Saxe-Hanover, 1 bail Mass 8 m. W S W Frankfurt, with a church, manufactures of stoneware and tobacco, several distilleries, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 902.

KELSTERN par Eng. Lincoln 2700 ac. Pop. 195.

KELSTON par Eng Somerset 1095 ac. Pop. 259.

KELTON par Scot. Kirkcaldy 16 sq m. Pop. 2186.

KELTSCHE, or KALCE, a tn. Anstrut, Moravia, 18 m. E Prerau, on the Juchma, with an old strong castle, a church and walk, saw and flour mills. Pop. 1178.

KELVEDON two par Eng Essex.—1 2167 ac. Pop. 1633.—2 (West), 1650 ac. Pop. 509.

KELVIN, a small river, Scotland, rises in co. Stirling, and after a circuitous S.W. course, falls into the Clyde, 2 m below Glasgow.

KEM, or KEMT.—A tn. Russia, gov. and 180 m. W by N Archangel at the mouth of a river of same name, near the W entrance of the Bay of Ozege. It is surrounded by meadows and swamps in a very desolate district, is built chiefly of wood, has three churches, and a small harbour at which some trade is carried on. The inhabitants live chiefly by fishing and hunting. Pop. 1678.—2 A river Russia, which is formed by the outlets of lakes Kouta, Noutk, and others in the W of government Archangel Gov. E., and falls into the White sea at the above town after a course of about 100 m. Immediately opposite to its mouth is a group of islands, the chief of which is Kematso-Ostrov. See also KEMZILK.

KEMAKH or KAMAK a small tn. Asiatic Turkey r. Bank Upper Euphrates 200 m. S W Erzerum. It consists of about 400 Turkish, and 30 Armenian houses, in an elevated position, and partly surrounded by an ancient wall. Inhabitants subsist by agriculture, and by transporting wood on the Euphrates.

KEMANOV prov. British India. See KEMANOV.

KEMBACK par Scot. Fife 8 m by 14. P. (1851) 956.

KEMBAVAN KAMBANGAN (Nusman), an isl. Indian Archipelago, off S coast Java, from which it is separated by a narrow channel, prov. Banjawaes lon 109° E. It is about 15 m long by half as broad, fertile well cultivated abounds in medicinal plants, and densely populated.

KEMBERG, a tn. in Prussia, prov. Saxony, gov. and 40 m. E. Merseburg. It has a court of justice, a parish church, and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth. Pop. 2147.

KEMBERTON par Eng Salop 1387 ac. Pop. 255.

KEMBLE, par Eng Wilt 8000 ac. Pop. 496.

KEMENCZE, or KAMENKA a vil Hungary Hither Danube, co. Honth 5 m. R. Ipoly Nagh, with a R. Catholic church. Pop. 1019.

KEMENCZE (Kis and Nagy) two contiguous vil Hungary Hither Tisza co. Zemplen about 14 m from Nagy Mahaly, on the Carpathians, with a R. Catholic church, a chapel, and two mills. Pop. 1872.

KEMEND several places, Hungary particularly.—1 A vil Hither Danube, co. Baranya, 7 m from Mohacs with two churches, a stone-quarry, and flour mill. Pop. 983.—2, A vil Hither Danube, co. and 8 m N W Gram, in a fertile district on the Gran, here crossed by a bridge, with a R. Catholic church, and the remains of an old fortress. P. 1067.

KEMER, KEMER, or KAMER, a vil Hungary Transylvania, co. and 16 m. N W Krasna, about 14 m from Krasna, and containing a Protestant church. Pop. 1566.

KEMERTON par Eng Gloucester, 1590 ac. P. 526.

KEMETEMLEZO a vil Hungary co. Szathmar 4 m from Hlobo with a handsome Greek church. Pop. 1184.

KEMETSE, a vil Hungary Hither Theiss, co. Szabolcs, about 8 m. from Nyiregheza in a fertile district, with a parish church and a synagogue. Pop. 1808.

KEMPFE, two par Eng. Monmouth.—1 (Commander), 500 ac. Pop. 35.—2, (Agnew) 1676 ac. Pop. 115.

KEMPAKI KANI, or KANI a river Russia, which rises at the foot of the Kizilortai, dist. Ulitsky in lat. 63° N. flows into S. forming several lakes, then N N W, then S W, and, about 11 m. E. Tormel, falls into the Gulf of Bothnia, after a course of nearly 200 m., during which it forms a great number of cataracts.

KEMLIK, GINO or GINOLAK, a thriving maritime tn. Asiatic Turkey, prov. Anatolia, at the head of the Gulf of Moudania, Sea of Marmara, 17 m. N E. Brusa. It contains about 600 houses, mostly Greek, and is increasing in population and prosperity. It is the principal port on the Sea of Marmara for the importation of corn from the Black Sea, and occupies on an extensive export trade in silk, olives, wines, and spices produced in the neighbourhood. The inhabitants are industrious, and the harbour is safe and commodious. In the vicinity is a Turkish arsenal. Pop. about 8000

KEMMEI, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov W Flanders, 6 m S.E. Ypres, on the Kemmelbeke, with manufactures of linen and woollen stuffs, three breweries, and two flour-mills. Pop. 1877

KEMNATH, a tn. Bavaria, prov Palatinat, 58 m N. Ruppertsberg. It is walled, and well built, has three churches, manufactures of wire, and glass mirrors, paper, and iron mills. Iron is mined and smelted in the vicinity. Pop. 1508

KEMNAY par Scot. Aberdeen, 44 m by 8 m P 680

KEMNITZ—1 (414), A tn. Prussia, prov Silesia, gov and 23 m S.W. Liegnitz, with a castle a Protestant and a R. Catholic church, and several mills. Pop. 1193.—2, A vil. Saxony circle Bismark holl Lobau. Pop. 1096

KEMPLIN, two places, Prussia.—1 A tn. Bismark Prussia, gov and 20 m W.W. Düsseldorf, exp. circle of same name, near the Rhine. It is walled, has two R. Catholic churches, a synagogue, town school, several courts and public offices, and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, a wax refinery, distillery, a brewery and several mills. Thomas Hammarck or Malleoche, the supposed author of the celebrated work De Institutione Christi, which bears the name of Thomas à Kempis, was born here. Pop. 8880 Area of circle, 118 sq m

Pop. 55181.—2 A tn. prov Silesia, gov and 90 m S.E. Liegnitz, in a sandy district. It has two churches an hospital manufactures of woollen cloth and tobacco a wax refinery and a trade in horses. Pop. 6505

KEMPIEY, par Eng. Gloucester 1664 ac Pop. 805

KEMPPEY a vil and par England co Worcester The village, delightfully situated 1 bank Severn 4 m S. Worcester, consists chiefly of genteel residences and handsome villas. It is kept remarkably clean and has a parish church and schoolhouse. Inhabitants chiefly employed in agriculture

Near the church are the remains of a Roman camp. Area of par 8105 ac Pop. 1375.—(Local Correspondent)

KEMPFFORD par Eng. Gloucester 4790 ac P 1003.

KEMPFRON two par Eng.—1 Bedford, 5160 ac. Pop. 1992.—2 Norfolk 614 ac. Pop. 58

KEMPTEN (anc. Concedonum) a tn. Bavaria, circle Swabia, 1 bank Iller, which near this becomes navigable, and is crossed by a bridge 50 m W.W. Munich. It consists of an old town, surrounded by walls and a new town, which nearly encloses it, has a court of law, and several public offices three Protestant churches, three chapels, a castle, theatre, library, museum Latin and other schools barracks, an orphan asylum and two hospitals, manufactures of linen and cotton stuffs, leather and refined wax, several breweries, and a trade in cattle. Kempton is of Roman origin and was long an imperial free town. Pop. 7788

KEMMEL, a vil and com. Belgium prov E. Flanders, on the canal of Bruges, 23 m N.E. Ghent. Pop. agricultural, 1592

KEMMING par Eng. Kent 1897 ac. Pop. 376

KFN, a vil. Scotland, county Kircubright, rises near the confines of Ayrshire and after a S.E. course, joins the Don. Before its junction with the Don, it expands into Loch Ken, a beautiful sheet of water extending about 18 m N.W. to B.E., and having Kemmure Castle at its N. extremity

KEN, or KENZ a river England co. Westmorland, rising on the S. side of High-street Hill, and flowing S. through the small lakes of Kentmere, and past the town of Kirkby Kendal into Morecambe Bay. In its course it receives several tributaries, the most important of which are the Spirt, the Minn, the Underbarrow and the Brith.

KEN a river, Hindostan. See GAZ.

KENARDINGTON par Eng. Kent; 2160 ac. P 214.

KENARHT, par Wales, Carmarthen 6429 ac P 1980

KENCHESTER, par Eng. Hereford, 583 ac. Pop. 98

KENCOTT, par Eng. Oxford, 770 ac. Pop. 206.

KENDAL, or KIRKBY KENDAL a yard bor., market tn., and par, England, co. Westmorland. The town is agreeably situated in a valley 16 m S.E.W. Appleby, a bank Kent, here crossed by three stone bridges, and on the Lancaster and Carlisle railway. It is the site of three principal streets, one of which is 1 m long, and several subordinate streets or lanes, most of which are macadamized, have foot-paths paved with pebbles, and are kept in good order. The houses in the former are handsome edifices of brown limestone, roofed with blue slate, those of the latter are mostly in the old style of rough stone plastered over. The town is well lighted with gas, and amply supplied with water. It has an elegant town-hall and assembly room, an ancient, but large, and a handsome modern Established church, and places of worship for various Dissenting bodies, a Friends meeting-house, a R. Catholic chapel a free grammar and other endowed and charitable schools, a widows hospital, two nurse-houses, a mechanics institution and library and a natural history society, with a valuable museum. The principal manufactures are coarse woollen cloth, lumpy woolsey, knitted stockings, and Guernsey frocks. Carpets of various sorts and valentia and other fancy articles for wastecots are also made to a considerable extent. There are, besides, tanneries corn, paper gunpowder and other mills and many persons are employed in manufacturing combs, fish hooks, and wool-cards. The markets obtained in the neighbourhood is esteemed excellent, and the working and polluting of it form an important part of the trade of the place. Kendal returns a member to the House of Commons. Registered electors (1851) 8801 Pop. 11,929 Area of par, 63,380 ac. Pop. 18 333.

KENDERCHURCH or HORTON par Eng. Hereford 788 ac. Pop. 61

KENDERES, a vil Hungary Ruther Thoms, co. Heve, 10 m from Turis Samu-Muklos, with a Protestant church. Pop. 4711

KE N H, or GHEHEH (anc. Canopolis), a city Upper Egypt, r bank Nile, and at a remarkable bend of the river where it suddenly turns nearly due W. 83 m N.E. Thebes lat. 26° 9' N, lon. 32° 45' E. The houses are neatly built, and the streets narrow and dirty. It is well supplied with baths has a market every Thursday and its bazaars present a busy appearance. It has succeeded Coptos and Koe as the emporium and entrepot of trade with the Arabian coast, with its supplies with corn, carried by way of Keneh, on the Red Sea, receiving in exchange the gums of Arabia. Keneh has been long celebrated for the manufacture of porous vases, jars and bottles the former called in Arabic, seer, the latter, goolak and dorak, which are in great request throughout Egypt. The clay used for making them is found N. of the town in the bed of a valley. Immense quantities of them are formed into rats and floated down the Nile to Cairo, Alexandria, &c. Pop. 10,000

KE N H G (Lowen) par Wales, Glamorgan 5261 ac. Pop. 991

KENTERA a vil. Bambock, W. Africa, not far from the gold mines of Dumbagney lat. 13 56' N lon. 12 6' W

It is of great extent, but contains a great number of deserted houses and ruined hovels, with other traces of decay. It is inhabited by Foulahs who are miserably poor, and are, besides subject to a frightful kind of leprosy. The females are chiefly employed in the mines

KENILWORTH a market to and par England, co. and 5 m N. Warwick. The town, consisting chiefly of one street, extending along the turnpike road for more than 1 m, contains some well built and handsome houses has an ancient and venerable church with a square tower surmounted by a lofty spire and places of worship for various Dissenting bodies, a free and several charity schools, almshouses, and other benevolent institutions. Horn combs, Prussian blue, Glimmer salts and sal-ammoniac are manufactured here to some extent.

Kenilworth castle now a magnificent ivy-covered ruin, was founded in the reign of Henry I. and in 1395 was the scene of a grand chivalric measure at which, it is alleged, allies were sworn for the first time in England. The gorgeous entertainment given here, in 1575, to Queen Elizabeth by the Earl of Leicester, is familiar to all from Scott's romance of Kenilworth. During the civil wars, the castle was seized by Cromwell, and given to some of his officers, by whom it was reduced to its present ruinous state. Area of par 6460 ac. Pop. 5632

KENKRES (anc. Concedon) a vil. Greece, Moraa, N.W. extremity of the Gulf of Egina, at the mouth of a small stream, 8 m S.E. Corinth. It is a pretty place, with a mill, a storehouse, and some remains of Roman brickwork. It is mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles, ch. xviii. ver. 18, as the place where the Apostle Paul had slain his head, having a vow

KENLEY, par Eng. Salop 1897 ac. Pop. 231

KENMARE a town and par. Ireland co. Kerry. The town, amidst romantic mountains, at the N.E. extremity of Kenmare Bay or Sound here crossed by a handsome suspension-bridge 15 m. S.W. Killarney contains a handsome parish church, a commodious R. Catholic chapel, a national school, dispensary, fever ward and infirmary. The inhabitants depend chiefly on the visitors who are attracted by the beautiful and romantic scenery in the neighbourhood and the excellent salmon fishing on the Blackwater which falls into the bay 6 m. below the town. Pop. 1501. Area of par. 22,607 ac. Pop. 7496. — The bay or river, as it is called, is an inlet of the Atlantic, lying S.W. to N.E. 5 m. wide at the entrance narrowing gradually and stretching inland about 72 m. It is for the most part easily navigable, contains several islands, and has several harbours the best of which are Ardaraun, Kilmacshole and Sincora.

KENMORE, par. Scot. Perth 40 000 ac. Pop. 2227. KENT two par. England. — Devon, 5412 ac. Pop. 1096. — Somerset 1018 ac. Pop. 223.

KENT or GUARD an old Persian tale, about 6 m. off the coast of Persia, par. Laristan lat. (N. point) 26° 29' N. lon. 54° 6' E. (N. E.) 6 or 7 m. long and 3 or 4 m. broad. It is low but fruitful well inhabited, and better planted with trees than any island in the gulf. Water and other refreshments may be obtained.

KENT or KENT a river I. States, Maine. It issues from Moosehead Lake and, after a S. by E. course of 200 m., falls into the Atlantic 40 m. W. Penobscot Bay. It receives the Dead River and Androscoggin is navigable 12 m. for large vessels and 40 m. for vessels of 150 tons. On its banks are Bath, Augusta, and Hallowell.

KENT or KENT — 1. 4 seaport I. States, Maine, a bank and at the mouth of river of same name lat. 43° 20' N. lon. 70° 15' W. It has a good harbour and considerable shipping employed in the fisheries and coasting trade. Pop. 3218. — 2. (Kennebunkport) a town on the opposite side of the river to Kennebec, with some taneries, a falling, and several saw and other mills. Pop. 2768.

KENNETT (FAMES OF) See BALESTRE. KENNELLEIGH par. Eng. Devon 732 ac. Pop. 111. KENNET FARM par. Eng. Wilt 808 ac. Pop. 80. KENNETH, a river England rising in co. Wilts, flows E. and N.E. past Marlborough Hungerford and Newbury through co. Berks, and falls into the Thames a Reading. It is navigable to Newbury.

KENNETHMUN par. Scot. Aberdeen, 6 m. by 3 m. Pop. 1108.

KENNETT par. Eng. Cambridge 1425 ac. Pop. 298. KENNINGHALL a small market in civil par. England co. Norfolk. The town 18 m. N.W. Norwich was formerly the residence of the kings of East Anglia and contains an ancient parish church and Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. Area of par. 6800 ac. Pop. 1649. KENNINGTON a dist. England, co. Surrey par. Lambeth one of the 8 suburbs of London. It contains numerous handsome ranges of buildings, and is almost all laid out in streets, with the exception of a large tract of ground called Kennington Common belonging to the Duchy of Cornwall on which the inhabitants have the privilege of grazing horses and cattle, and which has long been a favourite place for holding large public meetings. The town is well lighted with gas, supplied with water and contains a handsome church, several chapels of worship for various bodies of Dissenters, and manufactories of oil of vitrol and wadding. Pop. 43 103.

KENNINGTON par. Eng. Kent, 1380 ac. Pop. 620. KENNOWAY par. Scot. Fife 8 m. by 2 m. Pop. 2227.

KENRIN (TON) a vil. and par. England, co. Middlesex, a suburb of London, 14 m. W. Hyde Park Corner. It contains several ranges of respectable houses and numerous villas and detached residences including Holland House is well paved, lighted with gas, and supplied with water, and has numerous churches, chapels, and schools, and an observatory established by Sir J. South. The Kennel Green cemetery here contains 54 ac. In Kensington Palace, adjacent to the town, purchased by William III. and his favourite residence, her Majesty Queen Victoria, was born, in 1819 and held her first council in 1867. Area of par. which contains Notting Hill and part of Brompton 1945 ac. Pop. 44 066.

KENSWORTH par. Eng. Herts 2280 ac. Pop. 1083.

KENT. — 1. A maritime co. W. Australia, about 68 m. E. to W. and varying from 22 to 50 m. in breadth. Its coastline is extremely irregular being serrated with points and capes, and deeply indented with bays and coves. In the N.W. part of the county is a lofty mountain called Kintyre, and about 2500 ft. high. The maritime co. Van Diemen's Land, bounded N. by the river Hoon and D'Entrecasteaux Channel, and on the E. and part of the W. by the Southern Ocean. County town, Basmata.

KENT a maritime co. England bounded N. by the Thames and German Ocean, E. and S.E. by the latter and the Strait of Dover S. by Sussex, and W. by Surrey and having, on its E. and S. coasts, the N. and S. Forelands and Dungeness. Area 933 680 ac. of which 940 000 are arable, meadow and pasture. On that part of the coast bordering the estuary of the Thames, there are numerous examples both of the gam and low of land by the sea. The cliffs on the Isle of Sheppey which is situated here, and which are from 60 to 80 ft. high decay rapidly so as having been lost in 20 years, between 1810 and 1880 and the church at Minster now near the coast, is said to have been in the middle of the island in 1780. Similar ravages are going on at other parts of the coast. Off the E. shore lie the well-known Goodwin Sands (off-shoot), between which and the mainland is the equally well-known Goodwin Bank. This part of the coast is designated a lull country, being divided by two nearly parallel chains of chalk hills, which traverse the county W. to E. terminating in lofty chalk cliffs at Dover Folkestone, and Hythe. Many of these hills rise from 400 to 550 ft. above sea level. The district between the chalk range and the estuary of the Thames is mostly occupied by the plastic clay which immediately overlies the chalk. The space again S. from the range between it and Sussex is called the Weald, and was formerly an immense forest. This part of the county comprises Romney Marsh which occupies its S.E. corner and consists of about 24,000 ac. The climate of Kent is in general mild and genial. The soil may be divided into the general, chalk, and clay which produce where they mix in due proportion an extremely fertile loam. The alluvial soils along the Thames and Medway, and in Romney Marsh, produce some of the richest pastures in the kingdom. Generally speaking the soil of the E. division is believed to be superior to that of the W. Agriculture, particularly in the former is in a very advanced state. Kent is the principal hop county in England and wheat, barley, pease, and beans are raised in large quantities. Canary radish and asparagus seed, &c. are very extensively cultivated and fruits and garden vegetables are abundant. The Weald contains a great deal of natural grass land producing a vast quantity of excellent hay. The pastures in the marshes are of considerable extent and are appropriated to the fattening of cattle and sheep the latter including a peculiarly fine breed known as the Romney Marsh sheep, which fattens early and produces long combing wool. I. culture of every sort is large and fine and game, including hares, pheasants, and partridges, numerous the pheasants being esteemed the largest and finest-flavoured in the kingdom. The principal towns in Kent are Canterbury Rochester Greenwich, Deptford, Woolwich Gravesend Dover Maidstone Hythe &c. all of which are connected with London by railway. 1 pair of all kinds is manufactured in the county but the writing papers are more especially noted for their quality, cotton manufactures to a limited extent, are likewise carried on, and there are silk, copper, and calico-printing works, bleachfields, and gunpowder mills. Julius Caesar's first landing in Great Britain was in Kent. Kent returns 18 members to Parliament, of which four are for the county. Registered county electors (1861) E. district, 6987 W. district, 9280 Pop. 515,766. KENTCHURCH par. Eng. Hereford, 3286 ac. Pop. 296. KENTFORD par. Eng. Suffolk, 796 ac. Pop. 172. KENTISBEARE par. Eng. Devon 3720 ac. Pop. 1104. KENTISBURY par. Eng. Devon 5129 ac. Pop. 424. KENTISH TOWN a vil. and par. Middlesex, a N. suburb of London between Camden-town and Highgate, a little way N. of the Paddington canal. It is pleasantly situated, and has of late years been greatly enlarged and improved, and besides the chapel has places of worship for Wesleyans and Independents. Pop. 23,926.

KEATON, two par. England.—1 Devon; 8811 ac. Pop. 2922.—5 Devon; 1908 ac. Pop. 2511 ac.

KENTSTOWN, par. Iral. Mass. 1031 ac. Pop. 269

KENTUCKY, one of the U States, bounded N by Ohio and Indiana, N W by Illinois, N by Missouri S by Tennessee, and E by Virginia; lat. 36° 55' to 39° 10' N; lon.

81° 40' to 89° 44' W; greatest length, E N E to W S W, about 400 m., breadth, 170 m.; area, 40,600 sq. m. The surface, though somewhat mountainous in the S E, has in general little elevation and may be considered as an inclined plane, sloping gradually towards the Ohio, on the N, and the Mississippi, on the W. Along the banks of both these rivers is a low alluvial tract, overflowed when the water is high and behind this tract is another, from 5 m. to 20 m. wide, which is hilly and broken. In the S W, a third tract, situated chiefly between the Green and the Cumberland rivers, is called the Barrens and, though not so bad as its name would seem to indicate, cannot be called fertile. With these exceptions, the whole state is gently undulating, and possesses an excellent soil, either covered with forest, in which the black walnut, black cherry, buckeye, ash, hickory, maple, mulberry, and oak, cotton wood, and white thorn, are prevailing trees, or under regular cultivation, producing excellent crops of wheat, tobacco, and hemp, which are the staple productions, and also abundance of Indian corn, rye, oats, barley, buckwheat, flax, and potatoes. The most common fruits are apples, pears, peaches, and plums and the pastures rear vast numbers of horses, horned cattle, sheep, and swine. The vine grows wild, and is partially cultivated; the cotton plant also thrives well and a large quantity of sugar is produced. Few states are better provided with water communication. The Ohio forms the boundary, on the N and N W, for 657 m. and receives from within the state numerous tributaries, of which the most important are the Cumberland, Kentucky, and Tennessee the Mississippi, after receiving the Ohio forms the boundary on the W. The most valuable mineral products are iron, coal, salt, and lime. The last is found in almost every part of the state, at the depth of about 8 ft. below the surface, and forms the predominant geological formation often presenting stupendous precipices along the banks of the rivers, and containing numerous remarkable caverns, of which one, called the Mammoth Cave, 130 m. from Lexington, on the road to Nashville, has already been explored to a distance of 18 m., which is believed to be scarcely a beginning of its vast extent, it is said to contain 226 avenues, numerous rivers and catacombs, and to be filled with enormous stalactites and stalagmites. The manufactures of this state are not yet very largely developed. Besides domestic manufactures, they consist chiefly of woollen and cotton goods, iron and ironware, gunpowder, leather, soap, and spirits; and the most important articles of trade are grain, tobacco, hemp, salt, sugar live stock, bacon, and lard. Kentucky originally formed part of Virginia, but was separated from it in 1792 and admitted into the Union in 1795. Its government consists of a senate of not more than 35, and not less than 24 members, elected for four years, or one-fourth annually and of representatives elected annually and apportioned every four years among the counties according to the number of electors. The governor is elected, for four years, by the people, and a lieutenant-governor, to take the place of the governor in case of absence or death and to preside in the senate, is elected at the same time. For administrative purposes, the state is divided into 104 counties. The seat of government is Frankfort, but the oldest and finest town is Lexington; and the largest and most commercial, Louisville all of which are connected by railway with the N and E states. Pop. (1840) 779,314 slaves,

182,258 (1850), 993,844, slaves, 311,327

KENTUCKY a river, U States, which rises in the state to which it gives its name, being formed in the Cumberland Mountains, by these principal branches, called the W, middle, and S Forks flows circuitously N N W, past the town of Frankfort, and, after a course, which directly is only 112 m., but indirectly 280 m. joins the Ohio at Carrollton. When the water is high, it is navigable by steam-boats of 800 tons to Frankfort; and, though its course is generally through a deep rocky bed in some places overlying by limestone pre-ludes 800 ft. high, its navigation has been so much improved, that vessels drawing less than 6 ft. can proceed at all times up to the junction of the Green Forks.

Vol. II

KENTY, a to Austria, Gallea, circle, and 12 m. W

Wallow r bank fold. It has extensive manufactures of table and ordinary linen, and has an important trade in these articles, and in leather. Pop. 830

KENWYN, par. Eng. Cornwall, 8987 ac. Pop. 9748

KENZINGEN, a tn. Baden, circle, Upper Rhine esp.

baul. of same name, at the confluence of the Elz and Elzloch, the former of which is crossed by a handsome bridge, 27 m.

S. Strassburg. It has a church, townhouse, old Franciscan monastery and burger school, manufactures of linen, illewoven, twines, and mills. Pop. 2516; built, 27,535.

KESHALOM, or STRASSBURG a market tn. Hungary

Tulthar Danube, on Oedenburg, 7 m. N N W Gtms. with a church a flour-mill, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1164.

KEPETH a vil. Hungary, Banat, co., and 21 m. S E S

Tomasev, with a parish church. It stands in a district densely covered with oaks, on the mast of which great numbers of swine are fed. Pop. 1128.

KEPELN, a vil. Rhodol Prussia, gov. Düsseldorf, circle, Cleves with a Catholic church. Pop. 1459.

KEPPEL'S ISLAND Australia, at the N E end of the entrance to Keppel Bay, lat. 23 11 S. lon. 151 8 E (a.)

10 to 12 m. in circumference, with poor stony or sandy ground, thinly covered with tufts of coarse grass

KERAN, KERMACHAN or KARA SU (anc. Chocopus) a river, Persia, which rises in prov. Ardalan about 40 m. N W

Senna lat. 26° 28' N, lon. 46 40' E, flows S. towards and through Kermanshah, 55 m. below which, it is joined by two large branches, the Morf and Gomah-Si, and here, for the first time, it becomes the Karah. At lat. 35° 53' it enters prov.

Khorasan, and, bending round from N E to S W, falls into the Euphrates, or Elah-el Arak, at lat. 31° N, after a course of about 850 m.

KERBELA (anc. Volganga) a tn. Asiatic Turkey, pers and 60 m. S W Bagdad. It is large and populous, surrounded by a wall upwards of 3 m. in circumference, has five gates, a well-supplied bazaar, seven caravanserais, a magnificent mosque, and the tomb of Hussein, the son of Ali, enbal-med with a gilded cupola, an object of great veneration to the Persians, who make pilgrimages to it in great numbers.

The district in which Kerbela is situated has also been called sacred, the Persians bring great numbers of their dead to it for interment.

KEBKHOVIE, a vil and com. Belgium, prov. W Flanders 1. bank Scheldt, 38 m. S S E Brugue with manufactures of linen, yarn, and chiefly two breweries, two oil, and two flour-mills. Pop. 1454.

KERDIFFSTOWN par. Iral. Kildare 703 ac. P 27

KERDISTON, par. Eng. Norfolk 1690 ac. P 202

KERECZE a vil. Hungary Thither Thales co. Marmaros, on the Dolna, 33 m. from Singsch with a church, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 967

KERKE a vil. Hungary Thither Thales, co. and 17 m.

N E Arad in a fertile district, with a church. Pop. 1692

KEREKI (Nagy) a vil. Hungary Thither Thales, co.

Bihar on the Little Körös, 14 m. from Grossvardeint, with a parish church, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1050

KERENEN, a tn. Russia, gov. and 91 m. N W of Pensa, on the Volh. esp. of a fertile and well wooded part of same name. It has five churches and manufactures of sailcloth.

Pop. 6984, dist. 40,000

KERENZEN a vil and par. Switzerland gen. and 6 m.

N N E Glarus. It has an ancient parish church, considerably resembling a castle, and some trade in fruit and dairy products. Pop. 1535

KERERA, a tn. W. coast, Scotland, co. Argyll, off Oban, and forming between it and the mainland, the beautiful Sound of Keren. It is about 4 m. long, and 2 m. broad, with a ruined fortress exhibiting a singular combination of primary success, and trap rocks, and contains the ruins of a Danish fort. Alexander II. died here in 1249, when on his expedition for the invasion of the Western Isles, then under the dominion of Norway, and a few years later, Haco of Norway was met here by the island chief, who agreed to assist him in his descent on the coasts of Scotland.

KERESLEY, a hamlet, England, co. Wsrick, about

3 m. N N W Coventry, with a neat abbey, a Wesleyan chapel, a school, and a number of neat residences, belonging to people of business in Coventry. Pop. 440.

KERESOON, or KERAMON [anc. Pharos] a seaport on Asiatic Turkey S. coast of the Black Sea, 75 m. W. Trabzon, lat. 40° 57' 15" N., lon. 38° 54' E. (a) on the extremity of a rocky promontory connected with the mainland by a few wooded ridges of a pleasing and picturesque appearance. On the highest point of the former are the ruins of a Byzantine fortress, from which a strong wall with Hellenic foundations, stretches down to the sea on both sides. The town, at present in a ruinous condition, consists of 700 or 800 houses inhabited by Turks, Greeks, and Armenians and has some trade in exporting copper, alum, oats, and the wood of the walnut tree.

KERESZI (Szék), a market in Hungary, Hither Danube, co. Bacs, on the Gran, here crossed by a bridge about 14 m. from Léva. It has a parish church an elegant castle with gardens, and a trade in fruit and cattle. Pop. 955.

KERESZTES several places, Hungary particularly—1. A vil. Thither Danube, co. and 5 m. N.W. Stuhlweisensberg with a church and several mills, Pop. 1289.—2. (Med) A market in Thither Thesus co. Borsod, in a somewhat marshy plain 15 m. E.S.E. Erlau, with a church, a national school three mills, and a trade in corn and wine. Pop. 6737.—3. (Med) A vil. Thither Thesus co. Bihar 12 m. N.W. Grevenstein with a church and considerable trade in corn and cattle. P. 2937.

KERESZTI R. with prefixes, numerous places, Hungary particularly—1. A vil. Hither Danube, co. Bacs, 10 m. J. Feith with a church, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 2741.—2. (Nyest- or Halgas Kereszt) A market in Thither Danube, co. and 4 m. S. Odenburg with a church, a synagogue, and a square turritio castle chalybeate springs with a bathing establishment, which is much frequented, and a trade in wine. Pop. 2602.—3. (or Halgas Kereszt) A vil. Thither Danube, co. Eisenburg 23 m. S.W. Hainau-Anger on the Leysen with a church. Pop. 970.—4. (Halt) A vil. co. Tereosol on the Theiss 5 m. from Szegedin with a church, and a trade in cattle and swine. Pop. 1662.—5. (Szo) A vil. co. Borsod in a plain on the Sajó, 8 m. from Makoloz with a church, and a mill. Pop. 1264.—6. (Szo) A vil. Thither Danube, co. and 10 m. from Stuhlweisensberg on the moraine of Szarath, in a flat waste and sheep district with two churches. Pop. 1785.—7. (Tosk) A vil. Thither Danube co., and 20 m. from Odenburg with a church. Pop. 562.—8. (or Koly) A market in Thither Thesus co. Szabolcs, 94 m. S.S.E. Kaschau with a Protestant church. Pop. 1461.

KERESZTUFULVA, or KERESTOOR a vil. Hungary Transylvania, Szelek Ldvárhely etabli on the great Kekei 12 m. E.N.E. Schiburg with three churches and a school. Pop. 1279.

KERET a lake, Russia, in the W. of gov. Archangel, about 18 m. E. of Lake Topozero, lat. 65° N., lon. 32° 30' Y. It is about 20 m. long by about 9 m. broad, and contains a large island.

KERQUELEN'S LAND or DEMOLATION ISLAND, an Isl. Indian Ocean, extreme W. point, Cape Louis lat. 49° 3' S. lon. 68° 18' E. (a.) It is about 160 m. in length 60 m. in breadth at the widest part, is, perhaps, the most barren spot in either hemisphere, at the same distance from the pole. It is deeply indented by bays and gulfs, the most remarkable of which is Christmas Harbour at the N. extremity of the island. It is in the form of a horse-shoe, the shores on each side are formed of steep rocks rising, in a succession of terraces, to the height of above 1000 ft., and the head of the bay is a level beach of fine sand. The accompanying map of H. is taken from a height of 600 ft. The surface of the island is intersected by numerous small lakes and water-courses the latter when swollen by heavy rains, rushing down the sides of the mountains, and along the ravines, in countless impetuous torrents. The N. extremity of the island is entirely of volcanic origin and some of its bold headlands present a striking appearance from the sea, the trap rocks of which they are composed form a succession of terraces nearly horizontal. Basalt is the prevailing rock, assuming the prismatic form, and passing into pumice and the various modifications of amygdaloid and porphyry. The general direction of the mountain ranges inclines to the S.W. and N.E.

CHRISTMAS HARBOR, KERQUELEN ISLAND.—From Mr. J. G. Rees's Antarctic Expedition.

varying in height, generally from 500 to 2500 ft. Several of the hills have crater shaped summits, which have evidently once been volcanic vents, but the most remarkable geological feature in the island, is the occurrence of fossil wood and coal imbedded in the igneous rocks. Debris, produced by disintegration from atmospheric causes, is accumulated at the base of the hills in many places to the height of 200 or 300 ft. The climate, although rigorous, supports a perennial vegetation and scarcely any of the plants, even the grasses can be called annuals. Though in a comparatively low latitude the vegetation is decidedly antartical, and consists of comparatively few species. Of flowering plants, it has only 18 species, less than the number in Melville Island, in the Arctic Sea, and three times less than the number even in Syntberg. The whole known vegetation of the island only amounts to 150, including sea weeds. The Fringes, a kind of cabbage in high favour with seamen is peculiar to it and grows together with a plant similar to the Bokax of the Falkland Islands, covers large tracts. About 20 species, only of lichens and mosses are found here. No land animals have been seen on the island, or are known to exist on it and seals, formerly plentiful have been annihilated, or driven from the coast. Sea-fowl are numerous, and of great variety of species.—(From a Antarctic Expedition.)

KERIS, or KRIS a vil. Butti or Little Tibet, on a large alluvial flat just above the junction of the Shayuk and Indus, 89 m. N.W. Srinagar or Cashmere. It is the largest village in that part of the valley of the Shayuk, and is surrounded by a very extensive bed of fine lacustrine clay, of which a section exposed to the E. of the village is at least 60 ft. thick. The prevailing rocks of the district are granite and slate.

KERJENETZ, a river, Russia, which rises in the G. of gov. Kozlovka, enters that of Nijed-Novgorod, flows S.E. and after a course of above 150 m. joins L. bank Volga, about 3 m. above Makarav. Its chief affluents are the Saakita, Kozlovka, and Mochna.

KIRKA TERO, or TIRIK [anc. Tirika], a river, Hungary, Delmatia, which rises in the Erakozgubirge belonging to the mountains of Topoglia, about 12 m. E. Kint, flows W. past that town, then, easterly, S.S.W. to Scardona, where it forms a lake, it subsequently forms a second lake, and falls into the Adria, near Sebenico, after a course of above 35 m. It is navigable to Neardona by vessels of 20 tons, but above that town, is much encumbered by rocks and water-falls. Some of the latter are very picturesque. The principal affluent of the Kerka is the Gocha.

KERKENI [anc. Cervene]. See KARKENIK.
KERKHAH, a river Persia. See KERAN.
KERKINET (Gulf of), Black Sea, N. coast, on the N.W. side of the Crimea, and between that peninsula and the maland. The gulf is about 45 m. wide at its entrance, gradually diminishing to about 10 m. Entire length, about 80 m. On the N side of the Gulf, and near its entrance, is the long sandy peninsula, called Djeridgatah, extending S.E. about 50 m., and enclosing an extensive harbour an- nular from the E. where it is 4 m. broad, with a depth of 4 to 5 fathoms. This peninsula is year after year growing larger. The gulf becomes very shallow at its N.E. end.

KERKOOK, or KIRKOOK, a v. in Turkish Kurdistan, 140 m. N. Bagdad, lat. 35° 27' N., lon. 44° 27' E., on a plain. The greater part of it is in ruins, but a number of mosques still remain in the town and suburbs. There are also several R. Catholic and Armenian churches. Streets narrow and filthy. It manufactures coarse calico and has a considerable trade in gall-nuts. There are numerous naphtha pits in the vicinity. Pop. about 13,000.

KERKRADE, a v. in Holland, prov. Limburg 16 m. E. Maastricht, with a church and a convent, used as a normal school. Pop. 580.

KERKKEEN, a v. and com. Belgium, prov. F. Flan- ders, 16 m. S.E. Ghent, with extensive manufactures of linen, and a flour-mill. Pop. 1,227.

KERKLOGH, par. Irel. Wexford; 260 ac. Pop. 97.

KERMAN, or KIRMAN (anc. Caramania) a large prov. S.E. Persia, bounded N. by Kharassan, N.E. by Afghanistan, P. and S.E. by Beloochistan, E. by Persian Gulf, and W. by Farassan and Laristan, lat. 25° 30' to 31° 15' N., lon. 54° 30' to 60° 25' E. Greatest length, N. to S., 980 m., greatest breadth, from E. to W., 545 m., area, about 50,000 sq. m. It is naturally divided into desert and habitable regions. The former lies to the N., and particularly to the N.E., where is the Desert of Kerman a barren frightful waste, in which whole armies are said to have perished. There is no water and the ground is so impregnated with salt that vegetation is absolutely extinct. For a stretch of 90 m. not a blade of grass is seen. The region is generally most desolate. A chain of moun- tains, proceeding from the N. of Laristan stretch almost across the country in the direction of Beloochistan, and throw off ramifications to the S., where, after skirting the coast, they retire for a considerable space, and make room for a plain which is very fertile, and is called by the natives the Paradise of Persia. The most fertile portion of the province is Noor- mahr, in the E., which, contrary to what may be considered as the unvaried case with the other districts, is tolerably watered by mountain streams, and, consisting of rich black mould yields an abundant produce. Along the coast are numerous date plantations, for which, indeed, the district of Mogostan is so famous, as to be called the land of dates. The crops raised, where land fit for them can be found, are oats, maize and barley. Excepting the dates and the grapes which, in particular spots, is said to be remarkably fine, the fruits are of indifferent quality but white roses succeed well and are cultivated for their attar. There are also occasional tracts of wood with numerous trees which yield a gum equal to that of Arabia. Cattle and sheep are raised in some tracts the wool of the latter is fine, and the hair both of the goats and camels of Kerman, has long been celebrated for its length and fineness. Considerable attention is paid to the silk worm, and the quality of the silk is said to be excellent. The inha- bitants on the coast are much employed in fishing but the pearl fishery, once so famous, has ceased to exist. Metals are abundant. Gold is mentioned, but only iron and copper have yet been wrought. Sulphur also, of excellent quality is plentiful. The inhabitants consist of Persians proper, who occupy the W. N. and middle districts, Guebans or Parsses, whose number does not exceed 40,000. Idle or wandering tribes, including Beloochians, who have their locality in the E., in the district of Noormahr, and several tribes of Arabs, chiefly in Mogostan. The province is governed by a beglar- beg, who resides at the town of Kerman, and has several hakimins under him, but Mogostan belongs to the Imam of Muscat. Pop. about 600,000.

KIRIMAN GIBRALTAR, or SIBOAN, a to. Persia, cap. above prov., at the W. extremity of an extensive plain, and so near the hills, that two old forts built upon them completely command it. lat. 30° 45' N., lon. 56° 35' E. It is surrounded by an earthen wall, and besides the citadel, containing the palace in which the beglar-beg resides, there are numerous mosques and bath, eight large, and a great number of smaller excavations, and a well-furnished bazaar. Its manufactures consist of shawls of camels hair, carpets, and muskets, for which it has long been celebrated. Though the trade is still considerable, it is small compared with what it formerly was when standing as a kind of centre between the Persian Gulf, the Indian Ocean, and the countries to the N.E. and W. It was the greatemporium for the trade of all these various regions. This greatness blew to its prosperity was the decay of the port of Gombroon, which Baskara has, in a great measure, superseded. In 1794, it was taken by Aga Mahomet Khan, and given up to pillage. The most fearful atrocities were then committed, and not fewer than 80,000 of its inhabitants were carried into slavery. Its present pop. is still estimated at 20,000.

KERMANSHAH, KIRMANSH or KIRMANSHAH a to. Per- sian prov. Irak Ajemi, occupying two or three small hills at the W. extremity of a broad plain, near bank Khursh, 280 m. W. S.W. Teheran, lat. 34° 30' N., lon. 46° 37' E. It is surrounded by an earthen wall nearly 3 m. in circumference, has five gates and contains few buildings worth notice the most conspicuous being the bazaar, which is very extensive, and the mosque of the assembly. The town has comparatively little trade, but the routes from Bagdad, Shuster in the desert, Isfahan, by way of Hamadan, and Sulimash all meeting it, cause a considerable traffic through it, though much of it is not commercial but funeral, consisting of friends leaving the embalm'd bodies of relatives to be entombed in the sacred district of Karbela. The carpets and muskets made here have long been celebrated. Pop. (Kilman, 1810), 12,000 (Southgate 1884) 30,000.

KERNIASCHLEVALD, a v. Austria, Salvoama, about 6 m. from Gollumbomus with a Greek church. Pop. 1990.

KERNS, a v. and par. Switzerland, cant. Unterwalden in a beautiful and fertile district watered by the Aa, 1 m. N.E. Sarnen. It is well built, and has a handsome church, with an elegant spire, and a spire 237 ft. high. Below Kerns are the Kernwald commons, and form the boundary between the Obwald and the Nidwald. Pop. 2395.

KILHAUK, a v. in Norway, near 1 bank Shary, 180 m. S.E.P. Kouka, lat. 11° 7' N., lon. 16° 29' E., cap. of the country of Loggan. The market is plentifully supplied with provisions by the Rhosna, for which they are paid in tobes and blue cotton in stripes, which the people of Loggan dye of a beautiful colour. Pop. 15,000.

KERNYAJA, or KERKAZA, a v. Hungary Hither Danube, co. Bacs, in a plain near Mount Telecsak, 6 m. from Zombor with a church, and a trade in corn, maize, hemp, and wine. Pop. 2810.

KERTEN, a v. in Khenush Prussia, about 15 m. W. S.W. Cologne, with a court of justice, a R. Catholic church, and manufactures of ironware, and a dyework. Pop. 1920.

KERL HAYES, or KERKENDOUR, a v. Hungary Tran- sylvania, co. Nieder Weissenburg, about 48 m. from Karls- burg, with a Greek church. Pop. 819.

KERRY par. Wales Montgomery, 21,480 ac. 1. 1930. KERRY, a maritime co. Ireland S.W. coast, prov. Munster, bounded N. by the estuary of the Shannon, E. Limerick and Cork, S. Cork and the Atlantic, and W. the Atlantic. Greatest length 60 m., N. to S., breadth 58 m. Area, 1,159,958 ac. of which 414,614 are arable. On the W. and S. it is rugged, rocky and mountainous, with deep valleys intervening but the N. and E. are remarkable for richness and fertility. Some of the mountain rise to considerable elevations, Carr Tuail, the highest in Ireland attaining a height of 8404 ft. above sea-level, while several others reach 5000 and 8000 ft. These mountains are chiefly composed of red or gray conglomerate and sandstone, supporting banks of siliceous flags, and overlaid in the low districts by fields of flints limestone. Iron-ore is abundant in some of the mountains, and copper and lead also exist in the county. The subsoil is slate and red sandstone, with limestone in the low districts. Slate of a superior kind, and flag-stone, are obtained in great quantities in the island of Valentia, on the S.W. coast. The counties of Kerry are remarkably and deeply indented with bays and inlets, the principal of which are the bays of Tralee, Brandon, Dingle, Ballymakellane and the estuary called Kenmare River. There are also several islands on the coast, the chief of which are Blasket, off Dingle- head, Valentia, and the Skellig Rocks, on one of which there is a light-house. There are several considerable rivers in the county of which the most important are the Fudo, falling into the estuary of the Shannon; the Mang, with its affluent, the Fudo; and the Lemo, the latter forming the Lakes of Kilmurry and both falling into Oostmanahar harbour, and the Boughy, the estuary of which forms the upper part of Kilmurry River and several beautiful lakes, including those of Kilmurry—(which are enclosed on all sides by mountains, and, though small, singularly picturesque. The climate is cold and moist; the arbutus Sorbus in the open air, and vegetation generally is extremely luxuriant in the central parts, where the soil also is remarkably fertile, producing large crops of grain, and containing some excellent pasture land, which yields better of the finest quality obtained from the milk of the Kerry cow, which is noted also for its rapid fattening qualities. Oats and potatoes are the principal crops, though barley, beans, rye, and wheat, turnips, &c., are also grown but agriculture generally is in a wretched state. Large flocks of goats are reared in the mountains. The fishery districts are Valentia, Dingle, and Listowel, together comprising 249 m. of maritime boundaries, which had, in 1860, 1193 registered fishing vessels, employing 4914 men and boys. The Irish language is almost entirely spoken in this county, and ancient customs and superstitions preserve their ascendancy in a remarkable degree. In 1850 the number of children attending school was 21,254. The chief trade consists in exports of agricultural produce, mostly oats and butter. Linen and coarse woollens are manufactured to some extent, the latter chiefly for home consumption. Kerry is divided into eight baronies—Glammara, Caraghery, Dinkerron, Glenarragh, Imphigheon, Iveragh, Magabally and Traughan—and eighty-seven parishes, and returns three members to Parliament—two for the county and one for the borough of Tralee. Principal towns, Tralee and Kilmurry P (1841), 235,960 (1861) 258,459.

KERRY HEAD, a lofty promontory Ireland, co Kerry, S. of entrance to the Shannon.

KERSLEY par Eng Suffol 1510 ac. Pop. 714.

KESSEL (anc. Amphicommene), a town, Russia, in the Crimea, on a tongue of land forming a peninsula of the same name, on the Strait of Kizil, connecting the sea of Azov with the Black Sea, 190 m. E.N.E. Simferopol lat. 45° 20' N. lon. 36° 28' E. It is regularly and beautifully built, chiefly of stone obtained from the fine quarries of the neighbourhood, and possesses great natural advantages for commerce. In 1827 it was declared a free port, and an extensive lazaretto was built, at which all the vessels coming by the Black Sea perform quarantine. The number of vessels which touch at it in passing out the sea of Azov averages 400 and the number of visiting vessels is from 500 to 600. The greater part of the inhabitants are employed in commerce. It exports building stone, and large quantities of salt, obtained from neighbouring lakes, and its herring and sturgeon fisheries are very productive. Its site is that of the ancient Pantecapum, the residence and burial-place of Mikhrade. The modern town is of very recent existence, and has risen up as if by magic and, by its increase, has prejudicially affected some of the other ports. Pop (1834) 3000, (1842) 10,000.—(Wagner's Rundschau Hommes de Heil Les Stages de la Mer Caspienne.)

KESZLÖS a vil Hungary co. and 94 m from Anad, with a church, a mill, and a trade in timber. Pop. 1227.

KERYEN a vil Rhinisch Prussia, gov Cologne, circle Rureghia, with a R. Catholic church, manufactures of hardware, and dye-works. Pop. 1920.

KERYENHEIM a town, Rhinisch Prussia, gov Düsseldorf, on the Rhine about 18 m. S.E. S. Cleve, in a marshy district, with a church. Pop. 900.

KERYENHEIM a vil Bavaria, Palatinat, near Gillingen, with a Protestant church. Pop. 1092.

KERZEIS (Franch. Cherzeis) a vil and par Switzer land, can. and 11 m. N. Freiburg, on a fertile hill above the lake. It is a very ancient place, and is supposed to have derived its name from the Latin words of carcere. It has a church and in the district a good deal of corn, wine, rapeseed, and tobacco are grown. Pop. 1008.

KESZELYMEZŐ, or Keszöly a vil Hungary, Töltes Thal, co. Marosvás, in a plain on the Nagysz, 80 m from Szeged, with a Greek church. Pop. 1170.

KESGRAVE, par Eng Suffol 1610 ac. Pop. 66.

KESHAN, or Kowsoo, a town, European Turkey, Konia, 38 m. N. Gahgah, a thriving place, consisting of about 900 houses, with a considerable trade. It lies at the edge of the valley or plain of the river Maras, on the slope of a hill forming the S.W. termination of the range of Tektir Dag, and at the junction of the great roads leading to Elazir, Gahgah, Saloniki, and Constantinople.

KESHIN, a small port, S. coast Arabia, prov Hadramout, about 450 m. N.N.E. Aden, by name same. It is a straggling place, stretching $\frac{1}{2}$ m. inland, and having a long sea front. It is the residence of a sheik, and carries on a small trade with Zanzibar and the Malabar coast, sending salt-fish to the former and money to the latter, and receiving in exchange millet, rice, cotton, cloth, dates, sugar, and coffee. It is one of the ports in which boats are laid up during the S.W. monsoon.—(Saunders's Survey of the Coast of Arabia.)

KESIL-BANI MOO, a lake, Chinese Turkestan, near the source of the Irtysh lat. 46° 30' N; lon. 87° E. Length about 80 m. Greatest breadth, 15 m. It receives a considerable river on the E.E., but has no outlet.

KESMAARK, a town, Hungary, co. Kassa.

KESSEL, a vil and com. Belgium par and 18 m. E.S.E. Antwerp, on the Great and Little Nibbe. It has manufactures of linen, two saw-mills, two flour-mills, and a trade in wool and coal. Pop. 1678.

KESSEL, Loo, a vil and com. Belgium, prov Brabant, on an affluent of the Dyle 15 m. E. Brussels. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture, selling their produce at Louvain. Pop. 1801.

KESSELSDORF (Ossan and Kossan) two nearly contiguous vils Prussia, prov Silesia, gov Liegnitz, circle Löwenburg, with a R. Catholic church, a stone quarry, and several mills. Pop. 832.

KESSELSDORF a vil. Saxony circle, and 6 m. W. Dresden, with a church, and some trade in wine and fruit. The Saxon and Austrian forces were here defeated by the Prussians in 1745. Pop. 446.

KESSELSTADT a vil. Hesse-Cassel, prov and scarcely 1 m. W. Hannau, a bank town, with a parish church, manufactures of calico, several distilleries, and a gypsum quarry. The castle of Fulda is in the vicinity. Pop. 610.

KESSELWEI, a vil and com. Belgium, par Limburg on the Maase, 24 m. N.E. Hasselt. Pop. agricultural, 1067.

KESSEI (Esz), a vil Hungary co. Bihar on the Er 5 m. from Székelyud with two churches, and some trade in corn and wine. Pop. 1461.

KESSEING isle, Indian Archipelago. See Kessing.

KESSEINGLAND, par Eng. Suffol, 1691 ac. P. 777.

KESTEREN a vil. Holland, prov Gelderland, 14 m. W. W. Nijmegen, on the Rhine dikes, with a good-looking old church and a school. Pop. 552.

KESTEREN one of the three parts into which Co. Lincoln has long been divided the other two being Lindsey and Holland. It comprehends the S.W. part of the county, extending N. and N.E. to the Foss Dyke and the Witham and E. to a line drawn S. from the Witham, at the junction of the Kyme or Reaford, to the Witham, between Deeping and Gwynd. Its most remarkable feature is the steep slope of Gidle Row overlooking the valley of the Witham. Area of Kesteren, 710 sq. m. Pop. 92,857.

KESTOLOCE, or Keseröce, a vil Hungary Euthar Danube, co. and 5 m. S.E. Gran, in a hilly district near Mount Pila. Pop. 1053.

KESTON, par Eng Kent, 1474 ac. Pop. 644.

KESWICK, a market in England, co. Cumberland, 22 m. R.W. Carlisle, most romantically situated on the Grates, in a valley surrounded by hills. It has many neat and commodious dwellings, a market house, handsome church in the early English style, and places of worship for Wesleyans and Independents. Blankets, kerseys, and other coarse woollen goods, are manufactured to a considerable extent, as are likewise black lead pencils, made of the well-known material obtained in the neighbourhood. On the Grates are several corn-mills, and a manufactory for spades, scythes, and other agricultural implements. The inhabitants, however, depend chiefly upon the visitors to the Lake of Derwentwater, and the romantic scenery in the neighbourhood. At Grates Hall, in the immediate vicinity Robert Southey spent the latter years of his life, and died in March, 1843. Pop. 2618.

KESWICK, par. Eng. Norfolk; 799 ac. Pop. 128.
KESZLI, two places, Hungary.—1, (Pápa-Keszli), A vil. Thibier Thales, on Borneo, on the Thales, 20 m. from Mikolcs, with a church, a factory, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1108.—2, (Zolt-Keszli), A vil. Thibier Danube, on Tolna, 12 m. from Bismontary, with a church, and a trade in corn, wine, and cattle. Pop. 1413.
KESZMETEN, or Keszmeten, a vil. Hungary. Hither Thales, on Zemplin, dist. and 12 m. from Tokay, at the confluence of the Tisza with the Thales, with a church and an active factory. Pop. 1517.
KESZMETZ, or Keszmetz, a vil. Hungary. Banat, co. and 33 m. N. E. Temesvár. It has a church, and stands in a fertile wine district. Pop. 3675.
KESZTHELY, a market tn. Hungary. Thibier Danube, co. Szabol, near Lake Balaton, and at the source of the Szabol, 87 m. S. W. Veszprém. It has an elegant castle, church, synagogue, a gymnasium, normal and other schools, manufactures of cloth, a sulphur spring, a trade in corn and wine, and quarries both of marble and basalt. Pop. 7410.
KET, a river, Asiatic Russia, which rises in gov. Yenisei, at lat. 56° N. flows N. W. into gov. Tomsk, and joins a bank Old about 18 m. above Naryn, after a course of about 500 m. Its banks are covered with dense forests.
KETA, a river, Asiatic Russia, which rises in gov. Yenisei, at lat. 56° N. and lon. 90° E., flows first N. E., then nearly due E., and joins a bank Khatanga, after a course of nearly 800 m. Its chief affluent is the Boganda, which it receives on the left.
KETOYFAYAZA, a vil. Hungary. Thibier Thales, co. Bihars, 19 m. S. E. Cuhai. It has three churches and a castle, with fine gardens and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 3161.
KETEMBER, one of the Key islands (see list).
KETHEI, several places, Hungary particularly.—1, A vil. Thibier Danube co. and 18 m. S. Comorn, with two churches, a flour-mill, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 627.—2, (or Ménfőcsanak), a market in Thibier Danube, co. and 18 m. S. W. Odobany; a bank Repces, with a church. P. 1960.
KETLEY, a township, England, on Selby, par. and 1 m. E. Waddington, containing an elegant church, wrenstone and coal pits, excellent farmland, and quarries, producing a fine and durable stone. Pop. 2643.
KETOY, one of the Kurile islands. lat. (S. extremity) 47° 17' 30" N., lon. 152° 24' E. It is high and mountainous, and about 8 m. in circumference. Some rocks and islets extend for a considerable distance off its N. E. and E. sides.
KETNA, a vil. Hungary. Banat, co. Torontal about 20 m. N. W. Temesvár with a church, and a trade in cattle. P. 2482.
KETTEL, a vil. Hungary. Banat, co. Temesvár about 6 m. from Orsova; with a Greek church. Pop. 3234.
KETSKEL, two places, Hungary.—1, A vil., on Pesti, about 18 m. from Kiskunmet, with a Protestant church. Pop. 1569.—2, (T-27) A vil. near the former, with a R. Catholic church. Pop. 1690.
KETSKHMET or KUCKSKHMET (Latin Egypolis) a market tn. Hungary. Thibier Danube co. and 60 m. S. E. Pesti. It is one of the largest, if not the largest of the market towns of the kingdom, and is poorly built, consisting of ranges of long, narrow streets of low houses. It contains a R. Catholic, Greek non-militarized, and two Protestant churches, a synagogue, a Parast monastery, and gymnasium, and a head national school and has an extensive trade in horses and cattle, and five much-frequented annual fairs. The district around, which takes the name of the Ketakmet basin, is part of a vast sandy tract or steppes, stretching for about 300 m. through the counties of Pesti and Little Cumania, between the Danube and the Thales. One may ride half a day in many parts of it without seeing a house or a tree. Pop. (1848) 40,900.
KETTESING, a market tn. and par. England, co. Northampton. The town 15 m. N. E. Northampton, on the declivity of a hill is irregularly laid out, not very well built, but is amply supplied with water lighted with gas, and has of late years been greatly improved. It has an elegant church in the perpendicular style, with a lofty tower and spire; places of worship for various Dissenting bodies, a Friends' meeting-house, a free grammar, national and British school, and several private schools, and a dispensary. Tanning and carrying of leather, boot and shoe-making, chiefly for the army and navy, the making of silk shag for hats, brushes, pincushions, and slugs, are the chief branches of industry. Area of par., 3840 ac. Pop. 5198.—(Local Government).

KETTERINGHAM, par. Eng. Norfolk 1680 ac. P. 909.
KETTINS, par. Scot. Forfar, 4 m. by 8 m. Pop. 935.
KETTLE, a par. and vil. Scotland, co. Fife. The latter 5 m. S. W. Cupar is chiefly inhabited by weavers, and has a handsome parish church, a Free and a U. Presbyterians church. See David Wylie, the painter was a native of the parish. Area, 6875 ac. Pop. 2601.
KETTLEBASTON, par. Eng. Suffolk 1603 ac. P. 189.
KETTLEBURN, par. Eng. Suffolk 1433 ac. P. 348.
KETTLESTONE, par. Eng. Norfolk, 1168 ac. P. 309.
KETTLETHORPE, par. Eng. Lincoln 3290 ac. P. 541.
KETTLEWELL, par. Eng. York (W. Riding), 6455 ac. Pop. 607.
KETTON, par. Eng. Rutland 2740 ac. Pop. 1188.
KETTIG, a tn. Rhenish Prussia, gov. and 11 m. N. E. Düsseldorf, on the Ruhr with two churches, and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, a dyework, and a tannery. P. 2693.
KETZELDORF, two places, Bohemia.—1, A vil. circle and 80 m. S. E. Chrudim, in a fat valley at the source of a stream of same name, with a church, parsonage, and school. Pop. 1621.—2, A vil. circle and 27 m. N. Küniggrätz, in the midst of hills, with a church and school. Pop. 1236.
KEUCHEN, a vil. Prussia, near Fürstentum, with gates, a hamlet, some good looking houses, and about 1500 inhabitants.—(Flendin).
KEULA or Grasse-KEULA, a market in Schwarzhurg-Sonderhausen about 18 m. S. Hollenstedt, with a parish church, a castle, and a large annual fair. Pop. 910.
KEVASHINSK, a vil. Siberia, gov. and about 220 m. N. Tobolsk, on the E. side of a large island formed by the Ob, inhabited by Ostyaks, who live by fishing and the chase.
KIVELAFR, a tn. Rhenish Prussia, gov. and 81 m. N. W. Düsseldorf, on the Niers, with a R. Catholic church, and manufactures of linen leather and hats. Pop. 1320.
KEVERMERS, a vil. Hungary. Thibier Thales co. Fehérvár 11 m. from Békony with a handsome castle, and a trade in horses and cattle. Pop. 1263.
KEVERNE, (Br.) par. Eng. Cornwall 9660 ac. P. 2469.
KEW (Br.) par. Eng. Cornwall, 7514 ac. 1 ep 1887.
KEW, a vil. and par. England co. Surrey. The village is agreeably situated 7 m. W. by S. London, a bank Thames here crossed by a handsome stone bridge, connecting it with Brentford. It is well lighted with gas, has a handsome church, a free school, and in the vicinity are numerous elegant villas. It is chiefly noted for the royal palace, the favourite residence of George III. but still more so for the magnificent grounds and botanic gardens attached to it, comprising an area of 180 ac., adorned with a Chinese pagoda 168 ft. high, and some imitations of temples and mosques, and possessing numerous conservatories, and the most complete collection of exotic plants in Europe. The palm-house measures 800 ft. by 90 ft. An observatory is attached to these gardens, which are now public property. Area of par. 920 ac. Pop. 1009.
KEWSTOKE, par. Eng. Somerset, 4006 ac. P. 560.
KEKHOLM, a tn. Russia, Finland, ep. circle of same name on two islands in the Wozna, near its mouth in Lake Ladoga, 48 m. N. E. Viborg. It is of a triangular shape, and defended by a castle contains a Greek church, a commandant's house, and an arsenal and has an unimportant trade with St. Petersburg. Its streets are clean and lined with houses one story high. Pop. 1134.—The circle is extensively covered with lakes and morasses and has very little good arable land. Area, 1947 sq. m. Pop. 27,308.
KEY, or Ki, a group of hills, Indian Arrahapah, about 50 m. W. the Arzu hills, and about 70 m. from the S. W. coast of Papua, lat. 2° 30' S. and lon. 132° E. They consist of the Great and Little Keys, Koyvatsa, Verdool, Kestombar, and a few other coral islets. They have rather an elevated surface, and are covered with rich and luxuriant vegetation. The Great and Little Keys, the largest of the group, are of very irregular shape the former consisting of a long and narrow belt stretching N. to S. and covered by mountains which attain the height of 8000 ft.; the latter, on the contrary, is comparatively low, and surrounded by extensive shoals. The inhabitants of the Great Key profess Mahomedanism; those of the Little Key are composed of a mixture of neo-emigrants from Corom, fugitives from Banda, Malaya, &c.

They are usually visited by coasting vessels from the Mediterranean Sea, and the Times report, for the purpose of purchasing produce, tortoise-shell, birds nests, &c. The trade is wholly conducted by barter. At Elia, on the N.E. coast of the Great Key a considerable number of barks are built for navigating the adjoining sea. They are misshapen, well constructed, and composed of a fine hard and durable timber—(Tumuck, corp of sail on Florida Newfoundland).

KEYINGHAM par. Eng York (S. Riding) 1890 ad. Pop. 745.

KEYMER, par. Eng Sussex 5588 ac. Pop. 1006.

KEYNE (St.) par. Eng Cornwall 944 ac. Pop. 218.

KEYNSHAM a tn. and par. Eng. co. Somerset.

The town, pleasantly situated on a slight acclivity on the Avon, 4½ m. S.E. Bristol, consists of one long, well-kempt, but somewhat irregular street. It has a spacious church, in the later English style, Baptist and Wesleyan chapels, a national and other schools and some small charities on extensive house-work, and flour and lug-wind mills. Keynsam was once famous for the abbey founded by William, Earl of Gloucester, in 1170. Area of par. 4111 ac. Pop. 2318.

KEYS or CATS, the name given to different islands and rocks in certain parts of the W. Indies, including—1 The Great Key and a group Bahama. See CATOOS.—2 The Cat Keys or Cayes, a group of lake on the Great Bahama bank distinguished as the Dog, Wolf and Cat Keys lat. 25° 53' N lon. 79° 10' W.—3 Florida Keys See FLORIDA.—4 Nurse rolets along the shores of Honduras and the whole coast of Central America.

KEYS, par. Eng Bedford 2664 ac. Pop. 804.

KEYSTON par. Eng Huntingdon 2535 ac. Pop. 1193.

KLYZED or Kizem a market in Hungary Transylvanian, stahl Schenaburg, on an affluent of the Great lake, 47 m. N.W. Kronstadt. It contains a Protestant church and an old castle, situated on a height. Pop. 4900.

KEYWORTHIL par. Eng Nottingham 1030 ac. P. 567.

KIZANLIL, or KAJANLIL, a tn. European Turkey

Rumelia, at the base of the Balkan Mountains, which separates Rousou from Bulgaria, 55 m. N.W. Adrianople. Altitude of ruins is unascertained to a great extent. Pop. 1000.

KIZDI VASARUTZ (Latin, Geoplatia) a market in Hungary Transylvanian, on Haroschitz, in a valley, 66 m. E.S.E. Schiburg. It is well built, has a Protestant church a gymnasium, and an active trade. Pop. 7750.

KHABUM two rivers, Assam Turkey.—1 Khaz at Rana-Alm, pass. Diarbekir lat. 36° 35' N lon. 40° 39' E flows S.E. to about 36° N when it bends round to the S.W., and falls into the Euphrates at Kaken, lat. 36° 12' N, lon. 40° 30' E, after a course of about 140 m. Its principal tributary is the Al Hami by which it is joined at Nubata lat. 36° 40' N. The Khazir forms throughout a large portion of the course, the boundary between the pashas of Diarbekir and Bagdad.—2 Has its sources in the Niphates Mountains—partly in pass. Van, and partly in that of Diarbekir, about lat. 36° 25' N flows generally S.W., passes through the Koordistan Mountains and joins the Tigris, about lat. 36° 55' N.

KHAFALOO, a tn. Balto See KHAFALU.

KHAFI FUGO, a city China See KAI FUNG.

KHAI HOA, or CHU HOA, a tn. China, prov. Yunnan, lat.

23° 25' N lon. 104° 25' E, near the frontier of Tonquin.

KEAHAR, a Arabia, height, 100 m. N.E. Medina

lat. 36° 20' N lon. 40° 20' E. It was assaulted and taken by Mahomet, after a siege of 10 days.

KEALKAS, country See KALKAS.

KHALKI, or COPPER ISLAND, an isl. Sea of Marmara, 14 m. S.E. Constantinople possessing fine scenery. Many of the Franks who reside in Constantinople have their country residences on this and the neighbouring islands.

KHAIKIL, or CHALCO, See KENOPORT.

KHAMIL, or HANG a city Chinese Turkistan, lat. 43° 15'

N lon. 95° 30' E on the S.W. edge of the Desert of Gobi.

It has an extensive trade with China Proper on the S. by various routes through the desert, and by Kailan, on the S. being a central point between these two countries.

KHANA-A-BAD a tn. Central Asia, Khelat, and 12 m.

S.E. Khondos, a bank Ak-Bural, here crossed by a stone bridge; lat. 36° 20' N lon. 69° 38' E. It contains 600 mud-built houses, an ill-constructed fort, two colleges, and the governor's residence.

KHANDLISH a prov. Hindoostan. See CAMBER.

KHARDUTCHIA a prov. Asiatic Russia, which descends from the W. side of the瀚漠山 Mountains, to gov. Ok hatsk, flows S.W., and joins r. bank Aldan, after a course of above 100 m.

KHANIA a tn. Croatia. See CANNA.

KHANOR, or KIRNA, an anc. and poor in Turkey in Asia, pass. and 55 m. S.S.W. Erzerum, at the bottom of a deep ravine with precipitous sides of rock, 5686 ft. above the sea, and consisting of about 180 houses, overlooked by an antiquated castle, a well built mosque, and a bazaar.

KHANPOOR, or KHANPOOR, a commercial tn. N.W.

Hindostan, principally and 70 m. S.W. Balaupoor near the Indus with which it is connected by a navigable canal lat. 35° 50' N lon. 70° 40' E. Excepting a few brick buildings two stories high, all the houses are of clay and the streets narrow, unpaved, and very dirty. It has a good roofed bazaar and a lofty and beautiful mosque. The district around is populous, irrigated by a canal 15 yards wide, and though rather of a light quality, produces good crops—grain, cotton indigo, sugar-cane, melons &c. Pop. (Thomson), 50 000

(Von Grolman) 8000.

KHAPALU a vil. of Juntsu or Little Tibet, on a considerable stream at its junction with I bank Khyak; lat. 32°

8' N, lon. 78° 20' E about 98 m. N.E. Seringar or Cash mere. It stands on a thick bed of alluvium of great extent and sloping steeply from a triangular recess in the mountain behind it, and has a fort perched at a great height on a remarkable projecting scarp rock. The ground around, for not less than 2 m. is cultivated, and abounds with fruit trees. The height of the bed of the Shyarak at Khapal, above sea-level is roughly estimated at 8000 ft. In the beginning of November the shade maximum of temperature is seldom higher than 50°, but during night the thermometer falls more than 14° below the freezing-point. A little below Khapal, the sand of the Indus is washed for gold, but apparently yields little.—

(Thomson's Travels in the Western Himalaya).

KHARAMOUKOTAN one of the Karles. See CHA

KARAKOTAN.

KHARAN, a tn. Baluchistan, prov. Sarwar, cap. dist.

of its own name, at the foot of the Baluchistan Mountains, about 110 m. S.W. Kelat lat. 29° 11' N lon. 64° 30' E. It is of considerable size, and fortified. The frontier who resides in it, can muster about 600 soldiers.—The frontier cases small quantities of wheat and barley, but on a generally arid and barren soil. It exports a sweet gum called Shakar gum, which exudes from a species of tamarack and is liquefied in the ordinary temperature of the atmosphere. In Kharan it is used as a condiment, and as Kelat is a luxury being dissolved in water and drunk as sherbet. The camel of Kharan are much celebrated.

KHARAK KAHAK, or CHABER, an isl. Persian Gulf,

25 m. N.W. Bushure, lat. 29° 19' N lon. 60° 30' E. 18 m.

in current and consisting chiefly of coral rocks. The sea, being more level than the rest, admits of being cultivated, and produces fine grapes, figs, dates, &c. The Dutch formed an establishment upon it in 1748 but were driven from it by the Arabs, in 1765. It afterwards passed into the hands of the Persians and in 1839 was taken possession of by the British, to whom it is of considerable importance, as communicating the navigation of the Persian Gulf. The inhabitants, chiefly Arabs, are subject to ophthalmia. Pop. about 1000.

KHARGEH (El.) a tn. Upper Egypt, N. part of the great Oasis, which sometimes takes its name and of which it is the principal place lat. 26° 39' N lon. 30° 38' E. It is a halting-place for the caravan from Egypt to Darfur and Benazir, and, although burning hot in summer, there is an ample supply of sweet water dates and rice, to be had.

Throughout the oasis are numerous architectural and sculptural remains the most important of which is the great temple of Khargeh nearly 5 m. from the town, about 148 ft. long, by 63 ft. broad and 50 ft. high. Pop. 3000.—The Oasis yields wheat, rice, liquorice, saffron, dates, and various other fruits. Pop. 4590.

KHARJIAH a tn., f. Arabia two days journey inland from Bas Makdash, which is in lat. 14° N lon. 48° 58' E.

situated between the first and second range of the Wahel Mountains. It is in a fertile country, abounding in date-groves, and excellent pasture-land, affording food for numerous herds of cattle, which enables the inhabitants to ship large quantities of flesh. Pop. about 8000

KHARKOV, CHARKOV, or KHOROSOV, UKRAINE, a gov. Russia, lat. 49° 15' to 51° 15' N; lon. 34° 30' to 38° 30' E. Bounded N by Kovel, W and S by Poltava, S. Khatinorod, E. Yvonec, area, about 17,450 sq. m. The country is for the most part open, the woodland covering only a few spots of dry partly of a strong and loamy, partly of a light and sandy nature, but usually fertile. It is divided into two basins, the larger occupied by the Donets, and the Oskol, a considerable stream which joins it from the N the less by tributaries of the Dnieper. The climate is very mild, though the winter is rather severe than is usual in the same latitude, in consequence of there being no shelter from the N wind. The rivers freeze about the beginning of December and break up in March. Summer is often very hot. Agriculture is carried on to a considerable extent and, with the rearing of bees, cattle, and horses, forms the chief employment of the inhabitants. Principal towns, Kharkov (capital), Akhterka, Bogodukhovo &c. Pop. (1850) 1,497,000

KHARKOV or CHARKOV is a Russia, cap. above gov., 400 m. S.E.W. Moscow lat. 50° N; lon. 36° 35' E. at the confluence of the Kharkov and Lopan. It is not well built, the streets being narrow, crooked, and without pavement, and the houses mostly of wood which, however from being whitewashed, have a gay clean appearance. It contains a cathedral, and many other churches. Two convents, a university with a library of 21,000 vols. a museum, and botanical garden. The inhabitants carry on a considerable trade in soap, candles, and leather. Pop. (1840), 29,955

KHARKOVA a river Russia which rises in the S. of gov. Kourm, enters gov. Kharkov flows S.E.W. receives the Lopan, and, after a course of about 50 m. joins the bank of the Kharkov. It is a large and important place, and becomes conspicuous at a distance by its numerous glittering temples and towers. It is surrounded by a wall, and entered by a massive gateway. The streets, though narrow, are broader than those of Herson, tolerably paved, and so clean as to contrast favourably with most Oriental towns and the houses are well constructed, generally with angular projecting balconies, and much wood-carving, open fronts used as shops, and a second story for residence. The most striking part of the town is the great square, containing the Darbar or royal palace and several Chifas or pagodas. The former edifice is of vast extent, but very irregular in shape, and of little architectural merit. The latter, composed entirely of wood, have three or four roofs, supported by grotesque representations of deities and other figures, and presenting a confused mass of green, gold leaf, and vermilion. They are approached by flights of steps, at the bottom of which are usually a couple of lions well carved in gray sandstone. From the bustling activity of the streets and the number of purchasers in the shops a considerable business seems to be carried on. The regular inhabitants are Novgorod many of whom live in high and gloomy though not elegant mansions the Parastyas, by whom the town is much frequented occupy straggling villages, the houses of which are only earthen walls usually painted white and red, and not deficient in neatness. Pop. sometimes estimated as high as 50,000 but probably not much above 30,000.—Ritter's Reisekunde, Oliphant's Journey to Kharkov

KHARTOUM or KAROUM, a modern but flourishing town, on the Nile, and with in it of its junction with the Nile at Abad, the two great branches of the Nile, on a bare and sterile-looking plain, lat. 15° 40' N, lon. 32° 45' E. Khartoum, the largest town in E. Sudan and capital of Senaar, has sprung up into a town since about 1830, when it was made the residence of the governor of Sudan. It is a scattered place, with irregular streets full of deep runs. Most of the houses are constructed of millet-stalks, and resemble small wheat-stalks or bee-hives a few are built of mud and in numerous instances small groups of them belonging to one proprietor, are surrounded with a mud wall, or a hedge. It has a mosque, built of burned bricks; a military hospital, and a bazaar with coffee-houses attached. Being favourably situated at the junction of two large rivers, and on the highway from Abyssinia, Senaar and Kordofan to Egypt, Khartoum possesses a considerable commerce. The caravans from Kordofan and Senaar bring negro slaves, gold ivory gums, medicinal plants, ostrich feathers, giraffe and leopard skins, &c. while those from Abyssinia fetch Abyssinian and Galla slaves, and large quantities of excellent coffee. From Khartoum caravans proceed to Dongola, Egypt, and to Senaar, in the Red Sea. Many Egyptian products and European goods are taken in return these being in Khartoum a most enormous price. The goods adapted for the market of Khartoum are ironed cloth, calico, chinams, pistol balls, saddles, and saddle cloth, bridle, rice, tea, sugar, soap, sweetmeats, shoes, razors, crockery, hardware, lanterns, &c. Most of the sailing is conducted by means of crews, who act the part of stevedores, each article being disposed of to the highest bidder. The climate is very unhealthy. The inhabitants, chiefly intolerant Mahometans, consist of native Bahrers, Dongolans, Fungis and Arabs. Of strength, the negroes are the most numerous, and are here to be met with from the farthest parts of Africa. The caravans, whose waters, are fertile. Pop. 39,000.—(Ritter's Reise in Sudan) lon. 65° 20' E. Good water is plentiful, fish are abundant, and cattle, &c. may be obtained. The shores are fertile, yielding wheat, barley, onions, dates, &c. There is a large strongly-built fort in the bay.

KHARAB, or KARAB (Bairah), a bay Arabia, prov. Oman, at the entrance to the Persian Gulf; lat. 26° 15' N,

KHABH or KHABH, a riv. Afghanistan, 1 bank river of same name, lat. 31° 30' N, lon. 63° 40' E. about 180 m. W. W. Kandahar. Pop. about 3000.—The river rises in a range of lofty mountains about 70 m. S.E. Herat; lat. 34° 10' N, lon. 63° 27' E. whence it flows nearly due S. to the Helmand at Koonistan, lat. 31° 30' N, lon. 63° 20' E. total course, about 195 m. It is subject to great floods, which detain caravans for weeks together. The country through which it flows is rugged barren, and desolate.

KHATANGA, a river, Asiatic Russia, which issues from a lake in gov. Yenisek near lat. 65° N, and lon. 56° E, flows first E, then N.E. and falls into a gulf of same name in the Arctic Ocean after a course of nearly 700 m. Its chief affluents are, on the r. the Mungla and Popaga, and on the l. the Kala.

KHAIMANDOO, CATMANDOO, or KATHMANU a tn. N. Hindoostan, cap. Nepal, 1 bank Bogmati, on a plateau between the sources of the Gandruk and Gogra, 4784 ft. above the plain of Bengal 160 m. N. by W. Patna lat. 27° 42' N, lon. 85° E. It is a large and important place, and becomes conspicuous at a distance by its numerous glittering temples and towers. It is surrounded by a wall, and entered by a massive gateway. The streets, though narrow, are broader than those of Herson, tolerably paved, and so clean as to contrast favourably with most Oriental towns and the houses are well constructed, generally with angular projecting balconies, and much wood-carving, open fronts used as shops, and a second story for residence. The most striking part of the town is the great square, containing the Darbar or royal palace and several Chifas or pagodas. The former edifice is of vast extent, but very irregular in shape, and of little architectural merit. The latter, composed entirely of wood, have three or four roofs, supported by grotesque representations of deities and other figures, and presenting a confused mass of green, gold leaf, and vermilion. They are approached by flights of steps, at the bottom of which are usually a couple of lions well carved in gray sandstone. From the bustling activity of the streets and the number of purchasers in the shops a considerable business seems to be carried on. The regular inhabitants are Novgorod many of whom live in high and gloomy though not elegant mansions the Parastyas, by whom the town is much frequented occupy straggling villages, the houses of which are only earthen walls usually painted white and red, and not deficient in neatness. Pop. sometimes estimated as high as 50,000 but probably not much above 30,000.—Ritter's Reisekunde, Oliphant's Journey to Kharkov

KHAVA a river Russia, which rises on the S. frontier of gov. Tsimbri enters gov. Verchaj flows S.W., and joins the bank Uman, after a course of nearly 45 m. about 20 m. S.E. Verchaj

KHAWAK, the most E. and most accessible of the explored passes over the Hindoo Koorh, 13,200 ft. high lat. 30° 42' N, lon. 89° 50' E. 10½ m. E. by S. from the top of the pass is the fort of Khawak, 9800 ft. above the sea, lat. 30° 37' 30" N

KHELIDONIA a cape, Asiatic Turkey, S. coast, prov. Anatolia, forming the W. point of the Gulf of Adia, lat. 36° 10' N, lon. 29° 50' E. lat. 30° 15' E. (p.) Off the cape are a cluster of small islands, five in number, two of which, Kheledonia and Grambona, are high, and contain some craters, within which small vessels may be concealed, the other three are barren rocks.

KHEMLASKA, a tn. Hindoostan pres. Bengal, prov. Malwa, 240 m. S.W. Allahabad. It is a place of considerable extent, surrounded by walls and defended by a fort.

KHERSON or CHARKOV a maritime gov. Russia, bounded N. by Poltava and Kory N.W. Poltava, W. by the Black Sea, S. by the Black Sea, and E. by the Black Sea, lat. 46° 10' to 48° N. lon. 29° 20' to 34° 10' E.; greatest length N. to W. 240 m.; greatest breadth, N. to S., about 160 m., area, 19,596 sq. m. With the exception of that part of the government which borders on Podolia, and consists of the last ramifications of the Carpathians, and a tract of hilly land on the banks of the Dnieper, the whole surface is one unbroken steppe, destitute of trees, but covered with long grass. The soil consists generally of a mixture of loam and sand, not unfavourable to vegetation. The fertility increases inward from the sea, but ceases on approaching the hills. There is some good ground on both sides of the Bag, but between that river and the Dnieper, and along the shores of the Black Sea, a dry barren sand prevails. In many parts the soil is strongly impregnated with saltpetre. The chief rivers of the government are, the Dnieper, which waters both its N and its S frontiers; the Dniester, which separates it from Bessarabia and the Bag, which traverses it a little to the W of its centre. Its chief lakes are the Beloon, Jaskola, and Bayal. The climate is diversified, and subject to great fluctuations. In winter the rivers are frozen for a short time, and in summer the heat rises to 53° F. Even this heat is often followed by cold nights, and by keen blasts from the N., which injure vegetation. Still both the vine and the mulberry thrive. Among the hills of the N good timber grows, and is extensively used by the navy of the Black Sea. Agriculture is to a defective state, but considerable attention is paid to gardening, and cherries, melons, and all kinds of vegetables, are plentifully raised. Pasture being both good and extensive, the rearing of cattle may be regarded as the staple employment. The easy communication by the Black Sea enables Kherson to carry on a good transit trade, particularly by its port of Odessa, but its own exports are only wool, tobacco, tallow butter, cheese, caviar and cattle. Principal towns, Kherson (the capital) and Odessa. The inhabitants are chiefly of Russian descent, including Cosacks, but the number of Germans has been estimated at 25,000 and there is a considerable mixture of other races, as Moldavians, Wallachians, Tartars, Armenians, Greeks, Jews, &c. Pop. (1853) 559,000.

KHERSON, or CHERSON, a Russian, cap. above gov., on bank Dnieper about 15 m above its estuary lat. (Cathedral) 46° 37' 48" N. lon. 33° 38' E. (N.) It is a place of great extent, and regularly built, but is in a very dilapidated state, and has lost almost all its former importance in consequence of the rise of Odessa. It is divided into four parts—the citadel, the admiralty, the Greek, and the military suburbs. In the first are the different government offices, and the residences of the governor and other officials, the courts of justice, the cathedral, the arsenal, and barracks. In the second are extensive docks, building yards, and store houses, which have almost ceased to be used. The Greek suburb is inhabited chiefly by citizens, and contains three churches—a Greek, a R. Catholic, and a Russian, and an extensive market-place. The military suburb has only three streets, one church, and a number of mean houses, occupied chiefly by mechanics and sailors. The port, owing to neglect, has become difficult of access, and its trade, with exception of that in timber which is still extensive, is chiefly transit to Odessa. The chief public works are establishments for the washing and cleaning of wool. One of them employs 500 persons. Howard, the philanthropist, died of fever here (Jan 30 1793). Over his grave, about 3 m N of the town, is an obelisk erected by the Emperor Alexander. Kherson was founded in 1778 by Prince Potemkin. Pop (1846) 30,000.

KHISTERNIA, a Russian, gov. and 70 m N.E. Kherson, on the Inguleta, in the midst of a steppe. It has some general trade, but the inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture. Pop. 1300.

KHILON, a river, Asiatic Russia, which rises in the W side of the mountains of Dauria, gov. Ikrutsk, flows first W & W, then N.W., and, after a course of about 430 m, joins the bank Solong, about 30 m below Balmghinsk.

KHIN YAN, or KIN YAN, a Chinese, prov. Kansoo, cap. of same name, on the Ma-tso-ho, 220 m E Lan chow-fu, lat. 36° 5' N; lon. 107° 28' E. It has strong fortifications, and an active trade in silk, obtained from neighbouring mountains.

KHIN YUAN, or KIN YUAN, a Chinese, prov. Quinghai, lat. 34° 25' N, lon. 108° 40' E, surrounded by steep mountains, which produce a great variety of medicinal plants.

KHINI, a Russian, Asiatic Turkey, and 43 m N.E. Dnieper, 2923 ft above the sea. The inhabitants are all engaged in spinning and weaving cotton-yarn and coarse cotton cloths, producing annually 30,000 pieces of cloth, which are chiefly sold among the neighbouring villages. The Armenian inhabitants deal to a small extent in fruit, grown in their gardens and vineyards. In the town is an abundant spring of water, the source of a river called the Ashur Khini contains 300 Malmeters and 150 Armenian families.

KHION, an Isl. Asiatic Turkey. See SKIO.

KHIYA, CHIVA, or KIIVA (and, Chorona), a khansate of W Asia, Independent Tartary. In its largest extent, or including all the territories tributary to the khan, it has nearly between lat. 37° and 45° N, lon. 50° and 63° E, stretching N to the N slope of the plateau of Ust-Urt and the river Beldara; E. to the sandy desert of Kizil-kum, and the khansate of Bokhara; S. to the districts of Merw and Baskak; S.W. to the boundaries of the Elkhara, extending W from Merw and back to the Little Balkan; and W to the R. shores of the Caspian Sea. But the extensive tract lying within these limits is, for the most part, of deserts thinly inhabited, or altogether uninhabitable, and very little known, and hence the name Khansate of Khiva, properly so called is usually confined to a much more limited territory, forming what has been called the cultivated case of Khiva, situated about lat. 37° to 43° 30' N, lon. 57 to 63° E; bounded N by the R. shores of the Sea of Aral, E by the desert of Kizil-kum and the mountain chain of Sebeck-dschel. E. and S.W. by the Turanian desert and S.W. by the plateau of Ust-Urt. The whole area of this oasis is estimated at 10,780 sq. m. but not more than one-third of it can be considered under cultivation. Almost the whole of the surface is composed of a low alluvial tract, terminated on the E. by the Sebeck-dschel and traversed through all its length, from S.E. to N.W. by the Amoo. The mountains attain their greatest height to the E of the town of Kiley and are composed of crystalline rocks, partly greenstone, intersected by veins of white quartz. At their base, secondary strata of sandstone appear. Further S. opposite to the town of Gurkan, limestone and marble are found, and mines of copper were at one time actually worked. Gold, also, is said to exist and when the resemblance of many parts of the Sebeck-dschel in geological structure, to that of the Ural Mountains, is considered its existence, though not yet ascertained, may be esteemed very probable. Towards the N where the ranges subside very rapidly it is composed of low hills covered with loam and sand. The most conspicuous of these hills is that of Teshitkyl, to the N of the town of Kiley. Sebeck-dschel, Amoo (see Gura), which receives the drainage of the khansate, except a small portion carried directly to the Sea of Aral, is closely hemmed in, on its E. or N. bank by the Sebeck-dschel, but, on the W or N bank is bordered by a low marshy plain, which is often inundated, and across which a great number of canals have been formed, partly for carrying off the superfluous water and partly for irrigation. In the N., before terminating its course in the Sea of Aral, the river sends off several branches, the largest of which, the Landan, the Kukkuk, and the Kara-bul, enclose, between the main stream and the Sea of Aral, extensive swampy tracts, which have the form of islands, but are generally so much under water as to have both the appearance and the name of lakes. To the S. are similar lakes of more limited extent, among others, the Pores the Ak-kei, and the Berek-kul.

The climate is remarkable for the brightness of its sky which, with exception of January and December, when rain prevails, is generally without a cloud. The greatest cold is in December when the Amoo and the Sea of Aral are usually covered with a thin coating of ice. Night frosts are frequent in March, and often extend into April, but towards the end of the latter month vegetation becomes very rapid, and the heat increases so much as to become almost insupportable in June and July. In August the heat gradually declines, and in October night frosts begin again to occur. The W wind is frequent in spring, but, at other times, the E. wind is by far the most prevalent, and, in general, in summer, forms a tolerably strong breeze. The soil, consisting of a rich alluvial loam, is of the greatest natural fertility, but, owing to the great dryness of the atmosphere, soon becomes so stiff and hard that it cannot be penetrated by any ordinary implement. For this the obvious remedy is irrigation; and, accordingly, from the earliest period, a system of canals, resembling that of Egypt has been practised. Large teams from the river, with numerous labour branches, intersect every part of the surface, supplying water where it is wanted, or removing it where it is in excess, and securing the most luxuriant crops of wheat, maize, rice, barley, and legumes. Cotton and madder are also generally cultivated. Hemp is confined to particular tracts, chiefly in the N. The vine thrives well, but requires to be defended against the winter cold by a covering of straw and earth; all the ordinary fruits, moulding apples, plums, cherries, apricots, figs, and pomgranates, are common. Melons are so abundant as to constitute the principal summer food of the poorer classes. The ground, being generally arable, is seldom occupied as pasture, and very little attention is paid to the rearing of cattle.

Manufactures are very unimportant. The only articles of any consequence are earthenware and bricks. A glazed description of the latter, remarkable for beauty of colour and fine lines, are in great demand for covering the interior of mosques, some cotton and mixed goods are woven but they are said to be among the worst which come from the East. Trade is far less extensive than might be expected, from the favourable position of the khana. It is almost confined to the immediate wants of its inhabitants, and those of the surrounding nomads, and is carried on chiefly with Russia. The principal exports are raw and spun cotton, in return for which are received various articles of European manufacture, as metals and ironware, woollen, cotton and silk goods &c. From Bokhara also are obtained cotton and silk goods, green tea, raw tobacco, Chinese porcelain turquoise, and ornamentals. These are sometimes paid for in money, but more frequently in Russian ware. The government of Khiva is, in the strongest sense of the word, an unimportant despotism. The greater part of the inhabitants are Persians or Tadjiks, and Uzbek, in nearly equal numbers. After these are Persians, of whom two-thirds are slaves. Karakalpak, Janschids, and Turcomans. The number of Kirghiz families is only about 600. The total number of families is about 93,600 which at the average of four each, makes the pop. 374,400. — (Gens. Beckendorff des Chantiers, Chantier, Banner et Relevé des Chantiers.)

KHIVA, or KHIVA, a town in independent Tartary on the Volga, on an alluvial flat at the junction of the Volga and the Khiva Canal 50 m. W 1 bank Amoo lat. 41° 00' N, lon. 60° 30' E. It is enclosed by a dry ditch, and an earthen wall about 10 ft. in height and thickness, and is entered by 12 gates the masonry of which is built of brick. The whole space thus enclosed forms an irregular street of about 4 m. A considerable part of it is occupied by alleys, gardens and cultivated fields and within it, near its centre, is a rectangular space 540 yards long, by 400 yards broad, enclosed by another earthen wall about 25 ft. high, by 80 ft. thick, entered by three gates, and containing the personal government and other buildings. The streets, besides being narrow have often deep ruts and puddles in them, and are so extremely dirty that the air, in many places, becomes tainted, and almost pestilential and the houses have a very gloomy and lifeless appearance, consisting for the most part, of earthen built, presenting rows of blind walls, without either windows or chimneys, and with no opening except the door. Among the principal buildings are two palaces of the Khan, differing little from the other houses, except in being surrounded by higher walls and having a cedar door. 17 mosques, generally small and ugly, only two of them being of brick, and surrounded by cylindrical minarets, one 60 and the other 70 ft. high. 22 schools or Madrasas, of which nine are of brick several cales, belonging to the principal officers of the state a warehouse-house, caravanserai, and bazaar. The goods exposed in the last consist chiefly of English, Russian, and mixed cotton cloths, cotton head-covers, striped and bright coloured mixed silk shawls, silk handkerchiefs, Russian cloth, of a very inferior description; China tea-cups, and other kinds of pottery, sugar in small parcels of from 4 to 6 lbs. imported from Russia tea, needles, silk, and a few other minor articles. At the markets held twice a week, the chief articles for sale are corn, fruit, sheep, cattle, fish, plums, horse harness, boots, nails, &c. and provisions, both raw and cooked. The inhabitants are mostly Persians or Tadjiks holding a considerable number of Persian slaves. The Jews number about eight families, who are chiefly employed in dyeing. Pop. about 5000.

KHO-DAMHAN, or KHO-DAMHAN, an elevated valley Afghanistan, prov. Badk. lat. 30° 30' N, lon. 60° 30' E. It is 15 m. broad, other authorities say 80 m. by 7 m., in general over 7000 ft. above the sea. At its upper extremity rise the snowy peaks of the Hindu Kush, while those of Paghman overlook it on the W. Remarkable for the purity of its air the luxuriance of its groves and orchards, and the picturesque of its scenery, the Kho-Damhan is a favourite country residence of the wealthy inhabitants of Cabool and as, in consequence, almost as thickly studded with residences as with gardens.

KHODABAD a ruined town, 25 m. N Hyderabad, 1 bank Indus lat. 25° 45' N lon. 68° 30' E. covering 3 sq. m. of ground with its remains. A few tombs are the only buildings in even tolerable preservation, one of these, the mausoleum of Feth Ali, is small, yet neat. Khodabad was a favourite residence of the Talpurs, chiefs of Sindh, and here many of them have been interred. In the beginning of the present century it rivalled Hyderabad in size and population.

KHODORKOW a town, Russia, gov. and 80 m. S.S.W. Kiew, 1 bank Irpen, with a trade in cattle and some general trade, chiefly in the hands of the Jews, who form a large proportion of the inhabitants. Pop. 2800.

KHOL, a town, Persia, prov. Azerbaijan in a lovely plain, near the Kofura, over which there is a bridge of seven arches lat. 38° 37' N lon. 48° 16' E. It is large and well fortified houses generally of one story, not higher than the town walls. The streets are generally narrow excepting those in the centre of the town which are wide and regular with trees on each side. Among the buildings may be noticed the Khan's palace, a handsome caravanserai several mosques, which are without minarets, and have domes scarcely higher than the houses, and numerous baths. The trade carried on by means of the caravans from Tauris to Erzerum, is considerable. In the neighbourhood, in 1514, Shah Ismael with 80,000 Persians signally defeated 800,000 Turks, headed by Selim I. Pop. about 20,000.

KHOJEND a town, independent Tartary khana of Kokan 1 bank Sar or Shon near the confluence of the Khojend, 90 m. W Kokan lat. 41° 35' N lon. 62° 42' E. It stands on elevated ground, and is surrounded by a decayed wall and ditch. Coarse cotton goods are manufactured here, and a considerable trade carried on in these and Russian merchandise.

KHOJUOBAN, an ancient city, now in ruins, khana and 25 m. W Bokhara, on the verge of the desert.

KHOKAN a khana and in Asia. See KOKAN.

KHOLM a town, Russia, gov. and 60 m. E E. E. Pakov at the confluence of the Kinel with the Lovat, which is here navigable. It contains two churches. Pop. 2000.

KHOLMOGOBY, a town, Russia, gov. and 53 m. E. E. E. Arkhangel, esp. circle of same name on an island of the Dwina, with a church, a navigation school, and a building-shed for merchant vessels. Inhabitants live chiefly by fishing and feeding cattle. Pop. 1191. — The climate is flat, and much occupied by woods and morasses, but has good pastures, and feeds great numbers of cattle.

KHONI, a town, Russia, beyond the Caucasus Imeretia, 15 m. W N W Kunda. It is the residence of the Archbishop of Imeretia, and stands in a fertile district, in which much silk, tobacco, hemp, wine, and fruit are produced. Pop. 1640.

KHONSAR, a town, Persia, prov. Irak Ajlun, 80 m. N W Isfahan, with manufactures of cotton, cloth, and excellent culier. The women of Khonsar are famed for their beauty. Pop. 18,000.

KHOCHAN a town, Persia, Khorasan, 90 m. N N W Meshed lat. 37° 7' N lon. 56° 10' E. The fort is a place of great strength built of mud.

KHOOLOOM, or KRUM, a town, Bokhara, 40 m. W Balkh lat. 35° 38' N lon. 68° E., on the road to Khoondos and Cabool. It is pleasantly situate, being surrounded by numerous beautiful gardens, filled with fruit trees. It contains several caravanserais. Pop. about 10,000.

KHOONDÖZ, a khana, independent Tartary, lat. 35° to 38° N, and lon. 65° to 72° E., having Afghanistan S. Bokhara W and the Bolor Mountains E. The greater part of the surface is mountainous, but there are many fertile tracts, which yield abundant crops of grain, principally wheat and barley while the meadowy grounds, which are very extensive, produce good crops of rice. Fruit, also, is plentiful, as are also, generally, all the necessities of life. But the climate is very insalubrious, being exceedingly hot in summer and cold in winter, snow lying for three months in that season.

In humulidity, however it is no doubt owing, in greatest measure, to its marshes which are in many parts so unstable, that the roads have to be constructed on piles of wood. A traffick in slaves is carried on here also an active trade with Turkani and Bokhara, from which European goods are obtained in return.

KHONDÖÖZ, a m. Independent Tartary cap. above Khamsa, in a valley back of Beschen, not far from the Gorge, lat. 36° 45' N. lon. 89° 31' E. It is a wretched place, consisting of 500 or 600 mud hovels. Gardens and corn-fields alternate in its suburbs, and extend even into the town. Overlooking the E. end of the latter is the fortress a mound of an oblong figure and considerable extent, strengthened by a mud wall and a dry ditch. The wall is in a dilapidated state on all sides but the E., on which is the principal entrance, by the basar gate. On the N. E. of the fortress is the citadel, the winter residence of the Khan. It is an irregular structure of baked-brick, surrounded by a moat, with loopholes for muskets. Pop. about 1500.

KHOP'ER a large river Russia, a tributary of the Don it runs in the marshes in the N. of gov Saratov, flows S.W. of Belator into gov Voronezh and then S.E. to gov Don Cosacka, and joins the Don on its E. bank near Ust-Khopersk. Principal affluents, the Voronezh and Buzuluk. Total course above 300 m. the last 100 m. of which are navigable.

KHOP'ERISK, — 1 (here) a m. Russia gov. and 110 m. S.E. Voronezh. 2 bank Khoper with some boat-building for the Black Sea. Pop. 1800. — 3 (4) a vil Russia, gov Don Cosacka. 183 m. N.E. Novo-Tcherkassk. 4 bank Don.

KHORAAN an extensive prairie occupying the whole of the N. E. of Persia, bounded N. by the khamsa of Khiva, W. by gov Irak Ajema S. by Farsistan and Kerman E. by Af. ghonistan lat. 31° 10' to 36° 20' N. lon. 53° 10' to 61° 30' E. The surface is much diversified by plains and mountains, and is to a great extent unhabitable, consisting of sands and salt or arid deserts, destitute of fresh water and vegetation, except at a few fertile oases. The mountains of Elburz enter the province on the W., and stretch across the N. part throwing off various ramifications to the S. S. of this extensive range Khoraan is an elevated table-land a great proportion of which belongs to the Great Salt Desert named by the natives Kaher. This desert which covers more than 40,000 sq m. is desolate almost beyond imagination. In some parts, a few plants which love a salt and marian a alkali commence in other parts, a crackling crust of dry earth is covered with saline efflorescences. While the land is lower water often accumulates in winter and being afterwards evaporated in summer leaves a quantity of salt, deposited in ridges, on a bed of mud. In other districts, sand, lying loose on the plains, or in wavy hollows, is easily moved by the wind, and drifted into heaps in which the traveller not unfrequently finds a grave. The most fertile districts of the province are in the S. W. and N. E. In the former is the rich but limited, district of Astrabad, bounded on the N. by the Caspian Sea, and in the latter the valley of Mashed which, varying in breadth from 12 m. to 80 m. stretches almost unintercepted beyond Mashed for 50 m. and contains, in addition to Mashed, several towns and dependencies, with a great extent of cultivated land. Among the minerals the only one which has been turned to account is iron, but both lead and copper are said to exist. About 35 m. W. N. W. of Meshapoor are celebrated turquoise mines, from which from time immemorial, the chief supply of that gem has been obtained. In the more neighbourhood are salt mines, of beautiful white salt, which are extensively wrought. Where the ground admits of cultivation, all the ordinary grain and pulse crops of Europe are raised. The return in parts of the valley of Mashed, is said not unfrequently to be twenty fold. Cotton, hemp and tobacco also grow freely and the aromatic plants and drugs are so numerous as to form a considerable commerce. The manufactures consist chiefly of silk and woollen stuffs, rich carpets, umbrellas and sword blades, which are highly valued. The inhabitants consist of Tajiks, or Persians proper forming about two-thirds of the whole. Turcomans, Kurds, and other nomadic tribes, who keep large herds of cattle, and, at the same time, indulge in the most predatory habits. Pop. estimated at 2,000,000.

KHOBOL, — 1, A m. Khamsa, gov. and 65 m. W. N. W. Farsistan, cap. circle, and a bank river of same name, with a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 3735. — The climate has much the appearance of a steppe, is sparingly wooded, and not fertile. Pop. 123,000. — 2 A river Russia, which rises in gov Kharkov, about 15 m. N. W. Lebodin, flows S. W., enters gov Poltava, joins Khorel, and, turning S.E. flows r. Bank Pol, after a course of about 140 m.

KHOBRAH ADAN, a m. and fort, Persia, gov Irak Ajemi. 1 bank Koon 35 m. S. by W. Hamadan. The tower consists of about 1500 courses, but a lofty brick minaret, and a curious massive stone pillar inscribed all round with an Arabic inscription. — The tower which overlooks the town, occupies a steep rock, about 1000 yds. in circumference, and is surrounded by a double wall at the base and the summit, where the palace an elegant structure is built, is strongly defended. A magnificent reservoir has been formed within it; also a garden of some extent.

KHOSRAI SHAR a vil and valley, Persia, gov Amolijan, S.W. Tabriz. The valleys is now an insignificant place though said to have been formerly an important city. — The valley is one of the paradises of Persian poetry and is described as presenting a continuous succession of the most beautiful groves and gardens, and enjoying, at all seasons, a most delightful climate.

KHOSRAI a plateau in the N. E. of Hindooستان, 8000 ft. to the S. and E. of the Drahmapoort. lat. (W. and) about 25° 10' N. lon. 91° E. and stretching E. into Kusunpoort. It has an average height of about 4000 ft. and northern escarpment 6000 ft.

In edges, instead of sloping down gradually are very precipitous, and the valleys which intersect it have a similar character and are very deep. In some parts trap and granite appear but the prevailing rocks are sandstone and limestone, belonging partly to the carboniferous formation good coal being found at the height of 4500 ft. but in situations so inaccessible that it cannot be turned to account. The rivers are numerous, and are often seen tumbling over immense precipices. In one place there is a fall of 1500 ft. One very remarkable circumstance connected with the climate is the quantity of rain which falls. Dr J. Hooker estimates the annual quantity at no less than 500 in. During his residence 180 in fell in one month, 55 in in 24 hours, and 10 in daily during sixteen successive days. The temperature in September was from 70° to 73°. The heat and moisture cause a very luxuriant vegetation. The loftiest summits, indeed are bare, and few trees are seen except on the banks of rivers, but much of the surface is occupied by a fine grassy sward, and the flora is remarkable both for its beauty and variety. The Orchidaceae apparently form about one-tenth of the whole phanerogamous plants but are outnumbered by the grasses, of which Dr Hooker found on an afternoon's walk of 7 m. no less than fifty species, at the height of 4500 to 5000 ft. and almost all belonging to tropical genera.

KHOTEN LURER LICHT, or ELICHT a Chinese Turkestan cap. dist. of same name on an extensive plain, near a bank river of same name 200 m. S.E. Yarkand lat. 37° N. lon. 80° 55' E. It is large and populous has two gates, broad streets, and a considerable trade in the various products of the district chiefly jade copper silk and cotton stuffs, and horses which last are much esteemed. A fair is held here every week, which is sometimes attended by 20,000 persons. — The district embraces all the country S. of Oksa and Yarkand, along the N. base of the Kusunpoort mountains, for more than 300 m. E. to W. Its principal river is the Khoson, which flows through the centre of the territory and falls into the Tarim, near lat. 40° N. It is an elevated tract, nearly in the E. part, and little known. Near the town, a large district is under cultivation, producing rice, wheat, millet, cotton, hemp, flax and excellent grapes. Large quantities of silk, of the first quality are also collected. Among the domestic animals the yak is numerous, and also horses and sheep. The people are peaceable and industrious, mostly of the Buddhist faith. They are governed by two high officers and a detachment of troops.

KHOTIN or CHOTCHIN a fortified in Russia, gov Bessarabia. 7 m. S.S.W. Kamenka lat. 48° 32' N. lon. 28° 25' E.; near r. bank Dniester. Its fortifications are said to contain indications of having been constructed by the Gosses; who, by means of this fortress, and those of Bender and Akhman, long confined masters of the navigation of the Dniester Pop., exclusive of the garrison, 4000.

KHOTMYJSK a tn. Russia, gov. and 80 m. S. S. W. Komsat, l. bank Volga. It is surrounded by an old earthen rampart, and has three churches. Pop. 3000.

KHOTMYNSK, a walled tn. Russia, gov. Kharkov on the Melaitov-Kolids, an affluent of the Volga, with three churches, and some general trade. Pop. 1678.

KHOULLOUM كحولم or كحولم, a tn. Afghanistan, near border of Bokhara, l. bank river of same name, 45 m. E Balkh, lat. 36° 40' N. lon. 68° 42' E. It is surrounded by hills on three sides, and defended by two earthen houses wall built, generally of brick, trade considerable, great numbers of horses are annually sold. Pop. 10 000.

KHOUM a tn. Persia. See KOON.

KHOZDAR, a tn. Beloochistan, prov. Jhalawan, 100 m. S. E. E. Kelat lat. 27° 50' N. lon. 65° 22' E., beautifully situated on a plain of same name; bounded, E and S. E., by high hills of abrupt and singular outline. The town, which is enclosed by a mud wall has long been hastening to decay, and now contains only some 90 mud built houses, although, in the beginning of the present century, there were at least 600. Close to it is a ruinous fort. The plain of Khozdar is fertile, well watered, and highly cultivated, yielding large quantities of superior wheat, and a great variety of vegetables and fruit. The hills in the vicinity abound in rich lead ore, which is smelted by the natives to make bullets.

KHURD-KABOOL, or لړۍ كابل, a vil. Afghanistan about 15 m. S. E. Cabool 7465 ft. above sea-level in a pleasant valley, among the Kuristan mountains, where the Hothak hills terminate, and that of Tanguis-Turkic begins. Here in 1841 the British troops, retreating from Cabool to Jelalabad became completely disorganised, and were murdered without resistance by the Afghans and here in 1842 General Pollock encamped, after the decisive defeat of the Afghans at Terzon.

KHUSKUR PASHA, or كوسكوس, a tn. Asiatic Turkey near Anatolia, 53 m. W. by W. Kootay, at the summit of a beautiful mountain pass. Inhabitants engaged in rearing silk-worms. Pop. about 700.

KHUZISTAN, a prov. Persia, lying between lat. 30° and 35° N. and lon. 45° 50' and 61° 30' E. having Farsistan l. Asiatic Turkey W., the mountains of Laristan N. and the Persian Gulf S. greatest length, N. W. to S. E. about 290 m. greatest breadth N. to S. 140 m. Like all the other countries bordering the Persian Gulf the S. or coast portion of Khuzistan consists of a flat and desert. In winter a swamp in summer parched by a burning sun. Further in land extensive plains occur, some of them miserable wastes, uninhabitable in summer from want of water and in winter from the inundations caused by heavy and continuous rains. Others, again are fertile, being composed of rich alluvial deposits well suited to general cultivation. Of this description is the plain of Behbahan which, in spring, is clothed with flowers. The whole of the S. E. portion of the province is crowded with mountains, as is also its entire N. margin, amongst which many beautiful and fertile valleys occur. Wet marshes and dry, salt covered tracts, the greater part of the N. W. portions of the territory. The only inhabitants are a few wandering Arabs, of the tribe of Beni Lam. The principal rivers are the Kerkil, and the Jerrah. The Tigris and Euphrates also flow along, and indeed form first separately and afterwards conjointly, two-thirds of the W. boundary of the province, the remainder being defined by the Mandil. The chief towns are Shushahr and Distal.

KHYALINSK, a tn. Russia, gov. and about 150 m. N. E. Saratov, cap. circle of same name. l. bank Volga, with an important factory, and a considerable trade in corn with Astrakhan. Pop. 2266.—The climate, chiefly on V. side Volga, is undulating, very fertile, producing much corn for export, and rearing great numbers of cattle. Pop. 41 600.

KHYBER MOUNTAINS and پام. The Khyber or Toora Mountains occupy a portion of the N. E. corner of Afghanistan, connecting the most S. and lowest range of the Hindoo Kooh with the Sulfid Koh, the Salt Range, and the Saliman mountains. Their highest summits do not exceed 5100 ft. above sea-level, and 3500 ft. above the plains of Peshawar which they close on the W. The breadth of the range may be stated at about 30 m. The range is intersected at various points by four different passes, but the most level, and the only one practicable for cannon, is the Khyber Pass, 2375 ft. above the sea, and 2800 ft. above Peshawar. This pass is called, with reference to Hindostan, the key of Afghanistan in the N., as the Bolan Pass is for the S. Its whole length, from Kadam, 10 m. W. from Peshawar, on the E. to Duka, at the entrance to the plains of Jelalabad, on the W. is about 60 m. It has for the most part through slate rock, and along the bed of a torrent, liable to be filled with a sudden fall of rain and then so violent as to sweep away everything in its course, and enclosed on each side by precipices, rising to the height of 800 or 700 ft., in some places to 1000 or 1200 ft. The Khyber Pass was the scene of obstinate and sanguinary conflicts during the war in Afghanistan. It was forced by the British after their first occupation of Cabool. A similar attempt, made after the disastrous retreat from that city failed, with great loss; but, subsequently though obstinately defended by a large body of men it was again forced in April 1842. The E. entrance of the pass is at lat. 33° 05' N.; lon. 71° 30' E.

KHYBER DUKA or كهر دوكا.

KHYBERPOOR, or كهرپور, a tn. Seinde, about 15 m. E. from l. bank Indus, 150 m. N. Hyderabad lat. 27° 31' N. lon. 68° 46' E. the chief residence of the Amers of N. Seinde, and cap. of an extensive district of same name. It is merely a large collection of mud hovels, with a few houses of a better description scattered about, and contains a palace and some bazars, but presents little else worthy of notice, excepting a mosque crowned with a spire covered with gaudy acquired tiles of various hues. It is extremely filthy and, from this and other causes, is unhealthy. Weaving and dyeing coarse cottons are carried on to a small extent, but there are no other manufactures of any kind. Pop. estimated at 15 000.—The district bounded N. by Bahawalpore and district of Meerpore W. the Indus S. district of Hyderabad and E. the Rajpoot principality of Jeysalmer lat. 26° 50' to 28° N. lon. 68° to 70° E.; is subdivided into a number of minor districts and, before its recent subjugation by the British, was shewn in sovereignty by several princes, the chief of whom is Amer of Khyppor. The surface is generally low and is fertilised by the annual inundations of the Indus. The soil is generally rich and produces abundant crops of all the kinds of grain and pulse common in India, also sugar-cane, opium, cotton and indigo. The yield of the last two is considerable, but the quality is inferior. Among domestic animals are dromedaries and asses, which constitute the principal means of conveyance, cattle, sheep, and goats of a superior description. In the N. part of the district, immense herds of buffaloes are grazed on the banks of the Indus.

KHYRABAD or كهراباد a tn. Hindostan prov. Onda, cap. dist. of same name, in an angle formed by two affluents of the Gomty 50 m. N. W. W. Jucknow. The district, though of a light soil, which during the monsoon ascends in clouds of dust is not unfertile and produces good crops of barley, wheat, tobacco, and small pease. There are also some fields of sugar-cane, but their culture is very imperfect.

KHYRABAD, a tn. Seinde, l. bank Koom, a branch of the W. Narra; lat. 26° 55' N. lon. 67° 50' E. It has seven mosques and a handsome bazaar, well supplied with cottons. Pop. 2000 to 3000.

KHYRPOOR, a tn. Hindostan principality and 40 m. N. N. E. Bahawalpore 3 m. E. l. bank Sutlej, lat. 29° 34' N. lon. 72° 7' E. On the S. side, the streets terminate in a dreary waste of sand which is continually advancing, and threatening the town itself with annihilations large portions of the on traved ground in the vicinity having been already overwhelmed by it. The houses are of unburned brick, but a great many of them are in ruins. There still remain, however decaying mosques, with cupolas, one of which is well belleted with variegated tiles of various colours. It has a tolerable bazaar containing 400 shops, and is a small mart to which caravans resort from the desert.

See KHYR.

KIACHTA Кяхта, or Кяхта and Маймакчи, a tn. Siberia, or more properly two towns on the boundary between gov. Irkutsk and the Chinese territory of Mongolia, 170 m. S. N. Irkutsk. The one town called Kiahtha, belonging to Russia, and the other, called Maimachon, to China lat. 50° 15' N.; lon. 108° 46' E., 2220 ft. above sea-level. It stands on a small river of same name, and was founded in 1723, on the conclusion of a commercial treaty between the Russians and the Chinese. It derives its importance from being the only recognized exception for the trade between the two countries, and presents a singular remnant from the striking contrast it exhibits. In the Russian portion of the town, the houses of merchants of the better class have stairs and balconies in front, occasionally painted and embellished with architectural ornaments. Towards Maimaichen, or the Chinese portion, a narrow door opens in front of a long wooden building and leads into the inner quadrangle of a Russian warehouse. On the opposite side, a corresponding door opens upon a wooden barrack, and this barrack is the barrier of China, the door of which is closed at noon, when Chinese and Russians must betake themselves to their respective quarters. The Russian side has an angle above it, with the cypher of the reigning emperor. The Chinese side, forming the entrance to Maimaichen, is surrounded with a cone or pyramid. The effect produced in passing it is described by Erman as almost magical. The other houses of the Russian side are, all at once, succeeded by fantastic, gaudy finery. The streets consist of a bed of well-burnt clay kept nearly swept, but are so narrow that two carriages can scarcely pass each other. On either side the walls of the same clay, with perforations, forming windows of Chinese paper. These walls are the sides of houses, but are not easily seen to be so, in consequence of the flatness of the roof, and the gaudy paper lanterns and flags with inscriptions, which line the streets, and stretch across from roof to roof. There are two Buddhist temples in the town containing five colored images and numerous smaller idols. The trade carried on is very extensive. The Russians receive tea to the extent of 4,700,000 lbs annually, silk, musk, porcelain, sugar-candy, tobacco, rhubarb, and much, and in return the Chinese receive furs, skins, leather, wools and linen cloth, cattle, and sundries borne from which a profit is obtained that forms a much-needed delicacy among the colonists. The Russian sales annually approach £700,000.—(Erman's Travels in Siberia.)

XIANA a town, W. Africa, cap. of a petty state of same name, 56 m. S.E. W. Bonoua lat. 9° 35' N. lon. 5° 45' E. Straggling and ill built, composed of irregular thatched huts, and surrounded by a wall of clay. It has an extensive direct trade with Dahomey and various other neighboring states. The inhabitants have obtained the character of being the greatest thieves and robbers in all Africa, but Capt. Clapperton, who was hospitably treated by them, doubts the justice of this unfavorable representation. Pop. estimated at 30,000.

XIAN-CHANG a city China, prov. Kiangsu, on an affluent of the Kan-Kiang, 67 m. S.E. Nan-Chang lat. 27° 37' N. lon. 116° 30' E. It has manufactures of brandy and rice.

XIAN-G-HUNG, an important town, on the face of a hill, a bank Mo-nan-kong or Cambodia River near the frontier of the Chinese prov. Yunnan, about lat. 21° 55' N. lon. 100° 30' E. It is the capital of a large province, extending along both banks of the river, has no fortifications, houses, about 500 in number generally good. There are several Chinese merchants entitled in Kiang-Hung, who import, mainly for the Chinese market, gold thread carpets, birds' nests, trapping, dates, ivory &c. The chief articles of export from this place are tea and cotton, which grow on both sides of the river. The Mo-nan-kong is here about 300 ft. wide; it is so fordable, nor is it navigable to any distance downwards, its course being interrupted by falls two or three days below the town.—(For Ann. Soc. Bengal, April, 1857.)

XIAN-G-TUNG, a town, about 5 m. from a bank Man Lee an affluent of the Mo-nan-kong, lat. 21° 47' N. lon. about 90° 39' E. It is built on some low undulating hills, surrounded by high mountains; is poor, thinly peopled, and surrounded by a mud wall so badly built, that it is constantly falling down. The dry ditch round the town is, at some places, 70 ft. deep, being dug from the base of the wall on the top of the hill, to the level of the swamp below. It is one of the principal towns in Laos, capital of a petty state of the same name and exercises rule over several neighboring petty states.—(For Ann. Soc. Bengal, April, 1857.)

XIAN-QUEE, an island prov. China, bounded, N. by Hsueh, E. by Fokien, S. by Quangtung, and W. by Hsueh, lat. 24° 25' to 25° 50' N. lon. 115° 40' to 116° 20' E.; area, 72,178 sq. m. It is hilly and rugged, composed chiefly of the limestone of the Kan-kang, by which river and its affluents, most of which rise in the province, it is both well drained and watered. In form Kiangque is oblong, sloping S. to N. towards the Poyang Lake, into which the Kan-kang flows by numerous mouths. The country round the lake is swampy. The soil, generally, is productive, and large quantities of rice, wheat, silk, cotton, indigo, tea, and sugar are grown and exported. It shares, in some degree, the manufactures of the neighboring provinces, especially in nankeen cloth, great quantities of which are woven and it greatly exceeds them all in the quality and amount of its porcelain. The mountains in the S. and S.E. yield camphor, varnish, oak, barian, fir and other trees. Nan-shang-fu, the provincial capital has walls 6 m. in circumference, and is accessible by water from all sides. The province is divided into 18 departments. Pop. 30,426,993.

XIANG-SOO a maritime prov. China, lying along the sea-coast N.W. to S.E. bounded, N. by Shantung W. by Nghanool, and S. by Chekiang, lat. 30° 40' to 34° 43' N. lon. 114° 15' to 124° 40' E. Area about 45,000 sq. m.; cap. Nanking. There are no hills of any consequence in the province, and the lower portion of it is covered with irreclaimable swamps. It is intersected by the Yang-tze-kiang, the Hoangho, and the Imperial canal, and has numerous smaller streams, and a considerable number of lakes of which Hung-tai, about 300 m. in circumference is the largest. Other large lakes are Karyu and Panying both S. of Hung-tai, and on either side of the Imperial canal. Another large lake is Tai-hu, partly in this, and partly in the adjoining province of Chekiang, its shores are picturesque and romantic, and it contains numerous islets resorted to by fishermen who derive their subsistence from the produce of its waters. This province is of great fertility and is esteemed one of the most productive portions of China. The sea-coast between the rivers, being low is rendered arable by constructing dykes to prevent the overflow of the ocean. The staple productions are grain, cotton, tea, silk, and rice, of which it exports more than any other province in China, and various kinds of manufactures, which are here carried to great perfection. The inhabitants of Kiangsoo are reported to be remarkably intelligent and, although the province has long ceased to be the seat of a court, its cities still present a gay appearance and are adorned with better structures, than any others in the empire. Pop. 57,843,501.

XIATKITA, a town, in Siberia. See XIANGTA.
XIBAR, a vil., W. Tibet, 13,500 ft. above the sea on the Fid. in a narrow valley, surrounded on all sides by lofty mountains lat. 33° 25' N. and lon. 78° E. It occupies the summit of a limestone rock, and has a pleasing appearance, all the houses being built of stone and not of mud or unburned brick, commonly used in other parts of the valley. The prevailing cold around the village and in its vicinity is barely XIRWORTH BRADCHAMP par Eng. Leicester 3220 sq. Pop. 1752.

XICHINEV or XICHENAV a town, Kiangsu cap. gov. Hsueh, lat. 47° 5' N. lon. 39° 50' E. on the Bank, a tributary of the Demeter. Formerly only a small miserable town, it is now adorned with numerous handsome buildings, both public and private. It has 14 churches, a gymnasium, and 10 other schools a library and extensive manufactures of woollen cloth, &c. Pop. (1849) 44,585.

XIKIKO-ERRI, or XIKIKO, a town, in an Achaetan country, lat. 6° 5' N. lon. 1° 20' W. It has an agreeable appearance, houses badly planned, but well built, and, being painted white, neat and clean looking. The people are very hospitable. There is a good deal of ironstone in the neighborhood. Pop. 12,000.

KIDDERMINSTER, a port town and market, in England, co. and 18 m. N. Worcester, 1 bank Stour, about 3 m. above its confluence with the Severn. It is principally composed of small humble dwellings constructed with care, and arranged to regularity; is well lighted with gas, and has an ample supply of good water. It has a townhall, and a prison, three churches, one ancient, the other two handsome modern edifices; and numerous diamond places of worship, a Unitarian, and a R. Catholic chapel, a free grammar and other schools, almshouses, &c. Kidderminster is famed for the manufacture of Brussels carpets and tapestry which forms the staple trade of the place. Various other woollen fabrics, however, are also made and in the town and neighbourhood are several extensive wrought spinning-mills, and dye-works. Damask silk goods, for upholsterers, are also made and tanning, currying and brewing are carried on. It lies on the Staffordshire and Worcester canal, and on the Oxford, Worcester, and Wolverhampton railway. Kiddington returns one member to the House of Commons. Registered electors (1851), 471. Pop (1851) 18,462.

KIDDINGTON, par Eng Oxford, 2450 ac. Pop. 808.

KIDIRA TATA, a vil W Africa, Bondon, 1 bank Palam lat 14 27' N lon. 13° 16' W. It is almost totally occupied by refugees Kasoukés, and consists of houses which are partly isolated from one another, in the midst of cultivated fields, and partly arranged in a circle, more or less regular, the centre of which is indicated by a large tree. These houses, in general are constructed with sods and mud, and are kept very clean.

Kidira-Tata is the supposed site of the old French fort of St Pierre.

KIDIRA TOUNATON, a vil W Africa, Bondon, 1 bank Palam lat 14° 58' N lon 12° 16' W. The huts are huddled together in numerous groups; and the inhabitants composed of Foulahs and of some Kasoukés, are devoted to fishing and tillage and appear to enjoy some degree of prosperity and comfort. Pop. above 1000.

KIDDINGTON par Eng Oxford 5000 ac. P 1994
KIDROS, a vil Greece, Attica, near the W shore of the gulf, and 83 m. S.W. of the town of Saloniki. In its vicinity are ruins, supposed to be those of the ancient Pydna.

KIDWILLY or CYRWILLY an incorporated market in and par, 8 Wales co and 6½ m. S. Carmarthen. The town is divided into the Old and the New Town by the Gwendraeth Vach, here crossed by a handsome stone bridge and has three principal, tolerably straight, but indifferently kept streets houses thatched, and of rather a mean appearance an ancient and imposing oratory church, with a square tower, surrounded by a lofty spiral several dissenting places of worship a national and other schools, and several minor charities. A dangerous bar at the mouth of the river has reduced it to a mere creek to the port of Llanelly. Kidwilly however still exports coal and agricultural produce to a considerable extent. It is a place of great antiquity. The remains of the ancient castle, which stand on a bold rocky eminence on the W side of the Gwendraeth, are still in good preservation and form an interesting monument of the early style of English architecture. Area of par, 5170 ac. Pop in 1851 par 1848.

KIEBLINGSWALDE a vil Prussia, prov Silesia, gov Breslau, circle Habelschwerdt, with a parish church, a limestone quarry an oil saw and several other mills. Pop 967.

KIECHLINGBERGEN, a vil Baden, circle Upper Rhine, bail and near Breisach, on the Kaiserstuhl, with a parish church. Pop 981.

KIEDRICH, a vil Nassau, bail and 8 m. W Eltville, is a beautiful valley. It has a church, and near it are the ruins of the old castle of Scherbenstein, with a fine summer residence, and gardens laid out in the English style. Kiedrich has numerous mills. Pop 1875.

KIEFERSTADT, or CONNEKOWITZ, a tn. Prussia, prov Silesia, gov and 36 m. S.E. Oppeln, with a R. Catholic church synagoga, hospital, and manufactures of tin spoons, tile-works, and several mills. Near it are iron mines. Pop. 827.

KIEL (Latin Kiæ or Chilonum) a tn Denmark Holstein, beautifully situated on a deep bay of the Baltic, which presents all the appearance of a lake, and has finely wooded banks, 54 m. N by E. Hamburgh, with which it is connected by railway. It is tolerably well built, and has straight and well-paved streets, is the place of meeting for the Schleswig and Holstein States, and the seat of a superior appeal court for Schleswig, Holstein and Lauenburg and possesses a university, founded in 1855, with an attendance of about 800 students, a library of 60,000 volumes, a museum of natural history, an anatomical theatre, an observatory and a botanical garden. At the E. end of the town is a castle, rebuilt since 1888 and the residence of the Duke of Holstein-Glücksburg. Kiel possesses also four churches, of which that of St. Nicholas, near the spacious and picturesque market-place, has a lofty tower several public and private schools an orphan hospital, and infirmary, and is admirably situated for trade, the whole bay on which it stands forming a safe roadstead and its spacious quays admitting vessels drawing 16 ft. Upwards of 2000 vessels arrive, and as many depart annually the tonnage each way being about 250,000 tons. More especially since the completion of the railway connecting it with Hamburg it has entered into formidable competition with Lübeck, and is rapidly rising in importance. Besides shipping, Kiel has sugar soap manulacure, and several woollen factories, iron-foundries oil mills, tan-works, and tobacco and viager works, &c. During the bathing season and also in winter it is a general resort of the nobility and gentry of the duchy, and in its environs are fine walks, commanding beautiful views of the Baltic and the surrounding country. Pop 14,000 or, including the vil. Brunsbüttel, properly a suburb, 15,000.

THE TOWN HALL, KIEL.—From Schleswig-Holstein, Hamburg

KIELCE, a tn. Russian Poland cap woiwod Cracow, 105 m. S.W. Warsaw. It is well built is the seat of a bishop has several public offices, a collegiate and three other churches, a manory finely situated on a height an episcopal palace, another palace, now converted into an hospital a diocesan seminary, a gymnasium a mining and two elementary schools, a theatre, a casino manufacture of hardware, and a considerable trade in it and in corn. In the vicinity are copper, iron, and lead mines. Pop 5000.

KIELDERCHEI, a vil and com. Belgium, prov E Flandre, near the frontiers of Holland, 26 m. N. Ghent. It has two breweries, a lannery, a flour-mill, and a fishery and has a trade in agricultural produce and cattle. Pop 2660.

KIEN-CHANG-FOO a city, China, prov Kiangsoo lat 37° 55' N, lon. 118° 30' E. Extensive rice-ware is made here, and a species of linen, made from hemp, is manufactured, and much used by the Chinese as a summer dress.

KIEN-LUNG or CHEN-LUO a tn Tibet, on the N slope of the Himalaya, 1 bank Hutley lat 31° 6' N and lon 80° 50' E. It occupies the summit of a recess, about 200 ft above the level of the river, and consists of about 100 small houses, built of unburnt bricks, and painted red and grey. It is inhabited by Uliyas. On the opposite side of the river there is a cavern, through the top of which water strongly impregnated with sulphuric acid, percolates; while sulphurous vapours, hot enough to cause copious perspiration, issue from crevices in the floor.

KIEOU KIANG a city, China, prov Kiangsoo, r bank Yang-tse-kiang, 10 m above its junction with the lake Poyang, lat 29° 38' N, lon. 115° 45' E. It is of considerable size, and enclosed with a wall. The harbour is commodious, and an active trade is carried on.

KIEV, Kiev Koz or Kozov a giv Basin, bounded N by Mykha, W by Yehoriv and Podolsk, S by Podolsk and Kherson, E by Tcheraguerg and Poltava, from which last it flows. It is separated by the Dniester; lat 48° 20' to 51° 20'; Long. 28° 55' to 33° E. length 210 m. average breadth, about 170 m. area, 90,000 sq. m. The surface is in general level, but somewhat undulating, and rising especially towards the south-west, but leading interestingly downwards by soil-ridges and hollows, which are placed alternately on the left and right banks of the Dniester and other streams. The Dniester hills extend to Podolie, where they merge into the Carpathians, of which they may be considered the last ramification, and throw off at Lemniz, which, taking a N.W. direction, traverses the whole of the district. In the N.W. branch the soil is red, consisting of a loam, in which clay and sand are so happily mixed with gravel, as to form a most fertile soil. The Dniester hills them self this land is poorer, including to sand and gravel. Beyond these rich tracts are not unfrequent. The slope of the country is chiefly in two directions the larger towards the Dniester which is the chief, and indeed the only navigable stream, and runs along the S.E. and N.E. confines of the district above 250 m. either in the direction of the S.W. towards the mouth of the Bug. Both of these rivers have several tributaries, the largest being the R. Prypietia, which takes its rise near the town of Zhytye.

The climate is remarkably mild and dry. The rivers freeze in December and are again open in February. In summer the heat is so great, and the quantity of rain so small, that the channels of many streams become dry. Large crops of all kinds of grain are raised, and much attention is paid both to the rearing of cattle and the dairy. There is a large export of grain, particularly wheat and barley, and some foreign trade, but very extensive, but the timber is of excellent quality. Pop. (1850) 1,638,900.

Kilb's Knyr or Knyr or Know is a Rupia sp. above 6000 m. S. St. Petersburg, lat. (paleo) $59^{\circ}28'53''$ N, lon. $30^{\circ}22'44''$ E (L). It stands pictorially crowning several heights of unrelating ground, a rank Dnieper have crossed by a magnificent suspension-bridge (see DITERICH) and properly consist of three towns, each of which has its separate fortifications and suburbs. The first is Putzker, to the S; it is called, the New Fort which crowns a rugged slope to the S, and as a place of strength, having a rampart with nine bastions, and regular outworks. Besides the barracks magazines, and official residences emattered with the garrison, it contains several churches, of which the most remarkable is that of St. Nicholas Thaumaturgus, which is built of wood, and stands upon the roots of Osokil, a celebrated pine and saint, who is said to have been converted to the Christianism in Greece. In the second place, there is the famous monastery of Putzker, which is surrounded by a wall 1100 yards long, so thick that the Russian word putzker (in ceremony) was taken the monks are said to have dwelt before the monastery was built. This Putzker and to have been founded out by St. Antony contains a number of octagons, forming a kind of labyrinth filled with the bodies of saints and martyrs. The second tower is Kiev proper, and occupies a height towards the N, lower than that on which Petchersk stands, and less regularly fortified. It contains the venerable cathedral of St. Sophia, founded in 1037 by the Grand Duke Jaroslav Vladimirivich to commemorate a victory. The chief object of interest in it is a marble tomb of its founder. The tower is the only one of the kind in the world, and the good idea of the art there in the 11th century. Most of the houses in Kiev Proper belong to this church and the convent of St. Michael. The third tower, called Ploil, occupies the lower ground, and is inhabited chiefly by the middle and lower class. Kiev has in all 30 churches; its streets are generally broad, and it contains an architectural palace, town and military hospital - a university founded in 1838, named after Alexander the Great, and a gymnasium, and a printing-house, for the Scriptures and the books of the Greek church. It has some manufactures of leather and pottery and a bell foundry, and is celebrated for its confectionery. Its trade has become extensive, particularly since Odessa was built; and it has a large annual fair in January, which lasts for three weeks. Kiev possesses considerable historical interest, as the spot on which Christianity was first planted among the Slaves, and as the scene of the first Russian revolution, for a long time the stronghold of the old Muscovy. Pop. 118,420. Gr. 438.

KIEVO, a vil. Dalmatian, curle Zara, dist. and about 14 m. from Kani in a mountainous district. It is a well-built place, and has a parish church. Pop. 1140.

HIGHTAGHOUA, a vil. Russian America, r bank Unalakleet. Having direct communication, by two small streams, with the river Jouna, it has become the centre of the local commerce. The houses contain but one room.

K11 ISLS VDS, a group, situated N of Port Essington, N Australia. The E. island is high steep, and well wooded with deep water close to the W one is lower but equally well supplied with wood and water. Some coconut oil is made on these islands, and the inhabitants build a great number of small rafts for the natives of the adjacent islands.

KIKFU' is in Anam, prov Tonquin, on a mouth of the Tonquin river 100 m. E. Caohao. It is well fortified, has wide and regular streets, is intersected by canals, and has a large palace, numerous magazines of rice and numerous barracks.

KIKINDA (NAOR) a market in Hungary Benst. on Torenal in a fertile district, 85 m. W N W Temesvar with a townhouse, a Greek non-united, and a L. Catholic parish church a trade in cattle, and an important annual fair Dec. 12 1844

KIL, or KILL [Celtic, Cill, from Latin, Cella, meaning a burying-ground or a chapel] a prefix to the name of numerous places in Scotland and Ireland. The following Table contains all the parishes in the two countries having this prefix, excepting those noticed in separate articles, along with towns of the same name:—

SCOTLAND

[illegible]

IRELAND

[illegible]

KUATIGHEID

30

KILBEGGAN

[illegible]

KILAT I-GULJIN, a fort, Afghanistan. See KILAT D-GULJIN.

MILBAHA = fishing vil. Ireland co. Clare, N shore of the estuary of the Shannon on a small bay of same name, 15 m. W. by N. Kilbaha. Pop. 52.

KILBARCHAN a rd and par Scotland, on River
The VILLAGE, 11 m. W Glasgow consists of stone houses, sweetly sited but indifferently and somewhat irregularly built, though in recent times somewhat improved in appearance. It has a parish and a U Presbyterian church, four schools, a public library and several friendly societies. The inhabitants, mostly hand loom weavers, are chiefly employed

In manufacturing tartans of all kinds, Tibets, Barbles, and silks, for Paisley and Glasgow houses. There is also a small bleachfield. Pop. 2467. Area of par 9216 ac. Pop. 3474
(Local Government).

KILBEGGAN a market to. and par. Ireland, co. Westmeath. The town on the Broome, 30 m. E. by S. Athlone has a handsome parish church, with a square tower, a R. Catholic and a Wesleyan Methodist chapel & dispensary and a national school; a distillery, brewery tobacco and snuff ma-nufactury and four and oatmeal mills; and a considerable trade in butter. There are here the remains of an ancient monastery. Pop. 1442 Area of par. 6086 ac. Pop. 2170.

KILBIRRIE or KILBURNIE, a vil and par Scotland, 17 ac. 77. The village pleasantly situated on the Garioch, so m. W & W Glasgow on the Glasgow and Ayr Railway is well built of freestone has an Established, a Free, and a Reformed Presbyterian church four schools, and several benevolent societies. An extensive cotton spinning and weaving factory a fax spinning mill, a rope-work, an extensive bleach-works, an iron-foundry and about a mile from the village, several iron-mining concerns, afford the principal means of employment to the inhabitants, but a number are also engaged in hand-loom weaving, and many of the females are profitably occupied in flower-planting for Glasgow and Paisley houses. 10p 3399 1 ton of par. 17 ac m. Pop 5484

KILBRANNAN SOUND a strait, Scotland, estuary of the Clyde between the N W part of the island of Arran and the coast of Kintyre, about 14 m long by 4 m broad.

KILBRIDIE, several vils. and par. Scotland — 1 (head) A vil and par co Lanark. The village 7 m. S.E. Glasgow was constituted a borough of barony towards the end of Queen Anne's reign and the inhabitants were empowered to hold weekly markets and four annual fairs. A number of the people are employed in weaving and others in the lime-works and freestone quarries in the parish. The brothers, Drs. John and William Hunter were natives of this parish. Area of par about 85 sq m. Pop. 9760 — 2 (Vicar) A vil and par Ayrshire, the former agreeably situated in a valley on the S.E. shore of the 14th of Clyde, about 2 m. from the sea and 4 m. W Ardrossan. It consists chiefly of one street house in general well built of stone, well kept and amply supplied with water. It has an Established, 2 Free, U Presbyterian and Congregationalist churches (two schools) as also several friendly societies and a library. On a small stream which runs through the centre of the village are a fax mill, two oatmeal-mills a bark-mill and a mill for grinding charcoal but most of the people are employed in weaving shawls for Paisley and Glasgow houses. The par is about 8 m long by 24 m broad. 10p 2021 — Locust Corr. (occupant) — 3 A par co Argyll united to Kilmoro Pop 2559

KILBURN RN par Eng. York (N Riding), 1970 ac. P 819. KILBY par Eng. Leicester 1080 ac. Pop. 397

KILBURNHILL, two places Switzerland — 1 A vil and par can. and 11 m NNE Bern r bank 3 men here crossed by a wooden bridge. It is well built has a church with a very lofty spire and manufactures of cotton prints. 10p. 4489 — 2 A vil and par can. and 3 m S Zurich, with an ancient parish church finely seated on a height and many features of stonework. Pop 808

KILCUM E a market in par Ireland no Kildare. The town 19 m N.E. Kildare consists of several streets diverging from a square has an Established church, a Catholic chapel a dispensary and two large public schools a distillery a brewery and annual races. Pop 1164 Area of par 4064 ac. Pop. 1793

KILCOVNE, a tn and par Ire and co and 284 m E. by N Galway, with a parish church a Catholic chapel and the ruins of an ancient monastery. Area, 6082 ac. Pop 1462

KILCORRIGGAN a watering place, Scotland, no Dumfriesshire, 24 m W W Glasgow consisting of a row of elegant villas, beautifully situated along the shore of the N. bank of the estuary of the Clyde, on the peninsula formed between Loch Long and Loch Gare.

KILCULLEN a vil and par Ireland co and 7 m S.E. Kildare. The former on an elevated site, was once strongly fortified. On the brow of a hill are the remains of a monastery, founded in the 6th century some curiously sculptured stones, and the dilapidated stump of a round tower. Pop. 1046. Area of par 7345 ac. Pop. 2214

KILCULLEN BRIDGE, a market in Ireland co. and 73 m. E. of Kildare, on the Liffey here crossed by a stone Vol. II

THE ISLAND OF KILDA.—From Wain's T. range round the Coast of Scotland.

The highest point, Conochan, 1980 ft. high consists of a granite trap, but the larger part is a dark green sandstone. The whole appearance of the rocky site is sufficiently wild and impressive. A great portion of it is a front being composed of perpendicular precipices which in some parts rise to a height of many hundred feet, exhibiting here and there dark caverns excavated by the action of the sea alternating with groups of rugged pinnacles of the most fantastic forms wrought by the same powerful agency. In the interior a verdant turf covers most of the island giving way on the higher elevations to moss. The soil is good and an improved cultivation has of late years found its way even to the remote and solitary fells. The arable land is chiefly laid out in small rigs of barley, of which an ordinary year, a sufficient quantity is raised for the consumption of the inhabitants who however, amount only to 105 persons. vegetables do not thrive and there is not a tree on the island. At the head of East Bay is the only village on the island on an elevation sloping gently towards the sea the whole encompassed by a stone fence and containing about 40 acres of arable land with some beautiful but somewhat steep green hills in the background. The number of dwelling houses in the village amounts to about 30 many are of rather curious construction, resembling at a little distance a Hottentot's dwell without its regularity but having a somewhat similar kind of semicircular roof. Considerable improvement has been made in the construction of the looms within these few years particularly in their internal arrangements and furnishing, but they still retain much of their primitive character, and some portion of their primitive filth, although this also has been much amended. The inhabitants, whatever may have been their origin, have all, without a single exception Highland names and speak the Gaelic language.

They are of low stature, but stout, active, and intelligent ample-moulded and kind hearted. The prevailing dress is a small flat blue bonnet, coarse yellowish white woollen jerkins, and trousers also of coarse woollen stuff of a mixed colour. Their principal occupation is catching wild fowl, which here within the rocks with their countless numbers and in the taking of which the most appalling feats of daring are performed. The fowler being suspended over perpendicular cliffs of many hundred feet in height by a single rope, held by a single person on the margin of the precipice. There were, a few years since, about 50 cows on the island, of small size, but yielding a delicious milk, and about 2000 sheep. The people pay their rent, about £60 chiefly by means of feathers, for which they are allowed at the rate of 5s per stone. There is a clergyman on the island, and a small place of worship adjoining the manse.—(Wilson's Fogge round the Coast and Isles of Scotland, Anderson's Guide to the Highlands, &c.)

KILDALÉ, par. Eng. 1st (K. Riding) 5° 30' ac 1 145. KIL DARE, an island co. Ireland par. Leinster bounded N by Meath, E by Dublin and Wicklow, S by Carlow W by Kings, Queens & Westmeath par., length, 40 m. breadth, 37 m., area, 414 415 ac., of which 300 787 ac. are arable. The surface is generally flat, or gently undulating, swelling here and there into low hills, and covered with the most delightful verdure. The soil is mostly a rich loam, resting on limestone or clay slate. Nearly in the centre of the county is the well-known Carragh of Kildare a vast, unbroken black plain, containing of 4858 ac., the property of the Crown and appropriated to racing and coursing—the adjacent proprietors having the privilege, under certain restrictions, of grazing sheep on it. (Wheat, potatoes, wheat and turnips, are the principal crops. Oats are in general use both for draught and the plough. The only manufactures are of cottons and woollens, but to a very limited extent there are also some paper factories, but the chief occupations are agricultural.) Principal rivers—Barrow, Liffey and Boyne. Chief towns—Naas and Athy. Kildare is divided into 14 baronies, and 110 parishes, and returns two members to Parliament, both for the county. Registered electors (1851) 774. Pop. (1841) 114 498 (1851) 95,724.

KIL DARE, a market tn. and par. Ireland co. Kildare. The town on an eminence 30 m. N.W. Dublin, on the road thence to York and Leicestershire has an air of respectability and importance. It has a cathedral, the choir of which is used as the parish church, and contains the burial vault of the Earls of Kildare, a R. Catholic chapel, a Carmelite friary and presentation convent, with a chapel attached to each national and other schools an infirmary and a dispensary. Near it is the extensive common known as the Carragh of Kildare on which races are run in April, June, September and October. Kildare gives the inferior titles of Earl and Marquis to the Duke of Leinster. Pop. 1796. Area of par. 9216 ac. Pop. 2279.

KILDONN 111 y. a tn. and par. Ireland co. and 25 m. N. Cork with a parish church a R. Catholic chapel and a dispensary. Area, 2337 ac. Pop. 1426.

KILDWICK a par. England co. York (R. Riding) comprehending the v.l. of same name and several townships. Inhabitants chiefly engaged in stuff manufacture. Area 22 079 ac. Pop. 111.

KILDYSART or KILLDYSPERT a tn. and par. Ireland co. Clare. The town 13 m. S.W. Ennis is irregularly built, but less of late years has been considerably improved. It has a parish church and two R. Catholic chapels, three schools, a constabulary police barrack, and extensive agricultural produce to Limerick receiving building materials groceries, &c. in return. Area of par. 12 859 ac. Pop. 3993.

KILLENORA a decayed market tn. and par. Ireland co. Clare. The town 14 m. N.W. Ennis has an old cathedral, used as the parish church a R. Catholic chapel and two public schools. Pop. 387. Area of par. 10 777 ac. Pop. 586.

KILFINANE, a market tn. and par. Ireland, co. and 22 m. S. by E. Limerick. The town consists of two principal, and several subordinate streets, and contains many commodious and respectable houses, an Established church, with the ruins of an ancient castle close by a R. Catholic chapel two public schools, and a spacious fever hospital with a dispensary attached a market-house, and a constabulary police station. The weaving of cotton and linen is carried on to a small extent and in the neighbourhood are several oatmeal mills but the inhabitants, generally, are employed in agricultural labour. Near the town is the 'Dunns fort, a mound 130 ft. high encircled by seven earthen ramparts 20 ft. apart. Area of par. 6457 ac. Pop. 8049.

KILGERHAN a tn. and par. S.W. co. Wick, co. Pembroke. The town is beautifully situated on the Zevy, 2 m. S.E. E. Cardigan, and consists principally of one long straggling, and irregular street of mean-looking houses. Besides the church, there are several Dissenting places of worship and a school on the edge of a perpendicular rock rising from the bank of the Zevy are the ruins of an old castle. Area, 8673 ac. P. 1268.

KILGWRRGW par. Eng. Monmouth 659 ac. P. 154. KILHAM a vil. and par. Eng. (R. Riding) (R. Riding) The village 7½ m. W.W. Bridlington consists of one irregular street extending more than 1 m. in E. to W. and has two Dissenting chapels. Area of par. 7860 ac. Pop. 1947.

KILIA a tn. Russia gov. Bessarabia, on a height, bank, and near the mouth of the principal branch of the Danube about 40 m. E.N.E. Ismail lat. (cathedral) 45° 28' S. N.; lon. 29° 18' 27" E. (L.) It carries on a very considerable trade, being the chief mart for the productions of Moldavia, Wallachia, and Bulgaria. Its principal exports are tallow, hides, wax, wine, wool and grain. Pop. about 7000.

KILIANSTEDT a vil. Hanse-Land prov. and near Hanoa with a parish church, a manor-house, a mill, and a trade in wine. Pop. 951.

KILIE-AYR par. Wales, Cardigan; 1914 ac. P. 302. KILIMANDJARO a mountain E. Africa. See Africa.

KILITHI or FRANDETHORP a vil. Hungary Danube, between the 12 m. from Presburg on the Danube, over which there is a ferry. It has a parish church, a fishery, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 896.

KILITTI a vil. Hungary Thuter Danube, co. Sümegh in a plain, on the Sio, 2 m. from Sio-Pok with two churches. Pop. 1357.

KILKFE a thriving water-side place, Ireland co. Clare 8 m. N.W. Kilmab in the creek of Mahey. It is built close to the sea, is of a semicircular form and has elegant baths, a constabulary police force, and a coast-guard station. Near it are several chalybeate springs of high reputation. P. 1869.

KILKELLA a tn. and par. Ireland co. Down 164 m. N.E. Newry. It has a commodious parish church three R. Catholic chapels and several Dissenting places of worship. Pop. 1163. Area, 47,883 ac. Pop. 13,925.

KILKENNY an island co. Ireland par. Leinster bounded, N by Queen's co. E by Carlow and Wexford E by Waterford and W by Lipherry greatest length 46 m. breadth, 24 m. area, 791 sq. m. or 506,283 ac., of which 470 102 ac. are arable. The surface is generally level, with some mountain, chiefly situated between the More and Barrow, consisting of a nucleus of clay slate surrounded by sandstone. The soil is chiefly limestone, with clay-slate and sandstone in the higher parts. The general colour of the limestone is a bluish grey which near the town of Kilkenny passes into a fine black marble, susceptible of a high polish, and containing a great variety of shelly impressions. These beds are extensively quarried, and the blocks dressed on the spot. The coal formations are nearly co-extensive with the lilly districts but the coal is of very bad quality and consequently little used. The principal rivers are the Barrow, Nore, and Buir the first forming the E. boundary the last the W. at its extremity and the Nore flowing through its centre N. to S. The soil is of various qualities in a few places it is moorish, particularly in the coal tract but, for the most part, it is light and dry, some valleys being extremely fertile. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley, here, rye, pease, beans, potatoes, turnips mangold-wurzel, carrots, and parsnips, some cabbage, and a little flax. Some of the best wheat and meadow lands in Ireland are situated in the level tract along the Barrow. Dairy husbandry also is extensively practised particularly in the Walsh Mountains, and the S. part of the Lincolnshire tract. Farms here are of various sizes, but generally small, there being comparatively few above 50 ac. and although one of the highest rented counties in Ireland, its farm-houses and other accommodations are, for the most part, very inferior. The county contains 10 baronies, and 145 parishes, and returns two members to Parliament. Registered electors (1851), 5056 and Kilkenny city the capital, returns one. Pop. (1841) 183 540, (1851) 186 778.

KILKENNY a city par. bar., and so. of itself Ireland, locally in co. of same name, of which it is the cap. 61 m. S.W. Dublin, with which and with Waterford it is connected by railway, delightfully situated on both sides of the Nore, here crossing by two bridges the river. It consists of five principal, and several subordinate streets, well lighted and lighted with gas. Many of the houses and shops, most of which are built of stone, have a highly respectable appearance.

ance. Water of excellent quality is abundant. The city contains several interesting ancient edifices, which tend to give it a venerable and picturesque appearance. These structures consist of the cathedral, the castle, now modernized, and several abbey. The places of worship comprise the cathedral already mentioned, two churches belonging to the Establishment, one Presbyterian church, one Methodist meeting-house, and six R. Catholic chapels. The other modern public buildings are a city and county jail, a court-house, infirmary, fever hospital, urban poor house, house of correction, and numerous constabulary police stations. There are several schools, the most important of which are Kilkenny college, a grammar-school, in which Swift, Congreve, Farquhar, Bishop Berkeley, and other distinguished characters, received the early part of their education, the college of St. Kyrus, a R. Catholic seminary for the education of young men intended for the priesthood, and numerous other public and private schools. The literary and scientific institutions comprise an archaeological society and the Kilkenny literary society. There is also a diocesan library adjoining the cathedral, and containing about 4000 vols. Kilkenny was formerly the seat of extensive manufactures, most of which, however, have either entirely disappeared, or have greatly fallen off. The manufacture of coarse woollens has recently begun to revive and some little business is done in tanning, nail making, the working of Kilkenny black and foreign marbles into chimney-pieces, monuments, tables, and other articles. In the manufacture of starch, currants, carding implements and flour mill machinery, metal founding and mill wright works, but none of these branches are carried on so extensively as formerly. A considerable trade is done in salt, flour, ale, porter, and hams for which the town still maintains a high reputation. Kilkenny gives the title of Earl to the family of Butler and returns one member to Parliament. Registered electors (1851) 604. In the vicinity of the city has been discovered a species which is considered beneficial in various diseases. Pop. 19 278. —(Local Correspondent)

KILKERRAN BAY an indentation W coast Ireland so. and 25 m. W Galway extending inland about 11 m. situated with islands, chiefly inhabited by fishermen.

KILKHAMPTON par Eng Cornwall, 8273 ac P 1221

KILKISHEN a vil. Ireland co Clare 4½ m. N Six mile-bridge, with an Established church, a R. Catholic chapel, and near it the remains of Kilkishen Castle. Pop. 559

KILLA B. KERRA, a collection of walled vills Afghanistan, about 86 m. S W Ghazni, on the road thence to Shawl in a large and fertile valley bounded by lofty mountains on the N, but more open on the S. The road through it, though crossed by several water-courses, is good.

KILLALA, a market tn., seaport, and par Ireland co Mayo. The town is agreeably situated on the bay of same name 26 m. N N.E. Castlebar contains a small but ancient cathedral, also used as the parish church, a R. Catholic chapel, and a Methodist meeting-house, a free and a national school, a dispensary and an ancient round tower 84 ft. high. The manufacture of coarse flannel was formerly carried on here to a considerable extent; but the principal trade now consists in the export of grain and provisions, and in the import of herrings, sugar, plank and iron. Pop. 970. Area of par 5634 ac. Pop. 2819. —The bay which receives the Moy in its upper part, extends about 8 m. inland, and has a breadth of 3 to 8 m.

KILLALOE, an ancient market tn. and par Ireland, co Clare. The town is picturesquely situated 18 m. N.E. Limerick, on a hill r bank Shannon here crossed by an ancient bridge, leading to the suburb of Ballina, on the l bank of the river. The streets are in general steep and narrow houses indifferently built, but still the town has a cheerful and prosperous appearance. The principal buildings are the cathedral, of the 13th century, which is used as the parish church, a Wesleyan meeting-house, and a R. Catholic chapel. Near the cathedral are the remains of a stone-roofed oratory one of the most ancient ecclesiastical edifices in Ireland. There are various public and private schools, a dispensary and several benevolent and friendly societies. Foreign and native machines are manufactured here into chimney-pieces, monuments, and other ornamental articles. Fruits, coarse flannels, and muslins are made to a limited extent, and 200 to 300 lands are engaged in the neighbouring extensive estate quarries. Many of the inhabitants are also employed in the extensive works of the City of Dublin Steam Packet Company for the manufacture of boats, boilers, &c. Area of par, 9978 ac. Pop. exclusive of the suburb of Ballina, 3496. —(Local Correspondent)

KILLAMARREH, par Eng Derby 1846 ac Pop. 1070

KILL ARNEY, a market tn. and par Ireland co Kerry. The town is situated in the midst of the most beautiful scenery within a mile of the celebrated lakes to which it gives its name 4½ m. W by N Cork on the high road thence to Tralee. The principal streets are straight and well paved and the houses in general substantially built of stone, supply of water ample. It has a handsome parish church, a small Methodist meeting-house, a R. Catholic chapel and a magnificent R. Catholic cathedral in the Gothic style; a convent of the Presentation where 300 female children are gratuitously educated by the ladies connected with the establishment, a convent of the Sisters of Mercy containing a house of refuge for the relief and instruction of adult females. There are two free schools, a dispensary and fever hospital, a lunatic asylum and a poorhouse. In summer Killarney is thronged with visitors to the lakes and the delightful scenery in the neighbourhood. Fancy articles of wood particularly of arbutus which attains to great perfection in the environs are made to a considerable extent, and are in great request by tourists. Flour is also manufactured extensively. Pop. 3595. Area of par 34 760 ac. Pop. 14 155. —The lakes three in number are all connected with each other. The lower lake is about 4½ m. long by 2 m. broad; the middle, 1½ m. long by ½ m. broad the upper 8 m. long. They receive several streams, are interspersed with numerous islands which as well as the sloping and lofty sides of the lakes are richly wooded, presenting the loveliest scenery anywhere to be met with. —(Local Correspondent)

KILL ABBIANDRA, a market tn. and par Ireland co Cavan. The town, 9 m. W by N Cavan is delightfully situated on a gently rising ground near the Croghan and is surrounded by a succession of romantic lakes. The principal street is spacious well kept and has many good houses with a handsome market-house in the centre. It contains a parish church, a R. Catholic chapel and Presbyterian meeting-house, numerous public schools and a dispensary. A considerable trade is carried on in linen and many of the inhabitants are employed in the manufacture of it. Pop. 982. Area of par 22,167 ac. Pop. 2949

KILLBAGILL a tn. and par Ireland co Cork. The town 9 m. W by N Youghal has a parish church, a R. Catholic chapel, two public schools, a dispensary and a constabulary police station. Near it are some remarkable caverns. Pop. to 603. Area of par, 5334 ac. Pop. 2007

KILLEARN a vil. and par Scotland co Stirling 14 m. N by W Glasgow with an Established and a Free church, a school an obelisk 103 ft. high erected in 1788 to the memory of George Buchanan the poet and historian, who in 1566 was born in the parish and a woollen factory. Area of par 27 ac. Pop. 1176.

KILLENALP, a small market tn. and par Ireland co Tipperary. The town, 16 m. N by E Clonmel, has a com. vicarious parish church, and a handsome R. Catholic chapel, free schools for children of both sexes, and a dispensary. Near it are extensive coal copper and culm mines. Pop. 1353. Area of par, 7711 ac. Pop. 3591

KILLERKANE, a celebrated pass through the Glampara, Scotland co Perth, 15 m. N.W Dundee. Here the river Garry struggles for about 2 m. through a deep narrow rocky, and densely wooded ravine, along the side of which the road has been formed. At the N.W. extremity of this pass in 1689 the memorable battle of Killecrankie was fought, in which Graham of Claverhouse, Viscount Dundee gained the victory and lost his life.

KILLIN a vil. and par Scotland co Perth near the head of Loch Tay, 25 m. W by N Perth, with a parish and a Free church, several schools and a savings bank. Area of par 180 ac. m. Pop. 1608

KILLINGHOLM, a par England, Lincoln, 7225 ac. Pop. 749

KILLINCHY a tn. and par Ireland co Down. The town 9 m. N Downpatrick, has a handsome parish church with a square embattled tower, a R. Catholic chapel and a Presbyterian meeting-house, numerous public schools, and several corn mills. Area of par. 13,966 ac. Pop. 6,007.

KILLIS, a tn. Adakie Turkey Straits, wash and 40 m N. Allego, with a considerable trade in galls, wax and inferior cottons. Pop. about 2,000.

KILLLOGH, or St. Anne's Port, a tn. and seaport Ireland, co. Down. 6 m S.E. Downpatrick, on the bay of same name lat. 54° 15' N. lon. 5° 37' 30" W. It has a handsome parish church with a square tower, a R. Catholic chapel, and a Methodist meeting-house. The harbour is a safe refuge for coasters and other small craft, and is much resorted to by vessels engaged in the fisheries off the coast. Killough exports corn and cattle and imports coal and salt. Pop. 851.

KILL PECK, par. Eng. Hereford 2135 ac. Pop. 239. KILLICAN, a tn. and par. Ireland co. Westmeath. The town 9 m E. by 6 Mullingar has an elegant parish church, two R. Catholic churches, several public schools, and a dispensary. Area of par. 35,590 ac. Pop. 7,892.

KILLBEGGS, a market tn. seaport, and par. Ireland co. Donegal. The town 14 m W. Donegal near the head of a beautiful creek of same name in Donegal Bay has a well sheltered and safe harbour with anchorage for large vessels, a parish church, R. Catholic chapel, free school and a dispensary. It exports agricultural produce and imports timber coal and groceries. Area of par. 15,384 ac. Pop. 420.

KILLBEGG, a market tn. seaport and par. Ireland co. Down. The town lies on a gentle declivity W. shore Strangford Lough 6 m N.E. Downpatrick. The principal streets which are well kept, form a cross having 6 or 8 smaller ones lying parallel to them. Many of the houses are well built of stone. It has a handsome cruciform church with a tower surmounted by a well proportioned spire, two spacious Presbyterian meeting houses, a small R. Catholic chapel, five schools, a literary and circulating society and an extensive flour and exporting 450 tons. The harbour has been recently improved, and the shipping business is increased. The principal exports are grain and other agricultural produce, imports—wood, cotton, iron, coal, salt and general merchandise. Dr. Hans Sloane the celebrated physician and naturalist and founder of the British Museum was born here. April 18, 1666. Area (cf par. 11,100 ac. Pop. 5,045—Local Correspondent).

KILLMAREEN, a tn. and par. Ireland co. Donegal. The town 6 m S.W. Letterkenny contains a very ancient parish church, a R. Catholic chapel, a Presbyterian meeting house, several public and private schools, and a dispensary. Area of par. 3,011 ac. Pop. 771.

KILLMAGUIRE, a market tn. Ireland, co. and 13 m W. by R. Waterford on a steep hill on the Malton heath crossed by a stone bridge. It has three schools and a dispensary, and is inhabited chiefly by agricultural labourers. Pop. 1,057.

KILLMAINHAM, a vil. Ireland co. and 2 m W. Dublin of which it is a suburb. It contains a military hospital, county court house, and jail, and has manufactures of fine woollen cloths. Pop. 473.

KILLMALLICK, a tn. and par. Ireland co. Limerick. The town 15 m S. Limerick on the Liscash was formerly a place of importance, surrounded by a strongly fortified wall, portions of which still remain and had numerous well built houses of stone several castles and noble mansions, only two of which now remain. From the dilapidated appearance of the town when contrasted with its original magnificence Killmalkick has been styled the Baile of Ireland since 1816, the principal street has been improved by the erection of several good stone houses. It has an ancient and spacious, but much decayed church, a R. Catholic chapel, a dispensary, a tannery and some extensive flour mills. Area of par. 4074 ac. Pop. 5168.

KILLMARNON, a tn. and municipal cor. and market in Scotland co. Ayr. The town 19 m S.W. Glasgow on the Glasgow and South Western Railway near the end of the Kilmarnock water with the Irvine. The principal street is upwards of 1 m long and contains many handsome buildings, houses generally of freestone obtained from quarries in the neighbourhood, the streets generally are wide and airy and the town is well supplied with water. Near its centre, on a bridge across the Kilmarnock in the town-house, and at the cross is a fine marble statue of Sir James Shaw, Bart., a native of the vicinity who had been lord-mayor of London. It has three handsome Established churches, three Free, three U. Presbyterian one of which has a fine tower and spire, and several other dissenting churches, numerous schools, including an academy an elegant building, an exchange, a mechanics' institution, a philosophical institution, a public library, two reading rooms, a dispensary, and several benevolent societies. Kilmarnock has long been famed for the excellence of its woollen manufactures formerly consisting chiefly of broad and other bonnets, and striped cowls but now of carpets, which have become the staple, and printed woollen shawls, made to a great extent, &c. There are also manufactures of machinery tobacco, candles, hats, and hosiery besides several extensive tanneries; and a considerable business is done in the making of boots and shoes for exportation. Kilmarnock unites with Dumbarton, Port-Glasgow, Hamilton and Renfrew in returning one member to the House of Commons. Pop. 21,387.

KILMARTIN, a market vil. and par. Scotland co. Argyll. The village, 8 m N.W. Lochgilphead at the head of a fine glen, contains the parish church, a handsome Gothic structure, a parish school and the ruins of an old castle. Along the valley of Kilmartin are a number of large circular cairns, containing stone coffins, in which human skeletons of a large size have been found, together with silver coins, one of which bears the name of Eborac. Area of par. 34,529 ac. Pop. 1144.

KILMALLIS, a bor. of barony and par. Scotland, co. Ayr. The town pleasantly situated 2 m S. bank Carmel, 2 m N.W. Kilmarnock, has parish Free, and U. Presbyterian churches, and three schools. Cotton weaving and shoemaking are carried on to some extent. Par. 6 m long by 2 m broad. Pop. 3144.

KILMILMORON, par. Eng. Somerset 3450 ac. P. 2196.

KILMILNATON, two pars. Eng.—1 Devon, 1760 ac. Pop. 1000—2 Somerset 2746 ac. Pop. 53.

KILMINTON, par. Eng. Hants, 1610 ac. Pop. 229.

KILMUN, a vil. Scotland co. Argyll, delightfully situated near the head of Holy Loch, 5 m N. by Clyde 8 m N. by W. Greenock. It contains Established and Free churches, the burial vault of the noble family of Argyll, and two schools. It is much resorted to for sun-bathing by the citizens of Glasgow. Pop. 1221.

KILNREA, par. Eng. York (E. Riding) 11,036 ac. P. 157.

KILNWHISK, two pars. Eng. York (E. Riding)—1 4450 ac. Pop. 634—2 (Parry) 1,661 ac. Pop. 53.

KILPATRICK,—1 New W. Scot. A par. co. Stirling and Dumbarton, 5 m N.W. Glasgow. It contains cotton spinning and calico printing works, bleachfields, &c. Area, 14,440 ac. Pop. 4,206—2 (Old or New) A vil. and par. Scotland, co. Dumbarton. The village, 1 m S. bank Clyde, 9 m W. W. Glasgow has a parish a Free and a U. Presbyterian church, and a school and was once a bor. of barony. The parish contains cotton-spinning and weaving factories, chemical and dye works, bleachfields, boat building yards, &c. Area, 16 sq. m. Pop. 6921.

KILPATRICK, a market tn. and par. Ireland co. Londonderry. The town 1 bank Bar 50 m S.W. Londonderry consists of four principal streets and a square. It has a new market-house and linen hall both commodious and elegant buildings, a parish church, a R. Catholic chapel, a Presbyterian meeting-house, and several schools. The linen manufacture is carried on to a great extent in the town and surrounding district. Area of par. 6700 ac. Pop. 7473.

KILPATRICK, a royal bor. seaport and par. Scotland, co. Fife. N.E. shore Firth of Forth 9 m S.E. St. Andrew's. Neither Kilmory or Callary has a small harbour and is chiefly inhabited by fishermen. It unites with St. Andrew &c. in returning a member to the House of Commons. Pop. 1869. Area of par. 2400 ac. Pop. 2194.

KILRHEDDIN, par. Wales, Carmarthen 7856 ac. P. 1063.

KILRUHI, a market tn. seaport, and par. Ireland, co. Clara. The town agreeably situated, N. shore estuary of the Shannon 35 m W. by S. Limerick, is neatly built, and consists of a market-square, intersected E. to W. by a quays, wall pavon, and flagged street, with several smaller thoroughfares diverging from it. It has a commodious and handsome market-house, court house, a new custom-house, a bridewell, and a police barrack, a spacious Established church, a handsome R. Catholic chapel and a Wesleyan Methodist meeting-house; free and other schools; a dispensary and fever hospital. The manufacture of woollen and iron cloth is carried on to some extent, and the produce of the fishery is considerable. The harbour is safe and commodious. The pier is protected by a strong sea wall, and steamers regularly ply between this port and Limerick. The chief trade is in agricultural produce of all kinds. Pop. 4471. Area of par. 15,659 ac. Pop. 13 946.

KILSBY par. Eng. Somerset, 2200 ac. Pop. 631

KILSYTH a bar of barley, v. l. and par. Scotland, 20 Stirling. The village, 12 m. N.E. Glasgow is a straggling irregularly built place, lighted with gas, but streets vary in differently kept. It has a parish a Free, and a P. Presby. town church and Methodist and Independent chapels several schools, a library and friendly society. The inhabitants generally are employed in hand-loom weaving for the Glas. gow manufacturers. In 1742 and 1743 and again in 1858 remarkable revivals in religion took place here. Area of par. about 15,000 ac. Pop. 5346.

KILTON par. Eng. Somerset, 1891 ac. Pop. 181

KILVE par. Eng. Somerset, 1770 ac. Pop. 256

KILVERSTON par. Eng. Norfolk, 2026 ac. Pop. 86

KILVINGTON two par. Eng. — 1. North 900 ac. Pop. 53 — 2. (South) York (N. Riding) 2871 ac. Pop. 4704

KILWA or QILWA a town with a fine harbour and cap. of a petty kingdom. P. coast Africa. It stands on a small island, lat. S 37 5. lon. E 39 27. E. in a noble estuary into which flow many streams. The chief of these are the Kuavi (in early writers Cuavo, Quabo and, by further corruption, Quabo), from the N.W. and the Kuavi from the S.W. The sea is here unfathomable till close to the shore which is formed probably by a bank of coral. The banks of the estuary and of the rivers present to view a great deal of low alluvial land intersected by sluggish canals and overgrown with mangrove. The town has a pretty appearance at a distance, the white-washed houses, domes and minarets rising in a thick group of coco-nut and other palms. The island is about 5 m. long by 1 to 2 m. wide. Though ill supplied with water it still supports a population of 5000 or 6000; but the town no longer retains the commercial importance and opulence that once distinguished it, and memorials of which still remain in the extensive ruins of stone buildings wrecked over the island and the adjoining mainland. The fort, built of brick and mud, and white-washed looks well from the sea, but mounts no guns and could offer no resistance to a European enemy. A mosque still standing has 25 domes, and is said to have had 805. It is entirely covered with a luxuriant growth of creeping plants, and is shaded by some huge Bombax or cotton trees. The town of Kilwa is now but a wretched group of huts, and the once powerful king is at the present day, tributary to the Sultan Abd. Sâid (of Muscat), residing in Zanzibar.

When Ibn Batutah visited Kilwa in the earlier half of the 14th century (about 1380), he found it a large and flourishing town, though built only of wood, and inhabited chiefly by Zung, that is, by indigenous blacks. But when a Nile more than a century and a half later the Portuguese arrived there, it was a handsome stone-built city, the houses of which resembled those of Spain and Italy. The date and authors of the stone buildings, scattered in ruins for some hundreds of miles along these coasts, are now undecipherable; but certain it is that our voyagers are in ascribing them to the Portuguese. These conquerors do not appear to have been zealous propagators of art and improvement; they destroyed much more than they erected. They took and pillaged Kilwa in 1507, and subsequently disturbed its commerce, as well as that of the whole coast. They probably contributed to hasten its decline, though so long as the slave-trade flourished in Mauritius, Kilwa was enriched by it. But in the beginning of the present century the island was taken by the Bakalava pirates from Madagascar who held it for some time. They were at length expelled by a force sent from Zanzibar. but the prosperity of Kilwa was then gone, and it has never returned.

The name Kilwa is more extensively applied than is commonly supposed. The island just described is Kilwa Majidja, and may be considered as the Kilwa of history. But about 12 m. further N. in a bay facing the N.E., is Kilwa Kivindi or Old Kilwa, a village of about 700 huts, and now a much more busy and important place than the island. Kilwa Kivindi on the river of this name, is probably a market for the natives of the interior, and dependent on the island. Kilwa Tekfi on the E. bank of the Kilwafigo is remarkable chiefly for the immense number of wild beasts that grow about it. Kilwa Upogo, about 10 m. S. of the island on the coast, has, we believe, in its neighbourhood, extensive salt-pans, the produce of which is exported.

The noble harbours at Kilwa Majidja, within the estuary and sheltered by the island, remain unfrequented in grand and savage solitude. Whatever symptoms of civilisation may be found on the sea-coast of E. Africa unmitigated, malignant barbarism, unchanged by foreign sway or intercourse still prevails everywhere within a few miles of the shore. The native traffic along the rivers is of little value but it deserves to be mentioned that canoes, laden with fruit and vegetables, descend the Kuavi frequently from the country of the Den garko who dwell on the S. banks of the Luifi, in houses raised on stakes so as to be secure at once from the floods and from wild beasts. From this it would appear that the Kuavi, if it be not a branch of the Luifi, at least drains a portion of the country inhabited by that river. Hence the Kuavi or Cuavo as it was called was formerly believed to issue from the great lake of the interior wherein the chief rivers of Africa, the Nile included, had their sources, according to the then prevailing systems.

The mouths of the Luifi, all narrow and difficult of approach owing to the numerous coral reefs and shoals, with strong currents between them, that beset these coasts, the W. of Mafia Island that which bears the name of Luifi or Luifi, being no lat. 7° 08' S. about 70 m. N. of Kilwa. As the sea here is unfathomable till close to the shore which is always avoided by European navigators, they remained long quite unknown, and have but recently found a place in our charts. Hence all the accounts received of the great river were referred to the Kuavi at Kilwa. This river though its principal entrance is not above 800 yards wide, is said to exceed a league in breadth within and during the floods it flows in a width of several leagues. The estuary through which it flows is populous and fertile, producing two crops a year of rice, millet, &c. besides plantains, oranges, and other fruits. The people dwelling on the sea-shore at the mouths of the river are the Masuwa above them are the Dengarko, already mentioned and beyond the Delta, the left or N. bank of the river, along which the road passes, is occupied by the Gidu and W. of these again, are the Wasu, in whose country about 80 days' journey from the coast, the river divides into several branches. The Kidget comes from the N.W. The Swidha, from the W. is by some considered as the chief branch of the Luifi, while others give this name to a river joining the Swidha from the S.W. The Luicoi also, and another great river fall into it lower down from the same side. All these rivers rise in the N.E. slopes of the great ridge extending S.E. and N.W. at the opposite or S.W. foot of which lies that river like lake, of extraordinary length which is called, on the coast, Ziwa (fresh water lake) and by the tribes dwelling round it S. and Nysal or Nyassa (the sea). The sources of the Swidha, the river respecting which we possess most information, are probably between the seventh and eighth parallels of latitude, and at least 550 m. from the sea. The natives on the coast, indeed, believe that the Swidha issues from the lake, but this opinion is open to strong objections. See NDIWA. From Ndiwa, above the sources of the Luicoi and some other districts S. of the Swidha, iron is brought down to Kilwa. The country which lies on the E. side of the lake from the Luifi northward, is called MAMOTOCU. Crocodiles and hippopotami are very numerous in the waters of the Luifi, and the latter are thought to formidable in the lower part of the river that the Arab traders who spend the river a month's voyage, are said to arm their boats with long iron spikes, to keep them at a distance.

The valley of the Luifi viewed in connection with Kilwa, forms a very remarkable feature in the geography of Africa; for here we can trace not only a great river descending a distance of 500 or 600 m., its numerous branches being spread over a territory of at least 800 m. In width, and the various tribes occupying its vast basin all speaking the same language, but we see also the commerce between the coast and the interior have fully established, systematically carried on and not insignificant. The Monmouths visit the coast annually in large bodies, from 6000 to 10,000. Formerly Kilwa was their destination, at the present day the majority of them encamp on the coast opposite to Zanzibar but a considerable number still resort to Kilwa. See Monmouth. And this well-developed native system of intercourse has existed at least three centuries and a half, indeed there is reason to believe that at that period, when the chief foreign merchandise on the coast were the precious Baryras, the traffic with the interior was far more active than it is at present.

But the countries of the interior the traffic of which is, or was in better times, directed upon Kilwa, are not confined to the basin of the Luifu. All the tribes on the E. side of the lake, B. of the Luifu and round the sources of the Livina, resort to that place and as the S. end of the lake is the channel of an active carrying trade, much of the ivory and other produce of the remote interior reach Kilwa from that quarter. The mouth of the Livina or Riviana is situated in lat. 10° 26' S. a few miles S. of Cape Delgado. According to the reports of natives, this river may be navigated, a long way up, by large ships. About eight or nine days up from the sea—above the delta, for it has several mouths—it increases in width and is a mile broad its banks richly clothed with superb timber. The canoes of the Livina, hulled out of a single trunk, are capable of containing 30 people. The general course of the river seems to be S. W. by W. Its traders route from Kilwa, going S. W., crosses the Livina at the end of 30 days march and soon after enters the territory of Jao, or perhaps Jao, a fully well-watered country fertile and populous the capital of which, Lokelongo, is six weeks distant from Kilwa. From Lokelongo to the lake, the journey is of 14 days the road going W. over Njasa a mountain densely peopled, not in villages, but with cottages and gardens and small hamlets, uniformly spread over its sides and summit. From Njasa may be seen Njasa, or the sea, glittering in the air, with five rocky islands, and the little river Maridi run along down to it. The natives of Jao this W. side of Zanzibar the Maroon of Monmouths also make regular annual visits to Kilwa, using an arge bullock, and sometimes 10,000 in a season. They carry down ivory wax and gum-copal, and not a few slaves, but their slave trade is generally quite free from atrocity. The great majority of the Wado sold annually in Kilwa and Zanzibar (some thousands) go voluntarily into servitude or service (as they conceive it) to seek their fortunes and, if they fall into the hands of a Mahometan master their end is gained, and their condition invariably improved.

On the N. borders of Jao, about 80 m. from Lokelongo, and on the river Bengo probably an affluent of the Livina, dwell the Mungu, who are described on the coast as white people. A Mungu woman is prized in Zanzibar above an Abyssinian. The men are rarely seen in captivity being much superior to their black neighbours in courage and the arts of war. The natives of the coast at Kilwa are Marfina, the same tribe or nation who peopled, at an early age the Quercula, Angolan and Bambara islands to the S. Behind them, up the Kilwa, are the Marfina. The coast between Kilwa and the Livina is occupied by the M-wara beyond, or B. of the Livina, are the Wamra. The Mashinga and Mungu are on the road to Jao.—(Capt. W. F. W. Owen, Narrative of an Exploring Voyage to the E. coast of Africa, 1833). Capt. Thos. Botscher, Narrative of a Voyage etc., 1835).

KILWINNING, a tn. and par. Scotland, co. Ayr. The town is pleasantly situated on a gentle elevation, r. bank Garroch, 21 m. S. W. Glasgow on the railway thence to Ayr. It consists principally of one narrow street about 1 m. long, and contains a parish and a Free church, two dissenting chapels, several schools, various benevolent and charitable institutions, and an archery club of very ancient foundation. The inhabitants are chiefly employed as hand loom weavers, or in the mines and quarries in the neighbourhood. A considerable number of females are engaged in needle-work. With the erection of the abbey of Kilwinning, founded, it is believed, in 1140 now a fine ruin is associated the introduction of fine masonry into Scotland. Area of par., 11,200 ac. Pop. 6859.

KILWORTH a market tn. and par. Ireland, co. Cork. The town 22 m. N.E. Cork is pleasantly situated on the Faneesh, here crossed by a handsome stone bridge, about 1 m. above its confluence with the Blackwater. It consists of one irregular indifferently kept street, and contains a market-house, manor court-house parish church, R. Catholic chapel, and two school houses. The people are, in general employed in agricultural labour. Area of par., 5468 ac. Pop. 1948. (Local Correspondent).

KILWORTH, two pars. Eng. Leicestershire — 1 (North), 2230 ac. Pop. 414 — 2 (South), 1470 ac. Pop. 509. KIT 1 BYGILL, par. Wales Glamorgan 4014 ac. P. 962. KIMBERLEY, par. Eng. Norfolk 1460 ac. Pop. 137. KIMBLE, two pars. Eng. Bucks — 1 (Great) 2478 ac. Pop. 501 — 2 (Little) 750 ac. Pop. 184.

KIMBOLTON — 1 A market tn. and par. England, co. Huntingdon. The town, 9 m. W. S. W. Huntingdon contains a handsome church surmounted by a lofty spire various dissenting places of worship and an ancient endowed grammar school. A few females find employment in lace making, but the inhabitants generally are employed in agricultural labour. Kimbolton castle the mansion of the Duke of Manchester was the residence of Catherine of Aragon after her divorce from Henry VIII. Area of par., 5061 ac. Pop. 1653. — 2 A par. Eng. Hereford 4061 ac. Pop. 702.

KIMOTTE par. Eng. Leicestershire 1710 ac. Pop. 608. KIMOTO, an isl. Russia, S. W. coast Finland about 25 m. S.E. Abo. It is nearly in the shape of a triangle, the upper part of which is in a manner inclosed into the mainland, from which it is only separated by a very narrow channel, greatest breadth, N. E. to S. W. about 20 m. central breadth, nearly 11 m. The nucleus of the island appears to be granite, but the strata above it contain beds of limestone, which is quarried. There is also a mine of iron. Pop., including that of some adjoining islets, 6500.

KIMMLEDIGH, par. Eng. Dorset 1670 ac. P. 178. KIMOLA, isl. Greece. See ANORTHIA. KIMPTNA a tn. Wallachia, dist. Frahova, r. bank R. Jova, 50 m. N. Bucharest, with several churches, a convent, and a comfortable inn, and the little river Maridi, being the entrepot for all the merchandise coming from Leonstadt. Near it are salt mines, which are extensively worked. Much bitumen is also obtained.

KIMPOLUNG or KAMPOLUNG (MOLDAVIAN) a market tn. Austria, Bukowina, on the Moldau 67 m. S. W. Chernowitz. It is one of the principal stations of the military frontier. Pop. 2623.

KIMPTON two pars. Eng. — 1 Hants 2° 33 ac. Pop. 371 — 2 Herts 3378 ac. Pop. 924.

KIN an isl. Russia, in the N. E. of the Gulf of Biga, about 12 m. from the coast of Livonia. It is nearly of an oval shape, and is about 7 m. long by 5 m. broad.

KIN CHOO, or KING TCHOU a tn. Chinese empire, Man chowia, near the head of the Gulf of Leontung. Lat. 41° N., lon. 121 E. L. bank of a river which falls into the Gulf. It is a considerable emporium and is celebrated as a market for drugs, pease, and flour. Upwards of 1000 junka trade with the town.

KIN HOA a city China prov. Chinking lat. 29° 18' N., lon. 119° 27' E. It is a great trade in dried plums and lard, which are exported to all parts of the empire.

KIN KUN [golden island], an isl. China, prov. Kiangsoo, in the Yang-tse-king. It rises like the summit of a mountain above the waters, and is covered with houses, temples, trees, and flowers. Its sides are clothed with trees shading streets of light and fantastic forms.

KINAMI a vil. W. Africa, r. bank Niger 23 m. S. E. Egga lat. 8° 25' N. lon. 6° 21' E. It consists of seven different clusters of huts, built on a bank about 8 ft. above the river, inhabited by Kusa or Yaka people. Pop. 1000.

KINARDI par. Ire. Kerry 5009 ac. Pop. 709. KINAWLFY, par. Ire. Cavan and Fermanagh 51,004 ac. Pop. 19,521.

KINBURN a fortress, Russia, gov. Taurilla, on a narrow tongue of land, at the mouth of the Dniester. It is prettily and strongly situated, being surrounded on three sides by the waters of the Black Sea and the estuary but consists only of the fortress itself, with the necessary buildings, and a few fishermen's huts outside. In the vicinity in 1787, the Turks were legally defeated by the Russians under Suwarow.

KINCARDINE, a tn. and several pars. Scotland — 1, A bar of barony and seaport, co. Perth, r. bank Perth. This over 21 m. W by V Edinburgh, has narrow and irregular streets, and the older houses generally of one story and roofed with tile; the more modern of two or three stories and slated. It has a parish, a Free, and a U Presbyterian church. The port is advantageously situated for trade. The quay and harbour are commodious; the latter is secure and admits vessels of 800 to 400 tons. Coals are exported, and timber and other articles from Russia and Sweden imported. Ship-building is carried on to some extent. Pop. 2697—2, A par, on Ross 25 m by 30 m. Pop. 1898.—J (J. 1862) A par on Aberdeen 7 m by 5 m. Pop. 2098.—4, (see Montell) a par on Perth 7500 ac. Pop. 1198.

KINCARDINESHIRE, or the Mearns, a maritime co. Scotland E. coast, having Aberdeenshire N and W Forfar S, and W and the North Sea E. greatest length, 32 m. breadth, 24 m. area, 244,480 ac., of which 1280 ac. are water, about half the county is supposed to consist of cultivated land wood land improvable moor &c. The Glenmallo mountains, by which it is traversed N E to S W occupy a large portion of its surface, but their highest summit within the county is Bannock, only 9311 ft above sea-level. The more elevated regions of the county are sterile but there is a considerable proportion of comparatively low fertile, and generally well-cultivated land. The geological formations of the county comprise large proportions of red sandstone, gneiss, and granite, with narrow, parallel bands of mica and chlorite slates, running N E and S W. On some parts of the coast, the cliffs, consisting of alternate beds of fine sandstone and conglomerate with occasional veins and masses of trap rising to heights varying from 150 to 800 ft. nearly if not altogether inaccessible. In these rocks many curious caves and natural arches occur one of the latter being 150 yards long. The principal rivers are the Dea, North Esk, Bervie, and Dye. The arable land consists chiefly of a tract called the How of the Mearns. It contains about 50 000 ac. of comparatively low fertile, and generally well cultivated land, with about 7000 ac. of thriving plantations. On the E. the How is sheltered by a range of low hills which separate it from the coast district. The latter contains about 65 000 ac. of which about 33 000 ac. are in a high state of culture. The other arable districts consist of the narrow glen or valley lying along the Dea. The principal crops are wheat, barley, oats, beans, peas, turnips, potatoes, and flax. Cattle and sheep are reared also to a considerable extent. The manufactures are confined to some linen weaving and to the making of a peculiar kind of woaden stuff boxes of beautiful workmanship, carried on in the village of Laurencekirk. Kincardineshire contains 19 parishes, and one royal burgh—Bervie or Inverbervie, and sends one member to Parliament. Stonehaven is the principal town. Pop. (1841) 28 075. (1851) 34 598.

KINCLAVIN, par Scot. Perth 5 m. by 2 m. P 331. KINDBERG, or KINCROSS, a market in Austria, Styria, 40 miles and 11 m. N E Bruck, r bank Mura, about 2000 ft. above the sea. It contains a number of well built houses, a parish church, poorhouse, hospital and castle and has many features of arches and other articles in iron. Pop. 710.

KINDELBERG, a m. Prussia, prov Saxony gov and 19 m. N Bervie, r bank Wipper with a church the works, a saw and other mills and a trade in horses and cattle. Pop. 1604.

KINDERHOOK, a vill., U States, state and 19 m. S New York in a plain, 5 m. E the Hudson with a Dutch Reformed and a Baptist church, and an academy. P 1400.

KINDNIG, a market in Bavaria, 40 miles Middle Franconia, dist. and near Kipfenberg with a parish church a brewery a trade in cattle, and a paper, a saw and a flour mill. Pop. 738.

KINEAGH, par Ire. Carlow and Kildare 6299 ac. Pop. 325.

KINEL, a river Russia, which rises in a ramification of the Ural mountains, in the W of gov Orenburg flows first W N W to Bogovoslan then circuitously S W enters gov Simbirsk, and joins r bank Samara, about 20 m. above the town of Samara, after a course of nearly 170 m. It is remarkable for the impidity of its water.

KINELLAR, par Scot. Aberdeen 4000 ac. Pop. 590.

KINFARE, or KINYVA, par Eng. Stafford 8790 ac. Pop. 3678.

KINFAUNS, par Scot. Perth 4800 ac. Pop. 660.

KING.—1, An island co. New S Wales, 72 m. in length, breadth varying from 11 to 32 m. area, 1781 sq. m. at 1150 840 ac. It is watered by several streams, of which the Narrara is the principal. The chief towns is Gunning, 159 m. S W Sydney.—2 Several places, China particularly, a city prov Chihli, 165 m. S. Peking with a pagoda, three triumphal arches and a tower 11 stories high.

KING RAY, a beautiful bay Van Diemen's Land, at the upper or N end of Oyster Bay from which it is separated by a low sandy neck of land. The Great Swan Port river flows into it. lat. 42 10' S. lon. 148° 7' E.

KING CHARLES SOUTH LAND an isl. Tierra-del-Fuego, about 170 m. N to S. and 250 m. E to W, area, above 20 000 sq. m. On the N and E the surface is level, with occasional hills of low elevation but the S and W parts are occupied by mountains, of which the highest, Mount Sarmiento lat. 54° 27' 12" S, lon. 70° 51' 30" W (n), rises 6800 ft. above sea-level, and is covered with snow for nearly two-thirds of its height.

KING EDWARD par Scot. Aberdeen, 11 m. by 5 m. Pop. 3749.

KING GEORGE III'S, or STIKIA ARCHPELAGO an isl group, Russian America, discovered in 1741 by Alexei Tschirikow second in command of Balmir's expedition. It lies chiefly between lat. 56 and 58 N and includes the isle of Baranoff Admiralty Chelagoff &c.

KING GEORGE ISLAND two isls. R. Pacific Oc. Archipelago, about lat. 14° 22' S lon. 144° 58' W. KING GEORGE'S SOUND Australia, S W coast lat. (entrance) 33° 6' 30" S. lon. 118° 1' E. formed on the S side, by a promontory called Bald Head. It is a good roadstead and is partially sheltered from the prevalent E winds by two islands which lie at its entrance. It receives King and Kalapong rivers, and on its shores is the town of Albany. King George's Sound was discovered in the year 1792 by Capt. Vancouver.

KING ISLAND Merqui Archipelago 18 m. off Temasek coast lat. (P. ent) 12 15' N lon. 103° 28' E. about 23 m. broad by 10 m. broad. It is inhabited and affords plenty of large straight timber fit for masts and several parts of ships. Tigers and snakes abound in it.

KING WILLIAM'S TOWN a m. Cape Colony British Kaffraria, l. bank Bush or Gwokola about 4 m. from its junction with the Buffalo river 62 m. N N E Graham's Town, lat. 33° 10' S lon. 27° 30' E. It has the aspect of an Eng. lish village, but has been much injured by the Kaffre wars.

KING-CHUOT FOU a city China, prov Houpei, l. bank Yangtse-kiang lat. 30° 29' N lon. 111° 27' E. It is large, populous, and well fortified, with a numerous Tartar garrison, and is considered from its situation one of the keys of the empire. There are numerous lakes in the vicinity abounding in fish.

KING-ET TAO cap Corea. See HAW YANG.

KING-EN CHING, a m. in China, prov Kiangse, l. bank of a river that flows into the H E end of Lake Poyang lat. 29° 15' N lon. 116° 52' E. It is regularly built, but the streets, as usual are extremely narrow. The inhabitants were formerly mainly devoted to the manufacture of porcelain, which was considered the best in China. The pop. has been estimated at 1 000 000.

KINGAN FOU a considerable city China, prov Kiangse, l. bank Kan-kiang lat. 27° 7' N lon. 114° 22' E. A great portion of the space within the walls is occupied by gardens. The suburbs are the most thriving and commercial part. Extensive cotton and linen manufactures are carried on here.

KINGARTH par Scot. Bute 8325 ac. Pop. 1007.

KINGAVAR or KUGAVAR, a m. Persia prov Irak-Ajemi, 22 m. S W Hamadan. It was once a place of considerable importance, and is still entered by gates, though it has dwindled down into insignificance. It contains a small mosque and a bazaar and has in its vicinity ruins, supposed to be those of an ancient temple of Diana. Pop. about 1300.

KINGERRY par Eng. Lincoln 1450 ac. Pop. 108.

KINGHAM par Eng. Oxford 1877 ac. Pop. 617.

KINGHOEN a par l. port, seaport and par Scotland, co. Fife. The river situated on the Firth of Forth immediately opposite Leith, and 3 m. S. S. W Kirkcaldy a station on the Edinburgh and Northern railway has level and well paved streets, a handsome townhouse and jail, of Gothic architecture; a parish and several Dissenting churches, a borough and charity school, active linen manufactures, and a blackfield. The harbour is important, and few vessels now belong to the port. Knapen united with Kirkcaldy, &c., in returning a member to the House of Commons. Area of par., 8 sq. m. Pop. of bur. and par., 8000.

KINGLAKE, par. Scot. Fife, 5 m. by 3½ m. P. 1186. KINGOLDFORD, par. Scot. Perth, 20 sq. m. P. 419.

KING'S, with affixes, the name of several par. Eng.—1 (Chyde) Hereford 1687 ac. Pop. 279.—2 (Chyde) Northampton; 4460 ac. Pop. 1407.—3. (Nympton) Devon 5539 ac. Pop. 119.—4. (Pon or Pym) Hereford 2407 ac. Pop. 459.—5 (Stowley) Gloucester 1078 ac. Pop. 2095.—6. (Stanton) Northampton 3650 ac. Pop. 1285.—7 (Walden), Hert; 4180 ac. Pop. 1164.

KING'S COUNTY is named on Ireland near Queen's County and Tipperary W. by Tipperary, Galway and Ros common greatest length, 45 m., breadth, 39 m. area, 772 sq. m., or 493 985 ac. of which 827½ ac. are arable. A large portion of the N and E. part of this county is covered with the bog of Allen and of the b. with the Slieve Blower Mountains the extent of coniferous occupied by both being estimated at 145,586 ac. The former like all the other bogs have repose on limestone gravel; the latter consists of a nucleus of claystone, supporting banks of sandstone; they do not rise to any great height, their loftiest summit being only 1669 ft high. They extend, N.E. to N.W. through a distance of about 15 m. Crumlin limestone occurs in the N.W. of the county and has been quarried. The soil is in some places very rich, but in others it is light and gravelly at an average, it may be reckoned of a medium degree of fertility. A hill called Craghan Hill, which consists of a protruded mass of trap conglomerate, is almost all under cultivation, and yields the most abundant oats and green crops without any measure whatsoever. The general produce is oats, wheat, and potatoes. The tillage farms are generally small but there are some extensive grazing ones. The occupations are nearly altogether agricultural manufactures being only for home consumption. The latter include some linen frozes and sergees. King's County is divided into 12 baronies and 51 parishes and returns two members to Parliament, both for the county. Registered electors, 1851, 25,377. The principal towns are Bir or Person's Town, 10 par. (1841) 146,807, (1851) 112,080.

KING'S ISLAND.—1 At the N. entrance to Fovea Strait, about half way between Van Diemen's Land and Australia lat. (N. point) 39° 25' S. lon. 143° 57' E. It is 35 m. N. to S., and 13 m. E. to W., and is a continuous ridge of granite. The S.E. shore is steep, and the ground which rises abruptly over it, is almost denuded of wood. The soil is everywhere inferior, and is covered with dense scrub and impenetrable thickets, a few patches only of clean land being to be met with. There are three vast coves of kangaroos on the island and plenty of wild fowl on some of the lagoons. It is much frequented by seals, and is the permanent residence of some of them.—2, At the N. end of the Pacific, off W. coast, N. America, lat. 52° N. and lon. 129° W. It is of considerable extent, and forms the N.W. side of Buxia's canal. Its N.W. or treaty is named Point Edward which is opposite to the entrance of Dean's canal, and has to the N.W. of it Cascade canal, on the N.E. shore of which there are some magnificent cascades. This island was visited by Vancouver, who gave it his name, and about a month after by Sir Alex. Mackenzie, after his perilous journey across the continent.—3 A small ill. off the coast of Bengal, in the mouth of Nubhermooty river, lat. 21° 45' N. and lon. 88° 40' E., vessels anchor under it in 6 or 7 fathoms, sheltered from all winds.—4, An ill. belonging to the group of the Maldives, but better known by the name of Mafu, much less lat. 4° 10' N. lon. 72° 29' E. (N.).

KING'S LANGLEY or LANGLEY KNOX, a vil. and par. England, on Hertford. The village, 17 m. W. S.W. Hertford, has an ancient church, in which is the tomb of the 5th son of Edward III. a paper manufactory, and a station on the London and Birmingham railway. Area of par., 3460 ac. Pop. 1509.

KING'S MORTON or MORTON KING, a vil. and par. England, co. Worcester. The village, 5 m. S.S.W. Birmingham, has an ancient church in the decorated English style, with an elegant tower surmounted by a finely proportioned spire two chapels belonging to Baptists and Wesleyans and a school, founded by King Edward VI. The inhabitants are principally employed in agriculture. Area of par. 12,132 ac. Pop. 7159.—(Local Correspondent.)

KINGSBARN, par. Scot. Fife, 4 sq. m. Pop. 698. KINGSBRIDGE, a market in and par. England, co. Devon. The town 1½ m. S. S.E. Plymouth is generally situated on a rising ground at the foot of the eastern of two fens and separated on the E. from Dulbrook by a small rivulet called the Dod. The principal street is well kept, and the houses of recent erection are well built of stone. It has an ancient church with an unadorned tower surmounted by a spire three Dissenting chapels, and a Friends' meeting-house; free grammar and several private schools a literary and scientific institution, several friendly societies and a farmers club and handsome public rooms in the Indian style, where the petty session and county court are held, and in which are a new-room and corn exchange. The woollen manufacture was formerly carried on here to a great extent, but has been discontinued for several years, the last factory having been converted in 1845 into a large steam corn-mill. There are here two foundries a manufactory of agricultural implements, and a number of maling establishments. At the quay coasting vessels of 160 to 200 tons burden receive and deliver cargoes of coal, iron timber and general merchandise. Area of par. 50 ac. Pop. 1679.—(Local Correspondent.)

KINGSBURY three par. England.—1 Kidderley, 1765 ac. Pop. 606.—2 Warwick, 5070 ac. 10 p. 1416.—3 (Apswey) Banerret, 8046 ac. 10 p. 1857.

KINGSGATE, a market tn. and par. England. Mants. The town 10 m. N. Winchester contains a fine old cruciform church, with a large square tower and a handsome new church with a lofty spire several Dissenting chapels, an endowed school and various other charities. Near it are four semi-mills. Area of par. 19,917 ac. Pop. 2865.

KING'S COVE, a tn. in S. Australia, famous for oil on the point of land which separates the Bay of Sharks from Seal Bay. It is the principal settlement of the S. Australian company.

KINGSCOTT, par. Eng. Gloucester 1810 ac. P. 297. KINGSGALE, a market in Ireland to and 20 m. R.E. Cavan consisting of one long spacious but irregular street, formed of substantial stone houses roofed with slate.

It contains a handsome and commodious market-house a neat parish church and a Catholic and Wesleyan Methodist chapels a dispensary and several minor charities. 1 1143. KINGSDOWN, par. Eng. Dorset 2004 ac. Pop. 523.

KINGSDOWN, two par. Eng. Kent.—1, 650 ac. 10 p. 84.—2 2780 ac. Pop. 451.

KINGSTON, par. Eng. Bucks 140 ac. Pop. 233. KINGSKILLING, par. Eng. Devon 1744 ac. P. 959.

KINGSLAND.—1 A par. England co. Hertford, where, in 1461 the battle of Mortimer's cross was fought, between Edward Duke of York afterwards Edward IV. and the Earl of Pembroke in which the former obtained a victory that was the means of placing him on the throne. Area of par. 4785 ac. Pop. 118.—2 A hamlet, England co. Middlesex 1 to N.E. London of which it may be regarded as a suburb. Much of the ground is occupied by market gardens and nurserymen.

KINGSLY two par. Eng.—1 Hants 1776 ac. Pop. 387.—2 Bedford 4714 ac. Pop. 1565.

KINGSMILL, L. Jamaica, Paria. See GIBBERT LAMONT.

KINGSNORTH, par. Eng. Kent, 3245 ac. Pop. 474. KINGSTON, par. Eng. Devon 1204 ac. P. 1858.

KINGSTON, par. Eng. Northampton, 1890 ac. 10 p. 1696.

KINGSTON several par. England.—1 Cambridge 1807 ac. Pop. 315.—2 Devon 2373 ac. Pop. 523.—3, Hants; 665 ac. Pop. 65.—4 Stafford; 2009 ac. Pop. 326.—5 Sussex 553 ac. 10 p. 40.—6, (Rugby), Berks 1087 ac. Pop. 887.—7 (Dorset) Wilts 2069 ac. Pop. 402.—8 (near Lewes) Sussex, 1668 ac. 10 p. 124.—9 (Hants) Dorset 1147 ac. Pop. 84.—10 (by Sea) Sussex 799 ac. Pop. 155.—11 (Sussex) Somerset; 8425 ac. Pop. 378.—12 (near Dorset) Nottingham; 1209 ac. Pop. 196.

KINGSTON a tn. U. States and 57 m. S. by W. New York, 3 m. W. the Hudson, with a court-house, jail, secondary, four churches, and some manufactures of iron, tobacco, and leather. Pop. 2500.

KINGSTON, the capital of Jamaica, on Surrey St. coast lat. 17° 45' N. lon. 76° 50' W. on a gentle slope. The streets are long and straight, and laid-out with great regularity. The houses are generally built of brick and are two stories high, having the fronts shaded by a piazza below and a covered gallery above; the latter, from 12 to 14 ft. wide, gaily painted with green and white, and formed by the roof projecting beyond the brick walls or shells of the houses. Where the houses are contiguous to each other the piazzas form a covered way affording grateful shelter from the sun. In the upper part of the town every house stands detached from its neighbour in its little garden, filled with vines, fruit-trees, and stately palms, with a court of negro houses and offices behind. The principal public buildings are the English and Scotch churches the former which stands in a commanding position is a large and elegant structure, with four aisles and a handsome tower and spire, several chapels, two synagogues, an hospital, and various other charitable institutions, a courthouse, free school, theatre, workhouse, new penitentiary commercial subscription rooms, barracks, and jail. The market-place is in the lower part of the town, near the water-side, and is plentifully supplied with butcher-meat, poultry, turkeys, fish, fruits, and vegetables. The fruits include the finest pine-apples, and the vegetables nearly all those known in Europe. The harbour which is 6 m long by 2 m wide, is completely land locked being separated from the sea by a narrow slip of low land along which there is excellent anchorage for vessels of any size. The entrance to the harbour and the harbour itself, is defended by several formidable forts. The inclined plain on which Kingston stands is enclosed on the N by the loftiest ridge of the Blue Mountain chain and the intermediate space agreeably diversified with country residences, and, near the mountains with sugar estates. A railway between Kingston and Spanish Town, 10 m W., was opened in 1846. Pop. estimated at 35,000.

KINGSTON is a town, Upper Canada, Midland District, on Huron Bay the N.E. corner of Lake Ontario, 190 m. S.W. Montreal about lat. 44° 14' N. lon. 76° 30' W. The streets are regularly laid-out at right angles to each other; and the houses, although in general having no pretensions to elegance, are, for the most part, substantially built of stone. The market-house is a spacious structure, containing news and reading rooms, and various public offices. The places of worship are three Episcopal two E. Catholic, one Presbyterian, two Methodist, one Baptist, and one Irvingite. There is also a college-like institution belonging to the Presbyterians, together with a workhouse, institute, an hospital, and other charitable establishments. The trade of the port is very considerable, and the harbour, which is commodious and well sheltered, is accessible to ships not drawing more than 18 ft of water. Its entrance is defended by two batteries. There are some valuable mineral springs in the town and neighbourhood. Kingston was founded in 1783 on the ground formerly occupied by Fort Frontenac and it was incorporated in 1858. P (1853), 11,565.

Vol. II.

KINGSTON-UPON-HULL, a town in England. See HULL.

KINGSTON UPON THAMES, a municipal bor., market town, and par., in England, co. Surrey. The town, 10 m S.W. London, is bank Thames, here crossed by an elegant bridge, of five elliptical arches, has a station on South Western railway. It is well paved, lighted with gas and amply supplied with water. The streets of late years have been greatly improved, and near the railway station a new town is in course of erection. The public buildings include a town hall market-house and jail. It has an ancient cruciform church various Dissenting places of worship a Friends meeting-house, a free grammar-school a blue coat school and other charities a large brewery and distillery, several flour and oil mills and a considerable trade in malt. Kingston is a place of great antiquity and numerous interesting Roman remains have been discovered in the neighbourhood. Pop. 6279. Area of par., 4765 ac. Pop. 12,144.

KINGSTON three pars. Eng. —1 Hereford; 1891 ac. Pop. 510. —2 Kent 1535 ac. Pop. 310. —3, Somerset, 5477 ac. Pop. 308.

KINGSTOWN, a seaport in Ireland co. and 6 m S.E. Dublin with which and with Belfast it is connected by railway. It lies on the S. shore of Dublin Bay and has regular streets, partly paved, and well lighted with gas, and contains some fine terraces, and other elegant houses. The Established church is a spacious structure. There are also a R. Catholic chapel two Dissenting chapels, and several public schools. It has a magnificent harbour of refuge, commenced in 1816, after designs by Rennie, consisting of two piers and a breakwater. The E. pier is 3500 ft. long and the W. 4800 ft. with an entrance 550 ft. wide and including an area of 250 ac. with a depth of from 15 to 37 ft. A wharf of 500 feet long extends along the breast of the harbour opposite the entrance, where ships of any burden may receive or discharge their cargoes. Kingstown has regular steam-boat communication with Holyhead Liverpool and Dublin. It has become a favorite resort of the wealthy citizens of Dublin and is much frequented during summer for bathing. The imports consist of coal, iron and timber, while grain cattle, lead-ore, and granite of excellent quality obtained in the neighbourhood are exported. Upwards of 2000 vessels, averaging more than 300,000 tons burden, enter and leave the harbor annually. Pop. 10,458.

KINGWEAR, par. Eng. Devon 152 ac. Pop. 316.

KINGSWINFORD par. Eng. Stafford 7315 ac. P 27,301.

KINGSWOOD par. Eng. Gloucester formerly in Wilts 2350 ac. Pop. 1227.

KINGTON, a market town and par. England, co. and 18 m N.W. Hereford pleasantly situated below Bradfordbury chiefly bank Arrow. It is lighted with gas is the seat of a county court, and a poor-law union, and has an ancient and handsome parish church Independent, Baptist, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapel a free, and two national schools a savings bank and manufactures of glass and sails trade very limited. Area of par., 8818 ac. Pop. 2871.

KINGTON or KINSTON a market town and par. England, co. Warwick. The town, 24 m S.E. Warwick is very irregularly built houses mostly of blue limestone obtained in the neighbourhood many of them thatched, supply of water good. It has an ancient cruciform church with a square tower. Wesleyan and Independent chapels a national and two private schools. Kington derives its name from having formerly been a royal residence—King John having held his court in a castle near the town. Near the town Oct. 23 1642 was fought the memorable battle of Edgehill between the royal army and that of the Parliament, commanded by the Earl of Essex. Area of par., 8910 ac. Pop. 1370. —(Local Correspondent).

KINGTON five pars. Eng. —1 Worcester 1000 ac. Pop. 1065. —2, (Magna) Dorset 1891 ac. Pop. 569. —3, (St. Michael) Wilts 4180 ac. Pop. 1219. —4, (West) Wilts 8441 ac. Pop. 363.

KINGSHIRE par. Scot. Inverness 21 m. by 18 P 2301.

KINGWESTON par. Eng. Somerset; 1165 ac. P 149.

KINIBALOO, a mountain and lake Bernese (which see).

KINISCHNA, or KINISCHNA is a Russian, gov. and 50 m. S.E. Kostroma, circ. circles and at the confluence of a stream of its name, with r. bank Volga. It is an old place, has five churches; manufactures of common linen and damask some general trade, and an annual fair which lasts 14 days.

Pop. 2550.—The climate generally flat, and very much like good pasture, and is well wooded. Pop. 96,800

KINJORE, a lake or pond, Schide, lat. 54° 51' N., lon. 66° 0' E. It consists of an extensive expanse of stagnant and brackish water covered by the lagoon during the wet season, and left exposed, when it recedes within its banks from which it is about 3 m. W. It presents the appearance of a fine lake, and, some with fish, which are caught in great numbers by the inhabitants in the vicinity.

KINLEY, par Scot. Selk., 6691 ac. Pop. 447

KINLOCH, par Scot. Elgin, 4 m. by 4. Pop. 1370

KINNAIRD, par Scot. Perth, 3 m. by 3. Pop. 370

KINNAIRD'S HAZEN, a promontory Scotland co. Aberdeen, about 1 m. N. Fraserburgh, on which is a light house with fixed light 130 ft. above sea-level, lat. 57° 41' 42" N., lon. 2° 1' 30" W. (N.)

KINNEFF, par Scot. Kinross, 6406 ac. P. 1068

KINNEGAD, a in Ireland, co. Westmeath 12 m. S. S. E. Mullingar, with a neat Gothic Established church a R. Catholic chapel national school dispensary and considerable barracks. Inhabitants, agricultural labourers. Pop. 684

KINNEIGH, par Scot. Cork 15,096 ac. Pop. 5421

KINNEL, par Scot. Forfar 8 m. W. Pop. 826

KINNEIRIE, par Eng. Salop, 6891 ac. Pop. 1254

KINNEBLEY, two par. Eng.—1 Hereford, 3199 ac. Pop. 293.—2, Salop 1799 ac. Pop. 259

KINNESWOOD, a vil. Scotland co. 5 m. E. Kinross, picturesque situated on Loch Leven the birth-place of the poet Richard Bruce. Inhabitants weavers. Pop. 479

KINNETT, par Scot. Perth 3078 ac. Pop. 460

KINNETT, a in and par Ireland. King's The rows 13 m. S. W. Tallamore, on the road to Farnsworth is well built and contains the parish church a R. Catholic chapel several free schools, a dispensary and a convalescent police station. Area of par 13,860 ac. Pop. 1098.

KINNOUL, par Scot. Perth 12 m. by 4 m. P. 654

KINNOULTON, par Eng. North 3070 ac. Pop. 405

KINROSS, a in, and par Scotland co. Kinross. The rows is pleasantly situated at the W. end of Loch Leven 20 m. S. by W. Edinburgh formerly a moss-looking place but of late years greatly improved by the erection of new buildings lighting the streets with gas, &c. It contains a county hall and church, both handsome edifices a Free and two L. Presbyterian churches a parochial and some other schools, a savings bank and various benevolent and charitable institutions. Cotton-weaving, and the manufacture of tartan shawls, plaids and other articles, are the principal branches of industry. Pop. of in 2690 of par 3227

KINROSS-SHIRE, a small island co. Scotland W. of Fife, and entirely surrounded by that county and Perthshire length, 11 m., breadth 10 m., area, 60,660 ac., of which 4460 ac. are water constituting principally of Loch Leven. The borders are hilly but the interior is generally level or slightly varied by gentle elevations. In the lower districts to the N. and W. of the lake, the soil is clayey sandy and tolerably fertile but in the more elevated parts it is unproductive being mostly moorland and mossy the former however affords excellent pasturage. Oats constitute the principal crop grown. The general geological formation of the district is red freestone, but the higher hills are whinstone or basalt. There are quarries of freestone and freestone, but no coal. The county contains several lakes the principal of which is Loch Leven (which see) covering a surface of 1200 ac. That, and some of the other lakes, abound in fish. The principal streams are the Garry the S. and N. Quich all of which fall into Loch Leven. Kinross, the county town, and Milnathort, are the only towns in the county. Kinross-shire contains seven parishes, and unites with Clackmannanshire and certain parishes in the S. W. part of Perthshire, in returning a member to the House of Commons. Pop. (1841) 8763; (1851) 8914.

KINSALE, a port bar, and market in, Ireland co. Cork. The town 12 m. S. E. Cork, is agreeably situated near the mouth of the Brandon, which here forms a magnificent harbour about 2 m. long, with a medium width of 6 m., accessible, at almost all times of the tide, to ships of the heaviest burden. It is built on the acclivity of a steep hill, and the streets, which rise in an irregular manner, are inaccessible to carriages, except from the summit of the hill, and the houses, many of which occupy sites excavated in the solid rock, while others are perched on the summit of rocky crags, present a singular and picturesque appearance. The public buildings include the town hall and jail an infantry barracks, a union workhouse, a fever hospital, and dispensary and several public schools. The parish church is a venerable and spacious cruciform structure, with a tower surmounted by a spiral; the R. Catholic chapel is a spacious edifice, and richly decorated within. It also has a convent of the Sisters of Mercy, and a Carmelite monastery; to the latter of which a chapel is attached. The only other places of worship are meeting houses for Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists. From its proximity to Cork and Queenstown Kinross, notwithstanding its advantageous situation possesses a very limited trade. A good deal of business is, however done in butter and mulling and hawking are carried on to a considerable extent. There are also large corn mills. The exports consist chiefly of agricultural produce, and the imports, of timber coal iron, and salt. The fishery employs a great number of the inhabitants, who are reckoned the most expert fishermen in Ireland. Kinross is much resorted to in summer as bathing quarters. It is a place of great antiquity, and was for a long period the most important resort on the S. coast of Ireland. It has been frequently besieged and in the reign of Charles II. a strong fort was erected, which completely commands the harbour and town and, together with the barracks already mentioned is capable of accommodating 2000 men. Kinross gives the title of Premier Baron of Ireland to the De Courcy family, descendants of the Duke of Normandy and whose representative is entitled to wear his hat in the royal presence; a privilege asserted by the late Baron Kinross at Dublin castle before George IV. on his visit to Ireland in 1811. It returns a member to the House of Commons. Registered electors (1851) 189. Pop. in and bar 5506

KINSALE (OLD HEAD OF), a headland Ireland, co. Cork 5 m. S. W. the entrance to Kinross harbour projecting about 4 m. into the Atlantic, and having a fixed light, 294 ft. high, lat. 51° 38' 45" N., lon. 8° 22' 15" W. (N.)

KINSALEBOG, par Eng. Warrford, 5769 ac. P. 2526

KINSALEBY, par Scot. Perth 3190 ac. Pop. 648

KINSHAM (LRYAN), par Eng. Hereford 1943 ac. P. 77

KINTAIL, par Scot. Ross 13 m. by 6 m. Pop. 1009.

KINTANG, KINTONG, or SILVER ISLAND China, belonging to the archipelago of China being situated between that island and the mouth of the Ningpo about lat. 50° N. and lon. 121° 40' E. greatest length N. N. W. to S. E. E. about 7 m. mean breadth about 2 m. It consists of a succession of beautiful hills and valleys, finely wooded, well cultivated, and covered with villages. The green tea shrub, which is very extensively cultivated in its interior, furnishes much tea for export, though not prepared so as to meet the European and American markets; and among its trees are great numbers of the tallow-trees (Stillingia adijerica) the seeds of which are carefully gathered for the oil and allow they contain and the Tancang (Dryas cordata) often called the varnish tree, because its oil is much used in preparing the celebrated Chinese varnish. The chief town or village on the island is the small resort of Tsh-hong.

KINTON, par Eng. Berks 7645 ac. Pop. 1890

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINTORE, a royal and par Scot. co. Perth

KINVARADOORUS, par. Irel. Galway, 11 290 sq. Pop. 4388.

KINWARTON, par. Eng. Warwick; 480 sq. Pop. 79
KINZIG, a river, Germany, which rises in the Black Forest, near Freudenstadt, in the W part of the kingdom of Württemberg; flows S.W. to Rhliland, in Baden then almost due W, to Hamsbach when it changes its course N.N.W. passes Odenbach and joins a bank Rhine at Kohl opposite to Strasbourg, about a course of about 80 m. Its principal affluent is the Sauter, which joins it on the left, near its mouth.

KINZIOPTAI, a vil. Baden circle Middle Rhine, ball, and near Wolfach. It consists of several distinct places, and has a parish church. Pop. 1897

KIO-TWAO or KU-TWAO, a city China prov. and 76 m N.E. by E Yunnan, lat. 25° 04' N lon 103° 55' E. The country around is highly cultivated, and watered by canals.

KIOEL, or KOLAX, a group of mountains, Norway forming the longest part of the Scandinavian system. They link with the N. extremity of the Dovrefjell and stretch S.W. to N.N.E. as far as Rensfjell, to the W of Lake Tormed lat. 68° 20' N. There its central chain makes its nearest approach to the sea, and meets with the most N. Norwegian group, consisting chiefly of the Isles of Lofoden though these are, more properly only a continuation of its chain. Its culminating point Kullfarna in lat. 67° 05' N, lon. 16° 15' E has a height of 6346 ft.

KIOGE a tn. Denmark. See Kåben.

KIONG TOWNE a tn. China. See KIUO-CHAU PU
KIPFENBERG, a market in Bavaria, circle Middle Franconia, on the Altmühl here crossed by a bridge, 81 m W.S.W. Ratibon, with two churches and a castle, a tannery brewery and dyeworks. Pop. 729.

KIPFAX par. Eng. York W. Riding; 3344 a. P. 2838
KIPPE, par. Scot. Sutherland 8 m by 4 m. Pop. 1892

KIPPENHEIM a tn. Baden circle, Middle Rhine, 20 m. S.S.E. Strasbourg, with a church, a synagogue, a weekly market, and two annual fairs. Pop. 1917

KIPTCHAK, a tn. Independent Tartary, Khanate, and 68 m. N.N.W. Khiva, on the canal of Kioschagaly on a small height near the Arcoo. It consists of 200 houses, contains five mosques, and about 70 shops, and is inhabited chiefly by Uzbeks, who live by fishing.

KIR-SIRKHA, a tn. Asiatic Turkey cap. dist. of its own name, a bank of an affluent of the Klail Irnak pass. Kara-senna, 76 m N.W. Kasariak, 5086 ft. above sea-level, in the fertile plain of Bogher. It is in a miserable state of decay the houses were mud, devoid of the meanest decoration, and the mosques and khans in ruins or abandoned. In its better days, Kir-Shebe was renowned for its beautiful and luxuriant gardens, which stretched for miles around it. At a short distance from the town is a hot spring, and some rocks of travertine. Pop. about 4000.

KIRALY HELYNEK, a market tn. Hungary, Hither Thales, ca. and 9 m. E. Szeged with two churches. Its district is famous for fruit, particularly cherries. Pop. 1290

KIRALY (MAYVAY SZARV), two nearly contiguous vills. Hungary, ca. and 18 m. from Veszprem, on the road to Bakh, in the Bakony region; with a Protestant and a E. Catholic church, and a trade in wine, cattle, and timber. Pop. 860

KIRALYFA (MOSON) or KUNOSMOR a vil. Hungary, Hither Danube, ca. and 19 m. from Presburg, in a fertile district, where much corn and wine are produced. Pop. 1263

KIRALYFALVA, or KUNOSMOR, a vil. Hungary, Hither Danube, ca. Ebering on the Lapins, near the frontiers of Styria, 5 m. from Friesenfeld with a church. Pop. 1178

KIRBERG, a vil. Nassau, ball. and 7 m. S. Limburg; with a parish church, and a trade in timber. Pop. 1377

KIRBY, with offices, alias post. Eng. — 1 (Bedon), Norfolk 338 a. P. 296—2, (Bellows) Leicestershire, 2590 a. P. 236—8 (Cum) Norfolk, 1475 a. P. 403—4, (Cold), York (N. Riding); 1620 a. P. 179—5 (under Dale) York (E. Riding) 5049 a. P. 239—8, (Knosote) York (N. Riding); 4101 a. P. 564—7, (on the Moor or Kirby Hill), York (N. Riding) 1958 a. P. 637—8, (de Scales) Essex, 4761 a. P. 692—9 (de Scales), York (E. Riding) 5823 a. P. 777

KIRCH-GEORGENBURG, a vil. Denmark, Duchy Holstein, about 4 m. S.E. Hamburg. It stands partly on an alluvial and partly in a valley on a brook which, after furnishing water-power to five mills, falls into the Baltic.

KIRCHHART, a vil. Baden, circle Lower Rhine, ball, and near Hamsbach, with a parish church and a brewery. P. 1123.

KIRCHBERG, two places, Rhenish Prussia—1, A vil., gov. and 39 m. S.S.W. Coblenz. It has a court of justice, two churches, a synagogue, and burgher school manufactures of linen, a trade in wood and cattle and several mills. Pop. 1490—2 A vil., gov. Aiz-la-Chapelle, circle and near Jülich, with a E. Catholic church, a paper and an oil mill. P. 541

KIRCHBERG, a tn. Saxony, circle Zwilcker, cap. ball, of same name, 30 m. S.W. Chemnitz. It is a well built, most of the houses being modern, and covered with slate; has a handsome church, with a tower in which there is a fine chime of bells, and manufactures of woolen and linen cloth, tile-works, several mills, a trade in cattle, and three annual fairs. Pop. (1848) 4369; ball. 14,631

KIRCHBERG, a vil. and par. Switzerland, on St. Gall, cap. circle of same name, in the Turgau 1 bank Thur. It is well built, contains a new and handsome parish church, used in common by Protestants and E. Catholics, and has manufactures of cotton goods and tobacco. Pop. 3780

KIRCHBERG, numerous places, Austria, particularly—1 (Kirchberg-am Wald), A market in Lower Austria, 5 m. S. Behrems, with a church, a castle, on a height, manufactures of linen and near it two powder-mills. Pop. 791—2, (Kirchberg-am Wagram), A market in Lower Austria, on a height of Mount Wagram, near Walkersdorf with a hand some old church, tile-works, and some trade in wine, fruit, and coffee. Pop. 659.

KIRCHBROMBAACH, a market tn. Hesse-Darmstadt, prov. Starkenburg, dist. Brunsbach with a church, and tile-works. Pop. 1189

KIRCHBÜLL, a vil. Austria, Tyrol circle Schwyz, near Kals, with a parish church and a school. 1 1071

KIRCHDORF—1 A market in Upper Austria, circle and 14 m. E.N.E. Traun, in a beautiful valley with an ancient church and a chapel, and the old castle of Purgstall. Pop. 1189—2 (Kirchdorf or Segen Varello) A tn. Hunsr., ca. Zips in a low but beautiful valley 8 m. S.E. E. Leutschau. It is for the most part well built of trap, contains a cathedral and a castle, the residence of the bishop, both situated on a height and surrounded by walls and bastions a Protestant church a convent of the Brothers of Mercy, a normal and a grammar-school, and has extensive manufactures of red woollen shawls, which have a large sale in Croatia a trade in flax and hops, and four important annual fairs. Pop. 2650—5, (for Wustrow), A vil. Mecklenburg-Schwedt, circle Wenden, ball and near Salinitz, with a parish church, two schools, and two mills. Pop. 947

KIRCHDORF, two places, Switzerland—1 A vil. and par. ca. and 11 m. S.S.E. Bern, beautifully situated on a fertile hill near Gorgen Lake. It is surrounded with fine villas, contains a parish church, and has near it the ruins of the old castle of Utigen, and the baths of Linspach. P. 1927

—2 A vil. and par., on Argau cap. circle of same name, beautifully situated in the middle of a fertile plain, a bank Lake E.N.E. Aargau. It includes several villages, which together form the united parishes of Ober and Unter Sigmund. It contains a parish church. Pop. 1900

KIRCHEN a vil. Baden, circle Upper Rhine, ball and near Lörrach, with a church, a synagogue, a brewery, dyeworks, and four mills. Pop. 903

KIRCHEN KRAZANO, a vil. Württemberg circle Jaxt, ball, and near Weiskirchen with a church. Pop. 1051

KIRCHENLAMTZ, a market tn. Bavaria, circle Upper Franconia, cap. dist. of same name, a bank Lahn, 34 m. N.E. Bielefeld, with two churches, a castle, and townhouse, manufactures of linen and earthenware, and several mills. Pop. in 1400 dist. 10,659

KIRCHENT ELLINGSFURT a vil. Württemberg circle Schwabach, in a fertile district, with a church, a trade in corn, and sandstone quarries. Pop. 1447

KIRCHENFRUMBACH, a market tn. Bavaria, Upper Palatinate, on the Thannbach 15 m. S.E. Burauk, with two churches, a townhouse, cattle, and porcelain, and a fishery. Pop. 730

KIRCHET a vil. and par. Switzerland, on Bern, near Meyringen; named for a remarkable hill which stretches across the valley of Heali, and appears to have at one time flanked up the Aar which now flows its way through a dark and narrow ravine, the sides of which in some parts almost meet. The top of the hill of Kirches is 760 ft. above the Aar and 5800 ft. above the sea-level. Pop. par., 1362.

KIRCHHATTEN, or HATTEN a vil. Oldenburg, circle and near the town of Oldenburg with one of the oldest churches in the duchy. Pop. 814.

KIRCHHAYN,—1 A. in. Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. and 64 m. S.W. Frankfurt, on the Little Elster. It has a church, a townhouse, and manufactory of woollen cloth, earthenware, and leather. Pop. 2090.—2 A. in. Hesse-Cassel, Oberhessen, cap. circle of same name, at the confluence of the Werra and Ohre, 43 m. S.W. Cassel. It was once a place of considerable strength, and is still walled, contains a church, and has the works, and a trade in cattle. Pop. in 1819 circle area, 104 sq. m. Pop. 26,204.

KIRCHHEIM three places, Württemberg.—1 (Unter-Tell) a. circle Danube, cap. bail, of same name, 30 m. N.W. Ulm. It is well built, and surrounded with planted boundaries, contains two churches, a castle, Latin and grammar-school, and hospital, and has manufactory of articles in stone and a trade in wool and wine. Pop. in 1856 bail area, 64 sq. m. Pop. 5,500.—2 (Ober-Tell), A. vil. circle and L. bail Koenigs, here crossed by a ferry, 8 m. S.W. Heilbronn. It lies in a fertile wine valley, and has an elegant townhouse. Pop. 1914.—3 (am der Eger) A. vil. circle Kocher bail, Nuremberg, on the Eger with two elegant churches, and near it a Cistercian convent, founded in 1207. Pop. 1011.

KIRCHHEIM,—1 A. vil. Baden circle Lower Rhine, bail, and near Heesberg, with a parish church. Pop. 1811.—2 (am der Eder), A. vil. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, dist. Würzburg, with a parish church. Pop. 1041.—3, A. vil. Bavaria, circle Gumbach, on the Fränk, 58 m. W. N. W. Munich. It belongs to the Counts of Freggen-Turkheim, contains their castle, a parish church, and Dominican monastery, and has an oil-mill, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 792.

KIRCHHOLMBOLANDEN, a. m. Bavaria, Palatinate, cap. dist. of same name, 30 m. N.W. Speier. It has a justice-of-peace court, and other public offices, a R. Catholic and two Protestant churches, a castle, and a Latin school, manufactory of musical instruments, iron-works, two mills, and mines of tin and quicksilver. Pop. in 2000 dist., 61,537.

KIRCHSCHLAG, a market in Lower Austria, in the valley of the Eder, 47 m. S. W. Vienna, surrounded by old walls, fortified with towers. It has a large and handsome Gothic church, and an old castle. P. 1040.

KIRCHSPILLWALD, a vil. or rather number of separate vils. Rhodish Prussia, gov. Düsseldorf, circle Kempen, with a parish church. Pop. 1497.

KIRCHWAEDER, a vil. and par. Hamburg, on the free Eder, opposite to Harburg and 9 m. S.E. Hamburg, it forms the most S. of the V. lighthouse, and contains a parish church. Pop. 3023.

KIRCHWOBIS, a vil. Prussia, prov. Saxony gov. Erfurt, circle Weimar, with a R. Catholic church, a church-field, and a mill. Pop. 895.

KIRCHZELL, a market in Bavaria, Lower Franconia, dist. Amberg with a church manufactory of linen, and flour, saw bone, and oil mills. Pop. 990.

KIRCHUBIN, a market in Ireland, co. Down, E. shore Strangford Lough, 10 m. N.E. Newton-Ards. It has a neat market-house, and a brew-house hall, and manufactory of straw hats and bonnets. Pop. 621.

KIRDFORD, par. Eng. Sussex 12 275 m. Pop. 1065.

KIRENGHA, a vil. Asiatic Russia, which runs in the W. side of the range which skirts the W. shore of Lake Baikal, gov. Irkutsk, flows N. through a mountainous district, and joins r. bank Lena, a little below Kyznet, after a course of nearly 200 m.

KIRENN, a. m. Asiatic Russia, gov. and 400 m. N. N. E. Irkutsk, cap. circle of same name, in a wild but picturesque and wooded district r. bank Lena, at the confluence of the Kianggha. It consists of wooden houses of a black colour and has several churches, a valuable fishery, particularly of salmon, and a considerable trade in cattle, salt, and furs. Pop. 600.—The circle has an unending surface, continuously broken by lofty hills, great numbers of cattle, and produce valuable salt mines.

KIRGHIZ (THE LAND OF THE), a vast region of Asia, continuous with S.W. Siberia, and embracing under one loosely applied name, the territories or lands of two wholly distinct nations; namely,—1, The Steppe of the Kirghiz-Kazaks, who are the Kirghiz of European travellers and geographers, though Asiatics never confound them with the Kirghiz properly so called, but name them simply Kazaks. If we trace the N.E. shore of the Caspian Sea to the river Ural and ascending this river to the Russian frontier near Orenburg, follow the actual boundary-line of the Russian empire N. E. and S. E., to the frontiers of Chinese Tartary, we shall have no far marked out the limits of the Kirghiz steppes. In S. limits, beyond Turkistan, Bokhara, and Khiva, are probably undefined and at all events pass through countries of which Europeans know but little. The steppes, at its most N. point approaches the L. bank of the Irish river (Irak) in lat. 55° N. It extends from lon. 55° to 75° 30' E., or about 1200 m. W. to E. In the S., the nomades hardly ever go beyond the 43d parallel. The superficial extent of the region thus indicated, cannot fall much short of 300,000 sq. m. It terminates in the S.E. at the Altai mountains, where—2, the Home of the Kara-Kipchaks (Black Kirghiz) commences. These latter are the people to whom the name Kirghiz is confined by Asiatic historians. They are called by their Mongolian neighbours Baruts or Iruts. Their encampments extend over the Altai, Muntau and other mountains about Jeken Qashgar and Iarkand, and are occasionally met with much further to the E. but the obscurity which still involves that part of the earth does not permit the attempt to define their limits. Here we shall confine our attention to what is called the steppes of the Kirghiz.

Aspect.—It must not be supposed that the steppes is a level tract. It is collectively an undulating country presenting different aspects and characters in different quarters, and the level portions of which bear but a small proportion to the whole. In its N. portion, along the Russian frontier and chiefly towards the W. it embraces several well watered valleys capable of cultivation. Further S.W. also, the hilly country K. and E. of the river Ural, offers in many places all the advantages of wood, water and good soil. Thence S.E. the plain grows continually more sterile and dreary. The N.E. shores of the Caspian Sea are, for a hundred miles, thickly overgrown with reeds, which gather the drifting sands so that the land here grows constantly on the sea, and a low sandy waste, interspersed with salt-marshes, extends a long way N.E. Immediately above this desert, on the E. and S.E. rises the Ust-Urt or high plain which stretches between the Caspian Sea and the Sea of Aral, and terminates S. in a precipitous fall generally inaccessible. The greatest absolute elevation of the Ust-Urt is 720 ft. It forms bald, lofty cliffs everywhere along the W. side of the Sea of Aral. It borders the Caspian for only 60 m. along the gulf of Türk Kesen (lat. 44° to 46°). S. it extends to lat. 41° 30' N. N. of the Sea of Aral are the deserts known as the Great and Little Sandy Deserts. Thence to the E. and N. W. the Kirghiz steppes is a black arid waste, varied only with occasional salt-pools, tall the hills on its E. borders are approached, when running waters, trees, and fresh herbage reappear. S. the sands in creases. The desert of Kara-Kum (Kum means sand), with an area of 10 000 sq. m., occupies both banks of the Syr Daria, which falls into the Sea of Aral, and further S., the desert of Kuzil-Kum has perhaps an equal extent.

Mountains.—Of the mountains lying within the steppes, the following deserve mention.—The Uting, or great mountain, in lon. 67° E. and stretching N. from lat. 46° N., said by the Kirghiz to be the highest in their plains. They seem to be connected with the chain of the Altai (that is, uninterrupted) mountains further E. Still further E. are the Irmud mountains. The Ak-tau (white mountains) are known only by name. The Kara-tau (black mountains) separate the steppes from Turkistan, and abound in mines of iron and copper. Few of the mountains within the steppes have an elevation exceeding 2000 ft.

Sea and Lakes.—The Sea of Aral (which see) is encompassed on three sides, W. N. and E. by the two basins of the Kirghiz, the great Caspian, and Hyrcanian Sea of the Atlantic, following in a hooked figure round the great peninsula of the Ust-Urt. Salt lakes are scattered over the parts of the steppes so thickly as to defy enumeration. In the E., towards the mountains of Turkistan, their size and importance increase. Lake Balkhash has a length of 120 m., and is fed by the Ili, and other rivers from Turkestan. Lake Zalsan receives and gives a passage to the Irtysh one of the greatest rivers of Siberia. The lake Akhsal Kurbi form a remarkable group, about five days' journey N. E. of the Sea of Aral and with the great thickness that separates or environ them cover an area of some hundreds of sq. m.

Climate.—A region so extensive as the steppes of the Kirghiz, must necessarily present varieties of climate, depending on latitude or local circumstances, yet, with all these shades of difference, the steppes are everywhere characterized by immediate temperature, or excessive heat and cold. In summer, the heat of the bare arid plains is insupportable; the thermometer rises, in the shade, to 110° F. and even on the banks of the Ural, in the latitude of Paris, the sand becomes hot enough to roast eggs. In winter, the cold is equally intense. Arrows have perished of cold on the banks of the Syr Daria, in the latitude of Bordeaux (45°) and on the Ust-Urt, the mercury of the thermometer is often frozen. The transition from one of these extremes to the other is, at certain seasons, inconceivably rapid. Nor must we omit the fury of the winds. The hurricanes of the steppes sweep off houses, trees, and cattle irresistibly, and, in particular, are often blown away for miles, till buried in a snow drift. Another prevailing character of this climate is its excessive dryness. Run seldom falls in the steppes, except near the mountains, and there only during the autumnal months.

Produce.—The several low ranges of mountains which stretch from the Uralian chain into the Kirghiz steppes, are all said by the natives to contain gold, but hitherto no deposits have been found so rich as to remunerate for the labour of washing them. Silver ores, also, are said to be rich and abundant near the little Nura, and on the banks of several streams falling into the Irtish. Copper mines exist in the same quarter. Iron is still more plentifully distributed throughout the steppes. One of the richest known deposits of iron occurs on the banks of the Chirchik. Dorduk which joins the Irtish. But these ores have little value in a country thinly populated, and in general ill supplied with fuel. Nor is the force of this remark materially lessened by the discovery of coal in the Ilek, about 20 m. from the river Ural and also near the lake Indereko. The deficiency of wood in the steppes is the necessary consequence of the want of rain. It is only in the vicinity of the Ural and of the Kirghiz that forests occur. Further S., and in the interior of the steppes, trees disappear totally; and the clayey soil is thinly covered with herbaceous plants, among which chrysantheums are conspicuous. Towards the Ust-Urt, a small shrub—a species of tamarix—makes its appearance, growing continually more vigorous towards the S. This is the margin of the Kirghiz, which attains its greatest development at the Syr Daria, where, as a small tree, it forms considerable forests. Among the plants of the steppes, there are none more important or remarkable than the reeds (Juncus typus) which, on the shores of the Caspian, Sea of Aral lakes of Akhsal, and elsewhere, attain a height of from 20 to 80 ft. and form compact thickets. In the midst of these, the Kirghiz often seek their tents for the sake of shelter and fuel. The same thickets conceal the wild bear, which here attains an immense size. The tiger also haunts the reeds of the Syr Daria. The wild buffalo prefers the mountains; the wild horse the naked plains of the Ust-Urt. The wild antelope, resembling a roe-buck, and the hare, are both numerous; and the latter so free from timidity, that it may sometimes be taken with the hand.

Densities and Population.—Though the Kirghiz-Kazaks retain nomadic habits, they do not wander without limitation. In order to avoid feud and contention, each nation, tribe, and even each subdivision of a tribe, confines itself, as much as possible, to a particular country or district. They have been long divided into three border (jords, a tent or campment), namely the Great, the Middle, and the Little Horde; which are again subdivided into tribes and sections. But their flocks and herds being numerous, they generally number only in small encampments or ails (jw), consisting of the members of a single family. The Little Horde number from the river Ural, N. of the Caspian and the Aral, to the Syr Daria, and the sands of the Kizil-Kum. The Middle Horde extend N. E. of the preceding, along the left bank of the Irtysh. The Great Horde encamp on the rivers Chui and Ili, and thence S. to Turkistan, where it comes into contact with the Khor-Khor or Shandis. The attempt to estimate the numbers of these hordes is rendered exceedingly difficult, not only by the migratory habits of the people but also by their determined hostility to a census, against which they always revolt. It is only, therefore, by way of loose approximation, that the whole nation is supposed to consist of 400,000 tents or families of which number 75,000 belong to the Great Horde 165,000 to the Middle, and 160,000 to the Little. This would give, for the whole population, from 2,000,000 to 2,500,000 of both sexes.

The People.—The dwelling of the Kirghiz is the yurt or hemispherical tent, the frame of which is of the boughs of trees, the covering of felt. An opening at the top serves, in good weather, for window and chimney. The ordinary yurt is about 9 ft. high, and 16 ft. in diameter but the rich Kirghizes often have them much larger. The erection or removal of the yurt is the work of half an hour. In choosing a place for it, shelter from the winds and from snow drifts is the first consideration. In summer the nomadic Kirghiz leads a life of pleasure. In winter he is often a close prisoner in his tent, annoyed by the smoke of a fire which scarcely warms him, and constantly dreading the violence of the howling tempest. For home wants, they carry on some domestic manufactures such as weaving, cordage-making from horse or goat hair; soap and leather making, &c. They make, likewise, in a very coarse manner, various metal ornaments such as are used in horse furniture, &c. In the autumn they carry on a barter trade with the Chinese at Ili, and with the Russians at Omsk, Semipalatinsk, &c., exchanging horses, camels, horses, cattle, sheep, goats, wool and spina-hair skins, and antelope horns, for iron and copper implements, artillery, velvet, silks, mirrors, &c., with the Russians, and for silver, silk, porcelain, japanned goods, and tea, with the Chinese.

KIRGHIZ MERCHANT AT BISHKEK—From Illustrations, Figures des Peuples de l'Asie

The Kirghiz are in general below the standard of European stature. It is said that those of the Great Horde are taller than the rest. In features, they hold a middle place between the Turkish and Mongolian races. They have the prominent cheek bones and small oblique eyes of the latter, without, however, being so broad or so flat in the face as the Kalmyks. They are obviously a mixed race; the frequency of contacts from all the surrounding countries. They show a decided preference of Mongolian physiognomy, and prefer Kalmyk and Bashkir wives. They are remarkably healthy and vigorous—the result of a life without care, in the open air, and on horseback. The Kirghis know nothing of bread. His food is chiefly mutton and horse-flesh, with kumys, or sour mare's milk. From the kumys he also extracts an intoxicating spirit. The salt lakes abounding in salt, and so unproductive in the steppes, offer him no temptation. He neither fishes nor hunts, nor makes any higher luxury than kumys, and the smoked leg of a young horse. The use of tea is extending among the herds, and particularly of what is called brick tea. The dress of the Kirghis consists of one or more loose frocks, called chaps, wide pantaloons, girdle, a white-felt coatlet hat in summer, a furred cap in winter and pointed boots. The poorer people wear coarse cloth or felt; the rich have the outer chaps of Chinese silk or velvet, and display their wealth in costly furs, or in uncoloured pantaloons and boots. The female costume differs little from the male, but the woman's frock or chaps is always closed in front, and from the top of her high-felt cap, a veil hangs down over the back and shoulders. The Kirghis are professed Mahometans, but they have little regard for the precepts of the Koran. They know nothing of prayer or abstinence and indeed their religion goes little beyond this—that being Sunnites, they hate the Parsees, as Shikhs, and consequently kidnap them when they can. They are extremely indolent and peaceful men, dangerous in the steppes from their rapid movements, they fly from the show of firm resistance. Though volatile, they are not gay though incapable of industry they are contented with adversity. Their hospitality often ends in treachery and they are, moreover, frightfully vindictive. The women, however are said to be morally much superior to the men. To all the labours of the house—the making of clothes included—they add at least half of the out-door toil. To them, therefore, belong three-fourths of all the industry of the nation, while the men give themselves up in the same proportion to sword and dagger and force herds.

The subjection of the Kirghis-Kazaks to the empire of Russia, as far as roving bandits in the desert can be said to be subjected, has been effected within little more than a century and more by managing the feuds of the tribes by direct force. The title of Khan of the Little Horde ceased, in 1812 to be connected with political power that of Khan of the Middle Horde became extinct in 1816—the election of a successor to the deceased prince being by some invisible influence, indefinitely postponed. A large body of Kirghis are settled on the bank of the Ural in the government of Astrakhan. The steppes in general are governed in the government of Omsk.—(Akhst de Levukina, Description des Herbes et des Steppes des Kirghis-Kazaks, etc. 1840, Helmsdorf, Reise nach dem Ural und der Kirghissteppen, 1841.)

KIRIA or KIRKIA a Chinesse Turkistan, on river of same name, 3° 5' S.E. Khotan, having a trade with Yarkand in silk, gold-dust, grapes, and rubies; and with Kuma in broad-cloth, beavers, furs, and steel, in return for tea, rhubarb, and small armaments. The gold mines here are wrought, and the position monopolized by the Chinese Government.

KIRILOV a tn. Russia, gov. and 270 m. E.N.E. Novgorod, pop. circa, between three lakes. It has three churches, a monastery and general trade. A great number of the inhabitants gain their livelihood by making pictures and similar articles, used in the devotions of the Greek church. Pop. 2165.—The church, more than half of which is covered with wood has also good arable and meadow land. P. 52,489

KIRIN-OLIA or KIRIN-OLIA a maritime prov. and to Manchouria. The province is bounded N. by the Amoor, E. by Corea, E. by the Sea of Japan, and W. by the Mongols. It is upwards of 700 m. long, and 200 m. of median breadth. It is covered with forests, abounding with wild animals. The climate is so severe, notwithstanding its latitude (42°-48°) that no grain excepting oats and millet, can be grown with advantage. The most important product produced in the province is ginseng. It is chiefly produced, and contains three cities only.—The capital, a bank and near the source of the Songari is lat. 42° 45' N. lon. 126° 24' E., is not a place of much importance but is the residence of the viceroys, and the head-quarters of the troops.

KIRKATCHE, in Russia, gov. and 60 m. W. Vladimir, on bank river of same name. It has a church and a handsome monastery. Pop. 800.—The river flows E. and joins a bank K. thence, after a course of nearly 60 m.

KIRK with offices, several parcs, England.—1 (Andoverton-Eden) Cumberland 1050 ac. Pop. 181.—2 (Andoverton-Fish) Cumberland 17,346 ac. Pop. 1728.—3 (Rampston) Cumberland 2802 ac. Pop. 546.—4 (Burton) York (W. Riding) 15,990 ac. Pop. 20,371.—5 (Hillside), Dorset; 2090 ac. Pop. 473.—6 (Hewson) York (W. Riding); 6468 ac. Pop. 11,973.—7 (Leasing) Derby; 2900 ac. Pop. 557.—8 (Leatham), York (N. Riding); 12,407 ac. Pop. 1807.—9 (Leatham) York (N. Riding); 6491 ac. Pop. 518.—10 (Linton) Cumberland 7800 ac. Pop. 1869.—11 (Newton), Northumberland; 37,978 ac. Pop. 1732.—12 (Hartle) Northumberland; 8390 ac. Pop. 170.—13 (Hough) Northumberland 6605 ac. Pop. 285.—14 (Leys) Suffolk 879 ac. Pop. 793.—15 (Hagston) Norfolk 1876 ac. Pop. 376.—16 (Lynston), York (N. Riding) 8807 ac. Pop. 553.

KIRK AOWIN or KIRKASATON a tn. Adair Co. Indiana, pop. 2000, 55 m. N.E. Sayre. It is a large, industrious, and populous place; with a considerable trade in cotton, which is largely grown in the vicinity.

KIRK-DARAZ, a mountain range, Asia Minor, pass. Room about lat. 41° 30' N. and lon. 65° E. extending S.E. from the Khil Irack to the hilly district containing the silver-mines W. of Maralran. The summiting point of the range is about 8950 ft. and from it the slope gradually descends to the lofty plain of Chorum, which is only 780 ft. below. The nucleus of the mountain is limestone, but the prevailing rocks on the surface are breccias and tilted-up limestone. Parts of the chain are well wooded with oak and pine.

KIRK KILASSA a tn. European Turkey, Roumania, and 110 m. N.N.W. Constantinople. It is a large but remote place on a slope, enclosed by walls has numerous mosques and baths and a trade, principally in wine and corn, and in the manufacture of a peculiar kind of conserve composed of the impregnated juice of boiled grapes turned into rolls, containing walnut kernels.

KIRK KECOLAN see FETTERLOCK.

KIRKLEIGH par. Scot. Kirkcubright 6 m. by 3 m. Pop. 983.

KIRKBRIDE, par. Eng. Cumberland, 1604 ac. P. 548.

KIRKBY with offices re arcl. parcs, England.—1 (in Ashfield) Nottingham; 5590 ac. P. 2263.—2 (in Don) Lincoln 5110 ac. P. 734.—3 (in Cleveford) York (N. Riding); 4716 ac. P. 728.—4 (East) Lincoln; 1870 ac. P. 481.—5 (Fleetam) York (N. Riding); 2974 ac. P. 905.—6 (Green), Lincoln; 487 ac. P. 184.—7 (Irthling) Lancashire; 26,920 ac. P. 3598.—8 (in Malton-Dale) York (W. Riding); 22,040 ac. P. 984.—9 (in Malton) Lincoln; 2110 ac. P. 3625.—10 (Malton) York (W. Riding); 57,040 ac. P. 4956.—11 (Morton) York (N. Riding); 7544 ac. P. 995.—12 (in Ouseby) Lincoln; 1710 ac. P. 492.—13 (Ouseby) York (W. Riding); 10,704 ac. P. 1596.—14 (Rensworth, or Killy-on-the-Hill) York (N. Riding); 15,811 ac. P. 1406.—15 (South), York (W. Riding); 7248 ac. P. 1420.—16 (Thorpe) Westmorland 11,080 ac. P. 1104.—17 (in Thorpe), Lincoln 1570 ac. P. 255.—18 (in Underwood), Lincoln 1840 ac. P. 185.—19 (in Wetherby), York (W. Riding); 2129 ac. P. 702.

KIRKBY LONDAL, a market in par. Eng. England, co. Westmorland. The town 27 m. S.W. Appleby, pleasantly situated on a bank Lane, here crossed by a very old but picturesque bridge of three lofty arches is a station on the Whitehaven and Furness railway. The principal streets, which diverge from a central market-place, are handsome and well lighted houses built of white lava stone, and roofed with slate. It has an ancient church, with a square tower 60 ft. high three Dissenting places of worship, a few grammar school and manufactures of coarse woollens and flannels, calicoes and ginghams. Londale gives the title of earl to the family of Lowther. Area of par. 25,569 ac. Pop. 4164.

KIRKBY MOORUM, a market tn. and par. Eng. England, co. York, N. Riding. The town on the Dove, 23 m. N. by E. York, is irregularly built; has a neat Established church, several Dissenting chapels, a Friends meeting-house, a free, and a national school. Near the town are corn-mills, with limestone and sandstone quarries. Area of par. 21,261 ac. Pop. 2615.

KIRKBY-DRUMMOND, a market tn. and par. Eng. England, co. Westmorland. The town situated in a fertile plain, 1 bank Eden, 9 m. S.E. Appleby is kept remarkably clean because well built of stone, obtained in the vicinity. Water abundant.

It has a spacious Established church, in the early English style, two Dissenting chapels, a grammar, and three other schools; and several in agricultural produce. Area of par. 37 931 ac. Pop. 2758. — (Local Correspondent).

KIRKCALDY a royal and parl. bor and seaport, Scotland, co. Fife, on a spacious bay N shore Firth of Forth, 10 m. N Edinburgh. It consists principally of one long irregular street, which, including suburbs, extends for about 8 m. W to E. The W part of this great thoroughfare stretches along the shore, which is a low, sandy level, but towards the E, the main street, as well as some of the lanes diverging from it, is built on an acclivity. The streets are kept in good order, well paved, and lighted with gas; the more modern houses are generally neat and substantial freestone structures. It has a handsome townhall, with an elegant spire; an Established, Free, and two U Presbyterian churches, and Episcopalian Baptist, and Independent chapels a burgh school, Philip's institution for educating and clothing the children of the poorer classes belonging to Kirkcaldy and some of the neighbouring towns and numerous well-constructed private seminaries, an infant school, a grammar school, and two libraries. In Kirkcaldy, and the district around it, there are 18 fax-spinning mills. Red ticks, canvas, and other linen fabrics, are the staple manufacture of the place, amounting to the annual value of about £200 000. There are seven bleachfields, connected with the linen manufacture, and there are flour-mills, breweries, a vitrol-work, distillery and machine-factory. The harbour has been of late years greatly improved, and although it is completely dry at low water it is capable, at full tide, of admitting vessels of very considerable burden. The trade of the port is extensive. The imports are principally from the Baltic, Germany, and Egypt, and consist of flax, timber, corn, and other articles; the exports are linen, yarn, corded herrings, and coal, to the annual amount of about 50 000 tons. The N whale fishery is also carried on to some extent. The number of ships belonging to Kirkcaldy, on Dec. 31 1840 was 74, tonnage 9876. Kirkcaldy unites with Dysart in sending a member to H of Commons. Adam Smith, author of the Wealth of Nations, was born here in 1723. The par of Kirkcaldy is 13 m. long and scarcely 1 m. broad. P bor and par. 5719. — (Local Cor).

KIRKCOLM par Scot. Wigton, 6 m by 4 m P 2018.
KIRKCONALL par Scot. Dumfries 15 m by 8 m Pop 1245

KIRKCOOYAN par Scot. Wigton 15 m by 6½ m P 1541
KIRKCUDBRIGHT (SZWARZBURG), a maritime co. Scotland, and, with exception of Wigtonshire, the most S bounded, N by co. Ayr, W Wigton, E Dumfries, and S. by the Solway Firth, length about 48 m. breadth, 17 to 30 m., area, 528 780 ac., of which about one-fourth is supposed to be arable, and 118 000 ac. under cultivation. The coast-line generally bold and precipitous extends from the head of Wigton Bay to the Nith, a distance, exclusive of bays and inlets, of about 45 m. The W part of this line is considerably indented—the larger openings being Fleet Bay, Wigton, and Auchencroft Bays, and Urr Water. The surface in the interior is generally hilly, and in extensive districts mountainous; the chief elevations in the latter reaching the height of 2000 to 3000 ft. The greater part of the country is composed of transition strata. Granite, however, is met with in several localities; the most conspicuous being Criffel, in the E. part of the county, comprising the hill of that name and the surrounding group, the former is 1821 ft. high, situated within about 3 m. of the W shore of the Nith. Kirkcudbrightshire contains numerous metalliferous veins. Veins of copper ore have been found in many places, but are not now wrought. The principal rivers of the county are the Dee and the Lrr. Lakes numerous, but generally small, with exception of Loch Ken, a beautiful sheet of water, of great length, but very narrow. The climate, in the lower districts, is very mild; but in the upper or mountainous districts it is not unfrequently rather severe. Although the general surface of the country may be characterized as rugged and barren, there are yet many beautiful and fertile, though small valleys, along the courses of the Urr and Dee. Arable husbandry has been greatly improved of late years but the principal attention is paid to the rearing of cattle, which are mostly sent to England. The breed of horses, peculiar to this and the adjoining county of Wigton, known as Galloways, is now almost extinct, its place being supplied by horses of a larger size, and more suitable for draught. The sheep on the moors and high grounds are mostly black-faces. In the lower districts, Cereals, South Down, and Leicester prevail. Oats constitute the principal crop, potatoes are also extensively cultivated, and turnips rapidly extending. The salmon fisheries of the Dee and Urr are very valuable, especially the former. The county returns one member to Parliament. Registered electors (1851) 1818. It contains 28 parishes, and forms, with Wigtonshire, the district known by the name of Galloway. The principal towns are Kirkcudbright (the capital), and Castle-Douglas. Pop. (1841) 41 119 (1851), 48 131.

KIRKCUDBRIGHT, a royal and parl. bor seaport, and par. Scotland, on a bay above co. The town is on a bank 6 m. N from its confluence with the Solway Firth, 25 m. S.W. Dumfries. It is an clean, well-kept, and lighted with gas has a commodious and elegant Established church a Free, and a U. Presbyterian church, R Catholic chapel, jail, with court-rooms adjoining, academy rooms with a portico in front; and a number of schools, a news-room, and several benevolent societies. Its manufactures are few and unimportant, but many of the inhabitants are in comfortable circumstances. The harbour is good, but the trade is almost entirely confined to the exportation of agricultural produce, and the importation of coal and lime. Steamers ply regularly to Liverpool. Kirkcudbright unites with Dumfries, &c. in returning a member to Parliament P 1577. Area of par. 15 000 ac. P 3555

KIRKDALE—1, A township England co. Lancaster 2 m. N., and in the parl. bor of Liverpool. It contains the county jail and house of correction the handsome dissent chapel of St. Mary St. Mary's convent, and the industrial schools Pop. 9880.—2 A par. England York (N. Riding) 12,554 ac. Pop. 1055.

KIRKDEAN par Scot. Forfar 7 m by 3 m. P 1763.
KIRKGUNZLON par Scot. Kirkcudbright, 5 m by 3 m Pop 734

KIRKHAM a market tn and par. England co. Lancaster. The town picturesquely situated on rising ground 8 m. W by N Preston, is well built, has an elegant church, a handsome R. Catholic chapel, and places of worship for Independents and Wesleyans, a free grammar-school with national, and other schools, and a news-room; a flax and a cotton mill; but the principal manufactures are sacking and sail-cloth P 2799. Area of par. 48,580 ac. P 10,926

KIRKHILL, par Scot. Inverness 8 m by 2½ m P 1730
KIRKIBOG, a small isl. Scotland Hebrides about 1 m. off the S.W. coast, N. Uist. The channel between is so shallow that it is crossed on foot at low water.

KIRKINLEIR, par Scot. Wigton 14 m by 6 m P 1914
KIRKINRIOL, par Irel. Antrim 6890 ac. P 9265

KIRKINTILLOCH a market tn and par. Scotland, co. Dumfries. The town 7 m. N by E Glasgow on the railway thence to Campsie, consists of two principal and several subordinate streets, which are lighted with gas, but indifferently kept. Besides the Established church there are a Free and a U. Presbyterian church and several Dissenting places of worship. It has a jail and court-house, surrounded by a steeple, several schools, a library, and sundry benevolent institutions. Weaving lappets is the chief occupation, though an extensive print work, and an iron foundry and blacksmiths, also employ a considerable number Pop. 6342. Area of par. about 20,800 ac. Pop. 8426.

KIRKLAND par Eng. Cumberland 12 150 ac. P 829.
KIRKLAND a vil. Scotland, co. Fife 1¼ m. W by E. Leven, pleasantly situated nearly built and is the seat of some linen manufactures. Pop. (inclusive of Methil) 1073.

KIRKLEES, a hamlet, England, co. York (W. Riding) 4 m. W Dewsbury, on the Leeds and Manchester railway. Robin Hood, who frequently made this his place of abode, is supposed to have been tied to death by a man belonging to the convent of Kirkstall, very small portions of which now only remain, and in the park attached to Kirkstall Hall the elegant seat of the Armytage family what is supposed to be the tomb of the bold outlaw is surrounded by an iron railing. Pop. (inclusive of Clifton), 850.

KIRKLISTON par Scot. Edinburgh; 5½ m. by 4½ m Pop. 3020
KIRKMADRECK, par Scot. Kirkcudbright, 9 m. by 2½ m Pop. 1286.

KIRKMAHOF, par Scot. Dumfries, $7\frac{1}{2}$ m. by $5\frac{1}{2}$ m. Pop. 1568.

KIRKMAIDEN, par Scot. Wighton 10 m. by 4. P 3681
KIRKMICHAEL, 4 vii and par Isle of Man. The village, on the Irish Sea, 6 m. N. E. Peel Town, has a new church, and once it, Bishop's Court, the palace of the bishops of Sodor and Man. Pop. 1416

KIRKMICHAEL, several para. Scot.—1 Ayr, 15 250 ac. Pop. 3262.—2 Banff 15 m. by 5 m. Pop. 1558.—3, Dumfries, 9 m. by 4 m. Pop. 1154.—4 Perth, 17 m. by 7 m. Pop. 1280.—5, (near Outbushden, or Bessie) Ross, 9 m. by 5 m. Pop. 1551

KIRKNEWTON par Scot. Edinburgh 6 m. by 4 m. Pop. 1580.

KIRKOWALD—1 A market in. and par England, co. Cumberland. The town, beautifully situated, 18 m. S. E. Carlisle, E. side of the Eden, here crossed by a bridge, is mostly but irregularly built has an ancient church in the early English style, a Methodist chapel a paper-mill, a mill for carding spinning, and weaving wool a corn and a saw mill and, on an eminence at a little distance E. the ruins of Kirkwald castle. Area of par 10 472 ac. Pop. 925.—(Local Correspondent)—2 A vii and par Scotland, co. and 11 m. S. W. Ayr containing Turnberry castle once the residence and property of King Robert Bruce. Colston castle the seat of the Marquis of Albion, the remains of the Abbey of Crossmichael and Shunter Farm, where resided Douglas Graham, the reported 'Tam-o'-Shanter' Pop. 2242

KIRKPATRICK, several para. Scot.—1 (Dumfries) Kirkcubright 10 m. by 4 m. Pop. 1508.—2 (Fleming) Dumfries 6 m. by 3 m. Pop. 1829.—3, (Fleming) Kirkcubright 14 464 ac. Pop. 219.—4 (Fleming) Dumfries 21,000 ac. Pop. 1097

KIRKPATRICK, or KIRKSTALL, Leodis, a vii England, co. York (W. Riding) 10 m. by 3 m. N. W. Leeds, on the banks of the Aire, containing a handsome and spacious church and the beautiful ruins of an abbey completed in 1147 with corn and woollen mills the latter much the more important, and two iron foundries.

KIRKSTEAD par Eng. Lincoln 1540 ac. Pop. 175
KIRKTON or KIRTON par Eng. Notts 1040 ac. P 185
KIRKTOPE a tn. Herefordshire, Oberhausen, in a plain, 25 m. N. E. Gloucester with a church, townhouse, school, and four mills. Pop. 1270

KIRKTOWN a vii Scot. Roxburgh 8 m. by 3 m. P 292
KIRKURD par Scot. Roxburgh 6 m. by 4 m. P 326

KIRKWALL, a royal and parl. bor. Orkney, and par Scotland, co. and cap. Orkney on the bay of same name E. of the Firth of Forth 55°59'12" N., lon. 2°57'15" W. The principal street which is nearly 1 m. long is narrow and ill kept, and the houses have an antique appearance, with their gables towards the street but a new street formed parallel to the former contains many respectable houses and handsome shops.

The principal building is the cathedral of St. Magnus, a magnificent old structure, in the mixed Gothic and Norman style, founded in 1158 and the choir of which has been used from time immemorial as the parish church. The other public buildings are the town-hall, jail, and assembly-rooms. Besides the parish church there is a Free and a U. Presbyterian church; an endowed grammar-school of ancient foundation, and several other schools a female charity and an infant school two libraries, and several freemason and benevolent societies. The plaiting of straw for hats and bonnets is the chief branch of manufacturing industry having superseded the manufacture of kelp. The fishery is also of considerable importance. The harbour is commodious and secure, and has been much improved by the erection of a pier it is frequented by coasters, and occasionally by vessels from foreign ports chiefly from Norway and the Baltic. Agricultural produce, cured fish, and cattle are exported in considerable quantities. Steamers ply regularly to Leth. Lerwick &c. Kirkwall was created a royal burgh by charter, from James III. of Scotland and unless with Wick, &c. in returning one member to the House of Commons. It was formerly a place of great importance, having been the residence of the Earls of Orkney who acted a conspicuous part in the early periods of Scottish history and whose palace, although fast crumbling to decay is still in a tolerable state of preservation. Adjoining the cathedral are the ruins of the bishop's palace, in which King Haco died. Pop. 2451. The par is 6 m. by 6 m. Pop. united par of Kirkwall and St. Olaf, 3990

KIRKWELLPINGTON, par Eng. Northumberland 18,251 ac. Pop. 678.

KIRKMAN town and city Persia. See KIRMAN.

KIRMANSHAH to Persia. See KIRMANSHAH.

KIRMINGTON par Eng. Lincoln 1615 ac. P 376.

KIRMOND—1 A vii, par Eng. Lincoln 1065 ac. P 62
KIRN—1 A beautiful watering-place Scotland, Argyshire, W. shore Firth of Clyde, 25 m. W. by N. Glasgow composed chiefly of a row of elegant villas stretching along the shore N. from Dunoon.—2 A to Kilmahomra, along and 40 m. S. Coburn, at the confluence of the Hohenbach with the Rhine. It is walled has a church and gymnasium a court of justice vitrol and alum works a laundry several mills, and a trade in cattle. Coal is worked in the vicinity. Pop. 1712

KIRPIIT a river Russia, which rises in the W. of gov. Caucasus enters the territory of the Cossacks of the Black Sea, flows W. N. W. and loses itself in a marshy lake on the borders of the Sea of Azov. total course about 180 m.

KIRSDORF a vii Hesse-Homburg lordship Homburg-vor-der-Heide with a parish church and a mill. Pop. 1244

KIRKHEIM, a loc. of barony market in. and par Scotland co. Forfar. The town, 5 m. N. W. Forfar contains many handsome houses and is well lighted with gas. It has a handsome parish church with a spire, a U. Presbyterian and two Free churches, a neat Episcopalian chapel, numerous schools, two libraries, and several benevolent and friendly societies. The manufacture of brown linen employs about 2000 looms and 3000 individuals. Pop. 3618. Area of par 34 000 ac. Pop. 7617

KIRKLACH a vii Baden, circle Lower Rhine, bail Philippsburg with a church. Pop. 1809

KIRKEILIER a vii Prussia, Pralitz 12 m. W. S. W. Spire, with a R. Catholic church, a castle, and two mills. Pop. 1609

KIRKANOVA a tn. Russia gov. and 40 m. E. Tambov cap. circle, on the Purovka, in the midst of steppe, with a church and some general trade. Pop. 4000.—The climate is flat, and not well wooded. but has good arable land, and rears great numbers of cattle. Area, 3070 sq. ac. Pop. 104 419

KIRKSTEAD par Eng. Norfolk 1011 ac. Pop. 359.

KIRKSTON, a tn. Hindustan, valley of Nepal, about 5 m. W. N. W. Khatmandou. It was formerly the cap. of an independent principality but is much decayed, and does not contain more than 6000 inhabitants.

KIRTLING par Eng. Cambridgeshire 3016 ac. Pop. 909

KIRTLINGTON par Eng. Oxford, 2500 ac. P 716.

KIRTON three para. Eng.—1 Lincoln 5830 ac. P 2799.—2 Notts. See KIRKTON.—3 Suffolk; 1896 ac. P 546.

KIRTON in-Lincoln a market in. and par England, co. Lincoln. The town 16 m. N. W. Lincoln, on the Manchester and Sheffield Railway, and an assembly on the W. side consists of a number of crooked, ill-paved lanes houses generally of limestone, well supplied with water and upon the whole, improving. It has an ancient parish church; several Dissenting chapels a national, free and an infant school a bridewell, and a minor court-house. The inhabitants are principally employed in agriculture. Area of par., 4210 ac. Pop. 1948.—(Local Correspondent.)

KIETORF, a tn. Hesse Darmstadt, Oberhausen, 26 m. N. E. Gießen, with a church, townhouse and school; and several mills. Pop. 2776.

KIS-BARAT, a vii Hungary co. and 4 m. from Raab on a height in a fertile district, which produces good wine, and is famous for its thermes. Pop. 1233.

KIS-BUZ, a market tn. Hungary co. and 22 m. S. E. Komova, with a R. Catholic church, a handsome castle, with English gardens and manufactures of linen, glass, and pottery, and a trade in wood and wine. Pop. 2700.

KISAMOR, a golf N. W. coast Isl. Oreste; lat. 36° 38' N. lon. 24° 38' E. Having Cape Spada on the E., and Cape Blau on the W., the latter is high land, and visible at a considerable distance. The golf is about 6 m. wide at its entrance, and about 6 m. in length inland. It takes its name from a village and castle is ruins at the head of it.

KISARJAH a tn. Syria. See CAMAKA.

KISCHANEV, a tn. Russia. See KIRCHNEV

KISFAUD numerous places, Hungary, particularly—
1. A vil. Thätter Deme, co. and 24 m. from Oedenburg, on the Little Danube, with a church. Pop. 1500.—2. A vil. Thätter Deme, co. and 6 m. from Banya, on the Konstans, with a Greek un. church. Pop. 1480.

KISHENAGUR, a tn. Hindoostan prov Bengal, 1 bank of the Jellingy branch of the Ganges, 62 m N by E Calcutta; lat. 25° 36' N; lon 88° 55' E. It is the place of residence of the judge, collector and civil establishment of the district in which it is situated.

KISHENAI a tn. Russia See KISHINEV

KISHENGHUL, a tn. Hindoostan presid Bengal prov and 19 m. E. N. E. Ajmer. It is surrounded by stone walls, and defended by a castle seated on a mountain top, among gardens fenced in by the prickly pear. The principal building is the rajah's palace, a large but rudely built fort, on the banks of a lake.

KISHENGUNGA a river Asia, which rises on the N slope of the Himalaya, near lat. 34° 20' N and lon 76° E. flows first W., and then S.W. and a little below Muzurbabad, joins a tank Jallim, nearly doubling its volume after a course of about 120 m. The upper part of its course is imperfectly known.

KISHM (anc. Oerabid) the largest all in the Persian Gulf about 9 m. S. Bender-Abbas lat. 26° 48' N lon 52° 22' to 56° 20' E. length, 80 m. but breadth, at the widest, not more than 12 m. It stretches along the Persian shore, from which it is separated by a channel that is navigable for the largest ships but is very tortuous and, and varies in width from 12 to 3 m. A range of hills, stretching E. to W. occupies all the S side while the N part consists chiefly of arid plains, sometimes intersected with a saline effluence and deep ravines. Earthquakes are not uncommon. There is a good deal of wood, in which jackals are numerous. Antelope, partridges and rock pigeons abound. The N part contains several tracts of black loam on which wheat, barley, grapes, melons, &c., are raised in sufficient quantities for the consumption of the inhabitants. Dates also are abundant. The people are chiefly occupied in fishing, weaving, and the culture of the soil. There are three towns on the island—Kishm, Laft, and Rasool. Kishm, the largest, lies near the sea, at the E. point of the island. It has walls fenced by turrets, and appears to have formerly been of greater commercial importance than it is at present. Native vessels frequently touch here for wood and water or to engage pilots for the Kishm channel and consequently the town has a bustling appearance. Some boat-building is carried on. Pop. of isl., 5000.

KISHON a river Asiatic Turkey pass Acre Palestine. It has its sources in Anti Libanus, about lat. 32° 30' N, flows in a N.W. direction, and falls into the Mediterranean a little S. from Acre.

KISHTAWAR, a tn. Hindoostan Punjab, on the slope of the Himalaya, on a small plain near L. bank Chenab lat. 33° 15' N, lon. 75° 46' E. 5000 ft. above sea-level. It is a small town of ill built, flat-roofed houses, with an insignificant bazaar and a fort. Some coarse woollens and shawls, of inferior quality, are manufactured here. The Chenab here rushes through a ravine, having precipitous sides of gneiss-rock about 1000 ft. high.

KISKA, an isl. Arabian Archipelago lat. 52° 22' N lon 177° 50' W (a). It is hilly, excepting its E. part, which is low. Length, N to S., 25 m.

KISLINGSBURG see Burg Northamp. 2170 on P. 690.

KISLOVODSK, a celebrated Russian watering-place, in the N. of the of Caucasus, and on the confines of Circassia, L. bank Elkhoutan, in a rocky gorge, surrounded on all sides by lofty mountains. It consists entirely of a few houses and a fort. The waters are mineralized, and contain a large quantity of carbonic acid gas.

KIMAYOO, an isl. E. Africa, off the coast of Zanzibar, lat. 0° 44' S, with a village on its N.W. side. Near to its S. point, there is a channel nearly 2 m. wide, leading to a spacious bay or harbour where ships may anchor in four or five fathoms, close to the S.W. part of the island.

KISSE, or Kuma, an isl. Indian Archipelago Banda Sea, lat. 6° 5' S; lon. 137° 7' E. (a). 21 m. N. N.W. the N.E. end of Timor about 20 m. in circumference. It produces mandarin, betel wax, pearls, turban-shall, trepang, &c. II.

edible birds' nests, Indian corn, rice, and vegetables with buffaloes, sheep, goats, hogs, and fowls to be obtained by barter, in exchange for cotton cloths, brass-wire, iron, shopping knives, and coarse cutlery. The principal village on Kisse contains a large and well built church, and a school. The greater portion of the natives are Christians. Pop. 7000 to 8000.

KISSINGEN, a watering-place, Bavaria, Lower Franconia, cap. dist. of same name, pleasantly situated 1 bank Saale, here crossed by a handsome bridge, 80 m. N.W. Würzburg. It is surrounded by walls, flanked with towers contains a church, synagogue, townhouse, and posthouse and has a bathing establishment, on a very complete, and even magnificent scale. There are five springs all of them saline, and containing a large quantity of carbonic acid gas; all are more or less acid and one has a decidedly chalybeate taste. The waters are used both internally and as baths, and are much recommended in chronic affections, gout, and stomach and chest complaints, and annually attract about 2000 visitors. About 500,000 bottles of water are annually exported. A little N. of the town, up the valley of the Saale, are copious saline springs, from which 1500 tons of salt are annually made. An artesian well, 2100 ft. deep, was completed here in 1832. By this system of a subterranean stream of carbonic gas, it throws up a column of water 15 inches in diameter, 78 ft. above the surface, discharging 96 to 100 cubic ft. per minute. The water so thrown up contains 8 per cent. of salt, which, being concentrated to 8 per cent. is forced down a tube sunk in a stratum of rock salt, at a depth of 1740 to 2000 ft. Dissolving the rock salt, it charges itself with 27 per cent. of salt, and in this state is again thrown to the surface, or rather 80 ft. above the surface, by the action of the carbonic acid gas, as before, into a reservoir whence by a natural fall, it goes to feed the salt-pans in the boiling-house. It yields an exquisitely pure white crystalline salt. Pop. of tn., 1800, of dist., 11,205.

KISNA, or KURNIA (Black or dark lake an incarnation of Vishnu) a river Hindoostan in the Doonah. It rises among the W. Ghats, prov. Bejapoor not above 42 m. from the Malabar coast, flows first S.E. and then generally E. passes through the S. part of the Nizam's dominions, in which it receives its two largest affluents, the Beemah, on the left, and the Toongabudra, on the right bank, forms the frontier-line between the Nizam's dominions and the Gondwar Country, which it crosses and falls into the Bay of Bengal lat. 15° 50' N 800 m. N. Madras. Its course, including windings, is estimated at 700 m. Besides the affluents already named it receives the Warrah and Gutpurah, in the upper and the Musay in the lower part of its course, and many other smaller streams. Flowing for the most part through a mountainous country its channel is much broken by rapids and varying much in depth in different seasons, is not well adapted for inland navigation though after entering the Godavari Creek, it is turned by large boats. The Kistna is perhaps richer in gems than any other river of Hindoostan. In the dry season diamonds, cat's-eyes, onyxes, and chalcodons are said to be found, as well as a minute portion of gold.

KIZBUZA, a river in the N.W. of Hungary which rises near the junction of the W. and E. Carpathians flows first N.W. then S.W. and, after a course of about 40 m. and receiving the Blaticza, joins a tank Waag nearly opposite Zolca.

KITAI a tn. Independent Tartary, Khanate and 46 m. N. Kurga, in a low situation, on the coast of Karagum. It is surrounded by a good wall contains a castle of the Khan and about 25 shops and has two weekly markets.

KITT'S (8r) an abbreviation of St. CHRISTOPHER'S, one of the British W. India Islands. Lowest group highest summit Mount Misery 2711 ft. above sea-level, m. lat. 17° 29' N lon 63° 48' W (a). In form it somewhat resembles a bottle, the neck of which forms its S.E. extremity. Entire length, N.W. to S.E. about 21 m., breadth throughout the broadest part or for about two-thirds of its length 10 m. the remainder under 1 m. occupying at the extreme S.E. point where it again expands to a breadth of about 5 m. area, 44,000 a. The centre presents a number of high and barren mountains, intersected by rocky precipices, almost impassable, and abounding with hot springs. The coast on the S. and S.E. is bold but, in the other directions, the hilly and broken country in the interior is succeeded, towards the sea, by an inland plain which terminates in a low level tract. It has been estimated that one-half of this island is barren and unfit for cultivation but the soil of the plain is said to be superior to that of any of the other W. India islands for the production of sugar which consequently forms the staple article for exportation though a little coffee, cotton, and arrow root are also raised. Fruits of various kinds abound including oranges, lemons, chacoche, &c. Exports, in 1849, £101 3 9; imports, £110 4 12 in 1852, £17 4 4, and £16 9 2 respectively. The revenue for the latter year was £22 2 5 and the expenditure £31 7 2. The administration of the island is vested in a lieutenant-governor, council, and house of assembly. There are nine Episcopal churches and two chapels one R. Catholic church 12 Wesleyan chapels and two M. A. The established church has in connection 14 public schools, the Moravian mission four, and the Wesleyan eight. The principal town is Basseterre (nicknamed St. Christopher) was discovered by Columbus in 1493, and is said to have obtained from him the name it bears. No settlement, however, was made in it till 1625, when Sir Thomas Warner established a colony there. It was subsequently occupied in part by the French but when the British settlers a series of disputes took place which ended in some sanguinary conflicts. The island was finally ceded to Great Britain at the peace of Utrecht in 1713. P. 1861, 4, 303.

KITTISFORD per Eng. Somerset 952 ac 1 10 5
KITTREL or KORTREY, a market town, Hungary, on the boundary 4 m S.W. of Presburg, with a R. Catholic church and a fine castle and gardens belonging to Prince Esterhazy. Pop. 8100.

KITIL, a town in Hindostan, prov. and about 45 m N.W. Delhi. It stands on the banks of a shallow lake, is enclosed by a ditch and a good brick wall and defended by a lofty fort.

KITZUHILL, or KITZUHILL, a town, Austria, Tyrol, circle of Unterthann, cap. dist. of same name, 1 bank of the Inn, 4 m E.N.E. Innsbruck. It has a court of justice, a church, a square, a monastery, a hospital, and a trade in cattle, wool, and cheese. Near it are mines of copper, silver, and iron. Pop. 1780. Area of dist. 223 sq. m. 1 op. 15 712.

KITZINGEN, a town, in Bavaria, Lower Franconia, cap. dist. of same name 10 m. E.S.E. Würzburg. It consists of the town proper on the right, and a suburb on the left bank of the Main which communicates by a handsome bridge, and are both surrounded by walls, flanked with towers. On the whole wall built, contains three public squares, two churches, three chapels, a townhouse, Latin school and hospital, and has manufactures of cotton yarn, basket-work, gunpowder, vinegar and dye stuffs, some shipping, a fishery, a large general and travel trade, numerous mills, and weekly cattle and corn markets. Pop. 5770. dist. 10, 318.

KIUNG-CHAU, or KIUNG-TSOU, a city, China, cap. dist. Hainan. It is situated at the N. end of the island, lat. 20° N. lon. 110° 22' E., at the mouth of the Liuu, is well built, and surrounded by a strong wall. The harbour is good, and much frequented by Chinese junks from Macao, Binn, and Singapore. Pop. estimated at above 100,000.

KIURIU or XINU, the most S., and also the most W. of the four large islands of Japan; lat. 31° 34' N. lon. 129° 50' to 132° E. separated N. from Niphon by a narrow strait, about 1 1/2 m wide and N.E. from Shikoku by a channel 9 m in breadth. It is about 240 m long and 60 m broad, area, 17,200 sq m. This island is almost inaccessible at every side from its coasts being surrounded with rocks and shallows, and exposed to a wild and dangerous sea. Nagasaki is capital, is the only point in the island and even in the whole empire of Japan where Europeans are allowed to land. However, like the other large islands of Japan is traversed throughout its length by a chain of lofty mountains, many of them formidable volcanoes. On April 1, 1826, a most disastrous eruption occurred of one of the largest of them, named Fliugana, occasioning immense loss of life and property. There are a great number of rivers in the island the principal of which is the Kasegawa and, excepting the E. coast, which is barren the country is exceedingly well cultivated. In several places, there are considerable manufactures of cotton cloth silk goods and paper. Kinsu is divided into nine provinces—Tsu-kun-zan, Fusa, Tsu-kun-go, Buzen, Satsuma, Bungo, Fyugo, and Ocumu. Its most important towns are Nagasaki, Kasa, and Kokura.

KIZ, HIN-SALT, or KIZ HIN-SALT (see Tyren) a village, Turkey, path Karaman, 100 m E. Konya, on a low mound in the middle of a plain. It contains numerous salt petre-works, that substances being collected in large quantities from the soil and about the place. Many interesting remains of the ancient city Tyren still exist here. About 2 m. S. from Kiz Hissar is the fountain of Anasabur, a small lake or pool about 40 ft. in diameter full of brackish turbid water babbling and boiling though quite cold.

KIZIL-IRAK (see Helge) a river Asiatic Turkey, which rises near Kind-hisar path about 36 m E. from this point it flows W. with a deep S. bend, to lat. 39° 30' N. when it proceeds N. with a winding course to the Black Sea into which it falls at lat. 41° 40' N. lon. 36° E. between Sinope and Samsoun its whole course being upwards of 500 m. Of its numerous affluents the principal is the Kara Su, which flowing from the W. joins it in about lat. 41° 28' N. At Osmank, about 120 m from its mouth it has a breadth of only about 160 yards. It is nevertheless, a fine river but it does not equal what would be expected from a stream of such a long course and fed by so many tributaries.

KIZIL, Kuz, an extensive sandy desert, Asia, to the S. of Lake Aral, occupying nearly the centre of Independent Tartary between lat. 41 and 44° N. and lon. 61 and 67° E.

KIZIL-DEREN a river Persia, which rises in Khoristan 20 m N.W. Senna, about lat. 25° 55' N. flows N. by E. forms a part of the S.E. boundary of Aserbaidjan and then turning to the S.E. skirts the prov. of Gilan till it reaches lat. 36° 45' N. when it traverses that province in a N.E. direction, and finally falls into the Caspian Sea, about lat. 37° 27' N. In some parts of its course, the river winds through tremendous chains and ravines, its rocky boundaries rising to a height of 1800 ft. above the level of the stream.

KI/LIAR, a town and fort, Russia, gov. Caucasus, 1 bank Terck 50 m above its mouth, lat. 43° 50' N. lon. 46° 48' E. It is dull and sombre a few of the houses are of brick, but the greater part are of wood the situation being low, and exposed to inundations, is very unhealthy. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture. Kaslar being an entrepot for the traffic between Aserbaidjan and Persia, carries on a prosperous trade, which is wholly in the hands of the Armenians. The exports are wine, honey, S. of gumme, cotton, and silk stuffs. Pop. exclusive of garrison, about 10,000.

KJESTEMINDE, a resort, in Denmark, on a small and shallow bay, N.E. side of Funen, 11 m S.E. E. Odense. It has a winter haven of the fourth class, admitting vessels drawing 12 ft., at which a considerable trade in corn is carried on. Many of the inhabitants live by fishing. Pop. 1800.

KJOBENHAVN, cap. Denmark. See COPENHAGEN.

NJÖGE a seaport in Denmark, E shore of Zealand, at the mouth of a small stream, on a bay of same name, 29 m S.W. Copenhagen. It has a church, a hospital, manufactures of carpets, and a harbor of the fourth class, admitting vessels drawing from 10 to 11 ft but possessed at present, of very little trade. The bay of Njōge has good anchorage, and is sometimes used as a station by ships of war. Within it, in 1877 a signal victory was gained by the Danish over the Swedish fleet. In the vicinity of the town, in 1807 some Danish militia were defeated by a body of English under the command of the Duke of Wellington, then Sir Arthur Wellesley. Pop. 2300.

KLAASWAAL, a vil Holland, prov S Holland, 11 m S. Rotterdam with a neat church an elegant school house, and a benevolent society. Pop. 651.

KLABAT — 1 An active volcano, 4000 ft. high, and a village, lat. Colchese, near Mendoza. — 2 A dist. and bay, N.W. side of Isl. Ranea.

KLADEK, or KOK, a vil Austria, Moravia, circle, and 34 m N. Omlütz with a church, potash works, lime-kilns, a saw and other mills. Pop. 818.

KLADDO, a Bohemian circle Rakowitz, 15 m N.W. Prague with a church, townhouse, school and castle, many factories of potash, and tile-works. Pop. 1395.

KLADOVA or KALOYA, two places Hungary. — 1 A vil Hungary, Thither Thess. so and 16 m E.N.E. Arad in a deep valley, has a Greek non-union church in the vicinity both silver and copper are worked. Pop. 1737. — 2 A vil Thither Thess. on Krassova, 14 m from Lugos with a parish church. Pop. 727.

KLADIAU, a m Bohemia, circle, and 17 m W. S.W. Pilsen on the Ulava. It has a handsome church one of the largest in Bohemia adorned with sculptures in marble, a slate and several stone cherries and a coal mine. Pop. 1248.

KLAGENFURT or KLANG, a m Austria, Styria, gov and 40 m N. E. Laybach, cap. circle of same name, on the (Ilanc) and Glan, connected with Lake Wotter by a canal its fortifications once strong having been destroyed by the French in 1809 their site has been converted into an agreeable promenade. It is built in the form of a square consists of the town proper and four suburbs, and has several hand some squares, some of them adorned with obelisks and statues, and spacious streets, lined with houses generally from two to three stories high. It contains seven churches among which the cathedral with a good altar-piece and the town church stand conspicuous, the latter by its belfry and tower 280 ft. high the Landeshauptmann, an ancient building of the 18th century in which the Estates of Carinthia held their meetings the old castle, an interesting edifice the palace of the Bishop of Gurk, a handsome structure with fine frescoes, some good collections, and a fine park, thrown open to the public the townhouse, 17 rooms with a library of 30,000 volumes gymnasium, normal and other schools, general infirmary and several hospitals and benevolent institutions. The manufactures consist chiefly of fine woollens, silk goods ribbons, muslin, and white lead, and the transit trade is of considerable importance. Klagenfurt is the see of a bishop and the seat of a superior appeal and criminal court, with jurisdiction over Styria and Carinthia. It is of early origin, and is supposed to stand near the site of the Roman Tiburnia, but its early history does not possess any interest. It first became a place of importance in the beginning of the 16th century, when the Emperor Maximilian I. fortified it, and gave it important privileges. Pop. (1846), 15,054. — The circle is well wooded, and rich in minerals and though much broken by hills and mountains, has some tracts of fertile land. Area, 1360 geo. sq. m. Pop. 175,000.

KLAMATH, a river U. States, which issues from a lake of same name, on the S.W. frontier of Oregon, flows circuitously W. S.W. receiving several affluent the most important of which, rising near Mount St. Joseph, in Upper California, joins it on the left, and falls into the Pacific in lat. 41. 30' N. It is a very rapid stream with a depth near its mouth of 17 ft., it is navigable for steamers for at least 40 m. Considerable quantities of gold have been found in it.

KLAR, a river which rises in the Dovrefield Mountains in the S. of prov S. Trondhjem Norway forms Lake Færevann, the greater part of which is situated in the Hedemark in Sweden, flows S.E. through stult lake, under the name of Tyrillid, enters the Carlsund, where it first takes the name of Klar continues to flow S.E. and falls by three mouths into the V. shore of Lake Wener at the town of Carlsund, after a course of about 300 m. Its principal affluent is the Söta, which it receives on the right, shortly after quitting Lake Færevann.

KLARPHITZA, or CHARENZA [anc. Olympe] a small seaport in Greece, on a bay of same name, in the N.W. of the Morea, 8 m S.W. Gecum, consisting of a few houses, and a fortress picturesque crowning a height. It is the usual landing place from Zante. The title of Clarenza in the royal family of England is derived from this town, which was anciently the capital of a principality of same name.

KLATTAU, a m Bohemia cap. circle of same name, on a steep height, in the beautiful and fertile valley of the Bovenbach, 75 m S.W. Prague. It is surrounded by double walls and ditches, has three suburbs, is well and regularly built, and well paved contains a handsome deanery church, a Jesuit college now converted into barracks a townhouse with a lofty tower, and a very large and fine-tiled hall, a Dominican monastery the buildings of which are used as a gymnasium; several other schools, and two hospitals and has manufactures of woollen and linen cloth and bonetry. It is an ancient place, suffered much during the Thirty Years War and has six times been almost burned down. Pop. 5457. — The circle, traversed in all directions by ramifications of the Bohemianwald, is watered by several streams of which the Radbana is the largest has a bleak climate and contains both iron and coal. Area 736 geo. sq. m. Pop. 184,764.

KLAUSEN a m Austria, Tyrol circle, and 15 m N. E. Bozen, a bank Elanach on the Sonnenberg, in a narrow pass, about 1100 ft. above the sea. It has three churches and a Capuchin monastery with a good library. Pop. 1078.

KLAUSENBURG a city Austria, cap. of Traunviertel and of same name, on the Little Saarn, in a romantic valley 72 m N.W. Hermannstadt, lat. 48 44' S. N. lon. 23 34 51 E. It consists of an inner town or town proper, and six suburbs. The inner town, surrounded by ancient walls flanked with towers and entered by six gates is subdivided into the old and the new town the former is situated close to the river or is of small extent and has dark and narrow streets. It was founded by a German colony in 1173, on the site of the Roman town of Claudis or Claudiopolis and it is even supposed that part of its existing walls are of Roman construction. The new town is much more regularly and handsomely built, and may be described as consisting of a large central market-place, 500 yards long, and 360 yards broad from which almost all the streets, generally spacious run off at right angles. The principal street called the Mittel gasse (middle street) 600 yards long by 71 yards broad, is lined by handsome buildings and has a very imposing appearance. In other quarters the houses, though well built, are (for only of one story and never more than two). The principal public edifices are the cathedral an ancient Gothic structure situated in the market-place, and of considerable architectural merit, though destitute of any tower and somewhat obscured by the shops crowded round its base Trinity church with two towers crowned by two conical domes; two other R. Catholic, a Greek a Lutheran, a Unitarian, and two Calvinistic churches three monasteries the governor's residential palace, and other public offices the townhouse an academy of music, with a public library and interesting collection of minerals, a Protestant and a Lutheran college, a R. Catholic gymnasium and seminary, an infirmary a workhouse, and several well-endowed hospitals. Many of the nobility also have palaces here. The manufactures consist chiefly of woollen and linen cloth delft-ware, and paper, and there is a beet-root sugar factory. The trade, as well as the manufactures, though once important, have greatly declined Klauseenburg having become the seat of the government of Traunviertel, which was transferred to it from Hermannstadt in 1790 has several important public offices, and possesses a better society than is usual in provincial towns. The inhabitants are very much mixed, consisting partly of the descendants of the old Saxons, modern Germans, Hungarians, Armenians, Greeks, Wallachians, Slovaks, and Jews. To all of them not excluding the last, the rights and privileges of citizenship are open. Pop. (1846), 25,500. — The country of Klausenberg, also called Kalk, is tolerably fertile, both producing much corn and raising many cattle. It also possesses valuable minerals. Area, 1392 sq. ac. P. 160,600.

KLAUSHAJ, a tn. Hanover, cap. dist. of same name, on the Zellerbach, opposite to Zellerfeld, which is connected with it by a bridge, and may be regarded as its suburb, 49 m. S. E. E. Hanover. It is the principal mining town of the Harz, and stands on the top and sides of a hill, in a bleak district, about 1800 ft. above the sea. Having been repeatedly burned down, it has been rebuilt with considerable regularity. But the greater part of the houses are only of wood, covered with slating. It contains a church, courthouse, mint, gymnasium, forest and mining school, with a good collection of models of mines and minerals, and has a number of establishments connected with the working of the mines, from which gold, silver and lead are obtained. They are drained by a tunnel cut through the mountain, and 5 m. in length. One of the mines is 2000 ft. below the level of the hills. They have been worked from the 11th century. Pop., Klausthal proper, 9789, including Zellerfeld, 14,345.

KLEACU, or KLECU, a tn. Prussia, prov. and 26 m. N. E. Posen, between two lakes with three churches and a synagogue, and a trade in horses and cattle. Pop. 1079.

KLECELEW, a walled tn. Russian Poland, gov. Kalisch, near Kamin. Pop. 2296.

KLEIN BOTTWART, a vil. Württemberg, circle Neckar, half Murrach, with a church, and a trade in wine. Yearly in the old castle of Eichenbach. Pop. 951.

KLEINERBERG, vil. Rhineish Prussia, gov. and 40 m. S. Minden with a E. Catholic church and a chapel. P. 1093.

KLEINENDORF, a vil. Hanish Prussia, gov. Minden, circle Hildesheim with a church. Pop. 1243.

KLEINGARTACH, a tn. Württemberg circle Neckar, half Murrach, with a church, and a trade in wine. Yearly in the old castle of Eichenbach. It is an ancient place which originally belonged to the Margraves of Baden and came into the possession of Württemberg in 1335. P. 900.

KLEINIZ, a tn. Prussia, gov. Silesia, gov. and 50 m. W. by W. Legnica, with a church, tile-works, lime-kilns, an oil, and several other mills. Pop. 141.

KLENOV, or KLENOV, a vil. Hungary, Hither Danube, on Hunk, on Mount Vesper, with a church, manufactures of coarse woollens, two iron-mills, and a trade in wood. Pop. 2116.

KLENTSCH, or KLENTSCH, a market tn. Bohemia, circle, and 21 m. W. Haidau, on a small stream, at the foot of the Hohenwald, with a church, courthouse, school, and hospital, manufactures of earthenware and three mills. Pop. 1123.

KLESZEL, a tn. Russia, prov. and 49 m. S. E. Bialystok, with a trade in hops, which are largely cultivated in the district. Pop. 1968.

KLEVA, a river, Russia, which rises on the S. W. from the gov. Orel flows S. W. between gov. Koursk and Chernogov, and joins the bank Don, after a course of about 90 m. Chief affluent, the Jassan.

KLIASMA, or KLIASMA, a river, Russia, which rises in the N. of gov. Moscow, dist. Dmitrov, flows S. E. E., past the town of Boguchol, enters gov. Vladimir, and changes its direction to E. by E., entering the forest of Vladimir and Khorov. About 30 m. beyond the latter town it turns suddenly S., then circuitously E., and joins the bank Oka at Gorlav, on the frontiers of Nijni Novgorod after a course of about 350 m., and receiving several affluents. Its channel is encumbered with shoals, but is tolerably clear as far as Khorov up to which it is navigable. It abounds with fish.

KLIJOWITSCH, a tn. Russia, gov. and 70 m. S. E. E. Mahilow, cap. circle, on the Odra. It has some general trade. Pop. (1841) 1992. — Pop. (circle) 50,000.

KLIN, a tn. Russia, gov. and 50 m. N. W. Moscow, cap. circle, on both sides of the Luga. It has an imperial palace built of wood, four churches, a post-office, and superior school; manufactures of earthenware, four tallow smelting establishments, and tile-works. Pop. (1850), 2990. Area of circle, 979 sq. m. Pop. 59,381.

KLINGENBIBIG, a tn. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, on the Main, 22 m. W. Würzburg, with a church, chapel, and mills; manufactures of stone-ware, and a trade in wine and wax. Pop. 1007.

KLINGENTHAL (Inner and Outer), a tn. Saxony, circle Zwickau, 15 m. S. E. Thum. It contains a beautiful church, has manufactures of twisted strings and instruments, some general trade, particularly with Bohemia, and a paper-mill. The mines of iron and tin once very productive, are all but exhausted. Pop. 1691.

KLINGNAU, a tn. and par. Switzerland, can. Aargov, cap. circle, a bank Aar a little above its confluence with the Rhine, 16 m. N. N. E. Aargov. It consists of a single, spacious street, in the centre of which the parish church stands. A good wine is grown in the vicinity. Pop. 1142.

KINTZY, a tn. Russia, gov. and 109 m. N. N. E. Caernigov. Pop. (1849) 5876.

KLISSURA, or KLISSOURA, a tn. Turkey in Europe, Albania, 1 bank Vojutze or Juvu, 40 m. E. by S. Valona. It is a small place, containing some vestiges of antiquity.

KLIUK, a tn. Turkish Croatia, 1 bank Sava, 27 m. E. Ostrova, strongly fortified, and a mart for horses.

KLOBACK, or KLOMBACK, two places, Moravia — 1, A market in circle and 21 m. S. E. Brum, with two churches, and five mills. Land is named in the district. Pop. 1942. — 2, A tn. circle, and 23 m. S. E. Hradisch, with a church, two chapels, an hospital, and fine dyeworks. Pop. 2296.

KLOBUCKO, a tn. Russian Poland, 68 m. S. S. E. Kalisch, in a somewhat rugged, but well-wooded district. It has an old Augustinian monastery. Pop. 933.

KLODAWA, a tn. Russian Poland, 86 m. W. Warsaw with three churches, and a Carmelite monastery. Pop. 1003.

KLOETZGA, a vil. Holland, prov. Zealand, in S. Beveland, S. E. from Goes with a school, and a large marketplace. Pop. 696.

KLOFFBY, or KLOFFBY, a vil. Norway, prov. Nordland, on id Bergen. It is prettily situated and tolerably well built, the houses having a good and comfortable appearance. It has some trade, and is frequented by the fishermen employed among the Lofoden Isles. Pop. about 300.

KLOOSTERBLOEM, a vil. Holland, prov. Groningen, 21 m. W. W. Appledorn, with two churches and a school. Pop. (approximate) 374.

KLOUPYTA, a vil. Hungary, can. Temovar, 12 m. from Trencs, with a church and a trade in excellent wine, the growth of the district. Pop. 1400.

KLOPFENBURG, a tn. W. Germany, duchy Oldenburg, cap. circle on the Süderb., 22 m. S. W. Oldenburg. It has an old tower chapel, townhouse hospital, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 832. Area of circle 418 sq. m. P. 22,862.

KLOSTER, or KLOSTER, two places, Bohemia — 1, A tn., circle, and 16 m. N. W. Rastz, 1 bank Eger, prettily situated, and well built, with a church and a castle, manufactures of stone-ware, and an iron-mill. Pop. 1600. — 2, A vil. circle, Koneggrätz, in a wild and romantic district, on the wild Adler. It has a very ancient church, a school, and manufactures of porcelain and steel-ware. Pop. 793.

KLOSTERHUBURG, a tn. Lower Austria, 6 m. N. Vienna, beautifully situated on a height above the bank Danube at the confluence of the Kurling. It is surrounded by dilapidated walls, and consists of a high and a low town, containing the picturesque ruin of an old fortress, an ancient church, a Neothirns college, several schools, an infirmary, hospital, and barracks, and has manufactures of lace and chemical products, a sugar refinery, cotton-mill, and a weekly market. Above the town stands a magnificent old abbey with a fine church, good library and other collections, and the archiepiscopal crown of Austria, which is taken to Vienna and used when coronation takes place. Pop. 9800.

KLOSTER, a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. Grisons, on the Landquart, here crossed by a bridge, 16 m. N. E. E. Coira. It is named from an abbey which was suppressed in 1538, and has a parish church and a smelting-furnace. P. 1261.

KLOTEN, a tn. and par. Switzerland, can. and 6 m. N. N. E. Friburg. It is well built, and contains a large and handsome church, and several schools. From the number of coins and other antiquities which have been found here, Kloten is supposed to be of Roman origin. Pop. 1400.

KLUEDERT, a tn. Holland, prov. N. Brabant, 12 m. N. W. Brabant, once fortified. It has straight streets, is traversed by several canals, has a townhouse in a large square, planted with trees, two churches, a school, and two annual fairs, viz. the St. John's fair. Pop. (approximate) 1160.

KLIJUS (Outer and Inner), two vils. Switzerland, can. and 10 m. N. E. Solothurn, at the opposite extremities of a romantic pass of same name, in the Jura. Inner Klus, consisting of two rows of houses stands at the foot of a precipitous rock, crowned by the ruined castle of Hipp, and to have been built by Pepin Maïr du Palais and has blast-furnaces, in which the bellows or pots like iron ore, common on the Jura, is smelted. Outer Klus consists of several well-built houses, and has a chapel a tannery an oil-mill and a bleach field. The pass of Klus is thought to derive its name from the Latin clausus, from having been anciently closed by a gate and wall. It is still of importance as one of the main entrances into Switzerland from the N W.

KLYTCH-2142-2143 or KLYTCH-2141 a tn Independent Tertiary khanate and 60 m N W Khiva. It has no wall but contains a castle of the khan and three mosques; and has two weekly markets.

KMIZLANIE a tn Russia gov Podolsk, 25 m N E Kamenetz on the Bug, with a R Catholic and several Greek churches and some general trade. Pop. 2485

KNAITH par Eng Lincoln, 1640 ac. Pop. 116.

KNAIDALE two para. Scot. Argyle — 1 (North) 27 797 ac. Pop. 1666 — 2 (South) 240 ac m Pop. 2178.

KNAPTON, par Eng Norfolk, 1480 ac. Pop. 580.

KNAPTON, par Eng Cambridge 2000 ac. P. 155.

KNAPEBOROUGH a parl bar and market to Eng land on York (W Riding) beautifully situated 1 bank Nidd 17 m W by N York, with which it is connected by railway.

It contains a spacious market-place, from which several streets diverge the latter well paved and lighted with gas houses in general neat and substantial and principally of stone.

The church is an elegant and commodious structure in a mixed style of architecture, with a tower. There are also a chapel of ease two places of worship for Dissenters a R Catholic chapel, and a free grammar and several other schools.

The only other public buildings are the workhouse and jail. The town was formerly the seat of extensive linen and cotton manufactures but these branches of industry have now almost entirely disappeared.

The environs of the town are remarkably beautiful, and abound with objects of interest, including the ruins of the castle founded in 1170 which afforded shelter to the murderers of Thomas à Becket and formed a temporary prison for Richard I the drooping wall possessed of powerful petrifying properties and several curious excavations in one of which Eugene Aram a schoolmaster in Knaresborough, committed the murder for which he was executed 14 years afterwards.

Knaresborough returns two members to the House of Commons. Registered electors, 1851 280 Pop. 5596.

KNARESDALE, par Eng Northumb 7144 ac P. 917.

KNAVINSTOWN, par Irel Kildare 618 ac P. 50.

KNEBWORTH par Eng Herts 2695 ac. Pop. 290.

KNEBSAL, par Eng Notts, 4360 ac. Pop. 600.

KNEEION, par Eng Notts 924 ac. Pop. 109.

KNELETON, par Wales, Glamorgan, 657 ac P. 127.

KNESELARE a vil and com Belgium, prov E. Flanders on the Zwart-Gatbek 14 m W Ghent with extensive manufactures of linen and starch three distilleries, a dye-works and several mills. Pop. 4157.

KNETTSHALL, par Eng Suffolk, 1024 ac. P. 80.

KNETZGAU a vil Bavaria, Lower Franconia, on the Main, over which there is here a ferry W Bamberg. It has a church, a chapel the ruins of an old castle, a building yard, a saw and other mills and a trade in wood. Pop. 1853.

KNLAHIN a tn Russia gov and 50 m E F E. Rybol Norogard, cap dist, on the Kalingra, poorly built, with four wooden churches, tanneries, and some general trade. Pop. 1800 — The circles raise good crops of corn, and flocks great numbers of cattle. Pop. 100 000.

KNIELINGEN a vil Baden, circle Middle Rhine, on the Rhine here crossed by a bridge, 8 m W N Carlsruhe, with a church. By the embanking of the river a large tract of fine meadow land has been gained. There is a gold wash ery here. Pop. 1625.

KNEBLIN or GEMEX, a tn Hungary co Zepa, 1 bank Poppe 15 m N E. Kismark with a church, and some general trade. Pop. 1480.

KNIGH, par Irel Tipperary 4515 ac Pop. 1922.

KNIGHTON a bor, market tn and par S. Wales co. Radnor. The town is beautifully situated, r bank Teme, at the head of a romantic valley surrounded on all sides by lofty wooded hills 84 m N N E. New Radnor. The two principal streets, which intersect each other at right angles are regularly laid out, well kept, and contain many respectable houses. The church is a comparatively modern edifice. There are an endowed, six day and three infant schools six almshouses and several other charities. The only business of the town is a little wool-stapling. Knighton unites with New Radnor in returning one member to the House of Commons. The great dyke of Offa enters the parish on the N and about 8 m. from the town, on the top of a hill are the remains of a British encampment. Area, 2461 ac. Pop. 1565.

KNIGHTON (Warr) par Eng Dorset 7238 ac. P. 270.

KNIGHTS ISLAND — 1 An isl Russian America, near the mouth of Admiralty or Behring's Bay, about lat. 59° 23' N, and lon. 185° 40' W. It consists of a navigable passage all round it, but an inlet lies between it and the mainland on its N E side, and there are some rocks about 1/2 m from its W point. — 2 An isl Russian America, in Prince William's Sound about lat. 60° 13' N, lon. 148° W. It is about 30 m long N to S. — 3 An isl off the NW coast of Hudson's Bay, about lat. 62° N lon. 93° W.

KNIGHTSHRIDGE, a W suburb of London about 3 m W by S St. Paul's, in the par. of Chelsea, Kensington and St. Margaret's, Westminster. It consists chiefly of one long street, in a line with Piccadilly between Hyde Park Corner and Kensington Gore and contains an elegant church the Albert Gate into Hyde Park, extensive cavalry barracks, barracks for the foot guards, a fine triumphal arch leading into the gardens of Buckingham palace, St. George's hospital, and numerous magnificent mansions and handsome residences.

KNIGHTWICK par Eng Worcester 864 ac. P. 166.

KNIJFE (dx a vil Holland, prov Friesland 2 m E Heerenveen. It is divided into Beneden (lower) and Boven (upper) Knijpe and has a church and school. Pop. (agricul), 1914.

KNILL par Eng Hereford 708 ac. Pop. 78.

KNIN [anc. Teneus] a tn Austria Delmatia, circle and 49 m E Zara, at the source of the Turljak and Krucka here crossed by an old stone bridge. It is walled and defended by a fort situated on a commanding height but is poorly built and owing to the marshes in its neighbourhood very unhealthy. It has a court of justice and a R Catholic church and is supposed to occupy the site of the German town Andaba which after a gallant defence by the natives, was destroyed by Germans. Pop. 1010.

KNIPIAULEN a lordship W Germany duchy Oldenburg belonging to the Count Von Bentinck and forming a kind of intermediate sovereignty guaranteed by the German Confederation in 1806. It is in the E. part of circle Jever and wholly inclosed by it consists of marsh land and is well adapted both for corn and the rearing of cattle. The principal village, which has the same name, contains a castle with fine gardens. Area 15 geo sq m Pop. 3108.

KNIPTON par Eng Lancaster 1480 ac. Pop. 386.

KNITTELFELD a tn Austria, Styria, circle and 10 m E N E. Judenburg 1 bank Murr and surrounded by old walls in a very ill adapted state. It has a deanery church a Capuchin monastery and hospital, and manufactures of scythes an iron mill and a trade in cattle. Pop. 2000.

KNITTLINGEN a tn Württemberg, circle Neckar 25 m N W Stuttgart. It is walled has a court of law a deanery church, a Latin school, and silk works. Pop. 2392.

KNYFFON par Eng Derby 9340 ac. Pop. 831.

KNY Kwas or Kwa a lake Russia gov and 100 m. S S F Minsk length E to W 15 m breadth about 4 m.

KOCK a mountain, Scotland ro and 11 m. S W Benf, 2000 ft. high, used as a landmark in navigating the Moray Firth.

KNOCK, two para Irel — 1, Meath, 976 ac. Pop. 830.

— 2 Mayo 11 705 ac. Pop. 3174.

KNOCKALINEY par Irel Limerick, 9248 ac. P. 3450.

KNOCKANDO par Scot. Elgin, 16 m. by 6 m. P. 1771.

KNOCKAN E, par Irel Kerry, 97,648 ac. Pop. 4245.

KNOCKANURE, par Irel Kerry, 4650 ac. P. 1053.

KNOCKAVILLY par Irel Cork; 6210 ac. P. 1423.

KNOCKBAIN par Scot. Ross. Pop. 8005.

KNOCKBREDA, par Irel Antrim and Down; 8020 ac. Pop. 11,488.

KNOCKBRIDE, par Irel Laven 18 623 ac. P 7042
KNOCKMOORE, par Irel Meath 2500 ac. P 642
KNOCKGRAFFON, par Irel Tipperary 1973 ac. Pop. 2291

KNOCKHOLT, par Eng. Kent 1883 ac. Pop 578
KNOCKIN, par Eng. Salop, 1561 ac. Pop. 255.
KNOCKLONG, par Irel Limerick 4442 ac. P 1431
KNOCKMARK, par Irel. Meath 2877 ac. Pop 527
KNOCKMELLOW MOUNTAINS, a mountain range, Ireland, sec. Waterford and Tipperary extending 18 m. from the valley of the Nire to the Kilworth Mountains. Knockmellow, the highest summit 4 m. S. E. Claghass, is 1700 ft. high.

KNOCKMOURNE, par Irel Cork 8836 ac. P 12029
KNOCKNAGAU, par Irel. Limerick, 2173 ac. P 714
KNOCKRATH, par Irel. Wicklow 18,854 ac. P 1698.
KNOCKTEMPLIN, par Irel Cork 4618 ac. P 1018.
KNOCKTOPHER, a tn. and par Ireland co. Wickham.

The town, or rather village, on a plain, 11 m. S. Wickham, has a seat. Established church with a spire a Carmelite N. Catholic chapel, two schools, and a medical dispensary. Weaving was formerly carried on here, but the inhabitants are now chiefly employed as labourers. Area of par 4722 ac. Pop. 1567. —(Local Correspondent)

KNOXSHALL, par Eng. Suffolk 1846 ac. Pop. 432
KNOX, par Eng. Wilt 1446 ac. Pop. 252
KNOXINGTON, par Eng. Leicester 1445 ac. P 230
KNOTTING, or NORTON, par Eng. Bedford 1,24 ac. Pop. 182

KNOTTING, a tn. England co. York (W. Riding) on a slight declivity, 1/2 bank. Acre at its junction with the Hambley and Goolie Canal 8 1/2 m. E. N. E. Postoffice, on the railway to Leeds. It is irregularly built has two established churches various dissenting chapels a national British and several private schools some small charities, and a mechanics institute. The manufacture of lace for which hambley has been long famed is carried on to a great extent, being peculiarly well adapted for agricultural purposes. A good many river and small coasting vessels are built here, and the trade on the river and canal is very considerable. The king's mills, erected here shortly after the conquest, are still extensive although deprived of their former privileges. Pop. 4540. —(Local Correspondent)

KNOX, a vil. England co. 10 m. N. W. Warwick with a handsome chapel and several charities. P 1155

KNOX, a vil. U.S. par Eng. Somerset 549 ac. P 92

KNOXWOLTON, par Eng. Kent 428 ac. Pop. 24

KNOXWOLTON, par Eng. Devon 4989 ac. Pop. 517

KNOX, two parts. Eng. Wilt — 1 East, 6188 ac. P 1110. — 2 West, 1913 ac. Pop. 169

KNOXFORD, a market tn. and par England co. (Dorset). The town 23 m. N. E. of E. Chester has generally a mean appearance but it has a seat parish church and several dissenting chapels a free grammar and several other schools. The thread manufacture, which formerly flourished here has been supplanted by cotton and silk hand-loom weaving which is carried on to a small extent. But the inhabitants generally are engaged in handicraft trades, and derive their principal support from the numerous opulent gentry in the neighbourhood. Area of par 4632 ac. Pop. 4375

KNOXWOLTON, a vil. and par Switzerland, can and 9 m. N. W. Lausanne. It has a handsome church, and a building establishment, erected over sulphurous and chalybeate springs, which have been known since the 16th century. Pop. 1803

KNOXWOLTON, a tn. Russia, prov. 18 m. N. N. W. Bialystok with manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, and several mills. Pop. 1699

KNOX, a tn. and harbour, Gulf of Oman. The island is 30 m. S. E. of the mouth of the Banak river about lat. 15° 12' N. lon. 100° 55' E. 7 m. long, and 3 m. broad, moderately high and hilly clothed with trees, and on the S. end of fresh water. The mountain, formed by this island, and another about half its size, called Ko-Gram, is sheltered from the wind and sea in every direction, except the N. E.

KNOX, a city China, prov. Kiangsu, 157 m. E. by S. Nanhang

KNOX, a vil. Austria. Belovana, generalship Peterwardein on the Sava, about 9 m. from Orizacz; with two churches, and two mills. Pop. 1,066

KNOX, or CONNA, a tn. Central Africa, cap. Darfur, on a plain; lat. 14° 11' N.; lon. 28° 5' E. It is more than 2 m. long, but extremely narrow; each of the houses occupies a distinct enclosure, in which a well is dug, and is separated from its neighbour by a considerable extent of waste ground. The town is thickly interspersed with trees of various kinds and has two mosques, and five public schools and is inhabited almost entirely by merchants or strangers. In a great square, on the S. E. side, a market is held for the productions of the country and for articles imported from Egypt. A hill to the E. is a mountain of rock of the same name, which is a retreat of hyenas and jackals. In the neighbourhood are several considerable villages. Pop. 8000

KORDU, a city and territory Mongolia. See CONNA.

KÖBLIN, a tn. Prussia, prov. Rhine, gov. and 38 m. N. W. Breda. 1 bank Oder with two churches, hospital, and castle and a trade in cattle. It was nearly burnt down in 1844. 1 op 1261

KOPFERSDORF or KAPOLD, a market in Hungary, co. and 12 m. W. N. W. Oedenburg, with two churches, a gymnasium and an old castle of a circular form, and mineral springs. Pop. 1780

KOBI, a Russian fort and vil. gov. Georgia, among the mountains of Caucasus near the point where three valleys which furnish the chief sources of the Terek, unite and form the large valley of Khval. lat. 42° 32' N.; lon. 44° 55' E. The inhabitants are Ossetes, and profess Christianity. A church has been built for their use

KOBILJAKI, a tn. Russia, gov. and 23 m. S. W. Poltawa, 1 bank Worokla with 10 churches a considerable general trade, and four important annual fairs. Pop. 7000

KOBLENZ, a gov. and city Prussia. See LORENA.

KOBOR, or KITEN, a vil. Austria, Transylvania, Székely Raps, on a height, close to Texas-Tykas, and about 12 m. from Sarkany with a Protestant parish church. 1 op 1019

KORBYN, a tn. Russia, gov. and 102 m. S. by E. Grodno bank Machesna a tributary of the Bug with a Greek abbey. Pop. (1850) 6057

KOBUIG, a tn. and duchy Germany. See CURIA.

KOBYANKA, a vil. Galicia, empire Jaslo on the Rapp. It has a church and a castle and in its vicinity a chapel annually visited by about 50,000 pilgrims, from Gallic Hungary and Poland.

KOBYLIN, a tn. Prussia, prov. 48 m. S. S. P. 1 con, on the Orla with two parish churches, a Barnardine monastery and manufactures of leather and potash. Pop. 2087

KOCHGUTZ, a vil. Prussia prov. Rhine, gov. Oppeln, circle Lublitz with a castle, glass works, tile works, lime kilns, a saw and several other mills. 1 op 1007

KOCHUM or COCHUM, a tn. Rhineland Prussia, gov. and 30 m. S. W. Coblenz, cap. circle, at the confluence of the Endert with the Moselle. It is poorly built, has a court of justice and several public offices a church two chapels a synagogue, a gymnasium, the ruins of the old castle of Winnenburg, belonging to the Metternich family, and manufactures of linen and red leather a potash works some shipping, and a trade in wine and cattle. Pop. 2555

The circle is hilly and black and is watered by the Moselle, and numerous small streams. Area, 145 geo. sq. m. Pop. 33,484

KOCHUL, a small river Würtemberg which rises near the village of Kochenberg, circle Hart, flows first N. N. W. through wild but well wooded country passing the towns of Aalen, Gail, and Hall, then N. to Künzelsau, when it turns W., passes Teinhardt and after a course of about 80 m. joins a bank Neckar about 6 m. N. Heilbronn

KOCHSTEUT, a tn. Prussia, prov. Saxony, gov. and 31 m. S. W. Magdeburg, at the foot of the Hake It is walled, poorly built, and has a church, a townhouse tile-works, and several mills. Pop. 1557

KOCK, a tn. Russian Poland, about 40 m. S. Silesia, r. bank Wisla. Pop. about 1900

KOCHEL, a vil. Hungary, co. Bihar, on the Black Kiskis, 12 m. from Budapest. It stands in a tolerably fertile district, and has a Greek non-united parish church. P 1041

KODA, a tn. Siam, 28 m. S. W. Khyatun, lat. 17° 55' N. lon. 60° 55' E. Pop. 1200

KODIAK, an isl. Alutian Archipelago. See KADIAK.

KODJ HEMAR, a tn. Asiatic Turkey pach Karamania, 85 m. N. E. Konia, consisting of about 150 or 200 houses at

ROLIN, a m. Bohemia. See COLLIN

ROLKED, a v. Hungary, Thimser Danube, co. Baranya, 2 m from Mohacs, at the confluence of the Delnyk with the Danube. It has a church. Pop. 1500.

ROLKEI, a m. Russia, gov. Volynia, circle and 80 m N E. Lank, r. bank Siv., with a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1500.

ROLLAROVCEZ, a vil. Hungary, Hither Danube, co. Trnava, in a mountainous district, 20 m from Billeu, with a Catholic church and a trade in timber, particularly deals which are here sawn up in great numbers. Pop. 2065.

ROLLEDA, a m. Prussia, prov. Saxony, gov. and 85 m W. S. W. Merseburg on the Leosbach. It has a court of justice, a church and a courthouse, the works, hme-khins, several mills, and a trade in cattle. Medicinal plants are cultivated largely in the vicinity. Pop. 3091.

ROLLIKEN, a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. Aargau, cap. circle of same name, in a beautiful and fertile valley 4 m S. Aarau. It has a church, a large school, and manufactures of cotton. Pop. 1547.

ROLLINLEZ, a m. Bohemia, circle, and 14 m from Klatzau, with a church, a castle, townhouse, school, and a paper and a flour mill. Pop. 991.

ROLLUM, a market in. Holland, prov. Friesland, 16 m N. E. Leeuwarden. It has two churches, a school, porcelain manufactory, rope-works, oil-mills, and a manufacture of calico. Pop. 2068.

ROLLUMPEZWAAG, a vil. Holland, prov. Friesland, near Rollum, with a church and school and some limited manufactures. Pop. 513.

ROLN, a gov. and city Prussia. See COLONN

ROLN, a m. Prussia, Poland, 40 m N. E. Kalch, on a hill almost encircled by the Warta. It is walled, has three churches, a synagogue, an old Benedictine monastery, and manufactures of woollen cloth and hats. Pop. 2000.

ROKOKATHIA [see. LOCOMOS (Suez)] a gulf, Greece, in the S. of the Morea, now better known by the name of the Gulf of Marathon. Its W. entrance is formed by Cape Matapan and its E. by the sale of Steri or Elephouli. It is about 20 m wide, by 33 deep. On its W. shore is a small seaport of same name occupying the site of the ancient Gythium which, though 40 m. distant from Sparta, was its port.

ROKOLIA, a m. Austria, circle, 10 m S. E. Leoben, cap. circle, r. bank Fruth with a Catholic church, a high school and a trade in cattle. Pop. 6980. — The circle is generally mountainous, and depastures great numbers of horses and cattle. It is watered by the Fruth and Danube. Area 913 sq. m. Pop. 227,700.

ROKOMENKA, a m. Russia, gov. and 60 m S. E. Moscow, cap. circle of same name on the Rokomenka a small affluent of the Moskwa, on a height. It is surrounded by brick walls, of great height and thickness and flanked with towers is divided into two parts by the river and tolerably well built, though most of the houses are only of wood. It is the see of a bishop, and the seat of several public offices and has 18 churches, one of them a cathedral, a monastery, a gymnasium, a diocesan seminary, a superior school, manufactures of woollen, cotton, linen, and silk goods, leather earthenware, and a famous marmalade, called posidit, numerous tallow smelting establishments and the works, and an important trade in cattle, salt provisions, fish, hemp, hemp-oil and hides. P. 12,598.

— The circle has an undulating surface, and is densely wooded, but is only of medium fertility. Area, 483 sq. m.

ROKOS, or ROKOSKA, a market in Transylvania, cap. dist. of same name, 13 m. K. Klausenburg, with three churches, and valuable salt mines. Pop. 8180.

ROKOPNA, a market in Russia, gov. St. Petersburg on the Ischura, with a church, several saw and cement mills, manufactures of copper and ironware, a foundry &c. P. 1200.

ROKVA, a river Russia, which rises in the N. of gov. Perm, W. slope of the Ural Mountains, flows very circuitously, first W. & W. then E., and, after a course of about 170 m joins r. bank Vishera a little below Tobolsk. Its principal affluent is the R. Zere.

ROLYMA, a river Siberia, gov. Irkutsk, which rises in lat. 61° 30' N., lon. 146° E., in the Mountains of Stanovoi-Krabet. After a course mainly N. E. it falls into the Polar Sea in lat. 69° 40' N. The first 200 m it is very rapid but subsequently as it widens, it becomes more tranquil.

Vol. 11

ROL The right bank consists generally of steep bluff rocks of slate, intersected in some places by veins of hardened clay and chlorite slate. Sometimes the slate is black and pure without admixture, and sometimes, also, it is interspersed with argillaceous shaly rocks, crystals of quartz, and large specimens of rock crystal. The vegetation of this bank is tolerably rich. Among the plants are the Epilobium latifolium and in abundance, a species of Sanguisorba, the roots of which are used by the natives for food. The left bank is more flat, the whole country lowering gradually towards the sea, till it becomes one enormous tundra or level plain. The chief tributaries are the greater and lesser Aulaj and the Ononol, which join the left bank not far from the sea. Above the mouth of the Ononol, an arm of the Kolyms forms a swampy island, on the S. of which stands Nijel Kolymsk. Still lower the river divides into two branches and forms the island of Merchoglanow whose greatest breadth is about 7 m. The E. branch called the Kanmoyaya or stony Kolyms is about 4 m wide the W. the Puchokskaja is little more than 2 m. Still lower there is a third smaller branch. The three form the embouchure, which is about 60 m. across. The stony Kolyms has sufficient depth for any vessel, but the navigation especially at the entrance is rendered dangerous by shifting sandbanks. The Kolyms abounds in fish. (Wrange).

KOLYVAN or TARHEKA a m. Siberia, gov. and 115 m N. W. Tomsk, finely situated at the confluence of the Berda with the Obi. Pop. 1850; 3172.

KOL/IG, a vil. Prussia, prov. Sillesia gov. Liegnitz, ball Grünberg, with two churches, and the works. P. 974.

KOMADE or KOMADI, a vil. Hungary, Thither Thoma, co. Hither on the Kuroc and the Siket Er which here lose themselves in the extensive meadows of Barroth, 21 m. W. Grosvardeln. It has a Protestant church, a bakery and a trade in horses, cattle, and swine. Many craw-fish are taken and great quantities of cane cut here. Pop. 2093.

KOMAROM, several places Hungary.—1 (see Komaron or Aasad) A market to Thither Danube, co. Szabol near Lake Balaton, 45 m. E. N. E. Wersada, with a church, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1857—2, (Metst) A market to, co. and 27 m. S. E. Veszprim, on the Sio with two churches a trade in corn, and a flour-mill. Pop. 1327.

KOMJATH (MAJATA and MAST) a vil. Hungary, Thither Thoma, co. Ungen, on the Borsava 11 m. from Nagy Szabolcs, with a church. Pop. 1268.

KOMJATHY or KOMJATHY, a market in Hungary, Hither Danube co. and 11 m. S. E. Nentra, on the Neutra with a castle, a handsome parish church, a house of correction, a mill and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 2084.

KOMLO, a vil. Hungary, Hither Thoma co. Heves in a fertile district, 20 m. S. S. E. Erika, with a church. P. 1591.

KOMLOD, two places, Hungary.—1, A vil., co. Tolna, on the Danube 8 m. E. E. Balca. Pop. 1366—2, (see Komlog) A vil. Thither Danube, co. and 23 m. from Komorn. Pop. 1069.

KOMLOS, several places, Hungary.—1 (see Komos) A market in Thither Thoma, dist. and 13 m. S. Nagy Szabolcs, with a church and a trade in corn. Pop. 4900—2 (see) A vil. Thither Thoma, co. Bakos, 13 m. S. E. Oroshaza, with a church, a flour-mill and a trade in corn. Pop. 7898.

KOMMA, or KOMXIA, a vil. Austria, Moravia, circle Hraditz, near Swietok. It has a church and is the birthplace of the famous Anna Comana. Pop. 397.

KOMORN or KOMORNA, a co. Hungary, Thither Danube, bounded N. by co. Neutra and Bata, E. by Gura, S. by Stahl weissenburg, S. E. by Vassarin, W. by Neab and N. W. by Pressburg, area, 856 sq. m., cap. Komorn (which see).

The surface, with the exception of a part of the S. which is traversed by the mountain-range called Vertec is throughout low and flat, belongs wholly to the basin of the Danube, which divides it into two nearly equal parts, and receives within it the Wang and the Zaltva. There are numerous small lakes and stagnant pools, and several extensive meadows, but the soil is generally of great fertility producing corn, of which considerable quantities are exported. Tobacco also, is extensively grown and much wine, of excellent quality is produced. The forests yield excellent timber much of which is sawn up and sent to Vienna. Sturgeon-fishing forms an important branch of trade. There are several quarries of fine marble. Pop. 188,680.

KOMORZANY, a vi. Hungary. Thicker Thelak, on the border, 18 m. from Annay-Maggy, with a Greek church. Pop. 1868.

KOMUTAPOOH, a village in Hindostan, prov. Bengt, once cap. of the Hindu kingdom of Ombup. The ruins are of an oblong form, 19 m. in circumference. It was protected by formidable defenses, and three of its gates still exist.

KOMPOLTH, a vi. Hungary. Thicker Thelak, on the border, 18 m. from Annay-Maggy, with a Greek church. Pop. 1868.

KONBO, a lake, Russia, gov. Archangel, Lapland, to the N. of the Gulf of Kandalaksha, into which it discharges itself by two outlets, one at its S.E., and another at its N.W. extremity. It is about 85 m. long, by 7 m. broad.

KONDA, a river, Asiatic Russia, which rises in the N. of circle Turan, gov. Tobolsk, flows S.E., and then N.E., its whole course, of about 350 m., forming nearly a semicircle, and joins the bank Irtysh, about 80 m. above Sinsarova. Its chief affluents are the Kama, Tura, and Iakva.

KONDINAK, a vi. Asiatic Russia, gov. and 260 m. N. Tobolsk, a bank, and nearly opposite to the N. extremity of a large island, formed by the Obi. It consists chiefly of a number of clean and well-built peasant houses, clustering round a convent, to which they belong, and which is a low structure, in the simplest style, and only distinguished from the other houses by the stone wall which encloses it.

KONG MOUNTAINS, a mountain range, Africa, commencing at Khol Khol, about 300 m. S.E. Sierra Leone, lat. 9° N.; lon. 9° 20' W., and stretching E. through the Mandingo country along the N. frontier of Ashantee, and across Dahomey. So far as has been ascertained, some of the peaks are above 2500 ft. high. They consist of granite, marble, and limestone, but little is yet known regarding them.

KÖNGEN a vi. Württemberg circle Neckar, lat. and 5 m. S.E. Zasingen, on the Neckar, here crossed by a bridge, with a castle. Pop. 2058.

KÖNIGSBERG a vi. Norway prov. Agderhus, lat. 56° 45' N., lon. 10° 45' E., on the Lærum, R. of Mjøsa-Johannesdalen, which towers up to the height of 3064 ft., 45 m. W.S.W. Christiania. It contains a large brick church, one of the landmarks in the country. It is the seat of a mint and a mining directory, and has manufactures of fire-arms, government powder-mills, and important smelting works for silver and cobalt, obtained from mines about 1 m. distant, and first worked in 1684. The deepest mine is about 180 fathoms; and out of it was taken a mass of silver, now in the museum of natural history at Copenhagen, measuring 6 ft. long, 2 ft. broad, and 8 in. thick. In the Lærum, about 1 m. above Königsberg, is the magnificent waterfall the Lærumfossen. Pop. (1849) 4925.

KONIA, KONIK, or KONIKON (anc. Iconium), a city Asiatic Turkey, prov. Karamania, in the centre of a great and partly marshy plain, lat. 37° 56' 50" N., were renowned for its population, and wealth now in a miserable state of decay; although, from a distance, its appearance is still striking and impressive, giving little idea of the deserted scene within—of its heaps of ruins and dilapidated mosques. Its walls, 3 m. to 5 m. in circuit, and 20 ft. high, are Karamania, with large, well-cut blocks of stone, and surrounded by a moat seven, some of them richly ornamented with corridors, arcades, fountains, fountains, and Arabic inscriptions. The gateways are also handsome, some of them decorated with statues, but also effigies. The houses are the only inhabited portion of the central city; they are Turkish, and appear to be of the same date and style as the Karamania ornaments over the gateways. On the E. and S. sides of the city, and beyond its walls, are extensive suburbs, not much less populous than the city itself. The most remarkable building is the Izzet Minaret Djami (the mosque with the minaret reaching to the stars, with exquisite display of tracery, fretwork, and mouldings). Another interesting ruin is the old Turkish prison resembling a Gothic castle with its raised towers, battlements, and keep. There are still, besides, several handsome mosques in the town, and several confidential chapels, that are objects of veneration, and even of pilgrimage; but, generally speaking, they are crumbling into ruins, as are, also, upwards of 30 mosques, or colleges, and as many madrasas, with and without minarets. The latter, till lately in use, are chiefly of glazed tiles and bricks of various colours, amongst which red and blue are predominant. Outside the town, on the N.W. side, is the burial-ground. A great part of the population is employed in the manufacture of carpets, and in the preparation of leather, cotton, wool, and hides. The gardens attached to the city produce a variety of fruits, and an adjoining plain, a part of which is inundated annually, supplies grain, flax, &c., in addition to an abundance of pasture. Pop. upwards of 40,000.—[Hamilton's Asia Minor.]

KONIA THE GATE OF THE BAZAAR.—From the engraving in the Atlas of the East.

KONIKH, a vi. Asia Minor. See KONIA.

KÖNIG, a market in Hesse-Darmstadt, prov. Starkenburg, a bank Mithing, 18 m. S.E. Darmstadt. It has a church, castle, and two schools, tile-works, and several mills. Pop. 1478.

KÖNIGGRÄTZ, a vi. Bohemia, cap. circle of same name, 1 bank Elbe, at the confluence of the Adice 64 m. E.N.E. Prague. It consists of the town proper and three suburbs, and is a place of great strength being not only regularly fortified but possessed of some of the surrounding country under water. It is the seat of a bishop, and the seat of several important courts and public offices; contains an ancient cathedral, three other churches, an episcopal palace, townhouse, diocesan seminary with a library, a gymnasium, theatre, infirmary, hospital and military hospital, and barracks; and has manufactures of woollens, serges, silk, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 5454.—The centre has a diversified surface, consisting partly of hills, belonging to the Blatná-Hyde, and partly of level plains. Area, 980 sq. m. Pop. 339,600.

KÖNIGHEIM a vi. Baden, circle Lower Rhine, lat. and 5 m. W.S.W. Hochheim, in a beautiful valley on the Brühl; with the woods. Pop. 2105.

KÖNIGSHOF, a vi. Bohemia, circle and 14 m. N.W. Kollár, on the Elbe, with a church, manufactures of woollens and linen cloth, and a tannery. Pop. 4410.

KÖNIGSBAAL, or KONIGSBAAL (anc. Adia Adia), a vi. Bohemia, circle Böhmen, at the confluence of the Rouda and Málava, 6 m. S. Prague, with a church, in which King Wenzel II. is buried; and manufactures of chemical products, a sugar refinery, and a brewery. Pop. 1008.

KÖNIGSBACH a vi. Baden, circle Hesse's Elbe, on the Elbe, 6 m. S.E. Carlsruhe, with a church, and manufactures of copperware and vinegar. Pop. 1690.

KÖNIGSBERG, a vi. Prussia, prov. E. Prussia, founded N. by the Baltic, a vi. gov. Gumbinnen, & Poland, & W. prov. Marienburg and Königs. It is the largest of all the Prussian garrisons, but only ranks sixth in respect of population. It extends itself to an extensive plain, belonging wholly to the banks of the Balda, along which the sea-beach extends for about 180 m.; though of this not more than 40 m. belong properly to the mainland, the rest consisting of narrow bays and tongues of land, by which the large lagoons, the Christen-Haff and Fräse-Haff, are separated from the sea. The principal rivers are the Memel, the Pregel, the Frische, and the Passarge, with their tributaries. Of the lakes, which are numerous, the most important are the Drewens, Murus, Gablen, Danower, Schilling and Geestich. Much of the surface is covered by mosses and swamps, but along the banks of the rivers are extensive tracts of the richest alluvial soil, good loam occasionally occurs, but sand and clay more frequently prevail. The corn produced in the government considerably exceeds its consumption, hemp and flax also are extensively grown. Wood abounds in every district, and is largely exported. The minerals are few and of little value, being chiefly confined to bog iron-ore, and amber which is found on the shores of the Balda. Manufactures have made considerable progress, and include woollen and linen tissues, sailcloth, leather, paper, iron, steel, and copper ware, earthenware, soap, candles, sugar, tobacco, &c. For administrative purposes, the government is divided into twenty Landes. Principal towns, Memel Königsberg, and Brannsborg. Area, 4530 geo. sq. m. Pop. (1846), 847,952.

KÖNIGSBERG [Latin, Mons Regius, Polish, Królewiec, Lithuanian, Karalawies], a seaport in E. Prussia, cap. gov. of same name on the Pregel, about 4 m. above its mouth, in the N.E. extremity of the Fräse-Haff, lat. (observatory) 54° 46' N. and lon. 20° 30' 15" E. (N.) It was once the capital of Prussia Proper, including the provinces of both E. and W. Prussia, and the residence of the Electors of Brandenburg, and still ranks as the third city in the Prussian dominions. It is surrounded by walls and ramparts, and has recently received important additions to its fortifications on the plan of detached forts. It consists of the town proper, and of four suburbs. The former is divided into three parts, the Altstadt, or Old Town, situated on the W., Liebnicht on the E., and Kneiphof, situated on an island formed by the Pregel, which before entering the town from the E. divides into two arms. The communication between the island and the opposite banks is kept up by seven wooden bridges. The Altstadt and Liebnicht are well situated on an elevated and rugged piece of ground, forming seven small hills, but the island on which Kneiphof stands is so low and swampy that the houses are built upon piles. Viewed from a distance, Königsberg presents both an imposing and a pleasing appearance, but the impression produced by the interior is not favourable. The houses are for the most part indifferent, and are huddled together without any semblance of regularity, in narrow and crooked streets. The principal public buildings are the cathedral, an ancient and interesting Gothic structure, situated on the Kneiphof, and containing among its tombs a fine marble monument of the Margrave Albert; the Hamburger Kirche, a very conspicuous and handsome church the Soldaten, or palace a large ugly building, now converted into a government house, but historically interesting, both as the residence of the grand masters of the Teutonic order and the asylum to which the late king and queen of Prussia fled when driven by Napoleon from Berlin; the Soldatenkirche, occupying a wing of the palace, and remarkable as the spot where Frederick, Elector of Brandenburg, placed the crown on his own head, and thus became king of Prussia; the old staid of Frederickshafen, presenting among other interesting objects, its old Anchor Chamber and hall of the Mamoorites; the university, founded in 1544 by the Margrave Albert, and hence called the Albertine, attended by above 800 students, and having attached to it a library of above 50,000 vols., a zoological museum and other valuable collections; an observatory, which the labours of Bessel has rendered famous, and a botanical garden, a gymnasium, an ecclesiastical academy, and various other inferior schools; two technische, a handsome cathedral, a theatre, a lunatic asylum, an infirmary, a widows', an orphan, and several other hospitals and benevolent endowments. The manufactures consist chiefly of woollen, silk, and mixed silk goods, tapestry, leather, and articles in textile, metallic, paper, steel and ironware, millinery, carriage and stoneware, liquors, and artificial mineral waters. There are also sugar and silver refineries, imposition breweries and distilleries, and ironworks. In view of the considerable number of vessels only of small size are built and fitted out. Owing to a bar across the mouth of the Pregel, with nowhere than from 5 ft. to 6 ft. water, larger vessels bound for Königsberg had at Pillau, which is accordingly considered its port. The trade, notwithstanding this disadvantage, and a considerable decline from what it was in earlier times, is still important. In 1846, the principal exports were grain, about 80,000 qrs., of which 7945 qrs., consisting of rye, were sent chiefly to the Netherlands and Norway and at least two-thirds of the remainder, consisting of wheat, barley, oats, peas, beans, and rapeseed, 6980 qrs., flax and flax tow, 1254 tons; hemp and hemp tow, 287 tons; oil-seeds, 436 tons; bones, 363 tons; timber, wool, masts, and feathers, in comparatively limited quantities, the principal imports, colonial produce, iron in pigs and bars, coal, cotton wool, cotton twist, wine, spirits, and unrefined sugar. In the same year the number of vessels entered at Pillau was 664, 84,804 tons, and cleared, 376, 94,857 tons. Of these 978 entered, and 276 cleared, were British.

Königsberg is the seat of the provincial and government, and of many important courts and public offices. Its society is superior to that of most provincial towns, and is long numbered among its residents the celebrated philosopher, Kant, and the geographer Gaspard. Its most distinguished natives are the naturalist Klein, the painter Willman, and the anatomist Walther. It was founded in 1256, when Prunslav I came to settle the Teutonic knights against the Lithuanians and advised them to build a strong castle, which was accordingly done, and bore his name. It occupied the present site of the palace, which afterwards became the residence of the Grandmaster. In 1656 Königsberg became a member of the Hanse League. In 1678 was surrounded with walls and, in 1657, received a strong additional defence in the citadel of Frederickshafen, though the object of the Margrave, who built it in aid not to have been so much to defend the town as to overawe its citizens. It suffered much during the Seven Years War by the occupation of the Russians, from 1758 to 1764, and was more severely from the French, who entered it in 1807, after the battle of Friedland, and laid it under heavy contributions. Pop. (1846) 75,224.

KÖNIGSBERG a town Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. and 41 m. N. Frankfurt, on the Oder, cap. circle of same name, at the confluence of the Zerbst with the Räbke. It is walled, has several courts and public offices, two churches, a courthouse, gymnasium, and hospital, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth hats, and hosiery, a distillery, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 6110.—The circle is generally flat, possesses numerous quarries, and has good arable and pasture land. Area, 442 geo. sq. m. Pop. 78,682.

KÖNIGSBERG, three towns, Austria.—1, A. to Bohemia, circle and 10 m. W. S. W. Einbogen, a bank river, an elevated site, with a parish church, a castle, a brewery, and flour-mill. Pop. 3890.—2, A. to Silesia, circle and 22 m. W. N. W. Teschen with a church and a castle. Pop. 900.—3, (or Grünwald), a. to Hungary, on Beck, a bank river, 34 m. E. N. E. Neudorf. It occupies a large space, almost every house having a garden; contains two R. Catholic churches, a courthouse, and several houses and has manufactures of glass, and a number of breweries, at which good beer is made. Pop. 800.

KÖNIGSBROUN a vill. Württemberg circle Jaxt, hall, and 4 m. W. Haddehausen, with a parish church, blast-furnaces, and other iron-works, and a market. Pop. 1182.

KÖNIGSBRUCK, or Königsbruck, a. to Saxony, circle Bautzen, 1 bank Pulsnitz, 17 m. N. E. Dresden. It possesses two churches, a castle, and an hospital and distillery. Pop. 1741.

KÖNIGSSEE—1, A. to Germany, principality Schwaben, Baden, cap. hall of same name, on the Rhein, 34 m. S. W. Wiesbaden, with a church, trunkhouse, and hospital; manufactures of woollen cloth, tapestry, and white-linen; several mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. in, 1060. Area of hall, 40 geo. sq. m. Pop. 16,490.—2, (or Schwabenheim), a. to Prussia, in the S.E. extremity of Brandenburg, about 8 m. long, N. to S., by 1 m. broad. It has steep and picturesque banks, and abounds with excellent fish.

KÖNIGSEGG, or Königst, a tn. Bohemia, circle and 36 sq. m. S.E. Tabor, with a church and a townhouse, three saw and five other mills, and a trade in linen. Pop. 3552.

KÖNIGSFELD, or Königs, a tn. Austria, Moravia, circle and 2 m. N. Witten, with a church, a court-house, and a tavern. Pop. 1407.

KÖNIGSHAIN.—1. A vil. Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. and 51 m. W. Legnica, with a church and a castle, a granite quarry, and several mills. Pop. 1883.—2. A vil. Saxony, circle Bamberg, 50 m. E. Dresden, with a church and a mill. Pop. 1457.—3. A vil. Saxony, circle Leipzig, ball. Köthen, with a church. Pop. 1054.

KÖNIGSHOFEN.—1. A tn. Baden, circle Lower Rhine, at the confluence of the Umpfer with the Tauber, which is here crossed by a handsome bridge, 17 m. S.E. Wertheim. It has a church and two breweries. Pop. 1894.—2. (see Großfeld), A tn. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, on the Saale, here crossed by a bridge, 44 m. N.E. Würzburg. It is walled, and defended by outworks; it has three churches, a townhouse, two hospitals, and Capuchin hospital; iron and other mills, granite quarries, and trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1711. Area of dist. 64 sq. m. Pop. 14,850.

KÖNIGSHOVEN, a vil. Rhemish Prussia, gov. and 20 m. W.N.W. Cologne, with a church, and manufactures of linen and lace. Pop. 1235.

KÖNIGSHÜTTE.—1. A vil. Hanover ball and 15 m. S.E.E. Kassel, with important iron-works and blast-furnace, at which 500 persons are employed.—2. (Königsberg or Königs), A vil. Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. and 49 m. S.E.E. Oppeln, with a court of justice, mining director's office and four iron-rolling furnaces, and other iron-works. Pop. 689.

KÖNIGSLUTHER, a tn. Brunswick, circle Hildesheim, cap. ball. near l. bank Salsbüttel, 14 m. S.E.E. Brunswick. It has four gates, two churches, in one of which are the tombs of the Emperor Lotharius II. the queen Richenza, and Duke Henry of Bavaria; a superior bourgeois school, and manufactures of linen, linnenens, flaxlinens, and the works. P. 2529.

KÖNIGSTADEN, a market in Lower Austria, in a mountainous district, 73 m. from St. Pölten, with a castle, and celebrated for the salubrity of its air. Pop. 978.

KÖNIGSTADT, or Winnitzer-Königst, a tn. Bohemia, circle and 15 m. W. S.W. Böhmerberg, on Lake Seiditz with a church, townhouse, and school, manufactures of cotton and flax, a cotton print-works, and several mills. Pop. 1747.

KÖNIGSTEIN a tn. Saxony circle and 18 m. S.E. Dresden, at the confluence of the Elbe with the Elzbe. It has a church, and paper saw, and other mills. On the l. bank of the Elbe, N.W. of the town, a mass of rock rises majestically to the height of about 800 ft. above the river and is crowned by the ruin of the fortress of Königstein. Being surrounded on all sides by perpendicular escarpments, which make ascent impossible, and not being commanded by any adjoining heights, it has never been taken, and is deemed impregnable. The platform on top includes a space of several acres, which is partly cultivated and water is supplied from an inexhaustible spring, cut through the rock to a depth variously stated as 615 ft., 725 ft., and 1220 ft. Pop. 2519.

KÖNIGSTEIN a tn. Nassau, cap. ball. of same name, 15 m. W.N.W. Frankfurt, with a church and the ruins of a strong fortress, which belonged to the archbishop-electors of Mainz. On a steep wooded height opposite to the village are the ruins of the castle of Falkenstein. Pop. 1409.

KÖNIGSWALD two places, Bohemia.—1. A vil. circle Leitmeritz, in a valley on the Elbe, 10 m. from Teutchen, with a church, a school, and several saw and other mills. Pop. 1881.—2. A vil. on the Kessel, in a valley between the Jitschberg and the Kesselberg and Leutenberg, 7 m. from Nuremberg, with a school and two mills. Pop. 2165.

KÖNIGSWALDE.—1. A vil. Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. and 11 m. N.E. Frankfurt, between two lakes, with a church, manufactures of molasses and steam cloth, a saw-mill, three windmills and a trade in cattle, and three other mills. Pop. 1331.—2. A vil. Saxony, circle, Barchen, ball. Thieritz, with a church and outworks, manufactures of cattle and lace, two iron, several oil, saw, and other mills, and some general trade. Pop. 1779.

KÖNIGSWARTER, a vil. Bohemia, circle and 35 m. S. Stettin, with a fine castle in a very romantic valley, superbly situated, and a banking establishment. Pop. 1440.

KÖNIGSWARTER, a vil. Saxony, circle Barchen, 53 m. N.E. Dresden, with a castle, tile-works, and an iron, saw, and other mills. Barchen de Tilly defeated the French here in 1814. Pop. 351.

KÖNIGSWINTER, a tn. Rhemish Prussia, gov. and 30 m. S.E.E. Cologne, r. bank Rhine, at the foot of the Drachenfels. It has three gates, a justice-of-peace court, a church, and four mills, some shipping, and a trade in wine, corn, and stone. Pop. 3132.

KONIK, a tn. Russian Poland, l. bank Warta, 100 m. W. Warsaw; with two churches, a synagogue, an oil manufactory, a textile, manufactures of woodwork and linen cloth, hosiery, and leather. In 1794 the Poles were here defeated by the Prussians. Pop. (1841) 6559.

KÖNIGSHOYCKT, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. and 13 m. S.E. Antwerp, in a deep and marshy district. It has manufactures of linen, and a trade in horses and agricultural produce. Pop. 2023.

KONIKSKA WOLA, or KONIKOWOLA, a tn. Russian Poland, walled, and 57 m. N.W. Lublin, near l. bank Vistula, with a church, and a cemetery with a number of interesting monuments. Pop. 1190.

KONITZ, a market tn. Austria, Moravia, circle and 18 m. W. S.W. Olmütz, with two churches, a castle, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1773.

KONITZ, or CONITICA, a tn. Prussia, prov. W. Prussia, gov. and 58 m. W. S.W. Marienwerder cap. circle. It has three churches an Augustinian monastery, gymnasium, and hospital; a court of justice, and several public offices; and a trade in cattle. In 1435, the Teutonic Knights here gained a victory over the Tatars. Pop. 3054.—The environs are flat and sandy, but has some good arable land, and excellent pastures. Area, 666 sq. m. Pop. 46,573.

KONITZ tn. Asiatic Turkey, Asia Minor.

KONIZ a vil. and par. Switzerland, com. and 2 m. S.W. Bern, in a valley of its own name, with a castle, a trade in cattle, and dairy produce. In the vicinity are the ruins of the old castles of Argentan and Bubenberg. Traces of silver and copper have also been found. Pop. 3482.

KONKEN, a tn. Prussia, prov. Saxony, gov. Meissenburg, circle Seelitz, with a church, an hospital, lincolin, and four mills. Pop. 9714.

KONKON CONDORE on the China Sea, off the S.E. coast of Anson, lat. 5° 40' N. lon. 105° 55' E. in the form of a crescent, with high peaks. It produces the milk and tar tree; and is well inhabited. In the beginning of last century the English established a colony and built a fort here, but soon after abandoned it under very unhappy circumstances.

KONUTOP a tn. Russia, gov. and 96 m. W. (some gov. cap. circle, on the Jemelna. It is walled, and has six churches. Pop. (approximately), 8000.—The climate, though somewhat sandy produces in abundance corn, hops, and linens, and possesses great numbers of cattle. Pop. 24,000.

KONOVITE, or Konovite, Finland, near the W. shore of Lake Ladoga. It is densely wooded, and has a monastery upon it. A stone of extraordinary magnitude is also shown on which, in heathen times, the inhabitants were accustomed to offer horses in sacrifice.

KONRADSEUTH or CONRADSEUTH a vil. Bavaria, Upper Franconia, 17 m. N.E. Bamberg, with a Protestant church, two castles, and a mill. Near it is a serpentine quarry. Pop. 1079.

KONRADSWALDAU, two places, Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. Legnica.—1. A vil. circle Silesia, with two churches, a castle, lincolin, and saw and flour mills. Pop. 856.—2. (Mittel), a vil., circle Landshut, with two churches, and several mills. Pop. 675.

KONRAIA, a river Russia, which rises in the S. of gov. Ekaterinow, flows circuitously W., forming the boundary between the government and that of Yekaterin, and, after a course of about 120 m., joins l. bank Dnieper at Nikolajew.

KONRIE, a tn. Poland, walled, near Lodz, on the Dnieper, about 25 m. W. N.W. Radom. It is formerly well built, and has three churches, manufactures of waggon, and several forges and iron mills. Pop. (1841), 4020.

KONSTADT, or Worms, a tn. Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. and 26 m. N.E. Oppeln, a bank Rhine. It is walled; has three gates, a church, an hospital, a castle, and several mills. Pop. 1594.

KONSTANTINOGORESK, a fort, Russia, gov. Caucasus, about 22 m. S.W. Georgievsk, near I. bank Podkumsk. It lies on part of the military line of the Kuban, and has thermal springs, with a bathing establishment.

KONSTANTINOGORAP, a tn. Russia, gov. and 40 m. S.E.E. Podkumsk, on a divide of same name at the confluence of the Dnieper with the Orel; and is well surrounded by an arched rampart. Inhabitants chiefly agricultural. P. 1282.

—The caucasia is generally an unbroken plain, over which vast herds of cattle roam at large.

KONSTANTINOV (Stano) in Russia, gov. Volynia, cap. of its circle. I. bank Stutka, 80 m. S.E.W. Jitomir. Inhabitants live principally by sheep-rearing. Pop. 3880.

KONSTANTZ, a tn and lake in Russia, gov. KONTZIG, or KONTZIG, a vil. Bavaria, Palatinate, about 5 m. E. Zweibrücken, on the Rhine; with two churches, and manufactures of steel. Pop. 1378.

KONUDEI, a vil. Senegambia, Fouta-Djama, I. bank Senegal, lat. 15° 24' N.; lon. 15° 7' W. Near it is a sand-bank, which the natives can easily render impassable by artificial barriers of wood or stone.

KONY, a vil. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. and 12 m. from Raab, with a church. P. 1294.

KONTAR, a vil. Hungary, Thither Theiss, co. Bihar, about 6 m. from Fehérvár, with a church. P. 2794.

KONYA, or KONIA, two places, Hungary —1, A vil. Thither Theiss, co. Marmaros, in a plain on the Isz, 28 m. S.E. Balghat with a church, a synagogue, and several salt springs. Pop. 901 —2, A vil. Thither Danube, co. Pressburg with a church. Pop. 1424.

KONYL, a vil. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. Tolna, on the Koppány 52 m. W.S.W. Pécs with a church, a mill, and some trade in wine, wine, and cattle. P. 1544.

KOFOU, a tn. W. Africa, Hausa, 20 m. S. by W. Kano surrounded by a thick wall. The ground in the vicinity is a tolerable state of cultivation. Pop. about 30,000.

KOOG-AAN-DE-SAAK, or DE KOOG, a vil. Holland, prov. W. Holland, 7 m. N.W. Amsterdam, on the Zaan. It has two churches, two orphan hospitals, a poorhouse, and two schools; with manufactures of starch, oil, and white-lead. Log-wood, oil, saw, and other mills, some boat-building, and a considerable trade. Pop. 7096.

KOOKBUNDIA, a tn. in Hindostan, prov. Caudah, 7 m. N. by W. Buxar, about 70 m. E. by W. Buxar. It is a place of considerable size. The river, which in the hot season is only knee deep, and 180 yards wide, covers a channel of nearly ½ m. in the rainy season.

KOOM, KOOH, or KUX (anc. Chomel), a city Persia, prov. Irak Ajem, cap. dist. of same name, on an extensive plain, 80 m. S.E.W. Teheran, near the small river Goner, which, after a short course E., loses itself in the sand, lat. 34° 38' N.; lon. 50° 56' E. It is said at one time to have contained 100,000 inhabitants; and its ancient magnificence is still attested by the ruins and splendid sepulchres with which the neighbourhood abounds. It has sunk into insignificance, and its chief importance at present is the high reputation which it holds in Persia as a place of holy resort and ascription. Pop. probably not more than 6000.

KOOMESHIAH, or KOOHMAH, a tn. Persia, prov. Irak Ajem, 50 m. S.E.E. Isfahan, in a valley one side of which is overhung by Mount Dozla. It was a large and flourishing place under the Saffids, and still occupies an extensive space enclosed by walled gardens, but is almost a heap of ruins. Pop. about 4000.

KOONCH, a tn. Hindostan, prov. Agre, cap. dist. 100 m. S.E.E. Gwalior. It is a large place, and as well as its district, is included from the possessions of the British, though under their administration.

KOONDOOZ, a khamsa and tn. See KOOKDOOZ.

KOORDISTAN or KOORDISTAN [land of the Kurds or Kurds], an extensive territory of W. Asia, comprehending the greater part of the mountainous region which terminates the W. side of the great plateau of Iran or Persia, and stretches W. till it reaches the low plains of Mesopotamia on the E. W., and reaches the borders of the Turkish provinces of Diarbekir and Erzerum on the N.W. As it does not form a separate political division, its exact limits are not ascertained, but the E. part of it forms the Persian districts of Ardalan and Maragheh, and the remainder, constituting the far larger portion, is in Turkey where it forms the principal part of the pachalik of Van and a considerable part of that of Bagdad. Its limits, as thus defined, lie between lat. 34° and 39° N., and lon. 43° and 47° E., and must enclose an area of nearly 40,000 sq. m. The surface is very mountainous, and is traversed by lofty ranges stretching N.W. to S.E., in directions nearly parallel. The principal range commencing far from the banks of the Tigris, near the town of Jemshir, in Diarbekir where its elevation does not exceed 1000 ft.; gradually rises as it proceeds E. till near the middle it attains in the El-Khar mountains, 5000 ft., and still further E., in Rowandiz, on the frontier of Persia, at least 10,000 ft. The spaces between the mountains are sometimes intersected by deep valleys, but more frequently form a rugged table-land, which, in some parts, has a height of 6000 ft. to 7000 ft. The higher parts of the mountains consist of argillaceous rocks, chiefly serpentine and hornblende in immediate contact with which are extensive deposits of old red sandstone and mountain limestone. In many places secondary rocks of a more recent origin occur, more especially new red sandstone, and to abound as usual with siliceous deposits. The whole surface on the W. of the Persian frontier being situated between the Tigris and the Euphrates is drained by these two rivers and their tributaries. The Tigris receives the far larger share, both directly, and by its important affluents the Great and Little Zab. The Persian portion belongs to the head of the Karab, but not wholly as a small portion of its drainage is carried N. by the Kuzi-Atan. Except Lake Van is considered as partly within the territory, there are no lakes of any consequence. Owing to the general elevation of Koordistan, it escapes the scorching heats by which Mesopotamia suffers so severely. Its higher summits are, for the most part, covered with fine forests of oak, and other hard timber, while at lower heights magnificent walnut trees abound. Many of the valleys and long terraces, lining the mountain sides, are under regular culture, presenting fine corn-fields, orchards, and vineyards. Hemp, flax, and tobacco, are also largely grown; and in the lower valleys the mulberry for rearing silk-worms, and the cotton plant are successfully cultivated. Melons and pumpkins grow to an enormous size, and, among the multitude of flowers, the giganthea rose is conspicuous. One of the most remarkable vegetable productions is manna, extensively called in Turkish Kandak-Asadana, or the Darke succowat. It is found chiefly on the leaves of the Arbutus shrub, and of inferior quality, on those of the Urtica, and some other plants, and occasionally on the sand, and on rocks and stones. It is gathered before sunrise by plucking cloths under the trees and shaking them, and is eaten as food both in its natural state and as an ingredient in sweetmeats. Among domestic animals the first place is due to the horse, which is of a remarkably fine breed, is used extensively for riding, and is to great demand by the Turks and Persians for cavalry. The chief beast of burden is the ox, of which great numbers of a large size are kept, the ruggedness of the ground very much limits the use of the camel. Sheep and goats, the former remarkable for the excellence of their wool, are kept in large flocks.

The Kurds to whom the territory owes its name, are not confined within its limits, but are found in considerable numbers eastward in Khorsan and over the hill region of Mesopotamia as far W. as Aleppo and the Taurus. They are a stout, dark race, well formed with dark hair, small eyes, wide mouth, and a fierce look. Almost every man is mounted, and is provided either with javelins about 5 ft. 9 in. long, or a bow of horn nearly 6 ft. long, and a well-supplied leather quiver. The sling which Xenophon saw when he passed through the country with the 10,000 Greeks, is still in use. Many of the tribes continue to lead a migratory life, and though there are numerous small villages seated generally on the sides of hills, the inhabitants to whom they belong quit them after seed-time for the mountains, and there remain pasturing their herds and flocks, till the recurrence of harvest invites them to return. The language is of the same stock as the modern Persian, but has degenerated more, from not having been fixed by writing. The great body of the Kurds are Mahomedans, but allow their women a much greater liberty than the Koran sanctions. A veil is worn by the higher but dispensed with by the middling and lower classes. As the Kurds have few wants, they are very indifferent about trade. They send, however, chiefly to Kiribak, which is their principal centre, but partly also to Hamadan, Bagdad, and Hamad, galena, saltpetre, honey, sheepskin, and cattle; clothing, in cotton, wool, rice, leather, and clothing, chiefly cotton goods.

Kordmureh. — From the Chinese Embassy, sent to Peking, 1890, 1891, 1892.

The Kords were known to the ancients under the name of Kordachi. Under the ancient Persian monarchy they were included partly in the province of Anaxura, and partly in that of Media. After the time of Alexander their territory formed part of the kingdom of Syria, but was discovered from it by the Parthians about three centuries before the Christian era. They afterwards formed part of the new Persian empire, and, on its destruction, passed to the Caliphs of Bagdad. The famous Sultan Saladin was a Kord. It is very difficult to form even an approximate estimate of the whole Kord population; the Turkish portion is supposed by Chenevix to contain about 2,500,000.

KORDMURULEH a vil. Persia, prov. Mazandaran in a valley of same name, about 33 m. W by N Astard. Its houses are scattered in groups, in a wood composed chiefly of large forest and fruit trees. Several of the houses, with white-washed walls and verandahs, have a neat and cheerful appearance; and among the public buildings are a school, and two baths. Pop. 1000.

KOORGH-NIGOR, or AKART-UGOL-KUM, a lake, Amu-darya, in the N. of prov. Oshak, not far from the frontiers of China, between lat. 45° and 46° N. and lon. about 100° E. It contains three islands, crosses several rivers, but has no outlet.

KOORJA, a mountain, in China, near the Great Wall.

KOORJAH a small tn. Hindustan, prov. Bengal, prov. Agri, on bank of 50 m. S.E. of Delhi, lat. 28° 18' N.; lon. 77° 51' E. It is a small, but rather elegant pagoda, adorned with some grotesque figures on the outside, and the ruins of several Mussulman temples. Near the town is an old fort.

KORWEY, a tn. Hindustan, prov. Malwa, cap. of a small independent Patta state, on the Betwa, 240 m. S.W. Allahabad. It is surrounded by a high wall, and is situated by a fort, which stands on the opposite side of the river, and is considered a place of strength, having never been taken, though often besieged.

KORUMHAN a mountain, China, prov. Fokien, about 40 m. S.W. Foo-chow. It rises suddenly to the height of 3000 ft. above the valley of the Min, and terminates in a peak, which is much visited by the Chinese to see parties. For this purpose, the ascent is usually made by torch-light, after passing the previous night in a celebrated Buddhist temple, situated on the summit of the mountain, about 1000 ft. below the summit.

This temple, in which numerous pilgrimages are made, consists of three principal buildings, each above each other, and a number of houses placed at right angles to them, and occupied by the priests, who are above 100 in number. The great situation of the temple is a large white substance, apparently stone, about 6 inches square, exhibited within an iron grating, and said to be one of Buddha's teeth. There is also a library with an extensive assortment of religious books, carefully looked up in presses, and seemingly seldom used. — (Fortune's The Dialects.)

KOSHKE, a vil. and fort, Afghanistan, on a river of same name, and at the W. base of Mount Khyber, about 40 m. N by E. Herat, on the road to Marva. Both village and fort are in a very dilapidated state, the former consisting of a few mud huts, and the latter looking like a ruinous forward enclosure. — The river, which rises at lat. 34° 55' N., and lon. 63° 38' E., pursues a course not very accurately known first N.W., and then N.E., and joins the bank of Morghab, or Awhi Meer, at lat. 36° 15' N., and lon. 63° 32' E., after a course of about 180 m.

KOOTEN a vil. Holland, prov. Friesland, 11 m. E. Leeuwarden, with a church and school, a gin-distillery, a boat-building yard, and two grain-mills. Pop. 637.

KOOTUBDEA, an isl. Bay of Bengal, W. coast, Chittagong, lat. 21° 55' 50" N., lon. 92° 45' E.; low and woody and about 12 m. in length, N by E, and S. by W. Extensive sand projects from its E. part.

KOPACK, a vil. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. Baranya, 5 m. from Ercsek; with a church. Near it are several large lakes, in which very productive fisheries are carried on. Pop. 1564.

KOPCSAN a vil. Hungary Thither Danube, co. Neutra near the March 3 m. from Holics, with two churches, and an extensive breeding-stand, with magnificent stables. Pop. 1918.

KOPFENY, or KRIZNA, a market tn. Hungary Thither Danube, co. Wieselburg, about 4 m. from Pressburg, with a Greek church, and a castle. Pop. 2447.

KOPERNICK, or COPIERNICK, a tn. Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. and 22 m. S.E. of Potsdam, on an isl. formed by the Havel. It has an old royal palace, now used as a military depot, with chapel and gardens, a justice of peace court, manufacture of woollen and silk goods, carpets, and chemical products, bleachfields, and a trade in cattle. P. 2632.

KOPETDAG, or KAPATDAG, a vil. Austria, Transylvania dist. Fogaras, about 14 m. from Szombathely. It has a Greek united parish church, and is inhabited by Wallachian frontier soldiers. Pop. 970.

KOPHAZA, or KOLACZOW a vil. Hungary Thither Danube, co. and 4 m. from Olenburg, with a church, and a flour-mill. Pop. 1195.

KOPIDINO, a tn. Bohemia, circle and 10 m. N.W. Bilschew; with a castle, church, and school; a distillery, and tile-works. Pop. 1010.

KOPFANY (Kopács), a market tn. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. Borsabeg, on a small strait of same name, 50 m. N.E. of Koprivitsa. It was long possessed by the Turks who surrounded it with walls and bastions, of which only some traces now remain and has a church, and a trade in wool and wax. Pop. 948.

KOPRINITZ, or KAPRINITZ, a tn. Austria, Croatia Higher Rava, co. and 16 m. N.E. Koprivitsa, in a plain. It is walled, defended by a strong castle, and has two churches, a Franciscan monastery, and high school. Pop. 2626.

KOPRILI, a tn. European Turkey Macedonia, on bank of the Vardar, a little above the junction of the Peto with that stream, 22 m. E. by E. Ustir.

KOPREY WICA, a tn. Russian Poland, 10 m. S.W. Bialystok, on the Wrona, near the junction with the Vistula, it has an old Christian abbey, and some general trade. P. 1075.

KORUL, or KORAT, a tn. Hindustan, prov. Bombay, prov. Deccan, 190 m. W.S.W. Kurnool. It is fortified, and was once reckoned among the strongest places in India. In 1780 it capitulated to the Khan's army, after six months' siege; and in 1819, when in possession of a rebellious governor, was stormed by the British.

KOPUTELLA, or KORTUMELLA, a tn. Prussia, 35 m. S.E. of Anstett; lat. 51° 24' N.; lon. 75° 37' E.

KORLIN, a tn. Prussia, prov. Posen, gov. and 17 m. S.W. Końskie, with a church, an hospital, manufacture of wall-paper, linen, and serge, a bakery, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 2261.

KORMEND a tn. Hungary. Thither Danube, on. Elsterburg at the confluence of the Pleba with the Raab, 15 m. E. Schönbühler. It has two churches, a synagogue, handsome southern, and magnificent old castle, belonging to Prince Bethy, with fine collection and extensive gardens. It often suffers much from inundation. Pop. 3400.

KORNA, a fortified tn. Asiatic Turkey, push Haglad, and 46 m. N.W. Burundi, at the junction of the Euphrates and Tigris. It is walled, and surrounded by date forests and is the residence of an officer appointed to let the impost from vessels navigating the rivers. Pop. 4000.

KORNEGAL, or KORNEGALLAN, a tn. Ceylon, 55 m. N.E. Colombo lat. 7° 27' N lon 80° 27' E. Some said prisoners formerly rubbed here, and the vestiges of their palace may still be traced.

KORNELIMÜNSTER, a vil. Bohemia Prussia, gov. and 4 m. S.E. Althaus, on the Inde, with a church, and manufacture of linen and sail-cloth, an iron-mill on iron and a lead furnace, and important stone quarries. Pop. 800.

KORNEUBURG, a tn. Lower Austria, 1. bank Danube, 8 m. W. Vienna, on the railway to Stockerau. It is well built, has a large public square, adorned with two fountains, a handsome Gothic church, and, adjoining it, an Augustine church, with a fine altar and furnace, a large courthouse, a military and a high school, two hospitals, and two poor-houses. The trade is considerable. Pop. 2470.

KORNHAUS, or KORNAU, a market tn. Bohemia, circle Rakowitz, 24 m. W.W. Prag, with a church, school, tile-works, lime-kilns, and saw and other mills. Pop. 1045.

KORNYE [anc. Quirynus] a vil. Hungary, thither Danube, on. Komorn, about 7 m. from Tala with a church, two mills, a fish pond, and extensive preserves of game, particularly quail. Pop. 915.

KOROLEVETZ, or KOROLEVETZ, a tn. Russia, gov. and 100 m. E. Chernigov, on the Dobry-Vody with four annual fairs, one of them considerable. Pop. 1250.

KOROMPA (also), or URZEN KORPA, a vil. Hungary, on. Pressburg 6 m. from Tyrana, with a church, an elegant castle, a synagogue, tile-works, and a trade in wine. P. 1003.

KORON a seaport, Greece. See CONAR.

KOROF, a tn. Russia, gov. and 80 m. E. Chernigov on a stream of same name, near its confluence with the Dnieper, with some transit trade and several annual fairs. Pop. 5225.

KOROBAREKA, a bay and vil. New Zealand, N.E. coast, North Island, Bay of Islands lat. 35° 15' S lon. 174° 10' E. The bay is small with a shingly beach in front, and a swamp behind; off the village the depth is 44 fathoms, with bottom of mud and sand. The village extends along the shore, and contains several general stores but is reduced in size, having been burnt down by the natives in 1845. Live stock is plentiful here, but the prime moderate. The greater part of the country about the village is covered with fern, and the southern bush (Leptosiphon acuminatus)—the latter a low shrub, with handsome white or pinkish flowers.—(Page of the Zealandia).

KOROS, numerous places, Hungary.—1. (Upp), a vil. Thither Danube, on. Szeged, in ailly district near Lake Balaton, with two churches, and the remains of an extensive monastery and other buildings. Pop. 1082.—2. (Kis) a market tn. Thither Danube, on. and 61 m. S.E.E. Pesth, with two churches, and a trade in corn, wine, and cattle. Pop. 1422.—3. (Upp, also, and Upp, or Upp) a vil. on. Komorn, on the Black Theiss, near the frontier of Galicia, 83 m. N.E. Szeged, with three churches, and a saw and other mills. Pop. 3376.—4. (Upp), a market tn. Thither Danube, on. and 46 m. E. Pesth, in a fertile but somewhat marshy district. It contains a number of handsome buildings; a Protestant, Greek, and R. Catholic church; a synagogue, and a Protestant gymnasium, with library, and has a considerable trade in wool and cattle. Pop. 12448, 12,800.—5. (Upp), a vil. Transylvania, on. Harau, on the Alana, 14 m. from Kismat with Lutheran, R. Catholic, and Greek worshipped churches. Pop. 1000.

KORON (Latin, Croton) a river Hungary sometimes called the Theotoldi Kirin, becomes formed by the union of three streams—the Taba, or Tabla; the Fohar or White; and the Fohar, or Black Kirin. The Fohar-Kirin, the largest of the three, rises in Transylvania, about 20 m. S.W. Kismatburg flows first N.W. into Hungary, and then almost W. past the town of Grosswardein, and joins I. bank Thien, near Gornad, having received on the right its principal affluent, the Berettyo, about 36 m. N.E. the town. The Fohar and Fohar Kirin, rising the former in the W. of Transylvania, and the latter in the E. of Hungary, were nearly parallel W.W. course, until at Bekes, 40 m. W.W. Grosswardein, and join the Fohar-Kirin about 12 m. after the junction.

KOROS-BANTA or ALLENBURG, a tn., on. Korad, on the Kirin, 30 m. N.W. Deva; with three churches, and near a gold-mine. Pop. 2260.

KOROTCHA or KAROTCHA, a tn. Russia, cap. district, gov. and 70 m. S.E. Koursk, a bank river of same name. It is a tolerably well built, has six churches, manufactures of salt-petre, and a considerable trade in apples, for which the district is famous. Pop. (chiefly agricultural), (1849) 4726.

KOROTIAK, a tn. Russia, gov. and 50 m. E. Yaroslavl, at the junction of the Karotich with the Don. It has four churches, a convent, and a considerable trade in salt-petre. P. 7279.

KORPO an isl. Russia, at the S.E. entrance of the Gulf of Finland E. of the island group, in lat. 60° 5' N lon 21° 50' E. It is about 20 m. in circuit and contains a small town of same name, and several villages.

KORRAHAD, or KORRAHAD, or KORRAHAD, a vil. Turkey in Asia, push, and 5 m. from Bursa, on a hill above I. bank, Kizilirmak, here Botta, in 1843 discovered the ruins of a large building containing Assyrian sculptures and inscriptions, but nearly buried up. This was the first discovery of the antiquities of Kinnah, to which the labours of Layard and others have lately given so much interest.

KORRÖT, a seaport tn. Denmark, isl. Zealand on the Great Belt, 64 m. W.S.W. Copenhagen. It contains the remains of an old castle, and a church, of which a tower is first, communicating with Nyborg, and has good docks, and a harbour admitting vessels which draw from 17 to 18 ft. and defended by a fort. Steam and other boats ply regularly between Koror and Nyborg this being the principal ferry between Zealand and Funen. Pop. 1600.

KORTGENE, or KORTGENE, a vil. Holland prov. Zealand, lat. N. 52° 50' E. 5 m. N.W. Goes. It has an elegant church, a school, and a harbour. Pop. 921.

KORTVELT, numerous places, Hungary.—1. A vil. Thither Theiss, on. Bistritz about 3 m. from Fekels, with two churches. Pop. 1571.—2. A vil. on. Eszterhazy, about 3 m. from Raba-Karacs, with a trade in corn, wine, and fruit. Pop. 814.—3. A vil. Thither Theiss, on. Torna, on a small stream about 19 m. from Komorn, with two churches, and a trade in wine, cattle, and timber. Pop. 530.

KORWESTHEIM, a vil. Württemberg, circle Neckar, hall Ludwigsburg with a church, a sulphur spring, a bathing establishment, and a trade in linen. Pop. 1541.

KOR, lat. and lon. Asiatic Turkey. See CON.

KORRENTIN, a vil. Hungary, prov. Illony, gov. Oppele, circle Lubinitz, with a castle, distilleries, oil and other mills, and a limestone quarry. Pop. 1454.

KOSCHETITZ, or KOSCHETITZ, a vil. Bohemia, circle Carls, 4 m. from Hornbach, in the middle of a forest between the Fekis and Kooblerbach, with a parish church, school, synagogue, castle, and several mills. P. 594.

KOSCHING, a market tn., Upper Bavaria, on an old Roman road, 20 m. W.S.W. Hailbronn, with three churches, a town-hall, and manufacture of salt-petre and potash, numerous breweries, and several mills. Pop. 1128.

KOSCHALL, a market tn. Bohemia, circle Rakowitz, with a parish church. Pop. 1290.

KOSCHMIN, or KOSMIN, a tn. Prussia, prov. and 46 m. S.E. Posen, on the Odra, with two churches, a synagogue, a monastery, manufacture of woollen and linen cloth, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 2406.

KOSCHUBAK MOUNT, a mountain, Australia, Victoria, 5000 E. 1842, and forming the highest summit of the Werrogon or Australian Alps, at the head of the river Murray.

KOSD, a vil. Hungary, thither Danube, on. Hungary, on a mountain near the Danube, and near Feny, with a church, and a trade in good wine, largely grown in the district. P. 1226.

KOSSEL, a tn. Prussia, prov. Rhine, gov. and 84 m. S.W. of Bonn, cap. circle of same name, 1 bank Oder, river crossed by a bridge, and on the Upper Rhine railway. It is surrounded by walls and otherwise fortified, has several government offices, three churches, a synagogue, hospital, barracks, and the works. Pop. 1859.—The canal, for the most part, level, is watered by the Oder and is fertile. Area, 190 sq. m. Pop. 58,070.

KOSSELTZ, a tn. Russia, gov. and 80 m. S.W. of Moscow, r. bank Oder. It is defended by a small fort, surrounded by an earthen rampart and palisades; and has a considerable general trade. Pop. (1849) 2026.

KOSHLAK, a tn. Russia, gov. and 85 m. S.W. of Kaluga, cap. circle, at the confluence of the Draga with the Shcheta. It is one of the handsomest and most regularly built towns of the government, consisting of a number of broad streets, and a spacious market-place. It contains four stone and three wooden churches, two porches, and a large stone bazaar supported by 84 arches forming an arcade, and has a considerable trade. Pop. (1850), 8870.—The climate is flat but not fertile. Area, 572 sq. m. Pop. 77,733.

KOSYELL, a tn. Prussia, Westphalia, gov. and 20 m. W. Münster, cap. circle. It is entered by three gates, has two castles, three churches, and chapels, a synagogue, gymnasium, and hospital, a court of law and several public offices, manufactures of linen and leather cloths, iron, mill, several mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 3610.—The climate is hilly but has some good arable land, and rears great numbers of cattle. Area, 219 sq. m. Pop. 40,104.

KOSIKI ISLANDS, Japan, lat. 31° 40' N; lon. 139° 42' E, surrounded by rocks on all sides.

KOSIMA, a tn. Japan lat. 31° 30' N; lon. 139° 48' E, of volcanic origin, 10 m. in circuit, and composed of black, rocky mountains.

KOSINCHANG ISLAND, off of Siam. See KON.

KOSLIN, or OSLIN, a gov. Prussia, prov. Pomerania, bounded N. by the Baltic, S. by the Danzig and Marienwerder, S. Marienwerder and Frankfurt, and W. Stettin, area, 4185 sq. m. It is a dead marshy tract, excepting toward the coast, where a few sandy hills occur, and is watered by numerous streams and lakes. Of the former, the principal are—the Rega, Parnowa, Wprer, Hylsa, Lopen and Lera, of the latter—the Jamna, Bockow, Vitter, Vistig, Gardow, and the Loba. The soil, though generally inclining too much to sand, is tolerably fertile, and raises good crops of corn. The pastures also are extensive, and rear large numbers of cattle, sheep, and swine. A large portion of the surface is occupied by forests, which furnish good timber, chiefly pine. Manufactures have not made much progress. For administrative purposes the gov. is divided into nine circles—Köslin or Fürstenthum, the capital—Baldig, Drumburg, Lauenburg, Neustadt, Rummelsburg, Schickelsburg, Schwane, and Stolpe. Pop. (1850), 484,140.

KOSLIN, or OSLIN, a tn. Prussia, prov. Pomerania, cap. above gov., in a low and level plain, at the foot of the Gottenberg, 4 m. from the Baltic, and 85 m. N.E. Stettin. Having been nearly destroyed by war and fire, it was rebuilt with great magnificence in 1720. It is entered by three gates, contains a market-place, with a monument to Frederick William I., four churches and chapels, an old castle, townhouse, gymnasium, several schools, and three hospitals; is the seat of several courts and public offices, and has manufactures of woollens, flannels, and silks, linens, soap, and tobacco, the work, a trade in cattle, and four annual fairs. Pop. 6713.

KOSLOW, two places, Russia.—1, A tn. gov. Taurida, on Krimia.—2, A tn. gov. and 22 m. W.S.W. Tambov, on the Losen Volod. It contains three wooden and five stone churches, and a monastery, and has a considerable trade in cattle, hides, and salt provisions, and several important mineral springs. Pop. (1851), 13,692.

KOSMIGODIENSK, a tn. Russia, gov. and 105 m. W.S.W. Krasn. r. bank Volga, opposite the junction with the Volga. It has six churches; and sawing blocks, making furniture, and various other manufactures, and weaving last made, are carried on. Pop. (1851), 4197.

KOSSELY, or Kossel, a village in Upper Egypt, on the Red Sea; lat. 26° 7' N; lon. 34° 31' 55" E. It lies at the junction of the caravan route from Egypt to Mecca, is an old desert; is composed of loosely-built clay houses, and is defended by a small fort and is very inadequately supplied with water. The harbour is only insufficiently sheltered, except from the S. Numerous pilgrims take shipping here for Mecca; and a considerable trade is done in exporting Egyptian wheat and black and white cotton to Arabia. Pop. 2000. About 10 m. N.W. are some ruins, named Old Kossel.

KOSSEEN a vil and par., Tyrol on the Achna, and the frontiers of Bavaria, in a valley of same name, 16 m. from St. John; with a parish church a foundry, and other iron-works. Pop. 1371.

KOSMANNOR, or Kosmanov, a vil Bohemia, circle and 6 m. N.E. Raudon, on the Elbe; with a church, two chapels, a school, and a large and handsome castle; and a large cloth and calico factory. Pop. 1310.

KOSOVGO, or Kamova, a tn. European Turkey, Servia, dist. and 7 m. N.E. Pristina, celebrated for a battle fought near it in 1389, between the Turks and the Serbians in which the defeat of the latter cost the life of their prince Koss Luss, and ended the Serbian monarchy.

KOSTAINIGA, or Kostainva, a tn. Austrian Croatia, at the foot of a mountain, in a narrow valley, on the Unna, 68 m. S.E.E. Carisins. This hill for the most part of wood, has two churches, a custom-house, and Franciscan monastery; and an extensive trade in Turkish wares. Pop. 8150.

KOSTFL, or Kostvitz, a tn. Austria, Moravia, circle Hradisch, on a little height above the Thaya, and on the Northern railway, 38 m. S.E.E. Brunn. It is an old place, and contains a deanery church. A great many bee-hives are kept here. Pop. 1700.

KOSTFLETTZ, several places Bohemia, particularly—1 (see Adorf), A tn. circle and 17 m. S.E.E. Klotzgrätz, consisting of the town proper on r. and a suburb on l. bank. W.D. Adler and communicating by a long wooden bridge. It has a deanery church, castle, townhouse, school, and two hospitals, breweries, tile-works, and several mills. Pop. 2665.—2, (see Neudorf), A market tn. circle Klotzgrätz, about 6 m. from Nachod with a handsome church and several manufactures of linen; a trade in linen and yarn, and several mills. Pop. 1163.—3, (see der Eise), A tn. circle and 21 m. N.W. Krasitz on a large island formed by the Mühlwasser, an arm of the Elbe. It consists of the town proper, and of two suburbs, situated on the opposite side of the river, and connected with it by a long stone bridge; contains two churches, a townhouse, and cavalry barracks, and has several mills. Pop. 1495.

KOSTEL LIZ a tn. Austria, Moravia, circle and 13 m. S.W. Olmitz with a church, and a corn market. It was almost entirely burned down in 1839. Pop. 1836.

KOSTELY (RADY) a vil Hungary, on Krasova, on a small hill under the Rega with the Tamas, 4 m. from Lagoz with a church, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1482.

KOSTEN a tn. Prussia, prov. and 21 m. S.W. Posen, cap. circle, l. bank Odra. It is walled, well built, has two churches, an Augustine and a Bernardine monastery, a court, and several public offices, and extensive manufactures of linen. Pop. 3793.—The climate is marshy but well-wooded, and tolerably fertile. Area, 389 sq. m. Pop. 50,383.

KOSTENDIL, European Turkey See GÖRÜCEK.

KOSTIANSK, or Kostiansk, a tn. Russia, r. bank Don, gov. and 22 m. S.W. Voronej, with a silk-reeling factory. On the banks of the Don near it, Omolli, in 1768, found a great number of elephants' bones, very little decomposed.

KOSTRITZ, a vil. Germany principality Reuss-Gera, l. bank Elster, here crossed by a bridge, 4 m. N.W. Gera, at the N. foot of the Dillenberg with a church, on a height, two castles, and a rich charitable endowment, and several breweries and distilleries. Near it is the fine summer residence of Eleonorethal. Pop. 1300.

KOSTIOMA, a gov. Russia, lat. 50° 28' to 50° 12' N; lon. 40° 18' to 45° E. Bounded N. and N.W. by gov. Vologda, W. by Jaroslavl, S. by Vladimir, and Nijni-Novgorod, E. and S.E. by Viatka, greatest length, 370 m.; breadth, 170 m., area, about 30,000 sq. m. It consists of wide level plains, varied only by gentle undulations, and elevated river banks. The N. part is cold, humid and swampy. Many of the swamps are covered with wood, and some of them contain bog-iron ore. What is arable is cold, and of indifferent fertility. Occasionally there are considerable extents of heathy ground.

partly covered with wood. The S. part near the Volga rises again and descends, consisting mostly of clay loam, and sand, but still only of moderate fertility. The climate is severe; winter is long, and the weather stormy summer short, and frequently misty. The chief river is the Volga, which, shortly after entering the gulf in the S.W., is joined by the Kostroma from the N.; then, after a short turn to the S.E., proceeds about due E., when it receives the important tributary, the Unga, and soon after, by a S. course, joins the government. There are numerous lakes. Of these the Galits is 16 m. by 5½ m., and the Tobolskian is above 5 m. in diameter. Many the gov. flows W., then S., forming part of the boundary between govt. Kostroma and Jaroslavl, and, on reaching the town of Kostroma, joins I. bank Volga, after a course of about 140 m. It is navigable for above 160 m.

KOSVA, a river, Kholm, which rises in the W. slope of the Ural Mountains, gov. Perm, flows first S.W., then W., and joins I. bank Kama, after a course of nearly 180 m.

KOSWITZE, a co. Germany, Ansbach-Bayreuth, reg. bail., on a height above I. bank Elbe, 10 m. W. N. W. Weissenburg. It is walled, has three gates, two churches, a synagogue, cattle, and poorhouse manufactures of cloth a worsted-mill, brewery, a fishery and some shipping. Pop. 2,800, built 1540.

KOSZEGH, several places, Hungary:—1, A free tn., co. Eisenberg. See GÖMÖR.—2, (or Zuzszo), a vil., co. Baranya, on the Danube, 10 m. from Mohacs, with a church, and an important fishery particularly of sturgeon. Pop. 1436.

KOSZTOLAN (Nagy), or Vezet-Kosztolán a vil. Hungary, Hübner Dombó, co. Nándor about 10 m. from Galgóc with a church a synagogue, and a flour-mill. Pop. 1298.

KOSZTOLNA, or KOSZTOLNAYVA a vil. Hungary, Hübner Dombó, co. and 83 m. N.E. Nándor, with a bishop's castle, and a Protestant church. Pop. 1546.

KOTI KANORA an extensive hill fort, in the N.E. of the Punjab, among the mountains in the lower ranges to the S. of the Himalaya, on the top of an eminence, about 180 ft. above the Ban Ganga, near its confluence with the Beas, lat. 31° 57' N.; lon. 75° 42' E. The height on which it stands is about 5 m. in circuit, bounded, for the most part, by precipices, nearly perpendicular and in places of less declivity rendered inaccessible by masonry and ramparts. In the beginning of the present century it was defended for four years against the Ghorzais, by Runar Chaud, who gave it up to Ranjot Singh. In 1846 it came into the possession of the British government by the treaty of the houses in this gov., and, indeed, through all the S. and E. of Russia, are constructed of timber and have very peculiar forms. An interesting example of such structures is shown in the accompanying wood-cut. Large quantities of flax and hemp are raised. These two crops form an important element in providing employment for the inhabitants. Indeed, the governments of Yaroslavl and Kostroma may be considered as the chief seats of manufacturing industry, from which E. Europe derives its supplies. Dyeing and linen weaving with the numerous processes connected with them give employment to a large population, both in the towns and throughout the district. Russia leather also, both red and black, the former of cow, the latter of horse hide, is made in large quantities, and of first-rate quality. The hide-trade is usually carried by the inhabitants themselves in small furrows, and turned into the various implements required for their own use. The forests, scattered over the district, employ many hands in felling trees, cutting them for timber, fire-wood, or charcoal. Even the bark of the birch-trees is turned to profitable account, being largely employed in making soap, the pitch of the district has long been celebrated. The fishing, also, is very productive. Pop. (1850) 1,074,200.

FOUR HOUSES OF THE SOUTH FROM KOSTROMA TO JAROSLAV
From Kostroma, Volga, P. 150, 151, 152.

KOSTROMA, a tn. Russia, esp. above gov., on an elevation near the Kambra, at the point where it joins I. bank Volga, 200 m. N.E. Moscow; lat. 57° 40' N.; lon. 41° 15' E. It is of great antiquity, having been built in the 13th century, and, as is usual with old Russian towns, is surrounded by a network of earth, of which advantage has been taken to form a promenade. It is pleasantly situated, and, being the seat both of the civil and military government of the district, contains a great number of public buildings. It has 50 churches, a monastery on ecclesiastical village, and a gymnasium. Its manufactures, among which that of coarse leather has long been famous, make it one of the most important towns on the Volga. Pop. (1861) 12,510.—The river flows in the N. of of Lahore, but in May of the same year, resistance was offered to our taking possession of it by the Lahore Khilafat or governor. Koti Kanora is famous for a peculiar original operation, namely, the formation of new noses, for those who have suffered mutilation of the feature, by clipping the material from the skin of the forehead. The good-looking men are applied to by the afflicted from all parts of India.

KOTI-KANORA.—From the Hon. R. G. Stoddard's illustrations of India.

KUTAN, a tn. Hindostan, esp. principally, gov. Ajmer, 2 m. bank Chambal, here deep and narrow with rocky banks, 300 m. S.W. Agra, lat. 25° 47' N.; lon. 75° 42' E. It is largely built, but surrounded with stone walls, fortified with forests; has numerous temples, but no edifice of any size, except the rajah's palace. The houses are handsome and well-kept, and the number of substantial private dwellings is unusually great. A salt-water trade is carried on, and much of the articles are manufactured for native consumption.—The RAJASTHAN is a compact territory, of about 5000 sq. m., generally mountainous, and not of great fertility; has some trade in the S.E., and beyond the Mokimbar pass, are cultivated like a garden.

KOTE-GYAL, or KOTEK, a vil. Hungary, co. Bihar, on the Gyepes, between Szekes and Szekes, with a Protestant parish church. Pop. 1578.

KOTELEK, a vil. Hungary, co. Haver, 1 bank Thales, 5 m. from Szekes, with a church and an old castle. P. 1211.

KOTELNITZ, a vil. Hungary, co. Haver, 50 m. S.W. Vaska, cap. circle, on the W. bank. It is built on the ruins of Kotelnerov an old fortress of the Tschernomora, which the inhabitants of Novegorod destroyed, and has some general trade. Pop. 2415.—The crucian is well wooded, fertile, and well cultivated. Pop. 125,800.

KOTELNOI, an isl. Adakia Russia, in the Arctic Ocean, between lat. 74° 30' N. and 76° 15' N. and lon. 138° and 142° E.; greatest length, N. to S., 130 m., central breadth, about 75 m. It is the largest of the group in the archipelago of Lankur; is nearly of an oval form, and is generally very rocky and mountainous.

KOTVAREH, a vil. in the N. of Hindoostan, on the steep slope of a ridge overlooking the S. valley of the Sutlej 25 m. N.W. Simla. It is a masonry establishment, and was once a military station, which in consequence of the peaceable state of the population, has been abandoned. Kotkhar is surrounded by an extensive forest and, though 4000 ft. above the Sutlej is within hearing of the deep roar of its rapid stream.—(Thomson's Trek in the N. Himalayas.)

KOTHEH, or KOTHEK, a vil. the cap. of duchy Anhalt Koken, not far from the Zuehe, and a central station on the railroad, where the lines from Berlin Magdeburg, Bernburg, and Leipzig meet 80 m. S.W. Berlin. It consists of the town proper, surrounded by walls, with five gates and of three suburbs, contains a castle, with three towers, in which the Duke resides, three churches, a synagogue, townhouse theatre, hospital, library, picture gallery, cabinet of coins, minerals and fossils, and a museum, and has manufactures of leather, yarn, glass, and refined wax, a distillery, and several mills. In the neighbourhood are several fine walks, and part of the railway station, not much to the honour of the Duke, is fitted up as a gaming-table. Pop. 6138.

KOTI, KOTIL, KOTI, or KOTI LAMA, a little known dist. or state, Isl. Borneo, E. coast, on the Strait of Macassar, cap. same name, extending, probably, from lat. 1° 10' S. to 1° N., and lon. 115° to 118° E., at its broadest part. The coast is low, and, during the rainy season, flooded; the climate is very hot, and unhealthy; and storms are frequent. Excellent rice, betelnut, alone, pepper, coconuts, nutmegs, gums of various kinds, honey, and camellia, are the chief products.—The QATPAT, Koti, on an isl. in the chief arm of the river Koti, 6 m. from its mouth, lat. 0° 38' S., lon. 117° 10' E., has a sort of fortress, in which stands the rajah's palace, and a port, frequented annually by 700 to 800 vessels.—The river rises in Mount Lila, Malacca, about lat. 2° 20' N.; lon. 114° 30' E. flows S.E., receives several tributaries, and falls into Koti bay, on the Strait of Macassar, by numerous mouths, total course, about 300 m.

KOTIBOR, a vil. Bohemia. See CHOTIBOR.

KOTIKITZ, or KOTIKITZ, a vil. Bohemia, circle and 17 m. E. by N. Chuditz, on a height, surrounded with orchards; and with large the works near it. Pop. 1091.

KOTIESCHAU, or KOTIESCHAU, a vil. Bohemia, circle and 18 m. from Pilsen. It contains a parish church and school, an elegant castle, and convent; and has manufactures of potash, and several mills. Pop. 1656.

KOTIVORST, a river, Russia, which flows from Lake Kote, in the S. of gov. Jaroslavl, flows N.W., and, at the town of Jaroslavl, joins the Volga, after a course of nearly 90 m., great part of which is navigable. Its chief tributaries are, the Lakota and the Ustia.

KOTVA, a vil. Hindoostan, prov. Malwa, on the Guzman, an affluent of the Nerbada, about 30 m. E. by S. Simla. It is a large place, and stands on the line of separation between the territories of Betolia and the acquisitions made by the British, in 1813, from Betolia and the Nagpur rajah.

KOTKEE.—1. A vil. Betolia, 1 bank Indus, nearly opposite to, and 4 m. W. Hyderabad, lat. 26° 32' N.; lon. 68° 30' E. It is, from its position, a place of some military importance. —2. A vil. Betolia, 30 m. N. Hyderabad, on the route to Kere, lat. 26° 30' N.; lon. 68° 45' E.—3. A vil. Betolia, prov. Oudeh Gouda; lat. 26° 34' N.; lon. 67° 27' E. It is one of the largest towns in the province, and has a good bazar, and a fort.

KOTK, a vil. Hungary, Hither Danube, co. and 12 m. S.E. Komana with two churches, cavalry barracks, and a considerable trade in wine. Pop. 2503.

KOTKOLA, a vil. Hungary, co. and about 28 m. from Tolna; with a church, a building used for quartering soldiers, furs, milk, and a trade in corn, wine, and cattle. P. 1556.

KOTKORD, a vil. Hungary, Hither Thales, co. South mar, 9 m. from Valsaj, with a handsome church, and a synagogue. Pop. 1843.

KOTIA WAINJUN, or CHAKKINGUN, a vil. N. coast Isl. Doree Dutch province of the S. and E. district, and on a river of its own name, lat. 3° 47' S.; lon. 111° 21' E. It has a good harbour, and carries on a considerable trade.

The river rises in a lake in the interior, and, after a S. by W. course of 85 m., falls into the Java Sea, 14 m. below the town.

KOTTWITZ (OBER and NIEDER), two nearly con- guous vila Bohemia, circle Bielehow, 8 m. from Arnau, with a handsome church, and several mills. Pop. 935.

KOTWITZ, a market to Bohemia circle and 4 m. from Camsen, 1 bank Brohka, with a church and school both handsome buildings, manufactures of linen, and a trade in agricultural produce. In 1742 a battle was fought here between the Austrians and Prussians, and the town was burnt down. Pop. 1158.

KOTZEBUE SOUND an inlet Behring Strait, Russian America, between Cape Esplanade and Krasnaren lat. (Cape Esplanade S. point) 66° 28' N.; lon. 163° 28' W.

KOTZSCHENBRODA, a vil. Saxony circle and near Dresden. A town, concluded here in 1645 was followed by the peace of Westphalia. Pop. 1062.

KOTZING, a vil. Lower Bavaria, cap. dist., at the confluence of the Rhine and the Main, and N.E. of Koenigs- burg. It has a court of justice, two churches, two chapels, two castles, a townhouse, and hospital, manufactures of linen several saw and other mills and a trade in wood. Pop. 1498. Area of dist., 128 sq. m. Pop. 22,549.

KOUAV, three villages, Boudou, Kouav-Finabou, lat. 13° 58' N.; lon. 10° 22' W., with Kouav-Finabou, a little to the N.E. of it and Kouav-Duabou, a short distance to the N.W. They are all inhabited by Fenis.

KOUBAN, a river Russia. See KUBAN.

KOUBETCHI, a vil. Russia in the N. part of Lapland, on a narrow valley 53 m. W. N. Darbord. It looks more like a fortification than a town all the houses being loop- holed, and entered by an outer stair to which the only approach is by a narrow path. It has 12 mosques; man- ufactures of woollen cloth, shawls, fire-arms, and sword cutlery; and a considerable trade, chiefly in the above articles of man- ufacture. Pop. almost entirely Mahomedan, 6000.

KOUBINA, a river Russia, which rises in a small lake, in the W. of gov. Volodga, flows easterly first S.E. to Chindolev, then S.W. past Borok and Ilumsk, and falls, by two mouths, into Lake Koudskoe; total course about 170 m.

KOUBINSKOP, a lake Russia, in the S.W. of gov. Volodga, stretching S.E. to N.W. for about 45 m. mean breadth not above 5 m. It receives the Koulina and several other streams, and discharges itself by the Soukone, one of the main branches of the N. Dvina. It also communicates with the Soukone, and, through it, both with Lake Balat and the Volga. It contains several islands, is deep, and well supplied with fish.

KOUCHE, or KOUZKA, a vil. Chiova Turkestan, 400 m. N.E. Yarkand, lat. 41° 27' N.; lon. 63° 45' E. It is defended by 10 forts, and is about 3 m. in circuit. It trades with silk in copper, sulphur and salt-petre, which, as well as cal- amoniac, saffron and quinquina, are obtained in the vicinity.

It has some manufactures of linen, and on the horizon, unless irrigated, stands around, a few fruits and vegetables are raised, notwithstanding the dryness of the climate.

KOUCHIVINSK a vil Russia, gov Perm, circle and 57 mi. S. Verkhotour, on the Tara. It has four blast furnaces, and other iron works. Pop. 1600.

KOUDEKKERK a vil Holland, prov S. Holland 48 m. S.E. Leyden. It has two churches, a watch house, an orphan hospital, a school and a considerable amount of transit trade, the traffic on the river being very animated. Pop. 1250.

KOUDEKEI KE, a vil Holland, prov Zealand, (a) Walcheren, 3 m. S.W. Middeburg. It has a church and a school, and formerly had several castles near it, which now either no longer exist or are converted into houses, etc. Pop. (agricultural) 1211.

KOUDUM a vil Holland, prov Friesland 25 m. S.W. Leeuwarden, with two churches, a norm and a sailing mill. Pop. (agricultural) 925.

KOUENLUN KUENLUN or KWANLUN a mountain range, Central Asia, forming the N. boundary of Tibet, separating it from Yarkand and Khoten, and stretching eastward into regions which are almost unknown but it is understood, about lon. 92° E., to divide into two ranges, one of which near the source of Hanyan-Kars diverges 8 h. through Koko-nor, the other trends N., near the source of the Yellow River and under various names, passes through the Chinese provinces of Kansu and Szechu. The W. part, frequently distinguished by the name of the Harkum and Mustang Mountains, commences not far from the point where the Him dui Gush becomes linked with the Himalaya, near lat. 30° N. and lon. 75° E. and pursues a course nearly parallel to the Indus apparently forming its watershed. Its principal axis ascends far above the limits of perpetual snow attaining a height of 21 000 or 22 000 ft. and sends off numerous elevated ramifications towards the Indus, forming valleys down which immense glaciers descend. The ramifications forming these valleys are five in number and separated from one another by large rivers. The height is so great, that it is impossible to pass from one lateral valley to another. The ramifications E. of the Hanyan are comparatively few and small glaciers but to the W. of that river they appear to be on a still more gigantic scale than those of the Himalaya. Those of Szechu terminate at about 15 000 ft. but the level diminishes rapidly in proceeding W. One overhanging the valley of Yalu, terminates at 14 700 ft. that of Babu, at 13 000 ft. and still higher W. they ascend to 10 000 ft. The greater part of the rocks are plutonic and metamorphic. The latter are penetrated in all directions by granite veins, proceeding from vast continuous masses, and, generally near the point of contact, are thrown into such confusion that the direction of their stratification cannot be traced. In many distant localities free from disturbance the usual dip is between N.W. and N.E., and N.W. and S.E. The known passes across the Kouenun are only four. The most W., which is called the Mustang Pass, is at the source of the right branch of the Shigru an affluent of the Indus and leads to Yarkand. It was formerly much frequented by merchants, but has been almost abandoned owing to the horrid robberies beyond it. It is said not to be practicable for horses. The second called the Alishan Pass, is at the head of a tributary which joins the Hanyan opposite to Khatun. It runs over an enormous glacier and presents such obstacles to the traveller that it is not easy to see why it is considered a pass at all. The third pass, the only one now frequented, and extremely easy though very elevated, is the Karakoram (which see). The most E. one occurs on the road between Rukh and Khoten — (Thomson's Travels in the W. Himalaya).

KOUJAI-NIK, two rivers Russia, gov Kherson. The larger called the Great Kouzinsk, with a S.E. course of 65 m. falls into a lake of same name. The other called Middle Kouzinsk after a similar course of 50 m. falls into Lake Gadzhbeyakov, which discharges itself into the Black Sea.

KOUKA a tn Borneo, S.W. side of Lake Toba, from which it is about 10 m. distant. lat. 13° 45' N.; lon. 14° 15' E. It was the residence when Danabam and Clapperton travelled in Africa, of the black of Ternos, and was a place of great importance. At least 15,000 persons are here gathered together on market days, some of them coming from places two and three days' distant. Slaves, sheep, and buffaloes, the latter in great numbers, are the principal live stock for sale. Wheat, rice, and ginseng, (amaranth in the pod, butter, honey, ground nuts, indigo, leather, and wooden bowls from Soudan, form a part of the articles on sale. Kouka is reckoned the most healthy part of the kingdom.

KOUKOU known as a Mongolia, 40 m. N.W. the great wall of China, lat. 40° 40' N. lon. 111° 15' E. It forms two distinct towns called the New and the Old Town, or Commercial and Military Town. The New Town is surrounded by a brick wall with battlements. It is regularly built, and contains a handsome and spacious street, by which it is traversed from E. to W. The houses are low and constructed after the Chinese fashion. A military commander resides here with 10,000 Manchou soldiers. The Old Town, which is about 2 m. distant from the preceding, is surrounded by kitchen gardens, and enclosed by ramparts, which formerly marked its limits, but do not now include half the town. There are some famous Buddhist monasteries, which attract crowds of Mongolians from the most distant countries. The temple is carried on to a great extent and the town is a place of much commercial importance. The Mongolians bring great flocks of oxen, horses, sheep, and camels with skins, marmosettes, and sell the sole products of the deserts of Turkestan in return for which they receive, among other articles, brick tea, saddles, and some culinary utensils. The annual market, which is held on a large square, is a scene of indescribable confusion. The population is numerous, but its exact amount is unknown. — (Hue, Souvent d'un Voy. Tibet &c.).

KOULFO a tn W. Africa, lat. 6° 30' N. lon. 8° 45' E. It is surrounded by a high wall and is the most important trading place in Yoruba. Daily markets are held attended by traders from a considerable distance. Slaves, horses, asses and horned cattle, goats, sheep, pepper, red wood, &c., are brought from different quarters, and silk, cotton, native basins, turbanes, scarlet caps with a great variety of other articles, both of native and foreign manufacture, are here exposed for sale. Inhabitants generally Mahomedans, but addicted to drunkenness, deception and falsehood. Pop. about 16,000. — Lauder's Records.

KOULOI a river, Russia, gov Archangel formed by the Sotka and Tolda 25 m. E. Pinnas. It flows circularly N. E. and falls into the Bay of Maren, in the White Sea, total course, 150 m. principal affluent, the Shung.

KOUNGOUN, a vil Borneo, S. bank of lake, 166 m. N. E. It is surrounded by a ditch and by a double palisade of bamboos, with sharp stakes placed between them and has the remains of a brick redoubt, containing a pagoda, and contains about 200 houses. It is noted for the defence made by its Barmese garrison against a large invading force of Chinese. — (Jour. Asiat. Soc. Bengal, April, 1837).

KOUNGLEI a vil W. Africa, Lower (Gambia) bank Senegal lat. 14° 11' N. lon. 17° 22' W. consisting of three distinct parts and all remarkably dirty. The central part which is the most considerable, is situated on a quartz hill rising from the river and is surrounded by an earthen wall so as to form a kind of citadel, to which the inhabitants of the other two parts of the town retreated on a level low ground on each side retire on the alarm of danger.

KOUNIA a river Russia, which rises in the S. of gov Pskov, flows N., and joins r. bank Lovat at Kholm, after a course of nearly 100 m.

KOUJINSK a gov Russia lat. 50° 18' to 52° 25' N.; lon. 38° 30' to 39° 20' E.; bounded N. by gov Orlov, E. by Govs of S. Poltava and Kharkov, E. Voronej. Greatest length, W. to E. 170 m. breadth N. to S. 150 m. The surface is undulating, with numerous little hills and gentle acclivities consisting of a rich fruitful soil, and is studded over with towns and villages. The soil consists of shell marl, limestone and sandstone, and on the banks of almost all the streams layers of chalk appear. The chief river is the Ben which, rising on the E. confines of the district, traverses it E. to W. on its way to the Don the Dnieper. The Donets also has its source here and western part of the B. The climate is mild and dry and the rich soil produces abundant crops, at comparatively little trouble and expense. Apples, plums, and cherries abound. Agriculture, and its usual attendant, the rearing of cattle, employ the greater part of the inhabitants, and leave only a small surplus for other occupations. These are chiefly manufactures of array clothing and other coarse stuff for the use of the peasantry. The exports are grain, cattle, leather wax and honey. Pop. (1850) 1,714,000.

KOURSK, a town in Russia, cap. above gov. bank Tunkar, near its junction with the Rm 280 m S by W Moscow, lat 51° 40' N, lon 36° 25' E. It has the remains of an ancient fortress and the earliest transport with which the town was surrounded has been formed into an agreeable promenade. There are no public buildings of any consequence, and the streets are ill paved narrow and crooked. A considerable trade is carried on both with St. Petersburg and Moscow. To the former are sent honey wax, tallow, leather tow hemp oil, fux and wolf skins, to the latter, large numbers of cattle and horses. The environs contain numerous gardens and orchards. Pop. (1840) 80,469.

KOURSHAN, one of the most frequented passes of the Illinoise Kosh, lat. 36° 37' N, lon 68° 55' E. Summit estimated at 15,000 ft high. The upper part steep, difficult, and dangerous and impassable by wheeled carriages.

KOUBKOVIME, or KOUMOGGIM a river, Russian America, which falls by a broad cataract into Delaring's Sea, about 150 m N Bristol Bay. The river bank is bare, but running parallel to it at a distance of 30 m, is a chain of granite mountains, about 2000 ft in height. It is swift, and accompanied with shallow, caused by the sand accumulating round drift wood. It is crossed by numerous head streams, has several affluents, and a course generally S W of above 800 m.

KOUBSIE, or SABU RIVER, Africa, formerly the N W boundary of the Cape colony. It rises at the S. borders of the Karroo, about lat 39° 55' N, lon 18° 30' E, from which it flows W, falling into the Atlantic about 60 m S by E. Cape Valon, lat 29° 38' N lon 17° 5' E. Total course, 78 m.

KOUTA, a river Assiut Russia, gov. Likhurk, which rises in the S W of circle Kirensk flows N and joins a bank Lena, after a course of about 220 m.

KOVACS-VAGAS, a vil. Hungary co. Abaujvar, near Radway, with two churches, a synagogue, and a trade in wine and wool. Pop. 1,337.

KOVACSI, a vil. Hungary Higher Danube, co. and near Pesth with a R. Catholic church. Pop. 1,110.

KOVAJA or KAVAJA a town European Turkey Albania 23 m W El Hassan, 8 m. from the mouth of a small river in the Gulf of Vauco, where there is a small port. It is the seat of a bishop and surrounds a good cypress in shade. Pop. 2550.

KOZABINTZ, formerly Kuznetsov, a vil. Hungary Thither Thelms co. and 12 m. from And. with a church, and a trade in wine, cattle, and swine and near a copper mine. Pop. 2965.

KOVASZNA, KOWASZNY or LOVAK, a vil. Austria, Transylvania, 14 m N E Krusztadt with two churches, chalybeate springs, and several mills. Pop. 2889.

KOVATSIHATA (Kond Us) a vil. Hungary Thither Thelms co. Csanad 25 m. E N E Tot homioe, in a fertile district where much corn and tobacco are grown. Pop. 1742.

KOVAYSI Fuzsra a vil. Hungary co. Somogy 4 m S. Lake Nagy, with a church and a trade in corn. Pop. 926.

KOVDO a lake, Russia, in the W. of gov. Archangel and about 6 m W of the Gulf of Handalska. It is nearly of a quadrangular form, about 30 m long by 24 m broad, contains numerous islands, at its S. W. extremity; receives the waters of the Pivo, and at its S. E. discharges itself by the Kovda into the Gulf of Handalska.

KOVELA, a town Russia, gov. Volhynia 1 bank Turia 198 m W N W Jassy, once the cap. of a duchy. Pop. 2973.

KOVEND, or STREYSEN, a vil. Austria, Transylvania Upper Aranyos Stahl about 9 m. from Thelms, with a court of justice, and a Lutheran church. Pop. 905.

KOVERLES (Nagy), a vil. Hungary co. Temeswar, about 8 m. from Bekes, with two churches. Pop. 1920.

KOVED (Nagy), a market to Hungary Thither Thelms co. Borsod, 7 m E Erlau, with two churches, a high school, cavalry barracks, and four annual fairs. Pop. 6173.

KOVESKALLA, a market to Hungary Thither Danube, co. Smolad about 6 m. from Topolosa, with a church, and a market. Pop. 1546.

KOVESI (Gyrt), or DRABOVA, a vil. Hungary Thither Thelms co. Marmaros, 32 m. from Balghy, in a plain enclosed by hills. It has a R. Catholic church. Pop. 1162.

KOVI, or KAMENAVJE, a vil. Hungary, Thither Thelms co. Gande, at the foot of Mount Melnik, 16 m. from Tornyalya.

It contains a Protestant church, and a school and has limekilns, distilleries, a trade in iron, and quarries of white and gray marble. The inhabitants are Slovaks. Pop. 2381.

KOVIL, several places, Austria—1, (Alois), a vil. Belovona, 12 m. from Tiel with a Greek church and a vil. Greek non-named monastery. Pop. 1790.—2, (Ladislav), two contiguous vills. Hungary, not far from the former on the Danube. Pop. 1759.

KOVNO, a town Russia. See Kovno.

KOVVAL, a town Russian Island gov. Masovia lat 52° 52' N lon 21° 40' E. Pop. 134.

KOVNO or KOVNO, a decayed town in Russia, gov. and 52 m. W N W Vilna, 1 bank Niemen or Memel. It is old and ugly has ten R. Catholic churches, of which the high church and church of the Jesuits are rather handsome buildings, a Lutheran church, a Jewish synagogue, and an academy; considerable trade and some linen weaving. The meat made here is famed. Pop. 4000.

KOVAR (Bac), a market in Hungary, co. Berrnya 22 m. from Pinfkuchien with two churches. Pop. 1401.

KOZEP numerous places Hungary—1 (Apost-Kozep) a vil. co. Marmaros on a small stream of same name, 10 m. from Balghy with a Greek parish church. Inhabitants partly employed in mining. Pop. 1755.—2 (Apost-Kozep) a vil. or rather three vills, co. and 26 m. from Vespier with a Protestant and a R. Catholic church, and a synagogue. Pop. 2026.

KOZEL Azta, a vil. Austria, Transylvania, on a stream of same name, about 40 m. from Krusztadt. It has a church, and is inhabited chiefly by frontier soldiers. Pop. 1185.

KOZILLOW, a town Russian Poland, 60 m N W Grochow with three churches. Pop. 1350.

KOZLENICE, a town Russian Poland, near the Vistula, 22 m N E Radom. It has four churches an old castle, once used by the kings of Poland as a hunting seat, a copper smelting furnace and manufactures of copperware. It was once famous for its sword cutting. Pop. 1615.

KOZLANY, a market in Bohemia circle Rakumia, on a steep height at the confluence of the Kuzov and Betschowa 21 m N N E Pilsen, with a church a school and the ruins of an old feudal castle, and several mills. Pop. 1555.

KOZLOV a town Russia. See ZLATARICA.

KOZLOVITZ, or KOZLOVICH a vil. Austria, Moravia, circle Presburg, about 10 m. from Freyberg with a parish church. Pop. 1336.

KOZMIN a town Prussia, gov. and 38 m S E. Posen, on the Odra with two churches a synagogue, a Bernardine monastery and a trade in cattle. Pop. 8400.

KRA or KRO two small vills in the channel between the W. side of the peninsula of Malacca and the Paganu. They are called the N. and S. Kra. and are composed of fine soft clay, irregular in dip and strike and in many places: dusted and altered by pliocene agency. They resemble the aqueous rocks of the S. extremity of the Malayan peninsula, and contrasting strikingly with the granitic rocks of Paganu.

KRAHNDIHLJ a vil. Holland prov. Zealand lat. S. Cleveland 11 m. S. E. Gou, with a church, and the remains of some former defenses. Pop. 725.

KRAI I, a vil. Lithuanian Prussia, gov. Coblens, circle Mayen, on a stream of same name. It has a R. Catholic church, a walk and an oil mill. Pop. 1248.

KRAGEROR, a town Norway, prov. Agderhus, hall Brudeberg on a rocky height, above a bay of the Rager Rack, 58 m S. S. W. Christiania. It has some general trade, and an active delivery, particularly of cyprus which are famous. Near the town in the island of Langlo, are iron mines. Pop. 1819.

KRAIBLRG, a market in Bavaria, circle Upper Bavaria, 1 bank Inn, 45 m. E Munchel with a church, two chapels, some shipping trade, and a trade in cattle and horses. Pop. 900.

KRAISHEIM, a town Wirttemberg. See CRAWENHEIM.

KRAIN a duchy Austria. See CARINTHIA.

KRAINBURG, or KRAU, a town in Austria, Thyrre, circle and 16 m. N W Leybach 1 bank Sava. It has an old church and a castle, built like the rest of the town, of stone; dye-works, and some trade in the produce of the district, but is badly supplied with drinking water. Pop. 1713.

KRAJOVA, a town, principality Walachia, cap. Little Walachia, near 1 bank Bolyl. It has a number of churches, and an active trade, particularly in salt, from mines in the vicinity. Pop. 8000.

KRAKATVA or ЧОКОВАТО a thinly wooded lat. Indian Archipelago, Strait of Sumatra lat. 6° 18' N. lon. 105° 29' E. (n) about 6 or 7 m. long, and 4 or 5 m. broad, high (1898 ft.) and steep on the N. side, and contains a hot spring.

KRAKHO or KRAKHO a vil. Austria, Transylvania, ca. Needer Weissenberg about 9 m. from Törös with two churches, and a trade in wine and timber. Pop. 1233.

KRAKOW see КРАКОВ

KRAKOW a G. Germany grand duchy Mecklenburg; Rostock, circle Wenden on a lake of same name, 53 to P. Schwerin. It has two gates, a church, townhouses, and manufacture of straw hats and masts, tile-works. Pop. 1516

KRALINGH V. a vil. Holland prov. S. Holland, N. H. and near Rotterdam. It has a church, a school and poor-house rope-works dye-works, and a calico printing work, some weaving a shot foundry and mill, oil walk, and corn mill, and two boat building yards. Pop. 5040.

KRALITZ, a market in Moravia, circle Olmütz, about 4 m. from Prosems with a church and a castle. Pop. 900

KRALOWITZ, or OKRADOWY a to Bohemia, circle and 18 m. N. H. Pilsen on the Odava with a church townhouses, and a sugar-works a distillery brewery several mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1636.

KRAMSACIL a vil. Austria, 17 vil. circle Schwart, near Rattenberg with a church, a chapel tile-works, glass-works, a gypsum mill and manufacture of needles and pins. P. 881

KRAMSACIL or KRAMSACIL a to Bohemia, Prussia, gov. Düsseldorf in W. Cleeves surrounded by an old wall and a fosse. It has two churches manufacture of linen breweries, tanneries and paper-mills. Pop. 2690

KRAMSACIL a small of Russia, Gov. Ekaterin, in the Narova, where the river forms a remarkable water-fall not far from its mouth, near Narva. A great many mills have been erected near the fall.

KRAMSACIL or KRAMSACIL a vil. Lower Austria on a height and on the railway near Gloggnitz. It is surrounded with double walls, has a church and an old castle, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1000

KRAMSACIL, a resort to Greece, Morea on the E. shore of the gulf and 22 m. S. E. Napoli. It consists of about 600 houses and in 1823, because for a time the rest of the Greek coast, in consequence of a rupture with the executive.

KRAMSACIL a to Germany duchy Haxe-Meiningen and Weimar, on the line 11 m. N. E. Erfurt. It belongs partly to Haxe-Meiningen and partly to Haxe-Weimar has a church and two castles and manufacture of hosiery and woollen and linen cloth. Pop. 1411 KRAMSACIL, or KRAMSACIL, a to Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. and 43 to 8 Oppeln with a church, hospital, two mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1075.

KRAMSACIL a vil. Austria, Croatia, 1 bank Sava, between Drenovack and Preska, about 10 m. from Jassenevack with a church. Pop. 1180

KRAPIVA a to Russia, gov. and 28 m. S. W. Tula at the confluence of the Plova and 13 m. with six churches, and several annual fairs. Pop. 1100

KRAPIVA, a to Prussia, prov. Posen 13 m. S. Oppeln 1 bank Oder. It is entered by four gates, has two churches, a castle, hospital, some shipping and several mills and numerous quarters. Pop. 1642

KRAMSK a to Russia, 1 land, gov. and 28 m. S. V. Lublin. Pop. 3341

KRAMSACIL, a to Russian Poland 24 m. N. E. Lublin, esp. circle on the Wiepra and a small lake. It is walled in a castle, formerly the residence of the bishop of Chelm four churches and a convent a brewery of mead and some general trade. Archbishop Max of Austria was kept prisoner here in 1594 after being defeated by Zamoisky. Pop. 8672 KRAMSACIL, a to Russia, gov. and 110 m. S. E. Perm cap. of its circle, a bank Oka, lat. 56° 48' N., lon. 87° 49' E. It is surrounded by a wooden wall and towers, originally intended to secure it against the incursions of the Bashkirs. Pop. 2607. The environs of the town and the whole circle are rich in mines of iron and copper.

KRAMSACIL, a to Russia, gov. Podolsk about 50 m. N. Iampol. Pop. 1950

KRAMSACIL a to Russia, gov. and 18 m. S. E. E. St. Petersburg, with a palace, in which the Emperor often resides and manufacture of stones are, a calico printfield, and a distillery. The greater part of the troops kept in St. Petersburg during winter, go under canvas in summer and are frequently camped and reviewed here. Pop. (1848), 3817

KRANOI, several places, Russia—1 A to m. gov. and S. W. Smolensk cap. circle, on the Merika, a small affluent of the Dnieper. It contains two churches. The French, in their retreat in 1812 suffered severe losses here on three successive days. Pop. 400 —The circle is watered by the Dnieper which here receives the Boreana in Kurla and well cultivated —3 (Jer) A to m. gov. and 31 m. N. E. Astrakhan, cap. circle, on an island formed by several arms of the Volga. It has an important fishery. Pop. 1800, circle 18,600

KRANOLA a to Russia, gov. and 40 m. S. W. Siberia, cap. gov. Yeniseisk on a low tongue of land between the Yenisei and Kacha, at their junction, and in the direct route from W. Siberia to Irkutsk Yakutsk, etc. lat. 55° 42' N. lon. 92° 50' E. The principal street is wide and well levelled and is intersected at right angles by several similar cross streets, and in the middle of the town are two handsome squares. Many of the houses are built of bricks though the most of them are of wood painted outside with bright colours. It has a cathedral and three other churches and a synagogue, a police office, the last generally of stone and a large public factory or workhouse for the employment of the numerous artisan convicts, in which the tanning of leather and the construction of droshkas sledges and all sorts of carriages are carried on. There are numerous Tartar graves in the neighbourhood and a fine collection of the antiquities which have been discovered is one of the most interesting sights of Kramensk. Pop. (1850) 7000

KRANOLA a to Russia, gov. and 39 m. N. E. Tver on the Mngotcha, with some general trade. Pop. 1600

KRASNOI a to Russia, gov. and 41 m. W. Kharkov, a bank Meria with five churches, and a trade in corn fruit, and cattle. Pop. 6850.

KRASNOI, two places Russia —1 A to Russian Poland 12 m. E. Suwalki, regularly built. Pop. 533 —2, A to gov. Volhynia, 42 m. S. W. Jitomir P. about 1800

KRASNOI a to Russia, gov. and 98 m. N. W. Tver, cap. circle on the Mngotcha. It is partly built, contains five churches, and has distilleries and a trade in silk and woollen goods and corn. Pop. 7712 —The circle is divided in two parts by the Mngotcha and has good pastures. Area 924 geo. sq. m. Pop. 104,000

KRASNO or KARASO a vil. Hungary, Thüster Theres on Szekes 20 m. from Arany Medgyas, with two churches and a synagogue. Pop. 1318

KRASNO a vil. Hungary, Thüster Theres on of same name in a rugged and mountainous district on the Karas 44 m. S. E. Temesvar. It has a R. Catholic church and the ruins of an old castle. A good deal of maize is grown in the district. Pop. 5002 —The country bounded N. by Arad N. E. Transylvania, E. the Walachian Illyrian S. the German Illyrian military frontier, and W. Temesvar area, 1748 geo. sq. m. consists of a long and comparatively narrow tract of country with its greatest length N. to S. and is traversed by mountains of the Carpathians, well watered, and remarkably fertile producing corn and maize good wine fruit, flax and hemp. The rich pastures feed great numbers of cattle. The minerals, which are valuable, and worked to some extent include silver copper iron and lead. The majority of the inhabitants are Walachians and Servians, or Austrians. Logos is the capital. Pop. 239,600

KRAST, a to Bohemia, circle and 11 m. from Chradim, on the Zegkra. It has a handsome domine church a castle, the usual summer residence of the bishop of Krumgrätz, a townhouse, and school. Pop. 1648

KRAST or KARAST a market to Transylvania, ca. on the river of same name, 45 m. N. W. Klausenburg. It contains a Protestant, a R. Catholic and a Greek church, and has thermal baths. Pop. 1846 —The country is mountainous has rather a cold climate and is watered by the Berettyo and Krassa. Its pastures feed large numbers of cattle and the woods, which are extensive, furnish excellent timber. Its capital is Homolya. Area, 320 geo. sq. m. Pop. 148,000 —The river runs in Mount Plopusa, on the W. frontiers of Transylvania flows W. W. past Somlyo, and joins 1 bank Hamos, after a course of nearly 90 m.

KROMBACH, or KROMBACH, a vil. Bohemia, circle Bautzen, at the foot of the Hohwald; with a church, spacious school a handsome court-house, and a large brewery. P 978

KROMMENIE, a vil. Holland, prov. N. Holland, 12 m. N. E. Haarlem. It has two churches, an orphan and a poor-house, and considerable manufactures of sail-cloth, employing 3000 workmen. Pop. 2220

KROMY, a tn. Russia, gov. and 20 m. S. S. W. Orlov cap. circle, on the Krona, with two stone and several wooden churches. Inhabitations mostly agricultural. Pop. 2009

The circle has large tracts of fine arable land. P 46,460

KRONACH, a tn. Bavaria, Upper Frankonia, cap. ball on the Kronach, at the foot of a hill crowned by the strong castle of Rosenberg. It is walled, has three churches, and a chapel, a small museum, Latin school, and an hospital. Munich factories of wax candles a brewery, and a trade in honey, wool, and wood. Pop. 8100. Area of ball, 89 geo. sq. m. Pop. 32,078

KRUVE (Dutchman) a tn. Prussia. See Duitsch-Kruve.

KRONE or Konowowa a tn. Prussia, prov. Lower gov. and 18 m. N. W. Bromberg, on the Brise, surrounded by sandy hills. It has two churches and a trade in cattle. P 2359 KRONFELD, a tn. Rhenish Prussia gov. and 15 m. E. Düsseldorf, with two churches and manufactures of linen, cotton and various articles in iron and steel. Pop. 626.

KRONPRINZ-KOG a vil. Denmark, Holstein in the S. Ditmarschen. It has a court of justice line-klaus, and two mills. Pop. 1076.

KRONSTADT, or KRISTEN (anc. Bravovora or Hannover, Brasse Dutch Kronstadt) a tn. Austria, Transylvania, in the Burzenland cap. dist. romantically situated in a narrow valley formed by a triangular opening in the mountains which separate Transylvania from Wallachia, 70 m. E. S. E. Hermannstadt lat. 45° 38' 30" N. lon. 25° 33' 53" E. (t.).

The town is occupied partly by old frowning castles seated on lofty and rugged heights, partly by pretty villas surrounded by well kept gardens, and immediately in front of the principal entrance is a large esplanade, ornamented with avenues of trees and a 3-arched bridge, and forming the principal place of public resort. The town itself occupies of the inner town in the form of a square, surrounded by walls flanked with towers and entered by five gates, and of three large suburbs, called the A'istadt, Bismarck and Burgers. It is well and regularly built. The principal streets, six in number, are tolerably spacious, clean and well paved. The market place is large, and adorned with two fine fountains, and the houses, generally of two stories, have a substantial and comfortable appearance. The old city most deserving of notice are the enclosed a modern fortress of some strength occupying the summit of an isolated hill, the Protestant parish church, a venerable Gothic structure, of the 15th century with several fine doorways a simple but imposing interior and a lofty tower the R. Catholic church of St. Peter and St. Paul, the townhouse, the buildings connected with the college or gymnasium, the large W. station church, built in 1751 by the Russian empress, Elizabeth the bazaar or hay-house, the Franciscan monastery the mint several workhouse hospitals, refinery, theatre, and concert-rooms. Besides the gymnasium already mentioned, which belongs to the Protestants, and has a good library the R. Catholics have a superior academy, and there are military, grammar, and other schools. Both manufactures and trade are of considerable importance. The former consist chiefly of coarse woollens, of which large quantities are annually sent into Turkey a kind of maple wood dyes, of which about 30,000 are annually made linen leather paper, and refined wax, and the latter includes, in addition to the above articles of manufacture, cattle, wine, corn, and salt. The greater part of this trade is a monopoly in the hands of a Greek company. The earliest printing-press of Transylvania was established here by Hantzsch, a disciple of Melanchthon. The establishment still exists, and is chiefly employed in printing works in Wallachia. P (1846) 28,000

KRONSTADT a seaport, Russia. See Czestoboda.

KROPEL, a tn. Germany Mecklenburg Schwerin, 23 m. N. E. Schwerin, with an old church, townhouse, and hospital tile-works, and several mills. Pop. 1975

KROPENSTADT a tn. Prussian Saxony, gov. and 20 m. S. W. Magdeburg. It is walled and around it considerable quantities of flax are grown. Pop. 2064

KROGEN, a tn. Austrian Gallia circle Jasio, 105 m. W. S. W. Leuberg. It is an ancient place, and has a parish church, and two monasteries. Pop. 4580

KROSSEN, a tn. Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. and 31 m. S. E. Frankfurt, cap. circle I. bank Oder. It is walled, has several courts and public offices, three churches, a court-house and castle, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, hosiery leather, and earthenware a brewery, distillery an iron-mill a trade in wool and wine, and some shipping. Pop. (1846) 7874. The circle is flat, and of considerable fertility. Pop. 52,750 geo. sq. m. Pop. 52,750

KRYTOZELIN or Krotocim a tn. Prussia, prov. and 50 m. S. S. E. Posen cap. circle. It has several courts and public offices two churches a synagogue, and a monastery manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, silico, and tobacco, tanneries, distilleries, and a trade in wool and cattle. Pop. (1846) 8048. The circle is flat, densely wooded and fertile. Area, 381 geo. sq. m. Pop. 62,068

KROTAL, or Krotala. See Grottal.

KROTTEADOF, a vil. Saxony circle and 15 m. S. E. Zwickau. It has sewing and lace schools, a cotton print-fact marble-works, paper and other mills, and near it are coal and other mines. Pop. 2660

KROIZINGEN, a vil. Baden circle Upper Rhine, ball and 2 m. N. W. Staufen. It consists of Upper and Lower Krotzingen, and has a parish church, several mills, dye-works, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1311

KROIZKA, GASTYKA or STOLNATKA a tn. Turkey in Europe Europe, 40 m. W. Semendria, r. bank Maraba. It is famous for the forest in its vicinity, in 1739 of the Impe rulers, by the Turks.

KRUFI, a vil. Rhenish Prussia prov. Coblenz, circle and near Mayen with a parish church a walk, an oil and a flint mill. Pop. 1245

KIUMINGEN a vil. Holland prov. Zeeland, 10 f. Beveland 8 m. 4 E. Goes a good looking place with a broad street, planted with trees two churches, a school and a well frequented annual fair. Pop. (agricultural), 1150

KRUIN (S.) a vil. Holland prov. Zeeland, on the Belgian frontier 5 m. E. E. Stint with an old church, and a school. Pop. (agricultural) 618

KRUKOVA, a tn. Turkey. See AI ANJA BIKAR.

KRUMAL, a tn. Bohemia, circle and 14 m. S. W. Bad-wia, on the Moldau here crossed by several bridges. It consists of Kranau Proper situated on an island, and partly surrounded by a wall. Latron, on I. bank of the river, and of six suburbs is well built, contains two castles, with gardens two churches, a high school two hospitals, and barracks, and has manufactures of woollen and linen goods, two paper-mills and a building yard. Pop. 5165

KRUMIA, (f) a market tn. Bavaria, circle Swabia, cap. dist. and r. bank river of same name, 27 m. W. S. W. Augsburg with a parish church a castle, and a bathing establishment. Pop. 1200 dist. 16,129

KRUMERMEKRODOK, a vil. Saxony circle Zwickau 7 m. N. E. Chemnitz with a maner-house and mill. Pop. 1619

KRUMENAU, a vil. and par. Switzerland, on St. Gall. near where the Thur is crossed by a lofty and romantic bridge 19 m. S. W. Appenzel. It has two churches and some trade. Pop. 1406

KRUMENNOI, or WANDERDIA, a vil. Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. Wagradia circle Löwenburg; with a saw, and several water mills. Pop. 1308

KRUBENSTERN, one of the Diomed islands Behring's Strait lat. 65° 46' N. lon. 168° 55' W.

KRUBENSTERN, or ANULICAN, a group, N. Prussia Marshall at Aradelpago lat. 10° 27' N. lon. 170° 3' (n). The group is 15 m. long and 5 m. broad. The E. side is formed by a chain of islands, but the W. side consists of a coral reef. Ata the principal island, is only about 1 m. long but has a pleasing appearance and is distinguished from the rest by its tall palm trees.

KIUSEVLYE a vil. Hungary Hither Danube, on Bere, about 4 m. from Gakova with a church and a trade in wheat maize, and cattle. Pop. 960

KRYLOV, or KRYLOV a tn. Russia, gov. and 175 m. N. Ekaterin, at the confluence of the Don with the Imper It is built mostly of wood, and has two churches two monasteries and a considerable general trade. Pop. 2200.

which took place here between the Allies and the French, very much to the disadvantage of the latter. It has a handsome church and a fine castle with a park. Pop. 620. — 3 (Oden and Urtz), two nearly contiguous vils. Switzerland, cant. Argau, r. bank Wittenau 6 m. S S E Aarau with a church, a cotton mill and a trade in corn. Pop. 1780.

KLJ MHACH, a vil. in Bavaria. See CULMBACH.

KUJ NA, a vil. India. See COLOA.

KULON or DALAT a lake, Chinese Empire, in N E Mongolia, not far from the Russian frontier, lat. 48° 30' N., and lon. 110° 35' E.; greatest length N N E to S S W, 40 m., mean breadth about 15 m. It is formed by an extension of the Karon or Lo-Khin, and discharges itself into the Argun which unites with the Shilka in forming the Amoor.

KULPA (anc. Colapage) a river Austria, which rises in Croatia, at the junction of the Julian and Dinare Alps flows easterly W forming part of the boundary between Dalmatia and Croatia, and passing Carlsbad and Petrina and, after a course of about 100 m., joins r. bank Sava. Its principal affluents are the Koroska, the Giron, the Lachna, Commeza, Rappa, and Odra. It begins to be navigable at Carlsbad, and, being connected by excellent roads with Fiume and Trieste forms the great outlet for the produce of the S. of Hungary.

KLJ LILIN a vil. Hungary Esther Danube, on the river Petruvics, with a church, and a trade in corn and cattle. P. 1693. KLJ LILILIM, a t. Baden circle Lower Rhine bail Tansher-Isenboheim with a church and a castle, has manufactures of red leather, dye-works, breweries, and several mills. Pop. 2046.

KULU, a principality in N E of Punjab among the lower cliffs of the Himalaya bounded N by Lahul and E by Basaheer lat. 31° 50' to 32° 40' N. lon. 76° 40' to 77° 40' E. is generally rugged and mountainous, and the Kilmanka Joth I and is above 13,000 feet high. It is traversed nearly centrally by the Beas and is watered by several of its affluents flowing through valleys containing numerous fields and villages, surrounded by orchards of peach, apricot, quince and walnut trees, while the hedge-rows and woods abound with wild pomegranates, pears, figs, and grapes. Cedars, cypresses, and various kinds of pines occupy the sides of the Beas and the adjacent heights. In the lower grounds some rice is cultivated, but, as the country ascends, the kind of its growth is restricted and buckwheat is substituted for it. The climate is and to be unhealthy. Every second portion has a gout and leprosy is not uncommon. Brahminism is the prevailing religion and numerous pilgrimages are made to sacred springs. Its capital is Saitanpoo.

KULU LIL, or KHALIKET, a large vil. Central Asia, Jaxak, r. bank Upper Indus which has here a rocky channel only 25 yards wide lat. 34° 20' N. lon. 76° 44' E. The cultivated ground in the vicinity is of good quality though rather inconveniently laid-out in terraces. The grain sown ripens in three months and a second crop of buckwheat or turnips is obtained from the same soil.

KUMA, a river which runs near the centre of Circassia, flows N into the Russian gulf Caucasus, then N N E past Georgievsk, to the frontier of Georgia Astrakhan, forms part of the boundary between these two governments, and, after almost disappearing among sands, finds its way to the Caspian Sea, which it enters by three mouths. Total course, 400 m. Its principal affluents are the Irdik and the Bayvaya.

KUMAND a vil. Hungary Thier Thier, on the Tura lat. about 6 m. from Melenau, with a church and a trade in wheat and hay. Pop. 2934.

KUMANIA or KUMANIA (Great and Little) [German, Kumanen two districts, Hungary, the former situated considerably to the S. E. of each, between cos. Szabolcs, Hova, Csenger, and Bekes and the latter bounded by cos. Pesth Csenger, and Bacs-Bodrog. Area of Great Kumania 523 sq. m. Pop. 80,106. Area of Little Kumania, 758 sq. m. Pop. 63,500.

KLJ MAJUN, KANAW a large district of N India, in the N E prov. of Delhi bounded N W by Garhwal S. Delhi. E. the Cal. which separates it from Nepal, N E. the Himalayas; lat. 29° 30' to 30° 55' N. lon. 78° 30' to 81° E. Area, 7000 sq. m. The country consists of a succession of mountain ridges, which intersect each other and gradually become more elevated towards the N. Deep, and irregular dells intervene between the ridges, but so narrow as scarcely to deserve the name of valleys. Extensive tracts of table-land occur forming a kind of savannah which are covered with high reedy grass, with scarcely a tree, or even a shrub. As the hills are approached the tree jungle becomes thicker and a belt of it skirts the Kaneson hills, containing groups of sand, succo and other trees and as the altitude increases, the vegetation changes with the changing temperature, till it becomes European. Throughout the lower part of the district the tea plant grows wild, but is said to possess an emetic quality which renders it useless. The S E. near Almora is open, bleak, and naked. Though the jungle is not very extensive, there are numerous. The game most common is the wild pheasant, partridge, and chukars. Copper iron and lead are worked to some extent. The ordinary kinds of grain and pulses grow freely and there are occasional patches of rice. In recent years, the E. Indian Government has successfully introduced the tea culture into this district. The shrubs are managed in the Chinese system and succeed well. The manufactures are few and coarse, but a considerable trade is carried on the traders after descending far into the S. and exchanging their minerals, dyes, sugar, and roots for coarse clothes, cotton, sugar, &c. The country is thinly populated. About 8000 families of Dhillis are supposed to be scattered throughout the district. Among the hill tribes, one of the most numerous classes is the Khas ayes. (See GURWAL.) The climate has been supposed so well adapted to reinvigorate the European constitution when affected by tropical diseases, that the Government has formed a regular establishment at Almora for the accommodation of invalids.

KUMI A GUN a range of firs, N E. of Punjab and not far from L. bank Beas, lat. 31° 41' N. lon. 76° 47' E. They are built on several rounded peaks, which extend N and S about 3 m. and are partly constructed out of the natural rock, and partly of masonry. The principal strong hold is an isolated rock, with precipitous sides rising about 100 ft. above the other peaks.

KLJ M() a river Lunna, which issues from a lake in the S. of Finland flows N W past the town of Kumo and falls into the Gulf of Bothnia by a wide estuary near the town of Bjorneborg after a course of about 100 m.

KLJ HUNNA, a t. Hungary Thier Thier Great Kumania, on the Thier 73 m. E. Pesth, in a very fertile district with a church, and a townhouse. Pop. 6183.

KLJ HUNNA, a vil. Hungary Thier Thier 1 bank Koria, 73 m. E. Pesth, in a very fertile district with a church and a trade in corn and wine. Pop. 6280.

KLJ V. SAKET MISTON, a market in Hungary Thier Kumania, on both sides of the Buker an arm of the Danube, in a fertile district, 84 m. S. E. of Pesth with two churches, in a considerable trade in sugar, oil, and produce. Pop. 5230.

KUNABILLI, one of the S. Kuril Islands, close on the N E coast of Yesso, Japan lat. 42° 45' N. lon. 146° 30' E. about 70 m. in length, and 25 m. in breadth. It is mountainous in the centre but contains many valleys capable of cultivation and abounds in fish and wild animals. It is but thinly inhabited. The Japanese have settled on it and the adjoining islands, and introduced agriculture.

KLJ V. LK or KACHAW, part of the upper valley of the Sutlej in the W Himalaya, on the frontier of Little Tibet and E. of the Punjab. It forms a district in the Basaheer rajahship and is bounded N by the district of Pili E. Garhwal S. Simla, and W the rajahship of Kulil lat. 31° 35' to 31° 51' N. lon. 77° 47' to 78° 45' E. Its general level above the sea is 8000 ft. and some of its mountain summits are covered with perpetual snow. The greater part of the valley being composed of hills and abrupt escarpments or narrow valleys is unsuitable but along the lower banks of the Sutlej the soil is very fertile and yields all the ordinary grain and yam crops in abundance of tuberculous plants, the turnips are particularly celebrated. The ordinary fruits grow freely and a tree called neem, which bears excellent almonds. The vine is cultivated on the hilly slopes. The mountain pastures are browsed by numerous flocks of sheep, which yield a wool fine enough to be wrought into shawls of middling quality. There is much limestone, and good iron is made. The inhabitants of this mountain valley are chiefly traders, and are said to be honest. They export corn, wool, raw silk, almonds, and iron. The chief import is salt, of which the district is destitute. It is brought from a great distance. Most of the people are Hindus, but many are Buddhists. Numerous kamas roads in the different villages but the chief lama has his residence at Kunam, which is the principal town, and has been called the Benares of Khamar. The language is said to have very little affinity with that of Hindoostan. Polyandry is not uncommon.

KUNCHAI-JUAGA, a town and village, or Khamar-Juaga, one of the loftiest summits of the Himalaya mountains in the Mikirai Himalaya, about lat. 27° 45' N. lon. 86° 12' E., between Bootan and Nepal. It has two peaks, one of which, the W. is 28,178 ft. high the other or E. 2,826 ft.

KUNDA a small seaport to Russia, gov. Ekahtia K. above Gulf of Finland, in a little bay at the mouth of the Neema, 66 m. E.N.E. Kavel. The bay is sheltered from almost all winds, and has good anchorage. There is also a small harbour at which a considerable trade is carried on in bread corn, and death the fish are worn up at the extensive mills erected on the banks of the Neema. Pop. about 400.

KUNDAPUR or COORADPOOR, a seaport in Hindoostan, prov. Lacara, on the Malabar coast, at the mouth of a small river 52 m. N. by W. Mangalore. It is not large, but possesses some importance in the time of Tippoo, who constructed docks on the N. side of the river opposite to this town.

KUNDICZ, a khamar, Central Asia. See KACHOPOUR.

KUNERSBURG a vil Bohemia, circle and 12 m. N. W. Breslau on the Zwettzsch with a large church, a headmaster school, manufactures of linen several linen and yarn bleach-factories, a spinning-mill and a trade in flax. P. 1795.

KUNENVALD a vil. Austria, Moravia, circle and 18 m. N.E. Preuss with a church, school, a large and elegant castle, with a library of 20,000 vols. and a cabinet of natural history manufactures of linen, a dye-works, and several mills. P. 1767.

KUNGUR, a ta. Russia, gov. and 50 m. N.E.E. Perm cap. circle, near the confluence of the Irtyz and Sylva. It has five churches, a convent soap works, and tanneries and a considerable trade in furs. It is the seat of a mining director for furs. Furs and Vodka here it is the great source of alabaster and some remarkable grottoes. Pop. (1851) 7107. —The circle is well wooded and fertile, and has valuable mines of both iron and copper. Pop. 54,144.

KUNGUAD, or KONGHAT, a ta. Independent Tartary, khamar and 90 m. N.W. Shira, a bank Amoo, about 50 m. above its mouth in Lake Aral. It lies low and suffers much from inundation. It contains a castle of the Khan with a garden, seven mosques, and more than 300 shops, and is inhabited by Uzbeks, who carry on an important trade with the surrounding tribes.

KUNGUL, a small walled town, Hindoostan, prov. Bengal, prov. and 82 m. S. by W. Begapur situated in the midst of a little tract of cultivated and enclosed country. It has a thriving appearance and is populous.

KUNKA or KETKAGHRA, a ta. Hindoostan prov. Orissa, on a low uninhabited tract near Point Palmyra, about 80 m. S.E. Cuttack.

KUNUL, a ta. Hindoostan, prov. Delhi & bank Ganges, about 2 m. N. Hauria. It is almost entirely composed of large and beautiful stone edifices, built for the accommodation of pilgrims resorting to Hauria intermixed with fantastic Hindu temples and gardens.

KUNTSCHITZ, several places, Germany —1 (Gross- and Klein), two nearly contiguous vils. Moravia, circle Preuss near Hochwald with a church. Pop. 1603. —2 A vil Bohemia, circle Kautschitz, about 2 m. from Geiersberg with a mill. Pop. 818.

KUNWALD (Oma and Urtin) a vil Bohemia circle and about 17 m. from Kunggritz with a church, a school, a saw and several other mills. Pop. 1773.

KUNZLEHAI, a ta. Württemberg, circle Jaxt cap. bail on the Kocher 44 m. N.E. Stuttgart with two castles two schools manufactures of trunks and tobacco, dye-works tanneries and a trade in cattle, fruit and wine. Pop. 2600. Area of bail 119 gen sq m. Pop. 81,232.

KUNZENDORF several places Prussia, particularly —1 A vil, prov. Sillesia, gov. and 27 m. N.W. Breslau with the works, saw and other mills, a bleach-works, and a hydrostatic establishment. Pop. 1347. —2 (Jawitzsch or Gross-) A vil gov. Breslau, circle Hahnschwardt, with a church, and a castle; lime-works, and oil, saw and other mills.

Pop. 1336 —3, (Wachtel), A vil gov. Oppeln, circle Neustadt; with a church, a castle, and a bathing establishment. Pop. 1040 —4 (Dürr), A vil gov. Oppeln, circle Naisse with a castle. Pop. 1266 —5 (Häder- und Ober-) Gov. Oppeln, circle Krenzburg, with a church. Pop. 1614.

KUNZELSDORF a vil Moravia, circle Olmütz, about 6 m. from Gräfen with a church. Pop. 1642.

KUPFLO, a ta. Russia, Finland, gov. circle, grossly situated on a peninsula, W. shore of Lake Kallavä, 225 m. N.N.W. St. Petersburg with a church, gymnasium, elementary, and a superior school, a printing-office, and a considerable trade in exporting resin and timber, five the sawing up of the latter numerous mills have been erected in the vicinity. Pop. (1843) 2500. —The cratic consists generally of extensive sandy plains, diversified by lofty hills lakes, and forests. Area. 14,985 sq m. Pop. 144,450.

KUPCHINA DOBYA a vil Austria, Croatia on a stream of same name, 12 m. from Carlsfeld with a church, and five mills. Pop. 1595.

KUPENSKA, or KOUTJANSK a ta. Russia, gov. and 61 m. S.E.E. Khar'kov cap. circle at the confluence of the Kupenska with the Oukol. Pop. (1842) 2460. —The cratic is thinly peopled, and not fertile. Pop. 82,000.

KUPFERBERG —1 A ta. Bavaria, Upper Franconia 13 m. N. Naumburg with two churches an hospital, and a serpentine quarry. Pop. 920 —2, A ta. Prussia, prov. Sillesia gov. and 23 m. N.W. Leguats with two churches, and a castle. Pop. 674.

KUPFERZELL, a vil Württemberg, circle Jaxt, on the Kupper 37 m. W. Ellwangen, with a church and five mills. Pop. 1287.

KUPINOVA a vil. Austria, Sclavonia, abt 16 m. from Gollubince, near the Save with a parish church. P. 1835.

KUPIL (Oma and Stenon) a vil Prussia, prov. Sillesia, gov. Lignitz, circle Lantzen with a church a castle saw and other mills. Pop. 1664.

KUPI I WUJGL, a ta. Hindoostan, prov. Bombay, gov. Gherat 81 m. S. Ahmedabad lat. 21° 2' N. lon. 74° 9' E. It is walled and has many well built stone houses, and manufactures of soap, bangles, armlets or anklets, and dabbies to bid glass. Pop. about 10,000.

KUPS, a ta. Bavaria, Upper Franconia, 26 m. N.E. Bamberg with three churches, three castles, and a trade in wood. Pop. 1053.

KUPSZINA formerly KAPUSZKO a vil Hungary. Hither Danube, so. Bacs, in the midst of a marshy district, 4 m. from Zombor with a church, the remains of an old monastery and a trade in grain, particularly wheat. Pop. 2573.

KUR (anc. Cyrus or Ayres) a large river of W. Asia. It has its sources in Asiatic Turkey near Kars about lat. 40° 40' N. lon. 42° 20' E., from which it flows N.E. traversing the Russian prov. of Akalkak, and entering Georgia about lat. 41° 50' N. lon. 43° 20' E. continuing this direction to about lat. 43° N. when it bends round to the S.E., passes Tiflis, and holds on the course to about lat. 39° 46' N. at which point it turns nearly due S. and ultimately falls into the bay or gulf of Kizil agach, on the S.W. coast of the Caspian, by three mouths, after a course of upwards of 400 m. It has numerous large tributaries flowing from both the N. and S. of those the principal is the Aras or Araxes which joins it about 60 m. from its mouth. The other chief affluents are the Alazan and Yora, both from the N.

KURAU, or KOROSOW a vil Bohemia, 32 m. S.E. Chrudim with a church a school, manufactures of linen a bleachfield, a saw a spinning and several other mills. 1 1118.

KURD a vil Hungary Thier Danube, so. and 16 m. from Tolos, on the Kapos, with a chapel, barracks, and a trade in corn, wine, and cattle. Pop. 1043.

KURDISTAN a country W. Asia. See KOOCHKAN.

KURDAI a ta. Siberia, gov. and 220 m. S.W. Tobolsk, cap. circle, in a beautiful and fertile district, on the Tobol was founded towards the end of last century and has not yet made great progress. P. (1842) 1781. —The cratic is mostly flat, extensively covered with pine forests, and has large tracts of arable land. 1 m. 108,000.

KURGOMMA, or KUCHOMMA a ta. Hindoostan, 160 m. S. by W. Benares, bank Ganges, lat. 25° 9' N. lon. 82° 55' E.

KURGOON, or KURACAN, a ta. Hindoostan, Holkar's dominions, 25 m. S. Mithur lat. 21° 50' N. lon. 75° 40' E.

It was once a large and flourishing place, but is now much decayed. It is surrounded by a rimous wall, partly stone, and partly brick and mud, and has a small citadel, built of the same materials, with tolerably good bastions.

KURHLEA a tn. Hindoostan prov. Malwa, about 18 m. from Wurur, consisting of about 1000 houses.

KURIA, or WOODS OF IKARU, one of the Gilbert Is. Pacific Ocean lat. 0° 17' N. lon. 178° 37' E. (a.), 5 m. in length N W to S E; greatest width 2½ m. It is but partly clothed with trees consisting of coco-nuts, pandanus, and a few stunted bread-fruit, and affords neither wood water, nor refreshments. The natives feed on fish; but neither eat fowls nor rear pigs.

KURILES, a chain of isls. N Pacific, extending 8 W to N.E. from the Japan Islands to Kamtschatka. lat. 43° 40' to 51° N., lon. 145° to 156° E. They are divided into the Great Kuriles, which belong to Japan; and the Little Kuriles, which belong to Russia. The most important of the former are Kamashir, Iturup and Urup. The principal of the Little Kuriles are Sumshu, Paramushir, Onokotan and Karana kotan. These islands in many parts consist of water and submerged, form part of the volcanic zone, which, passing through the Aleutian Islands, Kamtschatka, and Japan, extends to the Philippines, Java, &c. they are of a very wild and uninviting aspect, their coasts are fringed with dangerous rocks, which, with the violent currents prevailing especially on the E side, render access difficult. Some of the mountains rise nearly 8000 ft. above sea-level 18 of them are volcanoes. Earthquakes are frequent. Copper, iron, and sulphur, are found. The vegetation is meagre, and the cultivation of the soil almost totally neglected; indeed, in the N islands it is utterly so. The climate, in general, is far more malignant than in most other parts of the globe under the same latitude, and fogs are frequent. Fish, animals taken in the chase, poultry (ducks and geese being plentiful) and roots, form the chief articles of food. Bears, wolves, foxes, snakes, and sea-cotters, are numerous, as are also sea-eels and sea-fowl, on the coasts, where also, fish abound. The limited commerce of the Kuriles is mainly carried on with Japan and Chiba. It consists of fur, whale oil, eagle plumes, and dried fish in exchange for which, cloth and silk stuffs, Japan ware, and tobacco are received. The people are small with round flat faces, dark hair and beard and the body much covered with hair. They are gentle, hospitable and courageous, but utterly devoid of all spirit to resist aggression, and prefer death to any suffering. Hence suicides are of frequent occurrence amongst them. The two islands nearest to the continent of Asia were discovered by the Russians in 1713, who took them from Kamtschatka, in 1720, five were known but since that time, the remainder have all been visited by Krusenstern, Bronghton &c.

KURIMA, a market in Hungary co. Baros, L. bank Tisza 18 m. N.E. Eperies, with a church synagoga, and castle, and a trade in linen. Pop. 1630.

KURMILLA or CAUSULU a tn. Hindoostan, prov. Aurangabad, not far from r. bank Ruma, 180 m. E.S.E. Bombay. It is a place of considerable importance, and is defended by a stone fort with a double wall and a ditch between.

KURMYSCH, a tn. Russia, gov. and 130 m. N.W. Simbirsk, cap. circle, at the confluence of the Kurmyschka with the Sura. It is poorly built of wood contains three wooden and four stone churches and has some shipping trade carried on by means of the Sura. Pop. (1851) 5741. The district has good arable land and extensive pastures. Area, 1152 sq. m. Pop. 84,600.

KURNAGALE a tn. Ceylon, on a gently rising ground at the base of a chain of huge rocks, 50 m. N.E. by N Colombo. It is composed of a single broad street, intersected by a number of smaller, has a tolerably good bazaar and three places of worship, one a neat building belonging to the Wesleyan missionaries, another to the R. Catholics, and the third to the Mahomedans, who are very numerous.

KURNRACH, a tn. partly in Baden circle Middle Rhine and partly in Hesse-Darmstadt, prov. Starkenburg, 21 m. E.N. Carlsruhe. Pop. Baden portion 549 Hesse-Darmstadt, 905.

KURNIK a tn. Prussia, prov. and 12 m. S.E. Posen, on a small lake, with a church a synagoga, and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, tanneries, breweries, and distilleries. Pop. 2664.

KURNKOL, a tn. Hindoostan. See CAMKOL.

KUROU a tn. Russian Poland, 18 m. N.W. Lublin. It has two churches a castle, and chalybeate springs, with a well frequented bathing establishment. Pop. 1300.

KURPED or KURGO a vil. Transylvania, 4 m. from Leukirch with a Protestant and a Greek non-united church. Pop. 1864.

KURRACHEL or KARACHEE, the principal seaport tn. on the coast of Sindh, situated on the side of a large and commodious creek or inlet, forming a good haven perfectly safe in all winds and capable of sheltering vessels of 200 and 300 tons burthen. lat. (fort at entrance) 24° 47' 3" N., lon. 68° 56' 15" E. (a.) The town stands on a low sandy shore, and is large and populous, irregularly built streets so extremely narrow that two people can scarcely walk abreast, houses chiefly of mud and sandstone, the latter being obtainable in great abundance from the rocks on the coast. A considerable trade is carried on with Cutch, Bombay and the principal ports on the Malabar coast. The native exports consist of musels, seltipetre, rice, and other grain, silk, ghee, hides, silver, oil, seeds, fish, tanning bark, alkalies, indigo cotton, cotton cloth, longoes, and carpets. The transit exports from the adjoining countries are sea-shell, opium, and various other drugs, madder and other dyes, alum wool, silk, Cashmere shawls, dried fruits, lupas laud, gums of various kinds, the precious metals, and horses. The imports are metals, hardware, ivory glass, chinaware, fine cotton and silks, fruits and groceries, shikhs of the hides of the rhinoceros and other animals and dried fruits. The E. India Company have proposed to establish a general fair here as a mart for the interchange of goods with Poliochistan, Afghanistan &c. The low sandy shores on which the town is built extend to some distance into the interior and is destitute of all vegetation there being scarcely a vestige of a shrub or date-tree to be seen. Corn is procured from Hyderabad and rice, which is the principal food, is brought from C. Ch. and the Malabar coast. The water is brackish and ill tasted. The pop. of the town and suburbs, of which one-half are Hindus, is increasing rapidly. In 1860 it was 20,000. The district of Kurree is one of the three divisions into which Hind. was partitioned when the country was subjected to British suzerainty. The other districts are Hyderabad and Chikmagur.

KULITH, a tn. W Hindoostan presid. Bombay prov. Gujarat, 25 m. N.W. Ahmedabad, lat. 23° 17' N. lon. 72° 26' E.

KULIJECHAN, or CHILAN, a tn. S. Africa Bechuanaland territory in a mountainous district near the source of the Luvuvhu river about lat. 25° 40' S. lon. 27° 4' E. elevated. It is believed somewhere about 5000 ft. above sea level. The houses, part of which are of stone, are well built, plastered, and painted yellow. Some of them are ornamented with pillars, carved wood hinges, and well painted figures. The fences enclosing the houses are built of stone, without cement, but of masonry in other respects equal to that of Europe. The whole indicating a very remarkable degree of civilization. Pop. estimated at 4000 to 10,000.

KULIUM, a seaport in E. Africa Somali country N. 90° E. on the sea of Bab-el-Mandeb, lat. 10° 50' N. lon. 46° 50' E. It has a tolerable harbor and is one of the nearest ports to Aden on the Somali coast.

KULUNIK, a tn. Ind. prov. of Tartary Khanate and 100 m. S.E. of Kharak, lat. 34° 50' N. lon. 65° 55' E. in a fertile coast, about 40 m. broad. It is long and straggling, the houses flat-roofed and of mean appearance, but it contains a considerable bazaar and on its S.W. side is a mud fort surrounded by a ditch. Around it are innumerable gardens, shaded by trees loaded with fruit. Pop. 10,000.

KULHKA, a river Asiatic Russia which rises in Gov. Yamsensk lat. 68° N. and lon. 112° E. flows N.W. and about 45 m. above Turukansk joins a bank 10 miles after a course of about 400 m.

KULTH several places. Hun., try. — 1. A vil. Thibet Doube co. and 14 m. from K. men with a church and a trade in wine and cattle. Pop. 1622. — 2. (Hidai). A vil. Thibet Doube co. and 16 m. from Preoburg near the Dni. var. with a handsome church. Pop. 1139. — 3. (Tseu). A vil. co. Hoves, L. bank. Th. sea with a church and a trade in corn and wine. Pop. 1150.

KULITZ, a vil. Hungary Thibet Doube co. and 11 m. W. Arad in a fertile district with two churches. P. 5413.

KURL (Kaur) a vil. Hungary co. Hoves in a marshy district 7 m. N. Thibet with some trade in cattle. P. 1501.

KURMAN, or PERNA, See KARU.

KURMAN, or KURTAK, a vil. Hungary Thibet Doube co. and 20 m. from Arad on the Tisza with a Greek church. Pop. 1047.

KURZ, or ALL, 174 YARDS, a cluster of small islands Greece, on P. coast Lacedaemon, belonging to the 11th group. The largest is in lat. 38° 20' N. lon. 21° 8' E. and about 4 m. from the mainland.

KURCH KUPAN, or KURCH KUPAN, a vil. Ind. prov. of Tartary Khanate and 12 m. N.W. Kharak, on a small island above the canal of Kanawak. It is surrounded by a very dilapidated wall and has some good gardens. Inhabitants 1000.

KURCH, a tn. Bavaria, Palatinat, on the Rhine, 40 m. W. W. Landau. It has a justice of peace court two churches and manufactures of linen, tanneries, silk-works, breweries and several mills. Coal and limestone are worked in the neighborhood. Pop. 2700.

KURHA, one of the Kurud islands (which see).

KURICH, or KURCH, a vil. Hungary Buda, near W. W. Kirov with a church and a Greek semi-ruined monastery in a very dilapidated state. Pop. 2700.

KURJAK, two places, Russia. — 1. A tn., gov. and 115 m. from Pskov, cap. circle on the Trojeva. It is surrounded with gardens, contains four churches, and has extensive tanneries, numerous smithies and a trade chiefly in wood. P. 5660. The circle is rather scantily watered but is well wooded and fertile. P. 111,000. — 2. A tn. Siberia gov. and 190 m. S.E. of Tomsk, cap. circle on the Tom opposite to the confluence of the Konda. It is walled, has two churches and numerous smithies. Near it coal is found. Pop. 2760. The circle forms one of the terraces of the Altai Mountains and gradually merges into an extensive plain. Pop. 73,000.

KURSHY, a tn. Central Africa, country Berbarum, a bank which is here a wide and handsome stream, about 170 m. N.E. Kooka lat. 11° 58' N. lon. 16° 27' E. It has strong walls extending to the banks of the river and is so dreadfully infested with flies and bees, during several hours of the day that the inhabitants themselves dare not move out, while their houses, which are literally one cell within another, to the number of five or six are so constructed expressly as a retreat from the attacks of these insects.

KURSHACILL (two places, Switzerland. — 1. A vil. and par. can. and 11 m. N.W. Schwyz, cap. dist. at the foot of the Rigi on a bay N. shores of the Lake of Luzern. It is well built, has a handsome church, with fine harmonious bells an old townhouse and in the vicinity the remains of the castle of Gessler the Austrian tyrant. Pop. 2604. — 2. A vil. and par. can. and 5 m. S.W. E. Zurich, on a tongue of land N. shores of the lake Zurich. It is well built, has manufactures of woollen and silk goods and a trade in wine, which is extensively grown in the district. The inhabitants early distinguished themselves in the cause of the Reformation, and maintained strongly at the fatal field of Cappel, where Zwingli fell. The village was nearly destroyed by a water-spout in 1778. Pop. 2147.

KURSHOR, or KURSHOR, a large tn. Punjab, 33 m. S.E. Lahore lat. 31° 59' N. lon. 74° 27' E. It is surrounded by high walls and towers, and is closely built of brick. It contains several mosques and palaces, and is surrounded by gardens and well-cultivated tracts.

KURSHODJI, a seaport in European Turkey Black Sea, W. coast, Bulgaria lat. 44° 14' N. lon. 28° 34' E. on a headland of the same name and surrounded with walls.

KURSHODJI, or KURSHODJI, a tn. Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. and 16 m. N. Frankfurt at the junction of the Wartha with the Oder which is here crossed by a bridge. It consists of the town proper and three suburbs and is strongly fortified both by nature and art. Being situated among lakes and marshes which make a hostile approach to it extremely difficult and surrounded by walls, and defended by several outposts. It contains a castle in which Frederick the Great was confined by his father. Two Protestant churches a gymnasium, workhouse and a bridge and has manufactures of woollen bolting cloth, harness leather and starch. Pop. 18,843. 8077.

KURSHODJI, or KURSHODJI, a vil. Hungary co. Temeswar on the Karas 4 m. from Lagerdorf with a church. P. 1495.

KURSHODJI, or KURSHODJI, a tn. Trans-Caucasus Linn. cap. gov. of its own name. It is a small town and is situated about 120 m. N.W. Tiflis lat. 42° 10' N. lon. 44° 50' E. It is embosomed in fruitful gardens in its centre a market place, in the form of a large amphitheatre where the inhabitants lounge away much of their time and six churches a seminary with 100 pupils and a public garden tastefully laid out. It is the residence of a governor and a bishop. The inhabitants consisting besides Armenians of a great number of Armenians and Jews, are chiefly employed in wine and sugar culture. Pop. 5317. — The nearest town, Kotais or Kotsais, is on the S. bank of the Rion to the W. and is reached by a stone bridge over the river. It is little more than a heap of ruins, among which however lie broken columns, and capitals covered with inscriptions. — The GOVERNMENT of Kutais includes also Imeretia or Imerethi, and part of the prov. of Akhalik.

KUTAYA, KUTAYA, KUTAYAH or KUTAHIAH (anc. Cotacorum) a tn. Asiatic Turkey peak. Anadolia, and 180 m. S.E. Smyrna, lat. 39° 23' N. lon. 30° 21' E., on the route between Constantinople and Konia. It lies on the Parnak at the entrance of a valley, and at the foot of the Parnak. W. side of an extensive upland plain, nearly 60 m. long by 20 wide, and probably more than 4000 ft. above the level of the Black Sea. It contains a number of mosques, khans, baths, fountains, bazars, and about 10,000 houses, desert church, were left standing; the most of the inhabitants were buried in the ruins. Pop. 10,000

LACUNZA, a tn Spain, prov Navarre, 1 bank Araquil 24 m. from Pamplona, with a church, townhouse, school and a trade in corn, maize, flax, fruit, and cattle. Pop. 853.

LACU (Hout) par Zug Herford 192 ac. Pop. 832. LACU (Hout) par Zug Herford, 1547 ac. P. 803. LADAB, or LADAB, a region, Central Asia, in the W Himalaya, adjacent to Kashmir. It is bounded W by the Mustang or Koonlung Mountains, E by Great Tibet, S by the districts of Lahul and Piti or Spiti, formerly included in Ladakh, and W by Cashmere and Balti or Little Tibet lat. 33° 45' to 35° 30' N lon 75° 30' to 79° E. area, about 30,000 sq m. cap. Le or Loh It is divided into four districts—Leh or Ladakh proper, Nubra, Zaskar and Kaphu. The country generally is an elevated table-land in the Himalayas, about 11,000 ft. above sea level, and constitutes part of the upper valley of the Ladak, which stretches S E, and N W through the greatest part of the country. Into this valley a number of smaller valleys open forming basins for the tributaries of the Ladak the chief of which are Sharak, on the E, and Zaskar on the S. The great mountain-ranges of Ladakh are primarily consisting of granite, quartz, slate, and gneiss, but, in the S.E., are lofty mountains of recent formation flanking and even overtopping the mountain-ranges and chiefly composed of calcareous rocks. Clay slate frequently occurs, and in some places are clay beds, containing fossils. Though the greater part of the strata is metamorphic, Ladakh does not appear to be rich in metals, though veins of lead, copper and iron exist, and a little gold has been found in the waters of the Sharak. Salt effluoresces on the surface in some localities borax is plentiful and sulphur is obtained in the S.E. districts. The climate is characterized by cold and excessive aridity to which latter quality it seems owing that the marginal limit of snow which on Chumbhoru is 15,700 ft., is scarcely reached here at 15,000. The extreme dryness of the atmosphere, the soil reserving the chief moisture from snow and not from rain (which very seldom falls) is unfavourable to vegetation, and hence the grass, which is short and sparse and the furze and other prickly plants which are only a few inches high have at all seasons a brown and scorched appearance. These form the only food of the indigenous sheep, which however attain great size, and are so strong and active as to be the only beasts of burden employed in many parts of the country. Of domestic quadrupeds, the principal are horses, yaks, cows, the also is reared between the male yak, and the cow) some sheep, and goats. The birds are not numerous. The only one deserving of notice is the large chukar which resembles the partridge. The rivers teem with fish but the natives, from some superstitious motive, leave them unmolested. Apricot and apple-trees abound and are very productive. The cultivated crops are wheat, barley and buck wheat. Lucerne is extensively cultivated but it is completely eclipsed in productivity by a umbelliferous plant called perogor with a stem 5 or 6 ft. high, and leaves 2 ft. long, it grows on the moist barren soil and an acre of it when cut and dried, has been said to yield nine tons of nutritious fodder. The manufactures of Ladakh are rude and unimportant. The principal is woollen cloth adapted for home consumption, and from cheapness of labour and material, sold at a very low price. There is a considerable transit trade, Ladakh being naturally the great thoroughfare between Chinese Tartary and Tibet on the one hand, and the Punjab on the other. The inhabitants are of Mongolian race and Buddhist religion. They are mild, peaceable, and honest but timid, indolent, dirty and given to intemperance. Polyandry prevails. Pop. 511 (est. 184,000).

LADANY, several places, Hungary, particularly—1 (Jan.) A vil Jazany, on an arm of the Tisza, 9 m. from Jazs Hereny. It has no less than 1000 large embankment for its protection from inundation, and has a large E. Catholic church and a trade in grain. Pop. 3320.—2 (Nov.) A vil Thater Fluss, on Baka 25 m. N W Gyula, with two churches, and a courthouse. Pop. 8358.—3 (Nov.) A vil Thater Fluss, on Baka, 15 m. N W Gyula, with a very nearly but little district, with two churches. P. 3463. LADBERGEN, a vil Rhénish Prussia, gov. and 18 m. N E Münster with a church, and a trade in cattle. 1 1345. LADBRUCK, a par Zug Warrick 2351 ac. P. 297.

LADENBURG, a tn Russia, gov. Olonets cap. circle, 1 bank Svir 80 m. S W Petrozavodsk, with a church, and a building-yard established by Peter the Great. Pop. 340.

LADENBURG, a tn Baden, circle Lower Rhine, cap. bail, r bank Neckar, 7 m E Mannheim. It has two churches, the remains of an ancient imperial palace, manufactures of articles in wood and metal, and several mills. Pop. 2431. Acres of land 44 sq m. Pop. 16,571.

LADENDOLF, or LADENDORF, a vil Lower Austria, on the Zaya, about 9 m. from Gatterdorf. It has a church, a castle, tile works, and a trade in corn and wine. Pop. 1490.

LADFNZE, a vil and com. Belgium prov Malmat, 13 m. N W Mons, with manufactures of linen and yarn, a distillery, a bleachfield, a flour-mill and a trade in agricultural produce, horses, and cattle. 1 op. 1149.

LADIK (anc. Ladocia Comestis) a tn Turkey in Asia, 24 m. N N W Korus. It is built of mud and is the midst of a mound of ruins. The valley of the same name, in which the town stands, is bounded on the E.E. by a hilly district, composed of brown and blue argillaceous schist. There are here numerous fragments of Byzantine architecture and numerous inscriptions, chiefly sepulchral. Pop. about 500.

LADIMIROV KZ., a vil Austria, Schumau, en Veroco, about 12 m. from Essek, with a parish church. Pop. 908.

LADO or LADIA (Luo), a group of small isles, off N W coast Malay peninsula, about 35 m. N W Lada lat. 6° 12' N lon. 98° 46' E. They are high and rugged. Between the two largest islets, at their E. extremity there is a safe harbour called Bass Harbour.

LADOK par Zug Cornwall 5691 ac. Pop. 811.

LADOGA, a lake, Russia, between gov. St. I Petersburg, on the Olonets on the E and Volog on the N and W greatest length N to S, 130 m. average breadth about 70 m. area, 4672 geo. sq m. It is the largest lake in Europe, and receives no fewer than 60 streams the principal of which are the Volkhov and Neva, which enter it on the N. and the Neva which enters it on the E, bearing the surplus water of Lake Onega. It discharges itself at its N W extremity, by the Neva, which falls into the Baltic. It contains numerous isles, many of which are inhabited and its shores are much indented, generally low and send out many shaggy rocks, into the water as to make the navigation very dangerous. To avoid the danger a canal giving the Volkhov a direct communication with the Neva has been cut along the S shore. It has numerous strong currents and violent storms are frequent. It is well supplied with fish, and contains seals.

LADOGA—1 (Nov.) a tn Russia, about 7 m. N Ladoga Starof on the Volkhov between the canal and the lake of Ladoga. Inhabitants chiefly engaged in navigating the lake. 1 op. (1849) 3086.—2 (Nov.) a tn, Russia, gov. and about 75 m. E. St. Petersburg near E.E. corner of Lake Ladoga. It was once a large city and figures in Russian annals as the residence of Rurik, the first Russian sovereign but now it contains only a few houses.

LADRONES—1 Two small isls off N.E. coast China, near the entrance to Canton river, 19 m. N Macao. The largest, Grand Ladrones, is in lat. 21° 57' N lon. 118° 43' E. (N.) It is steep and bold and about 2 m. in diameter. It was formerly well fortified by garrison, for a long period set the whole naval power of China at defiance.—2 (Nov.) a group of three islets, 3 m. off W coast New Granada, prov Veraguas, about lat. 7° 30' N lon. 82° 30' W.

LADRONES, or MANANAN LADRON a group of 16 isls, N Pacific Ocean, N of the Caroline Islands extending in a N E direction, from near lat. 12° to 21° N lon. 144° 30' to 146° E. Graham (Isak) is the southernmost and largest of these islands and next in importance to Ruk. The islands are mostly of volcanic origin, and are very rugged but their general aspect is picturesque, being densely wooded and covered with a perpetual verdure, the soil also is extremely fertile. Wild hogs abound many of them are of great size, and formidable to the hunter. Monkeys and an endless variety of insects, are also numerous. The inhabitants are tall robust, and active, and naturally acute, lively and ingenious. Their huts are constructed of palm-trees, and divided by mats into different apartments. The islands were discovered by Magellan in 1521 and were settled by the Spaniards, to whom they still belong, in the middle of the following century. The chief inhabitants are settlers from Mexico and the Philippines, the Spaniards being now few in numbers, and the aborigines having nearly altogether disappeared.

LADY per Scot. Orkney 9 m by 1 m. Pop. 1004

LADY, or LADY, a tn. Russia, gov. Mohilev, 30 m

LADY 181, a rocky island, Scotland, off W coast Arra-shire, between Ayr and Troon, from the latter of which it is 3 m W.W.

LADYKIRK per Scot. Berwick; 5100 ac Pop 561

LADYRISH ANLI, par Irel. Wexford 597 ac. P 268

LADYTOWN, par Irel. Kildare 2082 ac. P 247

LAE-CROW FOO, a seaport in China, prov. Kiangsu S. shore, Gulf of Petchili lat. 37 15 N lon 119° 50' E. It is a place of considerable coasting trade, and has a fort and high craggy cliffs a little to the eastward and some islands directly in front.

LAEPIN a tn and com Belgium prov. Hrabant about 2 m N Brussels, and a station on the railway thence to Mechlin. It contains a great number of beautiful seats but they are all eclipsed by the magnificent palace in which the royal family usually reside during part of the summer. It stands on a hill called Schoonberg commanding a view of Brussels and its environs. The park and garden are beautifully laid out. Area, nearly 250 aa. In this palace Napoleon signed the declaration of war against Russia. The church of Laeken is large handsome and nobly adorned. Pop. 2282

LAEL, two places Prussia — 1 A vil. gov. Danzig circle Marienburg, with a church and a trade in cattle. 1 1020

— 2 A vil. Rhénish Prussia, gov. and near Münster with a handsome manor house. Pop. 896

LAETKE, a vil and com Belgium prov. E Flanders, 6 m E Ghent, with a church, several schools, a brewery oil mill and two flour-mills. Pop. 3770 LAFOUILLER, a river U. States, Louisiana, an outlet of the Mississippi, which it leaves above Donaldsonville, and flowing N.E. 90 m falls into the Gulf of Mexico.

LAGA is a river Sweden, which issues from a small lake about 15 m S. of Jönköping flows S., extends into Lake Vättern, turns W. passes Loholm, and about 4 m. below, falls into the Bay of Loholm, in the Kattegat, after a course of about 110 m

LAGAETP a vil, W side Isl. Gran Canaria, in a very dispirited state with a church, a primary school, two mills, and some trade in fruit, particularly figs and oranges P 2052

LAGAN, a river Ireland, rises in the Shive Groob Mountains, on Down, and, after a course of 85 m first W and then N.E., falling into Belfast harbour. It has been rendered navigable beyond L. Burn, whence it communicates by a canal with Lough Neagh

LAGARFILA a tn Spain New Castle, prov. and 70 m S.W. Avila. It is a poor place, indifferently built, and very dirty, but has a tolerable square, a church, a large and well built townhouse and prison three schools, a ruinous hospital manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, and a trade in wool, cattle, and agricultural produce. Pop. 1681

LAGARFO, a tn Brazil, prov. Sergipe, 70 m. W S.W. Rio Christoval with a church, a trade in cotton cattle and in gum fruits of excellent quality, obtained in the neighbourhood. Pop. dist. 2004

LAGF two tn Germany — 1 Principality Lippe Det. mod., r. bank Weser, 6 m N.W. Detmold with a church, tannery, courthouses, and the ruins of an old castle. Pop. 1500. — 2, Mecklenburg-Schwerin r. bank Regnitz, 14 m S.E. Rostock. It is walled, has a tollhouse, church, a sawhouse, manufactures of paper, and several mills. Pop. 1634

LAGEB, a tn. Brazil prov. Santa Catharina, 140 m. W. Desterro, on the high road between prov. São Pedro de Rio Grande, and São Paulo. It has a church and a trade in timber, hides, sugar, and rum. Pop. dist. 5000

LAGGAN, par Scot. Inverness, 255,000 ac. P 1928

It contains Loch Laggan, 19 m E.N.E. For. W. Illan, 8 m long, by 1 m broad, in which are two small islands

LAGNABO a vil and com Italy, Piedmont, div. Com. prov. Saluzzo, with a church a handsome modern and three old feudal castles a charitable endowment, a school, and a trade in corn, cattle, fruit, and silk. Pop. 1931

LAGNI-REBI LAGBO or LAGBO a river Naples, which rises near the frontiers of Principato Citra, flows W and N.W. through Terra di Lavoro, past Acerra and falls into the Mediterranean, previously sending off a small branch into the Lake of Patria. Total course about 60 m.

LAGNIEU [anc. Legnaceo] a tn France, dep. Ain, 28 m S.W. Lyons, and near r. bank Rhone, here spanned by a suspension wire bridge. It manufactures Tuscan bonnets, has several tanneries and corn-mills, and some trade in red wine and spun hemp. Pop. 5214

LAGAY and Legnaceo, a tn France dep. Seine-et-Marne, 1 bank Marne, 15 m. E. Paris. It dates almost from the foundation of the French monarchy and owes its origin to an abbey first founded, in the seventh century by a Scotch nobleman and afterwards richly endowed by the Counts of Champagne. It has a handsome church, and a considerable trade in corn, flour, cheese (called fromage de breiz), poultry, cattle, wood, and hemp. Alabaster and gypsum are extensively worked in the neighbourhood. Pop. 3032

LAGO, a tn Naples prov. Calabria Citra dist. and 14 m S.E. E. Paola, 4 m. N. Y. Amantea, with some quarries P 7800

LAGO DI ANSANTO [anc. Amantea Felice] a lake, Naples, prov. Principato Ultra, near Rocca St. Felice, about 25 m. E. N.E. Naples, at the entrance of a mountain valley. It occupies a rhomboidal space about 30 yards long by 30 yards broad, and is remarkable for the incessant motion of its water which keeps continually bubbling up over a large portion of the surface, and with an explosion resembling distant thunder. The mephitic vapours especially when borne in one direction by a high wind, sometimes prove fatal

LAGO-MACCIONE a lake Italy see MACCIONE

LAGOA — 1 A tn. Brazil E. part of Isl. Santa Catharina with a church, a primary school, and numerous distilleries of rum. Pop. dist. 3000 — 2 or Lagoa A tn and par Portugal prov. Algarve, com. and 27 m W N W Faro Pop. 3100

LAGOA SANTA, a vil Brazil, prov. Minas-Gerais, on a lake of same name 10 m N.E. Sabara. It owes its existence to the number of patients attracted to it by the medicinal properties of the water of the lake and contains a parish church and a primary school. The lake is about 4 m long by 1 m broad, and abounds with fish. The water which is perfectly clear contains a proportion of sulphuric acid.

LAGONICHI or LAGONERO a tn Naples, prov. Castellana, 38 m S. Potenza, at the foot of the mountain near the small lake of the same name. It has an old castle, two convents, an hospital three establishments for the support of the poor and manufactures of woollen cloth and caps P 5600

LAGON — 1 [anc. Lagoneis] A tn and seaport, 8 coast. Portugal, prov. Algarve N.W. shore of Lagos Bay, at the mouth of a small navigable stream of same name, 110 m R Lisbon. It is well built has three churches, one of them Igreja da Misericordia, very handsome three convents, a civil and a military hospital an almonshouse grammar-school and a fine aqueduct, which supplies several fountains. The harbour, which admits only small vessels, is defended at its entrance by two forts and there are other two nearer the town. The fishing, particularly of tunny and sardines, is carried on to a great extent. Pop. 6440. — 2 (San Juan de los) A tn. Mexico dep. Jalisco, 40 m E. by N Candelazara, in an extensive and well-cultivated valley, 6800 ft. above the sea. It is a mean-looking place composed of mud houses, but has an elegant church. In December there is a fair, which lasts eight days attended by all the planters, &c. for 300 m round about. — 3, A slave-trading station on a river and lagoon of same name, on the Slave Coast, right of Benin, lat. 6° 20' N, lon 8° 30' E. It is the capital of a territory of same name, tributary to Dahomey and was one of the most notorious slave stations on the W coast of Africa. The British consul having been fired upon, when attempting to negotiate a treaty for the abolishing of the slave trade with the reigning chief (Nov 1861) thought at the time, under a flag of truce, Lagos was attacked by a party of 160 or 180 from the Blackwood steamer. Fish boats, however, had to retire, with the loss of two officers and 10 men. But, on Dec 24 and 26 following, a well-organised and successful attack was made upon the place, which is strongly fortified by stockades, and was defended on this occasion by 5000 men. Lagos was taken, after a desperate engagement, 57 guns destroyed, and a treaty signed prohibiting the slave-trade putting down human sacrifices, and securing not only the freedom of com maroon but the liberty to diffuse Christianity.—The arayan piers out at half ebb, each a volume of surface foam, of a deep brown tint and of a mackerel odour as to spread over a sweep of 4 m., the edge of which is marked by a well-defined margin. European trading vessels do not attempt to pass the bar at the mouth of the harbour, but land their goods on the water beach, whence they are carried by canoe to the inner lagoon on which are the stockhouses and agents dwellings.—4 A small river h W Africa, Ivory Coast lat. (embouchure) 5° 7' N lon 5° 40' W

LAGOSTA (anc. Lashon or Lashon) an rd. Austr., in the Adriatic off the coast of Dalmatia 63 m W W W. length E to W 6 m breadth, 3 m. On the E side it has 30 larger and smaller islands known by the name of Lagonet and on the W the island of Marcara and several other islets. The interior consists of valleys enclosed by rugged hills several of which are continued to the shore and form precipitous cliffs. Occasionally their opposite sides stretch along craters, and furnish good harbours. The chief products are wine and oil but only in sufficient quantities to meet the home consumption. The great employment is fishing. Pop. 1200 with a church interesting from some peculiarities of structure, and surrounded by a tower apparently of the 14th century. Pop. 1007

LAGUIN—San Mica, a small seaport in France, dep. Calvados, on the English Channel 11 m. N Caer

LAGUANA a small Philippine, off N coast of Isl. of Samar and S W of that of Hainan. With its S W side it forms part of the port of Palapa and has a village of same name near which vessels anchor in from 6 to 7 fathoms between it and the Samar shore.

LAGUARDIA a town Spain Biscay prov. Alava, about 14 m from Vitoria. It is regularly built, surrounded by a wall with five gates, has two parish churches, a contributive prison, two primary schools, an oil and numerous flour mills, and a trade in wine and silk. Pop. 1742.

LAGUIMBA or LAKRANA, one of the Feejee Is. the largest of the F group lat. 18° 14' N. lon. 178° 51' W. It is of volcanic formation about 5 m long, by 2 m broad, highest peak 710 ft. high. It is extremely fertile, has rich valleys or rather ravines gradually rising and contracting until they reach the hills. There is a town at the S side, which contains two-thirds of the population of the island, or about 1000.

LAGUNA—1 (San Cristóbal) a town, Cantabria, N P shore of Tenerife on a beautiful plain 2000 ft. above the sea. It is well built, has two large and four small squares, and regular and spacious, though ill paved streets. It is the see of a bishop, contains two churches, one of them a cathedral, a college and several other schools, a register-office for the whole island, several suppressed monasteries, two handsome manor houses or palaces, a hospital and two other hospitals, some manufactures of woollen, silk and linen goods, brick works, pottery, mills and lime-kilns and a trade in fruit and agricultural produce. Pop. 6537.—2 A town, Huelva, 45 m. N. W. Oporto. It has a townhouse with prison attached and a church. The principal crops cultivated in the district are manioc, rice, banana, and millet, of which, as well as timber there is a considerable export. Pop. 10,000 dist. 6000.—3 A small town, port Yucatan Isl. (Carmen Bay) of Campeche at the mouth of Lake Terminas.—4 A town Ecuador prov. Maynas, on the border of a small lake, near the E bank of the Huallaga, an affluent of the Amazon lat. 5° 10' N. lon. 75° 40' W.—5, (de Aguirre) A town Spain, prov. and 25 m. from Leon with two churches, a castle in ruins, a brickhouse, primary school, and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, and a trade in wine and cattle. Pop. 1456.—6, (de Madrid) A lagoon, Texas, from the Isla de Padre and stretching along the coast, from the Rio Grande del Norte to the mouth of the Rio Grande. lat. 26° to 27° 30' N. It is terminated N by Corpus Christi Bay and communicates with the Gulf of Mexico by three narrow and shallow inlets. Length, 130 m. breadth, 7 to 10 m.—7 A prov. Phillip.

inos, in the S E of Luzon, bounded N by prov. Tondo and Nueva-erila, W by Cavite R. by Batangas and Tayabas and S. E. and E. by the Pacific Ocean. Near a half of the whole area is occupied by Lake Bay, to which it owes its name, the remainder of the surface is occupied partly by forest-covered mountains, abounding with game, and partly by lower grounds, generally under good cultivation and very fertile. The principal stream is the Pangasinan by which Lake Bay discharges itself into the sea. It is one of the best peopled provinces of the Philippine Isles, and is subdivided into 33 districts. Pop. 167,654.

LAGUNILLA two places, Spain.—1 A town, Old Castile, prov. and about 12 m. from Logroño, with a church, court-house, a suppressed monastery, a Latin and a primary school, a flour-mill, and a trade in wool. Pop. 1129.—2 A village, Leon prov. and about 5 m. N S W Salamanca, with a church, a palace, belonging to the Bishop of Coria, a primary school, manufactures of linen, and several oil and flour mills. Pop. 1027.

LAHADJ a town Arabia, Yemen 18 m N N W Aden lat. 13° 2' N lon. 45° 0' 30" E on a wide plain, surrounded by gardens and date-trees. It is extremely dirty. On the W side of the town is the palace of the Sultan of Aden built of stone and mud and guarded by a host of armed slaves.

THE CASTLE OF THE DE LA V. LAHADJ.—From St. A. to the North.

It has a bazaar in which are exposed for sale Indian silks, cotton cloths, dates, butter and tobacco &c. A great portion of the land in the neighbourhood is cultivated, and produces some flowers and fruits, the latter including melons, lemons, mangoes, almonds and plantains. Pop. 5000.

LAHAJAN, a town, Persia, prov. Gilan near the Caspian 30 m. E. Rehd. It has a moderate or collapse, several caravanserais and extensive well stocked bazaars. The staple article of manufacture in the town and the villages around is silk of which considerable quantities are sent to Rehd. Persian &c. Pop. 10,000.

LAHAMADIF a vil and com. Belgium prov. Hainaut, on the Gard, 20 m. N N W Mons, with manufactures of sherry linen and yarn two breweries several mills, and a trade in agricultural produce, poultry, cattle, and wool. Count Egmont who was beheaded at Brussels by the Duke of Alva, was born in the castle of Lahamadif. Pop. 1421.

LAHAT a populous vil. 141. hainaut, prov. and 83 m. S. W. Palembang, about lat. 5° 45' N. lon. 109° 40' E. The houses are massively built of wood at a considerable elevation on posts, and the village is surrounded by fine old palms and other fruit-bearing trees.

LAHASTRE a vil and com. Belgium, prov. Hainaut, 9 m. E. Mons. Extensive fisheries in the vicinity employ the greater part of the inhabitants. Pop. 1399.

LAHJAN a town, Persia, prov. Azerbaijan, on the frontier of Khorasan 50 m. S. W. Lake Urmia. It has been inhabited, at different times, by tribes subject alternately to the governments of Persia and Turkey. Pop. 7000.

LAHIBA Arabia. See FAHIBA.

LAHN, a river, Germany, which rises in gov. Arnaburg Rhodan I. runs, on the N. frontiers of Nassau, flows first E. to Marburg in Hesse-Cassel, next S.E. to Gießen, then very circuitously W. & W. across the duchy of Nassau passing the towns of Weilburg, Wilmar, Linsberg, Dietz, Nassau, and Enns, and joins r. bank Rhine, between Ober and Nieder Lahnstein, about 8 m. above Coblenz, total course, about 110 m. Affluents, right the Salzböden, Dille, Elz, and Aue; left, the Oltm, Wiesack, Weil, Embra, Aar, and Muhl. It is navigable for about 20 m.

LAHN or Lena, a r. in Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. and 25 m. S.W. Liegnitz, 1 bank Bohemian with two churches, an hospital, and the ruins of an ancient castle. Pop. 939.

LAHNSTEIN (Oxer and Nixen), two vils Germany Nassau r. bank Rhine, on either side the mouth of the Lahn, 5 m. S.E. Coblenz. Ober-Lahnstein has an iron foundry, and near it is the ruined castle of Lahnstein. Pop. 1764. —Nieder-Lahnstein has some trade on the Rhine, and near it are iron-works, the Church of St. John, and the Hill of the Saints (Aberbellsberg) with a chapel in which pilgrimages are made. Pop. 2065.

LAHORE, a r. in Swolun, Hen and 15 m. S.E. Halmstad 1 bank Laga, here crossed by a bridge, and a little below falls into the Cattegat. It has a church, and the remains of an old castle, manufactures of hosiery and gloves, a small harbour very much sanded up, and a trade particularly in salmon, here taken in great numbers. Pop. 980.

LAHORE the cap city of the Punjab, 1 bank Ravee 280 m. N.W. Delhi, and lat. $31^{\circ} 30' N$, lon $74^{\circ} 15' E$. It is about 8 m. in circumference, surrounded with a brick wall 25 ft. in height, with indurated bastions and a broad moat. It contains several elegant and important buildings, but in no part of India, are the contrasts between magnificent structures and miserable huts more striking than in Lahore. The streets are narrow, dirty, and unpaved, and a kennel running down the middle, which renders them almost impassable in rainy weather. They are further obstructed by the movable awnings which project over the shops, and nearly occupy the entire breadth of the narrow way. The houses are high built of brick, with flat roofs and have a mean appearance, into slaughter-houses, and their courts into stables. There are, besides these, many fine mosques and Hindoo temples, mostly, however exhibiting symptoms of decay. On the opposite side of the river, about 5 m. W. the town, is the Shah Dera or mausoleum of the Emperor Jhanger, built of red sandstone, but adorned with a profusion of marble ornaments, arranged in elegant masses, representing flowers and texts of the Koran. It is of a quadrangular shape, sixty paces on each side and has a minaret 70 ft. high at each corner. Three miles N.E. the city is the garden of Shah Jehan, called also the Shahimzar or R. one of Joy. It is $\frac{1}{2}$ m. long, has 450 fountains, constantly throwing up water which is received in marble tanks but these, as well as its gay pavilions are much dilapidated. S. of the city and between it and the river is another remarkable building, the tomb of Aurkhan. In the neighbourhood of the city are many large and delightful gardens filled with fruit-trees and flowering shrubs and plants, and extensive Mahometan ruins are numerous. Lahore, though possessing crowded streets a bustling population and some trade, is a dull city as regards commercial vitality. Amritsar having become the great mart of the Punjab, but it has manufactures of numerous admirable lacquered wares, and silk, more especially gorgeous shawls flavoured with gold and silver thread. Lahore was taken in 1523, by Sultan Iqbal and became for a time the favourite seat of the Mogul empire, during which time its extent and population were much greater than at present. In 1748 it fell into the hands of Ahmad Shah the first Durrane emperor, and in 1799 Zeman Shah invested Ranjeet Singh with the government of Lahore, and the title of Kishan. This energetic prince made himself master of the Sikh monarchy and made that city one of his favourite places of residence. In 1849 Lahore fell into the hands of the British after the final overthrow of the Mughls. Pop. 100,000 to 120,000. —(Higgin Masson, Barnard's &c.)

LAHR, a r. in Baden circle Middle Rhine cap. bail, r. bank Selzheim 18 m. S.E. P. Strasbourg. It is walled, has a collegiate church a gymnasium museum, industrial school, and hospital, manufactures of woollen, cotton, and flax goods, carded ribbons, morocco leather, cutlery, vinegar, playing cards, glue, white lead, tobacco, and tobacco boxes and a considerable trade in wine, fruit, and colonial produce. Pop. 6100. Area of bail, 80 ges. sq. m. Pop. 29,228.

LAHULA, LAHOL, or LAHUR, a territory in the N.E. of the Punjab lat. $32^{\circ} 30' N$ to $33^{\circ} 20' N$ and lon $76^{\circ} 30' E$ and $77^{\circ} 30' E$, and bounded N. by Ladak, E. by Bussaher S. by Kulu, and W. by Chamba, greatest length N.W. to S.E. about 10 m. central breadth about 40 m. area 2000 sq. m. It is surrounded on the N.E. and S. by lofty ranges of the Himalaya, and is watered by numerous torrents two of which the Saray bhaga and the Chandra bhaga, unite at Anadi in forming the Chenab, which thereafter traverses Lahul in a N.W. direction. Owing to the great elevation of the surface the vegetation is scanty but a good deal of grain is grown, and many cattle are reared.

LAH TONOR or LAH-TONOR Foo (Pothia plant city) a fortified city and seaport, China prov. Shantung S. coast (half of Petcheloo lat. $37^{\circ} 12' N$ lon $119^{\circ} 50' E$ (a.) on a promontory bounded on one side by the sea, and on the other by mountains. It has an extensive commerce.

LAIRACH, in Austria. See LAIBACH. LAICHEV a r. in Russia gov. and 80 m. S.E. Kama, r. bank Kama. It has extensive meadows, in which the salt of Perm is lodged previously to its disposal among the inhabitants of the surrounding districts. Pop. (1851), 2377.

LAICINGEN, a v. in Württemberg, circle Danneb, bail and 11 m. E.N.E. Munningen, with a church, manufactures of linen, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 2000.

LAIGI P. in France. See LAIGI P.

LAIGUGLIA, or LAIGUGLIA (Lat. Laiguglia) a vil and com. Euxine States, dir. Genoa, prov. and 6 m. S.E. V. Albenga, on a small bay near Cape Mela. It is a large church, a literary, hospital, school, and a factory. Pop. 1451.

LAH. ENTRY TO LAHORE.—From the Rev. G. B. Handberg's Illustrations of India.

sometimes in part redeemed by the elegant carving of the wood balconies and low windows. The bazaars are numerous and animated. Goods of great value are met with in these marts, but establish form the staple commodity. The more remarkable buildings are the mosques, Pashais, Vicer Khan, and the Bonara or Golden Mosque. The first is of red sand stone, with lofty minarets and cupolas, the second, or Vicer Khan, has also tall minarets, and is entirely covered with painted and lacquered tiles, decorated with arabesque. The Bonara or Golden Mosque is a large and handsome structure, with gilded minarets and domes. The first two, however, have long since had their lower apartments converted

LAINIA a vil France, dep. Loiret, 15 m. S.W. Orleans, with an annual fair. Pop. 1579

LAINIALE a vil and com Italy Lombardy prov and 11 m. N.W. Milan. It has a church, and a magnificent palace, with a botanical garden and a fine park. Pop. 2436.

LAININ par Eng Essex 4699 ac. Pop. 540.

LAINIO-PLE a river Sweden, which issues from Lake Roto in Tavast Lapmark, flows S.E. and joins the bank Fornell, at Tornabö, after a course of about 140 m.

LAINIK par Scot. Shetland 40 000 ac. Pop. 1162

LAINIA a m. Naples, prov. d'Alab. Circa dist. and 16 m. N.W. Castro Villari near the source of the Lao. Pop. 2200. LAK a m. Austria. See LAKE

LAK several places, Hungary.—1 A vil. co. Baranya, 6 m. from Fintörkben with a parish church, and a trade in corn, wine, and timber. P. 897.—2 A vil. co. Eisenburg on the Ambo and Reipa, 15 m. from Stein-Stein-Anger with a Protestant church. P. 743.—3 A vil. Thier. Thoma, co. Barany, 9 m. from Szekes, with a church and a trade in wine. P. 750.—4 (Dietrich) A vil. co. and about 50 m. from Pesth, with a church. P. 978.

LAK NAQ a market in Hungary Thier. Thoma, co. Chamed, on the Maros, 63 m. W. W. Battonya. It has two Greek churches, numerous mills and a trade in cattle, sheep, and swine. Pop. 9447

LAKES OF THE THIRTY SAND ISLANDS a N.E. arm of Lake Ontario, forming the commencement of the St. Lawrence. At the broadest part or point where it first narrows, it may be about 15 m. in breadth. Though the number of islands is limited by the name to a thousand it actually contains 167 forming a labyrinth of islands varying in size, nature, shape and aspect—the largest being 10 m. by 2 m.—and presenting the most extraordinary and pleasing views.

LAKES OF THE WOODS (French Lacs des Bois) a lake of British N. America, between Lake Winnipeg and Lake Superior lat. 49 N. lon. 94 W. It is about 80 m. long, of very irregular width, shows much timber and is studded with wooded islands. It receives the waters of many lakes through Rainy River and through the Winnipeg River discharges itself into Lake Winnipeg. P. 1961

LAKH-BATH par Eng Suffolk 10,560 ac. P. 1961

LAKH or LAKHY a m. Punjab, r. bank Khuran an affluent of the Indus 8 m. S.W. Attack lat. 32° 30' N. lon. 71° 10' E. with a good bazar

LAKOR a small ill Indian Arch pelago, E. from Fmor, separated by a narrow channel from Moa lat. 5° 12' N. lon. 127° 10' E. It is about 12 m. long by 4 broad. Trees about 20 ft. from the sea, a full of cucumbers and brushwood, and feeds many sheep and huckees. There being no walls, rain-water is gathered in tanks. Pop. about 1000

LALAND m. Denmark. See LALLAND

LALFHAM par Eng Middlesex 1214 ac. Pop. 637

LALSTON par Wales Glamorgan 1611 ac. P. 538

LALITA PATIL a m. N. Hindustan. Nepal 1 m. S.W. Kathmandoo from which it is separated by the Bogarty. It was formerly the capital of a small independent state. It has a most extensive and fine handsome public edifice manufactures of cotton cloth and brass. P. 24 000

LALIFY a vil Hungary Thier. Thoma, co. Bars, 12 m. from Fintörkben, with a parish church and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1673

LALISIN a vil Hungary Thier. Thoma, co. Baranya, 12 m. from Fintörkben, with a church. Pop. 1120

LALLA, or LALLI a m. Punjab, 86 m. W. W. Lahore on a level desert tract near a small settlement much frequented as a place of pilgrimage. Pop. 5640

LALZ a m. Russia, prov. and 280 m. E.N.E. Volozhin, on the Loa and Lena. It has four churches and a convent, and carries on a considerable transit trade with Archangel and Siberia. Pop. 5000

LALSKINT a m. Hindooson, Afmeer principality and 40 m. S.R. Jeypor lat. 26° 23' N. lon. 76° 9' E., in the gorge of a mountain pass. It has some Mahomedan and Jain temples.

LAM (also and Pata) two contiguous vils Hungary, co. Honth about 20 m. from Balassagyarmat, on the frontiers of co. Neograd with a Protestant church. Pop. 1016

LAMA—1 A river Russia, which rises in gov. Moscow flows N.E. and joins r. bank Volga, 80 m. S.E. Tver, after a course of above 80 m.—2 A vil Naples, prov. Abruzzo Circa, 18 m. S.W. L'Aquila with a convent and manufactures of woollen cloth. Pop. 1980

LAMARCA (anc. Marchia) a m. France, dep. Yonne, r. bank Moson, 31 m. W.W. Epinal. Marshal Victor, Duke of Belluno was born here. Pop. 1633

LAMARSH par Eng Essex 1244 ac. Pop. 408

LAMARZO a m. Naples, prov. Calabria Ultra, 8 m. N.W. Caserta on a lofty mountain, near a river of its name. It has several sulphureous springs. P. 1801.—The river rises among the N. frontiers of Calabria Ultra, and first flows N.E. then S.W. and falls into the Gulf of San Epifanio; whole course about 80 m.

LAMBACH (Latin Lambachum) a market in Upper Austria, 25 m. S.W. Linz, on a height above l. bank Traun. It has a Benedictine abbey with a handsome church, and a library of about 25,000 vols. an hospital and hospital church, iron-works and charcoal furnace. Pop. 2200

LAMBALL (anc. Lamballus) a m. France, dep. Oise, du Nord, on the Goussan 27 m. W.W. St. Alb. It stands on a slope crowned by a fine Gothic church, originally the chapel of the castle of Lamballe. It is a pleasant, com. fortable looking stirring place, manufactures serge and other woollen stuffs joins a good deal of work in cattle and on a brick trade in corn, hay horses, cattle, honey, wax, leather and earthenware. Pop. 4086

LAMBATH (anc. and Lance) a vil Upper Austria circle Traun, dist. Fussen, on the Traun, with a church and salt works. Pop. 1500

LAMBAY an ill Irell, co. and 14 m. N.E. Dublin lat. (mean) 53° 26' N. lon. 6° 1' W. It is about 4 m. in circuit. It has a rocky elevated ridge in a Dublin pilot, and a coast guard station and abounds in rabbits round its shores the fish, of lobsters and crabs is carried on

LAMBAYEQUE a m. Peru near the mouth of river of its name, dep. and 120 m. N.W. Truxillo, about 5 m. from the sea. It has churches several chapels, and manufactures of cotton fabrics. Pop. 8040.—The Maracaibo about 14 m. off the shore, is the worst anchorage on the coast of Peru

LAMBRY par Irell Attrim and Down, 1567 ac. P. 214

LAMBRI par Eng Kent and Sussex, 6290 ac. Pop. 1774

LAMBREONT a vil and com Brussels, prov. and 16 m. E. Liège with manufactures of woollen cloth a trade in agricultural produce, and a flour mill. Pop. 1192

LAMBRENE, a m. France, dep. Bouches-du-Rhône, 25 m. N.W. Marseilles at the foot of St. Pierre hill. It possesses a fine hospital several copious fountains, and a toll tower (manufactures vermilion, coral, soap, and has oil mills, dye-works, and a trade in corn wine oil and almonds. From 1664 the assemblies of the states held their ordinary meetings in Lambrene. Pop. 2610

LAMBETH, a pari hor, and par England, co. Surrey, r. bank Thames comprising the greater portion of the S.W. quarter of London, having E. the borough of Southwark and separated from Westminster by the Thames here crossed by Waterloo, Hungerford, W. London, and Vauxhall bridges. Lambeth palace, an ancient structure on the river side of various dates, has been the residence of the archbishops of Canterbury from its foundation in 1197. The parish contains numerous churches chapels, schools and charitable institutions, many of which are elegant and ornamental buildings. Near Vauxhall bridge is the terminus of the Southwark Railway at which is a handsome and commodious station. In this suburb are numerous extensive manufactures, including iron and other foundries, glass-works, stone and earthenware potteries, distilleries, ale and beer breweries, vint and other chemical works, and a very extensive establishment for the manufacture of steam-engines, and various other kinds of machinery. Lambeth contains several places of fashionable amusement, as the Vauxhall gardens, Aspley's amphitheatre, near Westminster bridge, and the Royal Victoria theatre, in the Waterloo road. The borough returns two members to the House of Commons. Registered electors (1851), 10,284. Area of par. 4015 ac. Pop. 139,825. Pop. pari hor 251,345

LAMBETH, a vil France dep. Finistère, about 2 m. from Brest. P. 2165

LAMBIEY two par. Eng.—1, Northumberland, 2696 ac. Pop. 865.—2 Notts, 2170 ac. Pop. 951

LAMBOURN (Chipping), a market town and par. England, co. Berks. The town 35 m. W N W Reading, is mostly built on a steep ascent; in the centre, a handsome old church in the early English style, a Wesleyan chapel in a hospital, and several almshouses. Pop. 1268. Area of par. 14,890 ac. Pop. 2577.

LAMBOURNE, par. Eng Essex, 2440 ac. Pop. 849. LAMBHURATE a vil and com Italy Lombardy prov and 8 m E N E Milan on the Lambro, with a parish church adorned with sculptures. Near it is a royal manufactory of gunpowder. Pop. 1444.

LAMBRECHT (89'), two places, Germany.—1, A vil. Bavaria, Palatinate, 15 m. W by R Spire, with a church and the ruins of an old castle, manufactures of woaden and linen cloth, an armoury and a copper mill. Pop. 1471.—2, A market in Austria Nymra, circle Juchburg, with a deanery church, a Benedictine abbey, and two hospitals an iron work and two mills. Pop. 520.

LAMBI O (anc. Lambria) a river Italy Lombardy which rises between the two arms of the lake of Como, flows S E E and joins L bank 10 to 15 m S E Lodi, total course about 70 m. It receives the N. Lamoro or Lantano Mory, on the right.

LAMPSEHEIM a market to Bavaria, Palatinate, 18 m N N W Nymra, with a church, and a trade in horses. 1. 2631.

LAMISTON par Wales Pembroke 1761 ac. P. 283. LAMEGO (anc. Lameca, Lamecon) a tm Portugal, prov Beira-Alta, 42 m E Oporto. It is walled, defended by an old castle, and has a cathedral founded by Count Henry, father of the first king of Portugal and a large elegant episcopal palace, a collegiate church college diocesan seminary three monasteries, a manufactory and two hospitals. Lamego is the see of a bishop, and early acquired considerable importance. It was the residence of the Moorish kings, till taken from them in 1038, by Ferdinand the Great, and in it, in 1143, the Cortes of Portugal sat for the first time. Pop. 9230.

LAMEPON par Eng Devon 7253 ac. 1 p. 1510. LAMIA or ZETTON, a tm in Greece a little W of the gulf of same name and not far from the Turkish frontiers. It consists of a number of good looking houses, which have been recently created and of a castle situated on a height. In general appearance though on a small scale, it strongly resembles Athens.

LAMILASH an excellent harbour or roadstead, Scotland, Fife-shire, E. side of St. Arnan, sheltered by the Holy Isle. Vessels of the heaviest burthen may anchor in it in safety. On its shore is the watering village of Lamilash or Lamlide. LAMMAS with HAYTON—LANTA par Eng Norfolk 829 ac. Pop. 287.

LAMNERMOOR HILLS, a ridge which breaking off from the central mass of the Lowlands of Scotland stretches from the N. frontiers of Edinburgh, in an E N E direction across the S. part of Mid Lothian, and between E. Lothian and Berwick, and terminates on the E. coast, forming the bold and rocky cliffs around St. Abb's Head. The loftiest summits do not exceed 1500 ft.

LAMO or LAMOO, a tm and bay, E. coast Africa, Zanzibar. The town, lat 2° 15' 45" S, lon 41° 15' E (n) on the side of a sandy ridge of hills, forming the S. boundary of the harbour is guarded by an Arab fortification or castle—a large square building with a tower at each corner, but of extremely slight construction. It has several flat-roofed mosques, and a number of schools. Pop. about 5000.—The bay is formed by the Lamo and Mania islands, and is secure for small vessels, but the entrance is intricate. Depth of water, from four to ten fathoms.

LAMON a river Italy which rises in the central chain of the Apennines, in Tuscany flows N E. crosses the Roman agns, passing near Faenza, and falls into the Adriatic, about 9 m N N E Ravenna. Total course, 55 m.

LAMORAN, par Eng Cornwall, 1234 ac. Pop. 84.

LAMOT two places Russia.—1, (Nyen, A. in gov and 88 m. W N W Perek. It has three churches, a monastery, and an annual fair, which attracts dealers from all the provinces of the empire. Pop. 4000.—2, 'Vinsk', about 9 m. S W the former. It has seven churches. Pop. 4800.

LAMPA a small in Peru, on a tributary of Lake Titicaca, dep and 140 m. S Cuzco.

LAMPEDUNA (anc. Lepodusa) an isl in the Mediterranean, 140 m. S E Sicily, of which it is a dependency, lat.

35° 29' 12" N, lon 12° 55' 12" E. (n.) length E to W, 7 m., average breadth, scarcely 1 m. It is generally level yet presents to the sea bold and craggy cliffs except towards the S E, where it slopes down, and forms a low shore, with a number of cranks, the largest of which is called the harbor. The W. part is covered with dwarf olives, and a great variety of shrubs, from which large quantities of firewood are cut, and sent to Tripoli and Malta. In this part of the island are great numbers of wild goats, and scattered over it, but particularly along its shores are numerous caverns.

LAMPETHEIM a market in Hesse-Darmstadt, prov Starkenburg bail and 9 m W S W Heppenheim, near Runk Rhine with two churches, and manufactures of tobacco. Pop. 5987.

LAMPETER (LEAF BROW), a par bor market in and per N Wales, co Cardigan. The town, R bank Trefy 20 m. E N E Cardigan has a handsome parish church, several Dissenting chapels a grammar-school a national school, and a reading room. The college of St. David for the education of candidates for the ministry in Wales by act passed 1835, was removed to Brecon. Inhabitants, agricultural labourers. Lampeter unites with Cardigan, &c. in returning a member to the House of Commons. 1. up 1498.

LAMETI E. E. Vaucluse, par Vales, Pembrke 1. 1009.

LAMPHEY par Wales, Pembrke 1766 ac. P. 245.

LAMIION (anc. Scila) an isl in the Mediterranean forming a dependency of Sicily one of the isole Pelagie about 8 m. W by N Lampodusa, greatest length N to E, 600 yards breadth about 200 yards. It contains several vestiges of buildings and fragments of a marble inscribed pavement.

LAMILOUGH par Eng Cumberland 8464 ac. P. 518.

LAMPONG, DIELEIERS (Tum) a prov, in Sumatra, forming its S E extremity bounded, N by prov Palembang from which it is separated by the river Massey, S. by the Java Sea, E. by the Strait of Sunda and the Indian Ocean and W by prov Bencoolan, about 128 m N to S by 100 m E to W, area, 12,926 sq m. Its E coast is pretty uniform, but in the S coast are two deep indentations, Lampong Bay stretching inland 80 m by 16 m broad and Panangka Bay with island of same name at its mouth stretching 42 m inland and 15 m broad. The E coast is low and flat, but the S coast and W frontier are hilly. The mountains stretch in three nearly parallel lines S E. to N W along the S coast but do not penetrate far inland they are wholly volcanic and from them flow, in almost parallel lines to the E coast, all the rivers of the province. After these rivers, the principal of which are the Poeling, Langboeng, and bekam, among the various districts are named thus, Lampong, Poeling, &c. In the wet season, all the rivers overflow their banks, and inundate the great expanse of flat country lying between the mountains and the E coast, so that in some districts, only the tops of the trees are visible. but the soil being sandy is dry and sterile in the dry season. The climate is very unhealthy. The forests furnish the timber, of numerous species the Dammar pine, casutouch, and various other plants yielding gums and resins, and some rice, pepper tobacco cotton, and coffee, are cultivated all of which are, to some extent, exported. Salt and linen are the chief imports. The elephant rhinoceros tiger, hippopotamus, leopard, and argus pheasant are numerous, and alligators swarm in the rivers. Buffaloes and goats are the chief domestic quadrupeds. The natives build their houses, at a considerable elevation, upon iron wood posts in thatched, they resemble the Chinese they are Mahomedans, speak Malay and are universally indolent. All kinds of crimes, even murder may be atoned for by money. Human life is held cheap and revenge by murder is a common occurrence. From these causes, and the numbers killed by wild animals, the population is only 85,905.—(Van der Aa, Java Indes Archipelago, 1854).

LAMPORACALLO a tm, Tuscany, div Florence, on the W side of Monte Albano about 8 m from Pistoia. It is tolerably well built, consisting of several streets and small squares, and has a church the remains of an old castle and some trade in corn chestnuts, oil, and wine. Pop. 2018.

LAMPORO (Latin Emporium) a vil and com Italy Piedmont, div Novara, prov Vercelli, 2 m N (recently) with a modern and rather elegant church, two chapels, and a trade in corn millet, and rice. Pop. 1187.

LAMPORI par Eng Northampton 1440 ac. P. 228.

LANSAM [anc. Lampusa] a to. Asiatic Turkey on the Danubius, nearly opposite Gallipoli lat 40° 20' N lon. 26° 44' E. The present town is inconsiderable, and with exception of a handsome mosque, offers nothing worthy of notice. It is celebrated for its wine.

LANSPIV E, a vil. Hanover co. and 13 m. S. S. E. Hildesheim with two churches and manufactures of linen 1 op. 1200

LAMYATT par. Eng. Somerset 1000 ac. 1 pop. 200
LAN (1804) a city (thum. prov. Kausow, r bank Huang-
 Ho or Yellow River lat 36° 5' N lon 103° 40' E

LANA a vil. Austria, Tyrol circle Bolzen with two churches a Capucine monastery and manufactures of silk 1 op. 26 1/2

LANAK a vil and com. Beloruss. prov. Lumborg on the Menze, 13 m. E. Hasselt with several breweries, two distilleries and three mills. Pop. 1537

LANARK a maritime co. of W. Australia of triangular shape with a coast line of 260 m. exposed to a heavy sea and stretching 50 m. in land. The Darling range of mountains runs through this country LANAI & LANAIKING or (LITIKAI an island c.

Scotland having a creek Dumfriesshire and Strirling, 1 Lullib-gow & Edinburgh and Peebles. N. Dumfriesshire and W. co. Ayr and Bedford. Length, N. W. to S. E. 52 m. E. across breadth N. E. to W. 74 m. area 604,840 ac. of which upwards of a third is arable. It is divided into three principal districts or parts called, respectively the Upper or S. Ward the Middle Ward and the Lower or N. Ward the last containing the city of Glasgow. The surface is various in some places mountainous, especially in the extreme S. and in S. P. and S. W. parts in other places hilly and in others, again, comparatively flat. The highest elevation occurs in the Upper Ward and in the extreme portion of the county where they reach from 270 ft. to 3000 ft. above the sea. The principal range is called the Lowther or L. hills. They are for the most part covered with heath or grass, which affords excellent pasture for sheep. The valleys or flat grounds which separate the hills are partly dry and partly wet and spongy. In this district are the lead hills, containing four principal lead veins from 4 ft. to 10 ft. thick on the average one of which is wrought to a depth of about 130 fathoms. The veins are in one place having been 14 ft. wide. The whole mines are contained in a circle of less than 3 m. diameter.
 The surrounding country consists of clay slate and graywacke in nearly vertical beds. The Middle Ward is also rich in a mineralogical point of view containing an abundance of white sandstone sandstone ironstone and coal. The coal seams vary from 2 ft. to 9 ft. in thickness. The ironstone occurs both in masses and in seams, and is wrought to such an extent as to render the county one of the principal seats of the iron trade.

In the Lower Ward mines of siliceous fire-clay occur varying from 4 ft. to 19 ft. in thickness, and the quality is considered fully equal if not superior to the Northampton clay. In their vicinity are extensive works for the manufacture of crockery &c. Coal, however, is the most important of the mineral treasures of the county. It is computed that the fields comprise 55,000 ac. or about 110 sq. in. Through the whole range of the coal district both limestone and freestone abound. The principal river is the Clyde, which traverses the entire county from S. E. to N. W. and by the greater part of its course nearly through its centre. The centrifugal streams are the Douglas, Avon, and Calder besides several others of minor importance. Throughout Lancashire the drainage system has been prosecuted with great success. The coasts are mostly of the Ayrshire breed. In the Upper Ward between two-thirds and three-fourths of the surface are occupied by hill or moorland unmanageable from the elevation of the country of much agricultural improvement. The Middle Ward exhibits great diversity of soil, but is generally of a clayey nature with greater or less intermixture of sand in the valleys along the Clyde, and other considerable streams, a deep rich alluvial soil lies upon a bed of open gravel. A large proportion of this Ward also is occupied with moor or peat earth. The soil of almost all the portions of the county are peculiarly favourable to the growth of wood, and spontaneous copsewoods are everywhere upon the hilly banks. Here also occur the beautiful and fruitful orchards for which (Hydrocotyle) in m. been celebrated. The soil of the Lower Ward is on the S. side, generally clay with some portions sand, comprising some rich alluvial tracts along the Clyde. On the N. side numerous knolls or low round hills cover the tops of which are, in many instances, hard and stiff, the bottoms wet and spongy. It also comprises a good deal of moor, moorish and barren soil. A good deal of wheat is raised in the Lower and Middle Wards but oats is the principal corn crop, and next to it, heat, turnips and potatoes are also extensively cultivated. The chief towns are Glasgow, Lanark the capital and Hamilton. The county returns a member to Parliament. Registered electors (1861) 4785 Pop.

 (1841) 426,972 (1851) 530,169

LANARK an ancient royal and par. Scotland, cap. above co. 28 m. S. E. Glasgow r. bank Clyde, consisting of one main street, with several smaller diverging, on either side. It is paved, lighted with gas and abundantly supplied with water, and has two established a tree and two U. Presbyterian churches, a grammar school, literary county buildings, and jail. Part of the inhabitants are occupied in weaving for the manufacturers of Glasgow and Lanark. Shoes are also made to a considerable, and lately to a limited extent and there are several breweries and flour mills. About 1 m. S. S. W. from Lanark is the thriving village of New Lanark, with its cotton-works founded in 1784. The establishment of one time acquired very extensive notoriety under the superintendence of Robert Owen who attempted to establish here a new system of social organization 1 op. yard for 400

LANCASTER or LANCASHIRE a N. and maritime co.
 England bounded N. by Westmoreland, N. E. and E. by Yorkshire S. by Cheshire and W. by Cumberland and the Irish Sea area, 1,130,240 ac., of which about 850,000 are supposed to be arable meadow and pasture. Its most N. part consisting of the peninsula bounded by the Mersey and detached from the main body of the county by the intervention of part of Westmoreland and Morecambe Bay. Of the N. W. extremity of this peninsula is the long narrow island of Walney 10 m. long and less than 1 m. broad. The coast, stretching from the Mersey to the Huddon, is of great extent, and is deeply indented by bays and arms of the sea the principal of which are Morecambe Bay and the estuary of the Ribbles. The S. part of the S. portion of the county or S. of the Ribbles is bounded by a range of hills separating it from Yorkshire comprised of millstone gable soil on which it generally thin and poor. The S. E. and W. sides extending along the Mersey rest on the new red sandstone, while the coal measures occupy the whole central space.
 (In the W. side, viz. the sea it presents great flats of sand, over which sweep the cold vapours and tempestuous winds of the Irish Channel, unbroken by any mountainous ridge to intercept their severer Lanchashire, N. of the Ribbles divide, in many important respects, from the S. division. With exception of a tract called the Fylde the country here is narrowed into a strip a few miles in breadth extending from the sea to the mountainous district which on the S. divides it from Yorkshire. Red sandstone millstone grit, mountain limestone, and clay slate, form the geological features of the district. Near the coast the land is managed chiefly in alternate husbandry, as it begins to rise towards the hills, it is principally in grass, held by small dairy farmers and the hills are stocked with black faced sheep. The district called the Fylde, embraces all that low alluvial district lying W. of the Preston and Lancaster Railway & a direct line drawn from Preston to Lancaster and extending to the coast. The district of Farnworth which forms the most N. part of the county is an integral part of the mountains of Cumberland, the high land gradually subsiding as it approaches the coast on the S. The highest summits here are the Old Man, in Cumbrian Fells 2577 ft. above sea-level and another close by of the same height. The other principal elevations, in the main parts of the county, are Pendle Hill, 1625 ft., Bleasdale Moor, 1700 ft., Boulsworth Hill, 1659 ft., and Livingston Moor 1545 ft. above sea-level. The peat-moors or bogs of Lancashire form one of its most remarkable physical features.
 The most extensive of these is Chat Moss, 7 m. W. Wharfedale and Kirby Moss, 10 m. long and 3 m. broad. White Moss, Bainton and Kirby Moss, Hildon and Rufford Moors. The surface of Chat Moss is composed of a loam, coarse, sandy grass and heath, beneath which there is a depth, in some places, of 34 ft.

of moss. It was considered an irreclaimable bog, but, by skill and perseverance, with exception of a few patches, it has been turned to profitable account. The most important mineral product of Lancashire is coal which occurs abundantly in the S and S.W., the field including nearly all the mineral-favouring districts of the county. Excellent freestone is quarried near Lancaster. Limestone occurs abundantly. In the N of Furness, numerous quarries of blue slate are wrought. Copper occurs in Cloniston Falls and mines of this metal are probably worked in the Old Man Mountain, where the ore is found tolerably rich, and in great abundance. Ironstones, lead ore, coarse slate, flag-stones and scyllite-stones brick clay and pipe clay are also found. The climate is temperate, but in general extremely humid, especially on the W side. A great part of the county, especially E. of the Lancaster and Preston Railway is chiefly under grass, and let as dairy farms. The soil varies considerably but with exception, perhaps of the Fylde, which is comparatively rich cannot be called naturally fertile. The principal crops are oats, wheat, barley turnips and especially potatoes for the cultivation of which Lancashire was early noted. A large quantity of cheese, also, is made in the S and W parts. But Lancashire owes its celebrity rather to its position as the workshop and commercial centre of the country. It is the grand seat of the cotton manufacture, which has increased since 1770 with a rapidity altogether unparalleled in the history of industry and caused an extraordinary increase of population and wealth. Woolen flax and silk factories are also numerous.

The manufacturing population suffered heavily from the failure of the cotton supply from 1861 to 1865. The great majority of the mills stopped entirely and the remainder worked only short time. In January 1863 no less than 236,998 operatives were out of employment, and with their families dependent upon the charitable relief which flowed in from all parts of the country. The total amount contributed was £1 664 121 of which £604 224 was raised in the manufacturing districts themselves, besides £173,108 in value of clothing purchased, &c. The effect upon the cotton-market was to raise the price of raw cotton from 8d per lb in 1840 to 11½d in 1846 and was in Nov 1866 17d showing that the rise is likely to be permanent.

Manchester is the principal centre of the cotton manufactures, and Liverpool of the shipping trade of the country. The former however is carried on also to a great extent in numerous other towns in the county including Preston, Bolton, Oldham, Ashton, Blackburn, Bury, Chorley, Wigan, &c. Woolen goods are also largely produced at Rochdale and Manchester as are also silks, hats, paper and a vast variety of other articles and a third part of the soap made in Great Britain is manufactured in Liverpool and its vicinity. A complete web-work of railways, and several important canals, afford extensive means of rapid conveyance to all parts of the kingdom. Lancashire which is a county palatine returns 28 members to Parliament of which four are for the county and the remainder for its various boroughs. P. (1841) 1,067,054 (1851) 2,081,236.

LANCASTER A municipal and parli. bor. and river port, England cap above to 1 bank Lunc over which there is an elegant stone bridge, 549 ft in length, with five elliptical arches, 45 m N by E Liverpool lat. 54° 3' N lon 2° 45' 17" W (n). It is a station on the railway from Preston to Carlisle, and communicates by a direct line with Leeds, &c. It occupies a gentle slope the streets most of which are narrow, but a few tolerably spacious and well paved rising from the river towards the S. On the summit of the hill, on the W side are the castle, now used as a prison, measuring 380 ft by 360 ft, within the walls, built in the reign of Edward III, but with a keep supposed to be Saxon and the church a venerable and spacious structure, in the later English style, with a square tower. Nearly the whole town is built of freestone, from quarries in the neighbourhood. The houses are generally substantial, and many of them handsome, of the latter class are some fine old mansions, once the residences of nobility. The public buildings comprise the town hall, the custom-house, assembly-rooms, and a commodious building, formerly the theatre containing a music hall, and the museum, &c., of the Natural History Society. There are several other Episcopal churches, besides the one above referred to; places of worship for Baptists, Independents, Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists, Presbyterians, the Society of Friends, and R. Catholics, a free grammar and charity schools, a dispensary, almshouses, and other benevolent institutions. The manufactures of the town consist chiefly in the making of mahogany furniture, cordage, sail-cloth, and cotton goods, for which last there are six factories, a silk mill and a worsted mill are also in operation. The foreign shipping trade of Lancaster is now almost wholly removed to Liverpool, but its seaport trade is still considerable. The communication with the sea is greatly obstructed by shoals in the river, which prevent vessels of greater burthen than 250 tons from approaching the town. Those of larger size unload at Glasson dock, 5 m. below. The canal to Preston passes over the river at a short distance from the town. Lancaster sends two members to Parliament. Registered electors (1851), 1373. Pop. 14,604.

Vol. II

LANCASTER, a city U States New York, 60 m W Philadelphia, with which it is connected by a railway. It is regularly laid-out, with wide streets, crossing each other at right angles. The streets are well paved and kept clean. It has ten churches, a grammar and several other schools, two public libraries, a reading-room, a pretty extensive commerce, and manufactures of iron and machinery, tinware, pottery, ropes, brownens, distilleries, and a cotton factory. Pop. (1840) 8,417 (1850) 12,384.

LANCASTER SOUND, a passage leading from the N.W. of Jaffins Bay W to Harrow's Strait about lat. 74° N lon 80° W. Its E. extremities are formed by Cape Hornburgh on the N and Cape Walter on the S, and its central breadth is about 65 m.

LANCAVA a group of three large islands, off N.W. coast, Malay Peninsula, extending N.W. and S.E. lat. (average) 8° 20' N lon 99° 50' E. They are high and bold, intersected by makes of great seas, and a regular series of prisms.

LANCIANG the city of Laos I bank Mekong lat. 17° 37' N lon. 104° 32' E about 300 m. E. N.E. Bangkok.

LANCHESTER a vil. and par. England, co. Durham. The village 7 m. N.W. Durham though now small was once a place of considerable importance. It has a venerable church in the early English style, and occupies the site of a Roman station. 1 753. Area of par. 38,567 ac. P. 158.

LANCIANO [Latin Anagnina] a N. Naples prov. Abruzzo-Cam. 18 m. S.E. Cassin. It is the see of an archbishop and has a cathedral and several other churches and a seminary. In trade, once considerable, has greatly decayed. Pop. 11,885.

LANCING par. Eng. Sussex, 2363 ac. Pop. 878.

LANCEAN a vil. Hungary co. Baranya, 4 m W Molnacs with a church. Pop. 1467.

LANCUT or LANVINT a tn. Austria Galicia circle Roznow 84 m. W. by N Lemberg with a castle manufactures of linen and black-hides. Pop. 1863.

LANDAK a small state, on Borneo with cap. of same name, the seat of a Dutch resident, and in the Dutch prov. of the W coast. It is bounded N. by Sambar, E. Saragah and Tjauang S. Pontanah, and W. Manpawa lat. 0 to 1° 1' N lon 109° 26' to 110° 35' E. It yields diamonds gold and iron. One diamond obtained from the mines here in the end of last century weighed 367 carats in the rough. The mining operations and commerce generally of Landak, were carried on chiefly by Chinese settlers till the end of 1841. At that period, however, they were attacked by the Dyaks, 900 of them slain and the remainder driven out of the country the oppression exercised by the Chinese on the natives was given out as the cause of the attack. The town, 46 m N.E. Pontanah, on river of same name, is fortified and contains a castle of the rajah, seated on a rock. The river has a S.W. very crooked course of 80 m. direct distance, and falls into the estuary of the Kapuas opposite Pontanah. (Van der Aa).

LANDAU three places, Germany.—1 A fortress Bavaria, Palatinate, cap. dist. on the Queich 47 m. N.N.E. Strasbourg. It belongs to the German Confederation, and is regularly and strongly fortified. It consists of substantial houses, and has straight and tolerably spacious streets with a R. Catholic, and two Protestant churches. Latin, agricultural, and industrial schools an arsenal barracks, and other military establishments, an hospital, house of correction manufactures of tobacco and fire arms, and oil and other mills. Landau has been an object of contest, in every great European war, about the 15th century. Pop. to 6074; dist. 64,663.—E. A. m. Lower Bavaria, esp. dist., r. bank near here crossed by a bridge, 36 m. S. E. Regensburg. It has four churches, and manufactures of articles in leather and architectural implements, and is supposed to supply the site of the ancient Aquila. Pop. 1100. Area of dist. 192 sq. m. Pop. 21,660.—E. A. m. princip. Waldack on lofty height above the Wetter, 19 m. W. Canal. It was early fortified, and contains the remains of an old castle, on which the prince of Waldeck often resided till the beginning of the 18th century. Pop. 1214.

15

LANDRACH par Eng. Combrédis 2480 ac. P. 522. LANDRACH par Eng. Darnay, 331 ac. Pop. 124.

LANDECK, a m. Franca, Eliza, gov. and 50 m. S. Breslau, on the Elbe, with two churches, two chapels, an hospital, and a mill. Near it are two sulphurous springs, with a well-frequented bathing establishment. Pop. 1637.

LANDECK, a vil. Austria, Tyrol, circle and 9 m. E. Inns, at the foot of a mountain of same name, at the confluence of the Trobach with the Inn, here crossed by a bridge, about 2500 ft. above sea-level. It has a Gothic church, with a manuscript, a chapel, and a castle. Pop. 1484. Area of dist. 828 ac. m. Pop. 15,815.

LANDEGEM, a m. Franca, Belgium, prov. E. Flanders, 6 m. W. Ghent, with an oil and three other mills, but the greater part of the inhabitants are employed in weaving and agriculture. Pop. 2019.

LANDEL, a vil. Austria, Styria, on the Enz, 2 m. from Neudorf with a church, and a train in cattle and wood. Pop. 1000.

LANDEN, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. and 24 m. W. N. W. Liège, on the railway from Turin to Warman. It has a handsome church, a brewery, a flour-mill with saw-mills in agricultural produce and cattle, and was the ordinary residence of Pope the Old, mayor of the palace of Charlemaigne, and better known by the name of Pope of Landen. P. 795.

LANDERNEAU a small resort in France, dep. Finistère, 19 m. N.E. Brest, on both sides of the Landerneau or Elorn, near its mouth to Brest roads. It has a Gothic church of the 16th century, a communal college, a large convent, and spacious marine barracks, and the quays are lined with fine houses. It has manufactures of linen, better glass and refined wax, also soap, and a considerable trade in linen goods, lace thread, military furnishings, leather, luxury wax, Dutch cheese, horses, etc., etc. Only a few small vessels belong to the town, but about 700 enter and clear annually the harbour admits vessels of 800 to 600 tons. Pop. 4099.

LANDERNEAU or ELORN a river France, which rises in the mountains of Arre, near the centre of dep. Finistère, flows first easterly 4 m. E. then S.W. past Les doreuses, by a wide mouth, and falls into Brest harbour about 40 m. of which 10 m. are navigable.

LANDERNEAU a vil. and par. Switzerland, cant. and 9 m. N.E. Neuchâtel, in a marshy spot at the mouth of the Thale in Lake Biel. It has a church, a townhouse, and Capuchin hermitage. The inhabitants are almost all employed in rearing cattle. Pop. 1819.

LANDEN, a dep. in S. of France (Gascogne) and deriving its name from the sandy wastes which cover a large portion of its surface. It is bounded N. by dep. Gironde, E. by Lot-et-Garonne and Gers, S. by Basses-Pyrenees, and W. by Bay of Biscay. lat. 46° 29' to 44° 28' N., lon. 0° 1' E., to 1° 58' W. It is naturally divided into two unequal parts by the Adour. The S. portion, called Châlonne, consists of plains fit for the growth of wheat and maize, or of gardens abounded with vines. The N. and far larger portion, consists of heath, with occasional clumps of trees and brushwood, or of swamps, bogs, and sands, which shift, and are carried by the wind. Of the whole area, extending to about 2,562,400 ac., nearly one-half is waste, a third under wood, and little more than a sixth arable. The buffalo stalks his life among the reedy swamps, and herds of wild horses roam over the heaths. The coast is particularly desolate, consisting of a long stretch of hills scarcely marked stationery by artificial coverings of sea pine. A high inland ridge sends a chain of heights extending E. to S., almost as far as Bayonne. The S. portion of the department is of a much more fertile description. It is well watered by the temporary streams which join the 1 bank of the Adour, and its soil, which is of considerable fertility, yields in abundance cereals, fruit, and wine. But taking in the whole department, perhaps its most valuable product is the sea pine, which, besides the essential service, already mentioned, of filling the soil, often becomes a majestic tree; yields good timber and fuel, and supplies raw material to numerous works in which resin, pitch, and tar are manufactured. Some coal, and a good deal of iron-ore, are raised, and the latter is also smelted. Good building stone and marble are quarried, and potter's clay, of a superior description, is found. Glass, earthenware, porcelain, paper and leather, are manufactured. In the more secluded and desolate tracts, the inhabitants have peculiarities both of dress and modes of living, which give them a strong resemblance to half-savage and nomadic tribes. Landen is divided into three arrondissements, 28 cantons, and 283 communes. Its chief town is Mont-de-Marsan. Pop. (1846) 296,220.

LANDESBERGE a vil. Hesse, principality Oberhessen, bail. Stolzenau, with a parish church. Pop. 1168.

LANDESTE, a vil. Spain, New Castile, prov. and about 28 m. from Guzman, with a parish church, an hospital, a primary school and sulphurous springs, said to be efficacious in cutaneous and similar affections. Pop. 701.

LANDEWEDNACK, par Eng. Cornwall, 1999 ac. Pop. 480.

LANDFORD, par Eng. Wilt. 1669 ac. Pop. 944.

LANDIVISIAN, a m. France, dep. Finistère, 23 m. N.E. Brest. It is well built, has regular spacious and well-paved streets, a church with a fine portal, and an elegant spire, and manufactures of linen and leather. Pop. 1810.

LANDKEY par Eng. Devon 3162 ac. Pop. 758.

LANDLA, a vil. Austria, Styria, circle Bruck, dist. and near Gallenstein with a church. Pop. 1369.

LANDPORT, a suburb of Portsmouth, England, on Hamo, in which is the S. terminus of the London and S. coast railway. It comprises all the buildings beyond the fortifications of Portsea town, and between the suburbs of Gosport, and Mile-end, Newton. It has on level ground, has straight and well-kept streets, a large and handsome Established church, air discharging chapel, hospital, female penitentiary, several schools, Watt Institutes and a Young Men's Improvement Association. The industrial establishments comprise three large shipyards and many manufactures, which give employment to several hundred male-workmen. A limited business is done in the building and repairing of ships. (—Local Correspondent.)

LANDQUART a river Switzerland rising in the Silvretta, in the N.E. of cant. Grisons. It flows N.W. traversing the Prättigau, and joins the Rhine by several branches, a little S. of Mayenfeld, after a course of about 45 m.

LANDRAKE-WITZ St. Kever par Eng. Cornwall; 5745 ac. Pop. 625.

LANDRE, a lagoon, France dep. Basses de Rhone, 16 m. S.E. Arles, about 9 m. long, and 1 m. broad. It receives the waters of two canals.

LANDRECHES (anc. Landreacum), a m. France, dep. Vend. 30 m. E. Cambay on the Sambre. It possesses fortifications which were improved and extended by Vauban, a church, and barracks, glass-works, and a considerable trade in corn, hops, fax cheese, cattle charcoal and alden. From 1815 to 1818 it was occupied by the Russians. Pop. 3463.

LANDRIANO a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy prov. and 10 m. N.E. Pavia, near the Lambro. It has a court, and several public offices, two churches, and a trade in corn and rice. Pop. 2117.

LANDSEND (anc. Boleron) a celebrated promontory, on Cornwall, the most W. land of England, 266 m. S.W. London. It is formed of granite cliffs, of considerable height. About 1 m. to the W. are a number of dangerous rocks, on the largest of which is a light-house, with a fixed light 83 ft. above sea-level; lat. 50° 4' 0" N.; lon. 5° 44' 45" W.

LANDSBERG or GOSLOW, a m. Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. and 84 m. N.E. Oppeln, 1 bank Rhine, with a church, and an hospital. Pop. 1696.

LANDSBERG a numerous places, Germany, particularly —1. A. m. Upper Bavaria, esp. dist., r. bank Lech, here crossed by a bridge, 61 m. W. S.W. Munich. It is walled, flanked with towers, well built, and has two churches, a Latin school, hospital, and orphan asylum, manufactures of paper, a salt boundary, several mills, and numerous breweries. Pop. 2685. Area of dist. 78 sq. m. Pop. 22,575.—2. A. m. Prussia, paper, Mannheim, gov. and 87 m. N.E. Frankfurt, capital on the Wartburg, here crossed by a handsome bridge. It is walled, well built, has a court of law, and several public offices, three churches, a gymnasium, a poorhouse, lunatic and orphan asylums; manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, hosiery, and leather, paper and other mills, and some shipping trade. Pop. 13,840. 12,911. Area of estate, 200 sq. m. Pop. 64,357.—5. 146. a. in Franconia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. Potsdam, 12 m. E.N.E. Berlin. It is walled, has three gates, three churches, two hospitals, and an orphan asylum; manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, a distillery and a brewery. Pop. 1507.

LANDSKRONA, a. and port, Sweden. See LANDSKRONA.
LANDSHUT—1. A. in Lower Bavaria, cap. dist. r. bank Isar, here crossed by two bridges, 38 m. N.E. Munich. It is partly surrounded by old ramparts and ditches, and though in sunset places, and mostly built of brick, has two good squares, and two regular and spacious streets opened into by others of an inferior appearance. A court of law, and several public offices. The principal buildings and establishments are the palace, castle, townhouse, nine churches one of them St. Martin's, a noble Gothic structure, with a steeple 450 ft.

ST. MARTIN'S CHURCH, LANDSHUT.—From Lange, Antiquities von Deutschland.

high, two monasteries, and a convent; a lyceum, gymnasium a Latin, agricultural, industrial, and boarding school, and an hospital. It has manufactures of leather, starch, tobacco, paper, cards, copperware, and surgical instruments several mills, and numerous breweries. Landshut was early a place of importance, became a royal residence, and had a university, by the removal of which to Munich, in 1538, the town has suffered severely, and lost much of the lively appearance it once had. Pop. 20,307. Area of dist. 172 sq. m. Pop. 21,108.—2. A. in Franconia, prov. Silesia, gov. and 27 m. S.E. Liegnitz, cap. circle, romantically situated at the foot of the Riesengebirge, r. bank Bober, near the confluence of the Elzeder. It has three churches, a fine old convent, a courthouse, and hospital manufactures of linen, bleaching, dye-works, tile-works, flax, and other mills, and weekly markets, at which great quantities of linen are sold. In 1780, the Prussians were here defeated by the Austrians. Pop. 8,998. Area of estate, 119 sq. m. Pop. 22,500.—3. A. in Austria, Moravia, circle and 44 m. S.W. Kremsitz, on the March, and on the Hungarian frontier; with a church, and a saw and a flour mill. Pop. 1,937.

LANDSKRON, two tns. Austria—1. Bohemia, 97 m. E. by S. Prague, on the Masawa, and the railway to Vienna. It is walled, has a castle, three churches, a poorhouse, extensive manufactures of linen and calico, bleaching, and dye-works. Pop. 4818.—2. Gallies, 18 m. S.W. Cracow; with a church, and a castle. Pop. 1,608.

LANDSKRONA, a. and port, in Sweden, the Malmö, on a tongue of land which projects into the Baltic, 13 m. N.E. Copenhagen. It is a place of considerable strength, being both fortified, and defended by a citadel, it is well and regularly built, contains a handsome church, and an assembly-house; and has a secure and spacious harbor, naturally one of the best on the coast, but very much silted up; bedding-yards, a sugar-factory soap-works, dye-works, tanneries, and an important animal fair. The chief exports are corn, fish, tar, pitch, lumber and alum. Pop. 3,975.

LANDSÖRT, a small isl. Sweden, in the Baltic, off S. coast the Stockholm, lat. 59° 44' 30" N. lon. 17° 52' 42" E. (n.); with a revolving light, 145 ft. above the sea.

LANDSÜHL, a. in Bavaria, Palatinat, 39 m. W. N. W. Spire, with a church, manufactures of potash, and a trade in cattle. In early times, the Counts of Sickingen, whose castle, in ruins, still overhangs the town, resided here. The abbot's Count of that name, the friend of Luther, was killed here during a siege, and is buried in the church. Pop. 1,907.

LANDULPH par Eng. Cornwall, 2,894 ac. Pop. 524.

LANDWADE par Eng. Cambridge 120 ac. Pop. 84.

LANDWÜRDE, a. vil. Germany duchy Oldenburg,

1 bank Weser, S. of Bremerhaven, with a church. P. 1461.

LANE Kato, a. to England Stafford. See LOTORUS.

LANE-STOCK, or BRUCE ST. MICHAEL, par Eng. Somerset 2,071 ac. Pop. 921.

LANEAST par Eng. Cornwall 2,467 ac. Pop. 299.

LANEHAM, par Eng. North 1,605 ac. Pop. 410.

LANEHOOD par Eng. Cumberland 96,012 ac. Pop. 1,544.

LANESBOROUGH, a market tn. Ireland, con. Roscommon and Longford, on the Shannon, here crossed by a bridge, 84 m. S.W. Longford; with a church, a R. Catholic chapel, a dispensary, and some trade in corn, pigs, and eggs. P. 681.

LANG K. TAOWAN, a. vil. Tibet, about 210 m. E.N.E. Lassa, in a fertile, well-cultivated plain surrounded by low, wooded mountains. The houses are sometimes of great size, and several stories high. They are made of the trunks of trees, with the bark stripped off and cut to lengths, so as to be nearly as possible of an equal diameter throughout, and arranged horizontally, side by side, on enormous piles, driven to a great depth into the earth, leaving about 3 ft. above the surface. Smaller trunks are used to form the roof, which is covered with the bark of trees, the interstices being filled up with cow-dung. (Hins, Voy. dans Tibet.)

LANGAR, par Eng. North 2,442 ac. Pop. 223.

LANGAZA, or LANGAZA—1. A lake, Turkey in Europe, Rumelia, 9 m. W. Salomon, length, 9 m. breadth, about 4 m. It receives numerous torrents from the neighboring mountains, but has no visible outlet. The ground around is fertile, but nearly all cultivated.—2. A tn., situated on an alluvial plain, 8 m. N. of the above lake.

LANGBROEK (OVEN and VANDER) two vils Holland, prov. Utrecht, the former 12 m. S. by E., and the latter 12 m. S. by W. Amersfoort, with a church and school each. Pop. Over, 263. Neder 833.

LANGDON two pars Eng. Kent—1. (East) 1,065 ac. Pop. 353.—2. (West) 698 ac. Pop. 140.

LANGDON HILLS, or LAIRDON, par Eng. Essex; 1,775 ac. Pop. 236.

LANGDORF, a. vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, on the Demer 34 m. N.E. Brussels with a flour-mill, and a brewery. Pop. 1,983.

LANGÉAC, a. tn. France, dep. Haute-Loire, r. bank Allier, 20 m. W. Le Puy. It has manufactures of lace, and, near it, quarries of building-stone and white-stone, and a coal-field, occupying the valley of the Maronne. Pop. 2,847.

LANGÉAIS (anc. Langeme) a. tn. France, dep. Indre-et-Loire, r. bank Loire, 14 m. S.W. Tours. It is said to be one of the first towns in which Christianity was preached by St. Martin. Its castle, an extensive Gothic structure, of the 13th century, flanked with towers, is in good preservation. Langéais has manufactures of linen, glass, and paving blocks, and a trade in corn, oil, fruit, and wine. Pop. 1,081.

LANGENDORF, par Wals, Glamorgan; 6710 ac. P 350.
LANGELAND, an isl. Denmark, forming a long and comparatively narrow belt, stretching between the Great Belt on the N., and the Baltic on the E. and separated on the E. from Lolland by the Langeland Belt, and on the W. from Funen and several smaller islands, by a channel of no great width, but very deep; greatest length, N. to S., 38 m., average breadth, not more than 4 m., area, about 80 sq. m. The E. and W. coasts are low, but rise gradually toward the centre, which is occupied by a low ridge of heights stretching N. to S., but nowhere attaining a height exceeding 150 ft. The water round the island is generally of great depth. The E. coast, along which a strong current runs, exhibits an unbroken line, without a single harbour; but the W. coast is free from currents, is deeply indented, contains many excellent harbours, and stretches, throughout, one great roadstead, in which the largest vessels may at all times find safe anchorage. The island is very fertile, well wooded, yields heavy crops of corn, and much valuable dairy produce. It belongs to the Funen group, and is included in bailiwick Svendborg, of which it forms two herred or districts. It contains 16 parishes. Pop. 1851, 17,568.

LANGELSHIM, a t. in Brunswick, on the Barenberg, above r. Leine. It has manufactures of linen, potash, wax, and several silver furnaces, supplied from mines in the neighbourhood. Pop. 1447.

LANGEMARIE, a vil. and comm. Belgium prov W. Flanders, on the Hainebeke, 24 m. S.E. W. Bruges. It has manufactures of linen, which form its staple comp. vining clothy starch, and tobacco, a tannery bleachfield, rope-works, breweries, and oil and flour mills. Pop. 6191.

LANGEN a market in Hesse-Darmstadt, prov Starkenburg, 7 m. S. Frankfurt. It has several public offices, a church, town-house, two schools, district prison, and numerous tile-works and mills. Pop. 3508.

LANGEN-EN-CHATEL, a vil. Baden, circle Middle Rhine, on the Bockach, 6 m. S.E. Carlsruhe with a church and several springs with a bathing establishment. Pop. 1120.

LANGENFELDEN, a vil. Württemberg circle Donau, 17 m. E. Esslingen, with a church, old Capuchin monastery, ruins of a castle, manufactures of lead pencils and tinsmith, and a small harbour on the Lake of Constance. Pop. 1100.

LANGENAU, numerous places, Germany:—1. A vil. Württemberg, circle Donau, on the Dan, 10 m. N.E. Ulm. It has several public offices, three churches, and considerable manufactures of linen and tapestry. Pop. 2418.—2. (Hesse) A small watering-place Prussia, Silesia, gov Breslau, about two m. E. Habelschwerdt, with a castle, a large bathing establishment, and near it tile-works and tar-furnaces.—3. (or Rhine) A vil. Bohemia, circle, and 28 m. N.E. Leitmeritz, with a church, a school, manufactures of linen, and extensive glass-works. Pop. 3147.—4. (Ober- und Nieder) A vil. Saxony circle Dresden, bail. Freiberg. It consists of two distinct parts, the former of which has pop. 1066, and the latter pop. 777.

LANGENBACH, a vil. Germany, princip. Rhenus-Gov., bail. and near Gern, with a church, a mill, and a cattle-market. Pop. 1041.

LANGENBERG, two towns, Rhine-R. Prussia:—1. Gov and 16 m. E.N.E. Düsseldorf. It is a wall built, and has manufactures of woollen, cotton, and silk goods, cutlery and iron-works, an alum-works, several tanneries, and paper-mills, and a trade in wine. Pop. 2528.—2. A gov and 85 m. S.W. Minden, with a church and a trade in cattle. Pop. 2296.

LANGENHELAU several vils. Prussia, prov Silesia, gov Breslau, and circle Reichsbach. They are Gross and Klein, Mittel, Nieder, and Ober Langenheila, and form a long line of straggling villages, nearly contiguous to each other. They contain a castle, two churches, and have numerous saw and other mills, several bleachfields, and limestone quarries. United pop. 9165.

LANGENHOLCK, a vil. Bohemia, circle Budweis, about 5 m. from Leoban. It has a church, a school, and several mills. Pop. 1366.

LANGENBUCK, a vil. Prussia, prov Silesia, gov Oppeln, circle Neumarkt, with a church and several bleachfields, a tannery, and other mills. Pop. 1008.

LANGENBRÜCKEN, a much-frequented watering-place, Baden, circle Middle Rhine, on the railway, and about 18 m. E. Carlsruhe, with 14 springs, strongly impregnated with sulphur, the water in taste and smell, in very similar to that of Euxine temperature, 50° to 60° Fah. used in catarrhes, rheumatic, and nervous affections.

LANGENDIERBACH, a vil. Hesse-Cassel, prov Hann., on the Fulda, with a little old castle, a synagogue, and manufactures of linen. Pop. 1539.

LANGENDORF, on W. Saxony, several places, Prussia:—1. Several nearly contiguous vils. prov Silesia, gov Breslau, circle Wartenberg, with a castle and a church, and several mills. United pop. 545.—2. A vil. prov Silesia, gov Oppeln, circle Tost, with a church, a castle and manufactures of pottery tile-works, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1185.—3. (Ober und Nieder) A vil. prov Silesia, gov Oppeln, circle Neuma, with a saw and several other mills. P 1548.

LANGENDORF (Ober und Unter) two nearly contiguous vils. Austria, Moravia, circle, and 16 m. N.W. Olmitz, with a church, a castle, and a blast-furnace. Pop. 2102.

LANGENEREINGEN, a vil. Bavaria, circle Swabia, dist. Schwabmünchen, with a church, a chapel, and an infirmary. Pop. 1179.

LANGENFELD or LENNFELD, a market in Lower Austria, 6 m. N. Krems, with a church, a castle, tile-works, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1355.

LANGENHAGEN, a vil. Hanover principality Colnberg, 6 m. N. Hanover with a church and a considerable trade in horses and cattle. Pop. 1410.

LANGENHESSEN a vil. Saxony circle Zwickau bail. Werdau. It has several mills. A good deal of yarn is hand-spun here. Pop. 1064.

LANGENHOE par Eng Essex 2104 ac Pop 168
LANGENHORN a vil. Denmark, duchy, and 30 m. W. W. Schleswig, with a church and important horse and cattle markets. Pop. 3000.

LANGENLEURA—1. (Glocken) A vil. Saxony, circle, and about 30 m. E. Leipzig, with a handsome church, a bleachfield, a trade in cattle, and several mills. Pop. 1154.—2. (Niederleura) A vil. Saxony-Altenburg near the town of Altenburg, with a church and five mills. Pop. 1636.

LANGENLOIS, a market in Lower Austria, 7 m. N.E. Krems, with a burgher hospital, and a considerable trade in excellent fruit and indifferent wine. A great part of the town was burned down in 1846. Pop. 8150.

LANGENUNGWITZ, Saxony, see LANGWITZ (Dona)
LANGENÖL (Athal and Unter) a vil. Prussia, prov Silesia, gov Legnica, circle Lebus, with a castle and two churches, tile-works, and all other mills. Pop. 3575.

LANGENSALZA a t. Prussia, prov Saxony, gov and 18 m. E.W. Erfurt, esp. circles on the Saale. It is walled, has six gates, a castle, three churches, four hospitals, a Latin school, widows', poorhouse, and orphan asylum; several courts and public offices, and manufactures of these goods, serge, homery starch, salt-petre, and gunpowder and several dye-works and distilleries. Pop. (1846), 5388. Area of circle, 118 sq. m. Pop. 23 184.

LANGENSCHWAB, a vil. Hesse-Cassel, prov and 16 m. N. Fulda, with a church and a castle; inhabitants chiefly vintners. Pop. 1026.

LANGENSSELBOLD, a vil. Hesse-Cassel, prov and 7 m. N.E. Hamm, esp. bail. on the Gröden, with two churches, a castle, and a synagogue, several distilleries, and a trade in cattle and wine. Pop. vil., 2549 bail. 6400.

LANGENTHAL, a vil. and par, Switzerland, cant. and 25 m. N.E. Bern, on the Langglen, in a fertile plain. It is well built, has a handsome church, court-house, and a large weigh-house, in which much butter and cheese are sold, and some it is a bathing establishment. Pop. 5180.

LANGENWEDDINGEN, a vil. Prussia, prov Saxony, gov and 6 m. S.W. Magdeburg, with a church, Silesian quarries, and several mills. Pop. 1386.

LANGENWETZENDORF, a vil. Germany, Rhenus-Schlesia, on the Leube, 5 m. W.N.W. Grotz, with a church, manufactures of wool, several mills, and some general trade. Pop. 3704.

LANGKEERN, a walled in. Bavaria, Middle Franconia, 11 m. N.W. Würzburg, on the Zaar, here crossed by a bridge, with two churches, manufactures of silk-ribbons, history, and tape, and a trade in hops. Pop. 3950.

LANGER-OGEE, or LANGER-OCEAN, a name sometimes applied in common to three islands in the North Sea, off the coast of Hannover, but more properly applied to the smallest of the three, which is in the centre, having the others, called Westende and Osterende respectively on the W and E. It consists of sand and is surrounded by mudbanks.

LANGERHAK a vil. Holland, prov. S. Holland 11 m N N W Goochheim, on the Lek, here crossed by a ferry. It has a large elegant church. (Pop. agricultural) 657

LANGERWEHR, a vil. Rhénane Prussia, gov. and E. from Aix-la-Chapelle, with a church, polishing-mills, and large factories. Pop. 1051

LANGESUND, a seaport in Norway prov. Agderhus, built Brudeberg on a small bay of same name, 13 m W B W Leirvig, with a safe and commodious harbour at which a good deal of timber is exported.

LANGETRIEKE, or DELAUNA TAKOWA, a vil. Bo hemie, circle Christian, on the railway from Vienna to Prague about 13 m. from Landekron with a school and a mill. P. 1252

LANGFORD several pars. Eng.—1 Bedford 3100 ac. Pop. 888.—2 Berks and Oxford 4600 ac. Pop. 702.—3 Essex; 1078 ac. Pop. 272.—4 Norfolk, 1405 ac. Pop. 11—5, Nottingham, 3181 ac. Pop. 148.—6, (Dudwell), Somerset, 1853 ac. Pop. 377.—7 (Aldis) Wilt 1011 ac. Pop. 28.—8 (Staple) Wilt 5941 ac. Pop. 634

LANGHAM, several pars. Eng.—1 Essex; 2896 ac. Pop. 868.—2 Norfolk 1950 ac. Pop. 416.—3, Rutland 3560 ac. Pop. 639.—4, Suffolk 951 ac. Pop. 281

LANGHEIM (GROSS and KLEIN) two nearly contiguous vils. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, 18 m. Würzburg with a church, a chapel important cattle-markets, a trade in dried fruit, and several mills. Pop. 2433

LANGHIRANO a vil. and com. Italy. Duchy and 18 m. S. Parma 1 bank Parma, with a primary school tanneries and a trade in corn, cattle, wood, and hides. Pop. 4865 LANGHOLM—1 A bor. of harony market in and par. Scotland, co. Dumfries. The town on the Ekt 30 m. E. by N Dumfries, is well built has a townhall and jail, an elegant parish church a Free and two U Presbyterian churches and a school. In the market place a monument to Sir Fultrey Malcolm and on Langholm Hill is one to his brother Sir John. Pop. 1408 Area of par., 14,320 ac. Pop. 2990—2 (New) A vil. adjoining the above, near the confluence of the Ekt with the Wathcoph. It is lighted with gas; has a library, and woollen and linen manufactures (Pop. included in the parochial return.

LANGLEY several pars. Eng.—1, Essex 1617 ac. Pop. 683.—2, Kent; 1474 ac. Pop. 360.—3, Norfolk 2728 ac. Pop. 813.—4, (Burwell) Wilt 1728 ac. Pop. 697.—5, (Newark), Bucks, 3835 ac. Pop. 1374

LANGLOAN, a vil. Scotland, co. Lanark, 8 m. E. Glasgow with five iron smelting-furnaces. Pop. 1111

LANGNAU, three places, Switzerland—1 A tn. and par. cant. and 16 m. E. Bern on the life a tributary of the Emme and the most important place in the Emmenthal it has a good-looking townhouse partly used as a school some weaving, and a considerable trade in linen and cheese, and near it is a very large wooden building used as an hospital and poorhouse. Pop. 5081.—2, A vil. and par. cant. and 6 m. E. Zurich, on the Sihl, here crossed by a covered bridge. It has a church a blacksmith, and a spinning and a flour mill. Pop. 1108.—3 A vil., cant. and 90 m. N W Lucerne in a flat and fertile district, 1 bank Wigger. Pop. 1574

LANGÖEN, an isl. off N W coast Norway, Lofoden group, lat. 69° N, and 14° 30' E, 15 m. N E to S W; breadth, about 5 m. Its coast is much indented, and near the centre, the island is nearly divided into two portions by arms of the sea, almost meeting from either side. Pop. 860

LANGÖENS (anc. Langens), a tn. France, dep. Lozère, near the source of the Allier 27 m. S. Le Puy. It has an old church manufactures of woollens, and brass candlesticks, and a trade in molasses and cattle. Pop. 3387

LANGON (anc. Alano), a tn. France, dep. Gironde, agreeably situated 1 bank Garonne, here crossed by a suspension-bridge, 34 m. S E Bordeaux. It is walled, and is built, but has few walks; manufactures of coats and leather; and a trade in the excellent white wines of the district, in brandy, and ship timber. Pop. 2597

LANGOSCO a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, div. Novara, prov. and near Lemellina, with a handsome church, a good courthouse, and elementary school, and a trade in corn, fruit, wax, honey, and milk. Pop. 1483

LANGPORT KASROVEN, a market town and par. England, co. Somerset. The town 10 m. S E. Bridgwater r bank Parret has two Established churches, an Independent chapel, free grammar and national schools a public reading-room, and subscription library; a considerable manufactory of gloves, and a good trade by the Parret, here navigable for barges of 40 tons Area of par., 171 ac. Pop. 1117.—(Local Correspondent)

LANGRÈS (anc. Andonastum Langones) a tn. France, dep. Haute-Marne, near 1 bank Marne, 17 m. S. E. Chaumont. It occupies a steep hill commanding the entrance from the basin of the Saône into that of the Seine and has the highest level of any town in France, except Briançon. The town is nearly oval, and is generally well built, with wide, regular and clean streets. Its cathedral and de la from the year 880, is of mixed styles, chiefly Romanesque but partly Gothic. It has also a handsome modern townhouse, a museum occupying the old church of St. Didier, a library of 700 volumes, and a fine promenade. Langres is the seat of a bishop and has a mercantile court and a communal college manufacture of excellent cutlery, which has procured it the name of the French Sheffield, breweries and vinegar-works and a considerable trade in corn, flour, wax, flax, hemp, cattle, wheatstones, &c. There are few French towns in which a greater number of Roman remains have been found. Pop. 7636

LANGRIDGE par. Eng. Somerset, 650 ac. Pop. 91

LANGRUE-SCHEMEX (Latin Longraun) a seaport in France, dep. Calvados, 10 m. h. Caen, on the English Channel with an interesting parish church, built in the 13th century and a bathing establishment. Pop. 1307

LANGRIDE, a vil. Scotland, co. Renfrew 3 m. S. Glasgow remarkable as the scene of the defeat in 1568, of the troops of Queen Mary by those of the Regent Murray

LANGTUF two pars. Eng.—1 Lincoln 2520 ac. Pop. 701.—2 York (E. Riding) 5680 ac. Pop. 789

LANGTON, several pars. Eng.—1 York (E. Riding) 3822 ac. Pop. 314.—2 (Great) York (N. Riding) 1540 ac. Pop. 721.—3 (Harrington) Dorset, 1203 ac. Pop. 246.—4, (near Hornsea) Lincoln 980 ac. Pop. 231.—5 (Lang-Blandford), Dorset 1808 ac. Pop. 188.—6, (Mabeyers) Dorset 2350 ac. Pop. 703.—7, (St. Giles) Lincoln 1590 ac. Pop. 190.—8 (St. Wivots) Lincoln 2249 ac. Pop. 287

LANGTUF, par. Eng. Devon, 4594 ac. Pop. 878

LANGUEDOC (anc. Narbonensis Prima) an extensive and beautiful prov. France, now forming depts Aude, Tarn, Hérault, Lozère, Ardèche and Gard, as well as arroyos, Toulouse and Yllustration, in dep. Haute-Garonne and arroyos Puy and Yllustration, in dep. Haute-Loire Under the Romans it was one of the seven provinces of Gaul which had the freedom of Italy. The Goths obtained a grant of it from the Emperor Honorius, and retained possession for nearly two centuries. The Saracens afterwards became its masters, but were expelled by Charles Martel in 725. From the Counts of Toulouse it passed to Philip the Bold, and was finally united to the French crown in 1361

LANGWATHEY or LONGWATHEY par. Eng. Cumberland 1987 ac. Pop. 392

LANGWITTH Urran, par. Eng. Derby 1600 ac. P. 198

LANHO, a river China, which rises in the Mountains of Iuchan in Mongolia, flows S S E into China proper traverses the N E. of prov. Petchelie, passing the town of Tung-Ping, and falls into the Gulf of Petchelie near its N E. entrance, after a course of about 800 m., during the upper part of which it bears the name of Chantou. It receives a number of important tributaries chiefly on the left.

LANHYDROCK, par. Eng. Cornwall 1755 ac. P. 231

LANHOREN-BOAN, par. Eng. Cornwall 2250 ac. Pop. 410

LANIVET par. Eng. Cornwall 5896 ac. Pop. 1140

LANJARON, a tn. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 24 m. S. E. E. Granada. It is well built, has a spacious central square, a disfigured church, two chapels a substantial townhouse, prison, two schools, a winehouse and manufactory of linen, ribbon, lace, soap, brandy, and oil, some transit trade in metals and other merchandise; but chiefly noted for its mines, especially springs and lakes. Pop. 3236.

LANLIVERY, par. Eng. Cornwall 6790 ac. P 1719.
LANMEUR, a vil. France, dep. Finistère, 21 m. N.E. Brest, on the coast of the 11th century. Pop. 820.

LANNNON (anc. Lannion), a seaport in France, dep. Côte-d'Or, 86 m. W.W. St. Étienne, on bank Giron, a little above its mouth in the English Channel. It is built on a hill, with steep and narrow streets; has a court of first resort, an agricultural society, and a substantial college; and a harbor of easy access, carries on a considerable trade in corn, hemp, flax, thread, household linens, butter, tallow, wool, cotton, timber, and colonial produce; and has manufactures of linen, hats, ropes, hardware, and refined wax. P 5491.

LANNOY, a tn. and com. France, dep. Nord, 9 m. E.E. Lille. It was once fortified, and regarded as one of the keys of Flanders. It has a church, the remains of an old castle, manufactures of cotton and woollen stuffs, a hosiery, and several cotton and oil mills. The soil is much cultivated in the vicinity and fetches high prices. Pop. 1855.

LANREATH, par. Eng. Cornwall 4678 ac. Pop. 603.

LANSALES, par. Eng. Cornwall, 2980 ac. P 690.
LANSDOWN, an elevated plain, England, or Somerset, 2½ m. W.W. Bath, noted for its excellent breed of sheep. It gives the title of marquis to the family of Petty.

LANSHIRE, a vil., U. States, New York, 10 m. N.W. Albany, on bank Hudson. It is regularly laid out has several churches, an academy, a copper and iron foundry, oil flour-cloth, brass, gun and rifle factories several mill-lanes and mills, and some trade on the river. Pop. 3231.

LANITZ, a market in Hungary. Higher Danube, on and 7 m. from Pressburg on the Behrswasser. It has a parish church, a castle with three gilded towers, and a trade in wine. Pop. 3060.

LANLÉBOURG, a tn. France, dep. Savoie, prov. and E. Moriana, on bank Aron, at the foot of the N. slope of Mont Cenis. It is completely enclosed by mountains, covered with pine forests and has two churches, an hospital, and some trade in cattle and dairy produce. Pop. 1650.

LANZADILLA, a tn. Spain, Leon, prov. and 24 m. N.E. Palencia, on bank Pisuerga here crossed by a magnificent bridge of nine arches. It is poorly built, containing for the most part of wooden houses, and has a church, a courthouse, primary school and hospital; manufactures of linen, a flour-mill, and a trade in agricultural produce. P 1040.

LANTAU, or LANTAU, an isl. China Sea, at the mouth of the Canton river about 10 m. W. Hong Kong 15 m. long, and 5½ m. broad. It is protected by a small fort; and at its S.W. extremity is the village of Tyho, where is a creek, or strait, into which a boat may go at high water.

LANTEGLOU, two par. Eng. Cornwall, —1, (dep. Cornwall, 3381 ac. P 1740 —2, (dep. Cornwall 3120 ac. P 1283).

LANTÈRE, a river France, which rises near a hamlet of same name, frontiers of dep. Vosges, enters dep. Haute-Saône; and, after a S.W. course of 26 m., of which about 15 m. are extensively used for station, joins the bank Saône.

LANTOSCA, a vil. and com. France, dep. Alpes Maritimes, 20 m. N. Nice, on bank Var, with four churches, a convent, an hospital and some trade in cattle. P 2245.

LANTWIT LOWES-JACK-MARZ, par. Wales, Glamorgan 10,990 ac. Pop. 1992.

LANTWIT MAELLO, a vil. and par. S. Wales, on Glamorgan. The village, 4 m. E. by W. Cowbridge, irregular well kept, is built generally of the Hunsstone has a church, and is so the oldest in Wales. There are also various fascinating places of worship, a national and a British school and a reading manufactory on old townhall, in the Tudor style, several antique houses, and the ruins of many ecclesiastical and other buildings. Area, 5538 ac. Pop. (chiefly agricultural) 1077. —(Local Correspondent.)

LANUSEI, a tn. Isl. Sardinia, 6½ m. N.W. N.E. Cagliari, dep. prov., on an elevated plain. It is sufficiently built, streets are wide and generally all paved and dirty and has a parish and three small churches, a convent, a primary school, and a trade chiefly in wine and agricultural produce. Pop. 1783.

LANKADOTE, the most N.E. of the Canary Isles, about 20 m. from the coast of Africa; lat. (N. W. point) 29° 2' 45" N; lon. 13° 45' W; greatest length, N.E. to S.W., 54 m.

mean breadth, about 15 m. It is fixed on the N.E. and E. by a number of rocky islets. The surface, though not elevated, on the whole presents a very bold face to the sea.

—Its basaltic cliffs in some parts rising to the height of 1600 ft., and its mountains several mountains, the highest of which, Monte Hicoria, is 3000 ft. They are all of volcanic origin, and several of them still are, or have recently been active. The most celebrated of them, called Tumefacto in 1790, commenced a series of eruptions, which, continuing with interruptions for seven years, spread devastation over the most fertile and best cultivated part of the island; and, in 1824, three other volcanoes burst forth. The cultivable part of the surface consists of the low hills, and some considerable plains; and being formed of decomposed lava, is of extraordinary natural fertility, producing the most luxuriant crops in rainy years. Unfortunately, however, these return only at intervals; and the drought often is so extreme, and continues so long, that the crops, and almost all vegetation, are entirely destroyed. There are no perennial springs, all the fresh water is collected in cisterns, when rain happens to fall. The principal products are barley, wheat, maize, rye, vegetables, potatoes, and wine.

Of the last, in good years, about 1500 pipes are produced, some of it equal, if not superior, to any other wine grown in the Canaries. The chief minerals are limestone, sulphate of soda, and sulphate of iron, none of them of much economical importance. A considerable number of the inhabitants need to be employed in collecting and preparing barilla for export; but in recent times that branch of trade has almost entirely ceased. There are no manufactures of any consequence. The inhabitants are in general robust and laborious, but for the most part in very indifferent circumstances, and extremely ignorant. Lankadote is subdivided into eight parishes.

Regencia, in which the governor resides, is considered the capital, but almost all the trade is carried on at Arevalo, which, in 1832, was declared a free port. Area, 524 sq. m. Pop. 10,570.

LANZO (Lat. Lancus) a tn. Italy Piedmont, div. and 16 m. N.W. Turin, on bank Tasio, and 1 bank Stura, here crossed by a very ancient and lofty bridge, at the entrance of three valleys of same name. It has a court of justice a handsome parish and several other churches, a convent, a college, and manufactures of ironware; and a trade in cattle hides, corn, butter, cheese, and wax. Pop. 5333.

LAODICEA, five places, Asiatic Turkey —1 (old Lazene), now called by the Turks Kala Mazar; (Old castle) an anc. ruined city, Asia Minor, once cap. of Greater Phrygia, 120 m. E.E.E. Smyrna, lat. 37° 56' N. lon. 29° 15' E. the site of one of the seven primitive Christian churches of Asia. Nothing but very extensive ruins of inferior architectural merit remain to point out the locality of this interesting city. They comprise three theatres, one of which is 450 ft. in diameter; a stadium, a gymnasium, and an aqueduct, but the principal remains are the vast walls. "Nothing," says Mr. Hamilton, "can exceed the marvellous appearance of the site of Laodicea, no picturesque features in the nature of the ground on which it stands relieve the dull uniformity of its undulating and barren hills." —2, (old Maze). See LAODICEA.

—3, (Contubate) See LADIS. —4, (old Lancus or Laodicea) an anc. city of Syria, founded by Seleucus Nicator, which stood to the N.E. of Damascus, on a plain watered by the Marjay.

LAON (anc. Belvaux Belvaux) a tn. France, dep. Aisne, 74 m. N.E. Paris, situated on an isolated height in the midst of a large and fertile plain covered with vineyards. It is surrounded by walls and ramparts, which are about 4 m. in circuit, and afford a beautiful promenade, but the town is antiquated, and, for the most part, very poorly built, though many recent improvements have been made. The principal edifices are the cathedral, of very large structure, probably of the 12th century, surmounted by two square towers, but not of much architectural merit; the church of St. Martin, of the 12th century, with an extremely simple interior; the Hotel de Prefecture, once a monastery, which had seven churches within its enclosure, and was occupied by 800 monks; the Hotel Dieu, an extensive and well-arranged hospital; the public library, containing 16,000 volumes, and some rare MSS.; the seminary, college, theatre, barracks, &c. The chief manufactures are silk, lace, common woollen cloths, blankets, and women's caps; the trade is in corn and wine, and there are 4 animal skins. Lace is an important art, and pro-houses a court of first resort a communal college, an ecclesiastical seminary, besides other educational and several charitable establishments. The most distinguished natives are Locheirs.

LAON CATHEDRAL.—From Revue Voyages dans l'Asie Orientale.

king of France in the 10th century, St. Remy, archbishop of Rheims, and Mohean, the celebrated confessor of Delambré in the trigonometrical survey. In 1411 it was taken by the Duke of Burgundy after a three days' siege and in 1419 it was taken by the English, who were expelled from it in 1429. In 1594 it was taken by siege by Henry IV. Bonaparte sustained a defeat here in 1814. P (1846), 8044.

LAOS or LAO a very little known country of S.E. Asia, the limits of which though not precisely known, are generally considered to be lat. 15° to 24° N. lon. 97° 47' to 106° E.; having the Chinese prov. of Yunnan N., Assam E., Siam and the Tenasserim provinces S. and Burmah W. It is intersected N. to S. by various mountain ranges between which are extensive alluvial plains, watered by large rivers flowing parallel to the mountains, and having their sources in China and Tibet, and terminating in the Gulf of Siam and the China Sea. The principal rivers are the Me-nam-Kong or Mekong, the Man-ton and the Munam, all of which are joined in their courses by numerous large tributaries. The mountains are said to be rich in gold, silver, copper, iron, tin, lead, and rock-salt, while rubies and emeralds are found in the vicinity of Louphang, the capital. The plains are covered with swamps and stagnant pools, arising from the frequent overflows of the rivers, yet they are fertile, yield excellent rice, not mixed, however, in sufficient quantity for the population, and the crops of which, and of other vegetable produce, are often destroyed by the floods. The forests are extensive, and contain many magnificent trees, among which are the varnish tree and the palm, the former of which attains here the utmost perfection. The principal domestic animals are bullocks and horses; the former are numerous and strong limbed though small, and the latter much esteemed. The wild animals include the royal tiger and the rhinoceros deer also abound in the forests. We have no account of the manufactures of the country, or whether they have any beyond the domestic weaving of silk and cotton stuffs for family use, and the preparation of lacquered wares, in which they excel. The silk worm is reared in the country, but the produce is coarse, the best silk being imported from China. Laos carries on a considerable trade with Siam, Burmah, and China, exporting slaves, ivory, gold, silver, tin, lead, precious stones, tea, gum, benzoin, silk, hides, opium, wax, &c.; and receiving in return from Burmah, brassware, yellow and red sandal wood, cotton cloth, silks, hats, lacquerware, opium, &c.; and from China, large quantities of silk, partly for re-exportation to Burmah but much is also used in the country, the richer classes never being without a full dress of the finest silk. The natives are peaceful and industrious. (Gustaf in Jour. Roy. Soc. Sci.)

LAOUR, a m. Hindostan, prov. Bengal, on an affluent of the Ganges, 110 m. N. N.E. Dacca. It has a considerable trade with Garrows in salt and other articles, and has, in the hills in the vicinity, handsome beds of limestone, from which Dacca is chiefly supplied.

LAPAK, one of the Soeloe Is., lat. 5° 35' N. lon. 151° E., length N. N.E. to S. S.W. about 6 m. It is of triangular shape, lofty and well wooded, and, with Sitakal, W. of it, furnishes a roadstead, with shelter from the S.W. and N.E.

LAPFORD par Eng. Devon 8819 ac. Pop. 766

LAPIO a tn Naples, prov. Principato Ultra, 14 m. W. W. St. Angelo de' Lombardi, on a hill. Pop. 2320.

LAPLAND (native, Saemenda Swedish, Lappmark, Russian, Loplandsk), an extensive territory in the N. of Europe, stretching between lat. 64 and 71° N. and from the shores of Norway E. to those of the White Sea, area, about 180,000 sq. m., of which more than a half situated E. of the Tura and by tributary Meads, belongs to Russia, and the remainder is shared, in nearly equal proportions, between Sweden and Norway. As Lapland is not the name of any great political division a particular description of its different portions must be looked for under the names of the states to which they belong and it may therefore be sufficient here to observe, in general, that both from geographical position and physical conformation Lapland is one of the most forbidding regions of the globe, consisting either of rugged mountains, some of them covered with perpetual snow, or of vast monotonous tracts of moriental wastes. This extensive territory appears to have been at one time wholly occupied by the people to whom it owes its name but its E. and better portions have been gradually encroached upon by Norwegians, Swedes, and Finlanders, till the Laplanders proper have in a great measure been scooped up within the Arctic circle. Thence they retain their distinctive features and ancient customs and find ample scope to follow their favorite mode of life, either as Fjeld-Finner, Mountain Laplanders, leading a nomadic life, and pasturing large reindeer herds or Sjö-Finner sea or shore Laplanders, who, too poor to possess such herds have been obliged to fix their residence upon the coast, and subsist chiefly by fishing. The origin of the Laplanders, as a race, has greatly puzzled ethnographers, in consequence of their presenting a combination of physical properties not possessed exclusively either by the Mongolian or the Caucasian stock, but belonging ply to the one and partly to the other. The prevailing opinion, however, is that they are only a variety of Tachina, or Phana. Their chief characteristics are—low stature, seldom exceeding 4 ft. 9 inches in height; great muscular power, exhibited both in their agility and in a strength of arm enabling them to bend a bow which an ordinary Norwegian could not touch; a large head; dark, long, and glossy hair, small brown eyes, obliquely placed, and without eyelids, high cheek bones with smooth, with ill-defined lips, a sandy beard and a skin of a yellow dirty hue, probably rendered deeper these nature has made it, from living in smoky cabins, and neglecting habits of cleanliness. Their dress, at least that of the Mountain Laplanders is composed almost throughout of reindeer skin. With the hair turned outwards, it forms an upper coat, a kind of trowsers, moccasins and shoes, gloves and a conical cap. In summer, the reindeer skin is often exchanged for a weather coat, which, in the female, is converted into a kind of pelisse, and reaches to the ankles. The cap of the female also is distinguished by its leather peak, and some attempts at ornament and her shoulders are not unfrequently covered with a small shawl or pelt, an indication of display. The Laplanders are not deficient either in intellectual or moral capacity. They are simple-hearted, hospitable, and apparently inclined, as far as their knowledge goes, to practice the duties of Christianity which they all profess, under the form of Lutheranism in Norway and Sweden and that of the Greek Church in Russia. The greatest exception to this practice, is an extreme fondness for ardent spirits. A more heinous vice is the excessive use of tobacco. The number of Laplanders is not supposed to exceed 20,000 of all descriptions. Probably one-third of them are nomadic.

1. SHORE LAPLANDER. 2. MOUNTAIN LAPLANDER. From the Imperial Gazetteer of Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

LAPLEY, par Eng. Stafford 3450 av. Pop. 963

LAPLOS, or LARVA, a river Austria, in the N. of Transylvania. It flows N.W. and, shortly after entering Hungary joins r. bank Saxon, about 2 m. N.E. of Erdöd heads; total course 45 m.

LAPLOS-BARTA, or BRUCKENBURG, a vil. Austria, Transylvania, near the source of the Lapos, 20 m. E.R.E. Nagy-Banya, with a church, and near it iron mines. Pop. 1019 LAPUS (Pezzo), a vil. Hungary Hither Thale, on Zips, in a mountainous district, about 45 m. from Leutschau with a church. Pop. 1015.

LAPWORTH par Eng. Warwick, 2971 ac. P. 682

LAR, a tn. Persia, cap. prov. Laristan, 178 m. S.E. Shiraz, on the great route thence to Bokhara. lat. 27° 30' N. lon. 55° 55' E. The houses in general are conical, and mostly firebraked and the houses which is very ancient, is said to be one of the handsomest structures of the kind in Persia. The khan, or governor resides here in a mansion surrounded by a strong wall, and flanked with towers. Behind the town, on the summit of a hill, are the ruins of a castle. Arms, gunpowder, and cotton fabrics, are manufactured here to a small extent. Pop. estimated at 12,000

LARACOE, par. fed. Meath, 8335 ac. Pop. 2284.

LARGHETSTAN par fed. K. H. 8041 ac. P. 2721

LARAH and Lar, par. Cerna, 17 293 ac. Pop. 2678.

LARANEIRAS, a tn. Brazil, prov. Sergipe, l. bank Cordoba, 15 m. from the Atlantic, with a church, hospital, two primary schools, and a bar-hut accessible to sloops, which load with cotton, indigo, and other produce. Pop. dist. 3600.

LARANTOEKA a tn. Indian Archipelago, E. end of Flores, on the Flores Strait, inhabited by native E. Catholics. The inhabitants of Tamar, the Bugia, &c., carry on a good trade here, obtaining needle-wood, wild cinnamon, and birds nests, which they export chiefly to Singapore.

LARAT, an isl. Indian Archipelago, one of the Tondolier group, off the N.E. coast of Borneo, with which it is connected by a reef. It is about 55 m. long by 10 m. broad. On its N.W. side is the village of same name; the only other village is named Kikobor.

LARAX a river France, which rises in a ramification of the Pyrenees, in the N.E. of dep. Hautes-Pyrenees; flows N.W.E. across dep. Gers, enters Tarn-et-Garonne, and joins l. bank Garonne; total course, 70 m.

LAREEST par Scot. 6319 ing. 2700 ac. Pop. 6606.

LAREDA, a river Italy which rises near Salerno, Dracy of Pagan, flows N.W. E. and joins r. bank Fe, 7 m. S. Crotone, total course, 55 m.

LAREDO, a tn. Spain, Old Castile, prov. and about 3 m. from Logroña, l. bank Irroga; with a church, primary school, hospital, several oil and flour mills, and a trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 1935.

LAREDO a tn. and port, Spain, prov. and 20 m. E. Santander r. bank Arca, on the Bay of Biscay. It is well built, defended by a fort and bastions, has three squares, many churches, some castles; a Latin and three primary schools; a handsome and spacious town-house, school-house, hospital, prison, convent; and manufactures of linen, wool-lens, hats, chocolate, saffron, fish-bones, &c. Fishing is actively carried on, but the trade of the port otherwise is unimportant. Pop. 3156.

LAREK, LARAGE, or LAREONE, an isl. Persian Gulf, 5 m. S.E. the E. end of Kishan; greatest length, 54 m.; breadth, nearly 4 m. It is of an elliptical form, tolerably elevated, has a barren soil, and very few inhabitants.

LAREN, two vils. Holland—1, Prov. Gelderland, 9 m. E.N.E. Enstrop, with an elegant church and a school. Pop. 612.—2, Prov. N. Holland, 15 m. E.S.E. Amsterdam; with two churches, and a school. It has manufactures of linen, hair-cloth, and amulets, and some trade, but the main occupation is agriculture. The brothers Roland and Pieter van Lare, the painters, were born here. Pop. 1955

LARGENTIERE [anc. Argentaria] a tn. France, dep. Ardèche, on the Ligne, 20 m. S.W. Privas. It has a Gothic church, adorned for its simplicity and light airy appearance; manufactures of silk, and silk thread, and leather, and a trade in silk wine and cattle. Largentiere has obtained an unenviable notoriety, from the active part it took in the wars of the Albigeans; its name is derived from silver mines formerly worked in the vicinity. Pop. 2700.

LARGO, a par. including two vils. Scotland, on Fife.—1, Lower Largo, a small vil. finely situated at the head of Largo Bay, Firth of Forth, 11 m. S.W. St. Andrews. It is much frequented for sea-bathing and has a harbour, with steamboat communication to Newburgh. It is formerly a considerable shipping trade, but this has long since languished. Largo is noted as the birth-place of Alexander Selkirk, the Robinson Crusoe of Da Fo, who was born there in 1676.—2, Upper Largo, or the Kirkton, a little N. from the former, contains the parish church, an ancient Gothic structure, and as hospital for twelve old men. Sir John Leslie, the mathematician, was born in Upper Largo. Area of par., 6620 ac. Pop. 2600.

LARGS, a small port, and much frequented sea-bathing in Scotland, co. Ayr, on E. shore Firth of Clyde, 23 m. W.S.W. Glasgow. It is composed chiefly of a line of handsome houses, many of them elegant mansions; facing the sea, and a number of narrow, sometimes tortuous, and frequently dirty streets, to the rear of the sea-front, with the burying ground near the centre of them. It has a parish, a Free, a U. Presbyterian, and an Episcopal church several schools, a reading-room, and baths. A considerable number of the inhabitants are hand-loom harness weavers, and in comfortable circumstances, many of the females are employed in sewing muslins, and the white silk and horning factory are actively prosecuted. There is daily communication by steamer with Glasgow &c., the harbour is small, and chiefly frequented by barrow-boats, and other small craft. In 1365, Alexander III. defeated the Norwegians, under Haco, in the vicinity. Pop. 2224. Area of the par., 24,160 ac. Pop. 2715.

LARI,—1, a tn. Tuscany, 15 m. E. Lagers; with a court of justice, a church, and an old castle. Pop. 1991.—2, a tn. Africa, Egypt, on a height, above the N.W. shores of Lake Thana. It consists of mud built, with conical roofs, and fenced round with mud enclosure. The women are generally employed in spinning cotton, and the men in fishing on the lake. Pop. about 7000.

LARINU a tn. Naples, prov. Salerno, 22 m. N.E. Campobasso. It is the see of a bishop, and has an annual fair.

LARISBA [Turkish, Kocitche], a tn. European Turkey, cap. prov. Thessaly, 87 m. E. by N. Tyrhina; lat. 39° 59' N. lon. 22° 40' E. (c.), r. bank Hellespont, or Bosphorus [anc. Thessaly], here spanned by a handsome stone bridge of 10 arches. It is well built, but contains several edifices of Turkish, Armenian, and E. styles, and with a mixture of clay and wooden houses. In the vicinity of the town is an open area.

in which are several basars, indifferently supplied, particularly with goods. It has one or three mosques, a Greek metropolitan church, three baths, a khana, and manufactures of cotton, silk, and Morocco leather, and dye-works, noted for their red colours. Lariss is supposed to occupy the site of the ancient city of the same name, one of the most flourishing in Thessaly. Pop. estimated at 20,000.

LARISTAN, a maritime prov Persia, lat. 36° 30' to 38° 30' N.; lon. 52° 30' and 55° 00' E., bounded N and W by prov Fars, E by Kirman, and S by the Persian Gulf; greatest length, E to W 210 m., greatest breadth N to S 130 m. A range of mountains stretches along its N boundary S.W. to N.E. It has few rivers—the Nahon, the principal stream by which it is watered, merely passing through its S.W. corner. The lower or E. portion of the province is an arid desert, diversified by rocky mountains and valleys of sand and alk. In the upper or N. parts, there are some fertile tracts, which produce dates and other fruits, and also grain. The coast is inhabited by independent Arabs, who subsist chiefly by piracy. Its capital is Lar.

LARKKE, a river, England, rises in co. Suffolk, and flows N.W. to the Ouse near Ely, in Cambridgeshire. It is navigable from its confluence with the Ouse to Bury.

LARKHALL, a vil Scotland, co. Lanark, 12 m. S.E. Glasgow, with an Established and a U. Presbyterian church, and two schools. Pop. (chiefly weavers), 1809.

LARKHANA, a tn. Bunde, on a great canal, 150 m. N.W. Hyderabad; lat. 27° 30' N., lon. 68° 18' E., in a fertile and highly-cultivated district, forming probably the finest tract in Bunde. It is judiciously fortified, having, at its W. end, a mud fort or citadel, which was once the head depot of the artillery of the Amers of Hyderabad and has a large and well-supplied bazaar containing nearly 400 shops, manufactures of silk and cotton, and an important trade greatly favoured by its situation on the great route from S. Bunde towards the Bolan Pass. A hula E. on the banks of the Nara, is the ruined fortress of Mahuta, occupying a high mound. Pop. about 12,000.

LARKING par Eng Norfolk 1548 ac. Pop. 319.

LARNE, a town and market place in an island, on Antrim. The town, on N. shore of Lough Larne, 18 m. N. by E. Belfast, is composed of one long, regular and some narrow and badly kept streets, with very sluggy and uncomfortable-looking houses. It has an Episcopal church, a R. Catholic chapel, and several Dissenting places of worship, a national school, and a dispensary. The manufacturing and bleaching of linen are carried on, both agricultural produce and lins are exported; and coal timber, and slate are exported, but manufactures and trade have suffered from the growing importance of Belfast. The quay are on both sides of the Lough, about 1 m. below the town, the depth of water not being sufficient to float vessels higher up. Larne is now much resorted to during summer as a watering-place. Pop. 3345. Area of par 3210 ac. Pop. 8561.

LARNICA, or LARNAGA [anc. Oulvum], a tn. S. coast ml. Cyprus, lat. 34° 55' 12" N.; lon. 32° 37' 45" E. (n.), 25 m. S.E. Nicosia, on a marshy plain about 1 m. from the shore, and consisting of an upper and lower town. The latter, commonly called ml. Salina of Larnica, is a very unhealthy by swamps and basins, and by the houses of the merchants and traders, common, porches, and basins, a convent, a mosque, and a chapel. In the upper town are a cathedral and a convent. The houses in both have a spongy appearance, and the streets are commonly in a filthy condition which together with the pestiferous exhalations of the neighbouring marshes, render Larnica an exceedingly unhealthy place of residence. The intermediate space between the two towns is occupied by gardens and meadows, amongst which many foundations of ancient walls and other remains are met with. There is here a disentailed citadel of a square form, in which a few pens are kept for milking vessels. Water is scarce, what supply there is, is conveyed into the town by an aqueduct. The roadstead is open, but the ground good. An embargo to be laid in from 20 to 30 dhams. The trade is limited; exports—wheat, cotton, silk, wine, and drugs; imports—rice, and sugar from Egypt; cloth, hardware, and colonial produce from Malta, Beyrout, &c. Pop. 6000.

LAROCHE, a tn. Belgium, par Lixembourg, on a flat, surrounded by rugged heights, one of which is covered by an old ruined castle, r bank Oerthe, 40 m. N.W. Arden. It was once the capital of a county of same name; contains a church, with six chapels, a courthouse, and an hospital, and has manufactures of earthenware, two breweries, a tannery, a saw and a flour mill. Pop. 1515.

LAROLLES, a vil Spain, Andalusia, prov. and about 50 m. from Granada with a church, two hermitages, a primary school, courthouse, wretched prison, two distilleries, two oil and four flour mills. Pop. 1249.

LARRAGA, a tn. Spain prov Navarre, on a height crowned by a castle of the Duke of Alba, 21 m. S.W. Pampeluna. It has a church, townhouse, hospital, primary school, a flour-mill, and a trade in corn, oil, and wine. Pop. 1484.

LARRINGE, a vil and com France, dep. Haute-Savoie, prov Chablais 3 m. from Evian, with a church, ancient castle, and a trade in fruit and cattle. Pop. 1141.

LARUNE, a tn France dep. Basses-Pyrénées 16 m. S.E. Oloron. Fine masts, and other marine timber, are hewn on the neighbouring mountains, and brought down here preparatory to removal. Pop. 1464.

LARVEGO, a vil and com Italy, Piedmont, div Genova near the heights of the Bonetto. Pop. 3344.

LARILLAK, a tn France, dep. Gard, 19 m. from Vigan with manufactures of homery and worsted silk, tanneries, silk mills, and valuable gypsum quarries. Pop. 1844.

LARGHIRD or LARGIRO a tn. Persia, prov Khorasan dist. Semnood, 106 m. E. by S. Teheran, in a fertile basin. It is defended by a mud fort. The inhabitants live chiefly by gardening and agriculture.

LASHAM, par Eng Hants 1769 ac. Pop. 258.

LASK, a tn Poland, 48 m. S.E. Kalisz, on the Niewolka with two churches, a synagogue, and hospital, manufactures of coarse woollens and hats, and some general trade. Pop. 1950.

LASKAFALC, or LASKAFELD a vil Hungary, Thutser Dunab, co. Berezna, 5 m. S.W. Darda with a distillery, brewery flour-mill, and a trade in corn and cattle. P. 1019.

LASKO a vil Hungary Thutser Dunab, co. Berezna, among marshes, 9 m. N.E. Lask with a church, a saltery and a trade in mastic. Pop. 1238.

LARNE (KARLEWIS-OR LARNEK) a vil and com. Belgium, prov Brabant, 12 m. S.E. Brussels, with manufactures of linen, a brewery, and a flour-mill. Pop. 1888.

LARÖE an isl Denmark, in the Kattegat, off N.E. coast of Jutland, lat. 57° 18' N., and lon. 11° E. 13 m. N.W. to S.W. breadth, 4 m. area, 32 geo sq m. It lies low is surrounded by shoals and, being in the direct line of the navigation of the Kattegat, is extremely dangerous to shipping. It is, in many places, covered by loose sand which has nearly overwhelmed the whole parish of Hals, and left only part of its church steeple visible to form a landmark. The men of the island are chiefly employed in fishing and leave the cultivation of the ground to its women. It is divided into three parishes. Pop. 3400.

LASSA, or LASSA (Lao-San, Seat of the Divine Intelligence) the cap. city of Tibet, in its E. division, We Tsang, on both sides of the Gailun, a tributary of the Dang-po, in a fertile plain, enclosed on all sides by lofty heights, lat. 28° 30' N. lon. 91° 40' E. The city proper consists of wide, regular and clean streets, with mostly large houses of several stories, built of stone, brick, or earth terraced at the summit, and uniformly whitened externally, and the windows and door frames painted with the sacred or lamezang colours, red and yellow. But prepossessing as may be their outward appearance, M. Kun, who visited Lassa in 1846, states that internally they are dirty, smoky, comfortless, and, in his own words, 'whitened sepulchres.' The suburbs are also filthy. In one of these, the dwellings are odd little bits of the huts of sheep and bullocks, coated with lime. All the public edifices, worthy of notice, are connected with Buddhist monasteries, this being the great seat and centre of the Buddhist religion. In the heart of the city is the convent of Kera, with a large printing establishment, from which numerous religious works are issued; and, on the outskirts, toward the cardinal points, are four other large monasteries—Fraslung on the W., Sera on the N., Khaldun on the E., and Samle on the S. or S.W. side. About 12 m. N.W. from the city, and connected with it by two avenues of trees, is the Botala, or Boddhi-la, this is the residence of the Dohi or Tald, [Grand] Lama, the supposed incarnation of the god Buddha, and the ecclesiastical sovereign of Tibet, and various possessor of the vast regions forming central, E., and S.E. Asia. A triple-peaked hill here rises sharply out of the plain to the height of 387 ft.; it is covered with convents and cells of monks, and in the center is the palace of the Tald Lama—a fine edifice, four stories in height, with a vast number of apartments, and a large dome, which, like the columns of the porphyry surrounding the structure, is covered with gilding. The interior is said to be full of idols, treasure, and works of art. Gerbailf remarks:—“There is perhaps no spot on the globe where so much gold is accumulated for superstitious purposes. The offerings are enormous; the treasury, unlike that of W. nations, increases every year and the Tald Lama is said to be the most opulent individual in existence. Adjacent to it are several other temples and palaces, obelisks, a pyramid, a lake, on an island in which is an octagonal palace of fine brick, a park belonging to the Grand Lama, and, about 2 m. N., another park of great beauty filled with cedars and cypresses, and where he passes a part of the summer. The Prebbling monastery is also very richly decorated; it is resorted to especially by Mongol lamas, who aspire to take ecclesiastical degree, and to it also the Tald Lama usually resorts. The towers, on a steadily rising plain with hilly and cypressous contains three or four temples several stories in height, half thoroughly lined with gilding, and a mass of meteoric iron which is the object of much veneration. The Khaldan was founded by the Buddhist reformer Tsong-kaba, in 1409 and the same convent was formerly the residence of the civil sovereign of Tibet. All these monastic establishments have several thousand inmates, being greatly resorted to from China, Tibet, Nepal &c. as schools of philosophy and Buddhism. Their precepts and those of the Buddha, is, are frequented by a silent crowd of students, but within the quiet privacy are all the bustle and activity of a great seat of commerce. Many Cashmerian and some Chinese and other merchants, are settled at Lassa, which is the principal entrepot of Tibet and a rendezvous of people from all parts of Asia. Silk stuffs, tea, and all other Chinese produce are here exchanged for Tibetan, Indian, and European goods. Cashmerian shawls shawl wool, musk, yak-tails, sable furs, raw silk, dried fruits, beavers, sugar, sweetmeats, baillon, glass, and cutlery, with woollen cloth, velvet, kumra, roaneries, hides, incense rods, manufactured in the city and province above, are sold and polished are principal articles of the trade. The most wealthy merchants and bankers are Mohammedan settlers from W. Tibet, and contiguous countries, all the workers in metals, jewellers, dyers, and chemists, are Nepalese or Bootmians; each foreign nation has its allotted quarter. All the petty shopkeepers are women, who expose their wares for sale in the open air and, according to a national custom, disguise their features in public, by covering their faces with a dark varnish. Lassa has its own mint for silver coinage, which, with legends of gold and silver, constitutes the sole currency. In the vast city are many good detached residences of lay noblemen, and well-cultivated gardens and no other part of Tibet appears to be so fertile as the district of Lassa. The Chinese soldiers maintained in the city are very few, but at Djichid, between 2 and 3 m. N. several thousand troops are stationed, under the command of two Chinese generals. Pop. of city and suburbs estimated at 50,000 a very large proportion of whom are Buddhist lamas, or priests, and students in the monasteries.—[Hittor, Asia, Ethnology, iv, 4, Hue, Monasteries d'un Voyage, &c., Gustail, in Eng. Geo. Jour., 21.]

LASSAN a tn. Fresno, prov. Francisco, gov. and 29 m. S.E. Stockton, on a lake of same name, formed by the Fresno; with a trade in cattle, and a fishery. Pop. 1978.

LASSAY, a tn. France, dep. Mayenne, 25 m. N. Laval with an ancient castle, still in good preservation, which was besieged and taken by William the Conqueror in 1064, and long continued in the possession of the English. Lassy takes in corn hemp cheese, poultry and cattle. Pop. 1355.

LASEM or LAMAM, a tn. Java, prov. Bantam, on a stream of its own name half a mile from the sea. It is populous, and carries on a good trade.

LASHINGTON, a tp. Glasgow, 835 ac. Pop. 50. LASHWADE, a vil. and par. Scotland, co. Edinburgh. The village, 4 m. S. Edinburgh, on the N. Esk, is irregularly built, and has a handsome church. The manufacture of carpets, gunpowder, and paper—the last, to a great extent, is carried on in the parish and there are corn-mills, iron and brass foundries, and coal mines. Drummond of Thornlieave was born in the parish. Area 8 sq. m. Pop. 5621.

LASTINGHAM, par. Eng. York (N. Riding), 84,663 ac. Pop. 1380.

LASTOCE, a vil. Hungary, co. Zemplin, about 3 m. from Vajalta, with a church, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1080.

LASTRA A SIGUA, or LASTRA DI GAWWALANDI, a tn. and com. Tuscany, 7 m. W. Florence, 1 bank Arno. It is an ancient place, was once surrounded by walls, of which portions still remain, and has manufactures of straw hats, in which the greater part of the inhabitants male and female are employed, and a trade in wine, oil, and corn. P. 4930.

LASTRES—1, A seaport tn. Spain, Asturias, prov. and 32 m. E.N.E. Oviedo on the Bay of Biscay. It has a church seven chapels, a Latin and two primary schools, manufactures of linen and ropes, and a coasting and fishing trade. The mole is good and the bay capacious. Pop. 250.—2, A cape, N.E. the town lat. 45° 33' N., lon. 5° 16' W. (s).

LAWAREE, a vil. Hindostan, prov. Delhi on a stream of same name, 56 m. N.W. Agra, memorable for a battle fought in the vicinity, in 1505, when the British, under Lord Lake, signally defeated the troops of Daulat Row Sindia.

LARZIO, several places, Hungary, particularly —1, (Mogor-Szent and Nemcs-Szent László) two nearly contiguous vills. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. Veszprim, 13 m. from Pápa. They contain several good buildings, and have sulphur springs. Good wine is grown in the vicinity. Pop. 1800.—2 (Szent Vác-László) a vil. Hither Danube, co. and 20 m. from Pesth with a R. Catholic church. Pop. 1650.

LASZTOMER, or LASZTOMER, a vil. Hungary, Hither Thither, co. Zemplin, on the Laborez, here crossed by a bridge 3 m. from Nagy-Mihály, with a church. Pop. 1030.

LATA, a tn. Anato. Turkey, pach. and 45 m. N.W. Van. It is a populous, governed by a bey and garrisoned by 1000 men.

LATAKIA [anc. Ladosia of Mero] a seaport tn. Asiatic Turkey Syria, pach. and 75 m. N. Tripoli on the N. base of a lofty promontory called Cape Zeyret, which projects about REMAINS OF ANCIENT TEMPLE IN THE MARRAS, LATAKIA.

After Maclure.

1½ m. into the sea, lat. 35° 30' 30" N.; lon. 35° 48' E. (s). It was once surrounded by walls, but is now open, and consists of about 1000 well-built houses, pleasantly situated among groves of myrtle, pomegranate, mulberry and olive trees, and forming two distinct portions—an upper and lower town, the former, as its name implies, occupying the higher ground while the latter, called La Beala or La Marina, stretches along the shore, in the vicinity of the harbour. This portion is composed of two streets, parallel to the shore, and a third leading upwards from the port, and is inhabited chiefly by seafaring people. The principal buildings are three Greek churches, five mosques, an Armenian convent, and a house of large extent, but very indifferently supplied. The harbour is well sheltered from all winds except the E. but has a narrow entrance and little depth of water, and though once capacious enough to accommodate 1000 galleys, has become so silted up by mud and sand as scarcely to contain a dozen of merchant vessels. The trade is chiefly in tobacco, which is largely cultivated in the vicinity, and is famous both in the E. and throughout Europe, cotton silk, galls and wool, and wax. The wines, once celebrated, have lost their reputation but the raisins are still delicious. Latcha has suffered severely by earthquakes, and owing partly to them, and to a general decay of trade from other causes, the pop., which once amounted to 50,000, does not now exceed 7000.—(Chenevix's Sketch Report. Pop dans les Océans Perles du Monde.)

LATCHA, a lake, Russia, in E. of gov. Olonets, oval shaped, 22 m. long N. to S., and 12 m. broad. At its S. extremity it receives the Svida, laden with the waters of Lake Vojta, and at its N. E. extremity discharges itself into the Onega.

LATCHINGDON par Eng Essex, 5672 ac. 1 411

LATERA, a tn. Papal States deleg Viterbo, 14 m. 4

LATERINA, with a cold sulphurous spring Pop. 1050

LATERINA, a tn and com. Tuesday, 10 m. from Arona, on a height above the lake, near the mouth of the Valle dell'Inferno with a church and an old castle. P. 1269

LATERZA, a tn. Naples, prov. Terra d'Otranto, 24 m N.W. Taranto, near the source of the Lato. P. 8400

LATHAM'S ISLAND, a coral isl., E. coast Africa, Zanzibar, lat. 6° 54' S. lon. 38° 58' E. of oval form, and somewhat less than 2 m. in length and not more than 10 or 12 ft. above the water. It is covered with myriads of sea-fowl, chiefly gannets, of a very large size.

LATHBURY par Eng Bucks 1294 ac. Pop. 147

LATHBURY par Scot. Cathness 140 000 ac. P. 6224

LATHAM, a town, England, co. Lancaster 8 m. N.E. by E. Ormskirk. It has a free school and a magnificent mansion erected on the site of the celebrated Latham house, so heroically defended by the Countess of Derby, when besieged during the civil war by the parliamentary forces, under General Fairfax. Pop. 3291

LATHAK or LATHAKA, a vil. Austria, Slavonia, 9 m. from Mladova with three churches. Pop. 4000

LATHANA, a vil. and prov. kingd. of Italy, gov. and 40 m. N.E. Venice, 1 bank Tagliamento. It has a court of justice, several public edifices, a parish church, and several centuries small harbour in the river, and some trade. P. 4000

LATORZA, a river Hungary which rises in the S. slope of the E. Carpathians co. Beregh, flows first S.W. and then W., and joins 1 bank Bodrog, a little above Zemplin, total course, 90 m. chief affluent, the Bercs.

LATHONICO, a tn. Naples prov. Basilicata, 18 m. E. Lagenagro. It has several springs. Pop. 2200

LATHA ISLES, a group of small isls. Indian Archipelago, in the Molucca Passage, w. coast Gilolo, largest, in lat. 9° 14' S.; lon. 137° 5' E. (s.)

LATHAL, a tn. Latvia or Livonia, one of the Pelee isls., lat. 18° 49' S. lon. 174° 25' W. (s.) consisting chiefly of a vast conical hill, 1000 ft. in height, the summit of which has a scorched appearance, but the sides are covered with trees, and slope gradually to the sea. It is surrounded with a lower border of fertile land, affording fresh water and is 6 or 7 m. in circumference, and can be seen 60 m. off.

LATTAKOO (Old and New), two tns. E. Africa, country of the Béchuanas. Old Lattakoo is situated near the source of the Moshoene, about 800 m. N.E. Cape Town. lat. 27° 6' S., lon. 24° 24' E. New Lattakoo 24 m. S.W. the former is in lat. 27° 30' S. lon. 24° 10' E. At New Lattakoo, or Kru men, there is a missionary station, with a chapel capable of containing about 1000 people. Wood is so extremely scarce here, that the roofing of the chapel had to be brought from a distance of 200 m. The native towns of Lattakoo, in 1814, contained 5000 persons each.

LATTERAGH, par. Ireland Tipperary, 4085 ac. P. 745

LATTIN par. Ireland Tipperary 2776 ac. Pop. 467

LATTON, two pars. Eng. 1—1 Essex; 1600 ac. Pop. 245—2 Wilts. 1680 ac. Pop. 835

LATZPONE, a vil. Austria, Tyrol circle Botzen, dist. and near Klausen, with a parish church and the ruins of an old castle. Pop. 1200

LATZHAZA or LACHASA, a vil. Hungary, Little Ku menna, 23 m. S.S.W. Pesth, with a church and townhouse. Pop. 2589

LATZUNAS, a vil. Hungary co. Temes about 18 m. from Vercetich with a Greek church. P. 1265

LAUBACH, a tn. Hesse-Darmstadt, Oberhessen, 15 m. E.S.E. Gießen with two churches, a castle, library of 80 006 volumes, a poorhouse, and manufactures of earthenware, and coarse woollens, iron-works and tile-works. Pop. 2022

LAUBAN, a tn. Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. and 40 m. S.W. S. Liegnitz, exp. circle 1. bank Quana. It is surrounded by a double wall, flanked with towers and bastions, and is entered by four gates. It has a court of law and several public offices: three Protestant churches, a Lutheran monastery, with a church, a handsome townhouse, gymnasium, and library, museum, with good collections of two hospitals, and an orphan asylum, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, bleachworks, ironfields, and dye-works, tile-works, a ball foundry, and several spinning and other mills. Pop. (1848) 6043.

The cranes is mountainous, being traversed by the Sudetes, and has not much fertile soil, but feeds a great number of cattle. Area, 151 sq. m. Pop. 65 645

LAUBENDORF or LAUBRO, a vil. Bohemia, circle Chrudim, about 8 m. from Hlaven with a handsome parish church, a school, and a castle. Pop. 1415

LAUBHIM (Gause and Klein), a vil. Württemberg circle Danneb, 12 m. S.W. Ulm, with a church, two castles, and an hospital. Pop. 2400

LAUCH, a river France, which rises in the Vosges, arched. Colmar flows E.N.E. past Guebwiller, and joins 1 bank Rh. after a course of about 88 m.

LAUCHA, a tn. Prussia, prov. Saxony, gov. and 17 m. S.W. Merseburg, 2 bank Unstrut, with manufactures of linen and yarn, paper, tobacco, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1656

LAUCHTADT, a tn. Prussia, prov. Saxony, gov. Merseburg, on the Leucha, 21 m. W. Leipzig with a castle, church, and theatre, saline chalybeate springs, and a bathing establishment. Pop. 1418

LALDA, a walled tn. Baden, circle Lower Rhine, on the Tauber, with a church. Pop. 1077

LAUDENBACH several places, Germany—1 A vil. Baden, circle Lower Rhine, N.E. from Mannheim with a church, and a trade in wine and cattle. Pop. 1512—2 A vil. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, on the Main with a church, a castle, the ruins of two towers, bark, oil, and four mills, and a trade in fruit, particularly cherries. Pop. 865—3 A vil. Hesse-Cassel, Niederhessen circle Witzenhausen with a church and several mills. Pop. 867—4 A vil. Württemberg circle Jaxt, ball Mergentheim, with a church, a castle, and a synagogue. Pop. 1180

LAUDER, a royal and part bar and par. Scotland, co. Berwick. The tower on the Leader 33 m. S.E. Edinburgh, is irregularly built, of mean appearance, but lighted with gas. It has a townhouse, a parish a Free, and a U. Presbyterian church and four schools. It unites with Haddington, Berwick, &c., in returning a member to Parliament. P. (1851) 1102. Area of par. 37,500 ac. Pop. 2164

LAUDERDALE, a dist. Scotland, co. Berwick, through which the river Leader flows. It gives the title of earl to the Maitland family

LAUDUN, a tn. France, dep. Gard, 18 m. N.E. Uzes, in a district noted for its wine. Pop. 1860

LAUBENBURG, a tn. Prussia, prov. Pomerania, gov. Gdansk, on the Leba 89 m. W.N.W. Danzig. It is walled defended by four forts and a castle, has a court of law and several public offices, two churches, a poorhouse, and hospital, and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, hats, and white and common leather. Pop. 3775. The cranes is flat and well wooded, and contains numerous lakes, but is marshy. Area, 548 geo. sq. m. Pop. 40,455

LAUBENBURG (District 60), prov. T.-west, bounded N. by the territory of Lübeck, E. by the county Mecklenburg, Haveln, K. and W. by duchy Holstein, S. W. by territory of Hamburg, S. by the Elbe, separating it from Hanover, and E. by grand duchy Mecklenburg-Schwerin; length, N.E. S.W., about 85 m., breadth, 28 m., area, 804 sq. m., generally flat, but undulating. Towards the centre considerable tracts of sand occur, and along the banks of the Elbe are extensive swamps. The climate is rather cold, but in the N.E. in the neighbourhood of Lake Haveln, and in the S.W., on the bank of the Riber, they yield excellent timber, and afford employment to a considerable number of the inhabitants. The S. and S.W. parts of the duchy belong to the basin of the Elbe; the N. and N.E. parts to that of the Baltic which are separated from the basin by the Trave. Its important rivers are the Riber, S. and S.W., the Trave, E., and the Haveln, N. but of considerable river shape. The principal crops are corn, barley, rye, flax, hemp, and rapa. In the N.E., near the lake of Haveln, a good deal of fruit is raised and exported. Both horses and cattle are numerous, and of good breeds; there are very few sheep. This duchy, a connection with that of Holstein gives the king of Denmark a voice in the German court business. For administrative purposes it is divided into 10 bailiwicks, 104 parishes, Lausburg, Schwerin, Wismar, and Rostock. Pop. 46,496.

LAUBENBURG a tn. Prussia, Slesky and map built of same name, r bank Elbe, where it is joined by the Delvenne or Steenkutz canal, 28 m. E.S.E. Hamburg. It stands on a level of elevated terrace formed by the bank of the river, has a church, the ruins of an old castle, an hospital and some trade. The toll dues on the Elbe are levied here. Pop. 2800. Area of hill, 40 aca. m. Pop. 6360.

LAUENSTEIN two places, Germany — 1 A in Saxony, circle and 20 m S.S.E. Dresden, on a mountain precipice above L. bank Elbe; with a castle, a church, manufactures of lace, and two saw-mills. Pop. 663. — 2 A vl. Hanover principality Calenberg, 18 m W S.W. Hildesheim with a church, chapel, and ruined castle a distillery, brewery, and saw-mill. Pop. vl. 1019 toll 13,082

LAUF., a co. Bavaria, Middle Franconia, cap. dist., on the Pegnitz, 11 m. E.N.R. Nurnberg. It has a castle, church, chapel, and hospital; manufactures of steel wire, needles, warren, white and common leather and articles in iron and brass, polishing, saw and other mills. Pop. 3008. Area of dist. 52 sq. m. Pca. 14131.

LAUFACH, a vil. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, bail.
Rothenbach, on the Ver-Speurt with a church, limestone quarries, blast-furnaces, and other iron-works. Pop. 1677

LAUFEN a to. Upper Bavaria, cap. dist. 1 bank Salach have crossed by a bridge, 54 m. K.S.E. Munich. It has a castle, church, Capuchin monastery, two hospitals, manufactures of cloth, woollen hosiery, and copperware, building parks, tanneries, gypsum, and other mills, and a trade in salt.
Pop. 1880. Area of dist. 86 sq. m. m. Pop. 1897

LAUFFEN, two places in Germany. (1) Lauffen, Lauf
 Ing., a tin. and gar., town and 23 m. N.W. Bern, in a valley of some farms, on the road from Basel to Dikematten on the Black Forest, on the Rhine, 1000 ft. above sea level. The church is here crossed by a bridge. It is walled, has a church. and a mill. Industries of iron, gar., and laundry. Pop. 1097.
 (2) A vil. and gar., town and 22 m. W. by R. Zürich; with a church and an old castle, both finely situated on a height, but the greater attractions of the place are the celebrated falls in its neighborhood, and about three miles below the town of Reichenbach. A. & M. G. L. Pop. 1097.

LAUFFEN AN DER NACH, n. Württemberg, circle Neckar
6 m. S.W. Heilbronn, 2. bank Neckar here crossed by one of the finest bridges in the kingdom, communicating with a vaucluse. It has a Gothic church, chapel, and Latin school
Pop. 4000

LAUGHARNE, a unincorporated town, northeast of and par. 3, Wales, Co. Carmarthen. The town 9 mi. S.W. Carmarthen, consists of respectable-looking houses, and has a magnificent old cruciform church, in the early English style, a small, but neat town hall, various Diamond shops, several endowed schools, and other churches, and carries on, through its port, a little trade in corn and butter. The inhabitants are nearly all employed in agriculture. One mile, a little way S. from the town, are the extensive remains of the ancient castle, in good preservation. Area, 14,793 ac. Pop. 5011.

LAUGHILAN ISLANDS, a group of nine low islets, S. Pacific, E. point, in lat. 9° 19' 5" N., lon. 165° 45' 40" E. They extend 5 m. E. and W., and nearly as much N. and S.

LAUGHTON, several pks. Eng.—1, Ladbroke, 1100 ac. Pop. 165—3, Lincoln 1136 ac. Pop. 69.—8, Lincoln 2598 ac. Pop. 503—4, Snares; 6078 ac. Pop. 812—5, (near Northwick), York (W. Riding), 8045 ac. Pop. 724

LAUINGEN, a tn. Bavaria, circle Swabia, cap. dist., r bank Danube, here crossed by a wooden bridge. It is well built, has a large square, six churches, one of which has a lofty spire; a castle, townhouse, hospital, and cavalry barracks; manufactures of linen, and some trade, both general and transit. P 2818. Arms of dist. 64 wro. on m. P 14585.

LAUJAR SE-ANBARAT, a town, Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 30 m. N W Almeria, 1 bank Andarax. It is tolerably well built, has several squares, wide, clean streets a church, chapel, townhall, Lads, grammar and two other schools, two prisons, a convent and, in the vicinity, three fine almshouses. Manufactures:—cloth, and other woollen fabrics. Here are also smelting-works for lead and antimony, obtained in the Gador hills. Pop. 3464. (Madox and Mellado)

LAUN, or LAUNY a in Bohemia, dist. Saxt, 33 m N W Prague, r bank Elbe here crossed by a stone bridge. It has a handsome deanery church, and an elegant townhouse. The district is famous for its apples. Pop. 2110

LAUNCESTON, the second town of Van Diemen's Land, situated on the N. shore of the Huon River, 167 1/2 E., at the confluence of the N. and S. R. rivers. The streets are regularly laid out, and many of its buildings handsome. The principal of these are the Episcopal church, the government house, military barracks, jail and courthouses. There are also public schools, a bank, post-office, and several newspaper establishments. Pop. 5000.—The township occupying the N.E. corner of the island, bounded N. by the Bay of Fires, E. by the Huon River, S. by the Huon and Camilleton E. by the Pacific, is about 85 m. long, by 68 m. broad, about 3200 sq. m. Its shores are a good deal traversed by large indentations, especially on the N. coast, where occur Ringarooma Bay and Port Dalrymple on the E. coast the largest indentation is the Bay of Fires. The surface is generally mountainous, the highest known elevation, Ben Lomond, on the E. side of the district, being 4200 ft. high. There are considerable rivers, among the principal of which are the Tassar and North Esk, and gold has recently been found in the latter.

LAUNCESTON, a port town, market town, and commercial center of Cornwall, the town, 19 1/2 mi W by Plymouth, is generally well built, supplied with water, and is lighted with gas. It has a remarkably fine church, several dissenting churches, two handsome new market-houses, a grammar school, a hospital, a lunatic asylum, a technical school, a normal, and Danish schools; a mutual insurance society for the working-classes, and various benevolent and charitable institutions. Retail shop trade and agriculture are the chief employments. Launceston returns a member to Parliament. Registered electors (1867) 867. This town was long considered the capital of Cornwall but Bodmin is now the chief town. Area 4 sq. h. and near 2180 sq. ft. Pop. 2877.

LAUNCESTON TARRANT and MONCKTON-TARRANT, per Eng. Dorset 3818 sq. Pop. 255

LAUNION, per Eng. Oxford, 3650 sh. Prop. 708.
LAUPEN a tn. Switzerland, can. and 10 m. S W Bern, on the Saane, at its confluence with the Romsa. It is walled, has three gates, a townhouse, and a castle, finely situated on a height. Laupen is famous for the battle in which, in 1339, the Swiss Confederates, under Rudolph of Erlach, defeated the mailed chivalry of Burgundy and Swabia. Pop. 826.

LAUPERSWEIL, a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. and 14 m. from Bern, on an elevated site, above 1 bank Emme. It has a handsome church, a school-house, and the ruins of the old castle of Wartenstein. Pop. 2494.

LAURAGUAIS, a small ancient dist. France, formerly dependent on Languedoc, and now included in dep. Tarn. It was divided into Upper and Lower Lauraguais; the one forming the bishopric of St. Papoul, and the other that of Lavaur.

LAUREANA [anc. Borllo] a tn. Naples, prov. Calabria Ultra I. S. et E. E. R. Minors. Pop. 1850.

LAUREL MOUNTAINS, a mountain-range, U States W of the Appalachians, extending across Virginia, from Potomac sylvania to Kentucky, where it takes the name of Cumberland Mountain.

LAURENCEKIRK, a tn. and par Scotland, co. Kinross-shire. The town, 184 m. S.W. Stirling, is built principally of stone, and lighted with gas. It has an established, a Free, a Scotch Episcopal, and a Congregational church, several schools, manufactures of wooden snuff-boxes, carried on to a considerable extent, and an extensive brewery, but the inhabitants are mostly employed in handloom-weaving and in agriculture. Dr James Beattie was a native of this parish. Area of par 5581 ac. Pop. 1459.

LAURENS (Br.) par. 1st. of Jersey Pop. 2306. LAURENT (Br.), a tn. and com. Belgium, prov. E. Flanders, 85 m. N.W. W. Ghent, with three flour-mills. The chief employments are weaving and agriculture. Pop. 1817.

LAURENT (Br.), numerous small places, France:—1, (de Corda or de Cordone), a tn., dep. Pyrénées-Orientales, about 18 m. S.W. Carat, with manufactures of linen, vinegar, nails, and some trade in velvet, mercery, iron, and hoops. Pop. 1290.—2 (de Salomagne), a vil., dep. Pyrénées-Orientales, 7 m. N.E. Perpignan, r. bank Agly, a hill above its mouth.

It has a good trade in wine and brandy. Anchovies and sardines are taken in the neighborhood and largely exported. Pop. 3302.—3, (de Maifol), a vil. and com., dep. Gironde, 35 m. N.W. Bordeaux, with a good trade in wine tar, and (with P. 1692)—4 (des Bains), a watering-place and com., dep. Ardèche, about 80 m. W. N. W. Lyons, in a narrow valley, overlooking by lofty precipices. The two springs to which it owes its name have a temperature, the one of 122°, the other of 118°. They are of a saline nature, containing sub-carbonate, sulphate, and chloride of soda, silica, and alumina, and are used, externally and internally, in psoriasis, rheumatism, white swellings, gout, and in all chronic affections.

LAURENZANA, a tn. Naples, prov. Basilicata, 15 m. S.E. Potenza, and 13 m. E. N.E. Marone-Novo. Pop. 7200.

LAURIA, a tn. Naples, prov. Basilicata, 7 m. S.E. Ligonero. It has two churches, two convents, and manufactures of woollen cloth. Pop. 7800.

LAURIOOGHA, a lake, Fern, on the E. slope of the Andes lat. 10° 18' S., lon. 78° 10' W., length, N. E. to S. W., about 19 m.; breadth, not more than 8 m. It is of a long and somewhat oval shape, and furnishes the source of the Tungurahua or Manabos.

LAURISTON, two vils. Scotland.—1 Strirlingshire, 14 m. E. Falkirk, with a Reformed Presbyterian church and a school. Inhabitants engaged in weaving and nail-making. Pop. 1199.—2, Kirkcudbrightshire, 6 m. W. W. Castle Douglas. Pop. 275.

LAURINO, a to Naples, prov. Principato-Citra, 8 m. N.E. Il-Vello, with two annual fairs. Pop. 2150.

LAURO two tns. Naples, prov. Terra di Laveri.—1, Dica, 12 m. E. Naples, with several churches and convents. P. 1833.—2, Dica, and about 16 m. E. Gaeta. P. 1050.

LAUBOT, or LITTLE PULO LAUT ISLAND, a group Indian Archipelago, off the S.E. coast of Borneo, lat. (N. point) 4° 45' S., lon. 115° 55' E. (N. point) They have a lofty and rocky shore, and several shelves, on which breakers are seen. Within 4 m. of the coast E., the depth of water is 16 fathoms.

LAUBVIG, a tn. Norway, prov. Agderhus, beautifully situated at the head of a small cove of same name, at the mouth of the Lævvag, 57 m. S.E. W. Christchurch. It is built in the form of a crescent, contains a parish church, a castle, and an hospital, and has an excellent harbor in which the largest vessels can safely anchor. About 800 vessels, tons, 50,000, annually enter and clear out at this port. In the neighborhood are the Fiddra iron-works, among the largest, and most complete in Norway. The factory of the river, which abounds with salmon, furnishes employment to many of the inhabitants. Pop. (1848) 3537.

LAURANNE (Latin, Lauranum, Italian, Laurano), a tn. Switzerland, cap. msa. Yverd on a spur or lower slope of Mount Jorat about 4 m. N. from Orcey, its port on the lake, and 31 m. N. W. the town of Geneva. It is irregularly built on three hills and several intervening valleys. The nature of the ground is generally commensurate to the streets; many of which are very steep, while all of them may be regarded as a series of ups and downs. Two of the hills are united by a lofty bridge about 80 ft. high, 35 broad, and 582 long. In the older part of the town the streets are narrow and not well built, and few of the houses stand on one level; but many new handsome houses have recently been erected. The edifice most deserving of notice is the cathedral of Gothic architecture, and at least internally the finest building of the kind in Switzerland. It was founded A.D. 1009, but only a few traces of the original edifice remain in the ground, which behind the altar. It is adorned with a lofty tower and a spire LAURANNE, from the River bank.—After Th. de Mouton.

200 ft. high. From the terrace magnificent views of the surrounding country, the Lake of Geneva, and the Alps beyond it, are obtained. On a platform, behind this terrace, stands the old castle, originally the residence of the bishops of Lausanne, and now the countess house of the canton. It is a massive square building, with turrets at the angles. The only other buildings deserving of notice are the church of St. Francis, the college with its museum; the penitentiary prison, theatre, asylum for the blind, and normal school. The education of the college, is of a very complete description, and the cheap rate at which it can be obtained, is one of the chief attractions of the town to its numerous English residents. Among the residents of former times was Gibbon, who here completed his History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, and whose house, much altered now forms the Hotel Gibbon. Lausanne has scarcely any trade and its limited manufactures are confined to leather pipes, beer-brewing and cotton and woollen spinning. Pop. almost all Protestants (1850) 30,000.

LAUBIGKE, a tn. Saxony, circle and 18 m. S.E. Leipzig with a civil and criminal court, a church, and manufactures of woollen and Manchester goods, fustian, &c. Near it are coal mines and saline chalybeate springs. Pop. (1849), 7583.

LAUBITZ (Latin Laudis, French, Laudon) an ancient territory Germany divided into the margravates of Ober and Nieder Lausitz, and bounded on the S by Bohemia, to which the whole of it originally belonged. It is afterwards sold to Saxony, and remained with it till 1815, when Prussia received the whole of Nieder Lausitz—which is now shared between govts. Frankfurt-on-Oder and Merseburg—and the E. part of Ober Lausitz, which has been incorporated with gov. Lusatia. The rest of Ober Lausitz, remaining with Saxony, is nearly identical with circle Bautzen.

LAUT (GEMAS PULAI), an isl. Indian Archipelago, S. entrance to Macassar Strait; lat. (N. E. point) 8° 27' S.; lon. 116° 20' E. (N. point); about 20 m. long, by 10 m. broad, yields a considerable quantity of rice, and is separated from S.E. coast Borneo, by Palo Laut Strait, 8 m. broad, and 7 to 8 fathoms deep.

LAUTENBACH, a vil. Baden, circle Middle Rhine, bail. Oberrhein; with a very beautiful church, and a trade in cattle, wool, fruit, and cherry. Pop. 844.

LAUTENBURG, Lautenbourg, a town, in France, prov. W. France, pop. 48 and 48 S.E. Marne-la-Vallée, 1. bank. With two churches, manufactures of woollen cloth, linen, earthenware and a paper-mill. Pop. 5034.

LAUTENTHAL, a tn. Hanover, bail. Kassel, v. bank. It is the seat of a mining director and has near it important silver mines, with smelting and refining furnaces. It has also a powder, a paper, and a saw mill. Pop. 2174.

LAUTER, a vil. Saxony, Zwettl, bail and 4 m. N.W. W. Saxony. It is well built, and has several viticultural and pick works, manufactures of embroidery, lace, wicker-work, spools, nails, and tinware. Pop. 2688.

LAUTERBACH a tn. Hesse-Darmstadt, Oberrhein, on the Schilt, exp. dist., in the valley of the Vogelsberg, 34 m. E.N.E. Gießen. It has a court of justice and other public offices. Two castles, two churches, an infirmary and hospital, manufactures of wax-cloth, red and white leather cutlery, glass, earthenware, and soap, several breweries and distilleries, and a trade in iron. Pop. 8551; dist. 21,325.

LAUTERBACH, a vil. Saxony, circle Saxony, bail. Lauterbach. It has a ruinous castle. Mining is extensively carried on in the vicinity. Pop. 1284.

LAUTERBACH, or LAUTERBACH, two places, Bohemia—1, A vil. north Chudowa, on the Lusatia, 5 m. from Lettowitzsch, with a handsome church and two mills. Pop. 1437—2, A free mining town, circle and 6 m. E. Zittau, with a church, manufactures of coarse woollens, several flour and saw mills, and arsenals, at which the tin obtained from mines in the vicinity is smelted. Pop. 1750.

LAUTERBERG a tn. Hesse prov. Hildesheim, at the confluence of the broad and narrow Lauter 18 m. S.E. E. Kassel. Though of rather a poor appearance, it has several public offices, considerable manufactures of iron and tinware, linen, and nails, several dye-works and a trade in wool and charcoal. Pop. 5216.

LAUTERBURG [anc. Lauterburg] a fortified tn. France, dep. Bas-Rhin, on the Lauter a little above its confluence with the Rhine, 41 m. N.E. Strasbourg. It ranks as a fortified city, and has manufactures of silk and brass works. P. 2280.

LAUTERBRUNNEN [Wholly spring] a vil and par. Switzerland, em. Bern on the White Lutschine, about 6 m. S.E. the E. extremity of Lake Thun, 2450 ft. above the sea, in the celebrated valley to which it gives its name, and so hemmed in between romantic precipitous that at midsummer the sun is not seen before 7 o'clock, and in winter not till 12 o'clock. There are numerous cascades in its neighbourhood, but the most celebrated of all is the Staubbach (Dust stream) one of the loftiest falls in Europe, being 500 to 600 ft. in height, the body of water is comparatively small, and falling from such a great elevation, it is dispersed by the wind ere it reaches the bottom, and descends in the form of a dust-like spray. The valley of Lauterbrunnen, at the foot of the Jungfrau, is about 15 m. long, and scarcely at any place exceeds 1 mile in width. It is hemmed in between limestone precipitous nearly vertical, down which innumerable rivulets tumble in long threads of silvery foam. Owing to the height, only the hardier species of grain grow and the climate is almost too rough for apples and pears, but cherries ripen. In different parties, potatoes are raised. Parts of the valley, also, are wooded with fine beeches and maples, while myriads of oak clothe the lower mountain slopes. Pop. 1706.

LAUTERBACHEN a tn. Bavaria, Palatinate, at the confluence of the Lauter with the Rhine, 48 m. N.W. Speyer; with a justice-of-peace court, two churches, a castle in ruins, and a trade in cattle and wine. Pop. 1165.

LAUTREX, a tn. France, dep. Tarn, 16 m. S. Alby, once the capital of a diocese of Albigeois, and defended by a castle, of which only a few vestiges remain. It has manufactures of coarse cloth and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1061.

LAUTRECHT, or LAUTRECHT, a village in Austria, Moravia, circle and 10 m. S. Bräun, on the Sava; with a church. Pop. 1040.

LAUVEN, a river, Norway, which rises in Mount Hardanger, belonging to the Hardanger range, on the E. frontier of S. Bergenhus, flows through Bukerud, first descends E., then S.E.W., passing the town of Kongsberg, about 1 m. above which it forms a magnificent fall afterwards turns almost due S., enters the bay of Larvik, and falls into the fjord at the town of that name, after a direct course of 150 m. and an ascent of at least 500 m. Its mouth forms one of the finest natural harbours of Norway. It abounds with fish, particularly salmon, and is the best fishing stream in the S. portion of the kingdom. In its course it expands into numerous lakes, but none of its affluents are large.

LAUWER ZEE, a gulf of the N. Sea, Holland, between provs. Friesland and Groningen, stretching inland N. to S. about 8 m., and about 6 m. broad, it receives the Ee with the Dooden die, the Lauwers, and the Hobe.

LAUZZI, a tn. France, dep. Tarn, 20 m. N.W. Montauban. It has a considerable trade in corn, wine, fruit, and cattle. Pop. 1650.

LAVADORES [BASTIA CRISTINA], a vil and par. Spain, Galicia, prov. and about 16 m. from Pontevedra, on the Cam. de Orense; here crossed by a handsome bridge. It has a church, townhouse, prison, primary school, manufactures of linen and leather and several flour-mills. Pop. 3715.

LAVAGNA a tn. Italy, Piedmont, dep. and 25 m. E.S.E. Geneva, near the mouth of a river of some name, on the bay of Rapallo. It is a large place, but only indifferently built, has a court of justice, several public offices, a beautiful parish church, of three naves several other churches, three palaces, one of them with well-laid-out gardens a communal house and small hospital. A trade in mules and cattle, and extensive slate quarries. Pop. 6232.

LAVALL [anc. Laodun Vallis Gaudens] a tn. France, cap. dep. Mayenne, on an actively washed by the Mayenne, 13 m. W. S.W. Paris, lat. 48° 24' N. lon. 48° 57' W. (L.) It is surrounded by a chain of natural forts, some only in good preservation; and is ill built, consisting of piles of old houses huddled together, or separated by dark, narrow winding streets, some of which are so steep as to be almost inaccessible to carriages. Many of the houses are of wood, and are supposed to be at least six centuries old. Amid these gloomy piles, and near the river are the remains of an ancient castle, of great extent, with a lofty round tower now occasionally used as a jail, the gallery which is of a more modern date, is intended for law courts. The other buildings of note are the church of the Trinity, a Gothic edifice, supposed to occupy the site of a temple of Jupiter, the church of the Cordeliers, more interesting still from its painted wooden ceiling and 36 pillars of red and black marble, which adorn its principal altar, the churches of St. Venerand and Aventures, two hospitals, founded in the beginning of the 10th century, a public library of 10,000 volumes, and a large and elegant cloth hall. On the opposite side of the river there is a suburb which is nearly as large as a third of the town, with which it communicates by a handsome stone bridge. Lavall possesses a communal college, courts of first resort and commerce, a chamber of commerce, and an agricultural society. Its staple manufactures are linen—Linen thread, also, is spun to a considerable extent, and there are manufactures of damask, calicoes, bombazines, serges, fannels, and green soap; also, numerous bleachfields, dye-works, and tanneries. The trade, in addition to the articles mentioned, is in clover wine, brandy, wood, iron, and marble. Lavall was taken by the English, under Talbot of Shrewsbury, in 1466, but recovered in the following year. Pop. 15,474.

LAVANGA, an isl. Russia, Gulf of Finland, 70 m. W. Cronstadt, 4 m. long by about 1 m. broad; very rocky, but has many parts growing rye, vegetables, and figs. It has three havens, one of which, on the W., though difficult of entrance, has depth of water for large vessels. Pop. 400.

LAVANT two pars. Reg. Saxony—1, (Kant.) 3884 m. Pop. 431—2 (Maj.) 250 m. Pop. 384.

LAVAU [anc. Vervum], a tn. France, dep. Tarn, 33 m. S.W. Alby, r. bank Agout, here crossed by a handsome bridge. It has a court of first resort, an agricultural society, a communal college, manufactures of silk fannels, serges, some coarse stuffs, and silk history; silk and cotton mills, dye-works, and tanneries, and is the entrepot for the silk of Upper Languedoc, which are spun here for Rimes and Lyons. Near it coal is wrought, and much silk produced. Its south gate has a early refuge in the persecuted Albigeois; but though valiantly defended, was taken by a horde of barbarous hordes, who marched against it in 1211, and, after taking it by storm, committed horrible atrocities. Pop. 4014.

LAVELANET, un. France, dep. Aisne, 18 m. E. by S. of Poir. It has manufactures of woollens, saw cranes, and fulling mills, dye-works, a tannery, and several forges. P. 5710.

LAVELLO [anc. Lathelium], a tn. Naples, prov. Basilicata, 9 m. N. E. of Melfi. It is the see of a bishop, and contains a cathedral and two convents. Pop. 2800.

LAVENDON, par Eng. Bucks, 2290 ac. Pop. 768.

LAVENHAM, a tn. and par England, co. Suffolk. The town 15 m. W. by N. of Ipswich, has a handsome parish church, two Dissenting chapels, a free school and endowed national school, and a set of almshouses. Area of par. 2867 ac. P. 1811.

LAVENO a vil. and com. Italy, Lombardy prov. and 24 m. W. W. Como, on Lake Maggiore. It has a church and saw and flour mills. Pop. 1048.

LAVENTRE a tn. France, dep. Pas-de-Calais, 12 m. N. E. of Bethune. It has linen manufactures, and tanneries and rears a great number of bees. Pop. 1330.

LAVENZA a tn. di Modena 6 m. W. of Massa di Carrara at the mouth of the river Spese named in the Gulf of Genoa, with a small harbor and a fort. Pop. 1280.

LAVET, three pars Eng. Essex. 1 (Hill) 1894 ac. Pop. 534.—2 (Littles) 958 ac. Pop. 119.—3 (Mogdale) 1226 ac. Pop. 326.

LAVERNOCK par Wales, Glamorgan 1014 ac. P. 81.

LAVERSTOCK, par Eng. Wilt 1675 ac. Pop. 562.

LAVERSTOKE par Eng. Hants 1530 ac. Pop. 142.

LAVERTON, par Eng. Somerset 1034 ac. Pop. 187.

LAVET, par Ireland 10 679 ac. Pop. 4000.

LAVINGTON or LAVET two pars Eng.—1. In Isen 4195 ac. P. 862.—2. (West of Easing) Wilt 5985 ac. P. 1759.

LAVINGTON East or Market Lavington a market tn. and par England, on Wilt. The town 4½ m. S. of Devizes, has a parish church, two Dissenting chapels, a national and a British school, and a considerable trade in corn and malt. Area of par. 4721 ac. Pop. 1721.

LAVINO [anc. Lathenium] a river, Italy, which rises in a branch of the Apennines, 15 m. S. W. of Bologna, flows N. and joins a bank Sansepolcro, after a course of about 30 m.

LAVIS, a market in Austria, Tyrol, north and 5 m. N. N. W. of Innsbruck. It has a church and a trade in silk; the white mulberry being here extensively cultivated for the rearing of silk-worms. Lavis is considered the boundary between the German and the Italian Tyrol. Pop. 2207.

LAVORO (TERRA DI) a prov. Naples, bounded N. by Abruzzo Ultra, W. by Frosinone S. W. by the Mediterranean, S. by prov. Naples, and Principato-Citra, and E. by Principato-Ultra and Salerno, greatest length, N. W. to S. E. 86 m., greatest breadth, 70 m., area, about 2000 sq. m. The coast-line, forming an irregular sweep N. W. to S. E., is not much broken by smaller indentations, but contains the large bay of Gaeta. The interior is a good deal broken by the Apennines. The principal rivers are the Volturno the Garigliano, and the Lago-Regi, near the coast are several lagoons, of which the principal are Lakes Fondi, Luno, and Carinola. The part of the province not broken by the Apennines, stretches out into plains among the richest and most carefully cultivated in Europe; yielding, in those of Aviano, Capua, and Corvino, 12 to 20 fold. Maize, and all the ordinary cereals, are abundantly raised, also fax, hemp, and a great variety of fruits. Forests are of limited extent, but there are many groves of chestnut and orange numerous vineyards, in which vines of excellent quality are produced, among others the famous Lacryma Christi. Both the olive and mulberry thrive so well that olive-oil and silk are principal articles of export. The pastures rear excellent cattle, and many marshy tracts are covered with herds of buffaloes. For administrative purposes, Terra di Lavoro is divided into five districts—Caieta, the capital, Nola, Gaeta, Sora, and Piedmonte; subdivided into 48 circondari, and 290 comuni. Pop. 281,971.

LAVOS, a tn. and par Portugal, prov. Douro, 7 m. N. and at the mouth of the Mondego, opposite to Figueira, 44 m. S. W. Coimbra. Pop. 5188.

LAVRAS no Foz, a tn. Brazil, prov. Minas-Geraes, 170 m. W. S. W. Ouro Preto. It is poorly built, has two churches, a townhouse, with a prison attached; and a trade in cotton, rice, millet, and various kinds of fruit. Many of the inhabitants are shoemakers and tailors and a good deal of cotton is spun and woven by women. The mines of gold in the district, at one time very productive, are now all but exhausted. Pop. of dist., 15,000.

LAVRIANO a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. Turin, 4 m. from Castellibonone, 7 bank P. It has a parish and three other churches, an elementary school, and the remains of an old castle and Hunkins. Pop. 1068.

LAWE, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. W. Flanders, on the Lys, 37 m. S. Bruges. It has manufactures of tobacco, oil works, breweries and flour-mills. Pop. 2850.

LAWFORD two pars. Eng.—1. Essex. 2679 ac. Pop. 890.—2. (Church) Warwick 1865 ac. Pop. 827.

LAWHITTON par Eng. Cornwall, 3929 ac. P. 568.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

LAWRENCE, Br., several pars Eng.—1. Berks 515 ac. Pop. 4571.—2. Hants 332 ac. Pop. 111.—3. Kent 4461 ac. Pop. 8015.—4. Wales, Pembroke; 1751 ac. Pop. 280.

—5. Baloo 240 ac. Pop. 4691.—6. York (St. Riding) Pop. 1646.—7. (Newland) Essex 2820 ac. Pop. 232.

palace, and fine parks and gardens, connected by an avenue with the palace of Schönbrunn. The whole grounds are beautifully laid out, and form one of the most agreeable resorts of the citizens of Vienna. Pop. 800.

LAXFIELD, par Eng. Suffolk 8630 ac. Pop. 1147.

LAXTON two pars. Eng.-1 Northampton 1870 ac. Pop. 143.-2 for Leamington Notes, 1810 ac. Pop. 429.

LAY a river, France, between St. Yvoine, by two small streams, the Gaset and Little Lay, which, rise in the N.E. of dey Vaud, proceeding S.W. It begins to be navigable at Marnet, and falls into the Creek of Angoulême, in the Bay of Biscay after a course of about 50 m.

LAYBACH or LAYBACH (Latin, Almona) a N. Austria, 117 m, rocky Carinthia, esp. gov. and strale, in an extensive plain, on both sides of the river of same name, here crossed by five bridges, 55 m. N. E. Trieste, on the railway to Vienna. It (castle tower), 46° 2' 27" N. lon. 14° 30' 45" E. (L.) It consists of the town proper grouped round the castle hill, and of six suburbs, and is for the most part, very indifferently built, with irregular narrow, and ill-paved streets, but has two rather spacious squares. Its principal buildings are the cathedral of St. Nicholas, with fine pictures, frescoes, and carvings, St. James church the church of the Ursuline monastery a very handsome structure St. Peter's church, the Protestant church, built since the revolution of 1848 the old Gothic townhouse, the old castle, crowning a height in the centre of the town, and now converted into a state prison and house of correction the bishop's palace, theatre, barracks, and palace of Count Auerberg. It is the seat of a bishop, the seat of government of Carinthia and Carniola of a military governor and of several important courts and public offices and possesses a museum a botanical garden, an infirmary with lunatic asylum attached a deaf and dumb institute, a casino, agricultural and musical societies, a library lyceum, in which theological philosophy and medicine are taught a gymnasium, normal military and agricultural schools a school of design, industrial school, and various benevolent endowments. The manufactures consist chiefly of woolen and silk goods, and there are oil, paper and cotton mills, a large sugar refinery and a considerable tinned trade. Laybach is a place of great antiquity and is supposed to occupy the site of the Roman Almona. It makes a considerable figure during the Turkish wars, and is well known to modern times by the Congress which was held in it in 1810-21. Its site was at one time very unhealthy, from the extensive swamps which surrounded it but these have been almost completely drained, and the extensive now furnish many fine rides and walks. Pop. (1848), 17,857 Area of circle, 845 sq. m. Pop. 164,100. Area of gov., 5524 sq. m. Pop. 750,000.

LAYBACH (Ums) or VANUSCHKE, a market, in Austria, 117 m, gov. and 12 m. N.W. Laybach on a river of same name, which here becomes navigable, though only 3 m. from its source, and joins the Save, about 30 m. below. It contains a church and has manufactures of linen, several mills, some shipping and a trade in wood. Pop. 1400.

LAYD par Ireland 20 676 ac. Pop. 3857.

LAYD-GRAVE, par Ireland 20 676 ac. Pop. 3857.

LAYTON, three pars. Eng. Essex.-1 (Layton), 864 ac. Pop. 394.-2 (Folke-Hey) 2577 ac. Pop. 733.-3 (Merry), 1978 ac. Pop. 279.

LAYTON par Eng. Suffolk 2498 ac. Pop. 577.

LAYTON a river France, which rises on the S. frontier of dey Maine-et-Loire, flows N.E. thro N.W. and joins I. bank Loire, a little above Chalonnes after a course of about 55 m. Its chief affluents is the Hyronne.

LAYTON (see Layton) a N. France dep. Lot-et-Garonne, 5 m. S. Agen near the confluence of the Tere with the Garonne. A Benedictine monastery was founded here in 1074. Its fine church, and several other parts, still remain. Pop. 1253.

LAYTON par Eng. Hereford 1969 ac. Pop. 316.

LAYTON par Eng. Hereford; 2908 ac. Pop. 1230.

LAZA (SAN JUAN), a N. Spain, Galicia, prov. and 35 m. S.E. Orense. It has a large and handsome church of the Trinita order with a tower a townhouse and primary school and a manufacture of linen and chocolate, and a trade in chocolate and honey. Pop. 1800.

LAZARUS, the name W. Isl. of the Low Archipelago, lat. (W point) 14° 55' S.; lon. 145° 45' E. It is uninhabited.

LAZARO (SAN), a N. and S. Italy, Parma, 1 m. N. E. Piacenza. It has a handsome church, richly decorated, a primary school and a college, founded by Cardinal Alberoni, with a library of 30,000 vols, and some good collections. The trade is in corn, wine, and silk. Pop. 6288.

LAZISE, a vil Italy, Venezia, prov. and near Verona, on the lake of Garda. It is walled fairly well with towers, and has a small harbour, at which a considerable trade is carried on, and a factory chiefly employed in supplying the Verona market. Pop. 2900.

LAZONBY, par Eng. Cumberland, 11 178 ac. P. 929.

LAZZARO an Isl Venezia, Italy within the lagoons, hard by Venice, chiefly remarkable for an Armenian school of Muschiaristi, founded by Abbot Meschiar Pedrosan in 1717, with an educational establishment, a library of 10 090 vols, and 400 valuable Oriental MSS. and an Armenian printing-press, which is kept constantly employed.

LE the cap of Latak. See Latak.

LE BIOT, a N. France, dep. Haute-Savoie, prov. Chablais, on the Doubs, about 9 m. from Thonon. It has a public square, an ancient church, the remains of an old castle, and a trade in corn, fruit, and dairy produce. Pop. 1443.

LE MAIRE STRAIT, S. America, the channel which separates Staten Island from Tierra del Fuego, about 30 m. wide. It is free from obstacles and has regular tides, which materially assist vessels in their passage, when taken at the right time. The tides rise perpendicularly from 6 ft. to 8 ft., according to the wind.

LEA a river, England. It rises in co. Bedford near Dunstable, flows first S.E. and then S. through co. Herts, past Ware Hertford, Chesham, and Watlington thence S., forming the boundary between Middlesex and Essex, and falls into the Thames at Blackwall; total course about 40 m.

LEA four pars. Eng.-1 Gloucestershire and Hereford, 702 ac. P. 226.-2 Lincoln, 2149 ac. P. 229.-3, Wilt, 1789 ac. P. 414.-4 (Warwick) Warwick 1438 ac. P. 268.

LEA the Irish Queen's co., 15,438 ac. Pop. 8410.

LEADENHAM par Eng. Lincoln; 2260 ac. P. 735.

LEADHILL, a mining vil, Scotland, co. Lanark, 88 m. S.E. Glasgow, on an easy activity both sides the Glasgow water. It consists of scattered detached cottages, has a chapel in connection with the Established church a school a library and a benevolent society. The male population is chiefly occupied in the neighbouring mines, whence large quantities of sulphur of lead are obtained—producing in 1850 about 380 tons of melted lead. The females are employed in flower-making machines. Allan Ramsay, the poet, and James Taylor and William Rymington, both clergymen of having originated steam navigation, were natives of the village. P. (1850) 900.

LEAKE, four pars. Eng.-1 Lincoln, 7655 ac. Pop. 2062.-2 York (N. Riding) 7590 ac. Pop. 1173.-3, (Leeds) Notes 2540 ac. Pop. 1148.-4, (West) Notes; 1850 ac. Pop. 190.

LEAMINGTON, or LEAMINGTON-SPRING, a N.W. par, and celebrated watering-place, England, co. Warwick, 20 m. S.E. Birmingham, on the railway thence to Oxford and among freely-wooded slopes, in the valley of the Leam, which is here crossed by a handsome stone bridge, and joins the Avon, about 1 m. below. It consists of an old and a new town, separated by the gardens of the royal Spa. Both parts have recently risen up and extended themselves with great rapidity, and include many new and handsome streets, terraces, crescents, and squares. This rapid prosperity is owing partly to the peculiar mildness and salubrity of the air, and partly to the mineral springs, which present the three varieties of sulphureous, saline, and chalybeate, and attract numerous visitors. For their accommodation, various bathing establishments have been erected, of which the Spa is that at the royal Spa, a large and elegant stone structure, with a Doric colonnade. The other principal edifices of the town are the parish church, an ancient building, which has recently been repaired and enlarged, and is in the decorated English style, with a tower and spire, two Byzantine chapels, one of them Gothic, and the other English, with a square embattled tower, crowned by pinnacles; the college, a spacious and substantial building, founded in 1645, by a proprietary, and affording education of a superior description; the public library, town-hall, assembly-rooms, theatre, music-hall, the Residence of the Duke, the Wesleyan and Unitarian Methodists.

Independence, Begonia, and E. Oshobos. Java places of worship, and Gura are prominent, called the Wan-shih schools. Among the remarkable institutions, that of the Wan-shih hospital is conspicuous. The only manufacture of any consequence is gloves. Buses are held twice a year. Area of par., 1720 sq. Pop 15 692.—(Local Correspondent.)

LEANG, or LEANG-TSONG, a city, China, prov. Kansoo, near the Great Wall, which here separates China from the Desert of Gobi, in Mongolia, lat. 37° 55' N., lon. 105° 25' E.

LEAO-TONG CHANG-KING or MOUKONG, a prov. Chinese kingdom, N. of the Great Wall, and separated by gorges from Mongolia and Corea, lat. 38° 20' to 43° 50' N., lon. 119° 15' to 124° 50' E. It is mountainous, and branches off towards the S. in a long peninsula, called the Regent's Sword, forming the E. boundary of the Gulf of Liao-Tong, into which Liao, the principal river of the province, flows. The climate is temperate and healthy, and the soil fruitful, particularly in wheat, barley, pulse, millet, and buck-wheat. Ginseng and shu-bark are also found, and the mountains are covered with chestnut-wood. The administration of the province is partly civil, and partly military. Chief town, Moukion.—The river is about 110 m. wide at the entrance, and stretches inland about 150 m. The mouth of the Liao, at the head of the Gulf, is in lat. 40° 45' N., lon. 123° E.

LEASINGHAM par. Eng. Lincoln, 3959 ac. P. 428

LEATHERHEAD a par. and small tn. England co. Surrey The town pleasantly situated, 17½ m. N.W. by 5 London on the Mole, here crossed by a bridge of 14 arches, has an ancient church an Independent chapel and a free national school Malting brewing, and tanning are carried on. Area of par., 4507 ac. Pop. 3041

LEATHLEY par. Eng. York (W. Riding) 2095 ac. Pop. 130

LEAU [Flemish, Leuue or Zout-Leuue] a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, on the Little Gete 33 m. E. Brussels. It has a church of the 13th century with an elegant and lofty tower, a townhouse of the 16th century in a somewhat dilapidated state, but with a fine facade, a brewery, a flour-mill, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1548

LEAVELAND, par. Eng. Kent 373 ac. Pop. 99

LEBA —1 A tn. in Friesland, prov. Groningen, gov. and 67 m. N.E. of Chelva. It is a small town, situated on the Lake of Leba with the Baltic. It has a church, a fishery and a trade in wood and salt. Pop. 945.—2 A lake, near above town, about 10 m. long, by 4 m. broad, and formed by the expansion of the river Leba. It communicates, by a canal, with the Baltic.—3 A river Frisia, which rises in Lake Semoor, circles Carlsburg, gov. Danzig, flows first N., forming the boundary between gov. Danzig and Chelva, then N.W., and discharges itself into the lake of same name, after a course of about 45 m. It is well supplied with salmon.

LEBADA, a tn. Greece. See LEBADA.

LEBANON, numerous places, U. States, America.—1 A tn. Penang, on the Union Canal, 24 m. E. Harrisburg, with a courthouse, jail, five churches, an academy, and several schools, and a number of breweries, mills, and printing-offices. Pop. 2500.—2 A vil. Ohio, 70 m. W.S.W. Columbus, with a courthouse, jail, three churches two iron foundries, two woolen factories, and two printing-offices. Pop. 1500.—3 A vil. Tennessee, 23 m. E. by N. Nashville. It contains a courthouse, jail, three churches, and two academies and near it is a large cotton factory. Pop. 1500

LEBANON (Mountains of) [Latin, Libanus, German, Libanon, French, Liban] two nearly parallel mountain ranges, which, commencing in the N. of Palestine, about lat. 34° 35' N., stretch S.S.W., enclosing between them a valley about 70 m. long, by 15 m. wide, now simply distinguished by the name of El-Bukaa, 'the valley, best known anciently by the name of Coela, or Kold Syria ["Hollow Syria"]. To distinguish the two ranges—that on the W. is called Lebanon, and that on the E. Anti-Lebanon; the Arabs, however, call the former Jebel-Lebanon, and the latter Jebel-sh-Sharby Lebanon, which lies almost parallel to the Mediterranean, and at its great distance it may be considered as terminating near the coast, a little N. of the mouth of the Litani, between Tyre and Beirut. It is the far loftier range of the two, and presents almost a continuous ridge without any marked break. It has never been accurately measured, but its loftiest summit—Jebel Samin, near Beirut, is supposed to be at least 10 000 ft. above the sea. Though under the snow limit, snow and ice remain throughout the year in the ravines around and below its summit, and, at a distance, assumes the appearance of radiant stripes. Anti-Lebanon has a much lower average height, but claims the outstanding point of the whole chain in Jebel ash-Shaikh, which is situated W.S.W. from Damascus, and has probably a height of about 11,000 ft. At this point, where the two ranges bend towards each other, and almost meet, leaving only a small, narrow gorge, through which the Litani has forced its way, the chain properly terminates, though a series of lower heights is continued E. as far as the shores of the Lake of Tiberias. The prevailing rock of Lebanon is limestone, of a whitish colour, and from this its name, which means 'white', is supposed to be derived, though others ascribe it to the snows which cover it. The waters which descend from the W. slopes of Lebanon, are carried directly to the sea, without being accumulated into any proper stream, those on the E. slopes of Anti-Lebanon go chiefly to augment the Barada, to which the plain and environs of Damascus owe so much of their fertility and beauty; the slopes of both ranges, however, during El-Bukaa, send their waters to the Litani, which flows between them in a S.S.W. direction, and, shortly after, escaping from their barriers, turns W., and falls into the sea. In the S. part of the chain, the Upper Jordan has its source. The loftiest summits of Lebanon, presenting lofty precipices and wild narrow gorges, are almost absolutely barren, but at some distance below vegetation makes its appearance, the pastures become verdant, and, by means of artificial terraces, cultivation is successfully carried on upon rugged slopes where it would otherwise be impossible. The forests of cedar, for which Lebanon was anciently celebrated, have almost disappeared, except from some of the more inaccessible crags. It was indeed long supposed that the only cedar-groves upon the chain, was on a lofty summit N. of that of Jebel Samin, where several trees, remarkable for their size and age, are seen, but others have since been found, and many trees, old and young, are scattered widely in many parts. The other prevailing forest trees are fir and oaks.—(Robinson's Researches in Palestine, Wilson's Leeds of the Bible, &c.)

LEBBEKE, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. E.landers, 18 m. E. by S. Ghent. Lake of Lebbeke, with a mill, ten saws, dye-works, oil-presses, flour-mills, and a manufactory of chimney. Weaving employs a considerable portion of the inhabitants. Pop. 4376.

LEBBDJAN, or LEBDEK, two tns. Russia.—1, Gov. and 111 m. W.N.W. Tambov, on the Don. It contains seven churches, and carries on a considerable trade, having, in particular, four yearly fairs, at which a great deal of business is done in cattle and Cossack horses. Pop. 5032.—2, Gov. and 77 m. W.N.W. Kharkov on the Akhehaule. It is surrounded with an earthen wall and ditch, and contains 15 wooden churches. Pop. 3571.

LEBENY or LEBENY, a vil. Hungary, Thibor Deszse, co. Wieselburg, near the Rapax, 3 m. from Elitzvany, having two churches, and the buildings of an abbey, with an old Gothic church. Pop. 2026.

LEBIDA, or LEBNA [anc. Lepta Magna], a ruined tn. in Africa, on the Mediterranean, 65 m. E.E.E. Tripoli. It contains magnificent remains of columns, inscriptions, baths, an aqueduct, an amphitheatre, and a triumphal arch.

LEBRILJA [anc. Solva], a tn. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 28 m. S. by W. Seville, near 1 bank Guadalquivir. It is tolerably well built, and has several squares, wide, though indifferently paved and dirty streets. A large church, formerly a mosque, in a mixture of the Arabic, Roman, and Gothic styles, five chapels, a townhouse, college, several schools, a well-endowed hospital, prison, convent and the remains of an ancient castle, with eight towers. Manufactures—cloth, freeze, thread, hempen fabrics, glass, earthenware, soap, chocolate, hair, bricks, tiles, &c. Pop. 6371.—(Madox.)

LEBRILJA, or CARAVALLER, a river New Granada, which rises about 85 m. S.W. Pamplona, near lat. 7° N., lon. 75° 40' W., flows N.N.W., and joins the bank Macabales, a little below the point where it begins to form the Isla de Morone, after a course of nearly 180 m. In chief affluents, all of which it receives on the right, are the Baruta, Ramaholota, and Oro.

LEBON, a co. Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. and 7 m. N. Frankfurt, cap. Lebn. It is a small town, formerly fortified, but has become a very insignificant place; with a church and a bakery. Pop. 1744. — The castle is flat, well wooded, and fertile. Area, 470 sq. m. Pop. 68,063.

LEBON (Latin, Lebon, Lebon, or Lebon), a co. Naples, cap. prov. Terra d'Otranto, 50 m. E.S.E. Taranto. It is surrounded by a deep ditch, and walls flanked with towers, and also defended by a castle or citadel. The space which it occupies is larger than its present population requires, and hence it has numerous deserted apartments. It is, however, a regular, well-built town. The houses are large and solidly constructed, though unfortunately of a soft porous stone, which readily absorbs moisture, and is said to be one cause of the general prevalence of catarrh. The most conspicuous edifices are the churches, of which there are 32, almost all Gothic, and deficient in lightness. The cathedral shares in this defect, but its interior is majestic, and does not offend the eye by the gaudy and grotesque ornaments which have been lavished on the other churches. The roof is of wood, stably carved and gilt. Lebon is the see of a bishop, and the seat of a high tribunal, and of a civil court. It also possesses a royal college, seminary, flourishing hospital, and theatre. The manufactures consist of woollens, cottons, silks, lace, and particularly of stuff, which is made in a large royal factory and is in high repute throughout the kingdom. The trade is chiefly in stuff and tobacco, cotton, oil, and wine. Pop. 14,450.

LEBON (Latin, Lebon) a co. Italy, Lombardy prov. and 18 m. E. E. Leoni, cap. dist., on Lake Como, at the point where the Adria issues from it, and is crossed by a handsome bridge of eight arches. It was once walled, and is the seat of a court of justice, contains a church, and has extensive manufactures of iron ware, and of articles in iron and copper, silk and cotton mills, a small haven, at which a trade is carried on, chiefly in silk of the district and transit goods and an important annual fair, which lasts 15 days. Pop. com. 4933. Dist. 18,427.

LEBON, a co. Spain, Aragon prov. and 85 m. S.E.E. Saragossa, near the Agua, with a church, and a primary school; manufactures of saffron, and woollen and linen cloth, and some trade in drugs. Pop. 1191.

LEBON, a river Germany, which runs in the Tyrol, in the mountains of Vorarlberg, a little E. of Bludenz, flows N.E. across Bavaria, and proceeds almost due N. past Augsburg, to its junction with R. bank Danube, about 12 m. above Neuburg, after a course of nearly 150 m. Its principal affluent is the Wertach. Its current is very impetuous, through a deep rocky channel. It forms numerous cascades, and is nowhere navigable.

LEBONICH, a co. Rhodan, Prussia, gov. and 10 m. S.W. Cologne, at the confluence of the Erft and Kessel. It is walled, entered by two gates, and is poorly though not irregularly built, has a court of law, two R. Catholic churches, manufactures of linen and a trade in horses. Pop. 1417.

LEBONHAUSEN, a co. Upper Bavaria, R. bank Lech, here crossed by a bridge, 2 m. N.E. Augsburg, with a church, manufactures of silk goods and wax-cloth, a trade in cattle, in iron and two other mills. Pop. 3163.

LEBONADE, a co. England, on Gloucestershire. The town, R. bank Thames, 27 m. E.E.E. Gloucester, is neatly built, has a fine ancient church, with a remarkably elegant spire, and a Baptist chapel. Area of par. 3542 ac. Pop. 1237.

LECK, a river, Holland. See LEE.

LECK, par. Irel. Donegal, 10,461 ac. Pop. 2611.

LECKFORD par. Eng. Hants, 2266 ac. Pop. 256.

LECKHAMPTON, par. Eng. Bucks, 3222 ac. Pop. 518.

LECKHAMPTON, par. Eng. Gloucester, 1230 ac. Pop. 2149.

LECKFIELD, a par. Eng. Leicestershire, 10,461 ac. Pop. 1237.

LECKPATRICK par. Irel. Tyrone, 18,347 ac. Pop. 5924.

LECKWITH par. Wales, Glamorgan, 1902 ac. Pop. 114.

LECKWITZ par. Scot. Perth, 3102 ac. Pop. 443.

LECTONE (see LECTONE, Coctus Lectone), a co. France, dep. and near R. bank Gers, 30 m. N. Auch, occupying a lofty isolated rock. Its position is thus at once strong and picturesque but the town itself is by no means handsome. It has a large and massive church, built by the English, in the Norman style, an old episcopal palace, now occupied by courts and public offices; and a marble statue to Marshal Lannes, Duke of Bellune, who was born here, at a hospital, a court of first resort, a communal college, and an agricultural society; manufactures of serge, coarse woollens, and leather; and a trade in corn, cattle, wine, and brandy. When the Romans invaded Gaul, Lectone was the capital of the Lectornes. It afterwards became a Roman colony and contained numerous Roman remains. In more modern times, it became a place of importance as a fortress. The Duke of Montpensier was imprisoned in it, in 1695, previous to his execution at Toulouse. Pop. 2107.

LECZNA, a co. Russia, Poland, 105 m. E.E.E. Warsaw, on the Wisla, with three churches, and two important fairs. Pop. 1900.

LEDA, a river, Germany, formed by the union of the Ohe and Marka, on the frontiers of Oldenburg and Hanover, flows first N.W., then W., and joins R. bank Elbe, a little below Lüneburg after a course of 24 m., of which part is navigable.

LEDARA, a co. Spain, Navarre, prov. and 50 m. W.S.W. Guesca, with a church, townhouse, prison, and two primary schools, and a trade in corn, wine, oil, and cattle. Pop. 1500.

LEDBURY a market co. and par. England, co. Hereford. The town, on a declivity at the S. extremity of the Malvern Hills, 13 m. E. by R. Hereford, has a handsome ancient church, in the Norman style, with a detached tower, surmounted by an elegant spire; various Dissenting chapels, an hospital, several almshouses, a dispensary, a reading and a sewerage, and an extensive circulating library. There are races in August. The manufactures of silk and broad-cloth which formerly flourished here, has declined but spinning and weaving are still carried on to a considerable extent, and there is a brisk trade in cheese and other; for the excellence of both of which articles, produced in great abundance in the vicinity the town has long been famed. The traffic of the place is materially benefited by the canal between Gloucester and Hereford. Area of par. 2184 ac. Pop. 4634.

LEDER, a co. Belgium, prov. E. Flanders, 19 m. E.E.E. Ghent, with a church, townhouse, school, two diilleries, two breweries, a cannyery tobacco-factory, two dye-works, and a rope-walk. Pop. 4168.

LEDEBERG, a co. Belgium, prov. E. Flanders, at the junction of the railways from Ghent to Tournai, and Ghent to Courtrai, 3 m. E.E. Ghent, with two castles, manufactures of sherry, and distilleries, breweries, oil, flour, and cotton mills. Pop. 2119.

LEDEGHEM, a co. Belgium, prov. W. Flanders, 1 m. bank Haine, 23 m. S. Bruges, with manufactures of tobacco and candles several breweries, an oil-mill, and a trade in flax and linen. Pop. 3608.

LEDENITE, or LEDENIK (UTTER DEN LANTERN), a market co. Bohemia, circle, and 9 m. E.S.E. Budweis, with a church, a school, townhouse, the works, a brewery, and a mill. Pop. 985.

LEDERMA (see Althaus), a co. Spain, Leon, prov. and 20 m. N.W. by R. Salamanca, on a hill, R. bank Tormes here crossed by a handsome bridge. It is well built, has six churches, two chapels, a townhouse, school, two schools, and a convent, and manufactures of leather and linen. Pop. 1571.

LEDITSCH (Latin, Ledetum), a co. Bohemia, circle, and 17 m. S.W. Olomouc, on the Sava. It has a fine castle, a denary church, a townhouse, burgher-hospital, a school, a brewery, and three mills. Pop. 1948.

LEDHAM par. Eng. York (W. Riding) 5176 ac. Pop. 1098.

LEE, three par. Eng. — 1, Bucks; 800 ac. Pop. 126. — 2, (Rutland), 1267 ac. Pop. 102. — 3, (Bedfordshire), 1267 ac. Pop. 141.

LEE, two rivers, Ireland. — 1, Co. Cork, rises in Lough Goggin, flows N. and after a course of 12 m., falls into the harbour of Cork. — 2, Rises in co. Kerry and, after a short course, falls into Tralee Bay.

LEE, a co. and par. England, co. Kent. The village, 7 m. S.E. by E. London, formerly consisted of a few detached houses, but now contains numerous handsome mansions and elegant villas, has an elegant parish church, with a lofty spire; a handsome grammar school, several almshouses, and other edifices. Area of par. 1975 ac. Pop. 3553.

LEEDS, par. Eng. Kent 1619 ac. Pop. 863.

LEEDS, a municipal and parishes England, co. York (W. Riding), and 23 m. S.E. York, on both sides of the Aire, which traverses the town in a direction nearly from W. to E., and is here crossed by six bridges two of them of stone, one of a single arch of suspension, and two suspension, on what has been called the bow and string principle, first introduced by a Leeds engineer. The part of the town on the r or E. bank consists chiefly of the populous suburbs of Hunslet and Holbeck, the much more important part on the N bank forms the town proper and occupies the summit and sides of a hill sloping E. W. and N. The length of the town along the Aire is about 2 m., and extends more than 1 m. behind it.

1. St. Peter's Church.
2. St. James's Church.
3. Trinity Church.
4. St. John's Church.
5. St. Mary's Church.
6. All Saints' Church.
7. St. Lawrence's Church.
8. St. Luke's Church.

9. St. Mark's Church.
10. St. George's Church.
11. St. Andrew's Church.
12. St. David's Church.
13. St. George's Church.
14. St. John's Church.
15. St. Mary's Church.
16. St. Michael's Church.
17. St. Peter's Church.

18. St. Paul's Church.
19. St. Thomas's Church.
20. St. James's Church.
21. St. John's Church.
22. St. Mary's Church.
23. St. Michael's Church.
24. St. Peter's Church.
25. St. Thomas's Church.

26. St. James's Church.
27. St. John's Church.
28. St. Mary's Church.
29. St. Michael's Church.
30. St. Peter's Church.
31. St. Thomas's Church.
32. St. James's Church.
33. St. John's Church.

In the older quarters, the streets are generally narrow and crooked. The only exception is the Briggate, which is at once spacious and handsome, gradually ascending from the old bridge in a direct line of about 600 yards, and forming the main thoroughfare. In the more modern quarters particularly on the W. slope, are several good streets and squares. What were outlying villages, more than a mile from the centre of the town, are now connected with it by long ranges of factories, houses, and villas, extending along the different roads and round the margin of the moors or commons at Woodhouse, Holbeck, and Hunslet. But, on the whole, the appearance of Leeds is by no means prepossessing; its atmosphere, owing to the number of factories, being always hazy with smoke. The houses are in general neatly and substantially built of brick, and roofed with grey slate, and many elegant mansions, possessed of all modern embellishments, have recently risen up. These are situated for the most part in Park Place, Park Mansions, and Woodhouse Square, in all of which the unoccupied ground is well laid out in pastures and shrubberies. In regard to paving, lighting, and the supply of water, Leeds is already in a tolerably satisfactory state and a system of sewerage has been carried out at a cost of £168,000. £95,000 have been expended on general improvements and £325,000 on water-works.

In the parish of Leeds there are 86 churches, of which 25 are in the town and suburbs. Of chapels, eight belong to Wesleyans and 10 to Methodists of other denominations six Independent, seven Baptist, four R. Catholic, three Unitarian, a Friends meeting house, &c. Among the parish churches the greater part of which are modern, the most deserving of notice are St. Peter's a decorated cruciform structure; St. John's, in the later English style, with an embattled tower, Holy Trinity a Doric structure, with a tower, one stage of which is Corinthian and the other Ionic; St. Paul's, endowed by a handsome Ionic portico, Christ Church, in the decorated English style; St. Mary's, in a similar style; and St. Lawrence's, completed in 1846 at an expense of £20,000. Two of the Wesleyan chapels are conspicuous both for their elegance and dimensions, each containing 8000 sittings. The new Independent chapel, East Parade, is a handsome Grecian, and Mill Hill Unitarian chapel (opened 1846), a fine Gothic building; and one belonging to the R. Catholic has a spire 150 ft. high.

The other conspicuous public edifices of Leeds are the Commercial Buildings a large and majestic Grecian structure, so designed as to have three fronts, one of which, containing the main entrance, has an imposing appearance; and is so arranged as to combine a new-room, concert-room, and various public offices the stock exchange, an ornamental structure of the composite order the court-house, a plain building, with a neat Corinthian portico, and a fine bronze statue of the late Sir Robert Peel placed in front of it, the industrial school, and the new house of recovery, beautiful Elizabethan structures, with highly decorated fronts and octagonal towers; the borough jail a vast erection on improved principles, at an expense of £43,000 the philosophical hall, a handsome building, partly occupied as a museum, and the central market, a spacious covered building, with a Grecian front, spacious shops, and avenues of stalls. But the handsomest edifice is the town-hall, opened by the queen in 1858, and considered one of the mechanical institutions, and numerous other schools in connection with the Established Church or the various bodies of dissenters. Among literary and scientific institutions, are the Church Institute, the Literary and Philosophical Society, and the mechanical Institute, the latter one of the most flourishing of its kind in the kingdom; and there are several good libraries, especially the Leeds Library, originally founded by Dr Francis in 1765; and the new subscription library, of much more recent origin. The leading charitable establishments are the infirmary in the benefit of which in-door or out-door patients to the number of about 8000 annually participate and for which a new and splendid building has just been erected in a healthy situation at a cost of £100,000; the house of recovery, intended for fever and other infectious diseases; the dispensary the eye and ear infirmary; several hospitals and almshouses and a variety of philanthropic associations, as the Tradesmen's Benevolent Society, the Strangers' Friend Society, the Church Visiting Society, &c. There are several public houses that on Woodhouse Moor was opened in 1835, the others more recently.

Leeds stands in the centre of one of the most important coal fields of England, it is accessible from the sea, by the river Aire, by vessels of 150 tons communicates by canals both with the Mersey at Liverpool, and the Humber at Goole and many manufacturing towns; and has become the centre of a network of railways, leaving it almost nothing to desire in respect to facility of transport. These great advantages have been turned to good account, and the prosperity of the town already rapid almost beyond example, continues to increase.

In woollens, one of the great staple manufactures of the kingdom, it takes a decided lead. For a long time, only the coarsest kinds of woollens were manufactured, and the greater part of the weaving was performed by domestic looms. But the valuable improvements in machinery and other processes, in the invention and perfecting of which Mr William Hirst, a native of the place, greatly distinguished himself have led both to an immense increase of the quantity and improvement in the quality of the goods. Cloths which, for fineness and colour cannot be surpassed are now regularly produced. The most important woollens made here are super fine broad-cloths, coarse narrow, pelton cloth, shawls, Scotch camlets, blankets, &c. The greater part of the cloth is disposed of in the cloth halls. These are two immense and most ungenerally brick buildings, in each of which two weekly markets are held, and the goods ready for sale are brought forward and arranged for inspection in avenues of stalls. The one called the White Cloth Hall is for undyed goods; the other is for dyed goods, on which all the processes of manufacture have been performed except shearing or finishing. Goods to the value of between six and seven millions sterling are annually sold by the Leeds merchants. Flax spinning and weaving are likewise extensively carried on and employ almost as many hands as the woollen manufactures. The largest flax mills in Europe are in the suburbs of Holbeck.

The manufacture of locomotive steam-engines occupies about 5000 hands; there are several tool-making establishments and machine-making is extensively carried on. Other manufactures, of a greater or less extent, are cotton and silk goods, leather, Spanish morocco leather, glass, earthenware, mustard, chicory and tobacco. There are also several saw-mills all-mills in the town and neighbourhood. A chamber of commerce, commercial exchange, and a stock exchange have been established for the benefit of trade, and several markets, the principal of which are Kirkgate market, for general produce, and Southgate cattle market, supply the domestic and other wants of the district. Ordinary markets are held every Tuesday and Saturday; cattle markets

THE TOWNHALL, LEEDS.—From a photograph.

one of the finest municipal buildings in the kingdom. It is a rectangular pile, measuring 200 feet, standing on an elevated platform, and presenting four handsome facades enriched with Corinthian columns and pilasters, supporting a bold entablature. Opposite the E. front, which has a deeply recessed portico of 10 columns, and is approached by a flight of 25 stone steps 165 feet long stands a fine bronze statue of the Duke of Wellington. Over the principal entrance, which is through a marble vestibule 70 feet high in the E. front, rises a square clock tower terminated by a richly ornamented dome and having a height of 225 feet. In the vast block of building are contained two large courts for the West Riding assizes, which are now held here, a police court, and other offices and the Victoria hall a magnificent room, 180 feet long, 75 feet wide, and 75 feet high. The ceiling is arched and divided into panels, the sides are indented by five bays, with coupled Corinthian columns 30 feet in height, and at the N. end is a circular apse occupied by an organ which cost £5000. The exterior height of the building is about 65 feet, but the roof of the Victoria hall in the centre rises to an altitude of 98 feet. Enclosure of the land, fittings, and organs, the town-hall cost about £100,000; it will contain 2000 persons sitting, or nearly 8000 standing. The principal educational establishment in which classical instruction is given, is the free grammar-school originally founded in 1562 and handsomely rebuilt in 1826, and enriched by bequests, so as to have an income of about £2700 and the privilege of an exhibition at Oxford, and four scholarships at Cambridge; the average attendance is over 200 of the income, £850 is applied to the repair of highways, and £400 for the relief of the poor. For a liberer education, a free place belongs to the industrial school already mentioned, the buildings and grounds of which cover 6 acres, and provide accommodation for 400 children, teachers apartments dining-hall, dormitories, and all other requisites, on the most complete scale. There every Wednesday; leather flies eight times a year; and general fairs in July and November.

Leeds received its first charter of incorporation in the 2d of Charles I; and a second, the former having been forfeited, in the 15th of Charles II. The parliamentary borough is co-extensive with the parish, and 30 m in circuit. It returns two members to Parliament. Recreational grounds (1865) 8400. The vicinity of the town is crowded with villages, most of the inhabitants of which are employed in manufacturing for the Leeds market; and adorned with many handsome villas, but the only object possessed of much interest is the fine ruin of Kirkstall Abbey about 2 m. distant. The most eminent natives of Leeds or its vicinity are Simonson, the engineer of Eddystone lighthouse Dr Priestley, Dr Richard Bentley and the two Milnes, Joseph and Isaac, both distinguished as theologians, and the former author of a well-known church history.

The population of the different townships which make up the parish or parliamentary borough of Leeds, and of which the town proper is considered as a single township, is exhibited in the following table—

Townships.	Pop. 1801.	Pop. 1841.	Women in 1841.
Leeds	101,261	117,698	58,908
Halifax	14,158	18,934	9,861
Rumstall	10,478	35,768	5,889
Armley	5,198	5,764	1,849
Beeston	1,978	2,447	1,548
Roundley	8,948	8,990	2,149
Chapel Allerton	1,487	8,883	697
Farnley	4,732	8,961	628
Handingley cum Ilkley	4,104	9,474	2,097
with Kirkstall	1,884	1,978	87
Potter-Newton	7,882	13,008	2,113
Wetherley	16	13	7
Hamlet of Coldeston	254	271	57
Hamlets of Othamsthorpe, Wharfedale, and Othamsthorpe
Total population of borough	171,805	207,165	106,174

The total population, which in 1861 was 265,002, had risen in 1866 to 328,167.

LEEDS, a vil and com Belgium, prov Brabant, on the Yoor 13 m. E Brussels. It has a fine castle and a blast-furnace, the first established in the province. The chief employment is agriculture. Pop. 1723.

LEEK a market tn. and par England, co Stafford. The town, 28 m S by E Manchester has well paved lighted, and remarkably clean streets; some houses of rather an antique appearance and many good modern buildings, two churches, a R Catholic and several Dissenting chapels, a townhall a union workhouse, a grammar-school, two news-rooms, a mechanics institute, a dispensary eight almshouses and other charities. The manufacture of sewing silks, twist, ribbons galloons, and a variety of other small silk wares is carried on to a great extent. Many females also find employment in embroidery. Leek is likewise noted for the excellence of its black dye. Area of par 34,370 ac. Pop. 13,938.

LEEK (Worcester) par Eng Worcester 1860 ac. P 428.

LEEK (Dor.) a vil, Dorset, prov and 8 m S W Dorchester. It is a closely built, flourishing place, with a church and a synagogue. Around it pastures are cut in great quantities, and, with making of bonnets, forms the chief employment. In winter, skaters come from all parts round about and return with bundles of Leek bonnets on their heads. Pop. 1064.

LEEKDALE, a vil Holland prov N Brabant, 6 m S E Eindhoven, on the Kleine Dommel, with a R Catholic church and three annual cattle fairs. Pop. 619.

LEEN, a vil Holland, prov Groningen, 31 m W by N Appingedam, with two churches and a school. Pop. (agricultural), 522.

LEEUW, a tn. Hanover, 2.5 Friedland, gov and 17 m S. Aachen, on ball-r. bank Lahn. It is poorly built, has dark narrow streets, two churches, a townhouse, gymnasium, and three almshouses; manufactures of linen, vinegar-works distilleries and breweries, building-yards, at which a considerable number of vessels are fitted out; and a harbour at which a considerable trade, chiefly in agricultural produce, is carried on. In 1846 830 vessels entered, and 963 left the port, they were mostly Hanoverian. Pop. 6719; ball, 3686.

LEEUWARD, a tn. Holland, prov S. Holland, 26 m E

Rotterdam, 1, bank Linge. It is very regularly built streets nearly all E and W and forms a parallelogram, surrounded by walls now planted with trees, and ditches, and has two churches, several schools an orphan hospital, scene tanning and glass-blowing, and a horse market. Pop. 1683.

LEEUWSTADT, a vil. Holland, prov and 15 m S E Utrecht, with a church and a school. P (agricultural), 654.

LEESBURG, a post vil. U States, Virginia, 84 m N Washington, with a seat court-house, jail, market house bank three churches, academy a female seminary, and 690 houses.

LEEST, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov and 16 m N Antwerp, on the Senne; with manufactures of linen, a distillery a corn and a malt mill. Pop. 1430.

LEEUW (St. Francis) a vil. and com. Belgium, prov Brabant, 6 m. S. R. W. Brussels. It has breweries distilleries, an oil-works, and two flour-mills. Pop. 3814.

LEEUWARDEN (Friesland, Leusward Latin Leopoldia) a tn. Holland the largest in prov Friesland 70 m. N E Amsterdam, lat 53° 12' 14" N, lon 6° 47' 41" E. (p), in a fertile plain on the Ee, 10 m. from the sea, though once it lay on the shores of a deep bay. It is surrounded by a deep, broad ditch, with an exterior talus planted with trees, and the site of the walls has likewise been formed into a planted promenade. The town is well built, adorned with numerous elegant buildings, both public and private, is intersected by numerous canals, and is rapidly increasing. The principal buildings are the former court of the stadholders of Friesland a plain looking structure, now converted into a royal palace the Government house, a large, fine edifice; the old Landhuis, now used for the courts of first resort the house of correction an extensive building, in which the prisoners are arranged in four classes and are employed in manufacturing wool into yarn cloth, night-caps, &c; the civil and military prison, completed in 1571 a rich specimen of tiled brick and stone work, the large handsome townhouse, which stands near the palace; the weigh-house, corn exchange, new barracks, and the churches of which there are three Dutch Reformed, two Evangelical Lutheran a Baptist a R. Catholic and a synagogue. The benevolent institutions include two general and three orphan hospitals two poorhouses and several schools for the poor. Of other schools there are three Latin, a town a commercial, and numerous elementary and intermediate and there are likewise several learned societies, as the society for Friesland history antiquities, and language a natural history society &c., and also various associations for the distribution of tracts, of Bibles, and other religious purposes.

Leuwarden carries on a considerable trade in the produce of the province. It has a famed weekly market; an annual well-attended cattle market, and two horse markets, for the convenience of all of which there are several large market-places. It likewise has two breweries, eight distilleries, five potteries, seven tan yards, eight boat-building yards, as many rope-walks manufactures of sherry tobacco soap, and linen and saw oil cement, walk, and corn mills. P (1850) 24,506.

LEEUWIN (Cape), the most S W point of Australia lat. 34° 32' S, lon 116° 6' E, 174 m. S Swan River and about the same distance W from King George Channel.

LEEWARD ISLAND, lat. the West Indian Islands between lat. 15° and 16° N. See INDIAN (West).

LEFFE, a vil Italy, Lombardy, prov and 12 m. S. N. E Bergamo with a parish and several auxiliary churches, mass factories of cloth a silk-mill and a steam of lignite, which is worked to some extent. Pop. 1300.

LEFKOSIA a cap Cyprus. See NICOSIA.

LEFOUKA or LEFOUKA one of the Tonga isls, R. Pacific Ocean lat. 16° 48' 12" S, lon 174° 30' W (p), about 7 m long and 3 m broad. The inhabitants in 1800 acted on the pretence Fort-ne-France, and measured nearly the whole of the crew.

LEGAN a market in Bavaria, circle Schwab, 15 m N W Kempten with two churches, manufactures of tobacco-boxes three mills and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1227.

LEGANES, a tn. Spain New Castile prov and 10 m. S. S. W Madrid. It is indifferently built has three squares, a church three chapels, a townhouse, prison, hospital, two schools, an extensive infirmary barracks, and several handsome palaces and villas of the nobility and wealthy merchants of Madrid. Manufactures—wool cloth—and oil. P 1855.

LEGANIEL, a vil Spain, New Castile, prov and about 28 m. from Cuenca. It has 111 formed and irregular streets, a parish church, court-house, prison, primary school, museum, sculpture of articles in sparrows, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1104.

LEGAZPIA is a Spain, Biscay prov. Guipuzcoa, in a plain 1 bank Urola, 37 m. R.W. St. Sebastian. It occupies chiefly a square and a well-paved street, has a Gothic church with three naves, a handsome town-hall, a prison and a primary school, numerous fortifications, a mint and a paper mill and several flour mills. Pop. 1133.

LEGNOURNE, par. Eng. Lincoln, 1910 sq. Pop. 651.
LEGNÉ, a tn. and com. France, dep. Loire-Inférieure, 23 m. S. Nantes, r. bank Loire. During the war of La Vendée it was almost reduced to a heap of ruins. It has a handsome church, cathay of granites, and some trade in grain, cattle, wine, and fruit. Pop. 3401.

LEGELSHOFST, a vil. Bremen, circle Middle Rhine, land. Rorw. with a church, and several breweries. Pop. 1408.

LEGEND, a vil. Hungary. Higher Danube, on Neograd, 8 m. from Buda, with a trade in wine. Pop. 1121.

LEGIER (Br.), two places Belgium.—1 A vil. and com. prov. Luxembourg on the Ton, 9 m. S.W. Arlon. It has two breweries, several oil, paper, saw and flour mills and a distillery. Pop. 1805.—2 A vil. and com. prov. Namur, on the Esplan, 39 m. W. K.W. Mons. It has two breweries, a flour-mill, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1360.

LEGER (Br.), several small towns France.—1 Dep. Yonne, about 10 m. from Avallon; the birth place of Voltaire, in whose unfinished skull, as a military engineer almost every fortress in France is indebted. P. 1833.—2 (near D'Honn) Dep. Seine-et-Marne 12 m. W.R.W. Châlons. Near it are extensive gypsum quarries, and several coal pits. Pop. 1856.

LEGHAWOOD per feet. Barwick 6430 ft. P. 587.

LEGNORNI (Italian, Legnora, French, Legnora, Latin, Portus Hirculus Legnora) a seaport in Tuscany, comp. Pisa, on the extremity of a tongue of land which stretches into the Mediterranean; lat. (high tide) 43° 32' 42" N., lon. 10° 37' 48" E. (s.), 50 m. W.R.W. Florence, with which, and with Pisa, it is connected by railway. It is built entirely in the form of a square, surrounded by modern walls, with five towers and establishments are the Duomo, originally only a parish church, and of much limited dimensions, that a new cathedral, on a larger scale, has been begun, but possessed of a facade designed by Luigi Rosselli and several good paintings the church of the Madonna, with good pictures by Rosselli and 11 Vallinotto; two Greek churches, a synagogue, richly ornamented with marbles, a mosque, a dural palace of little architectural merit; a marble statue of Ferdinand I., by Pietro Tacca; the laureates of San Jacopo, San Jacopo, and San Leopoldo, all well-managed institutions and remarkable structures, particularly the last, which is one of the most magnificent works of the kind in Europe; the Torre de Marzocco, built of red marble, and so called from the Marzocco or Lion by which it is surmounted; a theatre, public library, and aqueduct. The manufactures consist chiefly of articles in cord, of which there is a valuable factory; woollen and silk goods, straw bonnets, glass, paper, soap, cordage, leather, enamel, &c.

Possessing the privilege of a free port, Leghorn has an extensive trade, both general and transit, furnishing the chief source of its prosperity. The harbour is of large extent, but somewhat difficult of entrance, from the numerous shoals which surround it. It is also much silted up particularly in the inner harbour, which is now chiefly used as a repairing and building docks. The outer harbour is protected by a sea tank, which extends about 1 m. into the sea. The depth of water at its extremity however, is not more than 18 ft. and diminishes rapidly towards the interior, making it inaccessible by vessels of large burden. The roadstead, lying W. K. W. from the harbour, is protected by a long sandbank, which breaks the violence of the waves; and, though exposed at times to a heavy swell, has good anchorage in ample depth. The principal exports are silk, raw and manufactured, straw, raw and plaited; straw bonnets, huxes and huxes sold, fruit, wine, oil, coral, marble, paper, timber, corn, huxes, aniseed, &c., the principal imports, colonial produce, raw cotton, coarse twist cotton and woollen goods, dyestuffs, metals, hardware, earthenware, painted glass, &c. The number of vessels entered in 1863 was 7586, of 891,464 tons, cleared 7616, of 898,514 tons.

Leghorn is the see of a bishop, the residence of a civil and a military governor, the seat of a court of primary resort, a chamber of commerce, foreign consulates, sanitary directory, several important public offices, and library, scientific, artistic and benevolent institutions. Though originally a Roman port, it has not a vestige of antiquity, and had dwindled down into a fishing village, when its great capabilities for commerce were discovered by the grand-dukes of the Medici family who surrounded it with fortifications, constructed its harbour and bestowed upon it valuable privileges of which not the least important was full toleration to all nations and creeds. It suffered much during the ascendancy of Napoleon from his continental blockade, but recovered so rapidly after his downfall that it has more than doubled its population since 1835. P. 83,543.

LEGHIA or COURT HEIDEN ISLAND, a group, N Pacific, Marshall Archipelago, Caroline; the centre is. In lat 9° 51' 30" N., lon. 160° 15' 30" E. On the N.W. of the group are several large islands, well covered with coconuts, palm trees. The natives are tall, handsome, robust men, and live chiefly on fish.

LEGER (Br.), a vil. Switzerland, on a Vaud, dist. and about 3 m. from Yverdon. It is surrounded by fine villas, and has a trade in wine, and an important annual cattle market, held in winter. Pop. 771.

LEGNAGO, a tn. Italy. Veneto, prov. and 22 m. S.R. Verona, dep. dist. r. bank Adige, here crossed by a wooden bridge. It is ruggedly fortified, has a court of justice, and several public offices, a parish church, and two oratories a gymnasium, and civil hospital, manufactures of silk and sea leather, and a trade in iron and steel. The chief divisions of the latter exhibit the visible nobility. The French were defeated here in 1701. Pop. 5900.

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|--------------------------|
| 1. Fortezza Vecchia (old fortress). | 6. Piazza del Consolato. |
| 2. Piazza del Duomo. | 7. Piazza del Mercato. |
| 3. Piazza della Libertà. | 8. Piazza del Palazzo. |
| 4. Piazza della Pace. | 9. Piazza del Palazzo. |
| 5. Piazza della Vittoria. | 10. Piazza del Palazzo. |

green, and well built, consisting generally of quincies, sugar and well-paved streets. It is of comparatively recent origin, having been a mere fishing village up to the middle of the 16th century and hence possesses few objects of interest in architecture and art. The most remarkable feature LEGNAJA, a town and coal-mining town, 1 bank Arno, close by Florence, of which it may almost be considered a suburb. It contains a number of fine villas, and has an extensive iron foundry. Pop. 11,120. Elev. 943 ft.

LEGNANO, a town and coal-mining town, Lombardy prov and 14 m. N.W. Milan on the Olona, here crossed by two stone bridges, connecting the two portions of the town. It has a parish, and two auxiliary churches, an hospital, educational establishment, and manufactures of cotton and silk goods and cotton and silk mills. In 1176, the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa was defeated here by the Milanese. Pop. 4790.

LEGRAID, a market town, Glamorgan, Glamorgan, co. Glamorgan, on the coast of the Mer, 24 m. E. Warrington; with a townhouse, and several mills. Pop. 2337.

LEGHBY, par. Eng. Lincoln 2386 ac. Pop. 853.

LEHJ, or LA, a town in the W. Himalayas, cap. of Ladak or Middle Tibet, 2 m. from the bank Indus, 310 m. N. Simla, lat. 34° 11' N. lon. 73° 14' E., in a fine open valley about 11,000 ft. above sea-level. It is enclosed by a wall, surmounted at intervals with conical or square towers, and extending on each side, to the summit of the mountains. The streets are very irregular and intricate, the houses vary in height from one to three stories, and are built partly of stone, and partly of unburned brick, and being white-washed, have a lively appearance. They have generally wooden balconies in front. The roofs are flat and are constructed of the trunks of poplars, covered with a layer of willow twigs and this with another of straw, a coat of mud overlaying the whole. The town contains a palace of the rajah, and several temples, all ex-

LEHRBERG, or LEHRBERG, a market town, Bavaria, Middle Franconia, on the Rhine, here crossed by a stone bridge, 26 m. W. & W. Hildesheim, with a castle, church, synagogues, and six mills. Pop. 1091.

LEHRE, a town, Beloechistan, prov. Punjab, Gujrat, 168 m. S.E. Kohat; lat. 29° 14' N. lon. 68° 34' E. It is on a slope of between 1000 and 1500 houses, and is surrounded by a mud rampart strengthened with bastions. Pop. between 5000 and 6000.

LEHUA, or OKERHIMA ISLAND one of the smaller Sand which take off N. and N.W. a new harbor rock.

LEHIA, a town, Punjab, on a small branch of the Indus, about 3 m. E. from the main stream, 204 m. W. & W. Lahore, lat. 30° 59' N. lon. 71° 5' E. It has a large amount of both direct and transit trade, and is, besides, the mart for the produce of the surrounding country which is very fertile. The principal articles of sale are indigo, madder, sugar, silk, cotton, wool, iron, copper, glue, and grain. Pop. 15,000.

LEIBICZ, or LYNNHOLM, a town, Hungary, Thier Thaum, co. Zips, 1 m. S. Kármán; with two churches, a high school, and manufactures of tobacco, ordinary linen, and damask, and rubber, etc., with a tanning establishment. Pop. 2400.

LEIBNITZ, or LEIBNITZ, a town, Austria, Styria, 20 m. S. by E. Graz with a church, an old castle, a library and an hospital. Pop. 1100.

LEICESTER, or LEICESTERSHIRE, an inland co. Eng. land bounded N. by cos. Nottingham and Derby W. by Derby and Warwick S. by Northampton, and E. by Rutland and Lincoln; area, 515,840 sq. of which 480,000 ac. are arable, meadow, and pasture. Surface varied and uneven; but possessing no bold features. The county is nearly equally divided geologically by the liss and sandstone formations the former occupying the greater portion of the E. the latter of the W. side. The coal formation exists to a considerable extent on the W. and the clay-slate in Charnwood forest. Besides coal, limestone, gypsum, slate, whinstone, and clay are among the chief mineral productions. The principal river is the Soar which flows through the centre of the county are in permanent pasture, the greater proportion of which is of the liss formation, the corn lands being chiefly on the sandstone. Along the banks tremely rude. Loh is important as the great rendezvous for the intercourse between the Punjab and Chinese Territory, and the principal mart for the sale of shawl wool brought from the latter region. Pop. variously stated from 4000 to 12 000.

LEH—From Harwich and Tenter's Travels.

LEHE, a vil. Hanover principality Stade, dist. Brunen, on the Weser and Gessie, cap. hml. near Bremerhafen; with a church, the works, a trade in horses, and some shipping. Pop. vil. 1846 had 6182.

LEHRESEN, a town, Germany, Saxony-Meiningen, 7 m. S.E. Gumbrecht; with manufactures of silkworm. Pop. 997.

LEHIGH, a river, U. States, which rises near Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania, and, after a S.E. course of about 100 m. joins 1 bank Delaware, at Easton. A canal from Easton to Whitehaven serves to open up an important coal-field.

LEHNIN, a town, Prussia, prov. Brandenburg gov. and 14 m. W. & W. Potsdam; with a church, the ruins of an old monastery, and the works. Pop. 966.

LEHOTA, numerous places, Hungary:—1 (Pécs) A vil. Hither Thaum, on Gőz, 23 m. from Moson with a church, iron mines, an iron-works, and some transit trade. Pop. 981.—2, (Győr). A vil. Hither Danube, co. Bars, 20 m. from Szekes; with a church, and a trade in fruit and timber. Pop. 981.—3, (Károly). A vil. Hither Danube, co. Liptov, 12 m. from Vichodna, near the Waag. Pop. 908.—4, (Ábra). A vil. Hither Danube, co. Buda, 15 m. from Nottul; with an iron-works, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 901.—5, (Pécs). A vil., more by the river; with a church. P. 1168.

of the streams, the pasture is devoted to the fattening of stock, or for meadows while on the higher and colder land, it is chiefly applied to dairy farming and the production of cheese, some of which is of that kind called Bailton but various qualities are manufactured. Barley is the principal crop, but wheat, oats, and beans, are all extensively cultivated, and produce excellent crops. The Leicestershire sheep consist principally of the old Leicesters, the new Leicesters, or Dishley breed, and the Charnwood or forest breed. They all produce long, crimping wool. Leicestershire is one of the great seats of the stocking manufacture, which is carried on in all the towns and villages in the county. Silk plumb for hats, lace, agricultural implements, pottery and firebrick are also made here. Owing to the openness of the country and other recommendations, Leicestershire has been long famous as a hunting country. Milton Mowbray being the headquarters of the sportsmen during the season. It returns six members to Parliament four for the county; registered electors (1861), N. division, 4029; S. division, 5183; and two for the borough of Leicester. Principal towns—Leicester, Loughborough, and Hinckley. It is intersected by numerous railways and canals. Pop. (1841) 316,867; (1851) 290,808.

LEICESTER, a town, England, cap. and seat of the county of above co., 38 m. N. W. London, on the North-Western and S. Midland railways, 7 bank Soar, here crossed by a handsome modern and three ancient bridges. It possesses a fine promenade, called the New Walk, and consists of a great number of spacious streets, one of which, forming the principal thoroughfare, extends from S. to N. above 1 m.; the houses, chiefly of brick, roofed with slate, are substantially though not very regularly built; and the whole town is well paved, well lighted with gas, and amply supplied with water. The more important public buildings are the church of All Saints, more remarkable for its antiquity than its architectural merit; with an ancient font, a curious clock, and fine wood carvings; St. Margaret's, a large and beautiful structure of the 15th century, exhibiting the different English styles, and surmounted by a lofty tower, with a fine chime of bells; St. Martin's, in the form of a cross, with a tower rising from its centre, and terminating in a spire, a window with beautiful stained glass, and an excellent organ; St. Mary's, with a tower and lofty crooked spire and roof, formed in part of intricately-carved oak. St. Nicholas, a very ancient Gothic church, said to have been partly built with the materials of a Roman temple, of which a considerable fragment is still seen in an adjoining wall; St. George's, a handsome modern structure, with a fine tower and spire, 170 ft. high, the guild-hall, the collegiate school, in the Tudor style, the public library and news-room, the courtrooms, county rooms, assembly-room, theatre, music hall, county hospital, county and borough jails. Besides the above, there are other places of worship belonging to the Established church, and 31 to the Dissenters—concluding, among the latter, nine Baptist, in one of which the celebrated Robert Hall long officiated, two Independent, three Calvinistic, two Wesleyan, and three Primitive Methodist; one R. Catholic, one Unitarian, and one Friends. The educational establishments, in addition to the proprietary college, already mentioned, include a free grammar-school, a school of surgery, and national, British, and infant schools, among the more important benevolent institutions are Trinity and Weyton's hospitals, a female asylum, and various other charities. The chaf. history associations are a literary and philosophical society, with a good museum; and a mechanics institute, with a library of 2600 vols.

The staple manufacture is cotton and worsted hosiery, which furnishes an important export; and both in the weaving and other accompanying processes, employs the far larger part of the population. The other manufactures are shawls, lace, ropes and twines, thread, needles, pipes, and stocking frames. The trade is greatly facilitated by a canal, communicating with various lines of navigation, and more especially by railway. Markets are held three a-week; and fairs, chiefly for horses, cattle, and sheep, 13 times a year. Leicester is a place of considerable antiquity and was known to the Romans under the name of Raia. A variety of Roman remains have been found in it at various times, and some as recently as 1851. Under the heptarchy, it formed part of the kingdom of Mercia; and in 874 was seized by the Danes, who made it their chief abode, and retained possession of it till Ethelred, daughter of Alfred the Great, and widow of the Duke of Mercia, expelled them, with great slaughter. It was afterwards fortified by walls, and defended by a strong castle, both of which were demolished in the reign of Henry II. It suffered severely during the wars of Lancaster and York, and also during the Parliamentary war—having, in the latter, been first taken by storm by the Royalists, and then re-taken by the Republicans. It sends two members to Parliament. Electors (1851) 4027. Pop. (1851) 60,564.

LEIGH, several places, England—(1.) A market tn. and par., co. Lancaster. The town, 11 m. W by N Manchester, with which and Bolton it is connected by railway, contains an ancient parish church, several Dissenting places of worship, and a R. Catholic chapel, a free grammar-school, a national, infant, and other schools; and has manufactures of silk fabrics, fustians, cambrics, and muslins, carried on to a great extent; and near it are tanneries, glass-works, stone-quarries, and coal-pits. In 1764, Thomas High, rector-church, of this place, constructed the first steam-engine, which he named after his daughter. Pop. 5106. The parish encompasses the chapelry of Astley Atherton and Bedford, and the township of Pottsgill and Westgill, and is noted for its chert. are. 13,192 ac. Pop. 25,000.—(2.) A vil. and par., co. Bedford. The village, 5 m. S. by E. Clonside, is straggling and irregular, and has a handsome cruciform parish church, three Dissenting chapels, a free, and several other schools. Inhabitants chiefly employed in agriculture. Area of par. 1065 ac. Pop. 1674.—(3.) A maritime vil. and par., co. Essex. The village, 16 m. S.E. Chelmsford, on a steep acclivity 1. bank Thames, has a parish church and a Methodist chapel, the former, an ancient structure, on the top of the hill on the acclivity of which the town is built; two good schools, and about 1/2 to dissent, is an extensive manufactory of coarse potteryware. A very limited trade is carried on in coals, but the principal occupation of the inhabitants is fishing upwards of 150 boats being employed in the fishery trade, of which from 500 to 1000 gallies are sent to London weekly during the season. Area of par. 3331 ac. Pop. 1370.—(Local Correspondent.)

LEIGH, several par. Eng.—1. Gloucester, 1730 ac. Pop. 470.—2. Kent, 4660 ac. Pop. 1161.—3. Surrey 8710 ac. Pop. 475.—4. Worcester, 6129 ac. Pop. 2843.—5. (upon Mendips) Somerset 1425 ac. P. 581.—6. (de la Mure), Wals 1237 ac. Pop. 83.—7. (North) Devon, 694 ac. Pop. 290.—8. (North), Oxford, 2460 ac. Pop. 725.—9. (South) Devon 2579 ac. Pop. 331.—10. (South), Oxford, 2074 ac. Pop. 369.—11. (West) Devon 2616 ac. Pop. 508.

LEIGHLIN (Oak), a vil. and par. Ireland co. and 8 m. S.W. Carlow, on the banks of the Avonbeg, in which are some interesting monuments. Area, 9930 ac. Pop. 3511.

LEIGHLIN BARRON, a market tn. Ireland co. and 7 m. S.W. Carlow on the Barrow by which it is divided into two almost equal parts, communicating with each other by a bridge. It contains the parish church of Wells, a R. Catholic chapel, a national school and the ruins of Black castle, a strong fortress erected in the 12th century as a defence of the English settlers in Ireland and the remains of a round tower, and of an ancient monastery. Pop. 1392.

LEIGHMONEY par. and chaf. 2716 ac. Pop. 583.

LEIGHES, two par. Eng. Essex.—1. (Great), 3125 ac. Pop. 674.—2. (Little) 1080 ac. Pop. 164.

LEIGHTON two par. Eng.—1. Hertfordshire, 3770 ac. Pop. 455.—2. Salop 2131 ac. Pop. 322.

LEIGHTON BUZZARD, a market tn. and par. England co. Bedford. The town, 16 m. S.W. Bedford, on 7 bank Ouse, has a market-house an elegant old pentagonal cross, a spacious cruciform church in the early English style, with a tower surmounted by a spire, two dissenting places of worship, and a Friends meeting-house some traces in carried on in timber saws, lime, brick, and earthen articles. The Grand Junction Canal passes near the town, and at a little distance from it, on the opposite side of the river is a station on the London and Birmingham railway. A portion of the female population are employed in lace-making and straw plaiting. Pop. 4465. Area of par., 6768 ac. Pop. 6974.

LEIMSBACH, a tn. Prussia, prov. Saxony gov. and 30 m. N.W. Merseburg, on the Wipper with a church, a silver and two copper mines, and important manuf. P. 999.

LEIMEN, a market tn. Baden, circle Lower Rhine, 6 m. S. Homburg, 7 bank Lake. It is walled, has two churches, a town-house, school-house, manufactures of tobacco, and a trade in tobacco and cattle. Pop. 1409.

LEINACH (Oxus and Urtax), two nearly contiguous vil. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, 13 m. N.W. Würzburg. They have a church, vinegar-works, several mills, and a trade in corn, wine, and fruit. United pop. 3333.

LEINER, a river, Germany, which rises in the Harz Mountains, in the S.W. of Prussian Saxony, to the E. of Heiligenstadt, flows generally N.W., past Göttingen and Hanover, and joins 1 bank Aller, 5 m. below Hildesheim, after a course of nearly 150 m. Its principal affluents are, right, the Balme and Immecke, left, the Ilme, Sülze, and Wespe. It begins to be navigable at Göttingen, and navigable at Hanover.

LEINERSHEIM, a vil. Bavaria, Palatinate, dist. and near Germersheim, with a parish church. Pop. 1806.

LEININGEN, a principality, Germany, which was situated between the Lower Palatinate and the bishoprics of Spire and Worms; area, 104 sq. m. It is now shared between Baden and Rhineland-Bavaria; the latter having the larger portion. The principal cities in Amorbach. P. 60,100.

LEININGEN (Aix and Rux), two nearly contiguous vil. Bavaria, Palatinate, dist. Griesbach. They contain a church and the ruins of an old castle, and have iron-works and several mills. Pop. Alt. 867 Nov. 1908.

LEINSTER, a prov. Ireland, having, S. and E., St. George's Channel and Irish Sea, N. Ulster, and W. Connaught and Munster. Its length, N. to S. or from Carnarvon Point to the head of Carlingford Bay is about 182 m. Its greatest breadth, which is near the centre of its province, is 33 m., its coast line, 4,356,865 or 5,007 1/2 m. The province is divided into 13 counties—Wexford, Wiltshire, Carlow, Wicklow, Dublin, Kildare, Queen's County, King's County, Westmeath, Longford, Meath, and Louth. Leinster is the most favoured by nature of the four provinces of Ireland, being little encumbered by mountains, and having the best soil. It is, in general, also well cultivated. Its coast, however, has fewer good harbours than any of the other provinces. Principal rivers, the Boyne, Slaney, Barrow, Liffey, Nore and May. Pop. (1841), 1,978,781 (1851), 1,418,771.

LEINTHALL-STRASSE, par Eng. Harford 990 ac.

LEINTWARDINE, par Eng. Harford 8576 ac. P. 1607

LEIPA (Rumanian), or LEUPA, a tn. Bohemia, circle Leitmeritz, 45 m. N.N.E. Prague. It is substantially built of brick and tiles, has several churches, one of them a very ancient, and another a handsome modern structure—an Augustinian monastery, a gymnasium, a superior German and several other schools, extensive manufactures of shojis and cotton, and a trade in cattle. Leipa having been at first built of wood was repeatedly burned almost to the ground. The last great fire took place in 1830, and advantage has been taken of it to give the town a much improved form, and make it one of the prettiest places in the kingdom. Pop. 5304.

LEIPHLIM, a tn. Bavaria, circle Swabia, r. bank Danube, 11 m. E.N.E. Ulm. It is walled, has a church, chapel, castle, hospital, and a trade in hops, which are largely grown in the district. Pop. 1428

LEIPNIK, a tn. Austria, Moravia, circle, and 9 m. N.E. Pilsen, r. bank Bohemia. It is situated by two rivers, and entered by two gates, has a church, Roman Catholic, with a church; high school, two hospitals, a townhouse, castle, and beautiful cemetery, and manufactures of woollen. Pop. 5900

LEIPZIG (Archiepiscopus-leinici), a circle, forming the N.W. part of the kingdom of Saxony, being one of the four great divisions of the country. It is bounded N. by Prussia, W. by Prussia and Saxony-Altenburg S. by circle Zwettl, and E. by circle Dresden, area, 1012 geo sq m. It lies lower and is likewise more level and fertile, than any other part of Saxony. Its highest ground is in the S., where some ramifications of the Erzgebirge appear, but nowhere rise more than 1250 ft. above the sea. From these it slopes gradually N. It belongs to the basin of the Elbe, which drains it by its tributaries Elster, Pleisse, Mulde, Strömpke, Chemnitz, Zschoppe, and Döbnitz. In the N.E. are several lakes, of which the only one of any consequence is the Götterwitz. The circle is generally well cultivated, and yields good crops of corn, and rears great numbers of cattle, and more especially of sheep. The minerals are not important, but both limestone and marble are abundant and a great number of fine pebbles, including amethysts, agates, topazes, and rock crystal are found. Manufacture have made great progress, and include cottons and linen threads, and fine earthenware. The book trade, carried on principally in the town of Leipzig, is perhaps the most important branch of industry. For administrative purposes, the circle is divided into four hauptmannschaften, subdivided into 11 half-wicks. Pop. (1840), 438,533

LEIPZIG (Latin and Italian, Lepcis, English, Lepose, French, Lepoisi), the second city of Saxony, cap. above circle, and one of the chief seats of commerce in Germany, 84 m. W. W. Dresden, lat. (observatory) 51° 30' 15" N. lon. 12° 35' 15" E. It lies in an extensive and fertile plain, on the Elbe, here joined by the Pleisse and Parthe, and consists of old central town, formerly surrounded by fortifications, which have been converted into beautiful walks and shrubberies, called the Promenade, and extensive and rapidly increasing suburbs. In the central town the houses are mostly lofty, some of them quaint-looking; the streets are narrow, but generally straight, and clean, and well lighted with gas, the principal ones open into the market-places, or square, which has a very picturesque appearance; the townhall (Rathaus), built in 1556, being on the one side, and the others being partly occupied by buildings in the renaissance style. The other principal buildings, within the old boundaries, but none of which are architecturally remarkable, are the churches of St.

- | | | |
|-------------------------|-------------------------|-------------------------|
| 1. St. Thomas Church. | 6. St. Peter's Church. | 7. Peter's Church. |
| 2. St. Nicholas Church. | 7. St. Nicholas Church. | 8. St. Nicholas Church. |
| 3. St. Paul's Church. | 8. St. Paul's Church. | 9. St. Paul's Church. |
| 4. St. John's Church. | 9. St. John's Church. | 10. St. John's Church. |
| 5. St. Mary's Church. | 10. St. Mary's Church. | 11. St. Mary's Church. |

Nicholas St. Thomas, St. Paul, and St. Peter the Augustines, an elegant modern edifice, containing the university, founded 1409, with a library of 110,000 volumes, 46 ordinary and 30 extraordinary professors, and about 84 private teachers and language masters, and attended by above 900 students, the bookellers' exchange, used, during the fair, for the arrangement of accounts between the country houses and their agents and correspondents in Leipzig, and, at other times, for exhibitions of paintings, &c. the cloth-hall (Gewandhaus) the town-school (Bürger-Schule), with a collection of antiquities the theatre, and the Pleissenburg or castle, now partly used as a barracks, and containing the observatory. It formed part of the old fortifications, withstood the attacks of Tilly, and is memorable as the scene of the famous Leipzig dispute between Luther and Dr. Eck, though the portion of the building in which that interesting event took place, is understood no longer to exist. Not far from the Pleissenburg, opposite the Petersthor the only remaining one of the old gates, and in the centre of the Königsplatz (King's Place) is a colossal statue of king Frederick August, who died in 1827. The suburbs, which have doubled the number of houses in Leipzig, since 1840, are composed of lofty elegant, and sometimes rather ambitious-looking buildings, laid off in regular streets, interspersed with gardens, possessing altogether in his manner with the central town an air of substantiality and comfort. They contain the elegant post-office buildings, the church of St. John, and the R. Catholic church in modern Gothic, by Haeudorf, in some respects the finest building in the city; the Rosenthal (Valley of Roses) a favourite summer evening resort, composed of pleasant wooded walks, and numerous gardens and meadow-like places of recreation. Besides the university library Leipzig possesses a town library of 60,000 volumes, containing some valuable MSS. Schools of various kinds are numerous and good, including two gymnasia, an academy of designing, painting, architecture, &c., a male school and a commercial school, both, but especially the former, of considerable celebrity, four charity schools, &c. There are eight learned societies, a botanical garden several hospitals, including one for deaf-mutes and numerous baths.

Leipzig possesses considerable manufactures, of cotton-wool, leather, hats, silks and half-silks goods, soap, sealing-wax, tobacco, and numerous metal articles; it has likewise an extensive wool-spinning establishment; but the great feature of the manufactures is books. There are 180 bookshelves, 12 printing-offices, with 700 hand-presses and 40 printing-machines; producing, it is estimated, 30 millions of printed sheets annually; and there are several type-foundries. Though important for its manufacture, Leipzig is still more important for its commerce, carried on especially through its noted fairs, particularly those at Easter and Michaelmas, the one at the New Year being comparatively unimportant. To these fairs are congregated people from all quarters of Europe; from Asia, and from America, in numbers often equalling that of the entire population of the town. Turks, Greeks, Persians, Armenians, Polish Jews, and Hungarians may be seen walking about in their native costumes. Every house and yard is converted into a place of business; and the central market-places, the main streets, and a large portion of the promenade, are covered with booths of dealers in porcelain, Bohemian glass, lace, flannels, domestic and heavy cloths of all kinds, tobacco, pipes, leather shoes, jewellery, hardware, furs, and other articles, too numerous to specify, but the more important portion of the business is transacted in the premises of the many agents of manufacturing houses, both German and foreign, who, either permanently or temporarily, are located here. Goods, to the value of 60 millions of thalers (£2,900,000) change hands at these fairs, of which 5 millions of thalers (£1,300,000) are for books. Though for a time on the wane, the fairs, in recent years, have been rapidly increasing.

Leipzig is the capital of one of the four circles of Saxony, and the seat of several courts of justice. It is of Wendish origin, was destroyed by the Bohemian Duke Wrtislav, in 1082; and after being rebuilt, it was again destroyed by Otto IV., in 1212, and 400 houses were burned down in 1430. It early received the Reformation, and has maintained its steadfastness so far that its population is almost exclusively Lutheran; in 1519, the disputation between Luther, Eck, and Carstadt took place in the Pleissenburg. In 1690-81, the plague carried off 3000 people. After this its commerce increased, its fairs became more important, and the seat of the book-trade was transferred to it from Frankfurt-on-the-Main. It suffered much from the Seven Years' War, but soon recovered. October 16-19, 1813, the great battle of the nations inaugurated-looking monument to commemorate the victory has been erected near the spot. Excepting some slight outbreaks in 1830, 1831, 1845, and 1849, the most important events in recent times are the founding and opening of the different railways, of which there are three. One connecting with Dresden and Austria, a second with Berlin, Halle, Magdeburg, Hanover and Hamburg; and also with Elberfeld and Frankfurt-on-the-Main; and a third with Bavaria. Pop. (1854) 44,802 (1843) 54,519 (1849) 62,374; (1871) 73,490. (Huhn's Lex. Deutschland; Leipzig, in der Druckstadt Stadtsches Jahrbuch, 1881. Private information.)

LEIRE, par Eng. Latorner; 870 ac. Pop. 438. LEIRA (anc. Coligis), a tn. Portugal, prov. Beira-mar, cap. comarca, in a fertile district near r. bank Lda, 59 m. S.E. W. Coimbra. It is walled, defended by an old castle, and contains a cathedral, two parish churches, a college, diocesan seminary, three convents, and an hospital. A considerable manufacture of rock-crystal has been established in the neighbourhood, and the general trade is of some importance. Leira is the see of a bishop, and has repeatedly been occupied as a residence by the kings of Portugal. It was taken from the Moors in 1145.

LEIRA.—From Victor's Brewery of Pilsener and again.

Pop. 3320; comarca, 74,890.

LEISNIG, a tn. Saxony, circle and 28 m. S.E.E. Leipzig, cap. bail, l. bank Mulde. It is walled, has several public offices, a church and an old castle, with a chapel, and manufactures of woollen and Hessian cloths, quilts, and articles in horn; spinning, and other mills, dye-works, silk- and cloth-works. Pop. (1849) 5185 bail, 80,940.

LEISNITZ, a vil. Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. Oppeln, circle Liegnitz, on the Silesia with two mills. Pop. 1497.

LEISTON, par Eng. Suffolk, 4640 ac. Pop. 1680.

LEITENS DORF (Osnab.), a market tn. Bohemia, circle and 25 m. W. N. W. Leitmeritz, on the Goldbach. It has manufactures of woollen cloth, saddlery, and bookbinding; also, a brewery, a distillery, a mineral spring, and a mine of lignite, which is partially worked. Pop. 3146.

LEITH, an anc. seaport tn. and port, bur. Scotland, co. and 3 m. N. E. the coast of Edinburgh, of which city it is the port, and almost a suburb. It shores Firth of Forth, on both sides the river of Leith, and near its confluence with the sea, lat. 56° 55' 54" N.; lon. 2° 10' 20" W. (a). The portion of the town situated on the N. W. side of the river is known as North Leith, that on the opposite, as South Leith, the former, although partly enclosed, being little more than a suburb of the latter, where all the chief business of the town is transacted, and where the splendid harbour and splendour of the

THE MACKAY'S PLACE, LEIPZIG, during the Fair.

(Völkerrückzug), was fought around and in Leipzig, by which Germany was freed from the French yoke, and in which Napoleon received his first decisive defeat, at the hands of the combined forces of Prussia and Austria. The French, on this occasion, lost 25,000 men, as previously, having a larger number slain in battle, and in the retreat, Prince Frederick lost his life in attempting to cross the Elster; and merchants principally are. The town, on both sides of the river, stands on nearly a perfect level. The streets and lanes in the more modern parts, particularly in the vicinity of the harbour, are narrow, tortuous, and stony; and the houses old, dilapidated, and mean; but the more modern quarters are sufficiently spacious, airy, and well built. Here, also, handsomely houses line two sides of what is called the 'Links' or downs, a fine large open space on the S. E. side of the town. The principal public buildings are the custom-house, a Grecian structure, with pediment and columns, exchange buildings, new courthouses, Leith Bank, now a branch of the National and the Trinity House. An elegant bathing establishment, at Seafield, within about 1 m. of the centre of the town, may also be included. The parish churches of North and South Leith are also both respectable edifices; the former modern with a spire 158 ft. high, the latter an old Gothic structure, with a turret and spire, recently rebuilt. The other places of worship are St. Thomas church, erected and endowed by Sir John Gladstone. St. John's church or chapel of ease, five Free churches, four U. Presbyterian, one (Original Seceder, one Methodist, two Congregationalist, one Episcopalian, and one R. Catholic. The chief educational establishments are the Leith High School, and Dr. Dalry's school, the latter on the Modern system of mutual instruction. Each school at present (1859) attended by about 700 children. There are two principal libraries in the town—the Leith public library, and the Leith Mechanics Subscription Library. The charity table and benevolent institutions comprise the Leith hospital, and Edinburgh and Leith Humane Society, the Shipwrecked Fishermen and Mariners' Society, Gladstone's Female Asylum, the Leith Boys' Charity School, a society for the relief of the sick, and several societies of a religious character. The chief manufactures are ropes, cordage, sail-cloth, bottles, soap, candles, paints, and colours. There are one or two breweries, a distillery, several ship-building yards, a sugar-refinery, a large establishment for preserving meat, several extensive saw-mills, cooperages and iron foundries. The foreign trade of the port is chiefly with the N. countries of Europe, particularly those on the Baltic. There is also some colonial, and an important coasting trade, a number of shipping companies being engaged in trading with London, Hull, Newcastle, Aberdeen, and several other Scotch ports. The principal imports are grain, wheat, tobacco, lumber, hemp, hides, and tallow.

The following table shows the declared value of the exports in the years 1860 to 1864 and the gross amount of customs duty received at the port in the same five years—

Exports.	Exports.	Duties Received.	Duties Received.
1860.	£1,050,000	1860.	£452,453
1861.	1,203,477	1861.	422,632
1862.	1,324,009	1862.	466,513
1863.	1,653,809	1863.	439,796
1864.	1,763,441	1864.	451,730

In 1860 the number of vessels registered at the port was 167 sailing, tons 16,490; 33 steam, tons 3790. In 1863 the number was 129 sailing vessels, of 23,628 tons, and 64 steam vessels, of 17,240 tons. The number of vessels, of every tonnage, that entered and cleared, from and to various countries, in 1864, was as follows—

	Sailing Tonnage.	Tonn.	Steamers.	Tonn.
Entered	1842	192,309	343	126,804
Cleared	206	64,068	251	145,096

Of these above a half in tonnage, and far above a half in numbers, consisted of coasting vessels.

The harbour has been greatly improved of late years by the extension of the pier, which enables vessels to get into smooth water, in E. gales, sooner than formerly, and into considerably deeper water. A W. pier or break-water extends towards the E. pier, but leaves an entrance of 250 ft. width. By this break-water, the harbour is sheltered from N. winds. The harbour has gained considerably in depth, in consequence of the improvements. The average depth at high water, spring-tides, is 17 ft.; and, at neap-tides, 13 ft. in the fairway. There are two wet-docks, each 200 yards in length, and 100 yards in breadth, with basins of 10 ac. extent, capable of containing 150 vessels; and, adjoining to these, three dry-docks, each 180 ft. long. On the W. side of North Leith there is a very handsome and busy wharf, while the entrance to the harbour is protected by a masonry tower. Leith is mentioned, for the first time, under the name of Inverleith in a charter of David I., and, in 1259, a charter of Robert I. made a grant of the port and mills of Leith to the city of Edinburgh. It early acquired a considerable trade, but suffered, especially by war. In 1541, an English fleet took possession of it, and it was nearly destroyed in 1544. It was occupied by French troops sent to the assistance of Mary of Guise, and, in 1560, it was besieged by a body of English, and by Elizabeth to assist the Reformers. In 1660, Cromwell repaired Leith fort, and erected a citadel with five bastions, which were demolished at the Restoration. During Cromwell's possession, the inhabitants petitioned him to remove them from the bad condition and most grievous oppressions they lay under from the magistracy of Edinburgh. The petition failed to produce any effect, and the grievances complained of were not finally removed till 1822, when it first obtained a separate and independent magistracy and 1829, when the docks and harbour were put under commissioners, of whom Leith appoints three. Leith communicates with Edinburgh by a branch of the Edinburgh and Granton Railway. Pop (1851) 30,919.

LEITHMERITZ, a t. Bohemia, cap. circle, beautifully situated on a height above r. bank Elbe, here crossed by a bridge, 34 m. N. W. Prague. It is walled, has three gates, and, though old, is well built. It is the seat of a bishop, and the seat of a civil and criminal court, several public buildings; contains a fine old cathedral, six other churches, a townhouse, in which many curious charters are deposited, an episcopal palace, diocesan seminary, gymnasium, formerly a Jesuit college, a Dominican and a Capuchin monastery, two hospitals, and an infirmary, and has a considerable trade in corn, fish, wine, and fruit, particularly an apple called Burdock, which is sent to Berlin and Petersburg. Pop. 4800.—The citadel, on the frontiers of Saxony, though hilly produces much grain, and rears great numbers of cattle. Among the minerals are iron ore, and lignite. Area, 1100 sq. m. Pop. 361,000.

LEI FOMING-SHI, a t. Leutuan, a t. Bohemia, circle and 24 m. S. E. Chudum, 1 bank Lausum, and on the rail way from Vienna to Prague. It is on the whole well built, having, in particular a large ring or market-place, lined by lofty stone houses of good construction and of an elegant appearance. It contains a castle, one of the finest buildings of the kind in Bohemia, built in the 16th century, in the Italian style, in the form of a square, with a tower at each angle, and adorned within with fine sculptures and frescoes; a handsome domed church and several chapels; a courthouse, Placet college, gymnasium, a townhouse, a large and massive structure with a lofty tower, and an hospital, and has manufactures of linen, raw and other mule, tile-works and a trade in corn, linen, and fax. Pop. 6396.

LEITHRIM, a maritime co. Ireland, N. E. extremity of prov. Connaught, bounded N. by Donegal Bay, and by Donegal and Fermanagh, E. by Fermanagh and Cavan, S. by Longford, W. by Roscommon and Sligo; greatest length 51 m.; breadth, 21 m. area, 892,668 ac.; of which 248,850 ac. are arable 85,199 ac. were under crop in 1856. There are some mountain tracts in the N. part of the county and elsewhere, but in general the surface is nearly flat, exhibiting, for the most part, either green fields or bogs. The substratum is principally limestone, particularly in the railway, where the soil is fertile, in other parts it is cold, stiff, and retentive. The best tracts are along the Shannon, River, and Bonnet rivers. The county is rich in minerals: iron, lead, and copper were at one time raised but are now neglected. Manganeses, fullers earth, potash clay, sandstone, and marble have also been obtained, and could be raised to some extent on the S. side of Lough Allen. Chalybeate springs are numerous on the borders of the same Lough. There are several small rivers in the county, including a portion of the earlier course of the Shannon; and numerous lakes, of which Lough Allen, which is about 7 m. long, and 1 to 4 m. broad is the largest. The shore along the Bay of Donegal is for the most part a rocky bluff, with a rough stony beach along the foot of it, and is exposed to the whole swell of the Atlantic. Oats form the chief crop, occupying 25,125 ac. out of 265,990 ac.—the whole under crop in 1850. Potatoes covered 14,833 ac. The best was taken up with wheat, barley, beans, &c. &c. The soil is more a grazing than an agricultural country, raising large numbers of young stock, chiefly horses, cattle, and the produce of the S. district. Linen and coarse woollen are domestic use are the only manufactures, the general trade being almost exclusively confined to the sale of grain, butter, and live stock. The county is divided into two baronies and seven townships. It contains no town with above 3000 inhabitants. In 1859 it contained 59 national schools, attended by 10,648 children. It returns two members to parliament. Pop. (1841), 155,292; (1861), 111,918.

LEITHEN, two par. Ireland.—1, Cork and Waterford; 7125 sq. P. 1597.—2, Galway; 4099 sq. P. 750.

LEITZKAU, a tn. in Prussia, prov. Saxony, gov. and 9 m. S.E. Magdeburg. It has a law court, two Protestant churches, no hospital, and two mills. Pop. 1407.

LELLIP, a market tn. and par., Ireland, co. Kildare. The town, near the confluence of the Rye with the Liffey 9 m. W. Dublin, has a miserable and dilapidated appearance. It has an ancient parish church, a small E. Catholic chapel and several schools; limited woollen manufactures and near it are rolling-mills for the manufacture of bar and sheet iron; a flour mill, and an extensive distillery. The Royal Canal approaches within $\frac{1}{2}$ m. of the town. Pop. (1841), 1065. Area of par., 8205 ac. Pop. 1698.

LELLA, a tn. Spain, prov. Navarra, 20 m. N.W. Pamplona, tolerably well built, with a parish church, chapel, spacious townhouse and prison, public school; and manufactures of iron and copper wire, hair combs, paper, and cloth. P. 1784.

LEK (not or Leck), a river, Holland, which branches off from the Old Rhine at Wyk bij Duurstede, prov. Utrecht; flows W by N and then W by S, forming first the boundary between provs. Utrecht and Gelderland, and then between Utrecht and S. Holland, and, at Krumpen, unites with an arm of the Maas. The Netherlands, in the treaty of 1838 for the free navigation of the Rhine, recognized the Lek, politically, as a continuation of that river.

LEKA, or LOCHERACA, a market tn. Hungary, co. Eisenburg, on the Gyfelys, 7 m. S. N.W. Güns. It has a castle, an Augustinian monastery, and manufactures of flannel, glass-works, and paper. Pop. 1169.

LEKCHA, or LEKVA, a lake, Russia, in the N.W. of gov. Orenburg; forming a long and narrow stream, stretching N.W. to S.E. about 34 m., with a breadth of about 3 m.

LEKENTZ, or LACHNITZ, a vill. Austria, Transylvania, dist. and about 10 m. from Mieritz. It has a church, and a trade in corn, cattle, and wine. Pop. 1121.

LEKKERKERK, a vill. Holland, prov. S. Holland, 9 m. E. Rotterdam, on the Lek; with a neat cruciform church, and a school; 2000 two-story buildings, two lawns, corn-mills, a vineyard, and a salmon fishery. P. (agricultural), 7054.

LELANT, par. Eng. Cornwall, 4240 sq. P. 9012.

LELEK (Huny), a vill. Austria, Transylvania, about 40 m. from Kronstadt. It has two churches, and is the head station of a military district. Pop. 3750.

LELESE, a market tn. Hungary, Hither Thelcs, co. and 11 m. E.N.E. Zemplin, with a E. Catholic church, and an old Franciscan monastery. Pop. 1609.

LELUNDA, a river, Africa, Congo, which rises in a mountainous district E. of San Salvador, flows W. and, after a course of about 20 m., falls into the S. Atlantic, about 40 m. S.E. of the mouth of the river.

LEMA ISLANDS, the outermost group of the great archipelago (Chinese Sea) that fronts the entrance to Canton river. They consist of three large and one small island, extending E.N.E. and W.S.W. 12½ m. The largest, called Great Lema by Europeans, but two names—two by the Chinese, lat. (N. 20° and 21° 45' N.; lon. 114° 18' 30' E., is 6 m. long, and 1½ m. broad, and of moderate height. These islands are all steep and rocky on the S. side, and affording a single bay for a boat to find shelter. They have a barren appearance, but a few men reside on them, who are employed in small quantities of brownwood found between the rocks, which they send to Macao for sale. Fresh water may be obtained along the N. side of the largest island, at several places.

LEMAN (LAKES). See GENÈVA (LAKES).

LEMANNAHAN, par. (Irish N. 10°), 18,618 sq. P. 2678.

LEMBECK, a tn. and com. Belgium, prov. S. Brabant, 10 m. E. Brussels, on the railway thence to Maastricht. It has a very old castle, extensive breweries of gin, tobacco, a tobacco and cigar factory, and a paper and a stone mill. Pop. 2666.

LEMBERG, a vill. Hungary, dist. and 8 m. S. W. Komorn; with a church, glass-works, and mills. Pop. 2540.

LEMBERG (Pollak, Leone) a tn. Austria, cap. kingdom of Galicia, in a beautiful and romantic district, 595 m. S.W.E. Vienna; lat. 49° 51' 52" N.; lon. 14° 11' 11" E. It was originally surrounded by walls and ditches, which have been levelled, and converted into walks, and, though founded in the 13th century, has all the appearance of a modern town, having increased so rapidly as to triple its population about 1771. This rapid increase has taken place since Austria made it a capital. Besides being the seat of the Government, and the important courts and public offices necessarily connected with it, it possesses three metropolitan sees—Greek, Armenian, and E. Catholic. The buildings most deserving of notice are the Greek metropolitan church, with the archbishop's palace, magnificent structures in the Italian style, finely situated on a height on the W. side of the town, the Latin cathedral, built by Constant the Great, in 1870, the Dominican church, after the model of St. Peter's at Rome; the Protestant church, three synagogues, one of them a recent erection, of large dimensions, and remarkably handsome, the new townhouse, built on a magnificent scale, at an expense of about £20,000, with a very lofty tower, the university, possessed of a library of 46,000 volumes and numerous collections, and attended by about 1400 students; the Onolinsk institute, with a library of 50,000 volumes, relating mostly to Galician history and literature, 1200 MSS., and 15,000 books and medals, and numerous collections of paintings, engravings, antiquities, &c.; the new theatre built at the sole expense of a Count, who bequeathed all his property for its maintenance; the theological and philosophical institute, for the regular clergy—two seminaries, two gymnasia, an academy of arts, a normal and numerous other schools, superior and elementary; a deaf and dumb institute, a general infirmary and lunatic asylum, a large military hospital, an hospital of the sisters of charity, a workhouse, penitentiary, and large new house of correction, extensive barracks, a military academy, and a bathing establishment. The manufactures consist chiefly of woollen and cotton textiles, and, in the vicinity about 1 m. from the town, there is a very extensive tobacco-factory belonging to Government. But Lemberg depends far less on manufactures than on trade. This, which is very much in the hands of the Jews, who have master to the number of more than 20,000, is very important, and concentrates a great part of the trade of the kingdom. Much of it is merely transit, and extends over the whole year, but a considerable portion of the whole is confined to the large fairs which take place at stated periods. One of them, called the Great Khammeh, lasts six weeks, and attracts vast numbers of dealers from all quarters. The quantity of business then transacted is very great. In 1856, Lemberg successfully resisted the Russians, in 1871, it was laid under contribution by the Turks; and in 1794, was stormed by the Swedes under Charles XII. Pop. (1848), 70,970.

—The canals of Lemberg, though not properly monumental, is rugged throughout, and is extensively covered by meadows, or by a thin, sandy, and stony soil of very little fertility. Area, 798 sq. m. P. 301,500.

LEMERE, a river, Italy, Venetia, which rises near Udine, prov. Friuli, flows S.W. into Porto-Franco, where it becomes navigable, and falls into the Adriatic by several mouths, one of which enters port Fiumana; total course about 85 m.

LEMPORD, a vill. Hanover, dist. and 10 m. S. Dielbach, cap. hall; with a castle, a custom-house, and an active general trade. Pop. vill., 912; hall, 4814.

LEMPO, a tn., principally Lippe-Deimold, on the Rhine, 49 m. S.W. Hanover. It is walled, has a very magnificent appearance, and contains many specimens of Gothic architecture, among others a townhouse. It has also four churches, a royal palace, a synagogue, gymnasium, and public institute; manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, leather, and miscellaneous goods, and a considerable book trade. Pop. 4023.

LEMPENT, or LEMPET, a vill. Transylvania, about 50 m. from Kronstadt, with a Greek church. Pop. 1642.

LEMPIN, a vill. and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. and 8 m. from Turin, in the valley of Lancia, 1. bank Orsina, with a church and cemetery, finely situated on a precipitous mass of rock, overlooking the valley. Pop. 2660.

LEMHINGTON, a vill. England, co. Northumberland, par. Widdowson, 2 m. bank Tyne, near the extensive works of the Tyne-Iron Company, and also large glass-works.

LEMINGTON (Lowen), par Eng. Gloucester, 355 sq. Pop. 56.

LEMLOOM, or LEMLON, a tn. Asiatic Turkey, I. bank Euphrates, push and 113 m. S. by W Bagdad. It has a singular appearance; the houses, of which there are about 400, being entirely of mud, neatly constructed. About 10 m. to 15 m. S. from the town are the marshes of the same name into which the Euphrates spreads. Rice is grown to a considerable extent in the district around.

LEMMER (see), Amstelina vil. Holland, prov. Friesland, N shore Zuidse Ee, 37 m. S. Leeuwarden; and, after Harlingen, possessing the best harbour in the province. It is a well-built place, with two churches, two schools, two boat-building yards, a rope-walk, tanneries, potteries, hawking, weaving and saw and corn mills. Its shipping trade has greatly fallen off from what it once was. Pop. 2381.

LEMMONGAN, or LEMMONGAN, a volcano, Java, prov. Bantam, about 80 m. E.R.E. Soerabaya height, 6561 ft. Eruptive took place in 1818, 1824, and 1848. Around it are several lakes or terme of brackish water, of unpleasant taste.

LENNON, or STALLEN, an isl. Turkey in Europe, in the Archipelago, at the entrance of the Dardanelles, from which it is E.E. about 40 m. lat. 40° N. lon. 25° E.; length, E. to W., about 23 m.; breadth, about 30 m. It is very irregular in shape, and is divided by the port of Paeonion, on the N., and that of St. Antonio on the S. into two parts, united by a narrow isthmus. On the E. it is rimmed almost unceasingly by a sandbank but in other directions it presents several good harbours. The interior consists generally of low hills, of a rugged and barren appearance, and, in part, evidently the result of volcanic agency, and the soil is, for the most part, thin and sandy but in some parts, particularly in the W. and S., possesses considerable fertility and produces much corn, oil, wine, fruit, and some cotton. Silk is also obtained. The manufactures are confined to a few cotton stuffs, a great many of the inhabitants are employed in fishing. Grain and wine are the principal towns bear the same name. It stands on the W. coast, and is defended by a fort; it is the residence of a Greek bishop, and has three Greek churches, a small well-frequented harbour, and a building-dock. Pop. isl., 9000 to 3000.

LENPA, a river, Central America. It rises in Guatemala, flows E.E., forming the boundary between Honduras and Salvador, turns nearly due S., across Salvador, and falls into the Pacific, 9 m. W. N. W. the Bay of Conception.

LENPS (see LENN), a tn. France, dep. Seine, 22 m. N. W. Cherbourg, with annual fairs. Pop. 1103.

LENNWIG, a small seaport on Denmark's Jutland, east, and 23 m. N. Rankiberg, on a bay of the Edinford. It has a small building-yard, an active fishery, and a harbour, which admits vessels drawing 9 ft. Pop. 906.

LENNA, a river, Siberia, and one of the largest rivers in the world. It rises on the N. W. side of the mountains which skirt the western shore of lake Baikal, lat. 53° N., lon. 106° E., near Orlinsk, gov. and about 70 m. N. E. Irkutsk. It proceeds N. to the Kulek, thence E. N. E., passing Kurensk and Vitimsk, where it receives the Vitim, in the form of Yakutsk. Here it suddenly changes its course to the N. and on the N. bank receives one of its most important tributaries, the Aldan; then turns N. W. and shortly after receives, on its L. bank, at Ust-Viluiak, the Vilui, another, and indeed the last, of its important tributaries. Now a mighty stream, it flows generally N. W. separating into branches, it forms a great number of islands, and discharges itself into the Arctic Ocean by several mouths, in lat. 78° N., and lon. about 128° E.; having thus passed over 81° of lat., and 23° of lon. Its direct course, making no allowance for windings, is 1850 geo. m. and its actual course, windings included, 2400 geo. m. Its basin has an area of 364,400 geo. sq. m.; it is situated in the Old World only by those of the Old and Finland, and in the New World only by those of the Annum, Minnesota, and La Plata.

LENN (see), two par. Eng. Worcester—1, (Cherhill) 2533 sq. P. 285—2, (Barnes) 1880 sq. P. 277.

LENNELDE, a tn. and com. Belgium, prov. W. Flanders, about 15 m. S. Bruges, on the road to Oostv. It has a church, hospital, and a trade in corn and all sorts. Pop. 4500.

LENNINARA, a tn. Italy, Venetia, prov. Pola, cap. dist. on the Adigetto, 8 m. W. Rovigo. It is very well built, has a court of law, and several public offices, a hand some park and two auxiliary churches a court-house, and public library. Pop. m., 3500; dist., 10 000.

LENDZIN, a tn. Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. Oppeln, circle Posen. It contains a townhouse, and has limekilns, limestone quarries, and two mills. Pop. 1440.

LENGEFELD, a tn. Saxony, circle and 80 m. S.E. Zwickau. It contains a church, and has numerous spinning and other mills, dye-works, bleachfields, a trade in cattle, and four annual fairs. Pop. 2774.

LENGENFELD, several places, Germany—1, A tn. Saxony, circle and 11 m. S.W. Zwickau. It has a church, considerable manufactures of woollen and cotton fabrics, woollen and cotton spinning, several dye-works and bleachfields, saw and walk mills, and a trade in manufactures and cattle. Pop. (1848), 4032—2, A market in Lower Austria, near Krems, with a church P. 1500—3, A vil. and par. Tyrol, circle Inntal, near Sella, with a church. P. 1544—4, A vil. Prussia, prov. Saxony gov. Erfurt, circle Hildburghausen, on the Frieda, with a church, an oil, a saw, and a flour mill. Pop. 1220.

LENGERICH a tn. Rhensia Prussia, gov. and 19 m. N. N. E. Münster, with a church and a synagogue Hinkeln, and manufactures of silk and tobacco. Pop. 1423.

LENGFURT, a market in Bavaria, Lower Franconia, dist. Markt-Herdenfeld on the Main. It has a hospital, some shipping, a transit trade, and trade in fruit and wine, stone-quarries, and two annual fairs. Pop. 1100.

LENGGLENN, a vil. and par. Switzerland, cant. Aargau, cap. circle, 1 bank Aar N. N. E. Aarau, with a trade in corn, fruit, and wine. Pop. 1030.

LENGNAU two places Switzerland—1, A vil. and par. com. and 17 m. N. Bern, with a church and mineral springs including establishments, and extensive stone-quarries. P. 716—2, (Ober and Nieder) Two contiguous vil. cant. Aargau, dist. and near Zuzach. They form a parish of same name, and contain a handsome Protestant church, a synagogue, and a charitable endowment. Pop. 1781.

LENGSFELD a tn. Baze-Wassar principality and 16 m. S. S. W. Elsenach, cap. dist. It is walled, has two churches, and manufactures of flannel. Pop. 2233. Area of dist., 13 geo. sq. m. Pop. 4600.

LENHAM, par Eng. Kent 6963 sq. Pop. 2070.

LENN, a vil. and par. Switzerland, cant. and 83 m. S. Bern, in a valley of same name, on the Emme, in a wild and mountainous district, with magnificent cascades. It contains an old parish church, more than 9000 ft. above the sea-level, a handsome parsonage, and a school. Pop. 2328.

LENNKORAN, a tn. Transcaucasian-Russia, Jellik, gov. Schemach, near the Caspian Sea, S. W. of the mouth of the Kur. It occupies a large space, the houses being generally placed apart from each other and surrounded with trees. The roads afford good anchorage, and the Russians have built a fort in the vicinity. Pop. (1856) 2172.

LENNKE a river, Prussia, which rises in the frontiers of the W. W. N. W. and joins the Ruhr 16 m. N. E. Elberfeld, after a course of nearly 60 m.

LENNKE a tn. Rhodan Prussia, gov. and 20 m. E. Düsseldorf, cap. circle, in a beautiful valley, watered by the Lennep. It contains two churches, a superior higher school, and an orphan hospital, and is a principal seat of the woollen manufactures, particularly fine broad-cloth and cashmeres, and shawls. The other manufactures are hats, gunpowder, and ironmongery. The trade in the above articles, and also in wine, is considerable. Pop. (1848) 7284. The creek is watered by the Wupper and Lennep, and being hilly, has not much level arable land. Area, 68 geo. sq. m. Pop. 67,464.

LENNICK, two places, Belgium prov. Brabant—1, (St. Martin), a vil. and com. 9 m. W. S. W. Brussels, with a brewery, distillery oil-mill, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1281—2, (St. Quentin), A vil. and com. near the former with a flour-mill and trade in corn. Pop. 2481.

LENNO a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy, prov. Como 8 m. from Menaggio. It is celebrated for a number of antiquities, particularly a small obelisk of granite, with hieroglyphs and various inscriptions, and a cathedral parish church, with an ancient baptistry attached. Pop. 1050.

LENNOX—1) An ancient dist. Scotland, comprising Dumfriesshire, and portions of cos. Berwick, Perth, and Stirling. It gives the title of Duke, in the Scotch peerage, to the Duke of Richmond.—2) (Lennox Hills) A range of hills, Scotland, extending from Dumfriesshire to Stirling. Greatest height, about 1500 ft. above sea-level. They include the Campsie Fells.

LENNOXTOWN a large vil. Scotland, co. Stirling 9 m. N Glasgow on a branch of the Edinburgh and Glasgow Railway, with a parish and a P. U. Presbyterian church, and a school. Industries employed in the cottages, glass-works, blacksmiths, and shoe-makers of the vicinity. Pop. 8104.

LENO, a vil and com. Italy Lombardy prov and 13 m. E. Brescia, cap. dist. It has a court of justice, a parish and an auxiliary church, and an hospital; manufactures of woolen and cotton goods, and several silk-mills. P. 3805; dist., 20,902.

LENOLA, a tn. Naples, prov. Terra di Lavoro, dist. and 15 m. N W. Gaeta. It stands on a hill, and contains two churches and an hospital. Its site is supposed to be that of the ancient Lucania. Pop. 2000.

LENOX, a small vil. U. States Massachusetts, 131 m. W Boston. It is mostly built; has three churches, a court-house, jail and an academy. Pop. 1213.

LENN—1) [anc. Lenn, Lennus] A tn. France, dep. Puy-de-Dôme, on the Sioule, 9 m. K. Arzac. It is a place of great antiquity, was at one time strongly fortified and stood reputed strong. In 1648, the Spaniards were signally defeated by the Prince of Condé, under its walls. Lenn has considerable distilleries, tanneries, and soap-works and some trade in corn, flour, and hemp. In the neighborhood are coal-mines and brick and lime kilns. Pop. 2768.—2) A vil. and com. Belgium prov. Hainaut, 7 m. N N W. Mons, on the Dendre, with one of the finest châteaux in the province. Limestone and building-stone quarries, a trade in corn, horses, cattle, and poultry. Pop. 2190.—3) (Saint Remy) A vil. and com. Belgium prov. and 9 m. W N. W. Liège, on the Saer, with a brewery a steam and a flour mill and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1410.—4) (anc. Lenn) A vil. and par. Switzerland, cant. Valais, 8 m. N W. Sion. It has a beautiful church, with an elegant tower. Pop. 1622.

LENT, a vil. Holland, prov. Gelderland, on the Waal, opposite to Nijmegen, with which it is connected by a flying bridge. It has two churches, and a school, and is surrounded by orchards, which form a favourite summer resort of the inhabitants of Nijmegen. Pop. 1171.

LENTA, a vil and com. Italy Piedmont, div. Novara, prov. and 12 m. N Varese l. bank Stesia; with a parish and two other churches and manufactures of agricultural implements. Pop. 1200.

LENTCHER, LENTICA, or LENTIC, a tn. Russian Poland, 77 m. W & W. Warsaw. It is walled and defended by a fort, crowning a steep rock; and has a collegiate and five other churches, several convents, a synagogue, and some general trade. Pop. 8700.

LENTINI, or LENTINUM [anc. Lentini] a tn. Sicily prov. and 30 m. N W. Syracuse, r. bank river of same name, near Lake Sticci, or Lentini. It is of Greek origin, and is often referred to by ancient writers. It continued even to modern times to be a place of considerable importance, but suffered dreadfully by an earthquake in 1093, and has never recovered since. Most of the inhabitants find employment in connection with shipping in the lake, which are very productive. The district around is remarkably fertile, but the climate is unhealthy. Pop. 7274.

LENTON a par and tn. England, co. Nottingham, the latter consisting of the contiguous villages of Old and New Lenton, 14 m. W by S. Nottingham, of which it may be considered an appendage. It lies on the Leen, near its confluence with the Trent; and has a handsome Gothic church, a chapel of ease, a Baptist and two Methodist meeting-houses, a national and an infant school; manufactures of lace, starch, leather, and hosiery and a station on the Midland railway. Area of par. 5080 ac. Pop. 5509.

LENY, [anc. Lenus] a vil. Westmorland, 8297 ac. P. 1064.

LENSBURG a vil and par. Herk Co., New York, dep. co. dist., on the Ac. 7 m. E. Arden. It has a church, an old Gothic castle, on the summit of a hill, now converted into a school; manufactures of shawls, linen, and cotton, blacksmiths, and gunsmiths. Pop. 1755.

LENNEN a tn. Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. and 25 m. N W. Potsdam, near the confluence of the Leine with the Wilsa. It is walled; has three gables, a church and hospital, a court of law, several public offices, a distillery, brewery, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 3771.

LENNINGHAUSEN, a vil. Rhinish Prussia, gov. Minden, circle Hersfeld; with a church. Pop. 1060.

LEO (St.) a tn. Italy, deling. Urbino and Pesaro, on a hill, 27 m. W Pesaro. It is the site of a bishopric, defended by a fort, near which was found, buried in a large chest, several vessels and masses of gold, a crown of gold, six vessels of silver, and a number of jewels. They are supposed to have belonged to king Burgund, who long defended himself on Mount St. Leo, before he fell into the hands of Otto I. P. 1300.

LEOBARDA, a tn., W. Africa, r. bank Niger; lat. 6° 20' N lon. 5° 45' E, surrounded by an immensely thick wall. The inhabitants are extremely poor, but are contented and happy, and kind and hospitable to strangers. Pop. 8000.

LEOMEN a tn. Austria, Styria, circle and 9 m. W S. W. Bruck, r. bank Mur. It is walled, enclosed by three gates, has a large and handsome square, surrounded with three S. W. brick and battery church, townhouse, and theatre, extensive iron and steel works. Both coal and lignite are worked to a considerable extent in the vicinity. Pop. 3000.

LEOBERSDORF, or LOBERSDORF, a vil. Lower Austria, on the Travert about 21 m. S. S. W. Vienna, on the S. railway with a church, manufactures of silk goods, mineral springs and a cotton, saw and other mills. Pop. 1290.

LEOBISCHUTZ, or LOBISCHUTZ, a tn. Prussia, Silesia, gov. and 21 m. S. S. W. Oppeln, cap. circle, on the Elma. It is walled, surrounded with ten towers, has a law-court, and several public offices; two churches, two chapels, an old Franciscan monastery, occupied as a R. Catholic gymnasium; and two hospitals; manufactures of woolen and linen cloth, ribbons and leather, and a walk-mill. P. 6092.—The climate is mostly dry, but produces much corn. Area, 207 sq. m. Pop. 72,393.

LEOCHERLAND-GOSHAW, par. Scot. Aberdeen; 18,440 ac. Pop. 1068.

LEOGANE, a maritime tn. Hayti N. side of S. W. peninsula, 22 m. W Port-au-Prince lat. 18° 25' N lon. 73° 40' W. There is good anchorage off the town.

LEOMIA, a tn. and par. Portugal, prov. Beira-Alta, near l. bank Trova, and near the R. Le. Leopo. Pop. 1187.

LEOMINSTER, a par. and market par. market, and par. England, co. Hereford. The town, 13 m. N. Hereford, in a fertile valley r. bank Lugg is interested by the Kee-water and Finsley; has several antique looking houses, of timber and brick; spacious church, of various styles; several Dissenting chapels, a Friends' meeting-house, several churches, including a free grammar-school and an almshouse; also a theatre, a townhall and jail, and a reading-room. The wool and hops produced in the neighborhood are much esteemed, and the town has long been famed for the quality of its cider. There is a race-course in the vicinity, on which races are run every August. The bar returns two members to parliament. Registered electors (1851), 428. Area of par., 9290 ac. Pop. 1851, 3314.

LEON, a tn. Spain, cap. prov. and ancient kingdom of same name, on a low and level tract, in the angle formed by the confluence of the Tago and the Barranco, each of which is here crossed by a bridge, 176 m. N W. Madrid. It is built in the form of an octagon, surrounded by ancient walls in a somewhat dilapidated state, and entered by 11 gates. The streets are generally narrow, irregular, ill paved and dirty, and many of the houses are untenanted, and in a state of decay. The square, called Nueva and Piazza, or Plaza de San Martin, however having been recently widened and improved, are decidedly handsome; and there are four principal squares, all of them lined by handsome edifices, while that called the Plaza Mayor, or Plaza de la Constitución, is remarkable for the regularity of its form, and the fine front of balconies. The fountain, also, some of them composed of marble and jasper with elegant figures, are elegant structures; and a finely placed one, called the Escalin de Puerta Castilla, affords a beautiful and magnificent perspective. The palace called Alfaro are the residences of a beautiful specimen of the puerto de la, with a facade composed of six richly sculptured round, and flanked by two semicircular arches, and lofty towers; the church of San Isidro, an ancient massive structure, also Gothic, several suppressed convents, among which, that of San Marcos de Leon, is the most conspicuous, four nurseries, the warehouses, courthouses, and other public offices, occupying a handsome structure with two towers; the episcopal palace, with a fine garden attached to it; the public library, contained in an ancient manse; a fine old palace, called La Casa de las Platerías; the theatre, several hospitals, the Hospicio mendicant, the gymnasium or institute, which has been recently established to afford a superior general education; the primary, normal, and various other schools. The manufactures consist chiefly of linen goods, once the great staple of the town, but now almost extinct; leather, hats, and earthenware. There is no trade worthy of the name, but there are two weekly markets and three annual fairs, each of which is well frequented, and lasts several days. Pop 1074.—

The province of Leon is bounded N by prov. Oviedo, E. by Palencia, S. by Valladolid and Zamora, and W by Lago and Orense. greatest length, E to W, about 120 m. mean breadth, 60 m. The surface in the N and W is covered by the mountains of Asturias, a branch of which proceeding E. divides the prov into two unequal portions an E., the larger of the two, belonging to the basin of the Duero, which receives its waters chiefly by the Esla, Orbia, Tago, Lema, Borgea and Torgo; and a W. belonging to the basin of the Miño, being drained by its tributaries—Sil, Boma, Barbia, Lea, and Valença. The W. portion is generally so rugged as to be far better adapted for pasture than agriculture, but the E. portion, on receding from the mountains, descends by a succession of terraces, and ultimately merges into wide and undulating plains on which the vine is successfully cultivated, and abundant crops of corn, maize, hemp and flax, are raised. The minerals include argentiferous lead, antimony, iron, coal, and marble, but none of them, except iron, is turned to much account. Manufactures and trade are very limited. For administrative purposes it is divided into ten judicial districts, of which Leon is the capital. Pop. 366,355.—The extended Leon was founded in 815, by Ordono II. and in the 11th century was annexed to the crown of Castile, by Ferdinand the Great. It made attempts to resume its independence in the 12th century, but, though still retaining the name of a kingdom, was finally incorporated with the monarchy in the 13th century, by Ferdinand III. As a territory still recognized by geographers, and frequently mentioned by historical and other writers, it is bounded N. by Asturias, E. by Old Castile, S. by New Castile and Estramadura, W. by Portugal and N.W. by Galicia, and comprises the five modern provinces of Leon, Palencia, Valladolid, Zamora and Salamanca. LEON, a town in Mexico, dep. and 84 m. W. N. W. Guanajuato; lat. 21° 58' 38" N., lon. 103° 39' W. It lies 6004 ft. above the sea, has two Franciscan convents, a university, a college, an hospital, and a considerable trade in corn. P. about 6000.

LEON, a town Central America, cap. Nicaragua, occupying the site of a large Indian town, called Babitaba, on a large and fertile plain, nearly equidistant from Lake Leon or Managua and the Pacific lat. 12° 25' N., lon. 86° 57' W. It stands between deep ravines, the numerous springs in which furnish it with copious supplies of pure water; and across a large area, laid out on a regular plan, in successive streets, with intersecting squares. The houses, built of adobe, are seldom of more than one story, but each encloses a spacious court, planted with trees, and entered by a portal, which is often lofty in the style of the Moorish arches, common in Spain, and profusely and tastefully ornamented. As first few of the houses had windows looking into the street, and the other was to give the whole town a gloomy appearance, but the windows have recently become much more numerous, and, projecting 3 or 4 ft. from the wall, are guarded by iron balconies, in which the inmates usually sit in the cool of the evening to receive and return the salutations of their guests and acquaintances. In the disturbances and revolutions which have long agitated the country, Leon has had its full share. Many of its houses have, in consequence, become dilapidated, and even considerable portions are mere heaps of ruin. On one occasion above a thousand houses, in its richest and best built quarter, were burned down in a single night. The public edifices are considered among the finest in Central America, and include a large and massive cathedral, crowned by a lofty, capped dome, and two flanking towers, with pyramidal tops, and projecting so much of the appearance as well as the really of a fortress, that 80 pieces of artillery were at one time planted on its roof, and the indentations made by shot during the repeated bombardments which it has sustained, are visible on almost every square inch of its walls. The episcopal palace, built of adobe and stone, entered by a well proportioned portico, and surrounded by fine gardens; the churches of La Merced, Recolectoria, and Calvario, remarkable for their size and fine facade, and various other churches, the Trinitarian college of St. Francis, once a flourishing establishment, with professorships of law and medicine, and numerous students, but now possessed only of a nominal existence; the government-house, Central General, or head barracks, and the hospital, occupying the old convent of San Juan de Dios. The Indian village of Subitaba is properly part of Leon, though constituting a distinct municipality. It is all that now remains of the larger town which Leon supplanted, and has a number of public buildings, among which its church, consisting of three naves, supported by cedar columns, with gilt capitals, surmounted by lofty and well-proportioned towers is conspicuous. The manufactures of Leon, are confined chiefly to articles in dressed leather and cutlery and the trade, owing to its inland situation, does little more than supply its local wants. The markets are well supplied and display fruits and vegetables in great variety and almost boundless profusion. Pop. (1847), 30,000.—(See Spain's Nicaragua, Bulletin of Central America.)

LEON (LAKK or), an isl. Spain, on which are situated the city of Orense and the town of San Fernando.

LEON (LAKK or), Central America. See MANAGUA. LEON (New), a dep. Mexico; lat. 23° 50' to 27° 25' N., lon. 98° to 100° 50' W. enclosed by Zacatecas, San Luis Potosi, Tamaulipas, and Coahuila area, 25,400 sq. m. The surface is generally monotonous, and is watered by several streams, of which the Tigris is the principal. The soil is fertile, but little cultivated. Horae, mules, and humped cattle, are raised in great numbers and there are gold and lead mines. Salt is also obtained from fountains on the banks of the Rio Tigris. The principal towns are Monterey, the cap., Florida Llanera, and Saltillo. Pop. 180,000.

LEONARD (St.) [ana. St. Leonhardus] a tn. France, dep. Haute-Vienne, 10 m. E. Limoges, on the Vienne here crossed by a handsome bridge. It is surrounded by finely-planted boulevards, and has an ancient parish church, several town houses, and paper-mill manufactures of coarse woollens, blankets, worsted, and copper vessels, and some trade in cattle. Pop. 3500.

LEONARD (St.) two par. England.—1, Devon 173 ac. forming a suburb of Exeter. Pop. 1490.—2, [and St. Michael's New Walton] York (N. Riding), 110 ac. Pop. 2841.

LEONARDO (San), two tn. Naples.—1, Prov. Capua, dist. and 17 m. N. E. Foggia, a fortress of the third class.—2, A tn. Sicily prov. and 14 m. S. W. Trapani, N. shore of Favignana, with a tunny fishery. Its harbour, which affords good anchorage, is defended by four forts.

LEONARDS (St.)—1, A watering-place and par. England, co. Sussex. The town is beautifully situated on a bay in the English Channel. S.W. from Hatching, has bath and assembly-rooms, agreeable promenades, a botanical-garden, and archery grounds, a parish church, a Wesleyan chapel and one in connection with the Free Church of Scotland, a national school, a mechanics institute and an infirmary. Area of par. 994 ac. Pop. 1840.—[Local Correspondent].—2, A par. Scotland Fife, 981 ac. Pop. 567.—3, A tn. New K. Wales, co. Cumberland on the shore of Port Jackson harbour. Pop. 412.—4, [Wesley] A par. England, Gloucester; 1070 ac. Pop. 661.

LEONSPRO, a tn. Württemberg, circle Aalen, capital, 9 m. W. by Stuttgart. It is an old but thriving place, has a castle, church, and hospital, manufactures of cloth, and woollen hosiery, several mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 2200. Area of bail., 74 sq. ac. sq. m. Pop. 37,360.

LEONDISING a vil. Upper Austria, circle Mühl, about 4 m. from Lutz, with a church. Pop. 2220.

LEONÉSIA a tn. Naples, prov. Abruzzo-Ulton II., dist. and 13 m. N. Civita Ducale, 1. bank Corone. It stands in an amphitheatre, surrounded by lofty precipices, which in winter exclude the sun till mid-day, amidst five churches, four convents, and three monasteries, and two hospitals, the one lasting eight and the other four days. Pop. 7000.

LEONFELDEN, an inc. and once fortified market in Upper Austria, 15 m. N Linz, with two churches. Pop. 600.

LEONFELT, a tn. Bally prov. and 37 m. W N W Canada. It is walled, and contains chiefly of an extensive square, opened into by two spacious well-built streets. It carries on a considerable trade in corn, wine, and silk. Both asphaltum and sulphur are found in the neighbourhood. The annual produce of the latter is great. Pop. 10,078.

LEONHART, several places, Austria.—1 A vil Tyrol, circle Bozen, in a valley of same name, with a church. Pop. 1500.—2 A tn. Blyth, circle and 85 m. N E. Kington, It is walled, and has a remarkable church, a ruined castle and iron-works, supplied from mines in the vicinity. Pop. 790.

LEONNI, a tn. Naples prov. Principato-Ultra, dist. and 6 m. S St. Angelo del Lombardi with an hospital. P. 4100.

LEONIL, a vil and par. Brazil prov. Mato-Grosso, r bank Guarapari, about 30 m. above Fort Principe da Beira. It has a parish church and is inhabited chiefly by Indians, who subsist by the chase and fishing. The females make articles of earthenware. Pop. 1000.

LEONLARI, a tn. Locarno in Green. See LEUTERA.

LEONOLD, a port. N America near the N W entrance of Prince Regent's Inlet from Barrow Strait lat. 73° 50' N. lon. 90° 10' W. Fr. James Ross, in his search for Sir John Franklin, was frozen up here from September 1846 to August 1847.—2 An is. Barrow's Straits, N E. of the above port and of Cape Clarence lat. 74° 3' N. lon. 80° 55' W. (s.)—3, A cape, W coast Hudson Bay lat. 75° 47' N. lon. 70° 10' W. (s.)

LEONILDE (Léonide) (s.) a tn. Brazil prov. São Paulo-de-Rio-Verde, between the Rio São João, 30 m. N Porto-Alegre. It was founded in 1824 by a colony of Germans, under the patronage of the Empress Leopoldina, wife of Don Pedro I. to whom it owes its name and was making great progress, when its prosperity was arrested by the revolution of 1835 and the troubles of 1840 and 1841. It has again begun to prosper and sends garden maize, milk butter and cheese to Porto-Alegre. Pop. dist. 4000.

LEONILDE, a vil. Hungary Banat, on Lake Welk, between about 20 m. from Pancsova with two churches. The inhabitants are chiefly frontier soldiers. P. 2952.

LEONILDE, a tn. Hungary Thither Danube, co. Vasvár, near r bank Waag 24 m. S. E. Prostburg. It is a place of some strength being surrounded by walls and bastions, and otherwise fortified contains two churches a synagogues hospital barracks and large magazine. Pop. 1666.

LEPANTO or FRANKO (anc. Neposentia) a seaport in Greece near Florida, N W part of the gulf near the strait of same name 103 m. W W Athens. It stands on the side of a hill and, when viewed from the sea, presents the form of a triangle the apex of which occupying the summit, is crowned by a castle, while the walls diverging down to wards and then skirting the shore, form the three sides. It is at present a very insignificant place and owing to the sitting up of the harbour has almost no trade, but was an eminently considerable importance stood a siege, in 1475, from the Turks, who, after four months were obliged to retire with a loss of 20,000 men, and is memorable for the naval battle fought within the gulf in 1571 between the Ottoman fleet, and the combined fleets of the Christian States of the Mediterranean, under Don Juan of Austria when the former consisting of 200 galleys and 60 other vessels, was destroyed. Cervantes, author of Don Quixote distinguished himself in this battle, and received three wounds, one of which cost him the use of his left arm ever after.—The strait connects the Gulf of Corinth with the Gulf of Patras, and is about 1 m wide at its narrowest part, which is defended by a castle on either side.

LEPANTO (Gulf of) See CORINTH.

LEP, a tn. and port, Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 12 m. W by R. Huelva, r bank Huelva, with a church, two convents a conventual, a seminary, a hospital, four schools, manufactures of leather, tanning skins, wine, and oil, and a trade in fruits, salt fish &c. Pop. 3034.

LEPEL, a tn. Russia, gov. and 84 m. W S W Vitebsk, cap. dist. It is traversed by the Berezina canal and, by its means, exports much wood to Hla. Pop. 2000.—The port is a level, well wooded towards the E. and covered with small lakes towards the W. Pop. 60,000.

LEPPER ISLAND one of the New Hebrides' Isla; lat. 16° 25' S. lon. 167° 54' E. between the mts. Epiphras Santo and Aurora.

LEPSENY, or IKSZ a vil. Hungary Thither Danube, co. and 17 m. E. S. E. Vasvár with two R. Catholic churches. Pop. 1253.

LEQUETTO a tn. Spain prov. Biscay, 24 m. E. N. E. Bilbao on the Bay of Biscay. It has ancient massive walls, with five gates a very ancient and magnificent Gothic church a wall built towards the sixteenth century, a superior, a primary school manufactures of iron, a factory, and a small harbour, with some coasting trade. Pop. 2326.

LEQUITO or IKSZ a vil and com. Kingdom of Italy Piedmont, div. Com. prov. Mondovì between the Tanaro and the Mondavio with a church, a palace, a communal house a monastery, and a trade in corn, cattle and wine. Pop. 1020.

LEUCHENFELD, or NEW LEUCHENFELD, a vil Lower Austria, near Vienna as to be properly one of its suburbs. It is well and regularly built; and consists chiefly of wine and beer shops much frequented by the citizens of the capital. It has a parish church and an hospital for wounded officers. Pop. 7690.

LEUEZ (San FAYANO), a vil and par. Spain Galicia prov. and 5 m. E. Pontevedra, at the confluence of a river of its own name with the Pontevedra. It has a parish church a suppressed convent, a primary school, several flour-mills, and a trade in corn, wool and fruit. Pop. 2011.

LEPIL (Lepil) a tn. Italy Piedmont, div. Gonca prov. Levante, S. shore Gulf of Spezia, 67 m. F. S. Gona. It is pleasantly situated but not well built, is defended by a polygonal castle, has a church with some good paintings, a Capuchin monastery with one of the largest churches which that order possesses the buildings of an old Augustinian monas tery beautifully situated on a terrace of land projecting into the sea several palaces, some of large dimensions, and adorned with stuccoes and marble facades an hospital an elementary school and a harbour which though deficient in shelter is much frequented by coasting vessels, and carries on a considerable trade. The fishery on the coast is productive, and employs a great number of the inhabitants. Pop. 5217.

LEPILDA, a prov. Spain, Catalonia, bounded N by Fransa, N. E. by prov. Gerona E. by Barcelona S. E. by Tarragona, N. W. by Saragossa, and W. by Huesca, area 6141 sq. m. It is irregular in shape and mountainous being traversed by ramifications of the Pyrenees the main chain of which separates the province from Fransa. The mountains are usually well wooded and contain iron copper mine, lead, pyrites, and coal with quarries of granite marble Jasper jasper, and lime. The plains and valleys are fertile, yielding grain of all kinds, and fruits and vegetables in great abundance, domestic cattle are reared in considerable numbers, and great attention is paid to the culture of linen and silk worms. The principal rivers which irrigate the province are the Segre, Valira, Tixer, Noguera Pallaresa, Noguera Riva-gorosa, with many smaller streams. Linen, W. silk, cotton and cotton fabrics, are manufactured also leather, paper soap, iron and copper vessels, hats shoes, laundry &c. The inhabitants are far more industrious, and consequently more affluent, and the country is better cultivated than is generally the case in Spain. Pop. 197,445.

LEPILDA (Catalan, Lleida and Roda) a tn. Spain, Catalonia, cap. above prov. partly on a hill on which it rises in the form of an amphitheatre, and partly in a plain, r bank Segre, here crossed by a handsome stone bridge of seven arches, 84 m. W N W Barcelona. Being regarded as the key of Aragon and Catalonia it is one of the most important military points in Spain and possesses great strength being both surrounded by walls flanked with bastions, and by a wet fosse, and defended by a castle and several batteries. It is a very ancient place, and, having in recent times suffered much by the ravages of war presents, in many places, a very ruinous appearance. The houses, though very substantial, and mostly of three or four stories, are frequently in a very dilapidated state, and the streets, with very few exceptions, are narrow winding, and ill-paved. The principal objects are the old cathedral, presenting a curious, and rather incongruous mixture of styles—Byzantine, Gothic, and Moorish—with a portal formed of four concentric arches, once sculptured columns, and Byzantine windows of great interest, as apol-ment of early art; the new cathedral, an imposing structure of the Corinthian order with some good sculptures; the church of San Lorenzo, a very ancient building occupying the site, and supposed still partly to consist of what was originally a Roman basilican temple; the church of San Juan, attributed to the time of Constantine the Great, and remarkable for its Byzantine porch; the episcopal palace, the townhouse, courthouse, and prison; the gymnasium or Academy, the diocesan seminary; the normal and other schools; the theatre, baths, and civil and military hospitals. The manufactures consist chiefly of woollen and cotton goods, leather, earthenware, glass, and paper and the trade, particularly in corn and timber is important. There is also a considerable transit trade, greatly favoured by the advantageous situation of the town on the high road from Barcelona to Madrid.

Lerida, originally the capital of the Illegatus, in the wars between the Carthaginians and Romans, adhered to the former, and suffered much from both. In its vicinity Scipio gained a signal victory over the Carthaginian general Hanno and as a result later period Julius Caesar defeated Afranius and Petreus, Pompey's lieutenant. After the departure of the Romans it fell into the hands of the Goths, during whose domination a celebrated convent known by its name, was held at it. It was long held by the Moors, from whom it was taken by Raymond Berenger, king of Aragon, and continued, for several centuries after to be the capital of his kingdom. It has since several regular sieges. Pop. 12,936. — [Maison]

LERIN a in Spain, prov. Navarre, 28 m. S. S. W. Pamplona, 1 bank Ego. It has a handsome parish church, a spacious townhouse, hospital, prison, two schools, six chapels, two of which are ruinous, and one used as a cemetery, a magnificent palace of the Counts and manufactures of brandy, wine, and oil. Pop. 2,295. — [Maison and Melilla]

LERIN ISLANDS (Latin Lerinae insulae) an island group, France, dep. Var, in the Mediterranean, close upon the coast, opposite Cannes. It is composed of the fortified islands of St. Honorat and St. Marguerite (the first the Lerina, and the second the Lero of the Romans) and several smaller islets, and some shoals. In the castle in the latter long used as a prison; in the latter 2 rancals I spent a night on his way to Spain as a prisoner. They are inhabited by the garrisons and a few fishing families.

LERMA a in Spain, prov. Old Castile, prov. and 21 m. S. Burgos, with three churches, four chapels, six convents a town and chapter house, prison, three schools, an hospital and other charitable institutions, the ruins of an extensive ducal palace, and manufactures of earthenware and leather and a trade in grain and fish. Pop. 1,195. — 2 A vil and com. Cardenal States, div. Genoa, prov. and 10 m. S. S. W. Novara, bank Piotta with a church, an old castle, manufactures of fusian and seeking, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1,346.

LERO, or LEROS a small Isl. Grecian Archipelago, off W. coast Anatolia. One of its loftiest peaks, Mount Kink, 1,000 ft. high, is lat. 37° 10' 43" N. lon. 26° 51' 30" E. in it is about 10 m. long, N. to S. average width 4 m., rocky and mountainous, but in some parts tolerably fertile producing grapes, olive oil, wheat, Indian corn &c. It is famous for its honey, as it was in ancient times for its aloes. Great numbers of sheep are reared on its heights. On the E. side is the town of Lero and on the N. a commodious port, called Partheni. Pop. 2,000.

LERE, a river, France, which rises in the S. E. of dep. Artois, flows very chronically N. W. forming part of the boundary between that department and Aude enters dep. Haute-Garonne, and after a course of above 70 m., joins r. bank Artois, a little above Castelnau.

LERWICK a seaport to and par. Scotland cap. Shetland Isles, in Bransay Sound, on S. E. shore Mainland, 21 m. N. N. E. Sumburgh Head, lat. (fort) 60° 24' N. lon. 1° 8' 45" W. (a) It consists of a principal street, leading to the harbour, and opened into by a number of lanes; and though in general irregularly and rather poorly built, has received many recent improvements, and contains several substantial modern houses. The church, occupying a height in the N. part of the town, is modern, and has a Doric front, and on a island, in the vicinity, are the remains of a castle, supposed to be of British origin. There are no manufactures of any sort.

Vol. II

sequence but the trade, greatly favoured by the fine anchorage in the bay, with many access both from the N. and S., is considerable. The chief exports are fish, butter, hides, rabbit skins, and stockings; the imports—coal, cloth, grain, groceries, and timber. Many of the inhabitants are employed in the fisheries. Pop. 2,904. The par. is about 6 m. long, by 1 m. broad. Pop. 2,800.

LES ALLULES (Latin Allulæ) a vil and com. France, dep. Savoie, prov. Tarentaise about 8 m. from Borel with an old but handsome parish church an elementary school and a trade in cheese of the nature of Gruyère. 1 op. 1,463.

LES CHATELAINES a vil France, dep. Savoie, prov. Tarentaise, 2 m. from Bourg San Maurice with a church and some trade in cattle and dairy produce. Pop. 1,068.

LES OLENS (Latin Olenæ) a vil and com. France, dep. Haute-Savoie prov. Faucigny, 6 m. N. E. Taninges with a church and a trade in wool cattle and butter. 1,545.

LESA (Latin Lena) a in Italy Piedmont, dep. Novara, prov. and 7 m. S. Pallanza on a hill slope, amid vineyards, r. bank Verbania. It has a church the remains of an old castle, and a considerable trade in fruit. Many families from Milan, Novara, and other places, spend the autumn here. 1,654.

LESACCA a in Spain, prov. Navarra, 28 m. N. N. W. Pamplona, with church, townhouse, and school; manufactures of iron and several saw-mills. Pop. 1,895.

LESBOE an Isl. Grecian Archipelago, see MYTILINI.

LESBURY par. Eng. Northants. 2624 ac. 1,128.

LESCLAR (anc. Decurionum) a in France dep. Dooer-Pyrénées, 4 m. W. Pau on the Haras, and near the Garonne. It has a church of great antiquity, a lofty edifice partly in the Romanesque style, which stands, with the castle, on a detached eminence above the town, manufactures of linen cloth and woollen hosiery and cotton-mills. Pop. 1,796.

LESCHILNAULI a settlement and dist. W. Australia co. Wellington. The entrance to the inlet is in lat. 33° 30' S. lon. 116° 47' E.

LESCHIL, a vil Croatia, generalship Karlovitz, 1 bank Geotica. It has a parish church and near it are the ruins of the old castle of Katum. Pop. 1,432.

LESCHITZ, or LESNICA, a in Prussia, Sillesia, gov. and 20 m. S. S. E. Oppeln with two churches an hospital many manufactures of linen and tobacco and several mills. 1,120.

LESIGNO or LESIGNO a vil and com. Italy, Piedmont dep. Cune prov. and about 8 m. from Mondovì, with a church, several chapels a monastery a palace, and a commodious school. Pop. 1,870.

LESIGNANO 1 a in Spain, dep. Segovia, a vil and com. Italy Parma, 1 bank river and 14 m. S. city of Parma, famous for its mineral springs which are considered efficacious in nervous and cutaneous affections and attract a good many visitors, though the accommodation is very indifferent. 1 op. 2,942. — 2 (de Palma) a vil and com. Italy, Parma, in a mountainous district, 1 bank Reggiana, 18 m. S. S. W. Parma; with a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 2,786.

LESINA a in Naples, prov. Capitanata, dist. and 11 m. N. N. E. San Severo, S. shore of Lake Lucina. It is the sea of a bishop. Pop. 1,100. — The LAKE called also Salce or Salpe the Pantano of 11 my forms a kind of lagoon along the Adriatic, into which it discharges itself, being only separated from it by a low and narrow belt of land, length, E. to W. 18 m. breadth, 8 m. It is well stocked with fish.

LESINA or LESINIA (anc. Pharus) — 1 An Isl. Austria in the Adriatic, off Dalmatia, circle Spalatro, separated from the peninsula of Sabioncello by the straits of Narona on the N. W. lat. (fort) 43° 10' 43" N. lon. 16° 57' 17" E. (a) It forms a long and narrow strip, stretching E. to W. length, about 40 m. breadth, 2 m. to 4 m., and mostly composed of clumps of hills, which descending to the coast form high and precipitous cliffs, and furnish fair harbours. The arable and fertile ground is almost confined to the two valleys of Verbania and Verbania both on the N. side. The climate is remarkably mild, and though the corn raised barely suffices for two months consumption both wine and fruit of exquisite quality are produced. Among the latter may be mentioned figs, and among the former the so-called shore wine (vin de espagnole). Large tracts are covered with ruscumy from the flowers of the misantibus diu a spirit called apric de segura, which greatly resembles ou de Cologne, and from the leaves they extract an oil, known in commerce by the name of oleum.

andou. The anchovy fishery is of considerable importance 1 sp. 9000—2 A 41, S. N. coast of shore Island 34 m. S. S. It is defended by two forts and presents a striking appearance rising from the shore in the form of an amphitheatre. It is the seat of a bishop, the seat of a court of justice, contains a cathedral church, a seminary, large barracks, and a vaulted building converted into a storehouse but originally used by the Venetians as a naval arsenal and has manufactures of oil and spirit from rosemary. The harbour naturally good, is much resorted to in stormy weather. Pop. 1400.

LESKAU a market in Bobocau, circle and W. N. W. from Ffuren with a church, school, townhouse, hospital and a trade in corn, wool and sheep. Pop. 907.

LESKIKI—1 A manufacturing in box of barony and par Scotland co. Fife. The town 11 m. S. W. Cupar is neatly built and has a parish, a Free, and a U. Presbyterian church, a school, and some charities. Several flax spinning-mills and bleachfields, in which and in weaving the inhabitants are principally employed. Area of par about 6000 ar. 1 op. (1841) 3800—2 A par bent co. Aberdeen 4000 ac. Pop. 550.

LESMAIGAUZ a par Scotland upper ward of Lanarkshire 34 000 ac. It includes the villages of Abber Green and Torthorwald. Begsford (const of Hazelbank Kirkfieldbank Kirkmurrhill and New Town) and is noted for its raised or gas-coal. Pop. (1841) 1740.

LESNO a vil and par Italy Lombardy prov and 15 m. N. E. Milan near 1 bank Lambrò, with a church two oratories, a paper mill, iron factories of flax and hemp and a trade in wine and silk. 1 1700.

LESNELEN (anc. Leuven) a town France dep. Finistère 16 m. N. N. Brest. It has a communal college an infirmary and a considerable trade in corn. It is the centre of a par in a bleak and dreary spot in the church of Notre Dame of Folgoat one of the most remarkable Gothic structures of Brittany. Pop. 44.

LESNEVILLE par Eng. Cornwall 2074 ac. P. 131.

LESNA or LESNA DO BALLO a seaport in and par 1 a vil par Uruguay 4 m. N. Oporto. It has a small harbour and is much frequented as landing quarters. Pop. 1180.

LESSE, a river Belgium which rises about 6 m. N. W. Nivelles near Luxembourg 8 m. N. and N. W. with a remarkably fertile and fertile lands in corn. It then a mile of Lesse in a bleak and dreary spot in the church of Notre Dame of Folgoat one of the most remarkable Gothic structures of Brittany. Pop. 44.

LESSE a vil Brunswick des Wolfenbüttel 12 m. W. S. W. Brunswick with a handsome manor house and a quarry a great deal of yarn is manufactured. Pop. 1062.

LESSE a vil W. Russia gov and 16 m. S. E. Marven with a church and a trade in horses and cattle. 1 1240.

LESSE a vil Belgium in and com. Belgium prov. Walloon 21 m. N. E. by E. Tourney 1 bank Dendre. The town, nearly enclosed by the Dendre, has four gates, and is surrounded by gardens on the site of the old walls. It has a handsome and spacious townhall, three churches, four primary schools, an hospital, literary association, society of arts, and several benevolent institutions, manufactures of leather, soap, tins, bricks, and earthenware, dyeing, net-making, weaving, distilling, and grinding oil and as active trade in wool and yarn—about 5000. Pop. 4969.

LESSEINGHAM par Eng. Norfolk 639 ac. P. 191.

LESSELO or LESLELO a vil Italy Piedmont div Torino, prov and N. W. from Ivrea, 1 bank Dora Baltea with a church, handsome quarters and a trade in cattle. Valuable seams of iron exist in the vicinity but are not worked. Pop. 1745.

LESSELO ISLAND the most E. of the Skionien islands N. coast Japan lat. 33° 35' lon. 144° 45' (W.) consists of a very high tolerably regular cone 5 or 6 m. in circumference. It is covered with a rich verdure.

LESSENA a vil and com. Italy Piedmont div Torino, prov and 3 m. from Biella with a parish church, beautifully situated on a gentle height and a large turreted castle, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1154.

LESSEZ a vil and com. Belgium prov and 7 m. S. S. W. Namur. The spinning of hemp, hawking of wool, and quarrying of marble are the chief employments, and there are also saw flour and other mills. Pop. 1661.

LESSEWALL, par Scot. Wigton 8 sq. m. P. 5021.

LESZYA or LESZA a vil Austria, Transylvania, 87 m. S. S. E. Hermannstadt with two churches, inhabitants Walachians, and are all soldiers. Pop. 1230.

LETA (Ks.) a vil Hungary co. Szabolcs, dist. and about 6 m. from Baktar with a Protestant church. Pop. 1479.

LETA (Nagy) a vil Hungary Thüder Thelm, co. Bihor between H. Székely and Székelyhíd on the road to Klausenburg, with three churches, and a trade in corn, wine, hemp flax and tobacco. 1 sp. 8960.

LETCHEWITZ par Eng. Hereford 1027 ac. P. 76.

LETCOMBE two pars Eng. Dorset—1 (Hasset); 1260 ac. 1 222—2 (Hyslop) 3700 ac. 1 965.

LETHAM two vils Scotland—1 (a) 3½ 4 m. W. Cupar with an independent chapel and a school. Inhabitants chiefly linen-weavers. 1 op. 287—2 (a) and 5 m. S. S. 1 corlar with a chapel connected with the established church, a Free and U. Presbyterian church and an Independent chapel several well-conducted schools, a literary institute, reading room and library. Weaving, agriculture and quarrying form the chief employments. Pop. 745—(Local Correspondent).

LETHENDY and KINLOCH par Scot. Perth 1689 ac. P. 656.

LETHBRIDGE par Eng. Norfolk 1134 ac. P. 206.

LETHBRIDGE par Eng. Norfolk 858 ac. P. 814.

LETHNOT and NAVAR par Scot. Forfar 15 m. by 5 1 op. 408.

LEHMATE, a vil Rhem h. Prussia gov and 22 m. W. Arnberg on the Lemme with a church, manufactures of hardware, a cotton printed and an annual fair. Pop. 1052.

LEH a vil Italy Russia, prov. Novosibirsk, delta of the Danube formed by the Kila and Salma monthly between which it is about 32 m. long, 10 to 20 m. broad, the widest part.

LEHICHEV a vil Russia. See LEHICHEV.

LETO an vil China in the Yellow sea Bay of Hong-kow near the promontory of Shantung. It is rocky but produces apples, grapes, and other fruits in abundance. has a spacious and deep harbour surrounded by rocks and at the head of which is a small town. The houses are of granite covered with sea-weeds and miserably furnished but the inhabitants are represented by Guttaff as most in their appearance, polite and industrious.

LETT a vil Rhem h. Prussia, gov. Münster circle Kassel with a parish church. 1 sp. 1250.

LETTI a vil Italy, prov. Liguria dist. and 4 m. P. N. E. Castellonare the seat of a bishop, with a cathedral and three other churches. Pop. 4000.

LETTERRAUTEM a vil and com. Belgium, prov. E. Flanders, about 10 m. P. G. with manufactures of linen, a distillery, a flour-mill and a trade in corn. P. 1085.

LETTERRA a market in Ireland on Donegal 18 m. S. W. Londonderry 1 bank Swilly. It has an established church, a Catholic chapel and four Presbyterian meeting houses, several schools, a fever hospital, dispensary, and union work-house. Oats, flax, butter and eggs are sold to a large extent in the weekly market on Friday, and shipped by the weekly and also from Londonderry. Agriculture and retail shop trade with the manufacturing of annulins by the females are the chief occupations. Pop. 1190—(Local Correspondent).

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETTERRA par Irel. King's co. 8430 ac. 1 906.

LETICZEW LATOWO or LETICZEV a tn Russia, gov. Podolia, r bank Dniestr, a tributary of the Bug, 60 m N N E. Kamienets. It has two churches, manufactures of ironware, and some general trade. Pop. 1800

LETZINGEN, a vil Prussia, prov. Saxony, gov. Magdeburg, circle and near Gardingen, with a hamlet, main feature of potato fields, and a mill. Pop. 1073

LEUBSDORF a vil. Saxony, circle Zwickau, bail Augustsburg, in a fax district. Pop. 1439

LEUBUS, a vil Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. and 23 m W N W Breslau, r bank Oder with two churches, one of them rich in monuments and paintings; manufactures of leather tile works, lincolns and several mills. Pop. 1809

LEUCA (CARO) [anc. Lycium or Solenastrum Pionos-toria] a cape Naples prov. Terra di Otranto lat. 39° 47' 10" N lon. 18° 24' 15" E (c) It is at the S E entrance of the Gulf of Taranto and forms the tip of the heel of the boot which the whole peninsula of Italy so curiously represents

LEUCE, an isl. Black Sea. See SEKRENTS (SLA) or

LEUCHAUS a vil and par Scotland co. Fife The village, about 5 m N W St. Andrews, is lighted with gas and amply supplied with water is generally well built and has a fine old parish church a Free church two schools, and some weaving of white dowlas, but not to the same extent as formerly. Area of par 12 960 ac. Pop. (1851), 1991

LEUCHT NIK a market in Bavaria prov. Ober-Pfalz, l bank Rhine, 24 m N E. Amberg. It contains two churches, and a ruined castle was once capital of a county and gives its name to the Duke of Leuchtenberg, the title assumed by Eugene Beauharnais on quitting the throne of Italy in 1814. Pop. 563

LEUCI (Sax) a tn. Italy delag and 4 m F. Benevento, l bank Salsano. Pop. 3000

LEUCI A the a.e. name of several trs. in Greece.—1 (now Leleas), in Boeotia, about 7 m. S W. Flabos, famous for the victory gained (371 B.C.) by the Thebans, under Epaminondas, over a much superior force of Spartans. It is now in ruins.—2 (now Leleas) A tn on the S. shore of the Gulf of Corin. l to S W. Lycos.—3, (now Leontari) A tn Peloponnesus, 17 m S S W. Tripolitza

LEUGAST or MARKT LEUGAST a market tn, Bavaria, Upper Franconia, dist. Stadtsteinach. It has manufactures of linen a serpentine quarry and several mills. Pop. 1021

LEUK (Latin Leuca, French Leucade) a tn and par Switzerland can. Valais, r bank Rhone near the confluence of the Dala 15 m F N E. Chion. It contains two churches, connects Leuk with the road on the Simplon. Pop. 380 About 6 m to the N on the Dala are the celebrated thermal baths of Leuk [Leukerbad], 4500 ft. above the sea, which annually attract large numbers of visitors chiefly Swiss and French. They are slightly saline, and have a temperature of 124°. The Leuker (Leuker), and the most curioles here. They are placed at a short distance from the baths along the face of the precipice which encloses the valley, and form the only access to the valley of Albis which is situated on the heights above, about a mile from its edge. These ladders, about ten in number are fixed almost perpendicularly on the cliff and though often awry, and rather wastefully are climbed or descended at all times of the day and night, by all persons male or female, often with heavy burdens. The situation of Leukerbad is dreary and the accommodation imperfect. Hence the establishment of the baths in 1801 they have been thrice carried away by avalanches. Pop. 474

LEUKA or LOKKEHAM a market in Hungary Thulser Danube, co. Eisenburg on the Gyngyos 5 m from Güns with a church and an old castle. Pop. 1189

LEUKESDORF a vil Saxony circle Zwickau bail and near Chemnitz with tile-works, and manufacture of sailcloth and coarse linen. Pop. 1302

LEUM a tn. Rhinisch Prussia, gov. and 8 m N E. Coblenz r bank Lahn here crossed by a bridge. It has a parish church a synagogue a bull-foundry an iron and two other mills, and a trade. Pop. 800

LEUEGHEN a vil and com Belgium prov. Flanders, r bank Scheldt, 15 m S N W Ghent, with an oil and a flour mill and a trade in corn. Pop. 1034

LEU a vil Holland prov. N. Brabant, 6 m W. Breda, with two churches and a school and a good trade in grain three breweries a salt work and a pottery. Pop. 1101

LEULENBURG a tn Germany princip. Mecklenburg Ruckstade cap bail in a unanimous district on the Sudow, 13 m S S E. Ruckstade with a church, saw, comb-houses and manufactures of potash salt-petre, bark, paper and other mills and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1084 Area of bail 48 sq. m. Pop. 6700

LEULESDORF (Omn) a tn Bohemia, circle and 24 m. W N W Leitmeritz with a church, manufactures of ordinary and table linen a saw and two flour mills. P. 2150

LEUFERDORF a vil, Rhinisch l. Russia, gov. Coblenz, circle Neuwied on the Rhine, with a church some shipping trade, and several general and cattle fairs. Pop. 1271

LEUTERSHAUSEN—1, A tn. Baden circle Lower Rhine bail Weidenham with a church a castle and a trade in corn cattle, tobacco and wine. Pop. 1429—2, A tn Bavaria, Middle Franconia cap. bail 12 m S S E. Wirtzburg with a church and a synagogue manufactures of cotton and mixed silk goods and a trade in horses and cattle. Pop. 1422 Area of bail 64 geo. sq. m. Pop. 17 510

LEUTHEN a vil Prussia, prov. Silesia gov. Breslau, circle Neumark with a castle and two churches. In 1753, a great victory was gained here by Frederick the Great over the Austrians. Pop. 782

LEUTKIRCH a tn Württemberg circle Danube, cap bail r bank Ebnach 29 m S. Ulm. It was once an imperial free town and has a church townhouse, and theatre manufactures of linen and cotton goods and a trade in linen. Pop. 2392 Area of bail 328 geo. sq. m. Pop. 20 557

LEUTOMITCHEL, a tn Bohemia See LEUTOMITSKY
LEUTSCHAU a tn Hungary cap. on Zips finely situated on a hill, above an affluent of the Hernad, 126 m N E. Pesth. It was once a place of great strength, though its fortifications are now in a very dilapidated state and its ditches have been filled up, and converted into gardens. It has, in general, irregular uneven and badly paved streets and contains one large square the centre of which is occupied by a large and handsome church, which has suffered much from an accidental fire, but still possesses many interesting antiquities. The other buildings, deserving of notice, are the large townhouse, courthouse, where the county meetings are held two monasteries, with churches a gymnasium, normal school guardhouse, and barracks. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture and have a considerable trade in corn, flour, hops, and vegetables, particularly pease. A peculiar kind of meat is made here has a large sale throughout Hungary and also in Poland and Silesia. Pop. 6500 and a large townhouse; and several ruins which give it a very picturesque appearance. A bridge across the Rhine

THE BRIDGE NEAR LEUTSCHAU — From Weidenham, Letters on the Rhine.

LEUTZ (see Joson), a tn and com Belgium, prov Hainaut, 10 m E. Tournai, on the railway thence to Brussels; a bank Little Dendre. It is regularly built and has well kept streets, a handsome church, manufactures of woollen and cotton hosiery and lace, tanning, dyeing, brewing, distilling, bleaching, expelling oil and refining salt. P 5827

LEVA or LEVEN, a market tn. Hungary. Hither Danube, co. Hara, on the Fercs, a tributary of the Gran 54 m N N W Feth. It was once fortified, and was repeatedly besieged by the Turks who were here defeated by the Austrians in 1864. It has a church and a gymnasium; a distillery, tanneries, and a considerable trade in horses and cattle. Pop. 4299

LEVAL-TRADEBETTER, a vil and com Belgium, prov Hainaut, 15 m E. Mons. Pop. (agricultural) 1405

LEVAN (87) a par England, co Cornwall 7½ m S W Penance in the W part of which, on the summit of a rock overlooking the sea, is a mass of granite called the Levan stone, estimated at 90 tons weight which can be moved by a single person. Area, 2394 sq. Pop. 52

LEVANK, formerly CARTEL, in LEOVA a vil and par Transylvania in the Upper Val d'Arno 7 bank Anlra, 28 m S.E. Florence with a church, and a small castle. P 1804

LEVANT a tn. Norway prov and 35 m N.E. Tromsøen, on the N.E. shore of the Tromsøfjord. It was nearly destroyed by fire in 1846, and has been rebuilt houses clean and comfortable but streets unpaved and filthy. The harbour is well sheltered and forms a kind of commercial outlet for Tromsøen, and as the fiord never freezes the navigation is at all times unimpeded. Hence it is much used even by the Swedes, who as soon as the snow has fallen and made the transport of heavy goods by sledges practicable, proceed to bring them across the country for export. Levant has two large manual saws, at which considerable quantities of iron (per cent, dried fish etc. are sold. Pop. 445

LEVANT or NOVI LART a name given to the E part of the Mediterranean Sea, and often extended to the countries which there lie along its shores

LEVANT above Italy Piedmont div E con bounded N by Alpi Pennine and the Alpi Pennine E by Ticino, W by Verba, S by Alpi Pennine and S.E. by the Gulf of Genoa. It is in a central mountainous and in its much indented coast is the chief of Alpi. It is divided into six municipalities and the chief towns are Verba, Verba, Verba, Verba and Verba. Area, 450 sq m. Pop. (1848) 78,549

LEVANTINA or LEVANTINA, a dist and valley Switzerland, co. Ticino, commencing in the N of the canton at Verba, where the valley of Verba terminates, and extending S.E. to Verba near the confluence of the Verba with the Verba. Its direct length thus defined, is about 16 m its breadth nowhere exceeds 1 m. In the Verba occupies its centre, while its sides are hemmed in between magnificent mountains precipitous. At Verba, a little above Verba the river enters a delta formed by a huge rent in Mount Verba into a Verba and forms a magnificent cascade. The valley above this point takes the name of Upper Verba. Here the valley contains only pastures and rich meadows. Lower down fruit trees grow and the soil becomes arable. At the S. extremity both the fig and the mulberry ripen. The district of Verba includes the valley of Verba and is divided into four Verba—Verba, Verba, Verba and Verba

LEVANT a tn Italy Piedmont div Genoa, prov Verba on a small bay of the Mediterranean 11 m S. N. W. Verba. On the land side it is surrounded by walls flanked with towers, and towards the sea, defended by a castle and several batteries. It contains several churches one of them a large and ancient structure, a Franciscan and Augustinian monastery has a court of justice, and several public offices a small harbour and a trade chiefly in oil and wine. P 4596

LEVANT (see Baccus or Phoenicia) one of the Verba m. off W coast Sicily 9 m. W Verba length, N.E. to S.W. 4 m. breadth, 3 m. Though situated and mountainous, it is very fertile and yields in considerable abundance, corn, wine, all fruits, and pasture. Pop. 4600

LEVANT (87), or Verba a market tn. Hungary. Hither Danube, co. and 25 m N N W Verba, near the Verba with a parish church. Pop. 7762

LEVANT, or Verba a market tn. Hungary. Thither Verba, co. and 4 m. from Verba, with two churches. Pop. 1124

LEVANT several rivers and lakes, Great Britain—1 (see Leven). A river England, co. Cumberland, formed by the junction of the Verba and Verba or Verba which joins about 2 m N W Verba, whence the stream flows S W and joins the Verba about 3 m above its embouchure in the Verba Firth—2 A river co. Lancashire the outlet of Verba Lake to the sea it falls into Morecambe Bay—3 A river Scotland, co. Dumfriesshire. It issues from the S. extremity of Verba Loch and falls into the Verba of Verba at Verba after a course of 7 to 9 m. above a beautiful level called the Verba of Verba in which are numerous works for bleaching, dyeing, calico-printing &c. At high water the river is navigable for large vessels up to the quay of Verba. Its waters are remarkably pure and transparent, and form the subject of Verba a 'Ode to Verba—4 A small stream, Scotland, Argyllshire flowing into Verba Loch Verba well stocked with salmon and fine trout—5 A stream Scotland co. Fife which issues from the E. end of the lake of same name flows E for about 12 m and falls into Verba Loch in the Verba of Verba—6 A loch Scotland co. Fife of irregular oval figure, and 10 to 11 m in circumference. It contains four islands, on one of which are the ruins of the ancient castle where Verba Mary was confined in which she signed her abdication and from which she escaped on the 24 May 1568 shortly before the battle of Verba. The trout caught in this lake have been long celebrated for their fine flavour—7 A long narrow arm of the sea Scotland, off Verba Loch, extending in nearly a straight line, W to E. between Verba and Verba and Verba is remarkable for the wildness and grandeur of its scenery

LEVY, a par Eng. York (F. Riding) 4837 ac. 1 893

LEVY a seaport and bathing place Scotland, co. Fife 8 m S. Cupar on the N. of the Verba. It is mostly built of stone and has Free S. Presbyterian and Independent churches, linen manufactures, and tin and iron works. P. 2184

LEVY a township, England co. Lancaster 3 m N.E. Manchester with a station on the Manchester and Verba branch of the London and North Western railway. The inhabitants are mostly occupied in the cotton manufactures. Pop. 1802

LEVY a tn France dep. Alpes Maritimes 11 m S. N. W. Verba, here crossed by a bridge. It has three churches and a trade in cattle and plants used in dyeing. Verba one of Verba a Verba, though born in Verba, was brought up in this town and is claimed by the inhabitants as their townsman. Pop. 1504

LEVY a par, Australia N.W. coast the most N point of Verba Land lat. 16 20' N lon. 123 E. It is a red cliffy point 60 ft in height.

LEVY a tn. England co. Lancaster and about 3 m S. E. Bolton on the Verba and Verba (see Verba) with Verba cotton and paper mills, and coal mines. Pop. 3511

LEVY a tn. Naples, prov. Verba, dist. and 10 m N.W. Verba with a collegiate church, convent, and hospital. Inhabitants chiefly fishermen. Pop. 1670

LEVY a par Eng. Cambridge 7871 ac. 1 up 2143

LEVY a vil. Rhénish Prussia, gov. Minden, circle Verba with a parish church. Pop. 1230

LEVY a par. England—1 Verba 7100 ac. P. 799—2 Verba 1050 ac. P. 336—3 Verba 1050 ac. P. 484

LEVY a vil and com Italy Piedmont div Verba, prov. Verba and 10 m. from Verba S. bank Verba here crossed by a bridge. It has an ancient parish church and the ruins of an old castle; and a trade in wine particularly sweet wine of excellent quality. Pop. 1124

LEVY a market tn. Austria, Tyrol, circle and 12 m S.E. Verba on a lake, and cup dist in the Verba Verba, with several churches a castle an hospital mineral springs, and vitrol works. Pop. in 1870; dist. 10,941

LEVY a par Eng. Verba. 1098 ac. P. 241

LEVY a par Eng. Verba. 1962 ac. P. 152

LEVY a par Eng. Verba. 1050 ac. P. 336—3 Verba 1050 ac. P. 484

LEVY a par Eng. Verba. 1098 ac. P. 241

LEVONE, a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, dist. and about 4 m. S. Iria with a church, and a small manufactory of earthenware, ironmaking, and a trade in wine and dairy produce. Pop. 1028.

LEVROUX (see Gabriel or Leproux) a tn. France dep. Indre, 12 m. N. Chateauroux, on the Vauvre. Its church is the finest in the department. It manufactures cloth and leather, and trades in corn, wine, wool and cattle. P. 2908.

LEWANNICK, par. Eng. Cornwall, 4000 ac. P. 747.

LEWEE, a par. bar and market in England on Sussex 7 m. N. E. by E. Brighton, on the S. coast railway, 3 bank Ouse which is here crossed by a stone bridge. It contains one principal street, nearly a mile long built on an alluvial, remarkably plain, and of several minor streets and lanes. The town is lighted with gas and amply supplied with water and has seven parish churches, a number of dissenting places of worship, a Unitarian chapel and a Friends meeting house, a new county jail and county hall, containing a handsome hall-room, grammar-school, national British and infant schools and several respectable private seminaries, a dispensary, a subscription library and a mechanics institute. The Sussex Archaeological Society and Sussex Agricultural Association have their headquarters here. Agricultural implements are manufactured to some extent, and a considerable trade is carried on in corn, lime and wool. The Ouse is navigable for several miles above the town. The borough returns two members to the House of Commons. Registered electors (1851), 724. Lewes is of great antiquity and contains the ruins of numerous ecclesiastical buildings. Roman remains also are from time to time discovered. Here, in 1264, the royal army under Henry III. was signally defeated by the confederated barons under Simon de Montfort 1. op. (1851), 9635.

LEWIN—1, a tn. Prussia, prov. Rhine, gov. and 56 m. S. S. W. Breslau on the Havelthorpe, and the Havelthorpe with a church chapel, schoolhouse, and hospital manufactory of cotton goods, silks, and starch tile-works, and seven annual fairs. Pop. 1872—2 (or 24). A vil. Bohemia, diocese Budweis on the Walechka, 6 m. from Neu Pátek, with a church a school an old castle and a mill. 1. op. 913.

LEWIS the largest of the Hebrides, separated from the mainland of Scotland by a sea 30 to 35 m. wide, called the Minch. The N. E. extremity of the island named the Butt of Lewis is in lat. 58 31' N., lon. 6 14' W. (N.). The N. portion is called Harris, and is connected with the former by a narrow neck of land. These two divisions are in two different counties—Lewis being in Ross-shire, and Harris in Inverness-shire. The entire length of the island S. W. to N. E., is 52 m. breadth, varying from 30 m. to 6 and 10 m. area, nearly 700 000 ac. It is of irregular form, and is deeply indented all round by bays and inlets—the most remarkable on the W. coast being Lochs Boag, Bessart, and W. Tarbert on the E. Broad Bay, Stornoway Harbour, and Lorn Ernort, Rosforth, E. Tarbert, and Roddall. Several small islands are dispersed along its coast: the principal of which are Soloy on the S. E. shore and Fahey Taransay Scarpa, and Bona, on the W. coast. The shores are low and rocky, and full of wave worn crags. The island is, in general, flat, but contains some considerable elevations, two of which rise, each to 2700 ft. above sea-level. Numerous beautiful slopes and valleys also occur—the latter traversed by clear rivulets. The rocks are granitic, and the subsoil generally speaking is a rich gravel without any vegetable remains, excepting mossy plants. In the interior, the appearance of the country is peculiarly bleak and desolate, especially in the after part of the year when the brown bent, which grows on its boggy surface, becomes decayed. The bog is from 2 to 10 ft. and in some places 20 ft. deep, although the general depth may be stated at about 4 ft. The rivers, which are numerous, have all short courses flowing directly to the coast on either side. Small lakes are thickly dispersed over the whole island, and both the former and the latter abound with fish, including salmon and sea trout. Fish are also in great plenty along the shores. The bulk of the soil is deep peat-moss, but the cultivated parts have a soil composed of the debris of the granite rocks, in all conditions and mixtures of gravel, clay and sand; but so scanty is the available soil that the cultivation is generally on the lay-hed system—the trenches, in many instances, occupying nearly as much space as the ridges.

Agriculture formerly in an extremely backward state in this island generally, has in recent times been greatly improved by a new and wealthy proprietor, who has labored to effect a complete change for the better, both on the island and those who inhabit it. The Gaelic language is almost universally spoken; the people are social, of kind dispositions, and intelligent, they are also industrious, and ready to exert themselves when sufficient inducements appear. They manufacture a considerable portion of their own pottery-ware, from the clay found amongst the granite gravel, fashioning the vessels merely with finger and thumb: the strength and fineness of the ware proving the excellence of the clay. The principal town on the island is Stornoway (which see). Pop. 19 711. (Smith of Donemston in the Proceedings of the Glasgow Philo. Soc. 1851.) Wilson's Voyage round the Coast of Scotland (Statistical Account, &c.).

LEWIS, or GREAT SNAKE RIVER, N. America, Oregon territory one of the largest affluents of the Columbia. It issues from a small lake in the Rocky Mountains lat. 43° 30' N. lon. 110° 0' W., whence, after having made a S. bend, it flows N. W. to about lat. 46° 20' N., when it proceeds W., and falls into the Columbia, near Fort Vancouver, about lat. 46° N. In its earlier course, it is joined by a number of tributaries from the S., which are seen pouring into it at nearly equal distances, 5 m. from each other. It has, also some lesser affluents from the E., and a N. branch called Wapatoosco, which unites with the main stream at lat. 46° 40' N. Its whole course is about 650 m.

LEWIS an Isl. off N. W. coast Australia, belonging to the Dampier Archipelago lat. 20 25' S. lon. 118 15' E. It is separated from Enderby Island by a strait about 2 m. wide and is apparently inhabited.

LEWISHAM, a vil. and par. Eng. Kent about 5 m. S. E. London, on the road to Tunbridge. The vill. 1800 extends about 1 m. along the road, and the whole neighborhood owes to the beauty of its situation, and its proximity to the metropolis, is covered with villas and splendid mansions. The parish church has a square tower and a handsome Corinthian porch, and there are three endowed schools, one of them for girls. Besides the church, there are, within the parish, several Episcopal Wesleyan, and Independent chapels. Area of par. 5789 ac. Pop. 15 064.

LEWISTOWN a tn. U. States Pennsylvania cap. of Mills, 142 m. W. N. W. Philadelphia, at the junction of Juniata river, at the junction of Juniata river, and the Pennsylvania Canal. It has a large court-house and public offices in the middle of an open square, four churches, an academy seven schools three tanneries, a brewery, a pottery a printing-office and a grist and a saw mill. Pop. 2653.

LEWKNOR, par. Eng. Oxford 2698 ac. P. 634.

LEWKENSHARD, par. Eng. Dorset 2819 ac. Pop. 436.

LEXHAM two pars. Eng. Norfolk—1 (East) 1190 ac. P. 263—2, (West) 1165 ac. P. 125.

LEXIMIE or LEXIMIE a vil. Austria Solothurn, co. Solothurn, about 4 m. from Grenchen, with a church, numerous mills and extensive lime-works. 1. op. 1442.

LEXINGTON several places U. States—1 A city Kentucky 23 m. E. S. E. Frankfort. It is regularly laid out, has 10 churches a courthouse jail museum jail lunatic asylum and the halls of Transylvania university, founded in 1798, having 14 professors and about 400 students. There are likewise, a college, two academies and 12 schools. It is the oldest town in the state, and was once the capital and though it has several tanneries rope works, and other manufacturing establishments, it is more a place of fashionable residence than of trade. Pop. 6037—2 A vil. Virginia 105 m. W. by N. Richmond; with a courthouse jail, four churches, a school a military institute, and a college. Pop. 1200—3, A vil. Massachusetts, 10 m. N. W. Boston, with two churches, an academy and several schools. Pop. 1042—4 A vil. New York, 65 m. S. W. Albany. Pop. 2818.

LEYBOURNE, par. Eng. Kent 1010 ac. Pop. 268.

LEYBURN a market in England co. and 21 m. N. W. York. It has an Episcopal chapel, a national school, and various charitable institutions. Pop. 800.

LEYDEN or LEXDEK (Latin, Lugdunum Batavorum, French Leide) one of the most important towns in Holland and in extent, though not in population next to the capital.

It lies in prov. S. Holland, 22 m. S.W. Amsterdam, on the railway thence to Rotterdam, on both sides the Old Rhine, and is intersected besides by the Doot, Maas, Vliet, and Zyl; lat. (observatory) $52^{\circ} 9' 30''$ N. lon. $4^{\circ} 59' 30''$ E. It was formerly fortified, but the walls and ramparts have been cleared away and planted with trees the only remaining two towers have been converted into storehouses five of the earthen bastions have been formed into burying-grounds, four are covered with wind mills and factories, and the remaining four have been levelled and turned into gardens. Seven wall built gates and the castle (de Burg), one of the oldest and most respectable buildings in the town, but now converted into an inn, and its grounds into tea-gardens, are the chief monuments of the former fortress. Leyden is encompassed by wind-mills, and surrounded by country-seats, pleasure-grounds, gardens, and fertile meadows the best of these depauperate lands which excepting that made near Delft, produce the best butter in Holland. The streets of the town are straight broad, and kept exceedingly clean that one named Broad Street (Broadestraat) is esteemed one of the finest in Europe, being compared to the High Street in Oxford. In it is situated the townhall (Stad-huis) originally founded about 1415, but since that period often altered and repaired about 1507 nearly wholly renewed, and enlarged in 1668, and again in 1704. It is a picturesque old building with its prominent parts gilt, 30 wind-mills in a line in front, a tall spire, and three highly-ornamented projecting gables. In the council chamber are the paintings of the Last Judgment, by Pieter van Leyden and several good historical portraits and in part of the lower floor is situated the fish-market. Near the townhall in the same street, in the former lands-bank van Rijnland containing the offices of the superintendent of dykes. Other noteworthy edifices are the prison, weigh house, butter-house, cloth hall, infantry barracks, and town dockyard. It has 14 churches and a synagogue, besides sundry congregations worshipping in halls &c., they include four Reformed one Walloon one Dissenting one English one Evangelical Lutheran one Remonstrant, four R. Catholic and one Jesuit. None of them are very remarkable buildings but in the Reformed church of St. Peter are monuments to Boerhaave, Spanheim, Bealiger &c. There are numerous ordinary poor and Latin schools also academies of drawing design architecture and music, but the most important educational institution is the university formerly one of the most famed in Europe, and still in excellent repute. As some indemnification for the privations suffered during the siege of 1574, the Prince of France offered the inhabitants exemption from certain taxes or a university. To their lasting honour they chose the latter and it was accordingly inaugurated by the Prince the following year 1576. Its buildings possess no remarkable architectural features. In 1649, it was attended by 464 students, of whom nearly a half were studying law Connected with the university are a well laid-out botanic garden, an observatory a library with numerous MSS. an anatomical theatre and museum of comparative anatomy one of the richest collections of natural history in existence, cabinet of coins, museum of antiquities, and a rich Japanese museum. There are also a valuable collection of agricultural implements, an economic garden for the promotion of native gardening and agriculture, and a national herbarium. There are, likewise, several learned societies a fine art society, and associations for the distribution of Bibles, and for the promotion of agriculture. A century ago, a fourth part of the pauper population of Leyden was said to be pauper. The number is understood not to have diminished in recent times, and some raise the proportion as high as a third; a second third being self-supporting and the last third providing wholly for the paupers. The benevolent and charitable institutions are very numerous, and include poorhouses orphan, and old men and old women hospitals connected with the various religious bodies, a general poorhouse, called the Huisgezinsbuis, for those who have no claim on other institutions, and various societies for assisting the poorer householders. The heavy taxes thus incurred, together with foreign competition, render it difficult for the manufacturers to maintain their place. The cloth manufacturers, for which Leyden was at one time greatly famed, which they reached their greatest extent in 1670 they subsequently fell off greatly but have revived in recent years, though not to their former extent. There are now 16 steam factories in the town including three cloth factories several on velvet, bams and some lace factories, wool spinners, calico printers, &c. also a manufacture of paper-hangings tapestries skinneries, soap-works, brasseries distilleries, a machine factory anchor smith and the former great trade in books, carried on in the latter part of the 17th and during the greater part of the 18th century and rendered well known by the Elsevier is represented by five printing-offices. The weekly markets are very well attended and large quantities of grain, butter and cheese are sold in them.

THE TOWNHALL, LEYDEN. — From Van Saanen's Holland and Belgium.

The most memorable event in the history of Leyden is the siege it sustained from the Spaniards in 1573-74 when Pieter Adriaen van der Werff was burg-master. By his resolution and heroic example, the inhabitants were enabled to stand out nearly four months. For seven weeks there was no bread within the walls, and horses dogs, cats, and rooks of all kinds were savagely eaten up, when hunger became no longer bearable and the people, dying in hundreds, implored the burg-master to surrender the town he offered his body to appease their appetite and thus the most clamorous were allayed. To relieve the town the Prince of Orange at last broke down the dykes and a favouring wind accompanying the waters came over the land so rapidly that above 1000 of the besiegers were drowned. The same wind wafted a fleet of 200 boats from Rotterdam to the gates of Leyden, and relieved the place. It has at various times been severely visited by pestilence in 1509 and in 1529 deaths were numerous in 1624, in a few months, 9997 died, and in 1635 from July to December the deaths amounted to 14,562. Leyden is the birthplace of many eminent and remarkable men among whom may be specified Jan Hockbolts, or John of Leyden the founder of the Anabaptists, Karel van Maets on one of the translators of the New Testament, the medical doctors, Gerard van Swieten and Pieter Camper the naturalist, Maassen broek, the learned brothers Gerard and Isaac Voosius, Gernova, and Nicholas Heusler, and the poets, Pieter van Leyden, the brothers Van der Velde Metus Milius, father and two sons Gerard Douw and Rembrandt, &c. The pop. of Leyden, at one time 90,000 is now (1825) 35,954. — [Van der Aardryk Woorden. Verdermede Stadsnaam Leerdorp, 1851.] LEYDERDORP, a vil. Holland, prov. S. Holland about 14 m. E. Leyden, and on the Rhine, here crossed by a bridge. It is a favourite place of resort of the Leyden people many of whom reside here. It has two churches and a school an orphan hospital and a poorhouse, some brick and tile making, brewing, and saw and walk mills. Pop. 1098

LEYDSCHENDAM a vil Holland, prov S Holland, 1 m E. the Hague with two churches and two schools, inhabitants chiefly engaged in dairy farming. Pop. 980

LEYLAND a tn and par England, co. Lancaster The town 4½ m N W Chorley has a fine parish church in the decorated style, with an ancient tower. Two Dissenting chapels a grammar national, and infant school several benevolent associations, the Union Hall, a fine public room, built for the Leyland agricultural society and in the centre of the village, the remains of an ancient cross Agriculture and market-gardening and hand loom weaving, for the manufacturers of Preston, Chorley and Bolton are the chief employments. Area of par. 19 081 ac. Pop. 19 710. (Local Correspondent)

LEYMIDT a vil Holland, prov N Holland 14 m S.W. Amsterdam, with a church, and a considerable transit trade both by water and by land. Pop. 1005

LEYNI (Latin Leontow), a vil and com Italy Piedmont div and 8 m N Torino. It is well built, has a large public square, a number of fine villas belonging to the inhabitants of Torino who make this their summer residence, an ancient parish and several other churches, a feudal castle in ruins, an elementary school, several tile works, and a trade in wine and dairy produce. Pop. 3090

LEYRE, a river France, formed by the junction of the Leyre-de-Luxey and Leyre-de-Pisces, in dep. Landes. It flows N.W. into dep. Gironde and after a course of above 40 m of which 20 m is used for fishing, falls into the basin of Areschou a little below La Mothe

LEYSDOWN par Leg Kent 4302 ac P 772

LEYSLIEF a vil and com Belgium prov W Flanders, 25 m S.W. Bruges. It has three breweries a rope-work several mills and a trade in herring cattle and agricultural produce, particularly tobacco. Pop. 3096

LEYT, an isl Indian Archipelago, one of the most S of the Philippines, and with the small isls adjacent, forming a prov. of the same name lat 9° 49' to 11° 54' N lon 124° 22' to 125° 25' E. The narrow strait of San Juanico separates it from Samar on the N.E. and that of Surigao from Mindanao on the S. It is mountainous and volcanic, abounding in land shells of the richest limes and in quarries of all plumb iron, leadstone, and asbestos. The mountains are well wooded. Hurricanes prove most destructive to the cocon palms, which are cultivated for their oil and also tobacco and the abnrs, a species of banana. The shores produce edible lard nuts, and tortoise-shell. The manufactures are the same as those of Samar (which see). Perpetually exposed to the attacks of pirates, the inhabitants are few, poor and miserable. Near Leyte Magellan anchored to water and provision his ships and here a monk is said to have planted the first cross ever brought to the Philippines. The capital is Tacloban, situate at the S.E. extremity of the strait of San Juanico. The prov. contains 33 pueblos, with a population amounting in all to 87 275. (Gallat, de Renuz)

LEYTHA a river, Austria, which is formed in the S of Lower Austria, by the junction of the Schwarzen and the Potten about 6 m. S. Neustadt flows first N.E. past the town of Bruck forms part of the boundary between Lower Austria and Hungary turns S.E. enters Hungary and joins the Raab at the town of that name after a course of about 90 m

LEYTON (Low) a vil and par England, co Essex 6 m N.E. London, on the Lea. From the number of coins and other antiquities found in the vicinity it appears to have been a Roman settlement, and is supposed to occupy the site of the ancient Duroloptum. The village consists of a long street, occupying a gentle slope above the river. In addition to the parish church, there are a chapel of ease and places of worship for Wesleyans and Independents. The E. Counties railway passes through the parish, area 8241 ac. Pop. 8901

LEZ, two rivers, France. The one rises in dep. Drome, in a mountainous dist. to the W of Dieux-le-Pit, flows S.W. and joins the bank Rhone, a little below Pont St. Esprit, total course, nearly 40 m.—The other river sometimes called Les descends from a branch of the Cevennes, dep. Herault flows S., intersects the lagoon of Etang, thereafter takes the name of Grand-du-Les, and falls into the Mediterranean, after a course of 24 m., of which 6 m. are navigable.

LEZANT, par Kag Cornwall 4560 ac Pop. 974

LEZAT (anc. Lemate), a tn France, dep. Ardge 17 m. N.W. Pamiers, r bank Lous. It was the capital of a district called the Lemate. A great number of Roman coins have been found in the neighbourhood. Pop. 1642

LEZAY a tn and com France, dep. Deux Sevres, 7 m. E.N.E. Maille. It is the seat of a Calistonic cloister; is famous for its breed of horses and has rope, brick and tile works, bookbinding, and some manufactures of limes. Near it are new castles. Pop. 2422

LEZAYRE, par Isle of Man Pop. 2468

LEZIATE par Eng Norfolk 1460 ac Pop. 190

LEZIGNAN a tn France dep. Aude, 20 m E. Carcassonne, with several distilleries, and two fairs. Pop. 2258

LEZOUX a tn France, dep. Puy-de-Dôme r bank Allier 15 m E.N.E. Clermont. It is an ancient town, in general well built and has some agreeable promenades. It manufactures cloth and common earthenware, has tanneries and oil works and trades in corn and hemp. Pop. 1054

LEZUZA (anc. Edissoneus or Lissone) a tn Spain, New Castile, prov and 29 m W by S Albacete. It is tolerably well built, and has a parish church chapel townhouse, prison two schools, and manufactures of linen and woollen fabrics, tiles, and bricks. Pop. 2349

LEZZENO a vil and com Italy Lombardy prov Como dist. and 5 m S.W. Bollago, E. shore of Lake Como. It is beautifully situated surrounded by a number of fine villas and has a parish church adorned with paintings. Pop. 1051

LEZWA a tn Russia gov and 40 m W Krasnoy, cap. circular bank 10 m with a church. Pop. 18719

The country is finely adapted for agriculture and the growing of hemp, but is not well watered. Pop. 7540

LHA Ri a large vil Tibet, about 780 m N.E. Lhasa, in a gorge, among barren and desolate mountains. The inhabitants a dirty and half savage race of people their houses shapeless masses of stones coated with mud are mostly sheepfolds and rear great numbers of sheep, cattle, and more especially she-goats whose soft and silky hair is in great demand for the manufacture of Ladakian shawls. The Chinese government have here a depot of provisions under the charge of a magistrate. Near the village is a large Buddhist convent and a handsome temple.—(Hue, Pop. Tibet)

LHASA cap Tibet. See LHASA

LIEFNICHT, or LIEFVICH, a market in Bohemia, circle Prachin 6 m. from Petahof with a church chapel school townhouse, the remains of an old castle, manufacture of linen and shoes, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1918

LIEPITAI a vil and com Italy dep. Savone r bank Arve here crossed by a wooden bridge opposite to Caudens, 22 m N.W. Chambery. It is well built, having spacious streets and pleasant promenades has a church of a simple but elegant architecture and a trade in wine brandy, cheese, and wood. Pop. 1100

LHOTTA, numerous places Bohemia and Moravia, particularly—1 (S. enormous) A vil Moravia circle and 56 m from Hradec with a church. Pop. 1000—2 (New) A vil Moravia, circle and 19 m from Hradec, on a mountain ridge which separates Moravia from Hungary. Pop. 1200

LIAMON a river France in Isl Corfu. It rises near Mount Rocco near the centre of the island flows S.W. and after a course of about 80 m. falls into the Mediterranean near Ragusa, and 19 m N. Agrion.

LIACOURT or LIAUCOURT-BOIS CLERMONT a vil France, dep. Oise around and about 4 m S.E. Clermont containing the family seat of the Dukes of Rohan-Rochefort.

LIANL a small river France dep. Pas-de-Calais which after a course of about 20 m. nearly W. falls into the Eng. Hah Channel and forms the harbour of Boulogne-Sur-Mer LIAMONSKOI one of three isls Russia, White Sea, near the mouth of the Dwina, par Archangel 13 m long, by 6 m broad, fringed by feldspar.

LIBAN a tn Bohemia, circle Bid show on the Bistritz, 5 m from Kaplow with a church, townhouse, school, and trade in fruit and agricultural produce. Pop. 1254

LIBANUS, a mountain range, Syria. See LEBANON

LIBAU, a seaport tn. Russia, gov. Courland at the mouth of the river or lake of the same name, 120 m W.S.W. Riga. It is walled, and entered by a single gate is largely built, most of the streets being narrow and ill paved and houses, chiefly of wood and only one story indifferent.

It has one R. Catholic, and two Lutheran churches—one of the latter the handsome church in Coarland; an hospital, poorhouse, and town-school. The harbor the most S. which Russia possesses in the Baltic, is tolerably secure, depth 8 to 12 ft. and has a quay formed by wooden piles, and well supplied with warehouses. Its trade is considerable. The chief exports are corn, haxed, flax, hemp, leather, butter, wax, honey, tallow, beef, and deals the imports, colonial produce and manufactured goods. Pop. (1853) 5961.

LIBERTON, and QUOTHQUAN a par. Scot. Lomax 8703 sq. P. 1900.

LIBEN (AR), a vil Bohemia, circle Kattowitz, r bank Mohla which here forms several islands, about 3 m. from Prague. It has a castle, a chapel a synagogue, two schools one of them for Jews; manufactures of beet-root sugar and copperware, machine-works and a cotton printfield. P. 1900.

LIBERIA a republic, W coast of Africa, midway between Sierra Leone, and Cape Palmas, extending 220 m. along the coast, with an average breadth inland of 60 m. and having Cape Mesurado lat. G. 19° N. lon. 10° 50' W. (E) near the centre of its coast line. It was founded as a colony of free blacks, by the American colonization society in 1820 under the philanthropic idea, that many if not all of the liberated slaves, would prefer returning to Africa to staying in America where they were denied political rights, and treated as an inferior race and the experiment, unwith standing the grievous discouragements it met with at the outset has been eminently successful. The whole territory of Liberia has been purchased, from time to time, from the aboriginal owners. It is well watered, being traversed by several considerable streams, having their sources in the interior. Its natural resources are immense, and are steadily in process of development. Cotton is indigenous, and yields two crops a-year and the cultivation of it succeeds well where it has been tried. Coffee thrives well a single tree at M. nyia yielding 30 lbs. at one gathering. Sugar cane grows in unrivalled luxuriance. cane-wood grows in unlimited quantities and red wood, bar-wood, and other dyes, are likewise plentiful. the oil palm is abundant and indigo, castor-oil, ginger, arrow-root, cacao, pine-apples, coconuts, yams, yam-tuber, yam-plum, banana, figs, olives, tamarinds, lemons, oranges, lemons &c. may be added to the list of vegetable products many of which are exported to a greater or less extent. Ivory is easily obtainable and rich metallic veins exist, only requiring capital to open them up. A considerable export and import trade is now carried on; and a large number of the inhabitants of the interior depend upon Liberia for their supplies of European goods. A thirst for education has likewise been awakened among the surrounding aborigines, many of who send their children 400 m. and 500 m. to be educated in the Republic. The Liberians have built, for themselves 30 churches of brick and stone, and possess numerous schools, and a considerable number of printing presses. More than 20 000 natives have requested to be taken under the protection of the state, while not less than 100 000 live on its territory and 350 000 are bound to it by treaties to abolish the slave-trade. At different times, ten hundred, erected by slave-traders for the storage of slaves have been burned down by the Liberians, and at the same time hundreds of false accusations (therein confined, liberated and they at all times afford refuge to the weak and the oppressed. The climate, though still fatal to Europeans, has been greatly improved by clearing drainage, &c. Monrovia, the capital, and part of the colony, is situated on Cape Mesurado. In it resides a British consul. There are besides, above 20 towns and villages in the territory. The government of the country is precisely on the American model consisting of a president a vice-president, a senate, and a house of representatives; the number of members to the former being six, and in the latter 29. Liberia was declared an independent state in July 1847, and in the following year was recognized as such by Great Britain and France when a treaty of trade and commerce with the state was concluded. A large proportion of the inhabitants speak English. Pop. (1850) 250,000.

LIBERTON par. Scot. Edinburgh 4700 sq. P. 3528. LIBETH (DASIA) LIBETHIA, or LIBETHIA, a mining co. Hungary co. Bold at the confluence of the Hymna and Udrava, 12 m. E. Komu with two churches, a townhouse, and extensive mines of iron and copper, manufactures of entirely and earthenware, and a considerable trade in grain, flour, wood, and cattle. Pop. 1400.

LIBOURNE (anc. Condate Italia) a tn. France, dep. Gironde, r bank Dordogne, here joined by the Isle, and crossed by a fine suspension-bridge, 17 m. N. N. E. Bordeaux. It is walled, and built with great regularity, with a large and handsome square in the centre, has spacious and almost exclusively straight streets, lined with elegant houses. The chief buildings are the public library, schools, museum, and six cavalry barracks. The manufactures consist of glass, which is an important woollen stuffs, leather, nails, and ropes. The harbour, in which the tide rises from 12 to 15 ft. admits vessels of 500 tons, and serving as an entrepot for Bordeaux has an important trade in wine, brandy, salt, coal, ship-stubber from &c. There are also commodious building-yards, Libourne has courts of first resort, and of commerce, a commercial exchange, a school of hydrography an Athenaeum a communal college, and a botanical garden. The present town was founded by Edward I. of England and Agnes moglie in the year of his time. Pop. 3850.

LIBYLLA a tn. Nipm, prov. and 164 m. S. S. W. Muriel. It consists of the town proper built in the form of a parallelogram and the suburbs, situated on the opposite side of a ravine and communicating with it by a bridge and has a church, courthouses prison and primary school manufactures of salt-petre, and several oil and flour mills. Pop. 3083.

LIBYAN DESERT that part of the Sahara or Great Desert, bounded N. by Tripoli E. by Egypt and Nubia S. by Darfur and Waday and W. by Fezzan, and the country of the Tibbians. Here the continent of Africa shelves down towards the Mediterranean in a series of terraces, consisting of vast level sandy or gravelly deserts lying S. and W. separated by low rocky ridges. This desert is probably not less than 1000 m. in length, N to S, and from 500 m. to 600 m. in breadth.

LICATA a seaport, Sicily. See AGRICATA.

LICCA, or LAMA a river Austria which rises in the N. side of the mountains of Veleich, between the frontiers of Delmatia and Croatia flows N. W. and, after a course of about 85 m. disappears below the ground at the foot of Mount Tschib, a little N. W. of the village of Lipogorje. It gives its name to a Regimental district of Military Grana. LILLYVA (anc. Dregid) a vil. Papal States 12 m. from Tivoli on a bright mountain stream, celebrated by Horace. The post's Sabine villa stood about midway between the road and the river but the only remains of it are two capitals some other fragments of Doric columns and a white mosaic pavement, partly covered by a vineyard. Pop. 700.

LICH a tn. Home Darnestadt, Oberhausen on the W. water 7 m. S. E. Guesen. It is walled, flanked with towers and has a Gothic parish church, a castle, several schools, silk-works, and mills. Pop. 2337.

LICHFIELD an episcopal city forming itself a county England Staffordshire, on a pleasant and fertile valley, on the London and N. W. railway and 15 m. S. E. Stafford. It is well paved and lighted, amply supplied with water, and contains a number of well built, commodious, and handsome streets. The principal edifice is the cathedral, presenting from its elevated site, a very conspicuous object at a distance and consisting of a large and handsome structure, partly in the early English, and partly in a more recent style, with a richly-decorated W. front, and three spires—two on the W. each 180, and one in the centre, 230 ft. high. The other buildings, deserving of notice, are the church of St. Chad, by far the oldest in the town, the church of St. Mary a hand some modern edifice, the church of St. Michael finely situated and recently restored in admirable taste the guildhall, theatre, jail, house of correction, and market. Besides the above churches, are several chapels connected with the Establishment, and places of worship for the Independents, Wesleyans, and R. Catholics. Among schools, the free grammar and cathedral are the most important. The cathedral has a good collection of books and natural curiosities. The chief benevolent institutions are St. John's hospital, with 12 almshouses, a female hospital, and an endowment for the benefit of the widows and unmarried daughters of clergymen. The staple manufactures are carpets, coaches, and harness; and there are several extensive breweries. The most distinguished natives Dr Samuel Johnson to whom a monument has been erected. Lichfield sends two members to Parliament. Registered electors (1851), 563. Pop. (1851), 7012.

LICHTAFERT, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. and 28 m. N. Antwerp, near the Little Nothe, with malt and flour mills, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1641.

LICHTEN, a vil. Austria, Salts, drile Troppen on the Rhen about 12 m. from Triesenthal. It has a parish church and a chapel. Pop. 1760.

LICHTENAU, numerous places, Germany, particularly—1. A. in. Hesse-Cassel Korbendamm, cap. bail, near the source of the Looze. It is walled, has a church and an hospital manufactures of linen, and four mills. Pop. 1476. half 8708.—2. A. in. Baden, circle Middle Rhine, 16 m. N. W. Strasburg with manufactures of silk and woollen goods, dye-works and oil-mills. Pop. 1300.

LICHENAU, two places, Prussia.—1. A. in. Rhénish Prussia, gov. and 50 m. N. Minden, on the Sauer. It has a Catholic church manufactures of leather, and several mills.—2. (Ober and Nieder), two nearly contiguous vils. prov. Silésia, gov. and W. S. W. from Liegnitz, with a church, and oil, saw, and other m. l. Pop. 1278.

LICHENBERG, a vil. in. Bayreuth, Upper Franconia, 70 m. N. E. Bayreuth with a townhouse, hospital, and Latin school blast-furnaces, iron v. l. and copper works and a trade in flannel, woollen cloth warranted and iron. Pop. 900.

LICHENBURG, a vil. Prussian Saxony gov. and 48 m. N. N. E. Merseburg with a castle, called Hedwigsburg which is now converted into a house of correction and is historically interesting as the place where a meeting was held, in 1515, between Luther, Frederick the Wise, Spalatin, Melancthon, and Müllers. Pop. 598.

LICHENFELD, a vil. in. Bavaria, Upper Franconia cap. dist. 1 bank Mar. 15 m. N. N. E. Bamberg, on the railway, thence to Hof with a court of justice, two churches, a synagogue, a castle, hospital, manufactures of linen and porcelain, and a trade in wood, corn, hops, and fruit. Pop. 1165. Area of dist. 80 sq. m. Pop. 23,236.

LICHENFELDE, a vil. and par. Switzerland can. and 16 m. W. S. W. St. Gall on a height, above a bank Thur, here crossed by a covered bridge. It is the only place which ranks as a town in the Toggenburg and contains an ancient church, used in common by the Protestants and E. Catholics, a town house, and has a considerable trade in corn and cattle. Near it, on a lofty height, are the remains of the castle of 'Vau Toggenburg, the last seat of the Counts of the name. P. 744.

LICHENFELDEN, a vil. Saxony arch. Zwicken 14 m. W. S. W. Chemnitz with a modern castle, an hospital manufactures of linen, and several paper and cotton mills. P. 8218.

LICHENFELDEN, a vil. Saxony arch. Zwicken 14 m. W. S. W. Chemnitz with a modern castle, an hospital manufactures of linen, and several paper and cotton mills. P. 8218.

LICHENFELDEN, a vil. Saxony arch. Zwicken 14 m. W. S. W. Chemnitz with a modern castle, an hospital manufactures of linen, and several paper and cotton mills. P. 8218.

LICHENFELDEN, a vil. Saxony arch. Zwicken 14 m. W. S. W. Chemnitz with a modern castle, an hospital manufactures of linen, and several paper and cotton mills. P. 8218.

LICHENFELDEN, a vil. Saxony arch. Zwicken 14 m. W. S. W. Chemnitz with a modern castle, an hospital manufactures of linen, and several paper and cotton mills. P. 8218.

LICHENFELDEN, a vil. Saxony arch. Zwicken 14 m. W. S. W. Chemnitz with a modern castle, an hospital manufactures of linen, and several paper and cotton mills. P. 8218.

LICHENFELDEN, a vil. Saxony arch. Zwicken 14 m. W. S. W. Chemnitz with a modern castle, an hospital manufactures of linen, and several paper and cotton mills. P. 8218.

LICHENFELDEN, a vil. Saxony arch. Zwicken 14 m. W. S. W. Chemnitz with a modern castle, an hospital manufactures of linen, and several paper and cotton mills. P. 8218.

LICHENFELDEN, a vil. Saxony arch. Zwicken 14 m. W. S. W. Chemnitz with a modern castle, an hospital manufactures of linen, and several paper and cotton mills. P. 8218.

LICHENFELDEN, a vil. Saxony arch. Zwicken 14 m. W. S. W. Chemnitz with a modern castle, an hospital manufactures of linen, and several paper and cotton mills. P. 8218.

LICHENFELDEN, a vil. Saxony arch. Zwicken 14 m. W. S. W. Chemnitz with a modern castle, an hospital manufactures of linen, and several paper and cotton mills. P. 8218.

LIDDEL, a river, Scotland, co. Roxburgh, which flows S. W. and enters the Fife, 7 m. S. Leith, after a course of about 54 m., for the last part of which it forms the boundary between England and Scotland. The romantic valley through which it flows forms the district of Liddedale.

LIDDELL, a vil. and par. Switzerland, on Valais, in the valley of Entremont, on the road from Marigny to the Great St. Bernard. It stands on a well-cultivated slope, is well built, and has a trade in dairy produce. Pop. 1411.

LIDDIARD two pars. Eng. Wilts.—1. (Middicot), 2321 ac. P. 491—2. (Treygose), 6142 ac. P. 807.

LIDDINGTON two pars. Eng.—1. Rutland 2070 ac. P. 604—2. Wilts 2767 ac. P. 434.

LIDFORD, par. Eng. Devon 56 233 ac. P. 1968.

LIDGATE, par. Eng. Suffolk 1780 ac. P. 494.

LIDL, a group of isles, in the Adriatic opposite the lagoons of Venice, and extending, in a curve, from the mouth of the Piave to that of the Brenta. They are merely an alluvial deposit, formed by these rivers and the action of the waves, and produce beautiful flowers and excellent fruit. They are seven in number and have the names of Lido di Bellunaria, Lido di Palenaria, Lido di Malenaria, Lido di Bellunaria, Lido di Bellunaria, Lido di Bellunaria, Lido di Bellunaria.

LIDINGÖ, an isl. Sweden, in the channel leading up to and a little N. E. of Stockholm, length, F. to W. 6 m. breadth about 8 m. communicating by a bridge with the park of Stockholm and a great holiday resort of its inhabitants.

LIDKOPING, a vil. Sweden, Jan. Skaraborg or Mariestad, at the mouth of the Lida, in a beautiful bay on the S. side of Lake Wener 136 m. W. S. W. Stockholm. The river divides the town into two parts, both of which are well built. It has a handsome townhouse an orphan asylum and an important linen in corn, furnished by the recent formation of two parallel stone jetties about 8000 ft. long having for their object to prolong the course of the Lida, the mouth of which was sometimes rendered inaccessible by the great variations in the level of Lake Wener. Pop. 2081.

LIDLIN (TU) par. Eng. Bedford 2820 ac. P. 833.

LIDRIF or LIDRIS, a vil. and par. England co. Gloucester. The town 15 m. W. S. W. Gloucester at the terminus of the Severn and Wye railway consists principally of cottages, which give it the appearance of a large village and has a handsome church, two dissenting chapels, two schools, and extensive manufactures of the duty and iron. By the Severn which forms the boundary of the parish, coals and iron ore, from the Dean forest are shipped. Area of par. 8073 ac. Pop. 2117. (Local Correspondent).

LIERAU, two places Moravia.—1. (Mittelsack), A. in circle Pörsch 16 m. N. E. Olmütz, with a church, townhouse, and manufactures of linen and yarn. Pop. 1800.—2. (Deutsch), A. vil, circle and 26 m. N. W. Olmütz, with a church and salt-works. Pop. 3260.

LIEBAT, a vil. in. Silésia gov. and 32 m. S. S. W. Liegnitz, with a court of law, a townhouse, two E. Catholic churches four chapels, an hospital poorhouse manufactures of linen and several dye works. Pop. 1912.

LIEBEMHIL, or LIEBEMHIL, a vil. Prussia, gov. and 73 m. S. W. Königsberg on the Liebe. Pop. 1222.

LIEBENAU, a vil. Bohemia, circle and 19 m. N. N. E. Buzlau, bank Mollatka. It has a large square, in which a handsome townhouse stands, a Protestant church, a brewery, a trade in corn, flax and linen, and six mills. Pop. 2283.

LIEPHENAU,—1. A vil. Hanover, Dathmura on the Aue, 51 m. W. S. W. Hannover with a townhouse, and manufactures of seycas and lace. Pop. 1905.—2. A. in. Hesse-Cassel, Niederhessen on an isl. of the Dommel, 17 m. N. W. Cassel, with a church manufactures of linen, and a spinning-mill. It was once fortified. Pop. 650.

LIEBENSTEIN or LIEBENSTEIN, a watering place, Saxony-Magnum in a beautiful valley watered by an affluent of the Warre, 16 m. W. S. W. Getha. It has a number of fine walks on the skirts of the Thuringian forest, and a very complete bathing establishment, with a theatre. The water is one of the strongest chalybeates in Germany, and is more used for bathing than drinking. Near it is the old castle of Liebenstein, the cradle of the family of Saxony-Magnum. Pop. 781.

LIEBENTHAL, two places, Prussia, Silésia, gov. Langenscheidt.—1. A. in. circle Lauenburg, with three churches, a summary hospital manufactures of lace, and the works.

LIEBENTHAL, two places, Prussia, Silésia, gov. Langenscheidt.—1. A. in. circle Lauenburg, with three churches, a summary hospital manufactures of lace, and the works.

LIEBENTHAL, two places, Prussia, Silésia, gov. Langenscheidt.—1. A. in. circle Lauenburg, with three churches, a summary hospital manufactures of lace, and the works.

LIEBENTHAL, two places, Prussia, Silésia, gov. Langenscheidt.—1. A. in. circle Lauenburg, with three churches, a summary hospital manufactures of lace, and the works.

LIEBENTHAL, two places, Prussia, Silésia, gov. Langenscheidt.—1. A. in. circle Lauenburg, with three churches, a summary hospital manufactures of lace, and the works.

LIEBENTHAL, two places, Prussia, Silésia, gov. Langenscheidt.—1. A. in. circle Lauenburg, with three churches, a summary hospital manufactures of lace, and the works.

LIEBENTHAL, two places, Prussia, Silésia, gov. Langenscheidt.—1. A. in. circle Lauenburg, with three churches, a summary hospital manufactures of lace, and the works.

LIEBENTHAL, two places, Prussia, Silésia, gov. Langenscheidt.—1. A. in. circle Lauenburg, with three churches, a summary hospital manufactures of lace, and the works.

LIEBENTHAL, two places, Prussia, Silésia, gov. Langenscheidt.—1. A. in. circle Lauenburg, with three churches, a summary hospital manufactures of lace, and the works.

LIEBENTHAL, two places, Prussia, Silésia, gov. Langenscheidt.—1. A. in. circle Lauenburg, with three churches, a summary hospital manufactures of lace, and the works.

LIEBENTHAL, two places, Prussia, Silésia, gov. Langenscheidt.—1. A. in. circle Lauenburg, with three churches, a summary hospital manufactures of lace, and the works.

Pop. 1603.—3 (Hohen) a vil. circle Rohrbach, with a castle, two churches, and several mills. Pop. 1020 LIEBENTHAL, a vil. circle Lutzerath, about 20 m. from Lutzerath, with a church, school, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 2175.

LIEBENWALDE a tn. Prussia, Brandenburg gov. and 37 m. N. W. Potsdam, 1 bank Havel. It has a court of justice a church building-docks, some shipping and a trade in cattle. Pop. 2491

LIEBENWALDE a walled tn. Prussian Saxony gov. and 60 m. E. N. E. Morsburg cap. circle, 1 bank Black Elster with a court of law and several public offices a church a castle and a trade in wool. Lander had several interviews with the papal nuncio, Militz. Pop. 3078.—The river is flat and well wooded sandy, but in general not fertile. Area, 232 sq. m. 1 tp 83,343.

LIEBENZELL a tn. Württemberg circle Schwarzwald in a deep valley on the Nagold, 20 m. W. Stuttgart. It is an ancient place, contains the ruins of a strong castle, and has a small bathing establishment. Pop. 1003

LIEBEROSE, a tn. Prussia Brandenburg gov. and 27 m. S. W. Frankfurt, on a canal, with a court of law two churches, and a trade in corn and cattle. In the neighborhood which is well wooded, there are several push ovens. Pop. 1491

LIEBRICH (Ossa) a vil. Bohemia, circle Leitmeritz, on the Rohnbach, about 38 m. from Prague, with a church, a school, the works, a brewery a distillery and a mill. P. 1008

LIEBSTADT a tn. E. Prussia gov. and 53 m. S. S. W. K. migsberg, on the Mable between two lakes with a court of justice a church a castle manufactures of woolen and linen cloth and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1730

LIEBENTHAL or LIEBENTHAL the smallest principality in the German Confederation forming the 27th state, bounded N. and E. by the Austrian circle of Tyrol, N. by the Tyrol N. by the Swiss can. Grison and W. by the Rhine, which separates it from St. Gall. In the N. it terminates almost in a point greatest length N to S, 18 m. average breadth, about 5 m. area, 53 sq. m. The surface consists of a low ramification of the Alps, which stretch across the principality from S. to N., and of two valleys, one on the E. and the other on the W. side of the ridge. The former valley is that of the Samina, so called from a small tributary of the Ill the latter is that of the P. valley of the Rhine. The climate is tolerably mild and the soil almost everywhere fertile yielding abundance of corn wine, fruit, and flax. The pastures, too, are excellent and feed great numbers of cattle. For administrative purposes, it is divided into the two lordships of Schaumburg and Luchtemstein the latter formerly called Vaduz, is the capital. It is a small place with a pop. of 930. The family of Liechtenstein is a branch from that of Este. The Prince has extensive domains in Germany and particularly in Moravia. Pop. 7860

LIEBENTHAL, a vil. and com. Belgium gov. Brussels, 12 m. W. Brussels, with many factories of linen a brewery, and some trade in corn. Pop. 2141

LIEBENTHAL, a vil. Baden, circle Middle Rhine, and N. from Carlsruhe, with a church, and a trade in hay corn, cattle hump, and turf. Pop. 7613.

LIEBENTHAL a prov. Russia. So. LITHUANIA

LIEGE (Dutch, Lüttich), an E. prov. Belgium, bounded N. by Limburg E. by Rhinisch Prussia, S. by Luxembourg, S. W. by prov. Namur and N. W. by the Netherlands. Length E. to W. 62 m. breadth, N. to S. 38 m. area, 1117 sq. m. Its surface is much diversified. In the S. it is mountainous and covered with forests. The culminating point, belonging to the Ardennes is Bazeux Michel 2230 ft. In the N. and N. W. the surface is flat. The province belongs to the basin of the Meuse, by which it is traversed S. W. to N. E. and, during its course, receives the Ourthe, already augmented within the province by the Looze the Ambave, and the Vesdre. About three fourths of the whole surface are under cultivation, rather more than one-half in wheat and less than one-twenty-second waste. The banks of the Meuse consist of long sweeps of well-cultivated plains and rich pastures, which extend uninterruptedly without any visible acclivity and are scarcely ever broken by a hill. The principal crops are wheat, rye, spelt, barley, oats beans and peas; hops, clover, and potatoes. Vegetables and fruit also are extensively raised. Both portions are rich in mineral treasures, particularly coal. The other minerals of importance are iron the carbonate, chiefly in the form of balls embedded in clay schist, and the hydrate, in layers, calcamine, alum, building-stones, limestone and marble. Manufactures have made great progress and consist principally of broad cloth and various articles of iron manufacture, among which fireworks hold a principal place. The trade of the province is facilitated both by water communication and railways. For administrative purposes Liege is divided into four arrondissements—Liege, the capital, Verviers Huy Waremmes subdivided into twenty-five military and twenty-four civil cantons. The ancient inhabitants of this province were the Belgæ afterwards succeeded by the Thuri. Subsequently it took the name of Lunda, Laupe, and Leudicus and in the 10th century, became an independent state, governed by prince bishops of the German empire. This government continued till 1793, when Belgium was declared a part of France, and this prov. included in department (circle) Pop. 452,824 of whom 437,443 speak French or Walloon 29,871 Flemish or Dutch and 4087 German.

LIEGE (Latin Lugdunum Dutch Lijk German Lüttich) a tn. Belgium, cap. above prov. 54 m. E. by S. Brussels. It stands in a longitudinal valley terminated W. by a hill called Sainte-Walburge, and E. by another hill called La Cornillon and is traversed from S. W. to N. E. by the Meuse, which is here joined by the Ourthe. Though once strongly fortified it is now only defended by S. E. by Fort Chastreux, N. Cornillon, and N. W. by a vast castral recently constructed on the ancient site on the summit of Sainte Walburge. Liege is the Birmingham of Belgium and hence, on approaching it the first thing usually seen is a dense cloud of smoke. The interior corresponds and is by no means inviting. The streets are narrow often steep, and almost without exception ill cleaned while the houses have a dingy, dirty look, and are so high as both to exclude the sun and confine the air. The rivers, however are generally lined with some quays, several of which are well planted, and afford good promenades, and there are eleven squares, which afford a good deal of open space. The most of these are the Place du Grand Marché or Hôtel de Ville adorned with a fine fountain, and the Place St. Lambert. The principal buildings are the Cathedral of St. Paul in pure Gothic, begun to be rebuilt in the 13th century but not finished till 1557, the church of St. Jacques, one of the finest existing specimens of ogival architecture. The churches of St. Martin, St. Croix St. Jean, St. Denis, St. Bartholomew, the last at once one of the oldest and most genuine specimens of the Romanesque period; the Palais de Justice, the ancient residence of the prince-bishops.

INTERIOR COURT OF THE PALAIS DE JUSTICE, LIEGE.
From the Belgique Illustrée de l'Époque.

of an imposing appearance and adorned with a portico of rich composite columns; in the interior are two large square courts, surrounded by broad vaulted galleries, supported on candelabra-shaped columns adorned with a great variety of carvings; the Hotel de Ville the University occupying the extensive buildings of a Jewish convent, and rich in collections of various kinds the Commercial College, a large, elegant, and well-arranged structure, and only inaugurated in 1849, the theatre, &c. Liège is the see of a bishop, suffragan to the archbishop of Mechlin, and possesses a superior court of justice, with jurisdiction over provinces Liège, Lamburg, Luxembourg and Namur; courts of first resort and commerce, a university, with a special school of mines annexed, an episcopal seminary a royal college veterinary artillery industrial commercial and several other schools a public library of 75 000 printed vols and 600 MSS, cabinets of natural philosophy and natural history a botanical garden a royal conservatory of music, an academy of fine arts, deaf and dumb and blind asylums and numerous other beneficent institutions.

The great staple manufacture of Liège is iron. Some of its establishments in different branches of this manufacture particularly that of firearms and the construction of machinery, surpass those of France, and almost rival those of Great Britain. The other principal manufactures are broad-cloth, and various woollen stuffs jewellery tobacco carriages soap hats, and leather. The trade in all these articles is considerable and is much aided by roads railways, canals, and navigable rivers, which bring the town into communication with the different quarters of the kingdom, and with foreign countries.

Founded in the 6th, Liège was not surrounded with walls and fortifications till the 10th century. In 1212 it was taken by Henry 3 Duke of Brabant, and pillaged for six successive days by his soldiers. In 1467 Charles the Bold Duke of Burgundy, having forced an entrance into it, looted enormous sums from the inhabitants and razed its fortifications. The following year he returned at the head of 40 000 men and ordered atrocities at which humanity shudders. In 1601 Marshall Boufflers besieged it for five days, and in 1702 both the town and citadel were taken by the Duke of Marlborough. Pop. 66 463.

LIEGNITZ a gov Russia, in the N W of prov Silesia, 10 m N by gov Icm E and S by Breslau, S W and W by Boleslava, and N V by Saxony and gov Frankfurt-on-the-Oder; area, 4009 geo. sq m. The surface in the S is mountainous, being traversed by ramifications of the Riesengebirge, several of the ridges of which attain a height exceeding 4000 ft. The culminating point, the Schneekoppe, is about 5000 ft. The surface rapidly declines N, and at the Kainbach and Belwarszwasser it has become an extensive plain. It is watered by the Oder, the Spree, and their tributaries. The soil along the lower slopes, and at the foot of the mountains, is very fertile and in the E along the banks of the Oder, are tracts of excellent wheat land but in the plains in the centre and towards the W the soil is very sandy and is covered to a great extent with mere heath. The minerals include iron in various forms and in considerable quantities, copper the arsenic, telluric, copperas stone schist coal, and lignite. Excellent beds of potter's clay occur along the banks of the Bober. For administrative purposes, Liegnitz is divided into the numerous circles of Grünberg, Friedland, Bagan, Sprottau, Glogau, Lüben, Burdau, Behnen-Guldberg, Irgantz, Jauer, Schönbach, Polkenhau Landstätt, Hirschberg Leobschütz, Lanbau Gwitzsch, Reichenburg, and Hoyerswerda. Pop. (1846) 912 497.

LIEGNITZ a in Prussia, prov Silesia, esp. above gov and of circle, agreeably situated between the Katzeboch and Behrawasser, near their junction on the Silesian and Bazon railway 4 m. W N W Breslau. It is an old but well built, handsome city with five suburbs, is defended by a castle, and surrounded by a boulevard, planted with fine trees. It contains five churches, of which the St. Catholic church of St. John is particularly deserving of notice, a Ritter Académie, a handsome edifice, in which the sons of the Silesian nobility are educated, the Fürstentumspital, the hospitals of St. Nicolas and Stanislaus, a public library, gymnasium, industrial and several other schools. Liegnitz has several courts and public offices, a Bible society a deaf and dumb institution, and various benevolent endowments. Its manufactures include table linen, hosiery hats, tobacco, &c. and it has numerous mills. Pop. (1846), 16 302. — THE CIRCLE is tolerably fertile, area, 184 geo. sq m. Pop. 60,549.

LIEON Fokou, a city, China, prov Quangtung, L bank of a river which falls into the Gulf of Tonquin 230 m. S S W Canton, lat. 21 43' N lon 109° 20' E. The mouth of the river forms a harbour for Chinese bark.

LIEPDA, a vil Holland, prov Gelderland 12 m N W Nijmegen, on the Rhine-dike, with a church and a school 1 op (agricultural), 829.

LIEPZ (anc Leontium), a tw Austria, Tyrol in the S as territorial at the confluence of the Dol with the Drava, 78 m E S E Innsbruck. It has a church a monastery munnery and gymnasium manufactures of wire and brass, and a considerable transit trade in metals. Above the town stands the old castle of Brock Dachs, and numerous other Roman antiquities have been found in the vicinity. Pop. 8000.

LIEPZINGEN a vil W Wittenberg, circle Mecklenburg had Manthron on the Schmach with two churches, one of which was wont to be a famous resort of pilgrims, and the ruins of an old castle. Pop. 800.

LIEPVEE LFEREAU, or LEVAT a in France, dep. Haut Rhin, 13 m N N W Colmar on the Lebere with some manufactures of cotton. Pop. 1449.

LIEPDE two places, Belgium, prov E Brabant — 1 (St. Marie) A vil ar com. 16 m E Ghent, with a church chapel township primary school two breweries an oil and several flour-mills. Pop. 7070. — 2 (St. Martin) A vil and com. 18 m E Ghent, with a church, township, two schools, and a large flour-mill. Pop. 1439.

LIEPRAVIE a vil, Spain Old Castle, prov and 10 m from Santander in a valley, on the Miera, with two churches, a courthouse primary school sulphureous springs, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, and several flour-mills. An extensive cannon foundry once existed here. Pop. 1665.

LIEPRAUX a vil and com Belgium prov and 25 m S S E Liège with a brewery breweries a bark, and several other mills, extensive quarries of building-stones, white-stones, and large slates, and mines of manganese. Pop. 1980.

LIERI a, or Iern, a in Belgium, prov and 10 m E Antwerp, at the confluence of the Great and Little Nethe. It is surrounded by a rampart, planted with trees, is generally well built has wide and regular streets, a townhouse, five churches, three chapels, three convents, an hospital, prison barracks orphan asylum, several almshouses, and eight primary schools and manufactures of leather soap, tobacco, cutlery hair-combs, musical instruments, and linen, woollen, silken and cotton fabrics extensive calico print-works, dye-works, bread-cries distilleries breweries salt refineries, flour and oil mills and numerous establishments, whereas embroidery and lace making are carried on. The town has an active trade in manufactured goods and white beer and oil. Its commerce is much facilitated by the Nethe which, up to this point, is navigable at high tides for vessels of considerable tonnage. Pop. 133 125.

LIEDORF a vil Rheinish Prussia, gov and 30 m S S E Treves with a church and several mills. Pop. 1381.

LIESEB, a in Rhodan Prussia, gov and 19 m N E Treves, 1 bank Moselle, near the confluence of the Lieser with a church, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1314. — The river flows S and S E 45 m and joins 1 bank Moselle.

LIESTAL, or LIEBETAL, a in Switzerland, cant Basel country beautifully situated on the Ergolz, 8 m S E Basel. The principal buildings are St. Catharine's church, the town house, adorned with fine carvings, the record-office or chancery the parish school, and two poorhouses situated a little above the town. The manufactures, particularly of gloves, are considerable, and there are three important annual fairs. In the neighbourhood there is a small lake, called the Frischbach and a considerable cascade formed by the Ergolz. Pop. (1849), 8023.

LIESECK two places, Hungary — 1 (Merev) A vil Hungary Hitler Danube, co. and 9 m from Győr, with two churches. Pop. 2393. — 2 A vil, co Arva, with manufactures of linen, and a trade in linen and wool. Pop. 1399.

LIEIOR a in Spain, Murcia, prov and 27 m S S Alacante, 1 bank Mundo with a parish church, three chapels, a town and seamen house, hospital, school and public storehouse, manufactures of linen woollen, and hempen fabrics, and bees and silk worm culture. Pop. 2002.

LIETTANI, LIYANI (Nahr-el), or LEONTAS, a river Maïot Turkey Palestine, pass Acro, issues from a small lake 6 m. S.W. Hazbea, from which it flows N.E.W., along the centre of the fertile valley of Bebaa, between the two ranges of Lebanon, from which it receives many tributaries. It afterwards turns W. traverses the Lebanon range, and falls into the Mediterranean, about 5 m. N Tyre.

J IETZ & a vil. Amiria, Sevrin, circle and W. N. W. from Judenburg on the Hirsudach with a church, manufactures of ironware, and important horse markets. Pop. 1600.

LIEZGÖHRICKE (ALT and NCO), two nearby contiguous villa. Prussia, gov Frankfurt, circle and near Kdmig Ave., with a barn and other mills. P 1339

LEU (Le) a vii and par Switzerland can find on lake Joux, 19 mi W N W Lauanne has a handsome church and an annual fair. Pou 1050

JIU TUNG, a city China, prov. Quansoo, 1 bank of a large navigable stream tributary to the Canton River; lat 24° 14' N, lon 109° 30' E. It is a city of the first rank and is situated in a mountainous and well watered district.

LIEUVIN (La) a dpt. France which belonged to the former prov. of Upper Normandy and had Lisieux for its capital. It is now included in dpt. Eure and Calvados.

LIEZLE, a vil and com Belgram prov and 16 in 9 Antwerp with manufactures of linen, two brewerics, two mills, and a trade in linen, flax and corn P p 1048

IFF AND-BKKVIE near Scot Forfar 6000ac P 18 940
IFFL a river Ireland which rises in the Wicklow mountains about 12 m N Dublin and after a remarkable

LIFE OF is a tin and jar Ireland co Dougal the a w n l bank Foyle, 12 to 8 by W Londonderry has an Episcopal church and a Presbyterian meeting-house several public and private schools a court house and county jail Pop. agricultural 500 The par also called C. M. Leigh area, 12,384 ac 1 p 4514

LIFTUN a par km, Dev n 098° ac 1 op 160
LIFT the largest and most of the Loyalty Islands
8 Pacific lat 14 end) 20° 27' S lon 16° 4' E 97 m long N to S, and 10 to 20 m broad. It is of coral formation and has an elevation of 250 ft level on the top, and thickly wooded with various kinds of trees including the sandal wood tree. It has a harbour but there is a large bay on the N.W. side all the other parts present an iron bound shore with perpendicular cliffs and no soundings within 100 yards of the breakers. The only good ground on the island is to be found in small spots of low lands near the shore where the villages are. The greater portion of the interior of the island is destitute of soil. The natives are treacherous, cruel and cowardly. 1 up, 3000 to 4000

11627H, a vil Hungary Banat co Tettmar on the Temes, in a fertile district with two churches Pop 2210
LIGHTHORNE near Eng Warwick 407 ac 1 872

LIGITAN or LEEGETAN a group of 14 Indian Archipelago in the Soolow Sea, to the N. E. of the E. coast of Bornéo lat. 4 18' N. lon. 118° 33' E. (a). They are surrounded by reeds and sandbanks without any soundings near them.

LIGNE, a vil and com. Belgium prov Hainaut, on the Dender 17 m N W of it, with manufactures of linen and

Depart 17 in N W Oct with manufactures of shoes and earthenware, a bleachfield, two breweries a distillery a flour-mill and a trade in linen, flax, and corn Pop. 1004 near the extensive lagoon of Villiers, 25 m. S.E.W. Bourges. It was once surrounded by walls and ditches, and defended by a castle in which Charles VI and Charles VII of France often took refuge during the English ascendancy. It is celebrated for puits, which bear its name, and carries on a trade in cattle and hay once famous. Flora.—Vern. 9241.

LIGNY [anc. Lencuvy] a tn. France, dep. Meuse, 10 m. S.E. Bar le Duc, r. bank Orain. It is well built and has clean, spacious, regular streets which converge towards a handsome square. It is famous for its saive and has tanneries, and cotton-mills a trade in wine, wood, wool &c. There are numerous forges and blast-furnaces in the neighbourhood. Pop 8246

IGNY, a vil and com. Belgium, prov and 18 m W NW Namur on the Ligne. It has a church, a commercial house, and primary school. In the neighbourhood are the ruins of an old castle, and several quarries of a fine-grained and variegated marble. Here in June, 1815, the Prussians, under Blücher, were defeated by the French under Napoleon. Pop 1000

LIGOR, or LIGORE, a ta. Lower Gann, Malay peninsula. on the great trade route between Bengal and the Siamese capital, and on the R bank of the Sayang, lat. 8° 17' N, lon 100° 11' E. It is built of bamboo, covered with reeds, and contains many temples, with small steeples, which appear at a distance. Like raasta. The Dutch had formerly a factory here, but it has been abandoned.

LIGOURY a dist. France, which belonged to the ancient prov. Limousin and is now included in arrond. Limoges, dep. Haute-Vienne. Its cap. was St. Jean Ligoury.

LUM FJORD an arm of the sea Denmark separating Jutland into two portions. Its original entrance is from the Kattegat, whence it penetrates W by N as far as Alsborg by a channel often under 1 m broad. From this point it spreads out into a series of broad lakes and rivers, the outlet of which is to the Kattegat, and in places there are considerable islands. The lakes have a SW direction, and are at times connected by narrow channels and the most W of the series is only separated from the N Sea by a narrow channel along which a road is carried and through which a small stream flows. The largest of the lakes is Skjern in 16°34', a natural opening, named Agger-aaens was formed, and at this area 424 sq m. It is navigable for small vessels, but a bar near midway, at the Agger-aaen which is situated in 16°34'30" N, prevents boats going northwards. The name is derived from the limestone and chalk which abound along the shores of the fjord.

TIKHVIN is to Russia gov and 91 m S. Kaluga cap.
 dist r bank Oka with five churches, and some trade in cattle corn, and hemp 100 2032 — The district is rich both in corn and pasture. Area 554 sq. m 1 51 175

LILBOURN, near Fug. Northampton 1920 ac P 282

III FOLD, 4 per Eug Northampton 1940 no P 141

LILLE, a vil and com Belgium, prov and 21 m. E Antwerp, on the Langebeek with two breweries, an oil, and other mills and a trade in corn. Pop. 1070.

III E (ane, Flem, Russ, English, Latio, Italian, Latin, German and Spanish, by no means important in France, except near 137 m N Paris on the railway thence to Brussels at (Ja) Madeleine 60 88 44 N, lon 5° 4 E. (1) It is remarkably well built has spacious regular streets, lined with large massive houses of brick or the calcareous stone of the neighbourhood and generally with handsome fronts, two or three stories high. Lille is surrounded with walls, and regular fortified ramparts as a fortress of the first class. The houses are built on the form of a regular pentagon, and are provided with all the accessories of a modern town. The means of translation, is regarded as a masterpiece of Vanbrun, and almost impregnable. One of the worst things in the town is its number of cellars, a sort of low damp vaults which form the ground story of the houses and are let out to the poorer classes. There crowded together, and breathe a noxious atmosphere they contract and spread diseases, the prevalence of which has made Lille proverbially unhealthy. This sickness is probably increased by the Mante and Basse Laines, sluggish streams, which traverse the town. The climate is cold, but not so severe as in the north of France, so that, for about 14 m it can be laid under water. Compared with the size and importance of the town its public buildings are of little note. The most remarkable are the church of St. Maurice, said to date from 1023 but, from the style of its Gothic, apparently later the church of St. Paul, the palace of Ribour built by Jean-sans-Peur, 1430, and now chiefly occupied by municipal and law courts, but partly appropriated as a school of art, and containing a fine collection of paintings by old masters, the Mont-de-Piété the Paris gate, a triumphal arch in honour of Louis XIV the general hospital, a noble building with a Doric colonnade, the municipal theatre, adorned with a Doric colonnade, the music-hall, the barracks in France, and the museum, occupying the extensive buildings of an ancient convent, and containing a valuable collection of a picture-gallery and a chancery. Lille possesses a number of first resorts and commerce a bank, a society of arts and sciences, a royal academy of music, an academy school a communal college, a school of painting, a botanical garden, &c. The manufactures are numerous and extensive, and some of them have long enjoyed a high reputation. One of the oldest and most important is fine linen thread for lace, hulle, and gauze, together with all kinds of linen and cotton twist for general purposes. The other manufactures are broad-cloth, best-covers, carpets, shoes, silk, and woollen stuffs of all sorts, stockings, bed and table linen, carpets, hats, carriages, paper, best-root sugar, raw and refined soap, glue, ribbons, and tulle, which try to rival those of England. The preparation of oil is carried on to a great extent. Lille has also tobacco factories, works for making Prussian blue and white lead, engine-works, iron and brass foundries, dye-works, bleachfields, numerous breweries, and gun and brandy distilleries. Its situation on the frontier and extensive rail way and water communication make Lille a great entrepot for general goods and also colonial produce, which reach it from the ports of Dunkirk, Calais, Boulogne, and even Havre. Its trade, extending directly or indirectly to almost every country of Europe, consists of linens and linen thread, lace, cotton twist, printed woollens, tobacco, madder coffee, spices, wine, brandy, gin, hops wax, coal, &c.

Lille, formerly the cap. of French Flanders is said to owe its origin to a strong castle, built towards the downfall of the Roman empire and called, from its position Isabella—hence Lille, easily changed to Lille. In 1007 Baldwin IV both extended it, and surrounded it with walls and ditches. From that time, but not without many vicissitudes, Lille has continued to increase, passing through the hands of various masters, till ultimately secured to France, by the peace of Utrecht, in 1713. In 1792 it was ineffectually besieged and then handed by the Austrians. Pop 87 776.

LILLEBONNE (anc Julia Bona or Ulcobona) is in France dep. Seine-Inférieure 10 m. S. Havre near the confluence of the Deûme with the Bolbec. Notwithstanding its fine position, it has a dull and heavy appearance. The houses are clumsily constructed of wood, and many of them are manufacturing establishments with long rows of monstrous fronts. The principal objects of notice are the church, with a Gothic spire and the old castle of Lillebonne sometimes called Chateau d'Urcourt. This castle is one of the most curious and best-preserved monuments of Normandy. Almost all the inhabitants of the town are of the working-class. The whole valley between Lillebonne and Bolbec is crowded with cotton factories. There are also numerous tanneries. The trade is chiefly in cloth, leather, groceries, ironware, cattle and honey. Pop 4310.

LILLEHAMMER, a town in Norway 110 m. and 80 m. N N W Christiania, at the N E extremity of lake Mjøsa near the mouth of the Longun. It was formerly the see of a bishop, and possessed both a cathedral and a monastery, but now consists of a small number of tolerably well built and pleasantly-grouped houses, with a wooden church. It is the centre of a considerable trade extending from Christiania to the Dovrefield mountains. Steamers ply daily on the lake between it and Mjnd. Pop 701.

LILLEURS, a town in France dep. Pas-de-Calais on the Yave, 34 m. N N W Arras. It contains the finest arsenal wall made, and has manufactures of earthenware, a bleach field, brewery, tanneries, dye-works, and silk mills. Pop. 2056.

LILLESAAND, a small seaport in Norway, 15 m. E N E Christiania, with some export of iron and timber.

LILLESEAL, a par Eng. Salop, 6140 ac. Pop 1867.

LILLEY par Eng. Hertford, 1822 ac. Pop 528.

LILLIANES, a vill and com Italy Piedmont, d.v. Aosta at the extremity of the valley of Valsusa, 1 bank Ves. or Lys. It has a church and primary school and manufacture of iron. Pop 1310.

LILTSLEAF, a par Scotland, Roxburgh 7000 ac. Pop 798.

LILLINGSTONE two parv England.—1 (Dunghill), Bucks; 2228 ac. P 307.—2 (Lowell), Oxford, 1896 ac. P 171.

LILLINGTON, two parv. England.—1, Warwick 1324 ac. 1 309.—2 Dorset 1807 ac. P 106.

LILLO.—1 A fort Belgium, prov and 7 m N W Antwerp 1 bank Scheldt, on the Dutch frontier, constructed in 1684. With Fort Lieffkenshoek, which faces it on the opposite bank, it completely commands the passage of the river.—2 A town Spain New Castile prov and 35 m. P. S. E. Toledo, with a church chapel townhouse, hospital Latin and two other schools and manufactures of linen. P 1086.

LILLOIS-WATZMANN a vill and com Belgium prov Brabant 15 m. S S E Brussels, with a brewery a flour-mill, and a trade in corn. Pop 1102.

LILSTOCK a par Eng. Somerset, 1160 ac. P 62.

LIMA a dep. Peru, lat. 10° 30' to 16° 20' S, and stretching from the shores of the Pacific to the Andes. Its principal streams are the Rimac, the Chancay the Main, and the Rio Grande. The climate is very warm, particularly on the coast, and rain seldom falls, but the soil is fertile, and well cultivated. The department is divided into seven provinces, and contains, besides the capital, Callao, Casete, Chancay and other towns. Pop. 149 112.

LIMA the cap city of Peru lat 12° 38', lon 77° to W at the foot of granite hills, on both banks of the Rimac, which divides it into two unequal portions connected by a handsome stone bridge of six arches, and 550 ft. in length which forms a favourite afternoon lounge, when the mountain breezes are peculiarly grateful. The larger division of the town is on the S or J bank of the river, it is enclosed on all sides except the N (on which is an agreeable alameda) by a brick wall 18 to 20 ft. high having nine gates. The smaller, or suburb of San Lazaro, is on the E bank and is backed by hills having only two openings through them for ingress and egress. The greatest extent of Lima is from S. to W; its greatest circumference 10 m. At first sight, it presents a general appearance of decay from the number of its ruined temples, the frail look of its buildings, and from the absence of air and bustle in its streets but, in the general parts, a considerable improvement in all these respects becomes apparent. The streets are equidistant, intersect each other at right angles and have an average breadth of 44 ft. They are in general badly paved and not very clean but improvements are gradually going on in the more central parts of the city where the pavements have been lately restored, and footpaths formed of broad flags from England those lying E. to W have each a deep stream of water running down the centre, which is crossed by four bridges at the cross streets. The grand square of Lima, the Plaza Mayor, is the central point of its life and business, together with the adjoining streets Mantas, Bodegonas and Mercaderes. This fine square is a regular quadrangle, each side of which is 510 ft. long, having in the centre a magnificent bronze fountain with three basins, two sides are occupied by the Portales or Piazas, the most attractive places in Lima for a stranger. They are about 500 ft. long, well paved with small stones, interlaid with the bonkie bones of sheep, which produce a kind of mosaic pavement. In these portales all kinds of dry goods and fancy articles are sold; here also are lace and fringe workers, etc. On the N side of the square stand the palace and offices of the government, in which dwells the President. A square building of masonry aspect, once the property and residence of Pizarro, on the E the bishop's palace and the cathedral and on the W the senate house, the townhall, and a row of shabby houses. The next public square in respect of size is the Plaza de la Independencia, now called the square of Independencia (Plaza de la Independencia) in which stand the Hall of the Congress, the Jail, and the Palace of the Independence, where ornaments were produced, no less terrible, and perhaps in hardly fewer instances, than in those of the Inquisition of Madrid. Few traces, however, of the internal arrangements of this dread tribunal now remain an outraged populace having on the suppression of the Inquisition by the Cortes, forced their way into the building, gutted the rooms and destroyed the furniture. Among the numerous churches and convents, a few only are deserving particular notice of these the cathedral is the most remarkable. It is richly decorated within and beneath its grand altar is the tomb of Francisco Pizarro. The convent of San Francisco is the largest monastic establishment in Lima, occupying nearly 7 ac. of ground. It is an elegant structure now out of repair and exhibiting evident signs of decay. Amongst the other churches and convents of note, are Santo Domingo, San Pedro and La Merced. Besides the cathedral, Lima contains five other parish churches, 12 attached to convents, 13 to monasteries and 22 chapels, making a total of 63 places of worship. The monasteries and convents at one time were numerous, have to a great extent been suppressed. The university, once the most important as it was the first established seat of education of the kind in the New World, has connected with it a national library of about 20,000 vols. and the museum, in which are collections of Peruvian antiquities and objects of natural history. There are also a college of advocates, a college of pharmacy with a botanic garden attached, another of medicine and anatomy, four Latin and about 40 primary schools, and various other educational institutions. There are likewise a number of well conducted hospitals including one for foundlings, and two for lunatics. The places of public amusement are three alamedas or promenades—d'Ayaga or old alameda, the Alameda de Acho on the banks of the Rimac, containing the bull ring, capable of accommodating 10,000 to 12,000 spectators, and formerly the venue of the enter-de-fo of the Inquisition and the Cortada del Callao; two theatres and an amphitheatre for cock fights; and several small saloons for dancing.

THE CATHEDRAL OF SAN FRANCISCO, LIMA.—FROM VALDES, Voyage autour du Monde.

Lima has several manufactures of gold lace and fringes, and a manufactory of glass, of cotton of cochineal and of, iper filo, but nearly all the goods sold and consumed in the country are foreign. Mechanical employments are numerous, but all are in a rude state. It has also a considerable foreign trade through its port (Callao)—which is 7 m. W from the city and connected by a recently constructed railway.

The general walking dress of the ladies of Lima is singular and evidently of Moorish origin; it consists of two garments, called, respectively, the aysa and the manto. The former is a silk petticoat, with numerous small vertical plait, containing about 50 yds. of silk. Formerly it was drawn in close at the bottom of the dress, so that the wearer was obliged to make very short steps; it was a little slanted, and fitted to the shape, whether natural or artificial, from the waist downwards; but the aysa displayed or loose aysa is now in general use. The manto is a veil of thick black silk fastened by a band at the back of the waist, where it joins the aysa. It is then brought over the head and shoulders, and drawn so closely over the face as to leave but one small triangular space open for one eye to peep through. Before the manto is put on a shawl generally of Chinese manufacture is thrown over the shoulders, and brought between the openings of the manto in front, hanging down nearly to the feet. But the French continue to wear gradually displacing the aysa and manto. These are usually made of embroidered silk, or of very fine kid, and it is usual to have two new pairs every week. The Limerians are very fond of music and dancing; they are like their Spanish ancestors, a thoughtless race, witty light-hearted and more given to pleasure than to intellectual pursuits. The climate is very agreeable rather relaxing to the young, but highly favourable to the middle aged and elderly. The range of the thermometer throughout the year is from 78 to 75 in winter and 86° to 87 in summer. From April to October a heavy and sometimes chilly mist overhangs the city in the mornings and evenings. Rain, even in partial showers, is of exceedingly rare occurrence. Thunder and lightning are unknown. Lima is very subject to earthquakes, and has frequently suffered from these terrible visitations. The most destructive on record occurred in October 1746 when many houses and public buildings were destroyed. On the same occasion, the part of Callao was suddenly submerged by a huge wave, and, with exception of some 30 or 80 all the inhabitants, amounting to 6000 were swept away.

LIMERIAN LADIES, ATTENDED IN THE LODGE SATI
FROM DE PÉRI THOMAS, VOYAGE AROUND THE GLOBE.

Lima was founded by Pizarro in 1535, and called Ciudad de los Reyes (Kings town), in commemoration of the festival day of the kings, on which the site was chosen. This name having been confirmed in 1537 by Charles V. from that time Lima became capital of Peru, and the seat of the viceroy. The population has fluctuated greatly from time to time, and at present (1852) is supposed to be about 70,000.—(Voyage Technique Peru Wilton U. Notes Exped. Castelnuovo L'Exposition dans les parties Centrales de l'Amérique du Sud 1848-47. Private information.)

LIMAGNE (La) a dist. France, which belonged to the former prov. of Lower Auvergne, and had 1811m for its capital. It is now included in dep. Puy-de-Dôme.

LIMAL, a vil and com. Belgium prov. Brabant, on the Dyke, 15 m. S.E. Brussels, with a trade in corn, cattle, and timber. Pop. 1833.

LIMAMU a river Chik, dep. Coquimbo which runs on the W slope of the Andes, flows W and falls into the Pacific, 65 m. S.W. Coquimbo, total course, 120 m.

LIMASOL (anc. Remona) a small seaport on the S side of Cyprus, a few miles N.E. Cape Gath, on a large plain, about 1 m. distant from the sea, lat. 34 41 17° N., lon. 33 1 45° E. (a.) distinguished by a white castle which stands on the shore. It consists of some miserable mud houses, inhabited by Greeks and Turks, but has a commodious harbour though exposed to the S.E. winds, and a small trade in wine. Ancient Limassol (Amasus) celebrated for its temple of Venus and Adonis, stood at a little distance N.E. from the modern town, but no vestige of it now remains.

LIMATOLO a tn. Naples prov. Lavoro, dist. and 6 m. N. Caserta, bank Volturne. Pop. 1506.

LIMBACH, a vil Hungary Thibler Danube, co. Eisenburg, 8 m. from Fürstfeld, with a church, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1058.

LIMBACH a tn. Saxony, circle Zwickau half and 6 m.
N W. Chemnitz with manufactures of silk. Pop. 2691

LIMBER-MAGNA, per Eng. Lincoln 5180 ad P 731

LIMBIATE, a vil and com Austrian Italy prov Milan about 5 m S. Bariassina, with a church and a school P 1806

LIMBOURG a prov. Belgium. See LAMBURG

LIJMBURG, or Lutemburg, a prov. Belg. province, bounded N by Holland, E. by Dutch Limburg S. by prov. Liège, and W. by S. Brabant and Antwerp; length 24 to 8, 50 m breadth, 84 m. area, 928 sq. m. It is flat throughout strata chiefly limestone, and remarkably rich in fossils, furnishing many fine quarries of fossiliferous and fossiliferous limestone, and some of the localities. The E. border is skirted by the Meuse, which along with the canal from Maastricht to Her to Tonguebock afford water communication to Holland and Antwerp, canal leads to Heracleides, in prov. Antwerp. These facilities enable Limbourg to carry on an important transit trade. A considerable part of the province, particularly towards the N. and E. borders, is fertile, and the soil is generally of a rich, almost entire of barren heath or pure sand, it is desolate in the extreme. Towards the centre and the S. the soil is tolerably fertile on the N. along the valley of the Meuse its quality becomes superior and the banks are covered with rich pastures. Buckwheat, rye, spelt, barley and rapped-seed are grown; a few cattle and large numbers of sheep are reared; the principal manufactures are woollen, especially in the south. Distilleries are numerous, there are several beet-root, sugar refineries and the manufactures include soap, salt, potteryware, paper tobacco straw hats, &c. The chief towns are Hasselt, the capital Tongres, Maastricht, and St. Trond. The province was formed in 1839 of the greater part of the ancient province of Limbourg, which formerly lay on the border of the province of which was now given up to Holland. Pop. (1849) 195,621.

YIMBURG—1 A to Nassen cap. bul. 1 bank Lahn here crossed by a picturesque bridge 20 m N & W Wiesbaden. It is a very ancient place, the see of a bishop and remains of the town proper surrounded by walls, and of three suburbs contains a sumptuous cathedral partly in the latest

LIMITS — These figures should be on the left, as

Pyramidal style, and partly in the earliest polished Gothic, on an elevated site, overlooking the river with lofty towers and several monuments of the same period, another church, a mint, superior school and theological seminary. It has arms of shipping and general trade. See Antiquary's Travels into some of the oldest sources of German history. Pop. 8146. Area of hall, 36 geo. sq. m. Pop. 7794. — 2. A to Rheinfels, Prussia, Geo. and 21 m. W. Arnberg; 1 bank Leine, with a church, a synagogue, a picturesque abutted castle and many features of linen and cotton goods, blast-furnaces, and other iron works. Pop 2210 —3 A. ta. Belgium, prov and 17 m. E Liège, on the railway thence to Aix-la-Chapelle. It lies on a kind of peninsula, on a steep rock, overlooking the Vesdre and the pretty village Dolhain which properly forms its low town while the upper part, forming the high town, though once the capital of Anseran Limburg and a place of strength, consists only of a single street, tolerably well built Dolhain, which is well situated, and larger than the high town contains a handsome chateau, is surrounded by fine villas, and has four primary schools, manufactures of broad-cloth, machinery and beer. Pop. 2300

LIMBURG (Duchy) a prov. Holland belonging to the Germanic Confederation, bounded N by prov. N. Brabant, E by Rhenuis Prussia, S by Dolguem and W by Belgian Limburg and prov. N. Brabant. It contains all of the former Austrian provinces of Limburg lying on the right side of the Meuse, the districts of a line drawn from the most S. point of the Meuse to the tower of the city of Maastricht, the district of Maastricht area, 592 sq. m. It is partly flat partly undulating rich, fertile along the Waas but in the N and W, cold and sterile, large portions being covered with heath and marsh, and belonging to the extensive moorss named the Peel. Besides the Meuse, the chief rivers are the Rijn and the Roer. The principal cities are Maastricht, Aachen, Hasselt, and Tongeren. The soil is fertile, the principal husbandry being flax, oil-seeds and wheat crops, also cultivated, good butter and cheese are made, and pigs are very numerous. Coal, pottery, steel and building-stones are found. Agriculture and cattle-rearing are the chief occupations but the distilling of gin and other spirits, and manufacturing tobacco, slucery, paper, cloth, glass, leather, iron, &c. are also carried on. The population of the province contained 800,000 common souls, 426,400 in 1830 pupils. Besides Maastricht, its chief towns are Roermond, Venlo, and Weert. Pop. (1850) 205,451

TIME (HOURS) (ST AREA per Eng Middlesex 205 no
Pou 22782

11347 KILNS a vil and seaport Scotland on Fife on the birth of Forth & m S Dunfermline with a U Presby terian church and a school and two small harbours which are left dry at abb tide, but in high streams are accessible to vessels of 300 tons. Lon 019 are produced and fattened in the county. The occupations are chiefly agricultural, pasturage and dairy farming are most cultivated tillage is less attended to. The condition of the larger farmers is generally good. Both men and women are industrious. The majority of the large country farms are comparatively well managed. Large quantities of the produce of the county are exported. The manufactures are coarse woollens, lace, paper, flour, and meal. In 1850, there were 103 national schools, attended by 16,975 children. The county is divided into 14 baronies and 131 parishes, and returns four members to Parliament—two for the county and two for Limerick city. Its chief towns, besides Limerick, are Rathfriland and Nenagh. Pop. (1841), 338,928 (1851), 262,136. Exclusive of Limerick city the pop. in 1861 was 206,688, being a decrease since 1841 of 72,544.

LIMERICK, an important city, municipal and par. bur. Ireland, cap. above co., and a county of itself. It lies on an extensive plain at the interior extremity of the estuary of the Shannon. lat. 52° 39' 38" N. lon. 8° 39' W. (n.) 106 m. S.E. W. Dublin with which and Cork it is connected by railway. It consists of three portions, distinguished by the names, respectively of English and Irish towns, and New town-Perry. The first, and oldest, occupies the S. end of the King's Island, a tract formed by the Shannon here divided into two streams the other two stand on either side of the river. The different parts of the city are connected by five bridges, one of which, the Walloway bridge, a magnificent structure, crossing the harbour cost £285,000. In English towns the houses are chiefly built in the Flemish fashion. Irish towns is also old but here the streets are wider and the houses generally more modern than in the former where everything has an appearance of misery and decay. New town-Perry, which is a considerable modern town, occupies the level ground parallel with the course of the river and is one of the finest modern towns in Ireland. It contains a handsome square, its streets are spacious, intersect each other at right angles, and are lined by elegant houses, shops, and merchants' stores. The principal civic buildings are the city court-house and prison, custom house, chamber of commerce, exchange, assembly house, linen hall, corn and butter markets, several hospitals, and barracks. The places of worship are the cathedral, five Protestant churches, four parochial and three conventual B. Catholic chapels, and five dissenting meeting houses. The manufacture of linen is now nearly extinct that of gloves continues but both have been supplanted by those of lace and fishing-hooks both of which are carried on to a considerable extent. There are, besides distilleries, breweries, tanneries, foundries, flour-mills, a patent slip for vessels of 500 tons, and three ship-building slips, where 100 men are employed. Limerick is the leading port on the W. coast of Ireland for the shipment of raw produce. The harbour extends about 1600 yards in length and 150 in breadth with from 3 to 9 m. of water and 10 ft. at spring-tides, which latter enables vessels of 600 tons to moor at the quays. The commerce of the port has considerably increased and will be further improved it is expected, when the new docks now (1852) in progress are completed. The number of sailing vessels registered as belonging to the port, in 1845 was 107 aggregate tons. 13,934. The number of vessels that entered the port in the same year including the cross-channel and coasting trade, the British colonial and foreign trade, was 787 tons 110,192 departed, 864 tons 78,279. The borough returns two members to Parliament registered electors 1144. Pop. of the county in 1845, 63,256 of whom 48,391 were in the city. The latter contains 2070 ac. Pop. 53,448.

LIMPLE a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Luxembourg, on the Ourthe 7 m. E.N.E. Houthalen, with a brewery, several mills, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1063.

LIMIA, or LARA a river which rises in a valley of the same name, in Galicia, Spain 15 m. S.E. Orense, flows S.E. W. into Portugal past Ponte de Lima, and falls into the Atlantic, a little below Viana, after a course of about 180 m. It is navigable for small vessels from Ponte de Lima.

LIMINGTOU, par. Eng. Somerset, 1602 sq. Pop. 344.

LIMMAT, a river, Switzerland, through which Lake Zurich sends its waters to the Aar, total course W. & W. 20 m. Immediately after leaving the lake, it receives the Sihl, and becomes an important stream.

LIMOIRO, a m. Brazil, prov. Pernambuco, 1 bank Capitanias, 88 m. W. N. W. Recife, with a church, and considerable exports of cotton. Pop. dist. 10,000.

LIMOLUX (anc. Apostolium Limonium) a m. France, dep. Haute-Vienne, at the top and occupying the southerly of a hill washed by the Vienne, here crossed by three bridges, 88 m. W. Clermont. Almost all the houses are of wood, at least above the first story, and the streets are irregular, narrow, and tortuous. The old walls and towers which formerly surrounded the town, have been thrown down and their site converted into fine shady boulevards. The most remarkable edifice are the cathedral, commenced in 1872, and not completed till 1815; indeed, the only part properly finished is the choir which is built of granite, and very beautiful. The church, St. Michel des Lions, a Gothic edifice, is remarkable for the light and airy appearance of the pillars which support its roof; and the boldness of the belfry which terminates on a ball of extraordinary size. The church of St. Pierre du Quayrol is surmounted by a fine spire. Limoges has a bishop's palace, built of granite, the finest modern edifice of the town, a fountain, public library, containing 12,000 vols., a theatre, cavalry barracks, and several hospitable manufactures of porcelain, worsted, broad-cloth, cassimere, drapery, woollen covers, flannel, napkins, tapestry, cloths, glass, horse-halls, paper, plain and stained cards, &c., numerous printing-presses, and an extensive book trade. It has also a considerable trade in corn, chestnuts, wine, brandy, liqueurs, salt, iron, copper, brass, enamel, kaolin, &c. Limoges is an entrepot for the trade of Toulouse, and generally of the S. departments of France. It is the seat of a bishop, and the seat of courts of first resort, and commerce of a considerable extent. It contains a royal college, a university, academy, and societies of agriculture, sciences, and arts.

Limoges was originally the capital of the Gallic tribe Lemovices. Under the Romans it was adorned with a capital amphitheatre, fine temples, and palaces. From the Romans it passed to the Visigoths. The Romans buried it in 836. Henry II. of England was here crowned Duke of Aquitaine and, in 1189, Matilda, queen of Richard Coeur de Lion, laid siege to it, and afterwards gave it up to pillage. Pop. 26,824.

LIMONE (Latin, Limo) a m. Italy, 1 ind. ind. div. and 13 m. N. Corn. It has a parish church of S. Leonard, with three altars, several other churches, a Capuchin convent, a school, and an hospital. A court of law, several public offices, and a trade in cattle and dairy produce. Pop. 5436.

LIMONIA a small isl. Greek Archipelago, near W. shores of Rhodes; length, 3 m. It has some good sheep-pastures and a small village of same name, with a harbour.

LIMOSAN a m. Naples, prov. Salerno, dist. 7 m. N. N. W. Campobasso, 1 bank Siferno, with two parish churches, two convents, and an hospital. Pop. 2000.

LIMONIN (Is.) a former prov. France, which was divided into Upper Limonin par. Langues, and Lower Limonin par. Tulle. It is now included in dep. Haute-Vienne and Corrèze.

LIMOLX (anc. Lamocum) a m. France, dep. Aude 1 bank Aude. It has well laid-out streets and the houses which line them are generally good. There are four fountains—the principal one situated in an irregular square, where the markets are held, a spacious parish church, richly ornamented an hospital and a small theatre. It has important manufactures of broad-cloth, numerous worsted mills, saw, paper, and dye-works and a trade in iron, wool, olive-oil, green soap, leather, &c. Limoux has a court of first resort and commerce, a consulting chamber of manufactures, an agricultural society, and communal college. Pop. 7870.

LIMPFNOUE, par. Eng. Norfolk, 1075 sq. P. 248.

LIMPIAR, a m. Spain, Old Castile, prov. and 17 m. E. E. Santander on the Bay of Biscay with a church, a large school, and manufactures of iron and leather, several mills and a harbour with some trade particularly in fish and grain. Pop. 3090.

LIMPIER D. par. Eng. Surrey, 7004 ac. P. 1294.

LIMREE, a m. Hindostan prov. Gujarat, lat. 22° 36' N. lon. 71° 54' E., celebrated for the number and influence of its bankers.

LIN KIANG, a city China, prov. Kiangsee 1 bank, a tributary to the Kan-kiang lat. 27° 58' N. lon. 115° E. It is said to be neither commercial nor populous.

LIN TUNG, a city China, prov. Shantung, 1 bank Imperial Canal, 860 m. S. Peking lat. 34° 55' N. lon. 117° 15' E. It is populous and flourishing, much frequented by vessels passing along the canal and contains a splendid pagoda, adorned with porphyritic granite and glazed bricks, and roofed in with cast iron.

LINALAPAN one of the smallest of the Philippines, off N.E. end of Palawan, lat. (W. point) 11° 40' N.; lon. 118° 55' E. (n.)

LINARES, several places Spain particularly:—1 A in Andalusia, prov and 21 m NNE. Jerez near r bank Guadalquivir capital of a mining district. It is well built, has a market square, a parish church, two chapels, a town-house, prison, several schools an hospital, convent, public storerooms and manufactures, cloth, soft soap, saffron, silk, and bricks. Pop. 6577—2, A in Leon, prov, and 80 m. SSW Salamanca with a church, townhall, prison, and cemetery. Pop. 968

LINBY or LINBY, a par Eng. Noths 1130 ac. P. 810
LINCEY a vil and com. Belguim, prov and 24 m W 6 W Liège with manufactures of linen yarn, and hemp thread; and a flour-mill. Pop. 1058.

LINCH a par Eng. Sussex 1240 ac. Pop. 64.
LINGHLEDE, or LINGHLEDE, a par Eng. Bucks 1830 ac. Pop. 1300

LINLIMPURE, a par Eng. Sussex 2101 ac. 1 83J

LINCOLN, or LINCOLN, a large maritime co. E. coast, England, bounded N by the estuary of the Humber E by the German Ocean and the Wash, S. by the Cam bridge, Northampton and Rutland and W by Leicester Nottingham, and York. Area, 1 671 040 ac. It is divided into the three districts, Lindsey Kesteven, and Holland. The surface is an interrupted plain, the greater portion of which lies below the level of the sea, being protected by embankments. Great parts of the fenland tract were, at some unknown period, a woody country, but waste afterwards matted and are now again recovered from the sea. Some of the fens were embanked and drained by the Romans, but, after their departure the sea returned and large tracts were covered with beds of silt, containing marine shells, now again converted into productive lands. Many dreadful catastrophes are recorded of incursions by the sea, whereby several parishes have been at different times overwhelmed. In a few places the fens and marshes continue nearly in their natural state, but, in general they have become, through the long-continued and well-directed efforts that have been made for their drainage and improvement, sound and dry and constitute one of the most productive and best-cultivated tracts in the kingdom. Round the Wash a great deal of very fine land has been gained from the sea since the commencement of the present century, and the embankments are gradually extending. In 1847 there were about 250 wind mills, and from 40 to 50 steam engines, constantly at work in carrying off the drainage from those lands where a natural outfall could not be secured to it. By these means, 680 000 acres of land have been brought into cultivation. The soil thus reclaimed from waste coasts principally of an alluvial deposit the chief feature of which is a blue calcareous clay. In consequence of the richness of its pastures, Lincolnshire has been long celebrated for its breed of horses, cattle, and sheep. Some of the finest dray horses seen in London are bred in the fens. The cattle are a coarse, large sort of short-horns but they have lately been a good deal improved by crossing with the Friesian breed. The native sheep of the fens are remarkable for their great size and for the extraordinary length of their wool. This breed however is now becoming scarce. In the best parts of the fens and marsh under tillage, the crops chiefly cultivated are oats and wheat. The farm buildings, on the better class of farms, are of a very superior description. Manufactures and minerals are of no importance. Principal rivers, Trent, Witham, Welland, and Anchusa. The Witham has been made navigable from Boston to Lincoln and the Foss-dike canal first excavated by the Romans, extends from the latter city to the Trent, near Torkey completing the important internal navigation between the Wash and the Humber. There are also canals from the Witham to Horncastle and Stamford, and from Tixley Haven on the E. coast, to Louth. Climate marshy. The county is intersected by various railways and is divided into 823 parishes. It returns 18 members to Parliament four for the county, two for the city of Lincoln, two each for the boroughs of Boston Grantham and Stamford and one for Great Grimsby. Pop. 1841) 362 802 (1851) 407,922

LINCOLN, a city municipal and parl. bor. England, cap. above so. 120 m N London pleasantly situated on the slope and summit of an eminence, rising gradually from 1 bank Witham, and on the Great N railway where it is joined, from the S.W. by the Nottingham and Lincoln, and from the N.E. by the Manchester Sheffield and Lincoln lines. It is indifferently built particularly in the upper part, which consists of a number of narrow irregular streets. In the lower part, a spacious street commencing on the r bank of the river is continued across it by a bridge, and then traverses a considerable part of the town. Here many recent improvements have been made and several handsome houses erected. The whole town is paved, lighted with gas, and well supplied with water. The principal edifice is the cathedral finely situated on the top of the eminence, and forming from the flatness of the surrounding country a very conspicuous object at a considerable distance. It is one of the finest of the English cathedrals and is built in the form of a double cross chiefly in the early English but partly also in later styles. The W. or principal front, has richly decorated doorways, windows, arcades, and niches and is flanked by two pinnacled towers, each 180 ft. high. A still more magnificent tower rises, from the intersection of the nave and principal transepts, to the height of 300 ft. and terminates likewise in pinnacles. The famous bell known by the name of the Great Tom of Lincoln hangs in the NW tower having been cracked in 1827 after several ineffectual attempts at repair was taken down in 1834 and recast into a new bell 6 ft. 10½ inches in diameter at the mouth 5 tons 8 cwt. in weight now hanging in the central tower. The principal access to the cathedral, from the W., is by three doorways, of handsome proportions, and richly decorated. That in the centre has, immediately over it, a series of canopies containing statues of 11 English kings. The interior which is 425 ft. in length, has a very imposing effect though the fine vaulting of the nave is generally considered deficient in elevation, and the side aisles are unusually narrow. In addition to the cathedral there are 18 churches and chapels belonging to the establishment two chapels to the Wesleyans two to the Independents and one each to the General and Particular Baptists, Huntingdon and Primitive Methodists, Friends M. Catholics and Unitarians. None of them is possessed of so much architectural merit as to deserve particular notice. The other most conspicuous buildings are the Guildhall or Stone hall (of the time of Richard II.) spanning the High Street, and perhaps the finest antique gate-house in the kingdom, the remains of the castle, which was founded by William the Conqueror, as one of his four great strongholds but was completely ruined during the Commonwealth; the County Hall, a fine specimen of modern Gothic; the

LINCOLN.—A view of the Cathedral and the city.

are the Guildhall or Stone hall (of the time of Richard II.) spanning the High Street, and perhaps the finest antique gate-house in the kingdom, the remains of the castle, which was founded by William the Conqueror, as one of his four great strongholds but was completely ruined during the Commonwealth; the County Hall, a fine specimen of modern Gothic; the

the old episcopal palace, once a noble structure, but now only an interesting ruin the old arch spanning Hornum Street, and considered the most perfect Roman gateway in England; the county and city assembly-rooms, the theatre, county hospital (recently rebuilt), county and city jails, railway stations, &c. The most important educational establishments are Christ's Hospital or the Blue Coat School which has about 100 boys on the foundation, and an annual revenue of £2000 the free grammar the diocesan, national, British, infant, and various other schools. Among the charities the most prominent, in addition to those already mentioned, are the Bishop's almshouses, the Pentecost Females House, the lying-in charity, and Dorcas charity. The manufactures are unimportant, but, among them may be mentioned extensive engine-works, coach works, lacemakers, ropewalks and numerous mills. The trade is chiefly in flour and wool, and, besides a weekly market, and fortnightly cattle markets during a part of the year there are four annual fairs, one of which lasts a week, and is one of the great horse fairs of the kingdom.

Lincoln has been identified with the Roman Lincoln and from the number of antiquities which have been found and the ancient remains still existing within it, it appears to have early attained considerable importance. After the departure of the Romans, it became the capital of the Saxons kingdom of Mercia, and suffered much during the straits between the Saxons and the Danes. Under William the Conqueror the strong castle which he erected added greatly to its importance as a military station but cannot be said to have contributed to its prosperity as it became a marked place in all the civil wars, and became the theatre of a series of keen struggles for its possession. During the Parliamentary war its adherence to the royal cause cost it many sacrifices. It sends two members to Parliament. Its garrisoned (1855), 1331. Pop. 17,556.

LINDAU is a town in Bavaria, circle Swabia, cap of it in the S.W. angle of the kingdom, on two islands in Lake Constance, connected with the shore by wooden bridges above 1000 ft. long. It is walled and otherwise fortified so as to be a place of considerable strength. has a court of law and several public offices four churches a castle, Latin agricultural and industrial schools manufactures of surgical and musical instruments a fishery a harbour which is visited by steamers and other vessels on the lake, and considerable trade, both general and coast. A Roman fort once stood on the island. Pop. 2092 of whom 2393 are military persons. Area of dist. 24 sq. m. Pop. 8146—2. A. in Hanover gov. Hildesheim 12 m. N.E. Oettingen with a church and manufacture of linen. Pop. 1453.

LINDA, a town in Sweden (in Örebro) on a tongue of land between two lakes, 99 m. N. by N. Stockholm. It is well built forms the centre of an important mining district has a church and manufactures of earthenware. Pop. 760.

LINDENAU numerous small places, Germany particularly—1. A. in Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. Oppeln circle (rotunda). Pop. 1036—2. A. in Saxony circle of and near Leipzig, towards the Rhine Napoleon retreated after his defeat at Leipzig. Pop. 1672.

LINDENAU, a vil. in Bohemia, circle and 30 m. E. N. E. Jemnitz, on the Zittschbach with a church a school, manufactures of cotton, and calico and mirrors dye-works, blacksmiths, spinning and other mills. Pop. 1890.

LINDENAU is a town in Baden-Darmstadt, prov. Rhenish-burg in the midst of the Odenwald, N. N. E. Heidelberg; with two churches, and the ruins of an old castle. Pop. 860.

LINDSAY a mountain, E. Australia, 65 m. S. S. W. Melbourne Bay lat. 39° 15' S. lon. 153° 45' E. It rises 1700 ft. above the plain on which it stands, and 3700 ft. above sea-level being the highest known summit in Australia.

LINDSÆNES, a cape, Norway. See NAR.

LINDSWICK (Lindswick and Lindswick), two nearly contiguous vils. Austria, Silesia circle Troppau, about 20 m. from Zakamit with a church, and two mills. Pop. Ober, 1148 Nieder 2997.

LINDWILL, a par. Eng. Sussex, 5775 ac. P. 1814. LINDWILL is at the extremity of a gulf on the E. shore lat. and 9 m. S. S. W. the town of Rhodes. It has a small harbour frequented only by fishing-boats, but was anciently under the name of Lindos, a place of some importance, having given birth to Cleobulus, one of the sages of Greece, and also to Cleares and Leches, the sons of whom commenced, and the other finished, the famous columns of Rhodes.

LINDOW, a town in Prussia, Brandenburg, gov. Potsdam, 36 m. N. N. W. Berlin with a church manufactures of linen and woollen cloth, tobacco, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1519.

LINDRIDGE, a par. Eng. Worcester 62152 ac. P. 1806.

LINDSAY an isl. Y. Arctic lat. 19° 20' N. lon. 141° 50' 30' W. 4 m. long and about 40 ft. high very barren and of a dark brown colour.

LINDSEIL, a par. Eng. Essex 1050 ac. Pop. 378.

LINDSEY, a par. Eng. Suffolk 1246 ac. Pop. 326.

LINDSEY, one of the three parts into which the Lincolnshire is divided. It is far the largest of the three, occupying the N. portion, and nearly a half of the whole county while the other parts, Kesteven and Holland are confined to the S. W. and S. E. respectively. Each of the parts is subdivided into several hundreds or wapentakes.

LINDY, a town, N. coast, Africa lat. 10° S. defended by a fort, on low ground 1 bank river of same name near its mouth composed of circular capes, and nearly all stretched but interspersed with groves of cocotrees, and other trees. The entrance to the river is 8 m. across, and the depth inside considerable although on the bar it does not exceed 5 fathoms at low water. At the distance of 5 m. up, the river branches off into several considerable channels forming a complete archipelago of low swampy islands covered with mangroves. The land on either side, rises into lofty hills clothed with verdure.

LINFORD two par. Eng. Bucks.—1. Great, 1737 ac. Pop. 480.—2. Little, 530 ac. Pop. 57.

LINGA two small isls. Scotland, Shetland group, between 211 and Maxwell.

LINGAYAN, a seaport in Philippines isl. Luzon cap. prov. Pangasinan, on the S. shore of a bay of same name near the mouth of a large river called the Agno lat. 16° 18' N. lon. 120° 16' W. It is a wealthy and industrious place, with well built houses, and several beautiful churches, many factories of leather &c. and a trade chiefly in rice and indigo. Pop. dist. 17,410.

LINGH, Dr. a stream Holland which rises in prov. Gelderland about 8 m. N. N. W. Nymegen, flows in a very crooked course, generally W. S. W., enters prov. B. Holland, and at Heukelum turns due S. and joins the Waal at Gorinchem. total course exclusive of windings, 40 m.

LINGH or LINGA an isl. Indian Archipelago off E. coast Sumatra on the equator, lon. 104° 35' to 105° E. The narrow channel of Dood divides it into two parts, its whole length is about 50 m., and its average breadth 15 m. It is surrounded with reefs and islets has a flat coast stretching some miles inland when the land rises into mountains and these terminate in a double peak at the S. W. end and called the Aas Ears. Both gold and tin are found in Linga. Some parts of the coast are marshy the hills are covered with wood and the plains abound in fruits, vegetable, pepper gambier trees, cinnamon in roots, and sugar palms. It grows rarely any rice or corn. The natives are Malaya, governed by a sultan, who keeps his court at Koorala S. W. on the coast. Pop. 9000 to 10,000.

LINGEN, a town, Hanover, gov. and 15 m. N. W. W. Osnabrück, cap. co. Nieder-Lingen on the Kne Canal near its junction with the Ems. It is surrounded by marshes, has three churches, a gymnasium, town school and poorhouse; manufactures of linen drills starch, gunpowder, hats, leather, and vinegar, some shipping trade, and several mills. Pop. 2778.—The colliery forms an extensive plain, well adapted for the growth of flax. Area 145 sq. m. Pop. 29,079.

LINGEN par. Eng. Hereford, 1958 ac. Pop. 290.

LINGENAU, a vil. Austria, Vorarlberg 9 m. S. S. E. V. Bregenz with a church. Pop. 1780.

LINGENFELD a vil. Saxony, Palatinat, dist. and near Gernersheim; with a church and a mill. Pop. 1357.

LINGETHLD par. Eng. Surrey 9010 ac. P. 2141.

LINGUAGHERA a small isl. prov. and 28 m. N. N. E. Catania, upon a declivity N. E. of Etna, and near the forest of same name. Pop. 2500.

LINGUETTA (Cape) a headland European Turkey Albania. It projects S. W. from the mainland into the Straits of Otranto and is 2260 ft. in height, lat. 40° 26' 17" N. lon. 19° 17' 17" E.

LINGWOOD par Eng. Norfolk 661 ac. Pop. 509
LINHARES 1 A to and par Portugal prov Beira-Baixa, 15 m. W Guarda, on a lofty height, near the W slope of Mount Estrela. It is defended by a fort and contains an hospital and almshouse. 1 915—2 A small town Brazil, prov Espirito Santo, near 1 bank Doce, 63 m. N. N. D. Victoria.

LINKEBEEK a vil and com. Belgium prov Brabant, 6 m S Brussels with a flour-mill, and a trade in corn and timber. Pop. 1104.

LINKENHOLT par Eng. Hants 1074 ac. Pop. 90
LINKINHOLME par Eng. Cornwall, 789 ac. P. 2005

LINKÖPING a to Sweden, cap. län of same name, in a fertile district, 1 bank Söding, at its mouth in Lake Rönne here crossed by a bridge of three arches, 108 m. S. W. Stockholm. It is irregularly yet tolerably well built, is the residence of a governor and the see of a bishop. has a handsome Gothic cathedral, somewhat injured in appearance by an incongruous Italian tower but possessed of some interesting monuments at other churches, a gymnasium, with a library of 35,000 vols. particularly rich in rare editions of the Bible and a small museum of natural history, antiquities, and coins. a castle, townhouse, assembly-house, and theatre. manufactures of linen, harnesses several much frequented fairs, and a considerable inland trade. Linköping is one of the oldest towns in Sweden, and possesses considerable historical interest. In its immediate vicinity was fought, in 1596, the battle of Stångebro in which Sigismund was defeated by his uncle, who was soon after elected king of Sweden under the name of Charles IX. Pop. 4767.—The län is bounded N. by Örebro and Nyköping E. by the Baltic, S. by Kalmar and Linköping and W. by Lake Vättern greatest length N. to S. 60 m. greatest breadth, 85 m. It is divided into two nearly equal parts—a N. and a S. by the Mölne, a river or rather canal which connects Lake Vättern with the Baltic, is well wooded and though mountainous in the S. W. and south the N. W. is generally fertile producing much corn and raising large herds of cattle and has valuable minerals including iron, lead, antimony, alum, marble, and fine pebbles. Pop. 207,044.

LINLEY par Eng. Salop 628 ac. 1 op. 105.

LINLITHGOW LINLITHGOWSHIRE, or WEST LOTHELIAN, a co. Scotland bounded N. by the Firth of Forth F. and S. by Edinburghshire, and W. and S. W. by Stirling and Lanark, area 78,600 ac. of which about three-fourths are arable. The surface is varied with knolls but there are few hills of any height. Coal is abundant, particularly in the vicinity of Borrowstoness where are some large iron-works. Limestone and freestone are also plentiful. The soils are generally strong and are well drained and well manured. In the S. W. parts of the county there is a considerable extent of thin moorish ground, and some mountains. Climate rather cold. The manufactures worth mentioning. Principal rivers, Almond and Avon. The county returns one member to Parliament and Linlithgow and Queensferry are each contributory to a parliamentary district. Principal towns—Linlithgow, the county town, Bathgate, Borrowstoness and Coupar Angus. (S. S. W.), 29 872, (1851) 50,150.

LINLITHGOW a royal and free burgh and market in Scotland, cap. above co. 17 m. W. Edinburgh, in a hollow, along the S. bank of a small sheet of water called Linlithgow Loch on the Union Canal, and the Edinburgh and Glasgow Railway. It consists principally of one irregular S. and W. street, about a mile long of various width, expanding at the cross into a large open square, narrowing in other places, and widening at either end. Though modern buildings are gradually changing the aspect of the place the town has still a certain air of antiquity about it, which harmonizes well with its historical associations, and with the decaying grandeur of the ancient palace, a massive quadrangular edifice, beautifully situated on an eminence which advances a little way into the lake, once a favourite residence of the kings and queens of Scotland, now a splendid ruin. The principal buildings are the old parish church of St. Michael the townhouse, with sheriff's court room and jail to these may be added the Cross Wall, an elaborate structure, of a hexagonal figure, adorned with a variety of sculptural and grotesque figures, cleverly executed. The church is of great antiquity and is considered one of the most perfect existing specimens of the early ecclesiastical architecture of Scotland.

There are places of worship for members of the Free and U. I. reformed churches, and Independents; also a burgh and several other schools. Including a charity school for girls and a number of minor charitable and benevolent institutions. The manufacture of boots and shoes, and the tanning and currying of leather are carried on to a considerable extent—the former employing about 800 persons, and the latter about 60 and part of the female population is occupied in needlework for Glasgow houses. In the vicinity are an extensive distillery a large brewery, and several glass-works. It was from a house in the main street of Linlithgow that Regent Murray was shot by Hamilton of Bothwellhaugh. Pop. 4071. Area of par. 11 980 ac. Pop. 6115.

LINLITH (Loom) a large list of the sea, W. coast Scotland co. Argyll, extending from the Sound of Mull N. to Loch Fiddich about 20 m. long by 5 m. average breadth. Its branches are Lochs Creran Elrue and Lavan. It contains the islands of Lismore, Binnagowan Rhana and sundry islets.
LINNICH a to Rhens Prussia, gov. and 17 m. N. N. W. Aix la Chapelle on the Roer, with manufactures of white and common leather and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1427.
LINSELLES, a to France, dep. Nord 6 m. N. Lille. It has a brewery and oil mills. Coal is raised, and much fish grown in the neighbourhood. Pop. 1851.

LINSE (VNH) a vil. Wittenberg circle Schwarzwald Marktung on the Elbe, with a church and a trade in fruit wine, cherry brandy and honey. Pop. 1110.

LINSE (VNH) three par. England—1. Kent, 1806 ac. Pop. 977—2. (Magna) Suffolk 1404 ac. 1 op. 100—3. (Parva) Suffolk 661 ac. Pop. 200.

LINTH a river Switzerland, in the S. of cant. Glarus, flows N. W. E. through the can. and falls into Lake Walenstadt, which is connected with Lake Zürich by a canal of same name. Total course, about 40 m. principal tributaries: the Berni, the Lintach.

LINTHWAITE, a chapelry England co. York (W. Riding) 4 m. S. W. Huddersfield, with a handsome church and chapel for Baptists and Wesleyans. Inhabitants chiefly employed in woollen manufactures. 1 op. 3803.

LINTON an isl. mouth of the Ganton river terminating at the summit, in a high conical peak in lat. 22° 24' 30" N. LINTON six par. England—1. Cambridge 8770 ac. Pop. 2060—2. Devon, 7193 ac. Pop. 1059—3. Hereford 2745 ac. 1 op. 952—4. Kent 1938 ac. Pop. 1081—5. York (W. Riding) 19 149 ac. 1 op. 2221.

LINTON several places, Scotland—1. A vil. co. and 8 m. E. N. E. Haddington, nearly built with a new 16th century tower church, two schools, a library and several friendly societies. P. 775—2. A vil. and par. co. and 10 m. W. Peebles, on the Tyne with antique looking irregularly built houses and handloom weaving. Pop. 660. Area of par., 25 400 ac. P. 1630—3. Par. co. Roxburgh 6500 ac. P. 630.

LINTHWAITE par Scot. Forfar 10 000 ac. P. 966.
LINTHWAITE, a vil. and par. Switzerland can. and 9 m. S. W. Glarus 1 bank Lint with an old Protestant and a new R. Catholic parish church. Pop. 1611.

LINTWOOD a vil. Scot. co. Haddington par. Kilsbarn, 24 m. W. Paisley, with several cotton factories. P. 1136.

LINTWOOD a par. Png. Lincoln 2316 ac. Pop. 132.

LINZ (English Leitz) the cap. of Upper Austria, beautifully situated on bank Danube here crossed by a long wooden bridge, on the railway from Budweis to Gmünd. It consists of the town proper and two suburbs, one of them on the opposite side of the river and is defended by a circle of detached forts, thirty-two in number twenty three on the river and nine on the bank of the Danube communicating with each other by covered ways, and extending over a circuit of 9 m. It is well built, containing several handsome streets, and two squares, one of them large and elegant, and adorned, in its centre by two fountains, surmounted by figures of Jupiter and Neptune between which there has been rather incongruously placed a monumental column to the Holy Trinity erected in remembrance of a visitation of the plague. It also possesses a finely-placed promenade and is both well lighted and well paved. Its principal public edifices and establishments are the cathedral, flanked with two towers; the town church and the Matthias and Capuchin churches, containing the monument of the celebrated General Manteuffel who died here the Landhaus, a large edifice, originally a Fran-shown, convent, and now the place of meeting for the Estates of Upper Austria, the Schloss, on a commanding height facing the Danube, formerly the palace of the Austrian dukes, but now converted into a prison and penitentiary, the townhouse, bishop's palace, seminary gymnasium an Ursuline convent, a lyceum, with library and good collection of philosophical apparatus, a normal high school, a school of design, and various other schools, a museum, a theatre, two libraries, a lunatic asylum and other benevolent institutions. The manufacturers consist chiefly of woollens including broad cloth, carpets, and other stuffs: linen silk, and cotton goods: leather suit, iron, yarn, gold lace, cards, and tobacco and the trade in these articles, formerly important, has become much more extensive in consequence of the steam traffic on the Danube, and the opening of the railway to Gmünd and Badweiss. There are also two important annual fairs, each of which lasts a fortnight. Linz, as the seat of the Government of Upper Austria, has many important public offices is also the see of a bishop, and has several associations for art music, &c. It was originally a Roman station from the 10th to the 12th century it belonged to the House of Habsburg, from which it was purchased by Duke Leopold IV. It has since remained with the House of Austria. The most remarkable event in its modern history is the construction of the great chain of forts described above. The beauty of the environs, its educational institutions, and the superiority of its society make it a favorite place of residence. P (1846) 26,678

LINZ.—From Leopold, Archduke von Oesterreich

LINZ, a tn. Rhinisch Prussia, gov and 17 m N W Coblenz, r bank Rhine. It is an ancient fortified town partly surrounded by walls of basalt has a court of law and several public offices a parish church, with various monasteries, a castle, and a progymnasium; potash and vitriol works, some shipping, and a trade in wine, potash, fullers earth, iron, copper and lead. Pop. 2510

LION (anc. Gallione Saroni) a gulf of the Mediterranean, which washes the shores of the French dep Var Bonaparte Rhône, Gard, Hérault, Aude, and Pyrénées-Orientales and the N.E. of the Spanish kingdom of Catalonia, stretching across from the Isles of Hyères to Cape Cruz, for about 170 m., with a breadth of about 90 m. The largest rivers which empty themselves into the gulf are the Tat, Aude, Hérault, and Rhodan; and the principal ports situated on it are Marseilles, Toulon, and Cetta. The name of the gulf is said to be derived from the fury with which the waves are often lashed by the violence of the winds, and not, as is sometimes supposed, from the French city of Lyons.

LION D'AUVERGNE, a tn. France, dep. Maine-et-Loire, 14 m. N.W. Angers; with oil-works, and a trade in wine, cider, cattle, and mercury. Pop. 1569

LIPARI ISLES (anc. Æolus or Vulcania Insulæ), an isl. group, Tyrrhenian Sea, Lipari, the central and most important of which, is about 21 m. N. Sicily. They are 17 in number, all volcanic, but only seven are important, namely, Stromboli and Pæstris, in the N.E. Volcano, in the S. 1. Aliprandi or Aliprandi, and Filicudi or Filicudi in the W.; and the largest of all, Lipari, and Salina, near the centre. Several of them have volcanoes occasionally active, while that of Stromboli is the only volcano of Europe in constant activity. They all rise abruptly on their W. side to a considerable height, and slope gradually away towards the E. They are much subject to earthquakes but the air is pure, the climate healthy, and the soil both remarkably fertile and well cultivated. Corn, oil, silk, and many excellent fruits, including figs, are produced, but the principal object of culture is the vine, the produce of which is partly made into wine partly dried, and largely exported. Pop. about 22,000.

LIPARI.—1 The principal island of above group, about 21 m. N. Sicily, and 35 m. N.W. Messina, length N to S, 7 m.; breadth 6 m. lat. 38° 29' 15" N. lon. 14° 56' 15" E. (n.) Its E. side is deeply indented but its coast in other directions is little broken. The interior is mountainous, composed entirely of volcanic matter, particularly pumice-stones this island forming the great magazine from which Europe derives its supplies. Other mineral products are sulphur, saltpetre, and smelt. Some maize, cotton, almonds, oranges, and olives are grown, but the far largest space is devoted to the vine, from the produce of some of which an esteemed wine, called Malvasia, is made while the greater part is dried, by being placed, when ripe, in lay of ashes, and afterwards exposed to the sun. Lipari was anciently celebrated for its hot springs and baths, and many remains of antiquity show the importance attached to them. Only one hot spring now exists. Pop. 15,000.—2 A tn. E. coast above isl. on a steep acclivity, and tolerably well built. Many of the streets, however, are narrow and by no means well cleaned. The most conspicuous object is the castle, built by Charles V. which crowns a vast volcanic mass overhanging the town and contains several public edifices within its enclosure, the principal of which is the cathedral. Lipari likewise possesses a college, episcopal palace several convents, and an hospital. The bay, immediately beneath the town is about 2 m. in extent and has good anchorage but the shelter from want of a mole, is very insecure. A considerable trade, however is carried on in the different products of the island. Lipari is the capital of the whole group, and the see of a bishop. Pop. 12,500

LIPAÜ, LIPPAT or LIPAW a market tn. Astrak, Moravia, circle and about 12 m. from Hradec on the Wladawa; with a church, and three mills. Pop. 1059

LIPSCHE, several places, Hungary.—1 (Wenisch or Deutsch Lipschitz) A market tn. Hither Danube, co. Lipitz, 21 m. N.W. Bressan, originally founded by German colonists. It has two churches, a high school numerous tan houses, and mines of iron and antimony. Pop. 2216.—2 (for Lippitz) A vil. co. Marasch, on the Nagy Ag, 81 m. N.W. Balghat, with a church, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1042

LIPES, or LIPES, a tn. Bolivia, dep. and 163 m. S.W. Potosi cap. prov., formerly a large, rich town now much reduced.—THE MOUNTAINS, bounded N.W. by Para, and S by La Plata, is mountainous and cold. Vicuña, alpaca, llama, deer, and chinchilla abound blue, copper, rock-salt, and sulphur also amethysts and other precious stones are found. To the N.E. and partly included in Lipos, is an immense plain, covered with salt, 120 m. long, by 45 m. broad.

LIPETZK, a tn. Russia, gov and 86 m. W.S.W. Tambov on the Voronej. It has three churches, and once had black-fur-trade. A mineral spring in the neighbourhood, over which a building was first erected by Peter the Great, is much frequented. Pop. (1851) 9281

LIPNICEA, several places, Hungary.—1 (Alcs). A vil. Hither Danube, co. Arva, 28 m. N.E. Alcs-Kutin, with a church, manufactory of woollen and linen cloth, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 3403.—2 (Fels). A vil. near the former, with a considerable trade in cattle and in shoes. Pop. 1514.

LIPNIK, or Lipnik, a vil Hungary, Hither Thems, 86 m. from Lentschen; with a Greek church, manufactures of linen, and a mill Pop. 1493

LIPPITZ (Gneiss) a market in Bohemia, circle and 24 m. S. Gera, with a church, chapel, and castle, manufactures of linen and hosiery, and a mill Pop. 1855

LIPPE LE, or Lippewitz, a ta. Hesse, gov and 104 m. S.W. Kiew on the Rhine Pop. (1848) 5595

LIPPA —, (or Lipova), A market in Hungary, Banat, co. and 80 m. N.E. Temesvár esp. dist. L. bank Maros it was once walled flanked with four bastions, and defended by a strong castle. Only the castle now remains habitable, but the town, though much decayed, is still of some importance. It has two churches, manufactures of liqueurs, and a trade in maize, cattle, wax, and honey, excellent pottery clay quarries of paving and building stone. Pop. 7897.—3 A vil. and par. Illyria, Istria, 23 m. S.E. Trieste, esp. dist., with a church Pop. par. 6006, dist. 18 000

LIPPE, a river, Germany, which rises in the Teutoburger Wald about 8 m. N.E. Lippelinge, Lippe-Deimold flows W. S.W. enters Rhine, Prussia, passing Lippstadt, Hamm, Lünen, and Dortmund and joins the bank Rhine, at Wesel, after a course of nearly 120 m., affluents, on the r. the Glans and the Stever and, on the l., the Sauer and the Aase

LIPPE-DEIMOLD (Duchy of), a principality Germany forming the 83d state of the Germanic Confederation and bounded N., N.W., W., and S. by Rhineish Prussia, and E. by Hesse, Lippe-Detmold, and Hesse-Cassel, area, 568 sq. m. Detmold, the capital, in lat. 51° 56' N. lon. 8° 59' E. It lies on the Teutoburger Wald and is covered almost throughout by mountains and hills, which divide it into three small basins one to the N. belonging to the Weser which drains it by the Werra, Bode, and Exter, an other belonging to the Ems, and the third belonging to the Rhine, which receives its waters by the Lippe. In the S.W., where both the Lippe and Ems rise there are several lakes. The climate is mild, but humid, and hence mists are frequent. Some parts of the surface are waste, or fit only for pasture, on which considerable numbers of cattle are reared, but others are fertile, producing much corn, rape, hemp, and flax. The mountains are generally well wooded. The principal metal is iron and there are good quarries of limestone and gypsum and some valuable mines of silver. Weaving is the chief branch of industry, though there are also glass-works, several paper and numerous saw mills. The principal exports are wood, thread, linen and wool. For administrative purposes, it is divided into 18 bailiwicks, of which Detmold is the capital. The other chief towns are Lemgo and Horn, formerly it likewise possessed a portion of Lippstadt, but by treaty of May 1865, this was given to Prussia, for a yearly rent of 9000 thalers (£1350). Since 1838, the government has been constitutional, the diet meeting once in two years contingent to the federal army 781 men. A very large majority of the inhabitants are Protestants of the Reformed or Calvinistic church Pop. (1849) 104,674

LIPPE-SCHAUBURG, Schaumburg-Lippe, or Lippe-Bückeburg (Duchy of) a principality Germany forming the 83d state of the Germanic Confederation, and consisting of two portions, a N. and a S. the former bounded N. and N.E. by Hesse, and S.E. by Hesse-Cassel, and E.W. and W. by Rhineish Prussia; and the latter situated between Lippe-Deimold, Prussia, and Hesse; area, 156 sq. m. Bielefeld, the capital, is in lat. 52° 15' N. lon. 9° 1' E. The surface is partly covered by the Bielefeld, but is generally flat. In the W. is the large forest of Schaumburger Wald it belongs wholly to the basin of the Weser which drains it by a number of small streams, of which only the Aue and Aul deserve mention. The climate is mild and salubrious, and the soil so fertile as to leave a surplus of corn for exportation. The other principal crops are rape, flax, and potatoes. Large numbers of cattle, sheep, and swine are reared. The principal mineral is coal of which there are said to be rich seams in the Bielefeld (Bielefeld hills). The manufacturing industry is confined almost entirely to weaving. The chief exports are corn, wood, wool, coal, thread, and linen. It is divided into four bailiwicks. Chief towns Bielefeld, the capital, Hagenburg, and Bückeburg. Government, constitutional monarchy, contingent to the federal army, 360 men. Pop. (1848), 58,387

LIPPEHNE, a ta. Prussia, Brandenburg, gov and 47 m. N.N.E. Frankfurt, on the lakes of Mahel and Wendal; with a church, manufactures of linen and woollen cloth and leather, and a trade in corn. Pop. 3788

LIPPEPRINGE a ta. Rhineish Prussia, gov and 85 m. S. Minden, near the source of the Lippe with a church a postoffice, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1531

LIPPTADT, a ta. Rhineish Prussia, gov and 24 m. N.N.E. Arnheim, esp. circle, 1 bank Lippe. It is walled, has five gates a court of law and several public offices six churches, a courthouse, an ordinary and an orphan hospital; manufactures of leather, vinegar, and starch; and a trade in corn and linen. Prior to May 1850, a portion belonged to Lippe-Deimold Pop. 4535.—The canal is generally flat, has good arable land and iron-mines and rears a great many cattle. Area, 146 sq. m. Pop. 31,514.

LIPSEK, two towns, Russia.—1. Russian Poland, r. bank Rober 22 m. W. Grodno. Pop. 953.—2. Gov Grodno, 43 m. S.E. Bialina. Pop. 1000

LIPSO one of the E. isles Greek Archipelago, about 10 m. S.E. Patmos, lat. (S.W. point) 37° 16' 15" N., lon. 26° 44' 15" E. It is surrounded by a number of small islands, covering an extent of more than 6 m. N. to S., and 5 m. E. to W. On the W. side of the island there is a well-sheltered harbour called Port Sokoro

LIPTAU a co. Hungary, forming the upper part of the valley of the Waag, bounded E. by Galizia and co. Arva, E. by Leutschau, S. by Güssing, and W. by Thurau, area, 890 sq. m., capital, Bistritz. Its soil is of medium fertility, yielding oats, barley and potatoes; cattle are reared and good butter and cheese made, and mines of copper and iron are wrought, but the principal wealth of the county lies in its forests, which cover above half its surface Pop. 79,753.

LIPTHAL, or Lipthal, a vil Austria, Moravia, circle and 4 of Hradisch with two churches, a castle, and three mills. Pop. 1470 LIPTOOD a vil Hungary, Thither Danube, co. Baranya, is a hill district, 4 m. from Mohacs with a church, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1819.

LIRIA (anc. Edicta or Lasterne) a ta. Spain, prov and 17 m. N.W. by W. Valencia, L. bank Guadalequiv. It is tolerably well built, has a principal and five smaller squares, two churches, one of which is a handsome modern structure a chapel town and seamen houses, a prison, hospital four schools, a storehouse, and manufactures of linen, soap, leather, earthenware, and brandy wine, &c. On the summit of a hill in the vicinity, which bears its name, is the royal mosaic establishment of San Miguel, an extensive and venerable pile, with a handsome and richly-decorated church Pop. 8574

LISBON (Portuguese, Lisboa, French, Lisbonne, Latin and Italian, Lisbona, German, Lisbon) the cap. and principal seaport of Portugal, r. bank Tagus about 9 m. above its mouth lat. (marine observatory) 38° 42' 24" N., lon. 9° 8' 12" W. (N.). It is built on a succession of hills, rising more or less abruptly from the quays in the form of an amphitheatre, and exhibits an extensive assemblage of churches, convents, and houses of dwelling white-wash, which have an imposing effect when viewed from the river. Being an open town, it is not easy to define its limits, or to distinguish between city and suburbs, but from the screen of Alameda, which is generally regarded as its W. boundary, to the termination of the continuous buildings on the E., the length, is a straight line, is about 2½ m., while the breadth, from S. to N., or from the Tagus inland, is from 1 to 1½ m., area, about 3000 a. The whole of this space, however is not densely covered with buildings, considerable portions of it being occupied by gardens, ruins, and the naked declivities of the hills. The favourable impression which a distant view of the city is fitted to produce, is destroyed by a nearer survey. The general appearance of the city is steep, narrow, crooked, wretchedly paved, and disagreeably filthy and the houses, with exception of a neat and substantial building here and there, are old-fashioned and mean. That part of the town, however, which has been rebuilt since the great earthquake in 1755, and which lies on even ground, in the valley between the Castle-hill, on the E., and the hills of San Francisco and Do Carmo, on the W., consists of several parallel streets, crossed by others at right angles, and is regular wall built, and kept at least decently clean. Of these, Gold, Silver, and Cloth Streets extend about 3 m. E. to R., having, at their S. extremity, the Praça do Commercio, a large and handsome square, surrounded on three sides by the naval arsenal, the exchange, custom-house, India-house, and other public buildings, and having the Tagus on the S. with an equestrian statue of Joseph I., in bronze in the centre. At the N. extremity of these streets are the Praça da Figueira, a square of a remarkably picturesque appearance, used as a public market and a handsome square, called the Rocío containing a magnificent national theatre, recently erected on the site of the former Reguilion. The only other open spaces and squares worthy of particular notice are the Pátio do Publico, or promenade, which, although small, is elegantly laid out the fine shady avenue called the Salitre. Praça das Américas, containing a large reservoir for supplying the different fountains of the city with water, and Praça de Augusta, in which a sort of rag

1. Cathedral, or Se of St. George
2. Praça do Commercio (Royal Exchange)
3. Custom-house
4. India-house
5. Praça da Figueira
6. Praça das Américas
7. Praça de Augusta
8. Se of St. George
9. Se of St. Vincent
10. Se of St. Peter
11. Se of St. James
12. Se of St. Anthony
13. Se of St. Francis
14. Se of St. Martin
15. Se of St. John
16. Se of St. Peter
17. Se of St. James
18. Se of St. Anthony
19. Se of St. Francis
20. Se of St. Martin
21. Se of St. John
22. Se of St. Peter
23. Se of St. James
24. Se of St. Anthony
25. Se of St. Francis
26. Se of St. Martin
27. Se of St. John
28. Se of St. Peter
29. Se of St. James
30. Se of St. Anthony
31. Se of St. Francis
32. Se of St. Martin
33. Se of St. John
34. Se of St. Peter
35. Se of St. James
36. Se of St. Anthony
37. Se of St. Francis
38. Se of St. Martin
39. Se of St. John
40. Se of St. Peter
41. Se of St. James
42. Se of St. Anthony
43. Se of St. Francis
44. Se of St. Martin
45. Se of St. John
46. Se of St. Peter
47. Se of St. James
48. Se of St. Anthony
49. Se of St. Francis
50. Se of St. Martin
51. Se of St. John
52. Se of St. Peter
53. Se of St. James
54. Se of St. Anthony
55. Se of St. Francis
56. Se of St. Martin
57. Se of St. John
58. Se of St. Peter
59. Se of St. James
60. Se of St. Anthony
61. Se of St. Francis
62. Se of St. Martin
63. Se of St. John
64. Se of St. Peter
65. Se of St. James
66. Se of St. Anthony
67. Se of St. Francis
68. Se of St. Martin
69. Se of St. John
70. Se of St. Peter
71. Se of St. James
72. Se of St. Anthony
73. Se of St. Francis
74. Se of St. Martin
75. Se of St. John
76. Se of St. Peter
77. Se of St. James
78. Se of St. Anthony
79. Se of St. Francis
80. Se of St. Martin
81. Se of St. John
82. Se of St. Peter
83. Se of St. James
84. Se of St. Anthony
85. Se of St. Francis
86. Se of St. Martin
87. Se of St. John
88. Se of St. Peter
89. Se of St. James
90. Se of St. Anthony
91. Se of St. Francis
92. Se of St. Martin
93. Se of St. John
94. Se of St. Peter
95. Se of St. James
96. Se of St. Anthony
97. Se of St. Francis
98. Se of St. Martin
99. Se of St. John
100. Se of St. Peter

1. Cathedral, or Se of St. George
2. Praça do Commercio (Royal Exchange)
3. Custom-house
4. India-house
5. Praça da Figueira
6. Praça das Américas
7. Praça de Augusta
8. Se of St. George
9. Se of St. Vincent
10. Se of St. Peter
11. Se of St. James
12. Se of St. Anthony
13. Se of St. Francis
14. Se of St. Martin
15. Se of St. John
16. Se of St. Peter
17. Se of St. James
18. Se of St. Anthony
19. Se of St. Francis
20. Se of St. Martin
21. Se of St. John
22. Se of St. Peter
23. Se of St. James
24. Se of St. Anthony
25. Se of St. Francis
26. Se of St. Martin
27. Se of St. John
28. Se of St. Peter
29. Se of St. James
30. Se of St. Anthony
31. Se of St. Francis
32. Se of St. Martin
33. Se of St. John
34. Se of St. Peter
35. Se of St. James
36. Se of St. Anthony
37. Se of St. Francis
38. Se of St. Martin
39. Se of St. John
40. Se of St. Peter
41. Se of St. James
42. Se of St. Anthony
43. Se of St. Francis
44. Se of St. Martin
45. Se of St. John
46. Se of St. Peter
47. Se of St. James
48. Se of St. Anthony
49. Se of St. Francis
50. Se of St. Martin
51. Se of St. John
52. Se of St. Peter
53. Se of St. James
54. Se of St. Anthony
55. Se of St. Francis
56. Se of St. Martin
57. Se of St. John
58. Se of St. Peter
59. Se of St. James
60. Se of St. Anthony
61. Se of St. Francis
62. Se of St. Martin
63. Se of St. John
64. Se of St. Peter
65. Se of St. James
66. Se of St. Anthony
67. Se of St. Francis
68. Se of St. Martin
69. Se of St. John
70. Se of St. Peter
71. Se of St. James
72. Se of St. Anthony
73. Se of St. Francis
74. Se of St. Martin
75. Se of St. John
76. Se of St. Peter
77. Se of St. James
78. Se of St. Anthony
79. Se of St. Francis
80. Se of St. Martin
81. Se of St. John
82. Se of St. Peter
83. Se of St. James
84. Se of St. Anthony
85. Se of St. Francis
86. Se of St. Martin
87. Se of St. John
88. Se of St. Peter
89. Se of St. James
90. Se of St. Anthony
91. Se of St. Francis
92. Se of St. Martin
93. Se of St. John
94. Se of St. Peter
95. Se of St. James
96. Se of St. Anthony
97. Se of St. Francis
98. Se of St. Martin
99. Se of St. John
100. Se of St. Peter

rounding on three sides by the naval arsenal, the exchange, custom-house, India-house, and other public buildings, and having the Tagus on the S. with an equestrian statue of Joseph I., in bronze in the centre. At the N. extremity of these streets are the Praça da Figueira, a square of a remarkably picturesque appearance, used as a public market and a handsome square, called the Rocío containing a magnificent national theatre, recently erected on the site of the former Reguilion. The only other open spaces and squares worthy of particular notice are the Pátio do Publico, or promenade, which, although small, is elegantly laid out the fine shady avenue called the Salitre. Praça das Américas, containing a large reservoir for supplying the different fountains of the city with water, and Praça de Augusta, in which a sort of rag consisting of the Italian open-house the new national theatre, and an erection for the exhibition of ball-figures but as the people are all R. Catholics, the numerous saints days, and other festivals of the church, afford them ample opportunities for dissipating their time.

The population of Lisbon is very mixed, containing natives from every province of Portugal, numerous negroes, mulattoes, and Galleys or natives of Guinea, who perform the greater part of the heavy laborious work, and are water-carriers and household servants, noted for their honesty and fidelity. The lower classes are remarkably filthy and indolent but frequent intercourse with foreigners has rendered them not so intolerant to strangers, as the inhabitants of many R. Catholic countries are. After the general filth of the place, LISBON with SEVEN - After Louis Labrousse.

No capital, and indeed very few cities of Europe, are so deficient in ornamental architecture as Lisbon. Excepting the castle of St. George, remarkable for the beauty of its situation, the only other noteworthy buildings, besides those already adverted to are churches and convents. The principal of the former are the cathedral or patriarchal church, on the slope of the Castle-hill, on the E.; the church do Coração de Jesus, on the hill of Estrela, on the W. surrounded by a splendid dome, the church of the Martyrs, erected on the spot where Alphonsus I. mounted the walls of the city, and removed it from the Moors; the handsome church of Santa Engracia, and the church of San Roque. Besides these, there are numbers of other churches, many of which in which, however improvements have, in recent times, been made, the greatest nuisances in Lisbon are herds of impudent beggars, and troops of unwashed dogs; the latter, by their howling during the night, rendering sleep impossible. The climate is variable, but genial and healthy, for although, in summer, the thermometer often reaches 96° F., the ex-live boat is rendered tolerable by refreshing breezes from the N.W. Snow is of very rare occurrence, but a good deal of rain falls in November and December. January is generally dry and sharp and in February spring commences.

Lisbon is admirably situated for commerce. The harbour, or rather the roadstead, is one of the finest in the world, and the quays, which extend between 2 and 3 m. along the bank of the river are elegant and commodious. The entrance of the Tagus is guarded by Fort St. Julian on the N. with a height of 120 ft. above sea-level and Fort Begin having a height of 65 ft. high, stands near the S. bank. Farther up the river, and forming a W. suburb to Lisbon, a short distance beyond the Alameda stands the town of Belém, with its wall known Tower, one of the defences of the harbour. There are two channels by which the river may be entered, one on the S. with a minimum depth on the bar of 6 fathoms, and another, on the N. with a minimum depth of 4 fathoms. Within the roadstead the water is about 30 fathoms in mid-channel, but gradually shoals towards the edge. The commerce of Lisbon, which was formerly very extensive, has greatly fallen off since the separation of Brazil from the crown of Portugal. The exports consist chiefly of wine, oil, fruit, and salt and the principal imports are hemp, fax, corn, silk, linen, cotton, and woollen cloths, iron, steel hardware, dried fish, ale, porter and coals. In 1848, the total exports amounted to £298,840, and the imports to £44,760. In 1861-2 the exports were £900,197, and the imports £2,561,519. The domestic manufactures are silk, paper, and soap, all of very bad quality there are also sugar refineries and potteries. The goldsmiths and jewellers are highly esteemed, but in most of the mechanical trades the workmen are very deficient.

Lisbon was anciently called Olisipo some say on account of its foundation being ascribed to Ulysses. Felicitas Julia was its name under the Romans. It was captured by the Moors in 711 and remained in their possession till 1146. In 1755, it was visited by an earthquake, which threw down a considerable portion of the city and destroyed about 90,000 of its inhabitants. It was taken by the French in 1807 but resisted an attack by Massena in 1809. Pop. about 260,000.

LISBUNNY par. Irel. Tipperary, 4293 ac. P. 778. LISBURN a par. bor. and market tn. Ireland co. Antrim and Down, 8 m. S.W. Belfast, on the railway to Armagh. It is in general well built, and has altogether a clean and thriving appearance. It has a market-house, courthouse, and a parish church which is also the cathedral church of the united dioceses of Down, Connor, and Dromore, &c., a handsome structure, with a tower and spire, and contains a monument to Jeremy Taylor, who died here in 1697. There are also a new R. Catholic chapel, meeting-houses for Presbyterians, Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists, and the Society of Friends and a Salem chapel, several well-conducted schools, a county infirmary fever hospital, and the union workhouse. Flax-spinning and weaving and the manufacture of thread and twines, employ the greater number of the inhabitants and there are also extensive blacksmiths in the neighbourhood, together with some powerful corn-mills. LISBURN first rose to importance by the seizure here of a vessel by Lord Denbigh about 1807. The finer branches of the linen manufacture to which the town chiefly owes its prosperity, were introduced, after the Revolution, by French Huguenot refugees. Part of the town and the castle were burned down in 1707. The latter has never been rebuilt but its grounds, finely laid out and kept in order by the Marquis of Hartford, afford pleasant walks for the inhabitants. LISBURN returns a member to Parliament. Reg. elec. (1854) 138. It gives the titles of earl and viscount to the family of Vanehan. P. (1841) 6284. (1851) 6692.

LISCLANOR, a vil. Ireland co. Clare, 4 m. W. Ennis, on the N. shore of bay of same name. It has a R. Catholic chapel, a school, and the ruins of an ancient castle. Lobsters, turbot, and other fish, are taken in the bay. LISCLANOR is a coast-guard and a constabulary police station. P. 439. LISCLAND, a township, England, co. Chester 8 m. N. by W. Richehead, at the mouth of the Mersey. It contains a handsome church, Primitive Methodist and R. Catholic chapels; and numerous elegant villas, occupied by families from Liverpool. Pop. 4100.

LISCLANOLLA, a par. Irel. Cork; 4926 ac. P. 1522. LISCLARTAN, par. Irel. Mon. 1204 ac. Pop. 762.

LISCHAU, or Lamsow a market tn., Bohemia, circle and 9 m. S.W. Budweis; with a church, school, townhouse, hospital, and three mills. Pop. 2283.

LISCHNITZ, or Lamsitz, a vil. Bohemia, circle and about 20 m. from Kologratz, in a valley on the W. side Adler at the foot of the forest and mountain of Nepeski. It has a school and two mills. Pop. 1139.

LISCIA, a tn. Naples, prov. Abruzzo-China, 12 m. S.W. II Vasto. Pop. 1289.

LISCLEARY par. Irel. Cork 4205 ac. Pop. 1040.

LISCOLMAN par. Irel. Wexford, 2468 ac. Pop. 497. LISGENAN or GRANGE par. Irel. Waterford; 5710 ac. Pop. 1633.

LISGOLD, par. Irel. Cork 3154 ac. Pop. 693.

LISIAKA, a tn. Russia, gov. and 80 m. S. Kiev on the Zailgy. It has mineral springs, over which a bathing establishment has been erected. Pop. 2500.

LISIAISKY a small low coral pt. Pacific Ocean, lat. 28° 3' N. lon. 173° 42' W. (a) about 6 m. in circumference. It is overgrown with grass and creeping plants, and full of holes but has neither trees, shrubs, nor water.

LISLEUX [anc. Noviomagus or Lovenium] a tn. France, dep. Calvados, on the Tongues, 97 m. S.E. Caen. It is beautifully situated between two gorges, forming the entrance into a rich and fertile valley, and is surrounded by villas and gardens; but is ill built. The houses, though lofty are of wood, and are generally decayed, gloomy look. While the streets are mostly narrow and winding. It has a cathedral, a fine Gothic edifice of the 13th century, situated in the corner of an extensive square, and containing a curious sepulchral monument, erected by Pierre Cauchon, one of the bishops of Lisieux, who had disgraced himself by the share he took in the execution of Jeanne d'Arc an episcopal palace, a handsome structure and a theatre. The manufactures are intinals, broad-cloth, flannel, raiment, hair-cloth, ribbons, and weaving combs. There are also woad and cotton, paper and falling mills, blacksmiths, fire-works and tanneries, and a trade in corn, fruit, orange lemons, fax, cattle, &c. Lisieux is the seat of courts of first resort and commerce a consulting chamber of manufactures, a small seminary and a communal college. It was taken and almost completely destroyed in the 4th century by the Saxons, who employed the materials of the old in founding a new town. Four centuries after, it was taken and pillaged by the Normans, who afterwards kept possession. In 1180, during an invasion of the Britons, it was almost burned down. It was subsequently taken by Philip Augustus in 1208 by the English in 1415 by Charles VII of France in 1448, by the League in 1571 and lastly by Henri Quatre in 1588. During these events Lisieux was a place of strength, and an episcopal town, whose bishop took the title of prince, and combined the temporal with the spiritual power. Pop. 11,345.

LISKEARD a par. bor. market tn. and par. England, co. Cornwall. The town, 16 m. N.W. Plymouth stands principally on steep hills has a handsome market-house, townhall, small prison a church, several dissenting places of worship, a Friends meeting-house, a classical and commercial and a British and foreign school. Wareing is carried on extensively and trade is facilitated by the canal to Looe. It returns a member to Parliament. Registered electors (1851) 324. Pop. (1861), 6123. Area of par. 5129 ac. Pop. (1841) 4287.

LISKEEVY par. Irel. Galway 7207 ac. Pop. 1711.

LISKINPERE par. Irel. Wexford 5381 ac. P. 942. LISKO, a tn. Austria, Galicia, 80 m. W.S.W. Lemberg, bank R. It is well built; has two large squares and excellent water-works, a considerable trade with Hungary and important cotton-mills. The district is covered into one large swampy by inundations.

LISKOWA a vil. Russia gov. and 43 m. S.E. Nijel-Novgorod, on the Volga, over which there is a ferry to Mahara. It contains six churches and a castle and has a large annual fair chiefly for horses and cattle. Pop. 4000.

LISLE.—1 A tn. France. See LISLLE.—2, A tn. France, dep. Dordogne, 12 m. N.W. Périgueux, 1 bank Drona. It has five annual fairs and near it are the remarkable and picturesque ruins of the old castle of Marais. Pop. 1790.

LISLEE, par. Irel. Cork; 6209 ac. Pop. 4453.

LISMAKERRY par. Irel. Limerick; 5922 ac. P. 566.

LITHMALIN, par Incl. Tipperary 4343 sq. P. 1105.
LITHMATEIGE, par Incl. Kilkenny 1844 sq. P. 406.
LITHMORE, a market tn., par. and seat of a diocese Ireland, co. Cork and Waterford. The town is romantically situated on the summit of an eminence, rising from the bank of the Blackwater, which is here crossed by a fine stone bridge, 53 m. W. S. W. Waterford. It has a castle, supposed to have been erected by King John, and now possessed by the Duke of Devonshire, an imposing structure, in the feudal style, and, from its commanding position, on the verge of a rock overlooking the Blackwater, having a stately and picturesque appearance, a cathedral, now used as the parish church, an ancient edifice, in the mixed Norman and Gothic style, a large and handsome R. Catholic chapel, a Presbyterian meeting-house, and a Convent of the Presentation; numerous public and private schools, a museum, court and jail, a fire engine building, a police barracks, a hospital, and dispensary. There are no manufactures, and there is very little trade; but it has a valuable salmon-fishery on the Blackwater. Pop. 2319. Area of united par. of Lismore and Moonlop, 646 111 ac. The poet Congreve, and the philosopher Boyle, were natives. Pop. 18,992. (Local Correspondent.)

LISMOORE—1 An Isl. Loughlin, 8 m. off W coast Argyle, at the entrance of Loch Linnhe, 8 m. N. W. Oban greatest length, N. E. to S. W. 10 m. average breadth, about 14 m., area, 16 sq. or 9000 ac. It forms a long and narrow belt, of a somewhat oval form and has an uneven surface, pierced in many places by abrupt rocks. These, however, as well as almost all the strata, are calcareous, and the soil formed by their decomposition has the double advantage of being both of considerable depth and great natural fertility. The greater part of the island is under regular culture, yielding excellent crops of grain. Where too rocky for cultivation, if any vegetable matter exists it is covered with a thick green sward. Timber is deficient; but small clumps, consisting chiefly of spruce, birch and ash, are seen in different quarters and give a pleasing diversity to the scenery. Among the domestic animals is a good breed of gray and dappled horses, and a considerable traffic is carried on in pigs, eggs, and poultry. The herring-fishery also employs a good many of the inhabitants, and salmon are occasionally taken. A considerable quantity of limestone is exported. The low elevation of Lismore makes its own scenery tame, but where one first views it obtained of the magnificent scenery of the W. Highlands. In ancient times, Lismore was the residence of the bishops of Argyle and the Isles, who were hence frequently styled Episcopos Lismorensis and the remains of their castle are still seen. It is not long since a R. Catholic college for the education of priests existed here, under the superintendence of a bishop. Pop. 1898—3, (incl. Agass.) Par. Scot. Argyle, 367 760 sq. P. 4097.

LITHMULLIN, par Incl. Meath, 989 ac. P. 519.
LITHMULLIN, par Incl. Armagh 18,567 ac. P. 7799.
LITHMULLIN, par Incl. Waterford, 2634 ac. P. 574.
LITHMULLIN, a market in Ireland, co. Fermanagh, 10 m. S. E. Enniskillen, with a market-house, workhouse, hospital, and Methodist and R. Catholic churches. Pop. 889.
LITITZ, or BLANKOWITZ, a market in Moravia, circle and 16 m. N. W. Znaïm, with a church and two mills. P. 1549.
LITRONAGH, par Incl. Tipperary, 9046 ac. P. 707.
LITSEA (Shumou, 75, Lais, Lais), an Isl. Austria, in the Adriatic, off the coast of Dubrovnik, circle and 85 m. S. W. Spalato, and 77 m. W. the mt. of Lovina; length, E. to W., 10 m., breadth, 5 m. The coast generally presents bold, steep cliffs, and is accessible only at a few bays—several of which afford good shelter, as that of St. George's or Lissa, Masega, Chiara, and Croker. The interior is almost completely covered by lofty hills, unimpaired in Mount Hana, to the north, above 1800 ft. high. Lissa yields oil and wine of excellent quality. It was first peopled by a Greek colony from Lesbos. From 1810 to 1816, it was held by the British, who built some fortifications, and defeated all the attempts of the French to dislodge them. It then became an important depot for British goods, which, notwithstanding Napoleon's blockade found a ready market on the mainland. Pop. 4600.
 The town of Lissa or San Giorgio on a bay, S. E. side of the island, is built picturesquely in the form of an amphitheatre. Its fisheries yield annually large quantities of carps. Pop. 3600.

LITSEA—1, (Or Lomso), a tn. Prussia, prov. and 42 m. S. E. W. Posen. It is indifferently built, for the most part of wood; but has a modern castle, a R. Catholic and three Protestant churches; a synagogue, gymnasium, Jewish educational institute; manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, harness, tobacco, sherry, and waggons; a tannery, a bell-foundry, some general and transit trade, and four annual fairs. Pop. (1846), 9631.—2 (Nes and Adz) two nearly contiguous places, Bohemia, circle and 16 m. S. W. Banales, 21 m. S. E. E. Prague. Near Lissa is agreeably situated among gardens and has two churches, a distillery, and a mill. Pop. of lordship, 6840.

LISSAN, par Incl. Derry and Tyrone; 24 684 ac. P. 5912.
LISSE, a vil. Holland prov. H. Holland, 16 m. S. W. Amsterdam, with a church and school. Dairy farming and gardening are the chief occupations, the easy access to Leyden, Haarlem, and Amsterdam affording a ready market for the produce. Pop. 1544.

LISSEITON, par Incl. Kerry 6683 ac. Pop. 1740.
LISSEWAGH, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. W. Flanders, 6 m. N. Bruges with a brewery, a flour-mill, and a trade in com. Pop. 1456.

LISSEINGTON, par Incl. Lincoln, 1626 ac. P. 224.
LISSEITZ, a tn. Austria Moravia circle and 20 m. N. Brunn, with a church, a castle, and two mills. Coal is worked, some general and transit trade, of various colors, are found in the vicinity. Pop. 1370.

LISSONE, a vil. and com. Italy, Lombardy prov. and N. from Milan in a fertile district, almost completely covered with vineyards and mulberry plantations. It has a church and though now decayed, was once a place of considerable importance. Pop. 2827.

LISSEAUUFFY, par Incl. Monmouth, 11,010 ac. P. 2977.
LISTERLIN, par Incl. Kilkenny, 6433 ac. P. 1081.
LISTON, par Incl. Eng. Essex 531 ac. P. 79.
LISTOWEL, a tn. and par. Ireland co. Kerry. The town 15 m. N. E. Tralee, is pleasantly situated on gently sloping ground, on bank Fale, here crossed by a handsome bridge. It is neatly built and well kept, has a spacious square, a handsome, well-kept parish church, a R. Catholic chapel, several schools, and a dispensary. The castle, some portions of which still remain in a tolerable state of preservation, was the last fortress held by the Lord of Kerry against Queen Elizabeth. Listowel gives its name to an earl. Pop. 5913. Area of par. 8293 ac. P. 5919.

LISZANZ, par Incl. Glamorgan 1338 ac. P. 218.
LISZANZ, a vil. Hungary Hither Danube, co. and 23 m. N. N. E. Temesvár, with a church and stone quarries. P. 2522.
LISZKA-OLANZ, a market in Hungary, co. and 22 m. S. W. Komárom, on bank Bodrog, with two churches, a synagogue, a fishery and a trade in Tokay wine. Pop. 2556.

LISZKOFALVA, or LISZKOTA, a vil. Hungary, co. Lipitz, on bank Wang in a densely wooded district 2 m. from Rosenberg, with a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1423.

LITAKOU, a tn. S. Africa. See LITTAKOU.

LITANI, river Palestine, co. the LEBANON.

LITCHEM, a par. Eng. Hertford 1289 ac. P. 865.

LITCHEBOROUGH, par. Eng. Northampton 1704 ac. P. 418.

LITCHEFIELD, par. Eng. Hants 1806 ac. P. 112.

LITH, a vil. Holland, prov. N. Brabant, 9 m. N. E. Herengracht, on the Maas, here crossed by a bridge. It is a very old place, has a church and school and has often suffered from the overflows of the Maas. Pop. (agricultural) 1279.

LITHADA, a cape, Greece, forming the N. W. extremity of the island of Negropont, and the N. W. entrance of the Gulf of Tiberias. In front of it is a cluster of rocks, and inland, to the W. of it, a mountain of the same name. It presents a bold face to the sea, and has deep water close to the shore.
LITHANG, or LITANG, a tn. Tibet, 47 m. W. from the confines of the Chinese prov. Szechuan; lat. 30° 3' N.; lon. 99° 50' E. It is built on the sides of a hill rising in the midst of an extensive, but almost barren plain, has two large Lama monasteries, richly painted and gilded, erected on the very summit of the hill; but its streets are dirty, narrow and remarkably steep. As one of the monasteries is a place for printing Buddhist books. A brick trade is also carried on in gold dust, chapters of black beads, and herbs formed from the roots of the Yucca and the best tree. A portion of Chinese soldiers is stationed here.—(Hun. Standard Prov. Tibet.)

LITHUANIA [Polish, Litwa; German, Lithauen; or La Sowa; French, Lithuanie], an ancient territory of Europe, bounded, N. by Courland, E. by Russia, S. by Poland, and W. by Prussia. This territory which, in the 11th century, was tributary to Russia, knew of the yoke in the 12th century, and became a grand duchy under Rindold. One of its successors, named Gedemine, subdued part of Russia, and another called Jagiello by marrying the Polish Princess Hedwig, towards the end of the 14th century, became king of Poland, and thus united the grand duchy to that kingdom. On the first partition of Poland in 1773 a considerable portion of Lithuania was appropriated by Russia, and formed into govs. Mohilev and Vitsebsk the remainder, still united to the Polish monarchy constituted six volwodes—Wilna, Troki, Polna, or Vitsebsk, Novogrodek, Brzesc, and Minsk—the first two forming Lithuania proper, and the other four Russian Lithuania. By the subsequent partitions of Poland in 1793 and 1795 Russia obtained as much of Lithuania as formed govs. Wilna, Grodno, and Minsk; while Prussia obtained a portion which is now included in gov. Gumbinnen, prov. E. Prussia.

LITKE, two places, Hungary.—1, A vil. Hither Dubna, co. Neograd, 4 m. from Szakall with a church, a charitable endowment, and a trade in white chalk obtained from Mount Vajda. Pop. 855.—2, (Kegesz), A vil. co. Szabolcs, 3 m. from Kesz-Vard, with two churches. Pop. 1174.

LITTAU, a m. Austria, Moravia, 10 m. and 11 m. N. W. Olmitz, on an isl. in the March, and a station on the railway from Olmitz to Brades. It is walled, has three churches, a normal school, and an hospital manufactures of woollen cloth, and paper-mills. In the vicinity is the Nemshlohn, the splendid castle of Prince Liechtenstein, with a park about 9 m. in circuit, through which the March flows. Pop. 2280.

LITTER, par. 1st Cork 8404 aa. Pop. 1071.

LITFERMORE, an isl. Ireland, co. and 34 m. W. N. W. Galway, on the S. side of Kilkerran Bay. Area, 500 ac. mostly bog and hill pasture, cultivated chiefly by fishermen. It has a signal tower and a coast-guard station.

LITTMULLIN, an isl. Ireland, co. and 27 m. W. by S. Galway about 1 m. long, by 3 m. broad, with about 250 ac. of arable and pasture land. Inhabitants chiefly engaged in the herring and cod fisheries, and in the collection of sea-weed for manure.

LITTLE FALLS, a vil. U. States, New York 91 m. W. N. W. Albany, on the Mohawk. It has five churches, an academy, and two printing-offices. Pop. 6581.

LITTLE HERMESTON, par. Fag Devon 1270aa. P. 269.

LITTLE ISLAND, an isl. and par. Ireland co. Cork in the harbour 4 m. E. the city. Area, 1692 ac. P. 812.

LITTLE ROCK, a city U. States, cap. Arkansas lat. 34° 40' N. lon. 92° 10' W., 1065 m. S. W. Washington r. bank Arkansas here navigable, 800 m. from its mouth. It stands on a rocky bluff rising nearly 200 feet above the river, and is the last place where rocks occur going down the stream. It is regularly laid out, has Presbyterian Episcopalian Baptist, Methodist, and E. Catholic churches, a state capitol, a theatre, an academy, an academy, a U. States arsenal, U. States land office, a pauper's school, and a grist mill, and two printing offices. First settled in 1820. It is the seat of government, and the meeting place of the legislature. Pop. (1850) 4138.

LITTLEBOROUGH, par. Eng. North 290 ac. P. 84.

LITTLEBOURN, par. Eng. Kent, 3103 aa. P. 745.

LITTLEBURY, par. Eng. Essex 2800 ac. P. 934.

LITTLEHAM, two par. Eng. Devon.—1, 1250 ac. Pop. 418.—2, 2451 ac. Pop. 4150.

LITTLEHAMPTON, a maritime tn. England, co. Sussex, 19 m. W. Brighton. It has straight and well kept streets, many well built houses, a handsome parish church, in the early English style; a Wesleyan chapel, a national and three other schools, and a mechanics' institution. Rope-making and ship-building are carried on, and there is an iron-foundry. The harbour formed by the influx of the Arun into the English channel, is defended by a fort, and is accessible to vessels of considerable burden. The trade is principally in coal, provisions, and timber from America and the Baltic. Littlehampton has, of late years, become a fashionable and much-frequented sea-bathing resort. Pop. (1864), 2450.—(Local Correspondent).

Vol. II

LITTLEPORT, par. Eng. Camb., 16136 aa. P. 8932.

LITTLETON, several par. Eng.—1, Hants, 1928 aa. P. 172.—2, Middlesex; 1080 aa. P. 106.—3, (Dress or St. Andrew), Wilts 971 aa. P. 237.—4, (High) Somerset; 1873 aa. P. 651.—5, (North), Worcester, 1616 aa. P. 814.

—6, (South), Worcester; 900 aa. P. 189.—7, (open Severn), Gloucester 841 aa. P. 213.—8, (West) Gloucester; 1003 aa. P. 161.

LITTLINGTON two par. Eng.—1, Cambridge 3093 aa. P. 790.—2, Sussex, 893 aa. P. 105.

LITTMANOVA or LITMANOW a vil. Hungary, Hither Theles co. Eps, 46 m. from Lentschau with a Greek church. Pop. 1185.

LITLION two par. Eng.—1, Somerset 1171 aa. P. 421.—2, (Chewey) Dorset 3517 aa. P. 507.

LITTORALE, or LITZORALE (Drummen) of ILLES NORMES, and UNGARHOMES, (German, Küsteland), the name applied to two Austrian districts, both of which stretch along the coast of the Adriatic, the one along the W. coast of Illyria gov. Trieste, and the other along the Gulf of Quarnero, including the E. coast of Illyria, and the coast of Military Croatia.

LITTRY a vil. and com. France, dep. Calvados, 10 m. W. S. W. Bayeux. It has a mineral spring, and a small coal field, which, though containing only a single workable seam of no great value, is remarkable as the spot where the steam-engine was first employed in France. Pop. 2483.

LITUS NE, or LITANOR, a river, Sweden, which issues from a lake of same name in Kargeldalen, in S. W. of Lin Gensund, flows S. E. into lake Gefleborg, whence it forms several lakes, and falls into the Gulf of Bothnia, about 84 m. N. Gefle, after a course of about 220 m. Its current is very much augmented by rocks.

LIVADIA, RUMELIA, N. of CONTINENTAL GREECE, the most N. division of Greece, bounded N. by Turkey in Europe, W. by the Mediterranean S. by the Gulf of Patras and Lepanto and the Isthmus of Corinth, S. E. by the Archipelago, and N. E. by the channels of Negropont and Talandia; greatest length N. W. to S. E. 190 m. W. breadth, about 47 m. It is traversed, throughout its whole length, by the Hellenic chain, a branch of the Balkan, which separates the basin of the archipelago from that of the Ionian Sea, and has here, among other remarkable summits, those of Klytas or Pindus, Aros, Lakma or Parnassus, Zagora or Hulleon and Otharion. The largest rivers are Aspropotamos, in the W. and the Ellada or Sperchius, and the Gavros or Cephissus, in the E. The surface is generally mountainous, but the soil, though often thin, is fertile, and, both on the lower slopes, in the valleys, and on the plains, corn, oil, wine, and fruit, are obtained in considerable abundance. The pastures, also are rich and extensive, and rear great numbers of cattle. The most valuable minerals are argilliferous lead, and marble. Livadia corresponds nearly to the ancient divisions of Acananum, Doris, Locris, Boeotia, and Attica and includes the modern counties of Attica and Boeotia, Phocia and Phthiotis and Acananum and Etilia. In this division is also usually included the insular nation of Euboea, or Negropont. Pop. (1851), 322 639.

LIVADIA, or LEASADA, a tn. Greece, on the Helicon, a fine mountain stream 52 m. W. of Thebes. It occupies considerable space, and before the revolution is said to have been the most flourishing town of N. Greece, and to have contained 1600 houses, but it has a dull appearance, is poorly built, and consists of narrow ill paved streets. It is defended by a castle, and has manufactures of cotton goods, and a trade in rice, corn, wool, and other articles of raw produce. Higher up the river in a narrow gorge, is the site of the ancient Hieron, or cave of Trophonius. Pop. about 9000.

LIVADOSTEO, a vil. Greece, Livadia, on a small stream, near its mouth, in a bay of same name, in the Gulf of Lepanto, 47 m. W. N. W. Athens. It has a good natural harbour.

LIVERZA (anc. Leugenta) a river Italy Venetia, which rises near Polesigno dist. Bellia, prov. Friuli, flows easterly 5 S. E. and after a course of about 50 m., falls, by several mouths, into the Adriatic at Porto-Santo-Margherita. Its current, though rapid, is partly navigable, and commercial boats with the Flava by a canal.

LIVFRMERE, two par. Eng. Suffolk.—1, (Magnet) 1649 aa. P. 601.—2, (Pursey) 1498 aa. P. 174.

LIVERPOOL—1, A township, English America, Nova Scotia, on the S. E. coast 65 m. S. W. Halifax, near Queen's co. It is well and regularly built, and has an unusual number of public buildings, a harbor, with a handsome drawbridge across it, and valuable as a fishing station, but, owing to a bar, not accessible by vessels drawing more than 9 ft. On Oulton's Island, at its mouth, is a revolving light, 70 ft. high. Liverpool was made a warehousing port in 1824.—2 A bar at New S. Wales, on the George River, 20 m. S.W. Sydney. It is usually built, and has a handsome church and hospital, and returns, with Richmond, Windsor, and Campbellton, a member to the Legislative Council. Pop. 601.—3, (Liverpool Plains) A dist. New S. Wales, lat. 30° to 31° S., lon. 157° to 157° E. area, 10,000,000 ac. It contains the greatest extent of pastoral country, and is the best watered of any district in New S. Wales. It is bounded by two parallel ranges of mountains, from which narrow belts of forest traverse the plains at irregular intervals, and divide them into a series of natural parallelograms.—4, A mountain range, E. Australia, which stretches from W to E. between co. Brisbane, New S. Wales, and the Liverpool Plains, and forms the watershed between the basins of the Peel or Manney, on the N and W., and the Hunter on the S and E.

25

LIVERPOOL, a port and town, loc. and support, England, co. Lancashire. Bank Mercury, about 4 m. from its confluence with the Irish Sea. lat. (Observatory) 58° 24' 48" N., lon. 3° W (s.). It stands partly on flat ground along the margin of the river and partly on a gentle declivity. Its greatest length, from N to S., is upwards of 4½ m. Greatest breadth, E. to W., rather more than 3½ m. Area, 5008½ ac. The principal streets diverge more or less directly from a central area, in which stand St. George's Hall and St. John's Church. In the older parts of the town the streets are narrow, and ill built; but in the more modern portions, particularly in the E., they are wide, airy, and well paved. Here also occur some handsome squares and crescents, lined with elegant mansions, chiefly of brick, rooled with slate. The town is well lighted with gas, and supplied with water at present from wells sunk in the new red sandstone on which the town is built. There are seven wells, the greater part of the water from which is pumped into a reservoir at an elevation of about 200 ft. above the lowest part of the town. From this reservoir it is distributed under high-pressure and there being an abundance of hydrants in the streets, especially in the warehouse districts, fires are easily extinguished by the application of hose and jet. The result is, that serious destruction of property by fire is now unknown. The quantity of water distributed daily amounts to 5,700,000 gallons. At present works are in progress for obtaining an increased water-supply from the hilly district of Rivington, about 25 m. from Liverpool. Reservoirs are there in course of construction,

1. St. George's Hall.
2. Liverpool and Exchange Buildings.
3. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
4. Liverpool and North Western Railway.
5. Liverpool and Yorkshire Railway.
6. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
7. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
8. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
9. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
10. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
11. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
12. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
13. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
14. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
15. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
16. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
17. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
18. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
19. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
20. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
21. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
22. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
23. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
24. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
25. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
26. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
27. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
28. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
29. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
30. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
31. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
32. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
33. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
34. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
35. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
36. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
37. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
38. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
39. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
40. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
41. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
42. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
43. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
44. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
45. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
46. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
47. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
48. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
49. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
50. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
51. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
52. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
53. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
54. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
55. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
56. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
57. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
58. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
59. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
60. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
61. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
62. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
63. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
64. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
65. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
66. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
67. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
68. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
69. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
70. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
71. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
72. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
73. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
74. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
75. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
76. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
77. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
78. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
79. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
80. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
81. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
82. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
83. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
84. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
85. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
86. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
87. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
88. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
89. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
90. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
91. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
92. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
93. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
94. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
95. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
96. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
97. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
98. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
99. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
100. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.

21. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
22. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
23. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
24. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
25. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
26. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
27. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
28. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
29. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
30. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
31. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
32. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
33. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
34. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
35. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
36. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
37. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
38. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
39. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
40. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
41. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
42. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
43. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
44. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
45. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
46. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
47. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
48. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
49. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
50. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
51. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
52. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
53. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
54. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
55. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
56. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
57. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
58. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
59. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
60. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
61. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
62. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
63. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
64. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
65. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
66. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
67. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
68. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
69. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
70. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
71. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
72. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
73. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
74. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
75. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
76. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
77. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
78. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
79. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
80. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
81. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
82. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
83. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
84. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
85. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
86. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
87. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
88. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
89. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
90. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
91. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
92. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
93. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
94. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
95. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
96. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
97. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
98. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
99. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
100. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.

21. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
22. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
23. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
24. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
25. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
26. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
27. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
28. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
29. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
30. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
31. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
32. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
33. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
34. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
35. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
36. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
37. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
38. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
39. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
40. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
41. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
42. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
43. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
44. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
45. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
46. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
47. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
48. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
49. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
50. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
51. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
52. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
53. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
54. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
55. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
56. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
57. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
58. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
59. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
60. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
61. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
62. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
63. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
64. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
65. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
66. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
67. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
68. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
69. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
70. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
71. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
72. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
73. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
74. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
75. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
76. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
77. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
78. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
79. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
80. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
81. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
82. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
83. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
84. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
85. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
86. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
87. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
88. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
89. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
90. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
91. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
92. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
93. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
94. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
95. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
96. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
97. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
98. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
99. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
100. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.

21. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
22. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
23. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
24. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
25. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
26. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
27. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
28. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
29. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
30. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
31. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
32. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
33. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
34. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
35. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
36. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
37. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
38. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
39. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
40. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
41. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
42. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
43. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
44. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
45. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
46. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
47. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
48. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
49. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
50. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
51. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
52. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
53. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
54. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
55. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
56. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
57. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
58. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
59. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
60. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
61. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
62. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
63. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
64. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
65. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
66. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
67. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
68. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
69. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
70. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
71. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
72. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
73. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
74. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
75. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
76. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
77. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
78. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
79. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
80. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
81. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
82. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
83. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
84. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
85. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
86. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
87. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
88. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
89. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
90. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
91. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
92. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
93. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
94. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
95. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
96. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
97. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
98. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
99. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.
100. Liverpool and Mersey Railway.

which, when completed, will form great lakes of the aggregate length of 6 miles, and from these, after being filtered, the water will be conveyed to the distributing-reservoirs in the town in iron pipes, 44 inches diameter.

The most important public buildings are the Townhall, Exchange Buildings, Revenue Buildings, and St. George's Hall. The Townhall is an elegant Grecian structure, which was founded in 1749; a handsome dome, supported by Corinthian pillars, and surmounted by an open gallery, rises from the centre of the building: within are a saloon, drawing-rooms, ball-rooms, banqueting-room, and vestibule, all splendidly furnished, forming, probably the finest suite of entertaining-rooms the kingdom. The Exchange Buildings form three sides of the square, of which the Townhall constitutes the fourth; it has three interior squares; an crowded basement, with a walk of 15 ft. in width, extends along each of the squares, and is surmounted by a range of Corinthian pilasters, supporting a handsome cornice and balustrade. In the E. wing of the building is a spacious news-room. The Revenue Buildings, which comprise the Office of Inland Revenue, the Office of the Commissioners of the Duties, and Post-office, cover an area of 6700 sq yds, and have an extreme length of 467 ft., with a total height of 67 ft.; lofty porticoes, each supported by eight Ionic columns, adorn the centre, and E. and W. fronts, the centre of the building is surmounted by a dome, lighted by sixteen windows, and ornamented by pilasters. St. George's Hall, which comprises also the Andra

ST. GEORGE'S HALL AND LIME STREET RAILWAY STATION LIVERPOOL.
From an Original Drawing.

Courts, is a sumptuous building in the Corinthian style, the E. facade, or the longer side of the building, is 420 ft. long, the advanced colonnade in the centre is 300 ft. in length and, being recessed forms within an ample sheltered ambulatory 28 ft. in depth. The N. portion of the plan forms a concert-room, capable of accommodating 1900 auditors, making the entire extent from N to S, 500 ft. The other structures exclusive of the churches, deserving of notice, are the Royal Bank buildings, the North and South Wales Banks the Stations of the London and North Western and the E. Lancashire, and Lancashire and Yorkshire Railways, Liverpool Apothecaries Hall, Adelphi Hotel, Infirmary Collegiate Institution, Philharmonic Hall and Lyceum. The Theatre and Amphitheatre are also both respectable structures.

Five towns are so well supplied with market places as Liverpool, there being about a dozen of them in various localities several of them are spacious, airy, covered structures—that of St. John's, $\frac{1}{2}$ an long, by 45 yds wide, being especially worthy of mention they are probably better supplied with all kinds of provisions than any other markets in the kingdom. There are altogether 45 churches and 85 chapels in Liverpool besides numerous other places of worship the former comprising two churches belonging to the Scottish Establishment, three to the Free Church, one to the U. Presbyterian Church of Scotland, one Irish Presbyterian, and a church of the Holy Apostles. The chapels include five Wesleyan, two Wesleyan Association five Independent, three Methodist, eight K. Catholics, four Baptist, three Unitarian, one Friends meeting-house, two Jews synagogues, one Scandinavian, one floating chapel and one New Jerusalem, and to almost every place of worship a school is attached. Many of the churches and chapels are exceedingly handsome buildings. Amongst the more remarkable for their architectural beauty are St. Francis Xavier's and St. Mary's K. Catholic churches, the church for the blind, St. Luke's, Great George Street chapel, St. George's Presbyterian church, Baptist chapel, St. Andrew's Scotch church, St. George's, St. Catherine's St. Michael's, St. Martin's, and the Hope Street Unitarian chapel. Liverpool is remarkable for the number of its charitable and benevolent institutions, and for the unimportance of the buildings devoted to these purposes; there being no fewer than fifteen or sixteen different establishments of one kind or another for the alleviation of distress, besides three or four charity schools. The principal are the Infirmary Fever Hospital, Lunatic Asylum, Lock Hospital, and three extensive public bathing establishments, secured by the Corporation, one of which is amply supplied with Mineral salt-water, and the others with pure spring-water. To one of these establishments a public washing-house is attached; and there is a separate public washing-house in another locality. There are likewise many religious societies. The educational institutions comprise the Royal Institution, the Mechanics', the Collegiate, and the Medical Institutions. Associated with these are the newspapers, among which the Athenian and Liverpool hold the highest station, and have extensive libraries connected with them. There is also the Free Public Library, and Derby Museum. The schools consist of the Corporation, National and Infant schools, and of a vast number belonging to the various religious denominations. The principal places of amusement are the Theatre Royal, the Royal Amphitheatre, the Royal Liver Theatre, the Royal Adelphi, the Philharmonic Hall, one of the finest concert-rooms in Europe; Music Hall, Wellington Rooms the Zoological and Botanic Gardens, and the race-course at Aintree, where meetings are held in May and July.

But the most remarkable feature of this great seaport is the number and magnitude of its docks, corresponding with the extent of its vast commerce. All of these lie along the margin of the river, or between it and the town, most of them parallel with the Mersey but some of them at right angles to it. There are, in all, 30 docks, of three different kinds, namely wet docks, dry docks or basins, and graving docks. The first are principally for ships of great burden, employed in the foreign trade, such vessels floating in them at all stages of the tide, the water being retained by gates the dry docks, so called because they are left dry when the tide is out are chiefly appropriated to coasting vessels and the graving docks, which admit or exclude the water at pleasure, are adapted to the repair of ships, during which they are kept perfectly dry and when completed, are floated out by admitting the tide. The extreme length of the river wall, which fronts the line of the Liverpool docks, is 5 m. The total water area amounts to 200 ac. of this 178 ac. are wet docks, and 21 ac. dry basins, and the total water space exceeds 14 m. The four largest docks are the Hookhead, Prince's, Queen's, and Brunswick docks. The first covers an area of 18 ac. 998 yds, length of quay frontage, 1122 yards, depth of water, 37 ft., the second nearly 12 ac. the third above 10 ac. and the fourth above 12 ac. Nearly 219,000,000 have been expended in Liverpool, and more than £19,000,000 on the river Mersey in securing safe anchorage, and the most perfect port accommodation ever formed by the skill of man.

The following Table of the number of vessels that have entered the docks at various dates, and of the progressive increase of the dock dues and customs exhibited, in a very clear manner not only the great extent of the shipping of this port, but the extraordinary rapidity with which it has increased since the commencement of the present century. The decrease of the customs receipts in recent years is mainly due to the abolition of the duty on cotton and wool—

Year.	Vessels.	Tonnage.	Dock Dues.	Customs Receipts.
1800	4,748	480,000	38,375	1,066,478
1810	6,739	724,411	61,728	2,678,798
1820	7,274	826,238	94,411	1,658,078
1830	11,514	1,411,946	141,382	8,164,114
1840	15,941	2,708,456	196,697	4,571,967
1850	18,908	3,645,708	178,186	4,207,288
1860	20,481	3,016,419	225,545	5,536,411
1870	21,487	3,335,267	243,989	5,566,268
1881	21,071	3,737,656	293,030	5,510,033

In the value of its foreign exports, and the extent of its foreign commerce, Liverpool is now the greatest port in the British empire, and is consequently the first port in the world. In 1850 the foreign exports amounted to nearly £25,000,000 sterling, or considerably more than one-half of the total value of the exports of the three kingdoms for that year, and more than twice that of London. During the five years ending with 1850, the increase of the exports of Liverpool has been from £25,000,000 to nearly £28,000,000, while that of London has been from about £21,000,000 to rather more than £14,000,000.

ter of the country and in which many of the Liverpool men-ships reside. They are Seaboard, Woodside, North-Sey, Melksham, Tynemouth, Rockferry, Eastham, Tynemouth, and New Brighton; between which and Liverpool there passed by the service, in 1851, above 8,000,000 passengers. There are several cemeteries in the town and its vicinity, the most noted of which are St. James's, the Metropolitan, and St. Mary's. These are laid out with taste, and kept in good order and a chapel is appended to each, in which the funeral service is performed. There are also two parish cemeteries, and a Jews burying-place.

The corporation of Liverpool consists of 48 councillors, a mayor, and 16 aldermen elected by the council. The borough returns two members to Parliament registered electors (1851), 17,316.

Liverpool was formerly the most unhealthy town in England, but the vigor with which sanitary operations have been carried on in late years, more particularly since the local sanitary act of 1846, has done much to rescue the town from its unsavory notoriety. These measures, comprising sewerage, house-drainage, improved paving and surface cleaning, the regulation of lodging-houses and slaughter-houses, the closing of unhealthy cellars, &c. have effected a marked improvement in the condition of the districts inhabited by the working-classes, and to this must not doubt be ascribed the fact, that the mortality of the borough which, ten years ago, amounted (on an average of years) to 81 in every 1000 inhabitants, has recently fallen to an average of little more than 30 in the 1000.

Great as Liverpool now is, it is of but comparatively recent growth, and has therefore little or no history. Little more than two centuries ago, it was but a small fishing town, with few houses, and still fewer streets. Of the progress of this great commercial port, the following table presents a curious and interesting epitome—

Rise and Progress of LIVERPOOL.

	Under Queen Elizabeth.	Under Queen Anne.	Under Queen Victoria.
	1601.	1701.	1801.
Population	500	9,100	57,500
Townships	160	12,500	3,707,000
No. of vessels.	16	284	21,071
Town dues.	80	8	8
Quarantine	578	70,000	31,000
Imports	80	1,116	189,183

In 1644, Liverpool, then surrounded by a high mud wall, was besieged and taken by France Rupart, and shortly after retaken by the Parliamentary forces, under Sir John Meldrum. Seven years later, a second visitation of the plague carried off 200 inhabitants. In 1709, a wet dock was constructed, not only the first in Liverpool, but also in the kingdom. From this event may be dated the rapid extension of its commerce and population, though, as evidenced by the following Table, the greater portion of the increase of population has taken place since the commencement of the present century—

Year.	Pop.	Year.	Pop.
1700	1,050	1841	118,078
1750	24,000	1861	248,264
1801	77,000	1881	578,844

Mrs. Hemans, the Rev. Leigh Richmond, and Dr. Currier, the biographer of Burns, and William Roscoe, were natives of Liverpool.—(Pictorial Handbook of Liverpool, Baines History of Liverpool, Local Correspondent.) See SUPPLEMENT.

LIVINGTON, port. Boet Lindalag 5800 as P 1259. LIVINO, or LIZANA, a town in Turkey in the N W of Haragovina, at the foot of Mount Libanus, 40 m. N E, Spalatro, on the Bustrice, here crossed by a handsome bridge of five arches. It is surrounded by a wall, flanked with towers, and defended by a castle. The vicinity is fertile in corn, and has fine pastures, in which great numbers of cattle are reared. Pop. about 400.

LIVNY, a town in Russia, gov and 80 m E S E. Orsk cap. circle, 1 hour. It is an ancient place, has two churches, and a monastery, and some general trade. P (1850), 6192.

LIVONIA, LATVIA, LEVAND, LEVARD, or LENA, a gov. Russia, bounded N by Riga, W by the Baltic Sea,

S. by Courland, and E. Vitebsk and the Lake of Peipus; lat. 56° 30' to 59° N. lon. 18° 40' to 27° E. length, 178 m.; breadth, 111 m.; area, about 18,200 sq. m. The surface is for the most part flat, sandy, and swampy, but has occasional tracts of black loam, well fitted for the plough. The only hilly ground is in the districts of Wenden and Dorpat. The government is well watered, possessing numerous rivers and lakes. Of the former, the principal are the Drava and Embach of the latter the Werst and Luba. The climate is subject to great extremes of heat and cold. Notwithstanding extensive tracts of sand, the greater part of the government is under cultivation, and yields good crops of oats, barley, wheat, potatoes, fax, and hops. The forests are extensive, and furnish good timber. Horses, cattle, and sheep are generally of small inferior breeds. Game both of the smaller and larger species, is abundant over the whole government. Gypsum, chalk and a little marble are found. Distilling, sugar refining, and the manufacture of tobacco, woollens, cotton and linen, are the chief branches of manufacturing industry. The inhabitants consist of Estonians, Livonians, and Letts, and speak the Finnish and Lettish dialects. They are almost all Protestants of the Augsburg Confession. The Livonians and Estonians, previously serfs, obtained their personal freedom in 1824. Livonia is divided into nine districts. The capital is Riga. Pop. (1850), 830,000.

LIVONIA (Gulf of) See LINA. LIVONIA—1 A town and seaport, Tuscany. See LEO. LIVONIA—2 A town in Sardinia, prov. Novara, prov. and 17 m. W S W Verucelli, on a small communicating with the Dora. It has a parish and four other churches, several fine mansions or palaces, an hospital and a charitable endowment and a trade in rice and millet. Pop. 1800.

LIVON, a town in France, dep. Drôme, 11 m. S. Valence, near the confluence of the Drôme with the Rhone, the former of which is here crossed by a fine bridge. It has manufactures of delft and common earthenware, and agricultural implements, tanneries, tile-works, and lincolns; and two annual fairs. Pop. 1815.

LIXURI, a seaport in Cephalonia, one of the Ionian Isles, on the W side of a long narrow arm of the sea, which penetrates the Isl. S to N. It is a principal depot for wines and currents the shores are deep, and favorable for erecting a harbor and landing-place while the country around yields a large produce for exportation. Pop. 5000.

LIZARD, an Isl. N E. coast Australia, N N E. Cape Flattery lat. 14 41 34' S, lon. 145° 28' 50' E (n.) It has a peak 1161 or 1161 ft above sea-level, greatest diameter, 2½ m.; composed of a coarse gray granite, easily decomposable. A mountainous ridge runs across the island, and divides it into two portions, of which the E is hilly and the W low and intersected by small ridges of slight elevation. A large grassy plain extends W from the central ridge, and is densely covered with coarse grass and roots, and scattered over with Pandanus trees. The soil is in general barren. Snakes are numerous, several of them poisonous. Shells of the most beautiful forms and colours abound on the shores.—(Voyage of the Rattlesnake).

LIZARD POINT, a headland, England, on Cornwall, forming the most S point of Great Britain, 24 m. E S E. Land's End, and having two lighthouses, with fixed lights 224 ft. above sea-level; lat. 49° 57' 43' N. lon 5° 13' W.

LIZANA, a vil. and com. Naples, prov. Otranto, dist. and 4 m. S E. Lecce. Pop. 1787.

LIZANO, a vil. and com. Naples, prov. Otranto, dist. and 15 m. S E. E. Taranto. Pop. 1870.

LJUBIM, a town in Russia, gov and 52 m. N E. Jaroslavl, cap. circle on the Ochna, with four churches, two tanneries, and a general trade and important annual fairs. Pop. 2327. The Ochna is tolerably well wooded, and raises a good deal of corn, though in general it is more pastoral than agricultural. Pop. 57,548.

LLACUNA (La) a town in Spain, Catalonia, prov. and about 60 m. from Barcelona, with two small squares, one of which is used by aradars; several irregular and narrow streets, a church, an old castle, a primary school, and three mills. Pop. 1020.

LLADO, a vil. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 30 m. from Gerona, with a church, two primary schools, several mills, and a trade in oil, charcoal, and timber. Pop. 1064.

SEANFAIR, or SEANFAIR, a market in. and par. Wales, co. and 10 m. N. W. Montgomery; with a church, townhall, and several schools; and manufactures of flannel. Area of par., 18,167 ac. Pop. 1777.

SEANFYLLIN, a market in. par. boy, and par. Wales, Montgomeryshire. The town 10 m. N. W. Montgomery on the Cole, over which is a neat bridge, has a church, in the town, and several dissenting chapels, a neat townhall, with market under cover, a school, ware-room and some trade in leather and salt. It unites with Montgomery, &c. in sending a member to Parliament. Pop. bar (1861), 1116. Area of par., 7928 ac. Pop. 1927.

SEANGADOCK, a market in. and par. Wales, co. and 19 m. E. N. E. Carmarthen, near the junction of the Saverdy with the Towy, here crossed by a neat stone bridge. It has an old substantial church, several dissenting chapels, and near it coal and limestone are worked. Area of par., 15,643 ac. Pop. 3290.

SEANGFENI, a market in. and par. Wales, co. Anglesey, 3 m. W. Beaumaris. The town on the Cymru, here crossed by two handsome bridges, has a church, several dissenting places of worship, a neat market-house, and a school. Limited manufactures of woollen cloth, and extensive markets and cattle fairs. Area of par., 2456 ac. Pop. 1799.

SEANGOLLEN [pronounced Seangollin], a market in. and par. N. Wales, co. Denbigh. The town, 19 m. S. E. Denbigh and 4 m. from the station of its name on the Chester and Shrewsbury Railway is pleasantly situated in a narrow valley 7 m. from the sea. It is well built, has a handsome ancient church, in the early English style, and five dissenting places of worship, three schools, a public library and several friendly societies. In the town and neighbourhood are three extensive mills, where flannel of superior quality is manufactured and several breweries. Flag, slate and limestone abound in the vicinity. Four miles from the town, the Elanmore Canal is carried across the Dee and in the neighbourhood is the magnificent aqueduct of Pont y Cynylltu of 18 arches, and 126 ft. high, constructed by Telford. Near the town are the picturesque ruins of the fortress Castell Dinas Brwn. Llangollen is well known for the beauty of its situation, and is greatly resorted to by summer visitors. Area of par., 30,176 ac. Pop. 6590. (Local Correspondent).

SEANIDLOES, a municipal and par. boy and par. Wales, Montgomeryshire. The town in a fertile valley on the Severn, here crossed by two bridges 18 m. N. W. Montgomery formerly consisted chiefly of houses built of timber frames, filled in with plaster, many of these structures have, however in recent times, been replaced by good modern houses. In the centre of the town in the old market-house a quiet looking timber-framed structure, little used since the erection of the new market-house, a spacious building in the upper part of which the wool-market is held with the chamber, butter-market &c. in the lower part. There are a venerable old Established church several dissenting chapels, and some small charities. The manufacture of flannel is still actively carried on, though not so great an extent as at one time, and in the town and vicinity are several factories for carding and spinning wool falling-mills, a brass foundry extensive copper and lead mines, and several molasses, flour-mills, and sawmills. It unites with Montgomery &c. in returning a member to Parliament; and has extensive sheep fairs. Pop. 3045. Area of par., 15,790 ac. Pop. 4604.

SEANOS (Loe), a ta. Camery side, S. W. side of the Palms, with a church, five chapels, four schools, and manufactures of sugar wax, brandy silk, and cheese. Pop. 4967.

SEANOS (SANTA MARIA DE LOE) a ta. Spain, near Castile, prov. and 45 m. from Cuenca. It is poorly built, and has a church, a primary school, an hospital, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1018.

SEANNEWET, a market in. and par. N. Wales, co. Carnarvon and Denbigh. The town, 16 m. W. by R. Denbigh, is pleasantly situated on a bank Cornway here crossed by an elegant bridge of three arches, built about 1636, from a plan by Inigo Jones. It is spacious, well paved, and well built, but the houses and shops are, in general, small; water abundant. It has two churches, four dissenting chapels, several schools, and some minor charities. Spinning of woollen yarn, and the hatching of stockings, are the chief manufactures. Area of par., 22,818 ac. Pop. 3864.

SEANSA, a ta. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 22 m. N. E. by N. Gerona, on the coast of the Mediterranean; with a large church and school; inhabitants engaged in fishing, sailing ship, making brandy, wine, oil, &c. Pop. 7797.

SEANTRISSENT, a par. boy, market in. and par. S. Wales, co. Glamorgan. The town, pleasantly situated partly on the declivity, and partly on the summit of a hill, 6 m. N. W. Cardiff, is irregularly built, houses in general old and small; and not improving. It has an old castle, with a ruined tower, a large and venerable parish church; and four dissenting chapels, two national schools, and three friendly societies; inhabitants principally employed in agriculture, or in the extensive collieries in the neighbourhood. Llantrisant unites with Cardiff, &c., in returning a member to Parliament. Pop. 16,689, of par., 4181. (Local Correspondent).

SEANVNERAS, or SEANVNERAS, two places, Spain—1. (See Sancho de) A in Catalonia, prov. and about 18 m. from Barcelona. It is poorly built; has a large parish church, with a handsome facade; a primary school many factories of cotton, and cotton twist and a trade in wine and muskatoe. Pop. 1798.—2. (See Vicente de) A in, near the former with a parish church courthouse manufactures of cotton, verdigris, earthenware, and two flour-mills. P. 811.

SEAWHADEN par. Wales, Pembrokeshire 4490 ac. P. 660.

SEERENA a city Spain Extremadura, prov. and 87 m. S. E. Badajoz. It is well built walled, flanked with towers has handsome gates, wide streets, two parish churches, four chapels, four convents, several schools, two hospitals, and court houses a prison, theatre, cavalry barracks, bull-ring, and, in the environs, some pleasant public walks manufactures of linen and woollen fabrics, hides, leather, soap, white wax brandy wine, and oil. Pop. 4900.

SEERES, formerly SE. PERELLO, a ta. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 50 m. from Gerona. It is irregularly built has a handsome modern church, with a tower a fine old Moorish castle, which was occupied as a fort during the last civil war, a courthouse, hospital and a trade, chiefly in oil. P. 1843.

SEELVA, a ta. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 54 m. N. W. Gerona, bank Segra, here crossed by a wooden bridge, on the confines of France with a parish church, townhall prison and school manufactures of linen, woollen and cotton fabrics and some trade in grain, cattle, oil, wool &c. Pop. 904.

SEELLEGAT—1. (See Finca de) A ta. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 6 m. N. W. Barcelona 1 bank Llobragat with a church townhouse, prison, two schools, and a cemetery and manufactures of cotton fabrics and blonde. Pop. 1890.—2. Two rivers, Spain one of which runs near Póbla de Vilatorrada, prov. Barcelona, and flows to the Mediterranean, 4 m. S. from Barcelona total course about 75 m. The other rises near Jaquerra, prov. Gerona, on the confines of France, and flows N. E. to the Muga total course, 30 m.

SEELLET DE MAR, a ta. and par. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 20 m. S. Gerona, on the Mediterranean. It has clean, well kept streets, two squares, a parish church several chapels, a custom-house, hospital a dock-yard for merchant vessels manufactures of blonde and corals, an active fishery and a trade in grain, timber, hair, bristles, wool salt-meat, colonial produce, &c. Pop. 8024.

SEELLET DE MAR, a ta. Spain, prov. and 25 m. from Valencia, near 1 bank Alhauza with a parish church, court house, primary school several oil and spinning mills. P. 1288.

SEELLET, a ta. Spain, Isl. Majorca, dist. Inca, with a parish church and a trade in corn, oil, and wine. Pop. 1116.

SEELLOHORE, or LOUHORE [see Louwen] a par. boy, and par. S. Wales, co. Glamorgan, 6 m. W. by N. Swansea, 1 bank Loughor here crossed by a bridge. It has a church and a national school a fine work, and a manufacture of pyrogonous wood. It exports coal, and imports limestone. Tons of 200 tons barrow come up to the town. It unites with Swansea, &c. in returning a member to Parliament. Pop. 821. Area of par. 8999 ac. Pop. 1099.

SEELLOWES, par. Wales, Radnor, 3819 ac. Pop. 859.

SEELUHL, or CASTELL-LLUHL, a ta. Spain, Isl. Majorca, near Inca; with a parish church, a primary school, manufactures of linen, several flour-mills, and a trade in corn, sheep, and wine. Pop. 1816.

SEELMAYOR, a ta. Spain, Isl. Majorca, 16 m. S. E. Palma, at the base of Mount Randa. It is tolerably well hills; and the majority, and wide, well-kept streets; a church, church of St. Peter, two primary schools, a store, houses, and manufactures of linen and woolen fabrics, hats, breads, and wine; and a well-ventilated cattle fair P 1764.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Carmarthen and Dunbarton 1800. Pop. 717.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Brecon; 1807. Pop. 235.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Glamorgan; 1877. Pop. 184.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

LOANHEAD, a village, Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1866. Pop. 178.

from this island are the Lobos de Agua, consisting of two islets, separated by a narrow channel. The height of these two islands is about 2 m. long, by 2 m. broad, Yn. S. S. and N. W.; lat. $6^{\circ} 54' 48''$ S.; lon. $60^{\circ} 44' 12''$ W. (a). The other, about $1\frac{1}{2}$ m. long, and nearly 1 m. broad, lies nearly N. and S., forming, with the S. island, two strong, important bays. These Lobos have attracted considerable attention of late years, on account of the immense deposits of guano they contain—amounting to 2,000,000 tons on the largest island, Lobos de Tierra.—3. An isl. E. America, off S. coast Uruguay, N. side of the entrance to the estuary of the Rio de la Plata; lat. $35^{\circ} 1' S.$, lon. $54^{\circ} 25' W.$ about 80 m. E. Monte Video, and 8 m. S. S. E. the town of Maldonado.—4. An isl. N. America Gulf of California, coast of Mexico; lat. (S. W. point) $27^{\circ} 15' N.$; lon. $117^{\circ} 46' W.$ (a). It is a beautiful little island, of coral formation, and about 2 m. in circumference, covered with a variety of trees and shrubs, and so thickly interwoven with vines that it is difficult to get through them. Water is abundant, at a depth of from 4 to 6 ft., but it is brackish and sweet. Fish and sea-fowl are in great profusion.—5. An isl. Gulf of Mexico, prov. Vera Cruz; lat. $21^{\circ} 36' N.$ lon. $97^{\circ} 8' W.$ (a).—6. One of the smaller Canary Islands, being about 6 m. long, and $1\frac{1}{2}$ m. broad, near the N. point of Fuerteventura; lat. (N. point) $28^{\circ} 45' N.$; lon. $13^{\circ} 45' W.$ (a).—7. A small isl. Atlantic Ocean, near Cape Blanco, N. W. coast of Africa; lat. $27^{\circ} 50' N.$, lon. $17^{\circ} W.$

LOBOBITZ, a tn. Bohemia, circle and 4 m. W. S. W. Leitmeritz, l. bank Elbe. It is an old, but tolerably well-built place; has a large castle, church two chapels, and an hospital; a landing-place, where from 50 to 60 of the Elbe vessels call conveniently, a brewery distillery, large corn magazines, and a trade in cattle. In 1756 a battle was fought here between the Prussians and Austrians. Pop. 1822

LOBBEN, a tn. Prussia, Prov. gov. and 33 m. W. N. W. Bromberg, with a church, a synagogue, and manufacture of woollen cloth and linen. Pop. 2427

LOCANA a tn. and com. Italy Piedmont, div. Turin, prov. and 21 m. W. W. Ivrea, in the valley of Pont, l. bank Ouse, with a church, mines of iron, and beds of porcelaine earth, and a trade in cattle and dairy produce. Pop. 5584

LOCARNO or LOCORNO, a tn. Switzerland, one of the three capitals of com. Ticino, on the N. W. margin of Lago Maggiore at the entrance of three converging valleys, and at the foot of a hill covered by the church of Madonna del Soccorso, 8 m. W. S. W. Bellinzona. It is walled, and generally well built. Many of its houses are handsome and it has a spacious square, three churches, two in addition to the Madonna del Soccorso, already mentioned, which deserves notice, not merely on its own account, but from the splendid view which it commands over the lake, and four convents. Locarno has some manufactures of hats and coarse woollens, and a bell foundry. Owing to extensive marshes along the lake its situation is not very healthy. Pop. (1850) 2576

LOCATE, LOCATE TURISS, or LOCATE BAS TURISS, a tn. and com. Italy, Lombardy prov. and 9 m. E. Milan, l. bank Lambro; with a church, no old feudal castle, the palace of the Princess Belgoyon, and some benevolent establishments, including an infant school. Pop. 1190

LOCUM, a tn. Hanover, principally Kalenberg 25 m. W. N. W. Hanover, with a church, a theological seminary, a fine library, and several distilleries. Pop. 1500

LOCH DALLY a vil. Scotland, co. Fife, 7 m. E. E. Dundee, with a U. Presbyterian church, and two schools and a small lake. Pop. 770

LOCH-DA-BALA, a mountain, Grampian range, Scotland, co. Aberdeen, near Camble and Broomie; height, 3777 ft.

LOCH-DA-BALA, a lake, Scotland, co. Ross and Cromarty 22 m. W. W. Dingwall, 7 m. long, by 1 m. broad, of considerable picturesque beauty

LOCHABER, a dist. Scotland, co. Inverness, on Loch Arkay and Loch Loech. It is desolate, barren, mountainous, and very thinly inhabited; but is well adapted for the rearing of black cattle. In 1690 Cameron of Lochiel killed a wolf here, the last known to have existed with in Great Britain

LOCHALSH, par. Scot. Ross, 52,000 ac. Pop. 2200; separated from St. Mary by an exposure in the chain of hills rising, opening E. into Loch Dalich and Läng, S. into Kyle Loch, and W. into Kyle Loch.

LOCHERBROOM, par. Scot. Ross; 60 m. by 20 ac., including loch of same name, an arm of the sea, 20 m. N. W. Dingwall, penetrating 14 m. inland N. W. to S. S. W. with a breadth of under 10 m. to above 5 m. Pop. 4812 LOCHGARROH, par. Scot. Ross, 25 m. by 10 m. P. 1613; with an extensive loch or arm of the sea of same name, which, at its N. E. end, receives the river Carron, whence the loch and parish are named.

LOCHKEE, a vil. Scotland, co. Forfar, $\frac{1}{2}$ m. N. W., and within the par. boundary of Dundee. It has Established, Free, and U. Presbyterian churches; several schools, and a number of saw-pinning mills. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the weaving of coarse linen fabrics. Pop. 3696

LOCHKEE, a tn. Bohemia, prov. Glatz, 83 m. N. E. Arnheim. It is a pleasantly situated, good-looking, prosperous little place and has a substantial town-house, a church, parsonage, various schools, several taneries, a calico-weaving establishment and kerst. oil, and corn mills. Pop. 1587

LOCHKEE, a tn. Prussia, dep. Inster-et-Loire, l. bank Indre, 14 m. E. E. Tours. The opposite bank of the river is occupied by Beaulieu, with which a communication is maintained by a series of bridges. Lochkee lies in the form of an amphitheatre along a hill. Behind it stand the ruins of an old castle, on an isolated rock inaccessible on three sides. The town is poorly built, houses old, and streets narrow. It has a court of first resort, a commercial college, manufactures of linen, coarse woollens, paper, and worsted, and a trade in wine, wood, and cattle. In the neighbourhood are still a few remains of the Chartreuse du Liget, a monastery said to have been founded by Henry II of England in expiation of the murder of Thomas à Becket. Pop. 2401

LOCHGILHEAD a vil. Scotland, co. Argyll, 18 m. S. W. Inveraray, at the head of Lochgilg, a branch of Loch Fyne. It is well built, lighted with gas, and has an Established and a Free church, and chapels for Presbyterians, Baptists, and Episcopals, several schools, a jail, two branch banks, a rope-walk, a distillery and malt and tanning mills. About 2 m. distant is the village of Ardnamurchan, at the end of the Crinan Canal, along which steamers pass to Oban Inverness, &c. There is frequent communication by steamers with Inveraray and Glasgow. Pop. (1841) 2748 (1851) 3702

LOCHGILHEAD and KILMARNOCK, par. Scot. Argyll; 25 m. by 10 m. Pop. 834 with the watering village of Lochgilhead at the upper end.

LOCHINVAR a small lake, Scotland, Kirkcaldy shire, 4 m. N. E. Dalry 3 m. in circuit and abounding in excellent trout. Here are the remains of what is said to have been a castle of the Gordons, formerly knights of Lochinvar

LOCHLIS par. Scot. Forfar 15 m. by 7 m. P. 616

LOCHMABEN, a royal and par. bar and par. Scotland, co. Dumfries. The town is in a plain in the centre of Annandale, and nearly surrounded by eight beautiful lakes, 3 m. N. E. Dumfries, has well kept streets, an Established, a Free, and U. Presbyterian church, an old to school several schools, two public circulating libraries, a young men's society and a savings-bank. The inhabitants are mostly employed in the making of hosiery for the Dumfries manufacturers. According to tradition, Lochmaben was created a burgh soon after the accession of Robert Bruce, who was here in a castle hard by, the remains of which still exist. It trades with Dumfries &c., in returning a member to Parliament. P. 1609—Area of par., 10,750 ac. Pop. 8127 —(Loch. Correspondent)

LOCHOWITZ, a vil. Bohemia, shire and 9 m. S. E. W. Broumov, on the Mlawa; with a church, and manufacture of cotton cloth. Pop. 1250

LOCHREUTON, par. Scot. Kirkcudbright, 8000 ac. P. 736

LOCHS, par. Scot. Ross, 10 m. by 3 m. Pop. 4355

LOCHWINNOCK, a vil. and par. Scotland, co. Renfrew. The town is 14 m. W. S. W. Glasgow, on the railway thence to Ayr; has four principal and well kept streets; an Established, a Free, and a U. Presbyterian church; six schools; two large cotton-mills, and a wool-mill. Some of the inhabitants have been weavers; but the generality are employed in the cotton-mill. Pop. 1277 Area of par., 19,540 ac.

LOCHY (Loch), a lake, Scotland, co. Inverness, dist. Lochaber, about 11 m. long, and generally under 1 m. broad; communicating at the N. E. end with Loch Clack; and at the N.W. and with Loch Eil, through a straitened channel the Lochy falls into the division of the Locheside Coast, of which Loch Eil itself forms a portion. It is mostly very shallow.

LOCKHEE, a seaport in China, E. coast of Hainan, near the mouth of a river; lat. 19° 19' N | lon. 110° 24' E. It is a large place, surrounded by walls and ramparts 30 ft. thick, in tolerable condition, and entered by four gates, having the cardinal points. The streets are paved but narrow; the houses, built of brick, never exceed two stories in height; the shops are elegant, and well supplied with various kinds of merchandise. Pop. about 50,000.

LOCKBERRY a tn. Scotland, co. and 11 m. E.N.E. Dumfries, on the Caledonian Railway. It has an Established Free, and a U. Presbyterian church; five schools, two libraries, and an active trade in bacon, chiefly for the English market. In August the largest lamb fair in Scotland is held here. Pop. 1500.

LOCKERLEY par Eng. Herts 1729 aa. Pop. 627.

LOCKERIDGE par Eng. Somerset 1818 aa. Pop. 156.

LOCKINGE par Eng. Berks, 8829 aa. Pop. 297.

LOCKINGTON, two aa. Eng. Leicestershire 2185 aa. Pop. 625—3 York (E. Riding) 8300 aa. Pop. 457.

LOCKWOOD, a vil. England, co. York (W. Riding) The village, 1½ m. S.W. Huddersfield, of which it forms a beautiful rural suburb, is delightfully situated in the vale of the Holme, much resorted to for its medicinal waters, and has a church and two Baptist chapels. Pop. 5418.

LOGE (La) a vil and par Switzerland on and 10 m. W.N.W. Neuchâtel in a valley of the same name, traversed by the Rhod, nearly 3000 ft. above the sea. It is a scattered place, but the houses, generally painted outside, have a pleasing appearance. It has an orphan asylum hospital for old men, important manufactures of clocks and watches, jewellery and lace. Near Loge the Rhod disappears in a rocky chasm, which, not having a large enough vent for the water when increased by melting snows, causes disastrous inundations. The danger has now been removed by an aqueduct, consisting of a tunnel 950 ft. long, cut through the solid limestone rock which encloses the valley and carries the superfluous water into the Doubs. The chasm where the Rhod disappears, is 100 ft. deep, and to render the full available several mills are above the other have been constructed within it. They stand in frightful situations, and are approached by flights of steps, amid darkness and noise. Pop. (1850) 8514.

LOCOBOTONDO, a tn. Naples, par Terra di Bari and 85 m. S.E. Bari. Pop. 4370.

LOCSMAND, or LOVTSKAFSROG a market in Hungary Thither Danube, on the Rapce about 6 m. N.E. Güns, with two churches and an annual fair. Pop. 1251.

LOCZ, a vil. Hungary Thither Danube, co. Neograd, about 10 m. from Szekel with a R. Catholic church. Pop. 1090.

LOD, two vils. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. Vaspsur —1, (Kis), 13 m. from Vaspsur, with a church, manufactures of all kinds of articles in wood, an iron and a flour mill, and a trade in corn and fruit. P. 1388.—2, (Vörö), 12 m. from Vaspsur, on the Torna, with a church and manufactures of wooden articles, a brewery and flour mill, and a trade in corn, hemp, flax potatoes and malice; coal, ironstone, and arsenic, are worked in the vicinity. P. 1767.

LODDINGTON two pars. Eng.—1, Leicestershire 1840 aa. Pop. 112.—2 Northampton 1234 aa. Pop. 279.

LODDISWELL, par Eng. Devon 3568 aa. P. 948.

LODDON—1, a market in par Eng. co. Norfolk, on the coast, an affluent of the Yare 10 m. S.E. Norwich. It consists of a single street and has a handsome parish church, with an embattled tower, and a beautiful window of stained glass; Wesleyan and a Primitive Methodist chapel, a national school, mill-race, a weekly corn market, and four annual fairs. Area of par. 1050 aa. Pop. 1311.—2, A river, England, rises in co. Hants, flows N.E., and enters the Thames 6 m. N.E. Reading, total course about 80 m.—3, A river, England, co. Hereford, a tributary of the Frome.—4, (or Verdun), a river Australia, in Victoria, which flows westerly N., and enters the Murray, in lat. 35° 37' S.; lon. 145° 40' E. LODELLINAKT, a vil. and com. prov. Hainaut, about 22 m. S. Mons, with important glass-works; manufactures of silk, a brewery a flour-mill, and saw-mills. Pop. 1716.

LODESB, par Eng. Dorset; 2341 aa. Pop. 966.

LODEVE (anc. Forum Nervae Aremundum), a tn. France, dep. Hérault, in a pretty valley, at the foot of the Cevennes, on bank Rhod, here spanned by a handsome bridge, 39 m. W.N.W. Montpellier. It is walled, poorly and irregularly built, has an old cathedral church, containing a fine mosaic of white marble important manufactures of army clothing, and of woollen stuff, hosiery, soap, and wax candles, and a trade in woollens, wine, honey, almonds, &c. Lodeve possesses mineral springs, which were once much resorted to, but have been almost deserted since the discovery of the thermal spring of Balarne. In the vicinity is a grotto with fine stalactites. Pop. 10,372.

LODI—1, A tn. Italy; Lombardy cap. prov. of same name, in a fertile plain, on a gentle height, above r. bank Adda here crossed by a wooden bridge, 16 m. S.E. Milan. It consists of the town proper, surrounded by ancient walls, with four gates, and of eight suburbs. It is well built, has several spacious, well-formed streets, and a very handsome square, lined with arcades. The principal buildings are the Duomo or cathedral a Gothic structure of the 12th century of limited dimensions, but very pure in its style of architecture, and possessed of a very curious bell-tower, and several fine frescoes; the church of the Incoronata, in the form of an octagon, after an elegant design by Giovanni Battista; a native architect, the townhouse a simple but handsome building, the Episcopal palace, the Berni and Martini palaces the theatre lyceum, and gymnasium diocesan seminary, and several other schools the English female institute, public library old castle, and two hospitals, both handsome and well endowed. The manufactures consist of majolica and delftware; refined wax, silkworms, and chemical products. The great article of trade is Parmesan cheese, which, though it takes its name from Parma, from which it was first exported, is almost wholly made in the district around Lodi, and employs the milk of more than 80,000 cows. Lodi is the seat of a bishop the seat of a civil criminal and mercantile court of first resort, and of several public offices. It is a comparatively modern city, having been built in the 12th century about 6 m. from the site of Lodi Vecchio, which had risen to some importance under the Romans, under the name of Lauda Fempet, but was entirely destroyed in 1111 by the Milanese. The only antiquities which the present town possesses, consist of inscriptions and other remains transported from Lodi Vecchio. In 1796, the French defeated the Austrians at the bridge of Lodi. Pop. 16,709.

—2, The province of Lodi, also called Lodi e Cremona, is bounded N. by those of Milan and Bergamo, W. Milan and Pavia, S. the duchy of Parma, from which it is separated by the Po, and E. Cremona area. 247 geo. sq. m. It consists of gently undulating plains, well watered by the Lambro in the W., the Adda in the centre, the Serio in the E., and the Po in the S., and of remarkable fertility producing corn in abundance, corn, wine, flax, and fruit and more especially the rich and peculiarly flavoured grass, from which the greater part of the cheese, known in commerce under the name of Parmesan, is made. The manufactures are almost confined to hosiery and cordage, and the chief trade is in Parmesan cheese, and another cheese called Stracchino, which, though less known, is considered superior. For administrative purposes, the province is divided into nine districts—Lodi, the capital, Pavia, San Angelo, Borgogna Casal Pusterungo, Codogno, Piacenza, and two districts which take the common name of Crema. Pop. (1846) 218,844.—3 (Lodi-Piacenza) A vil. and com. Italy, Lombardy prov. and 3 m. W. Lodi on the Salzo occupying the site of the ancient Lauda Pompeia. It has a church an oil mill, and a trade in cheese. Pop. 8217.

LODOMERIA (Krasnodar OT) See GALICIA.

LODOSA, a tn. Spain, Navarre, 41 m. S.W. by S. Pamplona, 1 bank Ebro, here crossed by a stone bridge. It has a parish church, townhouse, two schools, a bell-ringing, and manufactures of silk and brandy. Pop. 2283.

LODSWORTH, par Eng. Sussex; 1805 aa. P. 661.

LOEAN, or LOWAN, an ind. Indian Archipelago, between Timor and Timor Laut, lat. 8° 10' S.; lon. 138° 30' E. It is surrounded by a reef, fringed with islets; consists of a lofty mountain, visible at a great distance, and is several miles in extent. A harbor trade is carried on with merchandise, who visit the island, in ships and boats, and are being given in exchange for needed articles.

LOEHOE, Loehoe, or Loehoe, a native state, Isl. Celebes, occupying the N. part of the Gulf of Boni, and one of the greatest and most mighty kingdoms in the island. Its capital of same name, lies on a bay, on the W side of the gulf; lat. 2° 54' S. Gold, iron, and steel are found; and the inhabitants prepare a great variety of excellent handiwork, and other articles in iron, which are sent to Macassar and to the neighbouring islands. The anglo-palis is the chief vegetable product of Loehoe. — (Van der A.)

LOENEN, a wall built by Holland, prov. and 14 m. N.W. Utrecht, on the Yeicht, with a church and school. Pop. 905.

LOENHOUT a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. and 17 m. N.E. Antwerp, on the Little Aa with manufactures of tobacco, brick works, several mills, and a trade in corn, cattle, and timber. Pop. 1748.

LOEWANG and LOEWANG ISLANDS. See LOEWS.
LOFFENAU, a tn. Württemberg, circle Schwarzwald, bail. Remsberg on W side of Black Forest, in a deep valley, enclosed by lofty precipices, and watered by numerous mountain torrents rushing down to the Murg. It has a parish church. Pop. 1093.

LOFFINGEN a tn. Baden, Lake circle among the mountains of the Black Forest, 41 m. N.W. Constanz. It contains a townhouse and school-house. Pop. 1191.

LOFO, a small isl. entrance to the Gulf of Bothnia, and N.W. end. Island, to which group it belongs. Preliminary of peace between Russia and Sweden were signed here in 1718.

LORODDEN or Lorodden, a group of isls. off N.W. coast Norway. lat. 67° 50' N. and lon. 12° and 16° E. and stretching S.W. to N.E. about 175 m. The largest are Anden, Langen, Hindoen, E. and W. Vaguen and Pletastien. They have almost all bold precipitous, rugged, and deeply indented coasts, and an elevated and very storic interior, several of them containing mountains, which though not very lofty, are covered with perpetual snow. These mountains, and the rocks generally are composed of porphyry basalt, and primitive schists. The coasts only of the islands are inhabited, and contain some traces under such cultivation as the rigour and uncertainty of the climate will admit, but the chief value of the whole group is derived from the immense shoals of cod and herring which frequent them, and the extensive and valuable fisheries which are consequently carried on at the proper seasons. In January, fishermen from all parts of the coast, from Finnmark, Tromsøen, and Bergen assemble by thousands, and take up their stations along the islands, to await the fish which are in from the ocean in the beginning of February and occupy the banks of the W. Fiord, a large arm of the sea, extending between the chains of islands and the mainland. In ordinary years, about 3000 boats, each manned by five boats, or 15,000 in all, are employed, and the produce in cod is about 9000 tons dried fish, 22,000 barrels of oil, and 6000 barrels of cod. The principal cod-fishery ends in April, but the herring-fishery continues, and furnishes an important branch of national revenue. Permanent pop. about 4000.

LOTHOUSE, par. Eng. co. York (N. Riding), 2835 ac. Pop. 1192.

LOFTSA, a vil. Sweden, lla. Wasterik, near the source of a stream of same name, 25 m. N.W. W. Upsala. It has a handsome church, and a number of well built houses, particularly those connected with the iron-works, which are among the most extensive, and make this one of the principal iron works in Sweden. The manor-house contains a library, and some good paintings.

LOFTSCHE, or Loftsch, a tn. Turkey in Europe, prov. Bulgaria, 222 m. N.W. Constantinople lat. 48° 10' N.; lon. 24° 50' E., intersected by the Ouza, which is here crossed by a large bridge. It is surrounded by a low, earthen wall, and a small ditch. Pop. 5000.

LOGAN MOUNTAINS, a range of M. Australia, in the dist. of Darling Downs, forming the watershed between the Darling and the Lago, com. lat. 30° S.; lon. 150° E. One of its culminating peaks, called Mount Logan, has a height of 6700 ft., and gives rise both to the Chumbar and the Lago. The latter river forms a very circuitous course, first N.W., and then N.E., and falls into the sea S. of Horton Bay, opposite Sheddocks Island. Its principal affluents are the Albert on the right, and the Tivoli on the left. It is partly navigable.

LOGANSPORT, a vil., U. States, Indiana, 79 m. N. by W. Indianapolis, at the junction of the Wabash and Eel Rivers, each of which is here crossed by a handsome bridge. It contains a courthouse, jail, and six churches. Pop. 1500.

LOGANZEHY, a tn., W. Africa, N. of Dahomey; lat. 8° 55' N.; lon. 2° 30' E. It is strongly fenced, has an inner wall, and a large outer and inner market, well supplied with native produce and manufactures. Rats, mice, and the guinea, a kind of lizard, are also sold in great numbers. Nearly one side of the principal square is occupied by corn-mills, at which young female slaves are employed grinding corn. The whole is covered in with a roof neatly thatched. Pop. 5000 to 6000.

LOGGIA (La), a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy, div. Turin, 2 m. from Carignano; with a church and a primary school. Pop. 1348.

LOGGUN, a country, Central Africa, situated S. of Lake Tchad, and intersected by the Kary. The climate is said to be healthy, and the soil fertile. The natives have a name for manufacturing and drying cotton goods.

LOGHILL, par. Scot. Lincolnshire 5154 ac. P. 1518.
LOGHUR, a stream in the Highlands, prov. Ross-shire, prov. Argyllshire, 80 m. N.W. Ptochall lat. 58° 41' N. lon. 3° 37' E.; upon a perpendicular and almost impassable height. The magnesian are excavated in the rock, and are extensive. The fort is supplied with water by numerous tanks, and springs which issue from the rock above. It was taken by the British in 1818.

LOGIE, sees para. Scot. — 1. Fife 8349 ac. P. 457 — 2, Shetland 12 600 ac. P. 2561. — 3, (Buckton) Aberdeen 6419 ac. P. 724 — 4, (Collieston) Aberdeen, 6 m. by 2½ m. P. 480 — 5, (Easter) Ross 7 m. by 2 m. P. 985 — (Fort), Perth 5195 ac. P. 1600. — 7, (Rath), Perth 37,411 ac. P. 2878.

LOGGINI, a small seaport, E. coast Sicily, prov. and 6 m. S.W. Syracuse, formed by a large rock joined to the mainland by a reef. It used to be often visited, on predatory excursions, by the Barbary corsairs.

LOGO or Logo, a dist. of W. Africa, N.E. from Sierra Leone. It is naturally very fertile, and capable of producing abundant crops of rice. The capital Porto Logo, lat. 6° 40' N. lon. 12° 35' W., is a neat town, rather picturesque in its appearance, extending along the elevated banks of a creek formed by the rivulet Logo.

LOGROÑO a prov. Spain, Old Castile, lat. 41° 55' to 42° 15' N. lon. 1° 45' to 2° 14' W.; bounded N. by prov. Alava and Navarra, E. by Navarra, S.E. by Borne, and W. by Burgos, area, 2378 sq. m. In the N. parts bordering the Ebro, it is level and highly fertile, producing heavy crops of grain, abounding in fruits and vegetables of every description, yielding wine and oil of superior quality and exporting considerable numbers of sheep, goats, horned cattle, horses, and mules, whilst the S. portions, traversed by the Sierra de Guadalupe, which also forms the boundary towards prov. Biscaya, are generally barren and little wooded, except in the lower parts, but they abound in copper, antimony, iron, tin, coal, building-stone, marble, &c. The province belongs to the basin of the Ebro, which forms its N. boundary, and is traversed, S. to N., by many affluents of that river, the chief of which are the Tiron, Oja, Magarito, Cidacos, and Alhama. The manufactures, which are very limited, consist of linen, woollen, hemp, and cotton fabrics soap, parchment, tannery, agricultural implements, wine-work, cordage, &c. Pop. 130,518.

LOGROÑO, a city, Spain, esp. above prov. 168 m. N.E. Madrid, r. bank Ebro, here crossed by a handsome stone bridge. It is well built, walled, and overlooked by the remains of an old castle, has five squares, and wide, paved, but badly-kept streets; a college, and five parish churches, three convents, two hospitals, two and a half schools, a prison, theatre, Jewish college, several schools, an orphan asylum, literary and scientific associations, and other useful and benevolent institutions; and manufactures of linen, woollen, and hemp fabrics, hats, cards, leather, candles, soap, tannery, wine, oil, and vinegar. Logroño was twice taken by the French in 1808. Pop. 68,448.

LOGROBÁN, a tn. Spain, Vizcaya, prov. and 54 m. S.E.E. Oviedo. It has a large square, a parish church, townhouse, prison, two schools, a townhouse, and manufactures of linen and coarse cloth. Pop. 2596.

LOGSTON, a vil. Denmark, Jutland, tall and 36 m. W. W. Aalborg, on the Limfjorden. The shallow in the fiord, in front of the town, oblige vessels of burden to unlade or lighten their cargo on approaching it, and thus secure to it a considerable tonnage trade. The inhabitants not thus employed live chiefly by fishing. It has a considerable annual fair. Pop. 800.

LOGURH,—1, A vil. Afghanistan, cap. dist., and on a river of same name, 18 m. S.E.E. Cabool. The DURRUZ, extending up the N. slope of the high land of Ghaznee, has an average height of more than 6000 ft.; but is fertile, well-watered, and well-cultivated.—2, A river, which rises in a volcanic district to the W. of Ghaznee, flows S.W., just that town, then circuitously N.E. and, after a course of about 80 m. joins r. bank Cabool, about 10 m. below the town of Cabool, nearly doubling its volume.

LOHRIA, a market, Arable, the most N. in Yemen, lat. 15° 49' N. It stands on a sandy tongue of land, running S. and so low, that if, at spring tides, the wind blows from the S., the isthmus connecting the town with the mainland is liable to be overflown by the sea. This however occurs, on an average, but once a year. The Bay of Lohria, though capacious, forms but an indifferent harbour, being so shallow that at the ebb—and the tide here rises but 4 ft.—even small boats cannot, if laden, approach the shore. The country around is like the coast of the Tethys in general, repulsively dry and barren, yet, notwithstanding these disadvantages, a town sprung up here towards the end of the 16th century, round the tomb of a saint; and, owing to the influence of the saint's posterity, and some convenience of position, attained, in the course of years a high degree of commercial prosperity.

MOQUEE IN LOHRIA.—From Hedd's History and Gazetteer of India.

A few houses are built of coral rock, but most of the dwellings are huts constructed of boughs and covered with matting. The water is bad and very dear, being brought from a distance of some leagues. Nearly all the inhabitants of Lohria, of the better class, are coffee merchants; to these may be added about 40 Banyans, mostly poor artisans, or the clerks and agents of Indian merchants. Ordinarily the coffee at this port is inferior to that brought down to Moeha; but being cheaper, and somewhat nearer to Egypt, it meets with a ready sale. Pop. about 4000.—(Niebuhr, Deser de L'Arabie.)

LOHMEYER, a vil. Saxony, circle and 12 m. E.S.E. Dresden, on the Wessitz, with a castle, manufactures of tin and tinware, three mills, and quarries of building-stone. P. 1097.

LOHR, a m. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, cap. dist., r. bank Main, at the confluence of the Lohr and Reichenbach, which are here crossed by bridges, 79 m. N.W. Nürnberg. It has a court of justice and several public offices, three churches, a castle, a Latin school, a Capuchin almshouse, an hospital, manufactures of ironware, leather, paper, and glass, a brewery, building-yard, some shipping an extensive trade, particularly in timber, and various mills. Pop. 5714. Area of dist., 80 sq. m. Pop. 14,844.

LOIRE [see Loire], a river, France, which rises 22 m. S.W. Angers, dep. Maine, flows N.W. some dep. Loiret, in which, from its opposite banks, it supplies the two canals of Briare and Loing, and in dep. Saône-et-Maine, 12 m. S.E. Males, joins l. bank Saône; total course, about 25 m., much used for floating timber in the upper part, but in the lower part nearly absorbed by the canal.

LOIRE [see Loire], a river, France, which rises in dep. Eure-et-Loir, in a range of hills which, stretching E. and W., forms the watershed between the basins of the Seine and the Loire. It first flows generally S.E. for a few miles, then turns S.W., crosses dep. Loiret-et-Cher, the S. part of dep. Sarthe, enters dep. Maine-et-Loire, and joins l. bank Saône, a little above the junction of the latter with the Mayenne, and 7 m. N. Angers, total course about 150 m., of which 80 m. are navigable. Its principal affluents are on the right, the Oudon and Braye, on the left, the Coule, Long, and Maulne.

LOIRE-ET-CHEER, a central dep. France, bounded N. by dep. Eure-et-Loir, N.E. and E. by Loiret, S.E. by Cher, S. by Indre and W. by Indre-et-Loire and Sarthe; lat. 47° 14' to 48° 10' N. lon. 0° 50' to 1° 20' E. longest length, N.W. to S.E., 84 m., average breadth, measured nearly along the Loire, 32 m., area, 2369 sq. m. It consists almost entirely of extensive plains, having a slope, however S.W., only in dictated by the course of its rivers. The Loire, to the basin of which the whole department belongs, traverses it centrally, receiving the Cisse and Beuvron, the Loir, with its tributary the Bray, however for N., and the Cher, with its tributary the Sèvre, its S. portion. These three principal rivers have all a W. direction, and are all navigable. The whole department belongs to the cretaceous formation, and is not rich in minerals. There are some mines of iron, quarries of alabaster and building-stone, excellent marl and potter's clay; but perhaps the most important of the mineral products of the department is, or rather was, its flints, which, before the invention of porcelaneous cups supplied the markets of France and a great part of Europe. The soil is generally fertile. More than one-half of the whole is arable, and less than one-eighth waste. The latter, which consists of sandy tracts mingled with gravel and flints, and a minute portion of vegetable mould, contains a vast number of small lakes or ponds, and, where altogether unfit for cultivation is tolerably well covered with pines. On the far larger fertile tracts, the chief products are cereals of all kinds, hemp, of fine quality, beet root, for sugar the ordinary fruits, and wine, both red and white, generally of good name, more particularly the red wine of Grignon, Chanton, and Côte-du-Cher, and the white wines of Néels and Marbais. The pastures and meadows are excellent and extensive, and rear great numbers of horses, cattle, and sheep. The chief manufactures are coarse woollen clothes, worsted, fustians, molasses, cottons, hosiery, leather, leather gloves, rubber goods, glass, gun flint porcelain, and excise-ware. The trade, which is considerable, includes the articles now mentioned corn, wine, brandy, and wool; and derives great facilities from navigable streams, and from the Cher Canal. In the time of Caesar, this department was inhabited by the Turones, Carataci, and Aulerci. In the reign of Charlemagne the Simple, it fell into the hands of the Count of Chartres, one of whose successors sold it, in 1391, to the Duke of Orleans, afterwards Louis XII. It was thus united to the crown as the county of Blois, and became the frequent residence of the court a circumstance which accounts for the remarkable number of chateaux with which the department abounds, and probably, also, for the superiority of the language of its inhabitants. It is said that in no part of France is French spoken in greater purity than in the town and neighbourhood of Blois, which was the seat, and is also the modern capital. For administrative purposes, Loire-et-Cheer is divided into three arrondissements—Blois, Amboise, and Vendôme—subdivided into 24 cantons and 295 communes. Pop. (1862), 261,583.

LOIRE (see Liger), one of the principal rivers of France, which it divides into two nearly equal portions, traversing it almost throughout its whole extent, E. S. E. to W. N. W. It rises on the W. slope of the Cevennes, in the Gâtinais des Juncs, dep. Ardèche, about 30 m. W. by N. Privas, and flows generally N. and N. W. through dep. Haute-Loire, Maine-et-Loire, Sarthe, Mayenne, and Norm. At the town of Orléans, the town of La Ferté, Mayenne, and Norm. At the town of Orléans, the course changes to E. W., a direction it maintains till it falls into the Bay of Biscay, below Nantes. In the latter part of its course, it flows through dep. Loire-et-Cher, Loire-et-Loire, Maine-et-Loire, and Loire-Inférieure, and passes the towns of Blois, Tours, and Nantes. At Digoin, in dep. Allier, it is crossed by the Canal du Centre. In its course it receives the Arroux on the r., in dep. Saône-et-Loire, and nearly opposite, from the l., the Ouche and Beure, from dep. Allier, and in dep. Nièvre it receives, on the l., the Allier which almost doubles its volume, on the borders of dep. Loire-et-Loire and Maine-et-Loire, it receives the Vienne, its second great tributary and also on the l. near the center of the last-named dep. It is greatly augmented by the Mayenne, which joins it on the r. entering in its flood the united waters, likewise, of the Loir and Sarthe. Other two smaller streams, the Eudre, and the Sèvre-Nantaise, join it at Nantes, one coming from either side. Below Nantes, where it first feels the influence of the tide, it is more an estuary than a river. It becomes studded with islands, and shortly after pours its mighty flood into the Bay of Biscay about 3 m. below Falmouth. The whole course of this majestic river is about 600 m. It first becomes navigable at Nozay, but only for vessels following the course of the stream, and not upwards, without tracking. The navigation properly begins about 45 m. lower at Rouen, about 450 m. above its mouth. In the lower part of its course, the navigation is very much interrupted by shifting sands. The river is also much subject to inundations, which have, on many occasions, committed fearful ravages and the danger of which, notwithstanding the express mention intended to guard against it, cannot yet be considered as entirely removed. At the commencement of its course, the Loire flows through a wild and romantic country and has all the characteristics of an impetuous mountain torrent. As it descends its valley widens out, forming extensive plains, so richly covered with orchards, vineyards, and corn-fields, that they have justly received the name of the garden of France. The basin of the Loire has been estimated at one-fourth of the whole surface of the kingdom or about 50,000 sq. m.

LOIRE, a central dep. France, bounded N. by dep. Saône-et-Loire, E. by dep. Rhône and river Rhone, du l'ouest s'étendant à l'est, Loire, S. by dep. Ardèche and Haute-Loire, and W. by dep. Puy-de-Dôme and Allier; lat. 43° 14' to 46° 17' N. lon 3° 45' to 4° 45' E. 56 m. N. to S., and 33 m. E. to W., area 1805 sq. m. The department is traversed centrally, S. to N., by the Loire, into which, and a few smaller tributaries, its waters flow and consists of the fertile plains which extend on both sides of that river forming its valley, and long ridges of the Cevennes, which leave the valley in an every side. The only modification that must be made to this description is that at the E. end, where the E. side of the Cevennes and receives the waters of the E. side of Mount Pilate. The highest summit of that mountain, about 1500 ft. above its base, and 3963 ft. above the level of the sea, is the culminating point of the department. The next highest two are Pierre-sur-Haute, in the W. 3983 ft. and Madeline, 2870 ft. Many of the mountains are covered with verdure to their summits, and feed large numbers of cattle, from the dairy produce of which excellent cheese is made, but many of them, also, particularly in the neighbourhood of Four, are evidently volcanic, though exhibiting none of the signs and external characteristics of the Vesuvius, Vésuvius, and Ararat. Here they consist of black, heavy, compact basalt, sometimes columnar and frequently terminating in lofty peaks or cones. This basalt, by exposure to the air, takes a dark gray color and decomposes into a blackish silty clay, forming a soil of great fertility. On the mountain-slopes fine chestnuts are grown, well known in commerce as the chestnuts of Lyon. Above one-half of the surface is arable, rather less than one-fifth is waste, about one-third is meadows, gardens, orchards, vineyards, and woodland. The chief agricultural products are wheat, rye, barley, oats, hemp, and potatoes.

The last and characteristic part of a principal article of food among the lower classes. A good deal of wine is produced, but ranks only as the wine of the first quality. There are several extensive forests, chiefly confined to the mountains, producing fine pine, fir, beech, and oak. Iron and lead are wrought to a limited, and scale to a large extent, part of the department being in the east-field of the Loire, the most important in France. Iron is smelted, and extensively manufactured into articles of hardware, especially muskets and cutlery; silk, ribbons, crapes, velvets, flannel and cotton goods, porcelain, and common earthenware are made, and glass makes numerous furnaces in constant operation. Many of the articles enumerated form important branches of export trade. Loire was anciently inhabited by the Segusiavi, and afterwards included in the Roman province Lugdunensis (Lyonnaise). At a later period, it took the name of Foras, of which Four was the capital, and formed an independency which was long governed by its own Counts. Ultimately, in the reign of Francis I., it was united to the crown of France. For administrative purposes, Loire is divided into three arrondissements—Montbrison the capital, Roanne and St. Etienne—and subdivided into 28 cantons and 319 communes. Pop. (1852), 473,568.

LOIRE-HAUTE (Upper Loire) a dep. France, bounded N. by dep. Puy-de-Dôme and Loire, E. by Loire and Ardèche, S. by Ardèche and Lozère, W. by Lozère and Cantal; lat. 44° 45' to 45° 25' N.; lon 3° 10' to 4° 25' E. 98 m. W. E., 41 m. N. to S., area, 1900 sq. m. It is surrounded on all sides by lofty mountains, which belong to the Cevennes, and also send off a branch from the S., which intersecting the dep. centrally, forms the watershed between the Loire and the Allier, whose valleys, accordingly share the for greater part of the surface between them, and are furrowed by numerous small tributaries hastening on to join their main channels. All the mountains are volcanic; those on the E. side, commencing at Mount Meunier, and stretching N. to St. Maurice, consisting chiefly of trachyte, the others of basalt. The intervening plateaus and valleys are occupied by large collections of debris from the mountains or filled with scoriae, and not unfrequently beds of clay, sand, and marl, the curiously intermingled with them. Where the basaltic lava prevails, its decomposition has furnished a soil of greater or less depth, but invariably of great fertility. The loftier mountains are generally covered with forests, in which wild boars, wolves, foxes, wild cats, deer, and many varieties of smaller game abound, or with verdant pastures on which large herds of cattle and mules are reared. On some of the lower slopes magnificent chestnuts grow abundantly and vine, also, by careful cultivation, are occasionally made to thrive. The soil of the plains and valleys is generally fertile, and favours the growth of all the ordinary crops. Notwithstanding the rugged nature of the country, the extent of waste land is considerably under one-fifth of the whole while nearly three-fourths are available either for the plough, or for meadows, gardens, orchards, and vineyards. About one-seventh is under wood. The minerals are apparently of little economic value. Traces of copper have been found, and iron is known to exist; but the only metals actually worked are lead and antimony, each by a single mine. The iron ore of the coal formation appears in several districts, and a little coal is raised. Garnets, amethysts, tourmalines, and other precious stones, are not uncommon. The only manufactures are coarse woollen stuffs, ribbons, leather, bells for milkmaids, brooks and tiles, earthenware and lace, the last chiefly in the hands of females of the poorer class, who do the work at their own houses. About 5000 workmen annually leave the department, and after an absence of six months return with their gains, not exceeding, on an average, 25 per head. Haute-Loire, in the time of Cæsar, was inhabited by the Volcæ, and formed part of the Roman prov. Aquitania Prima. In the 5th century it fell under the dominion of the Visigoths, and, a century later, under that of the Franks. At a later period it belonged to the Counts of Toulouse, and, in the 12th century, passed, with the rest of Languedoc, to the crown of France. For administrative purposes, this dep. is divided into three arrondissements—Le Puy, the capital, Brioude and Tournai—and subdivided into 28 cantons and 255 communes. Pop. (1852) 394,915.

LOIRE-LOUHAUTE (Lower Loire), a W. maritime dep. of France bounded N. by dep. Ille-et-Vilaine, N. W. by dep. Morbihan, W by the Bay of Biscay, S. by Vendée, and E by Maine-et-Loire; lat. 46° 58' to 47° 38' N lon. 0° 55' to 3° 50' W, 65 m. N to S, and 55 m. E. to W; area, 2565 sq. m. The surface of this department is flat, occasionally broken by gentle undulations, but without any lofty eminences and is furrowed by numerous streams. The coast has an extent of about 50 m.; and is much indented, lying exposed to the billows of the Bay of Biscay which are occasionally striking occasionally on the coast, and forming extensive salt marshes. In the N. and N.W. portion of the department, the rocks consist of granite, mica slate, quartz, and granite in the E. and S.E., the formation is secondary, and the coal measures are considerably developed. Several collieries, accordingly, are in active operation, and their output, besides supplying domestic wants furnishes fuel to numerous iron works, employed in smelting the bog iron-ore which occurs in extensive seams within the department, and carrying on other processes of the iron manufacture. Lead, and traces of copper have been found; but no other mineral, in addition to those mentioned, is worked, except kaolin, which the decomposed granite furnishes in considerable abundance. The great river is the Loire, which traverses the department E to W, and discharges itself into the Bay of Biscay. The other navigable rivers are the Vilaine, which for a short distance, separates this department from those of Ille-et-Vilaine, and Morbihan, the Maine, Maine, Erdre, Tanne, Drée, Boulogne, and Ognon. Lagoons and lakes are very numerous. The largest is Grandlieu, which has an area of 24 sq. m. Both lakes and rivers, as well as the sea-coast, abound with fish, and employ a great number of boats. About one-fifth of the whole surface is waste, consisting of sterile sand or beach. Nearly one-half is arable. The rest of the land is occupied with meadows, vineyards, orchards, gardens, and wood. Rain falls much more frequently than in the interior and the variations of temperature are both great and sudden. Winter is comparatively mild, but the heats of summer are often so excessive as to be almost tropical. The manufactures consist principally of woollen, linen, and cotton stuffs, laces, and serge. Ship-building also, is carried on to a considerable extent in all its departments, including the manufacture of cordage, cables, anchors, and whatever is necessary for the complete equipment of vessels. Iron-works have been already mentioned. To these may be added—tanneries, glass-works, potteries, and paper-mills. Both the internal and coasting trade is very important. The foreign trade is chiefly to Spain, Portugal, Holland, the N. of Europe and Senegal. A good many vessels are employed in the whale, cod, herring, mackerel and sardine fisheries. A great proportion of the inhabitants cannot read; and the belief in ghosts and witchcraft is so very general, that almost every individual has his tale of wonder. The greater part of the original inhabitants of this department were the hannetes, considered to be of the American stock: those on the E. bank of the Loire were Pictavi or Pictones. About the middle of the 6th century, a number of the inhabitants of Great Britain, expelled by the Saxons, took refuge here, and formed the kingdom of Brittany. Under the sons of Clovis, the kingdom was broken up, and partitioned among princes, who took the title of counts. Almost the whole of the department was included in the county of Nantes, which along with the rest of Brittany was united to the crown of France at the beginning of the 16th century. Loire-inférieure, for administrative purposes, is divided into five arrondissements—Nantes (the capital), Ancenis, Chantenay, Falmout, and Savennay—and subdivided into 45 cantons and 266 communes. Pop. (1829), 538,664.

LOIRET, a small river, France, which gives its name to a department. It rises about 3 m. S.E. Orleans. It shortly after receives several small streams, and becomes navigable. Its whole course is little more than 7 m. but the quantity of water carried by it to the Loire, which it joins on its E. bank, is great. Up to the Loire it never flows in a straight line, and probably owing to the high temperature of its springs, and caused to subside by the braggance of Orleans, viz. in winter, swells it the margin for their target.

LOIRET, a small dep. France, bounded, N by dep. Seine-et-Oise, Seine-et-Marne, E. by Yonne and Nièvre, S. by Loiret-Charente (Cher), and W. by Maine-et-Loire; lat. 47° 30' to 48° 30' N, lon. 1° 30' to 2° 30' E, 25 m. E. to W, and 50 m. N to S. area, 1551 sq. m. The surface is partly flat, partly undulating, with nothing that deserves the name of mountains, and scarcely even any hills, except a low ridge, which stretches across its centre, occupied partly by the forest of Orleans and forming, in the E. the watershed between the basins of the Seine and the Loire. The latter river, traversing the department E. to W, divides it into two unequal portions, of which the features are very different. The smaller portion, on the S. bank, forms part of the ancient Sologne, and is a black, sandy, sterile tract, with occasional patches of vineyards: the N., and larger portion, forms part of what is known as the garden of France, consisting of fertile and well-cultivated plains, extensive forests, fine meadows and pastures. The rivers, in addition to the Loire are its tributary, the Loir, from which the department takes its name, and the Loue and the Oudon, tributaries of the Senna. The water communication is much extended by the canals of Orleans, Loir, and Briare. The climate is temperate and healthy, but, owing to exhalations from the rivers, canals, and a vast number of small lakes, of which 900 are counted, some districts are subject to fever and ague. About one-twelfth of the whole surface is waste, one-seventh in wood, one-twentieth vineyard, and considerably more than one-half arable land, generally of remarkable fertility, and admirably adapted for the growth of wheat, which forms the principal crop, and besides supplying the home consumption, is largely exported. A crop, almost peculiar to some of the N. cantons, is saffron. The minute attention which its culture requires employs a great number of persons, old and young. The vine is extensively cultivated, but none of the white bears a high name. Various fruits, of the quality, are raised, and, when dried, form a considerable article of commerce. There are several extensive forests, particularly those of Orleans and Montargis. The former is about 50 m. long, by 15 m. broad—including however several open tracts, with villages and hamlets: the latter is nearly 6 m. long and as many broad. The principal trees are oak, beech, birch, elm, and chestnut. Cattle are generally of good breeds: sheep still in great want of improvement. An important branch of rural economy is the rearing of bees. Manufactures have made little progress, but the admirable water communication of the department, and its position, secure it an important trade, which centres at Orleans. It conducts in corn, flour, wine, vinegar, bread, groceries, drugs, fruits, cider, fish, honey, tallow, wool, cattle, wood and charcoal for fuel ship timber &c. The ancient inhabitants of the department were the Aurlanti and Senones. It afterwards formed part of the empire of Clovis, and, on its dissolution, was included in the kingdom of Orleans one of the four into which that empire was divided. It was still mainly united to the French crown by Hugh Capet. Loiret, for administrative purposes, is divided into four arrondissements—Orleans, the capital, Gien, Montargis, Fichetiers—and is subdivided into 31 cantons and 343 communes. Pop. (1829) 841,029.

LOISACH, a river Germany, which rises in the N. of the Tyrol a little to the E. of Thell, flows N. N. E., enters Bavaria, expands into the Kochee sea and joins a bank lake near Wolfshausen, after a course of nearly 80 m. It is much used for floating.

LOITZ, a tn. France, prov. Flanders, gov. and 38 m. S. Brussels, 1 bank Escaut, with a court of justice, a church, two mills and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 2318.

LOJA, a tn. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 25 m. W. S. Granada, in a deep and beautiful valley traversed by the Genil, and enclosed by two mountain ranges. It consists, for the most part, of steep, irregular streets, lined by indifferent houses and of two larger squares and three smaller ones, in which some of the buildings are of respectable appearance and has three parish churches, one of them an ancient structure, with a fine monument, three suppressed monasteries, a nursery an obsequious monastery, consisting of three naves, divided by two rows of Doric columns; a south-west, with a Doric gallery of five arches a townhouse, several enclosed schools, as hospital; manufactures of silk, linen, and hempen goods, leather, shoeleather, and earthenware, dye-works, extensive salt-works, a copper, three paper, and numerous oil and flour mills. Loja appears, from the coins and other antiquities found in it, to have been an important Roman station. Under the Moors, it was defended by a castle, which, as well as the town, was taken by assault in 1526, by Frederick III. It suffered much during the burning of the town, 15,000. LAMARCA, a town, Italy, and 10 m. S. E. of Bergamo, on an elevation, from which a striking and extensive view is obtained, ranging along the chain of the distant Alps, and embracing a considerable portion of the basin of the Po.

LOK (Tura), a town in Hungary, on Danube, in a very fertile district, 1 bank Tura, 8 m. S. E. W. Tokay, with two churches, a synagogue, and several fairs. Pop. 2553.

LOKEREN a town and city, Belgium, prov. E. Flanders, 12 m. S. E. Ghent, on the railway thence to Antwerp, 1 bank Durme. The streets are clean and regular, the market-place large and handsome, and the houses generally well built and commodious. Its public buildings comprise a spacious church, with a lofty tower three chapels, a capacious townhouse, prison, well-endowed hospital, orphan asylum, numerous schools, and other benevolent institutions and it has manufactures of linen fabrics, hosiery, serge, cloth, cotton goods, lace, paper, hats, tobacco, leather, soap, candles, chimney glass, an iron foundry, hosiery, dyes, calicoes, silk, oil, mill, an active trade in manufactured goods, hemp, cotton, and agricultural produce, and three annual fairs. Pop. 16,188.

LOKHVITSA, a town, Russia, gov. and 59 m. N. W. Poltava, on a small stream of the same name, at the junction with the Dnieper. It contains three churches, has some manufactures of linen and four annual fairs; but the chief employment is agriculture. Pop. 6000.

LOKNETZ, a river, Germany, which rises near Gross-Geders, in Mecklenburg-Schwerin enters Friesland in prov. Brandenburg, flows N. W. past Lützen and, about 8 m. below joins 1 bank Elbe. 6 m. above its confluence with the Elbe, after a course of about 35 m., part of which is much used for floating.

LOKUT a village Hungary Thither Danube, co. and about 9 m. from Veszprém, in the Bakony-Wald. It has a handsome church, a chateau, and manufactures of glass, potash, and a great variety of articles in wood. Pop. 507.

LOLÉ AND, an old name. See LOLLAR.

LOLLARA a town, India, prov. Gujarat, 23 m. S. E. Rajahmundry, lat. 23° 55' N., lon. 71° 42' E. Pop. 6000.

LOLWORTH par. Eng. Cambridge, 1076 ac. P. 156.

LOME, or LOU a town in Turkey in Europe, prov. Bulgaria, 20 m. S. E. E. Widin, 1 bank Danube, near the confluence of the Lom. It is surrounded by palm-trees and a ditch, but contains few houses in proportion to the extent enclosed. Pop. 3000. — The strait runs in the mountains which separate Bulgaria from Servia, flows N. E. to the Danube, direct course, 50 m.

LOMAGNE (La) [see Lomagne] a small dist. France, in the former prov. Gascogne, dep. Lot-et-Garonne, now included in dep. Haute-Garonne and Gers.

LOMAZY a town Russian Poland, 27 m. S. E. E. Raskyn with manufactures of leather. Pop. 3000.

LOMAZZO, a villa and com. Italy, Lombardy gov. Milan, prov. Como, dist. and about 2 m. S. by F. Appiano, 1 bank Iseo, with two churches, one of which is adorned with an elegant tower, and a trade in corn, wine, and silk. P. 2392.

LOMBARDO-VEGETARIAN KINGDOM, AUSTRIAN LOMBARDY or AUSTRIAN ITALY [German, Lombardisch-Venezianisches Königreich], Italian, Regno Lombardo-Veneto, French, Royaume des Lombards-Vénitiens, an important part of the Austrian dominions, in the N. of Italy, lat. 44° 54' to 46° 51' N., lon. 6° 53' to 15° 57' E.; bounded, N. by Switzerland and the Tyrol, W. by Lake Maggiore and the Ticino, which separates it from the Swiss States; E. by the Sardegnian Islands, the duchies of Parma and Modena, and the Papal States, from all of which, with exception of Modena, it is separated by the Po; and E. by the Adriatic Sea and the kingdom of Italy. It is divided, administratively into the two governments of Milan, corresponding with Lombardy, and Venice, having for the line of separation the river Minio, which issues from the Lago di Garda, and falls into the Po, S. E. from Mantua. Greatest length, E. to W., 348 m.; greatest breadth in prov. Milan, 106 m., and in prov. Venice, 166 m.; a portion of Tyrol projecting S. near the centre, at Lago Garda, and reaching the breadth in that locality to 60 m.; area, 15,300 sq. m. The capital cities are respectively Milan and Venice—the former of which is the residence of the King, to whom the government of the kingdom is entrusted. The subdivisions, area, population, &c. of both governments, are exhibited in the following Table.

Subdivisions, Area, and Population of the Lombardo-Venetian Kingdom.

GOVERNMENT OF MILAN
Provinces or Delegations.	Area Sq. m.	Population.	Chief Towns
Bergamo	1,233	276,120	Bergamo
Brescia	997	262,280	Brescia
Como	286	108,076	Como
Cuneo	728	201,523	Cuneo
Levi-Croce	247	218,944	Levi
Monza	620	270,100	Monza
Milano	668	624,315	Milan
Parma	208	171,225	Parma
Sondrio	547	105,250	Sondrio
Total	6,970	2,758,740

GOVERNMENT OF VENICE
Provinces or Delegations.	Area Sq. m.	Population.	Chief Towns
Belluno	877	127,140	Belluno
Fedon	926	211,768	Favina
Verona	926	182,298	Verona
Trento	728	201,523	Trento
Tyrol, Friuli, or Udine	2,004	492,644	Udine
Venezia	716	224,411	Venice
Vicenza	817	202,928	Vicenza
Verona	926	182,298	Verona
Total	6,908	1,901,799
Total of both Governments.	13,878	4,660,539

The surface consists of a vast plain, lying chiefly along the I. or N. bank, and in some places even below the level of the Po, and ascending N. more or less gradually till it becomes mountainous, and is terminated by lofty ranges of the Alps. It thus consists of two distinct portions, a N. distinguished by the ruggedness of the Alpine scenery, and a S., composed of low, level plains, of almost unequalled fertility, but not free from poverty and by no means favourable to health. The mountains in the N. division have a nucleus of granite, partially overlain by primitive crystalline strata of gneiss and mica schist, and succeeded by extensive tracts of Jura limestone. Above this, thin strata of chalk are seen stretching in a narrow belt between Lakes Maggiore and Isèo and again, after a considerable interruption, extending along the E. shore of Lake Garda, then E. across the provinces of Verona, Vicenza, and Padua; and finally, N. E., as far as the province of Belluno. There, beds of tertiary marls and sandstone make their appearance, and are, doubtless, continued across the whole of the S. division of the kingdom as they reappear on the S. side of it, though they are completely concealed from the view by the deep deposits of alluvial gravels and alluvial loams which cover the intermediate plains. The W. and S. parts of the kingdom belong to the basin of the Po, which forms its S. boundary, an already mentioned—running from the N. from the Ticino, draining Lago Maggiore, and, from its interior the Lembra, the Adige, with its tributary Sarca, and bearing the waters of Lake Como, the Oglio, with its tributaries the Mella and Chiese, draining Lake Iseo, and the Minio, which last carries off the waters of Lake Garda. The E. part is shared by several independent basins, of which the most important is the Adige; and, after it, the Moncaghetto, Brenta, Piave, and Tagliamento. All the principal rivers have their mouths on the N. shores of the Adriatic. The lakes are the largest in Italy, and being situated chiefly in the N. and W. where the surface is finely diversified, are much celebrated for the beauty of their scenery. The most important are Garda, Isèo, Iseo, and Como, all wholly within Lombardy; Legnano, and Maggiore; the former less in it than in Switzerland; and the latter common to Lombardy, Switzerland, and the Sardegnian States.

Advantage has been taken of the level nature of the country in the great plain of Lombardy, chiefly occupied within the government of Milan and the Venetian provinces of Verona, and of the relative position of the lakes and rivers, to establish an extensive and most complete and efficient system of canals of irrigation. About one-sixth of the whole plain is irrigated, and about one-fifth of its productive area; the whole of the area of irrigation decreasing progressively from W to E. Between the Ticino and Adda, about nine-tenths of the surface are irrigated; between the Adda and Oglio, about two-tenths, and between the Oglio and Adige, only about one-seventh. The following Table shows the entire area thus irrigated—

Area of Irrigation.
Between	Wholes.
Between the Ticino and the Adda	Area 670,971 2,697
Between the Adda and the Oglio	361,779 1,406
Between the Oglio and the Adige	293,543 8,606
	1,061,593 19,537

1. Between the Ticino and the Adda
2. Between the Adda and the Oglio
3. Between the Oglio and the Adige

Many of the larger canals are used for navigation and commerce, as well as for irrigation and the entire length of the great canals of irrigation in Lombardy, and their first-class branches, has been estimated at above 4500 m., using up one-half of the average discharge of all the rivers. Each cubic foot of water, it is calculated, irrigates 70 ac., and the cost of water per acre is estimated at $s. 6d. (Smith's Italian Irrigation).

Except the N district, on some of the mountains of which snow lies continually the climate is remarkable for the uniformity of the temperature, and the thermometer has a less range than in any other part of Italy. During the greater part of the year the heat does not reach 60°, though in very warm summers it has occasionally risen to 90°. The mean temperature of spring and autumn is nearly equal, but is the former more especially in the loftier districts of the N., hard-frosts are not unfrequent, and do serious injury to the blossoms, making abundant crops of fruit of rather rare occurrence. At Milan, the mean temperature is 66° at Venice 54° 66° the extremes at Milan are 58° to 73° at Venice, 42° to 67° the thermometer has, however at times descended to 10°, and the lagoons of Venice sometimes freeze. The summer is generally so dry that the month of June, July and August, have from 50 to 70 days of the brightest weather. Rains are abundant and frequent in autumn and winter. The prevailing winds are N W and N E in gov Venice, and E W and N E in gov Milan. The climate is healthy, except near the rice-grounds, marshes, and lagoons.

The general fertility of the plains of Lombardy has already been referred to, and is well known. The corn, maize, rice, hemp, and flax produced far exceed the home consumption, though the system of agriculture continues very imperfect. Irrigation, however, for which the configuration of the surface and the number of the streams, as has been shown afford unwonted facilities, is better understood here than in any other part of Europe, and no country can boast of possessing artificial meadows more skillfully formed, or more productive. The dairy produce, obtained from the cows fed on them, forms one of the principal sources of agricultural wealth and the Parmesan and Stracchino cheeses of Lombardy continue to prove their superiority to all other kinds, by the higher prices obtained for them. After the ordinary produce of agriculture, and scarcely inferior to it in value, is that of silk, of which vast quantities of the finest quality are annually raised. The vine also thrives everywhere, and the wine produced from it is very abundant, but, whilst owing to some peculiar defect in the soil, or to want of care and skill in the preparation of it, it does not rank high in point of quality. The difference between the two governments of the kingdom, as respects vegetable products, is chiefly to be remarked in the rice-culture; the area of which, in the gov of Milan or Lombardy, is nearly double that in the gov of Venice. In like manner, the former exceeds the latter in wheat, rye, oats and to the extent of a half in forests; while the latter exceeds the former considerably in rice, and to the extent of a half in meadow lands. The minerals are not of much importance, though they include iron, copper, porcelaine-earth, slate, limestone, marble, and a considerable variety of fine pebbles and rock-crystals. The manufactures, seldom carried on on an extensive scale, consist chiefly of silks, velvets, woollens, hats, ironware, porcelain, and stained glass; and the trade is in a great measure confined to the export of silk, wine, and cheese. The traffic is facilitated by numerous navigable canals, and railways have been completed from Milan to Como, and from Milan part of the way to Verona, and from Verona to Mantua and Venice.

The government is in the hands of a viceroy, resident in Milan. Several dialects of the Italian are spoken. The religion is E. Catholic. Pavia and Padua—the former in gov Milan, and the latter in gov Venice, have each a university—the former with 58 professors, and 1469 students, in 1847, and the latter with 46 professors, and 1941 students. Besides these higher institutions, but including academies of art and science, gymnasiums, theological seminaries, and common schools of every kind there are 5192 educational establishments in gov Milan, and 2218 in gov Venice attended, in the former in 1847 by 217,263 or two-thirds of those fit to attend; and in the latter, by 89,557, or about one-third of those fit to attend.

The Lombardo-Venetian kingdom nearly corresponds to the ancient Roman divisions of Gallia Transpadana, and Venetia, with a small portion of Rhætia, but owes its name to a powerful nation of the N., who, in the end of the 6th century, made themselves masters of the whole country, and extended their conquests to the neighbourhood of Rome. It afterwards formed part of the empire of Charlemagne, and when it had fallen, became the seat of several independent republics, of which none has acquired so much celebrity as that of Venice. The house of Austria had early gained a footing in the country and had continued to increase its possessions with so much skill and perseverance that towards the end of the 18th century its sovereignty nearly extended over the whole. The victories of Napoleon wrested all from its grasp, and led to the establishment, first of the Cisalpine republic and then of the kingdom of Italy. The Congress of Vienna replaced matters on their ancient footing, and even gave Austria more than she had ever possessed before. Her Lombardo-Venetian kingdom then constituted, included the territories of the former republic of Venice (excepting Istria, and the canton of Civida, which are united to the kingdom of Illyria) the Austrian portion of the duchy of Milan, Mantua, a small part of Parma, Piacenza, and the Papal territories with the Valaisine, Bormio, and Chiavenna formerly belonging to Switzerland. Disaffected, however, was very widely spread, and in 1848, when, by the commotions in the other parts of the empire, the hands of Austria seemed fully occupied, a general rising, aided by a Sardeian army, took place, and proved so successful for a time that hopes were entertained of Lombardy being annexed to Sardinia. The fortune of war, however, took a new turn, the Sardeian army after a series of defeats, was driven across the Ticino, and Austria maintained her territory undiminished in extent, but with a population much diminished by her rule.

LOMBARDIA, a vil and com Italy, Lombardy, prov and 11 m N Turin, between the Malices and the Plect with a church and a monastery Pop 1188

LOMBARDY (Latin, Lombardia and Lombardiæ) an ancient kingdom of N Italy corresponding with the greater part of the Gallia Cisalpina of the Romans, formed in the 6th century, on the banks of the Po, by the Lombards or Longobards. It was overthrown by Charlemagne but the name Lombardy continued long after to be used and was applied to the whole country, from the source to the mouth of the Po. It corresponds in the present day with the government of Milan or Lombardy in the Lombardo-Venetian kingdom, the E. part of Piedmont and the duchies of Modena and Parma.

LOMBAY a m. Spain, prov and about 14 m from Valencia, r bank Júcar with a church, an old Dominican convent, a townhouse, primary school, manufactures of white lead and several flour-mills. Near it is a remarkable stalactite cave. Pop. 1538

LOMBEEK, two places, Belgium—1 (St. Catherine), A vil and com. prov. Dabent, 11 m. W Brussels, with a brewery, a mill, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1930.—2, (Nieuw Dams), A vil and com., near the former, with a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 673

LOMBLEEM or LOMBLEEM, an Isl Indian Archipelago, Flores Is., N W Timor between Adonara and Pautar, lat. (3° 16' S 14° 5' E. lon. 123° 30' E. (N.). It is about 80 m. long, by 16 m. broad, consists mostly of high, bold land, with a lofty conical peak at the N W part, which may be seen from a distance of 50 m., and has a large bay on the N., and another on the W. side. The S. coast extends nearly E. and W. about 15 m. and both the N. and E. are formidable to approach. Nothing is known of the interior.

LOMBOX (maive, Thamk Oesek), an old Indian Archipelago, belonging to the Dutch and separated by a strait of some name from Hall on the W. and by the Strait of Allas from Sambawa on the E.; between lat. 8° 10' to 8° S. and lon. 115° 44' to 116° 45' E. Length N. to S. about 48 m. greatest breadth, about 37 m., area, 1868 sq. m. It is of a compact and, but for a long and narrow peninsula projecting from its S. W. corner, would be nearly of a square shape; and along the straits, both on its W. and E. shores, are good natural harbours and extensive roads, affording important facilities for traffic at all seasons. Several islets which line the coast are composed of coral, but Lombok itself is almost wholly volcanic. In the N. E. a mountain range extends, in its culminating point, Gomong Rindjani, the height of 12,000 ft. and, stretching across the island, sends its slopes E. N. and W. down to the shore. Another range, pursuing a direction nearly parallel to the former traverses the S. part of the island. Between the two ranges is an extensive and finely undulating plain, well watered, of great fertility and generally covered with fields of rice. The volcanic agency, though still probably existing in parts of the island not explored, has become extinct in the Gomong Rindjani, which is covered to its summit with luxuriant vegetation and presents a most beautiful aspect. The mouth of its crater how ever is still distinctly visible and it is even possible to trace the currents of lava which have flowed from it. The rivers and streams are very numerous. The largest on the W. coast are the Belong Bahak, Baramok, Antjar and Djankok and on the E. the Poeta, Matangin, Sangar, Lohson, and Ploet. The staple product of the island is rice, the cultivation of which is managed with the greatest skill and care the crops are alike remarkable for quantity and quality. Other articles more partially cultivated are cotton coffee, indigo, and tobacco the last of inferior quality. The fruits include, in abundance, mangoes, jambo, bananas, ram boots, oranges, &c. The coconut-trees are very numerous and, in some quarters, form the whole forest. Domestic animals are very numerous. The horses, though small, and deficient in beauty are spirited, and very hardy—a good number both of them and of buffaloes are exported. Swine and goats are found everywhere, and fowls, both wild and domestic, abound in unlimited profusion. The inhabitants are said to be more advanced in civilization than those of the neighbouring islands their agriculture is more perfect, and their skill in outwry is conspicuous in the manufacture of brass, which are of excellent temper, and in great demand throughout the archipelago the excellence of their fire-arms, also, cannot easily be surpassed. Lombok, though again prosperous, has only recently recovered from the effects of a fearful visitation which befell it in 1815. The violent eruption of the Gomong Tambora, in the island of Sambawa, though more than 20 leagues distant, spread its ravages over the fertile and richly cultivated plains of this island burying them, with multitudes of its inhabitants, under piles of volcanic ashes, and so completely destroying vegetation, that great numbers of the survivors ultimately perished of famine or general destitution. On this occasion, two-thirds of the population are said to have been destroyed. The sweeping of the island, and restoration of its agriculture, have necessarily occupied a considerable period; but the traces of disaster here, in a great measure disappeared, and its prosperity, already great, might still be very much increased, could the different tribes and their petty chiefs be induced to forget their feuds, and exchange incessant warfare for the arts of peace. Even now, the exports of rice alone amount to 16,000 tons. The other exports include cattle, skins, raw cotton, yellow sulfide borax, schenck, coconut, timber, dried beef, &c., and the frequent export of cotton and cotton prints, chiefly of English manufacture. Common vociferous, opium, spirits, metals, raw silk, gold thread, ironmongery, porcelain, &c. Pop. about 250,000.—(Mission des Indes, Ternate, Coup d'Œil sur l'Inde Néerlandaise)

LOMBRIASCO a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. Turin, prov. Astoria, 3 m. from Pineroli. 1 bank Pa. It has two palaces, two churches, a monastery, a chapel, some small school and a trade in wheat, millet, and hemp. P. 1186.

LOMELLINA a prov. Italy, Piedmont, div. Novara, bounded N. by Novara, E. by Lombardy, S. by provs. Alessandria, Tortona, and Voghera, and W. by Vercelli, Omal and Alessandria, area, about 385 sq. m. It consists of a beautiful plain sloping towards the S. and divided into two nearly equal parts by the Agorone, an affluent of the Po. Administratively it consists of 14 municipalities, subdivided into 76 communes. Pop. about 118,000.

LOMMATZSOHLA a town, Saxony, circle and 22 m. W. N. W. Dresden with a church, and manufactures of leather and tobacco. granite and porphyry quarries, and a trade in tassel. Pop. (1848) 2775

LOMME, a town, France, dep. Nord, 3 m. W. Lille. It has some manufactures of linen, flax mills, and a bleachfield. Pop. 1018

LOMMEL, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Limburg, 20 m. N. Hasselt with a distillery an oil and two flour mills, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 3119 LOMNICA, a river, Austria Galicia, which rises in the N. E. side of the Carpathians, in circle Szabolczwar, flows easterly to N. N. E., forming a great number of islands, and joins the bank Dnieper a little above Hales after a course of about 60 m.; about 80 m. of which, beginning at Jassan, are used for floating.

LOMNITZ, several places, Prussia —1, (Kahn- or Wals-) A vil., Elber Thausen co. Zips, on the Popper here crossed by a wooden bridge, 8 m. from Kienmark, with two churches, a castle, manufactures of linen and leather and a trade in corn and flax. Pop. 1398.—2, (Zis- or Molo-Lomniz) A vil. Hither Thausen, co. Zips about 12 m. from Kienmark with two churches, and manufactures of linen. P. 1160

LOMNITZ, several places, Austria—1, A town, Bohemia, circle and 20 m. N. Blatnow on a height above the Populitz, enclosed on two sides by mountains. It is poorly built, has a church a townhouse surrounded by a tower a castle, a hospital, and a large trade in linen and cotton goods, which are exported to Italy and elsewhere, to the extent of nearly 30 000 pieces. Fine pebbles of agate, onyx, chalcidony, and jasper, are found in the vicinity. Pop. 2494.—2 A town, Bohemia, circle Budweis, on the Goldbach, with an ancient church a townhouse and manufactures of wooden articles. Pop. 1667.—3, A town in Moravia, circle and 10 m. N. W. Elitzsch on the Zischauer, with a church, a old feudal castle, situated on a rocky height a synagogue, manufactures of potash, and two saw, and four flour mills. Pop. 1390

LOMNITZ, several places, Prussia —1 A vil. prov. Sillesia, gov. and 28 m. S. S. W. Legnitz, 1 bank river of same name, near its confluence with the Bober, with two castles, two churches, life works, gristmills, and a bark and other mills. Pop. 946.—2 A vil. prov. Sillesia, gov. Oppeln, circle Rosenberg, with a castle, and a saw and other mills. Pop. 779

LOMOND (Loon), the largest and most magnificent of the British lakes, is situated in Scotland, chiefly in co. Dumfries, but partly also in that of Stirling. It lies between N. N. W. and S. E. E. and is of a very irregular shape, forming, in the N. part, a long, narrow and somewhat winding expanse, and then widening gradually out to its S. shores greatest length, about 34 m. breadth, in the upper part, not more than 1 m. but where widest about 7 m. area, about 45 sq. m. Where narrowest it has its greatest depth. Hence, to the S. of Loon, it seldom exceeds 120 ft., whereas to the N. of it, about 1 m. S. of Turbot, it is 616 ft., and 7 m. still farther N., at Alt Gary is 800 ft., which is supposed to be about its maximum. Its height above the sea-level is said not to exceed 22 ft. Owing to its great depth, the upper part never freezes, and the lower part only is winters of unusual severity. In 1740, the ice which covered it between Buchanan and Linn was strong enough to carry both men and cattle, and, in 1814, persons crossed on it from the mainland to the island of Inchmurrich. Its water is soft and wholesome, and is esteemed by numerous fish, including salmon, salmon trout, pike, perch, eels, and parrats, usually called fresh-water herrings. Its chief tributary is the Endrick, which enters it at its S. E. extremity, but it also receives numerous mountain torrents. It discharges itself by the Leven, the channel of which, at the point of discharge, is so contracted and counteracted by a bar, that it becomes inadequate to receive the additional supply poured during winter into the lake, the either up or down the stream. One of these taken from below Southwark Bridge and looking towards St. Paul's, is represented in the accompanying engraving.

London was surrounded with walls by the Romans, and its extent was then, probably, limited by the end of Ludgate Hill Street and the top of Ludgate Hill, on the E. and W., by the river on the S., and London Wall and Little Britain on the N., this part of the city being called London within the walls. The wall seems to have extended along the river at well as on the other sides. The city, at the present day, is bounded S. as formerly by the Thames it crosses N. up Goswell Street to Charterhouse Square, E. along High Street White shaped to Middlesex Street and W. along the Strand to Temple Bar, the only remaining city gate, and a work of Sir Christopher Wren's. It is in this portion of the metropolis alone that the term The City is exclusively applied. Notwithstanding the enormous size of London—comprising even in the portion of it presenting a solid mass of houses E. to W. from Blackwall to Chelsea, a distance of 7 m., and N. to S., from Walworth to Holloway a distance of $4\frac{1}{2}$ m.—it is tolerably easy for strangers to make their way in it, as the Thames traverses the town from W. to E. and most of the great lines of streets run nearly parallel to it, while there are intersected by streets running N. and S. With exception of public buildings, some club-houses, banks, insurance offices, and residences of the nobility the houses of London are uniformly built of brick and in the more modern parts of the town, frequently covered with a plaster composition, known by the abbreviated name of 'cemento' the facility with which ornaments can be executed in this material, has led to the overlaying of numerous edifices with decorations in very questionable taste. In the older parts, the great majority of the streets are narrow, and frequently crooked, but in those parts that have more recently sprung into existence, they are wide and spacious. Of the W. to E. streets, the most important is that which enters on the W. from Kew and Kingston, forming the flume of all the approaches to London is stretches on, through Knightsbridge and Piccadilly, with Apsley House and numerous other palatial edifices facing the Green Park, which constitutes its S. boundary for about half its length. This line is everywhere broken at the E. end of Piccadilly but the Strand continues it, somewhat nearer the river and it stretches on through Temple Bar along Fleet Street, Ludgate Hill, St. Paul's Churchyard, Chancery, Cornhill, and Leadenhall Street, from whence it branches off into the Mile-End Road and the Commercial Road. The next great artery between the W. and E. extends along Oxford Street, which is itself $1\frac{1}{2}$ m. in length, through Holborn, Skinner Street, and Newgate Street, where it joins the more S. line above described, at the W. end of Chancery. Further N. again is a third line, extending from Farringdon to the city as far E. as Islington, a distance of about $1\frac{1}{2}$ m.; it is called the New Road and thence to Finsbury Square, about 1 m. it bears the name of the City Road. Among the principal streets which run N. and S., in the West End, are Park Lane, with its numerous elegant structures overlooking Hyde Park; St. James Street, with its handsome club houses and hotels; Bond Street, so narrow and still so fashionable that the carriages of the aristocracy in the months of May and June, sometimes block up the street for a considerable space, and have to wait long for exitation; Regent Street, one of the broadest streets, and perhaps the handsomest in London although it is indebted for much of its architectural beauty to the plaster with which all the houses are covered. This street is greatly frequented as a promenade, and with its magnificent shops, its crowds of well-dressed loungers, and the incessant throng of elegant equipages it presents, especially on a fine day in spring, about 3 or 4 o'clock, a most interesting and animated spectacle. On the N. it communicates with Portland Place, which may be considered a continuation of Regent Street. This is also a very handsome and spacious street, consisting entirely of private residences. It is now less fashionable than it was 20 years ago, but it is still inhabited by several of the nobility. On the S., Regent Street communicates with Piccadilly by a double crescent of stately buildings called the Quadrant, terminating in a cross, which corresponds with that on the N. where Regent Street intersects Oxford Street. From Piccadilly Regent Street continues S., widening at its termination into Waterloo Place, which is ornamented at its S. extremity with the Duke of York's column. Between Regent Street and Drury Lane, which is about 1 m. further E., there is a want of transverse streets running N. and S. A new one, however has been opened recently, which, by a junction with St. Martin's Lane will serve as a communication between the Strand and Holborn. To Southwark and Lambeth, the principal thoroughfares lead from the bridges to a common centre, the well-known post-roads called the Elephant and Castle, nearly equidistant from all of them except Vauxhall and Chelsea bridges. These great lines of roads, with several others, though wide and well-built streets, if Blackfriars Road be excepted, are inferior to the leading lines on the N. side of the river.

LONDON FROM BARKING, BELOW SOUTHWARK BRIDGE.—Drawn and Engraved by J. L. WILKINSON.

The city of London, as we have already seen, now forms but a small part of the metropolis, and it may be said to be only inhabited in the day time; for, in the afternoon, the busy and anxious crowds who feed in its narrow streets during the day, rush from their warehouses and counting-houses in the city to their homes in the West End.

or in the different suburbs. Great improvements have been recently effected in this quarter, especially in the neighbourhood of the Bank and the Exchange, by the opening up of new streets of considerable breadth, and in a very superior style of architecture, especially those that lead from the Bank to London Bridge on the one hand, and to Moorfields on the other. This portion of the metropolis alone possesses a corporation, the oldest, richest, and most powerful municipal body in the world. The city is divided into 108 parishes, of which 97 are called 'without,' and 11 'within' the walls—a distinction which is merely nominal, as the walls have long since disappeared. The space which extends down the N. bank of the river as far as Blackwall, is occupied by the various docks, wharfs, and warehouses, and inhabited by slop-sellers, cump, and sailors. To the N. of this district lies Spitalfields and Bethnal Green, which have been opened up by the Eastern Counties Railway, from which the traveller can readily distinguish the silk-weavers busily plying their handlooms. Adjoining Spitalfields, on its W. side, is Clerkenwell the seat of the watch-trade, inhabited by the best paid and best-informed class of artisans in London. On the N., the parish of Islington, placed on a salubrious elevation, where new streets and a more airy construction rise in amazingly rapid succession, is mostly inhabited by the middle classes, and those immediately beneath them in the social scale. On the Surrey side, Southwark, including Bermondsey, is the great seat of the tanning trade while Lambeth is occupied generally with manufactures. Shadwell and Rotherhithe are the head-quarters of sailors, and are but meanly built and uninhabited. Indeed the whole of the river bank of the Thames is much inferior in wealth and importance to that portion of the metropolis on the E. or Middlesex shore. The E. line of the city of Westminster coincides with the W. line of the city of London, Temple Bar being the point of junction in the Strand. It is bounded to the N. by Oxford Street from Tottenham Court Road to Kensington Gardens, and its W. limit, passing through the Serpentine in Hyde Park, reaches the Thames at Chelsea Hospital. Marylebone, Finsbury, and Tower Hamlets form a continuous line lying in the N. and E. of these two cities. With regard to the West End, it is often used to distinguish the fashionable part of London from the rest—its body and tenets are bounded by Regent Street and Waterloo Place on the E., St. James Park on the S., Park Lane and Green Park on the W., and by the western division of Oxford Street on the N. This square and compact body, which contains the mansions of the nobility, the club-houses and the squares in which reside the elite of fashion, is bounded on the N. by Marylebone—a district which was not long since fashionable, but which has greatly declined in that respect since the rise of Belgravia, although a few dandies and other aristocratic residents are still to be found in Cavendish and Portman Squares. Still further N. lies the Regent's Park district containing some fine terraces and crescents, and numerous private villas. Those who dwell here belong chiefly to the middle classes, among whom are a considerable number of city merchants. To the E. of Marylebone lies the Bloomsbury district, with its well built houses and squares, erected towards the latter part of the last century. This portion of London is chiefly occupied by lawyers and merchants, for its noble mansions and spacious squares no longer excite the rank and fashion of the town, as in the days of the late George. Still further E., we recognise the architecture of the era of Anne, in the expensive dwellings of Great Ormond Street and Queen's Square, where fashion resided near the beginning of last century. To the S. of this line is the Strand district, which is strictly trading, although the streets running out of it towards the river are chiefly occupied by lodging-houses. In the extreme W. of London have recently risen into existence two extensive districts, Finsbury and Belgravia, which flank Hyde Park on the N. and W. The fields and gardens which extended, twelve or fifteen years ago, from near Edgware Road to Raynham, have now given place to an immense tract of streets, terraces, and squares, which form a striking contrast, by the regularity of their appearance, to many of the older portions of London. The houses, from their height, have an air of grandeur, but the uniformity of their plaster decorations becomes tiresome. Here reside great numbers of professional men and city merchants, as well as various others who have some pretensions to fashion. Belgravia, on the S. or opposite side of Hyde Park, is bounded on the E. by Grosvenor Place, a fine range of buildings facing the Green Park and Buckingham Palace Gardens, on the N. by Knightsbridge, on the E. by Sloane Street, and on the S.E. by Kew Street. Belgrave Square forms the nucleus of this fashionable region, and contains, like many of the streets around it, numerous edifices of palatial size and structure. Here, also, the brick walls are uniformly coated over with stucco, a circumstance which greatly detracts from the first impression produced by the architectural beauty of the buildings, especially if one is accustomed to the substantial as well as elegant, stone edifices in the newer portions of Edinburgh and Glasgow. Contiguous to this district lie Chelsea and Thompson, the latter lying low, and possessing a warm and moist air in the recess of consumptive persons. On the S.E. of Belgravia, also, lies Westminster proper one of the poorest and most squalid districts in the metropolis. Malaria and disease prevail here the drains being below the high-water level of the river and the moral atmosphere is equally tainted. Something has been recently done to cure both evils, by the opening up of a new street, and the building of three new churches, the erection of the latter being due to private liberality.

The streets are regularly kept clean, and are well lighted and paved. The carriage-way is generally paved with granite, but several streets, such as Regent Street and the New Road, are macadamised. The amount annually expended in paving exceeds £200,000. From the extent of the metropolis and the great amount of business carried on in it, the principal streets, as might be expected, present a continued throng of vehicles of every description, often forming an almost unbroken line above a mile long. The principal E. and W. lanes are the great scenes of crowded thoroughfares, in them, the narrow parts are not unfrequently completely blocked up for a time, passage either one way or other being quite impracticable, when long lines of omnibuses, cabs, private carriages, drays, and dust-carts may be seen waiting in impatience till the street is cleared from the temporary obstruction.

Squares and Public Monuments.—The squares of London are numerous, and many of them of great extent and exceedingly elegant, the centre generally being occupied with shrubbery which, notwithstanding the incroachments of the metropolis, usually thrives well and many of them are adorned with statues of sovereigns, warriors and statesmen which, both in conception and execution, are of very various degrees of merit. Among the squares more deserving of notice, may be named—Lincoln's Inn Fields with an area of 12 a., near the centre of the metropolis, Eaton Square, 10 a. Grosvenor Portman, Cavendish Squares, all in the W. and Russell Square, 10 a. Bedford, Bloomsbury, Tavistock, and Euston Squares, in the N. part of the town and Trafalgar Square at Charing Cross fronting one of the principal thoroughfares and adorned with public buildings, fountains, the Nelson column, and statues of Charles I. and George IV. The most conspicuous public monuments are 'The Monument, on Park Street Hill, London Bridge, a fluted Doric column, 202 ft. high, erected in 1677, in commemoration of the great fire of London; the York Column at the S. end of Waterloo Place, a plain Doric pillar of granite, 134 ft. high, surmounted by a bronze statue of the Duke of York; a fluted Corinthian column in Trafalgar Square, 176½ ft. high, raised in honour of Nelson and surmounted with a colossal bronze statue of the hero while the pedestal is decorated with bronze sculptures in high-relief the figures larger than life, and a colossal equestrian statue of the Duke of Wellington, placed on the summit of the grand arch at the top of Constitution Hill, forming the approach to Buckingham Palace, and another of smaller size in front of the Exchange.

Gas, Water, Sewerage.—London is supplied with gas by twenty companies, producing above 15,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day. And there are seven water companies, supplying daily 44,573,973 gallons, being at the rate of 164 gallons for each house. The principal source whence water is obtained is the Thames, some of the companies deriving their supplies from the river as high up as Kew, and some as far down as between Westminster and Waterloo bridges. Spring-water, from Harfordale, is brought in by an aqueduct called the New River, 40 m. in length, including windings and a further supply is drawn from the River Lea. Artesian wells, of excellent water, may be found in any part of London, by boring down to the chalk. But such a source of supply for the metropolis would seem liable to be depended upon, from the fact, that existing works of this kind have, in recent years, been rapidly lowering in level. Some portions of London are well drained, but in others, such as Bermondsey, Westminster Wapping, where the sewers are below the level of high water, the drainage is necessarily imperfect, and the consequence is, that malignant fevers, and other epidemic diseases, make fearful ravages among the inhabitants of those districts. But although much remains to be done, the system of sewers deserves to be ranked as one of the wonders of London, from their great depth and immense mass, the latter quality however, according to recent investigations being one of their great defects, for it has been successfully demonstrated that a comparatively narrow conduit, kept constantly filled with water or fluid sewerage, is a much more efficient means of drainage than a large and only partially filled sewer. Hitherto, the Thames has formed the great outlet for all the sewers but the effluvia has become very general, that the river should no longer be employed for such a purpose, and that a vast subterranean canal should be dug on each side of the river to receive the drainage of the sewers coming from the interior of the town, and to convert it to a considerable distance, where it may be converted to some useful purpose, or be discharged into the river so far down as to prevent the possibility of its being brought back by the returning tide. The ordinary daily amount of sewerage discharged into the Thames on the N side, has been calculated at 7,045,120 cubic ft., and, on the S side, 2,457,600 cubic ft.

BRIDGES AND THE THAMES TUNNEL.—Within the limits of the metropolis and W. of the Tower the Thames averages 1000 ft. wide. Till towards the middle of last century it was crossed by only one bridge, but now between Chelsea and the Tower there are eight bridges, three of which are within the limits of the city and four in Westminster. The lowest down and most important of all is London Bridge connecting the city at King William Street, with Southwark at the junction of Walington Street, and Tooley Street. It is an elegant structure of Aberdeen granite, built after designs by John Rennie, and under the superintendence of his son Mr. John Rennie. Of the immense traffic on this bridge no idea may be formed from the fact, that 15,000 carriages, of all kinds pass along it every hour. About 500 yards further up the river, stands Southwark Bridge, in like manner connecting the city and Southwark. Queen Street and Bridge Street being the approaches on either side. It is an iron bridge, of three sequential arches, resting on stone piers, and was erected by the elder Rennie. About half a mile further W., Blackfriars Bridge connects the city at Bridge Street with Southwark at Great Surrey Street. It was designed by Mylne, a native of Edinburgh, and built of Portland stone, which not having retained the effects of the water and the atmosphere, the piers have lately been cased with granite and otherwise, the frequent repairs upon it have more than doubled its original cost. Waterloo Bridge, nearly half a mile above the former is esteemed by many to be the finest in the world. It was constructed of Aberdeen granite, by the elder John Rennie, and including its approaches, supported on semi-circular arches, is 2465 ft. long, it is perfectly level, and connects the Strand with the Strand Road. Under 3 m. S. W. Hungerford Bridge, constructed by L. E. Rennie, for foot-passengers only, spans the river from Hungerford Market to Belvedere Road. It is 1857 ft. long. Westminster Bridge, opened in the middle of last century, crosses the river at the N end of the Houses of Parliament, from Westminster to Lambeth and about 700 yards S. from Hungerford Bridge. It was built of Portland stone, and is now (1857) in such a state of decay that, unless taken down, it must soon give way of its own accord. About 8,000,000 of horses pass along this bridge annually. Nearly 1 m. S. from the last-named bridge, Westminster and Lambeth are third time connected by Victoria Bridge, the Vauxhall Bridge Road leading from Pimlico and New Bridge Road, leading from Vauxhall Gardens, being the approaches on either side. Like Southwark Bridge, it is of cast-iron, but is very inferior to it in every respect. Nearly 2 m. W. by S. from this bridge, Chelsea or Battersea Bridge connects the localities whence it obtains its double name, and is an old wooden structure, opened in 1772. The following Table shows the chief measurements, cost, &c., of the bridges:—

Names of Bridges.	High Clearance (feet).	Cost.	Length.	Breadth.	No. of Arches.	Year Completed.
London (stone)	181	£200,000	776	44	3	1831
Southwark (iron)	181	800,000	776	44	3	1860
Blackfriars (stone)	1770	280,000	596	44	3	1799
Waterloo (stone)	1817	1,100,000	1218	44	3	1817
Hungerford (suspens.)	1844	81,000	1218	44	3	1861
Westminster (stone)	1781	281,000	1218	44	15	1790
Vauxhall (iron)	1814	280,000	679	40	1	1870
Chelsea (wood)	1774	20,000	678	35	1	1772

The Thames Tunnel, a roadway under the river, which is generally regarded by foreigners as the greatest wonder of the metropolis, is 2 m below London Bridge. An attempt was made, in 1808, to make a tunnel below the river at Limehouse, but the water burst in and destroyed the works, when the tunnel which entered on the Surrey side, had reached within 200 ft. of the opposite bank. The present work is a monument of the skill and energy of Sir James Bazelton, who commenced operations March 2 1825. On August 12 1828, there was an inundation, which stopped the works till January 1835, when they were renewed with great energy and the tunnel was at length opened to the public March 25 1843. It consists of a hollow brick cylinder or tube, subdivided into two roadways, each 15 ft. high, and 12 ft. broad. The entire cost was about £214,000, of which the Government lent £247,000 to the company who carried on the enterprise. As a speculation, the tunnel has turned out very unprofitable, the annual receipts being under £2000—a sum which is barely sufficient to keep it in repair as land-springs make constant intrusions. There is a cylindrical shaft at each end, with 100 steps, by which foot passengers ascend and descend on paying a toll of a penny each. The company have not been able to meet the cost of completing the approaches, so that there is no access for vehicles of any kind.

PALACES.—St. James, erected by Henry VIII. from a design by Holbein at the foot of St. James Street, is an irregular duncy looking brick building. But it is well adapted internally for royal levees and drawing-rooms which are held here during the fashionable season. Beckingham Palace, facing the W end of St. James' Park, was built by George IV and consists, since the erection of the F front, of a quadrangular range of buildings. This E facade, which is loftier than the rest, and in the Italian style, gives to the whole a more palatial appearance than it formerly possessed. The situation is low and damp and the palace is shaded on the N by buildings of an inferior description while the gardens are overlooked on the W by the houses in Grosvenor Place. In the gallery, which is 160 ft. long, are some good pictures. The Queen resides here several months every year. In the spring and summer Whitehall.—The Banqueting House, designed by Inigo Jones, in the Palladian style, and justly regarded as one of the greatest architectural ornaments of London, is the only remnant of the ancient palace of Whitehall the ceiling, painted by Rubens is the most extensive work of that artist existing in the country. In front of it was beheaded Charles I, who was executed in the scaffold through an opening which was made in the walls for the purpose. Kensington Palace, situated in Kensington Gardens, is a plain brick building. It was purchased by William III., and became his favourite residence, and was the birth-place of her Majesty Queen Victoria. Lambeth Palace, on the Surrey side of the river, opposite the Houses of Parliament, has been for many centuries the residence of the Archbishops of Canterbury. It is a brick edifice, and comprises a great variety of styles in architecture, from early English downwards, and contains a library of 25,000 vols.

THE PARKS.—Of these the largest and most fashionable is Hyde Park, which lies between the Unrbridge and Kensington roads, and contains about 400 acres. It has, towards the S. side, a large artificial lake, called the Serpentine, which is spanned by a handsome bridge of five arches, at the entrance to Kensington Gardens. The principal entrance to the Park on the S. side, is by a triple gateway close to Apsley House, and within a few yards of that point is the beginning of Eotten Row a narrow strip called off for squires, and stretching about 1666. It was finished in 1710; and Sir Christopher Wren, by whom this magnificent temple was designed, died to witness its completion. It is 510 ft. in length, from E. to W., while the transept is 250 ft., exclusive of the handsome porches at each end; the breadth of the W. transept is 180 ft., and the height of the walls 110 ft. The building is crowned with an immense dome, surmounted by a lantern with ball and cross—the height of the latter being no less than 404 ft. from the ground. From Ludgate Hill, a fine view is obtained of the W. apse, with its beautiful double portico of coupled columns in the Corinthian and Composite orders, and its two clock towers, each 323 ft. high, over which rise the gurgate cupola. This vast structure, which is built entirely of Portland stone, cost only £747,854, 9s. 6d., which was paid by levying a tax on coal. The interior is extremely deficient in ornaments. Among the few monuments it contains are those of Lord Nelson, Sir Ralph Abercromby, Sir John Moore, Dr. Johnson, Howard, Sir Joshua Reynolds, and other eminent characters of modern times. Side by side, under the centre of the dome, lie interred Britain's greatest admiral and greatest general of the present era, Lord Nelson and the Duke of Wellington. Westminster Abbey, after St. Paul's, is the finest ecclesiastical edifice in London, and one of the best specimens of the pointed style in this country dates from the reign of Henry III. and Edward I. when it was erected on the site of the Saxon minster founded by Sebert. The beautiful chapel at the E. end was added by Henry VII. and, at the beginning of last century, the upper part of the two towers at the W. end were erected from designs of Sir Christopher Wren. It is 560 ft. long, and 195 ft. wide within the walls. In this noble edifice, our kings and queens have been crowned from Edward the Confessor to Queen Victoria, and here many of them are buried, some with and others without monuments. In the S. transept are the tombs and honorary monuments of great poets, from Chaucer down to Campbell, whence it is called Poets' Corner, and in other parts are numerous sculptured monuments to statesmen, warriors, philosophers, divines, patrons and eminent individuals generally, many of whom are interred within its walls. Of the other several edifices in London the most remarkable are St. Bartholomew's in W. Smithfield, which contains some fine specimens of Norman, early English, and later styles of architecture, St. Dunstons, in Southwark, which boasts of the best early English architecture in London in its choir and lady chapel, the only portions of the old church which remain. St. Dunstons, Wallbrook, the interior of which is extremely fine, and generally regarded as one of Wren's best works, and the Temple church, which combines transition Norman architecture with early English, the latter in the choir, which was founded in 1140. Important restorations, in this church, have been recently completed at a cost of £70,000. Besides these, many of the older parish churches are elegant structures, among those worthy of being specified are Bow Church, St. Bride's in Fleet Street, and St. Martin's in the Fields. The churches of the earlier part of the present century are altogether inferior in design, and mostly in a debased Grecian style. These built in more recent years are closely adaptations of the Gothic, and give favourable indications of a return to a purer taste. Of the E. Catholic churches in London the largest is that called St. George's cathedral, in Southwark, finished in 1845, at a cost of about £50,000. The dominating places of worship are mostly plain, unpretending structures. Altogether it is said that there are about 250 churches and Episcopal chapels in London; and 780 places of worship belonging to Dissenters of every kind.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS IN THE CITY.—Besides churches, some of which have already been adverted to, a number of the most important, if not the most elegant buildings in the metropolis are situated within the city. The seating of the whole is formed by the Bank of England, the Royal Exchange, and the Mansion House, which all face towards an open area, the centre of bustle and business, near the middle of the city, which is further adorned with the handsome offices of several assurance companies. The Bank of England in Threadneedle Street, belonging to a chartered company established in 1693 under the management of a governor, deputy-governor and twenty directors, was built in 1732. It has, since that period, received various additions and improvements, and now forms a low, flat, insulated, irregular parallelogram, covering 4 ac. of ground. Adjoining the Bank of England is the Royal Exchange, an extensive and ornate building, having a Corinthian portico, surmounted by a pediment, enriched by sculpture. It surrounds an open interior quadrangle, in the centre of which is a marble statue of Queen Victoria, by Lough. In this court, which is surrounded by covered arcades, the meetings of the merchants on 'Change are held. An equestrian statue, by Chantrey, of the Duke of Wellington occupies the area in front of the building. The Royal Exchange was originally founded by Sir Thomas Gresham in 1567, and having been burned down in 1666 it was rebuilt and opened in 1669. This second Exchange having been also burned down on January 10, 1838, the present edifice was erected on its site. The Exchanges for special purposes are—the Stock Exchange, in Capel Court, the Coal Exchange, Lower Thames Street, built by J. S. Baring, opened on October 30, 1840, by Prince Albert. It is a sumptuous, though rather incongruous building, the great Hall of which is circular, 60 ft. in diameter, and 74 ft. to the apex of the glass dome, with which it is covered, the Corn Exchange, a fine Doric structure, in Mark Lane, opened in 1747, and enlarged and partly rebuilt in 1837. The Managers' House, the residence of the Lord Mayor while he holds the office of first magistrate of the city was built in 1789-93, from the designs of Dance, the city surveyor at a cost of £71,000. It has a Corinthian portico in front, and stands in the E. end of the Poultry, nearly opposite the Bank of England. The Guildhall, situated at the W. end of King Street, Cheap, is the civic place where the principal business of the Corporation of the city of London is conducted and the magnificent banquet given here, have rendered City House proverbial. This edifice was erected at different periods, to have been preserved from its incongruous architecture. The debased Gothic front, with the city arms in the centre, was finished in 1789, but it has been since frequently repaired. The Hall, six hundred room, in which 8000 persons can sit, contains some monuments of ordinary sculpture; and, at the W end, raised on pedestals, are the well-known colossal figures of Gog and Magog. The East India House, containing the offices of the East India Company, is situated in Leadenhall Street. It is an extensive building, with an Ionic portico in front, and contains, besides the necessary accommodation for the officers of the Company, an excellent library, rich in Asiatic literature, and an interesting museum of Indian objects.

THE ROYAL EXCHANGE AND BANK OF ENGLAND.—Designed and Engraved by J. L. WHISTON.

City Corporation and Government.—The chief civil officer of London is the Lord Mayor, annually elected from among the aldermen who have been sheriff, on September 29. The powers and privileges of this officer are very extensive. He is installed in office on November 8, when a procession takes place called 'the Lord Mayor's Show.' The court of aldermen consists of 25 members, including the Lord Mayor. They are chosen for life by the householders of the twenty-six wards into which the city is divided, each being the representative of a separate ward. They are properly the subordinate governors of their respective wards, under the jurisdiction of the Lord Mayor and preside in the courts of Wardmote for the redress of minor grievances. Such as have filled the office of Lord Mayor become justices of the quorum, and all others are justices of the peace within the city. The sheriffs, two in number, are annually chosen by the Livery, or general assembly of the freemen of London. The Common Council is a court consisting of 440 members, returned by 35 of the wards in proportion to their relative extent. The 26th, or Bridge Ward Without, being represented by an alderman. The general business of this court is to legislate for the internal government of the city, its police, revenues, &c. The recorder is generally a barrister of eminence, appointed, for life, by the Lord Mayor and aldermen, as principal assistant and adviser to the civic magistracy, and one of the justices of Oyer and Terminer. The Livery of London is the aggregate of the members of the several city companies, of which there are 81, embracing the various trades of the metropolis. Of the city companies 12 are termed great companies, and from one or other of them the Lord Mayor was formerly chosen. In order of precedence they are—The Mercers, Grocers, Drapers, Fishmongers, Goldsmiths, Skinners, Merchant Tailors, Haberdashers, Salters, Ironmongers, Vintners, Clothworkers. Many of the companies are very rich and possess large halls, few of them, however having any pretensions to architectural beauty excepting the Goldsmiths' Hall, behind the Post-office; the Fishmongers Hall, near London Bridge, and the Ironmongers Hall, in Fenchurch Street, all of which are very elegant structures.

The Metropolitan Police.—The organization of the present most effective police force, is the consequence of Sir Robert Peel's celebrated bill of 1829. Before that period, the streets were often unsafe at night, from the small number and uselessness of the watchmen to whom the preservation of order was entrusted. This force is divided into the city police, confined to the city proper, and the metropolitan police, which latter commenced in 1835, of 5549; and their jurisdiction extended 19 or 18 m. round the city walls. In 1848 the total number of persons apprehended by the metropolitan police was 70,866, of whom 24,566 were females; 84,746 were discharged by the magistrates, 81,348 disposed of summarily or held to bail, and 6645 tried and convicted, only 708 being acquitted. In the same year, the number of felonies was 18,254, affecting property to the amount of £26,379, of which only £2870 were ultimately recovered. Only about one-third of those apprehended could read or write. In the same year, there were 1478 persons reported as lost or missing, of whom 994 were restored by the police, the suicides were 131, hanged 75 attempted, but prevented—lower numbers than in Paris, notwithstanding the difference of population. The fire-engine establishment has seventeen stations, where engines and firemen are kept always in readiness, and there are two floating engines on the Thames. In 1849 the number of fires was 845, and in 1851 above 1000.

Courts of Law.—The four courts of Chancery, Common Pleas, Queen's Bench, and Exchequer are on the W side of Westminster Hall, with which they communicate. The hall itself, which was built by William Rufus, and is 300 ft. long 68 ft. wide, and 110 ft. high, was formerly used for great state trials, from that of Sir William Wallace down to those of Warren Hastings and Lord Melville, which were the last. It now serves merely as a promenade for lawyers, during the sitting of the courts. It is said to be the longest apartment not supported by pillars in the world, except the Hall of Justice at Padua. The Old Bailey Sessions house, adjoining Newgate, is the central criminal court for the trial of prisoners who have committed offences within 10 m. of St. Paul's. One or more of the judges in Westminster Hall sit here also in the Old Court, while the New Court is presided over by the Recorder and Common Serjeant of the city of London. County courts, of which there are 11 within the metropolis and its immediate neighbourhood, were established a few years ago for the trial of small debt cases, £20 being the limit. In 1848, there were 36 621 plaintiffs entered before these courts. The Crown appoints the judges, who are barristers. Beside the above, there are also the Clerkenwell Sessions-house, the city police courts, which are held at the Mansion-house and Guildhall and are presided over by the Lord Mayor and one of the Aldermen and the 11 courts connected with the metropolitan police, each of which is presided over by a barrister of at least seven years standing. Inns of Court.—Of these there are four, Inner Temple, Middle Temple, Lincoln's Inn, and Gray's Inn. They were originally colleges for the study of law but now are little more than residences for lawyers. A law student in order to be called to the bar, has merely to be entered as a member of one of these Inns, and to attend a certain number of times in the common hall. The Inner and Middle Temple are close to Temple Bar between Fleet Street and the river. The roof of Middle Temple Hall, built in 1579, is considered the best specimen of Elizabethan architecture in London. Subordinate to the Temple are Clifford's, Clement's, Lyons and New Inns. Lincoln's Inn is situated between Chancery Lane and the extensive square called Lincoln's Inn Fields. During a portion of the year, the Lord Chancellor sits in the old hall, and the Vice-Chancellor holds their sittings in adjoining buildings. A magnificent hall and library in the Tudor style, from the designs of Hardwick, have recently been erected in the gardens subordinate to Lincoln's in Furnival's Inn in Holborn. Gray's Inn stands on the N side of Holborn, and has attached to it two Inns of Chancery—Staple Inn, and Barnard's Inn. The gardens, first planted about the year 1600 were a fashionable promenade in the time of Charles II and for some time after.

Prisons.—There are altogether about a dozen criminal prisons, three of which are in the city. Newgate, situated near St. Sepulchre's Church, is a gloomy and massive structure, formerly used for debtors as well as criminals but now confined to felons, and accommodates properly about 400. Bridewell near Blackfriars Bridge, is a house of correction for vagrants, pilferers, or disorderly persons, summarily convicted before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen. Giltspur Street Compter, near Newgate, which it resembles in its architecture, is used as a place of confinement for all prisoners at the Central Criminal Court and the London Sessions, and summarily convicted within the jurisdiction of the city magistrates. A house of correction is attached to it. It holds about 250. Clerkenwell prison belonging to the county of Middlesex, is similar in character to the last. The House of Correction, Cold Bath Fields, which will hold about 1200 prisoners is a very extensive brick building, near Gray's Inn Lane, with spacious courts and airy grounds. The classification is good, and the silent system is followed, connected with hard labour. A large tread-mill employs 320 at a time. Millbank Penitentiary, or Prison, as it is now called, is an immense brick edifice, designed by Jeremy Bentham, and is said to have cost half a million sterling. The external walls form an irregular octagon, and enclose upwards of 16 acres of land. Its ground plan resembles a wheel, the governor's house occupying a circle in the centre, from which radiate six piles of buildings, terminating externally in towers. The average number of inmates is about 700. Every convict sentenced to transportation in Great Britain, is sent here previously to the sentence being carried into execution, and remains three months under close inspection. Horsepower Lane Jail, Southwark, the county jail for Surrey, contains about 260 prisoners. The top of the building is used as a place of execution. The Westminster House of Correction, in Tostall Street, which is built on the Panopticon principle, has a court-yard in the centre, 250 ft. in diameter, with prisons round it for 600 persons, but the average number confined is 350. The silent system is pursued, and a good classification maintained. The Model Prison, Pentonville, contains 1600 separate cells. The inmates are detained for two years, and are taught useful trades, previous to transportation. The principal prisons for debtors are the Queen's Bench and Whitecross Street prisons.

Clubs.—Many of these establishments, having most elaborate and ornate buildings, form some of the principal architectural features of the metropolis. They are situated chiefly in the W end, and near Pall-Mall, and vie with each other in elegance and luxury. The principal ones are the Athenæum, possessed of a fine library, and having a great many articles and sums of science and letters among its members the Army and Navy, the United Services, the Guards, and the Junior United Services the Carlton, the great Tory, standing side by side with the Reform club, in Pall-Mall the former limited to 800 and the latter to 1400 members, the Travellers, Brooks one of the oldest of the clubs, and the rallying point for the Whig party White's, also a very old club, frequented chiefly by the Conservative nobility the Conservatives; the Oxford and Cambridge; the Garrick, frequented by lovers of the drama. The entrance fees vary from 8 to 40 guineas, and the annual subscriptions from 5 to 12. There is also great diversity in the number of members, which range from 500 to 1500. Many members, who have no homes in town, live almost entirely at their clubs having only a bed-room in the neighbourhood.

Theatres and other Places of Amusement.—The two principal theatres (1853) are Covent Garden and Her Majesty's Theatre, in the Haymarket, which have carried on, for several years, a rivalry in the representation of Italian operas. Drury Lane, for a series of years, has been used for the performance of English operas, melodramas, and aquatics &c. The Haymarket, and the Theatre, in Oxford Street, are now the chief theatres in the West and where the regular drama is performed. The other principal theatres are Balfour's Wells, in Islington the Lyceum, the Adelphi, St James the Victoria, the Surrey, and Astley's, the last being exclusively devoted to equestrian performances. On the E. side of Regent's Park stands the Colosseum a polygonal structure, with a magnificence Doric portico and a colonnade, used chiefly for the exhibition of panoramic views. Exeter Hall, in the Strand, capable of containing 3000 persons, is used for concerts on a great scale, as well as for the annual Maymeetings of the different religious societies in Hanover Square there is a large hall for concerts and other public assemblies. In Willis Rooms, in King Street, St. James are given the fashionable balls called Almack's also lectures, concerts, &c. One of the principal attractions in London is the Zoological Gardens, in Regent's Park. The Surrey Zoological Gardens, though on the whole greatly inferior to the former have some points of superiority they cover about 16 ac and contain a sheet of water 5 ac in extent. Vauxhall Gardens on the S., and Cremorne Gardens, on the N. side of the river are also favourite places of resort, where mazes, fire-works, and balloon ascents are among the principal attractions.

Museums and Galleries.—The British Museum, in Great Russell Street, now a spacious and imposing edifice, with an Ionic facade and sculpture in the pediment built during the last 20 years, was founded in 1753. It contains an immense collection of books, manuscripts, sculptures, coins, minerals, stuffed animals; Egyptian, Assyrian, Grecian, Etruscan, and other antiquities. This noble institution is open three days in the week to the public, who avail themselves of the permission in great numbers. The library of printed books contains upwards of 400,000 vols. In Greek, and perhaps also in Egyptian antiquities, this collection is not surpassed by any in Europe. The National Gallery contains some very fine pictures, but, for their limited number, scarcely deserves the name of a national collection. One end of the building is used for the annual exhibitions, schools, and lecture-rooms of the Royal Academy Marlborough House, in Pall Mall, contains a collection of paintings by English masters of the greatest part of which was presented to the nation by Mr. Richard Vernon, in 1847. Dulwich Gallery, at Dulwich, 5 m. from Waterloo Bridge, contains a fine collection, especially of Dutch paintings, among which those of Croy country a prominent rank. There are many fine collections of pictures and statues in the houses of the nobility some of which are thrown open occasionally to the public. The Museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, on the S. side of Lincoln's Inn Fields, a handsome new building, erected at a cost of £40,000, contains some curious skeletons and surgical preparations. The Beane Museum, on the N. side of Lincoln's Inn Fields, possesses many valuable objects, consisting of books, prints, MSS., drawings, maps, models, plans &c. There is also a museum in Whitehall Yard, connected with the United Service Club, and a Museum of Practical Geology in Jermyn Street.

Literature, Scientific Institutions, &c.—London has long been the favourite residence of literary men, drawn thither probably in older times ere literature had assumed its present independent position, by the attractions of titled patronage. But whatever may have communicated the original impulse, we have now the fact, that the metropolis is the great centre around which cluster the literary and scientific men of the country the seat of the principal learned institutions, and the headquarters of journalism and of the book trade. There are six morning, and nearly as many evening newspapers, and a host of other journals, which appear weekly or at shorter intervals. The morning papers, during the sitting of Parliament, require each a staff of 14 reporters. The chief learned institutions are the Royal Society, Somerset House which was founded in 1559 the Society of Antiquaries, in the same building founded in 1707; the Royal Academy of Arts, in Trafalgar Square, founded in 1768 the Royal Academy of Music, founded in 1822 the Royal College of Physicians, at the N.W. corner of Trafalgar Square, founded by Leicester, physician to Henry VIII and the present building, finished in 1825 the Royal Geographical Society, founded in 1830, with a choice geographical library and large collection of maps the Institution of Civil Engineers, established in 1829; the Royal Institute of British Architects, founded in 1834, and possessing a good library of architectural works the Royal Institution of Great Britain, Albemarle Street, established in 1799 the Geological Society in Somerset House, established in 1807.

Educational Establishments.—At the head of these stands the University of London, established in 1827, solely for the purpose of conferring degrees, the candidates for which are for the most part supplied by University College and King's College. The senate consists of a chancellor, vice-chancellor and thirty-five other members, who hold their sittings in Somerset House. The faculties are those of arts, law, and medicine and the examinations are held twice a year. In University College which was opened in 1828, the course of education embraces the classical tongue, science, history, jurisprudence, and medicine religion being wholly excluded King's College is on a similar plan except that religion is taught in it in accordance with the principles of the Church of England. The buildings are handsome, especially that of University College. There are likewise two Episcopalian theological schools, an English Presbyterian, a Baptist, an Independent, a Unitarian and a Jewish; and several schools for medicine, botany, chemistry, geology, &c. Of the numerous endowed schools, the most noted are—St. Paul's School, which provides a free education for 158 boys, the most advanced of whom are sent to Oxford and Cambridge, with exhibitions of about £50 to £120. Milton, the great Duke of Marlborough, and Hailey, were pupils in this school, which has a high character. The revenues are about £2000 Charter-House is a corruption of Charterwell, founded in 1811, and endowed with property which in 1816 yielded £22,000, it supports 80 poor brethren, and admits 40 boys, who are afterwards apprenticed or sent to the university. The Merchant Tailors School, founded in 1561, furnishes a very efficient education gratis to 100 boys, and to 150 others at rates varying from 5s. to 2s. 6d. a quarter; the school has 48 fellowships in Oxford, and seven in Cambridge. Christ's Hospital, Newgate Street, better known as the Bine-coat School, was founded in 1555, as an hospital for poor fatherless children and foundlings, although many are said to be now admitted without testifying the qualifications of poverty. The pensioners are in the gift of the governors, who are nearly 500 in number, and each of whom, in order to hold that office, must have contributed £500 to the funds of the institution. The establishment in London accommodates, at present, 920 boys; and there is a subsidiary hospital at Hestford, where there are generally about 450 of the younger boys, and 80 girls—making in all 1450 children imbricated, educated, and educated by this institution. The Greenwich, as the most advanced in climates are called, are sent, with valuable exhibitions, to Oxford and Cambridge; and those in the mathematical school are placed with commanders of ships, and fitted out at the expense of the hospital. Others are apprenticed to different trades. Westminster School was founded by Queen Elizabeth in 1560, for the free instruction, clothing, board and lodgings of 40 boys, called king's scholars, in reality, however, each now pays about 64s. yearly. Dryden, Locke, and the Earl of Mansfield, were in this school. Besides the above, and numerous private schools, there is a free school in almost every parish; and the National Society and British and Foreign School Society supply instruction to many thousands of children. These societies have also normal schools.

Hospitals and Charitable Institutions.—London abounds with hospitals for the cure of disease, lying-in charities, asylums for orphans, and other institutions of a like nature. Among these most deserving of notice are St. Bartholomew's Hospital, in W. Smithfield, first founded in the 12th century, and then refounded by Henry VIII. in 1546, admitting patients suffering from accident, and diseases of all kinds; containing 560 beds, and relieving 70,000 annually.—Guy's Hospital, Southwark, founded in 1713, by Thomas Guy a bookseller, accommodating 580 in-patients. It has also an excellent museum and theatre of anatomy.—St. Thomas' Hospital, in the Borough. St. George's Hospital, near Hyde Park Corner, with a handsome front overlooking the Green Park, the Middlesex Hospital, founded in 1745. Westminster Hospital, and various hospitals of smaller size, have been opened by voluntary contributions.—Charing Cross Hospital, King's College Hospital, University College Hospital &c. There are medical schools attached to the above institutions. Bethlehem Hospital (Madman), in St. George's Fields, S. of the river, is appropriated to the insane poor. The building which has an imposing appearance, extends over nearly 14 ac. the rooms are large and airy, well-ventilated and ventilated and can accommodate at least 400 patients. St. Luke's Hospital also for insane patients, was founded in 1751, and accommodates 360 persons. The Foundling Hospital, in W. Strand, founded by Captain Coram; at present it is rather an asylum for illegitimate children whose parents are known, than an hospital for foundlings, as it was originally. The number of children averages about 500, and they are maintained till the age of 12, when they are either apprenticed or provided for otherwise. Chelsea Hospital (see CHATELAIN). Greenwich Hospital (see GREENWICH).

Cometries.—Extra-mural interment is of very recent date, and is still only very partial, most of the cometries being too distant and expensive for the poorer classes. Royal Green Cemetery, in which several royal personages have been buried, was opened in 1825; it occupies about 45 ac. of ground, and is tastefully planted and laid out. There is another at Highgate, about 30 ac. in extent, and others at Stoke Newington, Brompton, Norwood &c.

Means of Conveyance.—This is of two kinds, internal and external. The former is accomplished by means of omnibuses, cabs, and steamboats. The omnibuses, 8000 in number, ply on all the principal thoroughfares to every part of the metropolis, and to all the neighbouring villages, they pay duty to the amount of £274,000 annually and the 7000 conductors and drivers by whom they are managed pay, for licenses, £1750 annually. The cabs number about 5500. Numerous small steamers ply on the Thames, affording the most convenient means of communication, at all hours of the day, to all points of the river between Richmond and Woolwich, a distance of 18 m. Besides these facilities for locomotion, parcels are delivered in all parts of the metropolis by a joint-stock company. The external means of conveyance comprise railways, canals, and steam-vessels. Seven railways, affording means of transit to all parts of the kingdom, have stations in London. They are the Great Western, North-Western, Great Northern, Eastern Counties, Blackwall, South-Eastern, or Dover, Brighton and South-coast, and the South-Western. Some of them, as the North-Western, with its Dorset temple for an entrance, and the Great Northern, with its gigantic arches, have the merit of a most expensive kind, though this can be said in favour of the architectural sublimities of such erections. The canals strictly associated with London are seven in number—the Grand Junction, Regent's, Brentley and Lea, Lea Union or Sir George Ducket's, Kensington, Grosvenor, and Surrey this last follows nearly the line of the canal cut by Canals the Dams, for the purpose of transporting his vessels into the upper part of the river, past the defences of Old London Bridge. A large fleet of steam-vessels afford constant means of transit for passengers and goods between the Thames and all parts of the E. and W. coast of England, the E. coast of Scotland, and the N. ports of the continent; while, from the easy means of transit by railway, Southampton may be reached the out-port of London, through which the commodities by steam with the most distant parts of both hemispheres, and with the antipodes.

Markets.—These are numerous, but, excepting for the articles sold in them, none are worthy of notice, presenting, as they do, little to attract, either in external beauty or in internal arrangement. The principal ones are, Billingsgate, for fish, Hungerford, fish, butcher-meat, and vegetables, Farringdon, butcher-meat, vegetables, and fruit. Covent Garden, vegetables, fruit, flowers, and plants, both green-houses and hot-houses. Leadenhall, poultry, game, hides, and cattle horns. Newgate, butcher-meat, carcasses and retail (the most extensive carcass market in London), and Smithfield (formerly the great place of executions, and where so many martyrs died in the time of Queen Mary), the great market for cattle and sheep, long felt to be a nuisance from its position in the centre of the city but which is now removed to a suburban locality in pursuance of an Act passed by Parliament in 1862. It is difficult, or perhaps impossible, to arrive at an accurate estimate of the quantity of food consumed in London. In 1844, however, there were sold in Smithfield and Leadenhall markets alone—

Wheat,	1,514,130	Perk	2,196,400
Oats,	225,540	Butter	460,000
Culver	94,98	Eggs.	48,000

Allowing for carcasses imported by steam and otherwise, the annual consumption of butcher-meat has been estimated at 240,000 bullocks, 1,700,000 sheep, 28,000 calves and 85,000 pigs, besides vast quantities of bacon and ham. Exclusive of eggs brought from various parts of the United Kingdom 70,000,000 to 75,000,000 are imported annually from France and other continental countries. About 18,000 cwt. are kept in the metropolis and its environs for the supply of milk and cream. The consumption of wheat may be estimated at about 1,600,000 quarters a year.

Manufactures.—It would be almost endless to specify the different kinds of articles manufactured in London. It contains the largest breweries, distilleries and sugar-refineries in the kingdom; was long the principal seat of the silk-rearing, and still employs above 14,000 workers in that branch. It has extensive manufactures in metal, including machinery of all kinds, plate, jewellery, watches, and brass-work, occupying likewise above 14,000 workmen, and as many more are engaged in the production of books and prints. Millinery occupies 40,000, the making of clothes and shoes above 38,000, and boots and shoes as many more. Besides these branches, 12,000 are engaged in cabinet-making and many thousands in coopering, coach building, leather-working, hat-making, ship-building, rope-making, mast-making, &c., all of which are departments of manufacture conducted on a large scale and there are numerous extensive chemical works, soap-manufactories, and dye-works.

Commerce, Docks, &c.—The port of London extends from London Bridge to a little below Blackwall, and is divided into the Pool, Limehouse Reach, Greenwich Reach, Blackwall Reach, and Bagnly's Reach. It is under the care of the corporation of the city as conservators. The docks, some of which are of great extent, are surrounded by wharfs, sheds, storehouses, vaults, and warehouses of the most spacious kind. St. Katherine's Docks, London Docks, the West India Docks, and the East India Docks, extend along the N. bank of the river at intervals, from the Tower to Blackwall, and on the S. bank, between Rotherhithe and Duffield, are the Commercial Docks. The tide rises 18 ft. at spring, and 14 ft. at neap, as the London Docks; and the depth is low water spring-tides, on the outer side of St. Katherine's Docks, the deepest in the port is 10 ft. The largest in the West India Import dock, 2660 ft. long, 600 broad, and capable of containing 304 vessels, of 200 tons each. The vessels belonging to the port, in 1860, numbered 3785 sailing and 318 steam, aggregate tonnage 657,297 tons, 129,000 tons less than New York the year previous. Its foreign exports, in 1850, amounted to £14,127,537, being less than ever 1845 of above £5,000,000. The foreign exports of Liverpool for the same period, increased from £35,000,000 to £25,000,000. The enormous sea-going trade of London, however, renders it superior to every other port in the world, in the number of vessels and the amount of tonnage frequenting it; but as returns being published to show the actual amount of this tonnage, only an approximation can be given. About 5,000,000 tons of shipping enter the port annually of which 1,500,000 are from foreign ports 500,000 from the colonies, and 3,000,000 are coasters. The number of vessels engaged in the coal trade alone is above 10,000, importing, in 1851, 3,326,542 tons of coal. The exports consist chiefly of British manufactures, though a large quantity of the foreign imports also are re-exported. The imports consist of every kind of article brought from foreign parts: a list of them, in fact, would form an epitome of the articles of the trade of the world. For East and West India produce, London is the great port, tea, sugar, tobacco wine, oils, timber, tallow, hides, wool, and drugs, form large items on the list. All articles imported must be entered at the Customs-house, a large building by the river side, between London Bridge and the Tower: the long room, where public business is transacted, is 165 ft. long, 66 ft. wide, and 55 ft. high. The amount of customs taken here, affords an excellent means of estimating the comparative value of the imports of London. The amount received in 1849 was £11,070,176 (being only £700,000 less than the total amount of its foreign exports for the same year) while the total amount of customs for the United Kingdom for the same year was £25,453,585, showing that nearly a half of the whole amount was received at the port of London.

People.—With respect to the habits and condition of the general population of London, perhaps there is no set of men who are more devoted to their calling, whatever it may be, and who possess greater perception of character and a keener eye for their own interest, but as they have more regard to material comfort than mental improvement, they are inferior in general intelligence to the same classes in the Scotch cities. Their reading rarely extends beyond the Times, or the weekly newspapers, but the rapid spread of cheap publications will no doubt produce a marked change for the better. From the great sums of money spent by the higher classes in the metropolis, the London tradesman has probably a greater respect for the aristocracy than is entertained by the people in other large towns, and, although generally alive to his own interest, he is rather too apt to be imposed upon by persons of title, whether real or assumed, as the police reports so often testify. He is also a lover of peace and order as was evinced on the famous 10th of April, 1848, when 40,000 armed constables were enrolled for the defence of the city against the Chartists. Many of the London tradesmen are very wealthy, but, in general, they live without much ostentation, whereas many of the higher class of merchants are ruined by vying with the aristocracy in splendour of living. Skilled artisans of all sorts receive high wages, but they live too well to save much of their earnings. On Sunday, great numbers of these, as well as clerks and shopmen flock to Richmond, Hampton Court, Greenwich, Hammersmith, and other places in the neighbourhood of London, or by excursion trains to Brighton and other distant localities, but there are many tradesmen, such as the vendors in Royal Green, the shop cabinet-makers in the same locality, and the 'greensters,' men working for the cheap tailoring trade in the Minerva, who are obliged to ply their trade a great part, if not the whole of Sunday. To these may be added the needle-women, the 'saw-workers,' or plishers of soldiers' clothes, and the 'gutter-makers,' in the boot and shoe trade. Others, again, are so fatigued with the labours of the week, that they make the Sabbath literally a day of rest and do no work all day. This is done to a great extent by milliners' apprentices, who work late, and carpenters who work at the 'strapping shops'—a name given to those shops in which they are taxed to an excessive degree. Kewfishes, standing all the wealth of London, and its numerous solicitors for the relief of the indigent, is considered almost misery and distress. In 1844-45 the money raised by rates, and expended for the relief of the poor amounted to £454,543. The number of these is a quite distinct class, and practice haggard almost as a trade nine-tenths of them are impostors and convicted vagrants, insupportable till, dishonest, and profligate. The really indigent are relieved by an institution called the Bazaar for the Destitute.

History.—In the reign of Nero, London was already a place of considerable importance; and, after the Romans left Britain, it is supposed to have become the capital of the E. Saxon kingdom. Little more is known of it, during the Heptarchy, than that it suffered severely by fire in 746, 796, and 801. When England was united under one monarch, London became the metropolis of the kingdom and, soon afterwards, it was seized by the Danes. At the Conquest, London submitted to William, and received from him a charter which is still preserved, and, on the accession of Henry I. a new charter was granted—the model from which Magna Charta was taken—restoring the privileges which existed before the Norman Conquest. London Bridge, erected instead of a wooden one, was begun in 1176, and finished in 1209. This was, to a great extent, the same that was taken down in 1837. In 1218, the forest of Middlesex was cleared, and that portion of London N. of the city began to be built. In 1256, water-pipes began to be laid in the city and, early in the 14th century coal was first introduced. In 1293, the village of Southwark was incorporated with the city as it had previously served as a place of refuge for malefactors. In 1349 and 1361, London was visited by the plague. In 1381 broke out the rebellion of Wat Tyler who fell by the hands of the Lord Mayor hence the dagger on the city arms. In 1418, lamps were introduced, in the same century, some of the principal streets were paved, and wooden houses began to be replaced by others of brick. In the next century still greater improvements were effected. Westminster was now connected with the city by a new of noblemen's mansions along the river one of which still remains at the extreme W. Northumberland House. In the 17th century, St. Paul's was covered with houses; and the space N. of the Strand, as far as Holborn and from Temple Bar to St. Martin's Lane, were extensively built upon as well as the neighbourhoods of Charing Cross and Pall Mall. The New River was completed, and many houses were supplied with water, sewers were dug; smooth pavements were laid down for passengers; and the heavy-treaders came into general use. But the streets were so narrow and dirty, and the houses so close & stilted, that the city was scarcely ever exempt from the plague which sometimes committed great ravages. In 1665, the great fire broke out, and spread over 836 ac. destroying 10,300 houses, 90 churches, and many public buildings. In rebuilding considerable improvements were introduced and a fire in Southwark, 10 years after, gave a similar opportunity of improving that district. Population and trade now rapidly increased partly from the immigration of French Protestants driven from their country by the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. In the 18th century, the metropolis steadily advanced in extent, prosperity, and splendour. In 1730 took place the Gordon riots, when the mob were in possession of London for two days, and committed frightful havoc. Since that disastrous outbreak, the peace of London has never been seriously endangered; and the troops stationed in and around the capital, together with the effective police forces that now exist, seem quite adequate to ensure it against any similar disturbances. The extension and improvements which have taken place in London during the present century, are still greater than at any former period, and further changes of great importance are now in operation. The most remarkable event of recent times in the history of the metropolis, is the carrying into effect of the Great World's Exhibition, originated by Prince Albert. The magnificent edifice, formed of glass and iron, in which was exhibited the unparalleled collection of manufactures and works of art there brought together was erected in Hyde Park, and opened May 1, 1851. It was above a third of a mile long (1846 ft.), 406 ft. wide, 48 ft. high in the centre, and 24 ft. at the sides, it covered 16 ac. of ground, was composed of 703 tons of wrought and 8784 tons of cast iron, 896,000 superficial ft. of glass, forming 598,656 panes, and weighing 400 tons. 600,000 tons of wood, and cost £247,937. The number of exhibitors was 13,567, and the value of the articles exhibited was estimated at £2,761,529; of which, £1,087,507 belonged to the United Kingdom, 279,901 to the colonies and dependencies of Great Britain, and 2670,420 to foreign countries. The Exhibition remained open till October 31, being 5 months and 11 days, and was visited by 6,089,195 persons, the highest number of visitors any one day being 109,796, and the smallest number 6,327. The total money drawn amounted to £261,248, of which, £233,792 were for admission. The whole structure was removed in 1853, and is now (1853) in course of being re-erected, on a still more magnificent scale, at Sydenham. [For the Progress of the Nation, Wells's London and Vicinity, Murray's Modern London, Crompton's Handbook of London, N. Collier's London in 1850-51, First Report of the Commissioners for the Exhibition of 1851 Private information.] See SURREY.

LONDON, a, in Upper Canada, cap. dist. of same name, on the Thames, 108 m. W. S. W. Toronto. It has 10 churches, a handsome jail and courthouse, and large barracks. It was laid out in 1826, and has since been twice nearly destroyed by fire. Pop. (1829), 7124. — The district extends along Lake Erie, between Gore and W. district; it is watered by the Thames, the Aux Sables, and numerous smaller streams, has, for the most part, an excellent soil, and contains many portions which have been long settled, and are now in a high state of cultivation. Grain is exported in large quantities, and, on the mill streams, considerable business is done in sawed lumber, chiefly for exportation. Pop. (1842) 81,850.

LONDON (New) a city and port of entry, U. States, Connecticut, on the Thames, 3 m. from its entrance into Long Island Sound, lat. 41° 24' N. lon. 72° 30' W. It is for the most part indifferently built, but some of the houses recently erected, are neat and elegant. It has five churches, four academies, and a number of schools. The harbor is, for the most of the best in the Union, is wide and spacious, defended by two forts, has a depth of 30 ft., and is rarely obstructed by ice. A considerable trade is carried on with the W. Indies, and the S. states. The whole and other fisheries are extensively prosecuted. Pop. (1840) 9005.

LONDONDERRY a maritime co. N. coast, Ireland bounded N. by Lough Foyle, and the Atlantic Ocean. It is on Antrim and Lough Neagh, 8 m. co. Tyrone and W. Donegal. Length, 40 m., breadth, 24 m. Area, 519,431 sq. co. of which 318,382 are fertile. The surface is in many parts mountainous, especially in the centre of the county, and towards its N. border, where several summits occur, varying from 1200 ft. to above 1700 ft. in height. The principal rivers, besides the Bann, which forms its E. boundary are the Foyle, the Fungahan, and the Roe. The soil is mossy, sandy, and stony, and, clay-slate, basalt, and limestone are found in various localities. There are no mines worked in the county. The vales are extensive and fertile. The most improved portions of the county are the district of Lough Neagh, the valley of the Roe, the valley of the Fungahan, including the coast of Lough Foyle between the embouchures of these rivers, and the immediate vicinity of Londonderry on both sides of the Foyle. Agriculture, however, though in some respects improved, is still generally speaking, in a very low state. The number of acres under crops, in 1851, was 174,165, including wheat 5339 ac.; oats, 39,021 barley bere, and rye, 1540, potatoes, 26,783; turneps, 12,820 flax, 18,468 the remainder, pease, beans, mangel-wurzel, carrots, parsnips, cabbage, mowseed and clover &c. There is but little land in pasture; and the breed of cattle, with exception of pigs, of which great numbers are raised, is in general, not much attended to. The staple manufacture is linen. In 1850 there were 169 national schools in the county, attended by 12,173 children. The county is divided into four baronies, two liberties, and 43 parishes and returns four members to Parliament—two for the county, constituency (1851) 4305 one for the city of Londonderry and one for the borough of Coleraine. Cap. Londonderry, other principal towns, Coleraine and Newtonlismady. Pop. (1841), 223,174 (1851) 191,888. — (Thames Irish Almanac.)

LONDONDERRY, a city, nat. bor. and port, Ireland, cap. above co. 1 bank Foyle, 5 m. above its entrance into Lough Foyle, 123 m. N. N. W. Dublin, lat. (bridge) 54° 59' 30" N., lon. 7° 19' W. (a). It stands on an oval-shaped hill the buildings rising steep above sea in a very picturesque manner. The older part of the city is surrounded by a wall, about 1 m. in extent, which forms an agreeable promenade, but the houses now extend for a considerable distance beyond it. On the opposite bank of the Foyle is a large market, called the Waterside, which is connected with the city by a magnificent wooden bridge 1068 ft. long. Some of the streets are very steep, and, though lighted with gas, so few of them have an elegant appearance, that Londonderry may emphatically be called a town of back streets, still many of the private dwellings have a handsome appearance, and many of the shops are spacious and well furnished. The principal public buildings are the corporation-hall, courthouse, jail, customhouse, innside asylum, and a Doric column, surmounted by a statue, erected in memory of the Rev. George Walker, the intrepid governor of the city during the memorable siege in 1689, the doocan free grammar-school or Foyle college, theatre, linen hall, and the new barracks. The ecclesiastical structures are the cathedral of the see of Derry, and two other churches belonging to the Establishment; two R. Catholic chapels, with four Presbyterian, an Independent, and two Methodist meeting houses. Besides Foyle college, already mentioned, there are several schools, the most important of which are the national school, and Gwyn's charitable institution for boarding, educating, and educating poor boys. The manufactures of Londonderry are two mills for spinning flax, several flour-mills, distilleries, breweries, roperies, gun-dries, and tanneries, and a ship-building yard. The trade of the port is considerable. The principal articles of export are linen and linen yarn and large quantities of eggs, butter, wheat, oats, and oatmeal, amounting in value to above a million sterling. The chief imports are timber, barilla, sugar, rum, flax-seed, wine, and tobacco. The salmon fishery of the river and the Lough is valuable. At spring-tides, vessels of 500 tons can discharge at the quays. In 1850, there entered the port 716 vessels, ton. 64,824, and 391 steamers, ton. 102,652 and there departed 269 vessels, ton. 26,118 and 333 steamers, ton. 100,946. Regular communication, by steamers, is maintained with Liverpool, Glasgow, Greenock, and Camphelon. The bor. returns a member to Parliament, registered electors (1851) 754. The most memorable event in the history of Londonderry is the successful resistance it made, in 1689, during a siege of 105 days, to the forces of James II. Pop. 18,683.

LONDONDERRY, per Eng. Lincoln 1510 ac. P. 728
LONG ISLAND, several isles, Indian America, Atlantic and Pacific Ocean.—1. A small isl. India, near W. coast Bill. ton. 2 51 S. lon. 107° 59' E.—2. A small isl. Java Sea, near S. E. coast Mal. lat. 7 16 S. lon. 115° 6' E.—3. An isl. N. coast Papua lat. (N. point) 0 58' S., lon. 134° 50' E. (a). It has two remarkable peaks, the surface of one of which is much out of, and very irregular and appears to have been a volcano. The island, though called 'Long' by Dampier, has rather a round figure, and its circuit is at least 40 m. The soil, in the vicinity of the shore, appears and must neither coconuts trees, nor any trace of the bananas, have been seen on it.—4. An isl. off S. coast New Zealand, S. E. entrance to Foveaux Strait lat. 47 17 S. lon. 167° 26' E.—5. A small isl., Queen Charlotte's Sound, Cook's Strait, New Zealand, N. E. end of Middle Island, lat. 41 6 S., lon. 174 27 E. (a). about 4 m. long and hilly, and the hollows filled with trees; the perpendicular cliffs on the coast are the resort of numerous sea-fowl.

LONG ISLAND, several isls. America.—1. U. States, New York, having the Sound of same name, 110 m. long by 2 to 30 m. broad, on the N., and the Atlantic S. and E. It is about 120 m. long, by 30 and under, broad, area, 16,000 sq. m., surface hilly on the N., and level on the S. It is indented with several inlets and bays, having water for vessels of 60 or 70 tons. On its S. W. end, which includes part of New York harbour are the two important suburbs of that city, Brooklyn and Williamsburgh.—2. One of the Bahamas, lat. (N. point) 25° 41' N., lon. 76° 19' W. (a), about 70 m. long by 5 to 4 m. broad. Pop. 800.—3. An isl., British N. America, Hudson's Bay, lat. 65° 5' N., lon. 79° 0' W. (a).
LONG ISLAND.—1. A series applied to a group of the Hebrides, Scotland, comprising Lewis, Harris, Benbecula, N. and S. Uist, &c., which are supposed to have been formerly united, and comprehending an area of about 1200 sq. m.—2. An isl. off W. coast Ireland, co. Cork, bounding-water Bay 5 m. N. N. W. Cape Clear, a coast-guard station, and inhabited chiefly by fishermen and pilots.

LONG KEYS.—1, Thursloe, Bay of Honduras (Middle), lat. 17° 10' N., lon. 88° 45' W. (North), lat. 17° 50' N. lon. 88° 40' W. (South), lat. 18° 57' N. lon. 88° 50' W.—3, One of the Bahamas, on the E. side of the S.W. entrance to Crooked Passage, lat. 23° 25' N.; lon. 74° 30' W.

LONG (Loon), a narrow picturesque arm of the sea, Scotland, stretching with a slight curve, N. and N.E. from Firth of Clyde, for about 16 m. between con. Argyll and Dumfriesshire. An offset to the N.W. is named Loch Gell.

LONG-YOAT, a river in China, prov. Chahing, on the banks of the Hwai-Chow or Grand river about 16 m. W. S.W. Nancha. It is a small place but has three pretty pagodas, all picturesque situated.

LONGA, a small uninhabited isl. Scotland, Hebrides, co. Ross, ½ m. E. Salsburgh.

LONGANO, a town, Naples, prov. and 6 m. S. Ischia, with manufacture of cutlery. Pop. 1124.

LONGAROCK, a vil. and par. Italy, Venetia gov. and 56 m. N. Venice, cap. dist. r. bank Piave; with five churches. Pop. 10,200; dist. 9600.

LONGBOROUGH par. Eng. Gloucester 3770 ac. P. 556.

LONGBREEDY, par. Eng. Dorset, 2117 ac. P. 375.

LONGBURY, par. Eng. Dorset; 1025 ac. P. 289.

LONGDON three pars. Eng.—1, Stafford 4511 ac. P. 1145.—2, Worcester 3909 ac. P. 577.—3, (upon Tern) Shrop 796 ac. P. 68.

LONGEVILLE (Long St. Amand) or LONCHAM, a vil. France, dep. Moselle, on the side and at the foot of a lofty hill overlooking the valley of the Moselle, 31 m. E. Metz, with a castle, occupying the site of a Benedictine abbey which was founded in the sixth century and pillaged first by the Duke of Brandenburg, and then by the Swedes. P. 1867.

LONGFIELD par. Eng. Kent 581 ac. P. 162.

LONGFIELD two pars. Ireland Tyrone—1, (East), 9716 ac. P. 2630.—2, (West) 93,907 ac. P. 4162.

LONGHURST two pars. Eng.—1, Derby 8920 ac. P. 1162.—2, Essex 1108 ac. P. 215.

LONGFORD, an island on Ireland prov. Limerick N.W. extremity bounded N. by Limerick and (Cavan & E. and S. Westmeath) and W. Roscommon from which it is separated by the Shannon and Lough Ree. Length 29 m. breadth, 22 m. area, 257,721 ac., of which 191,625 ac. are arable. The surface is generally level, with some low hills of a tuffaceous and pastoral character. The subsoil is limestone and clay-slate the soil fertile, and well suited to pasturage, with much bog the average depth of which is 30 ft. Marly clay underlies many of the boggy tracts. In some places to a thickness of 10 ft. between the bog and the limestone rock but in general the thickness of this bed of clay is only one foot. Ironstone and lead ore are found here the former said to be equal to the best Swedish ore but no workings have hitherto been attempted. Marble is raised in the vicinity of Rathfriland, in the S. part of the county. It is of a deep grey colour and polished well. The principal lake in the county is Lough Connagh it is of exceedingly irregular form, and about 5½ m. long. The number of acres under crop, in 1851 was, 67,575 of which there were wheat, 5170 oats, 49,560 barley, beans, and rye, 2778, potatoes, 11,330; turkies, 1808. The rest of the county is chiefly grazing land. Great quantities of butter are made by the farmers and cottiers. Pigs are reared in great numbers. The feeding of sheep is not much attended to. Farms extremely small upwards of 9000 being under 15 m. The condition of the working people is very low, they live almost entirely on vegetable food, but are nevertheless strong and healthy. Limes and some woodlands are manufactured. In 1850, there were 51 national schools in the county, attended by 6143 children, being an increase in the attendance of about 600 since 1841. The county is divided into six baronies, and 26 parishes, and returns two members to Parliament. Principals towns, Longford and Grangeville. Pop. (1841), 115,491, (1851), 92,580.

LONGFORD a town, Ireland, cap. above co., 1 bank Conlin, 66 m. N.W. Dublin. It is a busy place contains a county courthouse, county prison, union workhouse, barracks, a handsome church and two or three places of worship for Dissenters, and, in the centre, a very fine R.C. Catholic chapel, of recent erection. There are also a number of extensive farms, corn-mills, tan-yards, &c. A branch from the Royal Canal terminates here. Pop. 4144.

LONGFORDAN, par. Scot. Perth, 3962 ac. P. 1787.

LONGFORMACUABACH-KILL, par. Scot. Berwick; 31,350 ac. P. 411.

LONGHAM par. Eng. Norfolk, 1804 ac. P. 387.

LONGHOPE, par. Eng. Gloucester 8070 ac. P. 1070.

LONGJUMEAU a vil. and com. France, dep. Beloit, Oise, between two hills, on the Ivetot, 13 m. S. Paris. It is a very ancient place, consisting of a very low street with well-built houses, and has a parish church, with a Gothic porch a large stonehouse, handsome fountain, several taverns, a trade in corn, flour, wine, leather and cattle. P. 1996.

LONGLIKE, a vil. and com. Belgium prov. Luxembourg, on an affluent of the Moselle, 20 m. N.W. Arlon, with hamlets and two flour-mills. Pop. 1215.

LONGNEY par. Eng. Gloucester 1070 ac. P. 504.

LONGNI, a town, France, dep. Orne, 33 m. E.N.E. Alençon, with manufacture of leather and agricultural implements, blast furnaces and other iron-works. Pop. 1645.

LONGNIDDEY a vil. Scotland, on 5 m. W. by N. Haddington; a station on the N. British Railway P. 216.

LONGNOR, par. Eng. Salop, 1800 ac. P. 278.

LONGOBARDI a vil. and com. Naples, prov. Calabria-Citra, dist. and 12 m. S. Paola on the Mediterranean P. 1990.

LONGOBUCCO, a town, Naples, prov. Calabria-Citra dist. and 11 m. S.W. Rossano, in a deep valley, with some lead mines, and charcoal burning. Near is the Neapolitan hunting house, see head. Pop. 5980.

LONGPARIKH, par. Eng. Hants 5560 ac. P. 875.

LONGBOIVA or LUXEMBURG a poor vil. and par. Portugal prov. Beira-Alta, com. and 15 m. N.E. Trancoso, in a low and unhealthy situation, 1 bank Tagus. It has several churches, and a castle, which once belonged to the Knights Templars. Near it are sulphur and ferruginous springs with a bathing establishment, and a valuable mine of argillaceous mud. 1 op. 1630.

LONGDON, par. Scot. Aberdeen 15,870 ac. 1 9962.

LONGSTANTON, two parishes—1, (East), 2000 ac. P. 171. (West), 895 ac. P. 465.—2, (St. Andrew), 890 ac. P. 171.

LONGSTOCK par. Eng. Hants 290 ac. P. 460.

LONGSTON, par. Eng. Cambridge 1412 ac. P. 342.

LONGTON a market in England, on Stafford, 4 m. E.N.E. Newcastle-under-Lyne composed of the two townships of Longton and Lane End. It is pleasantly situated on a small stream, and on the N. Staffordshire Railway and has several spacious and well built streets, two parish churches, one a large and handsome building of stone, and the other of brick, with a tower containing a fine chime of bells; Independent, Wesleyan, New Methodist and R.C. Catholic chapels a large national school, an almshouse, and mechanics institute two large and handsome market-halls, and extensive manufactures of China and earthenware. Though only a humble village about 80 years ago its population, including the suburbs of Burton and Normanton, is 15,149.

LONGTOWN a market in England, co. Cumberland, 9 m. N. by W. Carlisle, 1 bank Eden with well kept streets, two dissenting chapels, and, about 3 m. distant, the parish church of Arthur, reckoned one of the finest ecclesiastical structures in Cumberland, and many schools. Publichouses employed in cotton weaving for the Carlisle manufacturers, and in agriculture. Pop. 2284.—(Local Correspondent).

LONGUE a town in France, dep. Maine-et-Loire, on the Loire, 9 m. N. Saumur with manufactures of linen and cotton, tanneries, oil-works, and a trade in corn, clover-seed, fruit, hemp, cattle, and bees. Pop. 1554.

LONGWOOD a vil. and chapelry, England co. York (W. Riding), 3 m. W. Huddersfield, nearly built, and containing a chapel, and two Methodist places of worship. The manufacture of woollens, for which there are several mills, and of heavy goods is extensively carried on. Pop. 3028.

LONGWORTH, par. Eng. Berks, 4415 ac. P. 1119.

LONGWY (vill. Longue Vieille), a town, France, dep. Moselle, on the Belgian frontier, 16 m. W.N.W. Luxembourg. It ranks as a fortress of the fourth class, and is divided into the high and low town; the former seated on a steep rock, and regularly fortified; the latter merely a suburb, built on a lower slope of the rock rising from the S. bank of the Chier. It has manufactures of woollen and cotton stuffs, Faint point, quilts, goldware, leather, brandy, and beer and a trade in lead and in stone, which bear a high name, and have a large sale in Paris. On the ruins of its ancient castle, Vanhan, in 1882 constructed the present fortress, by orders of Louis XIV., who, from its important position at an angle of the French territory projecting into Luxembourg, called it the Iron Gate of France. In 1793, it was taken by the Prussians, and in 1815 by the Allies. Pop. 3492.

LONGO a vil. and par. Italy, Venetia, gov. Venice, prov. and 15 m. S.W. Vicenza, cap. dist., 1 bank G., at the foot of a lofty hill occupied by an old castle. It has a court of law, several public offices, and five churches. Pop. vil., 1786 dist., 37,850.

LÖNNINGEN or WIKER LÖNNINGEN a vil. Germany, duchy Oldenburg, on the Hase, 84 m. S.W. Oldenburg with a church, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1381.

LONKA (Km) a vil. Hungary, co. Marmaros, on the Theiss, 6 m. from Seged, near its source, well suited for the manufacture of glass, is found. Pop. 1191.

LONMAY, par. Scot. Aberdeen, 11 045 ac. P. 1864.

LONNEKEK, a vil. Holland, prov. Overijssel, 14 m. S.E. Almelo with a church and school and some manufactures of calicoes, &c. Pop. 1550.

LONNÉ-BACHNIES (anc. Ledo Sabensius), a to France, cap. of dep. Jura, in a basin nearly surrounded by the mountains of the Jura, whose lower hills, about 900 ft. high are here clothed with vines to their very summits, 45 m. S.W. Besançon.

It is, in general well and regularly built, clean, and lighted with gas, and its principal street is bordered by a row of arcades. It has several fine fountains, a library, and museum, containing a gallery of pictures and antiquities.

Manufactures of leather, horse polish, and especially salt, which is obtained in brine from a deep well at the N. angle of the town. The salt exported into the surrounding departments, and several Swiss cantons, at the staple trade. Other branches, however are carried on, Lyons-le-Banquier being an entrepot between the Jura, and Lyons and the interior, and dealing extensively in iron, timber, wine, brandy, cheese, resembling Gruyère, &c. Near it are the ruined castles of Du Pin and Montmireux. Pop. (1858) 8450.

LONDALE, [the valley of the Lure], England, a div. co. Westmoreland on its S.E. side, which gives the title of earl to the Lowther family.

LONFAH, or PULO LONTAR, an isl. Indian Archipelago, off W. coast peninsula of Malacca, from which it is separated by a narrow strait, 21 m. long, by about 6 m. broad. Lat. 7° 30' N. lon 99° E. The inhabitants are called by the Malays Orang Laut, or men of the sea, because it is almost their constant abode, and furnishes their sole means of subsistence. They are mild and unassuming in their manners.

LONTORÉ, a to, French Ind., on Banda Neira. It lies on a hill slope, consists of two long streets, and is esteemed healthy. It has an hospital, and near it pumice-stone is plentifully obtained.

LONYA a river, Austria, Croatia, which rises in Mount Kahluk, about 15 m. S.W. Wersdan flows S.E. and joins L. bank Rava after a course of about 70 m.

LONZAC (Lan), a vil. and com. France, dep. Corrèze, 15 m. N. Tulle. It is built with great uniformity, and contains a battery of 12 guns, which leans over somewhat like the tower of Pisa. Pop. 3644.

LOO, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. W. Flanders, on the Loe Canal, 37 m. S.W. Bruges. It has manufactures of hats, a bleachfield, breweries, tanneries, flour-mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1704.

LOO-CHEO, or LAU-CHEW ISLANDS, an isl. group, in the N. Pacific, half-way between Japan and the isl. of Formosa, forming, with the Kadjiloonian or Mela-co-shimaha, the kingdom of Loo-Cheo, but occasionally tributary to the Chuans, lat. 28° to 32° N., lon 127° to 132° E. It consists of about 36 islands, the largest, and only one of considerable size, being Great Loo-Cheo, over the centre of the group lat. 30. (point) 26° 5' N. lon. 127° 39' E. (n.), and about 60 m. long, by 10 or 12 m. broad. The N. end is high and bold, and the N.W. is usually rugged and bare. The S.E. side of the island is low, with very little appearance of cultivation, the S., S.W., and W. coasts, particularly the two former, are of moderate height, fertile, and highly cultivated, and here the mass of the population reside. The vegetation consists of the characteristic both of the temperate and of the torrid zones. Copper, tin, and sulphur abound. The inhabitants are rather low in stature, but are well formed. Their style of walking is slow, and somewhat stately, sitting very well with the flowing drapery which they throw around them. Their colour is not good, being mostly of a deep copper, but the expression of their countenances is peculiarly sweet and intelligent. The working-classes are invariably in a tattered, filthy state. There are colleges established here for the education of the upper classes; the established language of this schools, in all cases, being that of the court-dialect of China. In this language all official correspondence with strangers is framed. Fruits of various kinds, including peaches, pears, figs, &c., Indian corn, sweet potatoes, eggs, fowls, hogs, and bullocks, are to be obtained here. (Hall's Loo-Cheo, Harbinger, Martin's China, Voyage of the Samarang).

LOO-KIANG, LOU-KIANG or LO-KIANG a large river, Asia, one of the head streams of the Salween (Irrawaddy).

LOO-KIANG, an isl. See LOO-KIANG.

LOOCHISTY, a m. and com. Belgium, prov. E. Flanders, 6 m. E.N.E. Ghent, with textile manufactures, breweries, and three flour and three oil mills. Pop. 8772.

LOODIANA or LOODIANA, a tn. Hindoostan, prov. Delhi, 115 m. S.E. Lahore lat. 30° 56' N. lon 75° 48' E. on a small affluent of the Sutlej and within 2 m. of the L. bank of that river. Loodiana has long been one of the head military stations of the British in N.W. Hindoostan. The climate here during four months of the year is excessively cold, and, in summer, intensely hot. The soil is also very heavy. Shams is manufactured to a considerable extent.

LOOE two small rivers, England, co. Cornwall. The first falls into the British Channel near Heston, by a beautiful estuary called Looe Pool, and the second, after a short course, enters the channel at Looe.

LOOE, two contiguous detached boroughs and seaport towns, England, co. Cornwall.—1. [East] on L. bank, and at the mouth of the Looe, here crossed by an elegant bridge of 13 arches, connecting with W. Looe, 14½ m. W. Plymouth. It is defended by a fort, has a custom-house, jail, handsome Episcopal chapel, places of worship for Wesleyans and Friends, and an endowed school. Pickarls are extensively fished and, with the copper lead-ore, &c., are exported. Pop. 970.—2. [West], on r. bank Looe, opposite E. Looe with two Episcopal chapels and Independent and Bible Christian meeting-houses. Copper and lead are exported to Swansea. The pickard fishery is also actively prosecuted. The harbour is small but commodious and the river is navigable for vessels of 100 tons. Pop. 746.—(Local Correspondent).

LOOMCHANG, a tn. and fort. Siam, on the road from Marabou to Bangkok. It is a place of considerable traffic in cotton, cotton cloth, best wax, sugar, wood, ivory, hides, and timber, carried on chiefly by means of boats.

LOON or LZON, or YERLOOF a vil. Holland, prov. N. Brabant, 12 m. S.W. Hertogenbosch. It has a townhouse, two churches, and a school; and three well attended horse fairs. Pop. (agricultural), with environs, 1800.

LOOF HEAD, or CAPR LMAN a lofty promontory W. coast Ireland N. side of entrance to the Shannon, with a fixed light. Lat. 52° 38' 29" N. lon 9° 53' W.

LOOE, a to France, dep. Nord, 8 m. S.W. Lille on the High Denain. The extensive buildings of the fine abbey which is possessed before the revolution of 1788, have been converted into a central house of correction, fitted to contain 1650 convicts. It has manufactures of printed calicoes, white lead, sulphuric acid, and soda, and likewise some cotton and flax mills. Pop. 3014.

LOOS, LOOMS, or LOOMRE a market to Hungary, Thither Danube, co. and 7 m. S.E. Oedenburg, on the Spitzbach with a church, castle, and a trade in wine. Near it is a mine of quicksilver. Pop. 1127.

LOOKE, par. Eng. Kent, 960 ac. Pop. 1542.

LOOTENULLE, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. E. Flanders, 12 m. W. by N. Ghent, with a neat church, three schools, a distillery, a brick-works, and some cotton and oil mills. Pop. 8641.

LOOZ (Flamish, Boylon), a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Limburg, on the Herk 9 m. S. Hasselt. It was once capital of a county, but is now much decayed. It contains a church, chapel, castle, almshouse, workhouse, and several schools; and has manufactures of vinegar, and an oil and a flour mill. Pop. 1512.

LOPATKA a cape, Asia, forming the S. extremity of the peninsula of Kamtschatka lat. 51° 2' N lon. 156° 46' E. It consists of a few and barren tongues of land, widening out towards the N. and terminating in a mountain, which bears the same name.

LOPEN par Eng. Bonastre 499 sq. Pop. 477

LOPENA a tn. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 25 m. N. W. Jaen. It has two well-farmed squares, a Gothic parish church, an old Moorish castle, two old courtyards, one of them now used as an hospital, a primary school, and a trade in wheat and oil. Pop. 2179

LOPEZ (GAYE) Africa, W. coast, forming the S. point of the Bight of Biafra; lat. 0° 56' S.; lon. 8° 45' E. (a.) It is very low but bold round both sides within 5 m., appearing, at a short distance, rugged, with bushes close to the water. The entrance bay which it forms 14 m. long has several rivers and creeks, all very shallow running into it.

LOPHAM two pars. Eng. Norfolk 1 (North) 8000 ac. Pop. 632.—2 (South) 1987 ac. Pop. 731

LOPHEM, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. W. Flanders, on the canal and S. B. Bruges with manufactures of linen, and a trade in flax, bark and amber. Pop. 1436

LOPPEBESUM a vil. Holland, prov. and 11 m. N. W. Groningen with two churches, and a school some brick making, lime burning, and brewing. Pop. (agricultural) with swarms, 1430

LOPPINGTON par Eng. Salop, 8414 ac. Pop. 599

LOKA a river Afghanistan runs 50 m. N.E. Quetta, lat. 30° 49' N.; lon. 67° 20' E., and joins itself in the mouth of the Khormat river, after a S.W. course of about 80 m.

LOLA DEL RIO a tn. Spain Andalusia, prov. and 28 m. E.N.E. Seville. Nicely situated and well built. It has a parish church, a handsome townhouse, an hospital and three public schools, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth hats, and chocolate, several oil and flour mills, and an important annual fair. Pop. 4633

LOLANCA DE TAUCA a tn. Spain, New Castile, prov. and 15 m. from Guadalajara, with a church, primary school, hospital, oil and flour mills, and a trade in corn wool and charcoal. Pop. 1103

LOREA [anc. Elvoro] a city Spain, prov. and 62 m. S. W. Murcia, on the S. slope of Mount Coto, the summit of which is crowned by a castle, with regular works in a good state of defence. It consists of two parts—an ancient, situated in the vicinity of the castle, and consisting generally of mean houses and narrow winding streets; and a modern, of a much superior description consisting of houses which have a pleasing and substantial appearance, and streets which, though somewhat irregular as on the whole, well formed. It has eight parish churches. San Patrocinio, consisting of three naves, and entered by a magnificent portal, is the only one noteworthy, three naves and several suppressed monasteries, an episcopal palace, a court-house a handsome edifice, occupied till 1837 as a college, which was then suppressed and incorporated with the university of Granada, several elementary schools, and an hospital. The manufactures consist chiefly of coarse woollens, linen, leather hard soap, and earthenware and there are several oil and other mills, dye-works, brick and tile works, some trade in grain, barilla, sparite, cattle, and another a weekly market, and an important annual fair which lasts fourteen days. In the vicinity are mines of lead, which became the subject of much speculation in 1840 and were begun to be worked on a very extensive scale. They have not proved profitable, and have been, in a great measure, abandoned, though the workings are still partially carried on. Lorea is a very ancient place, and makes a considerable figure in the wars of the Moors. It suffered much from the French during the Peninsular war. Its most celebrated natives are the painters Juan de Toledo Pedro Canocho, and Baltasar Martinez. Pop., including dist., 48,374.—(Madox, Decade de España.)

LORENZ, two places, Germany —1, A. vil. Nassau, on the Rhine, at the confluence of the Wipperf, 15 m. W. S. W. Wiesbaden. It has a church, a mineral spring, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1785.—2, A. vil. Wittenberg, circle Jaxt, 23 m. S. W. Elberfeld, on a branch near r. bank Rhine. It has a church, an old monastery, and manufactures of pottery and chemical products, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1720

LORD HOWE'S ISLANDS—1 A group, E. coast, Australia, nearly opposite Port Macquarie; lat. 31° 37' S.,

lon. 159° 14' E. (a.), composed of one large and several smaller islands.—2, A group of small islands, S. Pacific Ocean, lat. 8° 50' S. lon. 159° 51' E. (a.), at the N. entrance of the remarkable Strait.—3, One of the Society Islands, lat. 16° 50' S.; lon. 154° 21' W. about 60 m. long and 4 broad, discovered by Captain Wallis in 1767, and seen again by Cook in 1774, who found it to be composed of several smaller islands, united by breakers.

LORENA a tn. Brazil, prov. and 130 m. N. E. São Paulo, r. bank Parahiba, with a parish church, and a considerable trade in coffee, sugar, and poultry. Pop. dist. 8000.

LORENZO MANQUÉS, the original name of Delagoa Bay, S.E. Africa (see ante)

LORENZO (SAN)—1 A tn. Cisneros, N. E. shore, Isl. Gran Canaria, about 5 m. from Palmas, with some trade in corn, wine, and fruit. Pop. 1977.—2 A tn. Naples, prov. Calabria-Ultra I. dist. and 13 m. S.E. Reggio with two churches. P. 1680.—3, Two tns. Papal States.—1, Delago. Urbino and Pesaro, on the Cosmo 17 m. S.E.E. Urbino.—Pop. 1060.—2 (ex-Grotte), Delago. Viterbo, on an eminence 5 m. S.E.E. Aqua Pendente, with several spacious streets of well-built houses.

LORENZO (RAC) a small Isl. Pers. off Callao lat. 12° 4' S. lon. 77° 19' W. (a.) Its highest summit, 1984 ft. is the only place on the island where vegetation can exist, the other heights being barren sandy hills. The island is principally composed of limestone, clay and slate.

LORENZO (SAN) a river La Plata, rises near lat. 37° S. flows N.E. about 120 m. and joins r. bank Uruguay, about 35 m. above its confluence with the Paraguay.

LOREO a vil. and par. Italy Venezia, prov. and 27 m. S. S.W. Venezia, cap. dist. and on the canal of same name. It has a court of justice two churches, and a trade in cattle, wool, and corn. Pop. 2100

LAURETO a tn. Mexico cap. Lower California, near the S. side of the peninsula lat. 26° 17' N. lon. 112° 7' W.

LORETO a tn. Naples, prov. Abruzzo-Ultra I. dist. and 4 m. S.E. Civita-di-Penne. It has eight churches, a Benedictine monastery and three other convents, a dye work an extensive paper mill and an annual fair. Pop. 4900

LORETO or Lourro a tn. Italy The Marche, 11 m. N.E. Macerata, near the mouth of the Musone. It stands on a bold and commanding eminence, and is surrounded by deep moats and walls, flanked with batteries, and is the chief capital of defence. It is well built and, notwithstanding its elevated site, is well supplied with water by an aqueduct. It is of comparatively modern date, and owes its existence to the Santissima Casa [Most holy house] with regard to which the legend is, that it is the very house in which our Saviour lived at Nazareth, with the Virgin Mary and Joseph, having been transported thither by angels in 1294. The town is composed of one long narrow street, filled with shops, for the sale of crowns, medals, and pictures, of the Madonna di Loreto, and the trade thus driven, with the special sanction of popes, is of great extent, and yields large returns. The church, called Chiesa della Santa Casa, is in a square, one side of which is occupied by a Jesuit convent, and another by the governor's house, built after the designs of Bramante. The church occupies a third side. It was built by pope Sixtus V., is entered by three superb brown doors, has a bell tower, and is of great height. The Santa Casa, which is considered the great ornament of the interior, is a brick house of the simplest and rudest construction, but its store of rich treasures and miscellaneous relics is so great, that description would be useless. Several of the most costly disappeared during the French invasion. The Casa is enclosed in a Fodera or marble casing, adorned with exquisite sculptures, by the most eminent masters; and the church, throughout, is covered with magnificent mosaics, arabesques, and frescoes. The number of pilgrims continues to be great, but is far less than it used to be in earlier and darker ages. The three days' lodging and entertainment, which each pilgrim is entitled to receive, seem to be not the least of the inducements to undertake the pilgrimage. Pop. 6000

LOREBUES [anc. Leonea] a tn. France, dep. Var, 7 m. W. N. W. Draguignan, r. bank Argens. It has a handsome church, manufactures of woollen cloth and olive-oil, tanneries, distilleries, dye-works, marble quarries, and six annual fairs. Pop. 2844.

LOBIENT, a seaport in France, dep. Morbihan at the mouth of the Roon, in the Bay of Biscay 40 m. W. Vannes, ranking as a fortress of the third class. Its streets are regular, wide, well-paved, but dull in appearance, and by no means clean, though lined by houses of good construction; its public squares are large and handsome, and its walks pleasant. The harbour is spacious, safe, and commodious, surrounded by magnificent buildings, among which is a tower, used as a lighthouse and observatory, and lined by handsome quays, where the largest vessels can lie alongside. In the roads, whole fleets can ride in safety. At some distance below the harbour, its entrance is commanded by a fort built on the Isle St. Michel, and mounting it is said 500 guns. The isle is, moreover, covered by a range of yellow buildings, forming the lazaretto. The dock-yard and arsenal are among the most complete and extensive in France, having 15 or 16 building slips. The principal buildings are the parish church, the Prefecture Maritime, situated on the point at the entrance to the dock-yard, and, adjacent to it, an extensive series of buildings, erected, in 1866, by the delivance 'Compagnie des Indes Orientales' [E. India Co.], under the auspices of the notorious Law of Lauriston, who once resided in the prefecture. Almost all the working classes are employed in connection with the dock-yard, and the only manufacture deserving of notice is that of hats. The trade and commerce, once of considerable importance, have greatly decayed. The exports at present are chiefly soap, wine, brandy, furs, woollens, cottons, hardware, iron, and clock work, &c. Lobient possesses courts of first resort and commerce, a chamber of commerce and exchange, a school of hydrography of the second class, and a communal college. At the beginning of the 17th century, Lobient was a mere village, and, all at once, rose into importance by the exertions of the seigneur and the some party already mentioned, and suffered, of course with the fall of that association. In 1770, it was made one of the four stations of the French navy and a free port, and demanded its prosperity re-established, when the revolution of 1798 broke out, and almost instantaneously annihilated its commerce. The shock then sustained has never been recovered. Pop. 19,106.

LOBINCE (Szendr) several places, Hungary.—1, A vil., co. and 20 m from Tolna, near the Bar with a Protestant church. Pop. 1718.—2, (Szent Katalin) A vil. Either Danube, co. and 26 m from Pesth, on the Zagya with a R. Catholic church. Pop. 1917

LOBIOL (anc. Luroci), a tn. France, dep. Drôme, 13 m S.S.W. Valence, 1 bank Rhône, about 2 m above its confluence with the Rhone. On the opposite bank stands Livron, and the two towns are connected by a very handsome bridge. It has manufactures, and spins a good deal of silk. extensive nursery grounds, and trades in skins. Pop. 2100

LOMBES, a tn. France, dep. Aube 58 m. N.E. Nevers. It was formerly fortified, still possesses the remains of an old castle, and has manufactures of castles, brandy distilleries, brick and the works, lincolns, and some trade in wood, wine, iron, and wool. Pop. 2108

LOREMONT, a tn. France, dep. Gironda, about 8 m N.E. Bordeaux, r bank Garonne. It has a small town with building-district, and a powder-magazine. Pop. 2500

LOREN, an anc. dist. Scotland, Argyllshire, comprising the greater part of the tract between Loch Awe, on the S and E, as far S. as Loch Melvor, opposite the isl. of Luing; Loch Laven on the N, the Atlantic and Loch Linne on the W. The principal town is Oban

LOBROUK (Lob), or LOMONA-BOTHEMAT, a tn. France, dep. Lot-et-Garonne, 10 m. E. Marais. It was once governed by its own lord, the ruins of whose castle still exist. It trades in cattle, and in wine of good quality, the produce of the district. Pop. 1257

LOREQUI (anc. Lorena) a tn. Spain, prov. and 10 m N. Murcia, at the foot of a well-wooded hill, 1 bank Segura. It has a church, townhouse, prison, and primary school; oil and flour mills, and a trade in wood and cheese. Pop. 1020

LOBRACH, a tn. Baden, circle Upper Rhine, emp. Pruss. 1 bank Rhine, on the borders of Switzerland, 5 m. N.E. Basel. It has a college of protestantism, and manufactures of shins and calico, tobacco, silk, and mixed goods, a trade in wood, wine, and fruit; several dye-works, saw, and other mills. The artist Hago was born here, and the mathematician

Euler was the descendant of a family of this town. P. 2500 Area of bail, 75 sq. m. P. 27,761

LORRANE (La), (German, Lotharingen and Austrasia, Lotharingen) an extensive prov. France, now included in depts. Vosges, Meurthe, Meuse, and Moselle. Under the Romans, it formed part of the Belgic division of Gaul; at a later period, under the successors of Clotaire, it constituted the kingdom of Austrasia, and was afterwards united to the empire of Charlemagne. It was subsequently erected into a duchy and afterwards possessed by dukes of the House of Austria, and, with the duchy of Bar was annexed to its crown. In 1786, by the treaty of Vienna, these two duchies were exchanged for that of Tuscany and ceded, in inheritance, to Stanislas Leszczynski, king of Poland, and father in law of Louis XV. On his death they passed to the crown of France.

LORRHA par. Irel. Tipperary 16 880 ac. P. 1280

LORRIB (anc. Laurion), a tn. France, dep. Loiret, 28 m. E. Orleans with some trade in wool. Pop. 1558

LORECH a market tn. Hesse-Darmstadt, prov. Starkenburg, emp. dist. about 9 m. E. Worms with a chapel and a townhouse. It had once one of the most celebrated and best-endowed monasteries in Germany. Pop. 2463.

LOREICA a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. Genova. Prov. Chiavari 6 m from Chiavari, near the confluence of the Mulvaca and Tiele with the Lavagna. It has a handsome church, and manufactures of fine silk goods for the market of Genova. Pop. 1675

LORE M. par. Irel. Carlow 5845 ac. P. 1945

LOS (Luzon), a group of three isls. Atlantic off Sierra Leone, consisting of Factory Island, Fama, and Ruma. Tamara is lat. 9° 28' N. lon. 13° 52' W. (n)

LOSAB, a tn. Spain, Estremadura, prov. and 63 m. N. N. L. Cáceres with narrow irregular and steep streets a church three chapels, prison, small hospital, and school. Inhabitants engaged in tillage, cattle-rearing, and weaving. Pop. 3081

LOBAREKOS a tn. Spain, prov. Navarra, 55 m from Pampeluna; with two churches, a court-house, hospital, 1 inn and primary school manufactures of leather, several distilleries, a weekly market, and an annual fair, which lasts 12 days. Pop. 5098

LOECH or Loech, a market tn. Austria, Moravia, circle and 5 m from Brünn with a church, a trade in fruit, and fine quarries of black marble. Chalcodones are found in the vicinity. Pop. 2267

LOECHUTZ, or Loechitz, a tn. Austria, Moravia, circle and 18 m. N.W. Olmütz, 1 bank Trychovka with a church and an hospital, manufactures of woven cloth, tobacco and earthenware; a wall, paper and two other mills. Pop. 2592

LOECHWITZ, a vil. Saxony, circle and near Dresden, r bank Elbe, here crossed by a ferry, in a narrow and deep valley. It contains a great number of handsome villas. Pop. 1060

LOEDZEY or Loedey a tn. Russian Poland, woiwód Augustowo 26 m. E.N.E. Suwalki with two churches, and a synagogue. Pop. 1557

LOHEIM a vil. Rhensland Prussia, gov. and 18 m. S. Treves with a R. Catholic church and a wind-mill. P. 1917

LOHELI, or Wassau, a tn. Prussia, prov. and 50 m. S.W. S. W. Oppeln, on a lake with two churches, a synagogue, hospital, manufactures of tobacco and starch, a bleachfield and dye-works. Pop. 3047

LOHSEN, a vil. Prussia, prov. Sillesia, gov. and 82 m. S.S.E. Breslau, with two churches, a castle, tile-works, and a mill. Pop. 1182

LOSEER, a vil. Holland, prov. Overijssel 22 m. E.S.E. Almelo; with two churches and a school. P. [with surroundings], 1800

LOSSIEMOUTH a vil. and seaport, Scotland, at the mouth of the Lossie on the German Ocean, co. Murray, 5 m. N. by E. Elgin, with which it is connected by the Morayshire railway. It is chiefly inhabited by fishermen and sailors, exports grain, herrings, and cod-fish, and imports coals, salt, &c. The river has a N.E. course past Elgin, and is about 26 m. long. Pop. 902 LOSSINI or Lossini, an isl. Adriatic. See ONSO.

LOSSNITZ, a tn. Saxony, circle Zwickau, 14 m. S.S.W. Chemnitz. It is walled, has a court of justice, contains two churches, manufactures of hosiery and chemical products, several mills, and a general trade. Pop. 4799, LOBBONCE, or LOBBONCE, a market to Hungary. Hither Danube, on the right, esp. dist., on the Tugar, 83 m. N. N. E. Penth. It was once walled and well built, containing a Protestant and a Catholic church, a Protestant gymnasium, and a handsome courthouse but was nearly destroyed during the recent Hungarian war.

LOBTUCK.—1. A hamlet England so. Lancaster, 5 m. W. Bolton. Pop. 630.—2. (Ordnance) A township, England, co. Chester, 2 m. E. Northwich. Pop. 518.

LOBTUCK or LOBTUCK, a vil and par Switzerland, can and 18 m. N. E. Solothurn with manufactures of woollen hosiery, thermal baths, of a low temperature, considered efficacious in gout and rheumatic affections, and a marble quarry in the vicinity. Pop. 1044.

LOBTWITHIE, a market tn. and par England, co. Cornwall. The town, in a beautiful valley, through which runs the Fowey 5½ m. E. by E. Bodmin has a fine old church, and three Dissenting chapels, a grammar school and market-house, two schools, and a mechanics institute. Wool-combing and tanning are carried on, and there is a brisk trade in the conveyance of iron-ore, and other mineral productions, to Fowey for shipment to Wales, and in bringing back coal, lime, and timber for the supply of the surrounding district. Area of par., 110 ac. Pop. 1053.—(Local Government.)

LOT [anc. Olis or Olis].—(Local Government.) A river, France, which rises in Mount Loire, one of the Cevennes, near Mende, dep. Lozère. It flows W. by S. across depa. Arveyron and Lot, and joins R. bank Garonne at Aguilon, in dep. Lot-et-Garonne having passed Estrangues, where it receives, on the E., the Travyre, one of its chief affluents, and Cahors, above which it receives also, on the E., its other chief affluent, the Collé. Total course, about 250 m., of which 180 m. commencing at Estrangues, are navigable.

LOT, an island dep. France, bounded N. by dep. Corrèze, E. Cantal and Arveyron, S. Tarn-et-Garonne, W. Lot-et-Garonne and Dordogne lat. 44° 15' to 45° 15' N.; lon 1° 20' E. greatest length, W. to E. 60 m.; greatest breadth, N. to S. 66 m.; area, 2070 sq. m. The greater part of the surface is occupied by an extensive plateau of limestone, covered occasionally by argillaceous and siliceous deposits. The plateau, traversed in all directions by ridges of hills, and scooped out into deep valleys, slopes on the E. on the S. on the N. or S. on the W., forming a prolongation of the mountainous Cantal. These mountains, passing into the department, form the water-shed between the Dordogne and the Lot. The culminating height is Mount Bastille, 3422 ft. the mean height of the plateau above the sea is 1476 ft. The department belongs entirely to the basin of the Garonne, being traversed from E. to W., in directions almost parallel, by its two most important tributaries—the N. by the Dordogne, with its affluent the Cère; and in the S. by the Lot, which gives the department its name, with its affluent the Collé. Rather less than one-seventh of the surface is waste, about one-fourth wood, one-ninth vineyard, and one-half arable land and pasture. The deep soils of the lower grounds are devoted to wheat, maize, barley, and oats; also hemp and tobacco, the lighter soils to rye, roots, and buckwheat. The river slopes are generally planted with vines, and produce generally a common wine of good quality, the best being those of Cahors and Grandmont. The culture of the white mulberry is general and the rearing of silk worms is extensively prosecuted. Excellent truffes, known by the name of truffes of Périgord, grow within the department, and form an important article of trade. The principal fruits is prunes, the drying and preparation of which forms a chief branch of rural economy. Minerals are of little importance. Some mines of iron exist, and lead, calcimine, and coal are found also lithographic stone, blue stone, fine marble, and alabaster, marble, potter's clay, and fullers earth. Manufactures have made almost no progress, and trade, also very limited, consists chiefly in agricultural produce. For administrative purposes, Lot is divided into 5 arrondissements—Cahors, the capital, Figeac, Gourdon, subdivided into 29 cantons, and 310 communes. Pop. (1850), 296,594.

LOT or LOTT, a dep. France, bounded N. by Dordogne, E. Lot and Tarn-et-Garonne, S. Gers, and W. Landes, lat. 44° 44' N.; lon. 0° 57' W. to 1° 4' E. It is very compact, and nearly of a rhomboidal form; length and breadth each about 50 m., area, 2080 sq. m. This department, which nowhere presents any lofty ridges may be regarded as an elevated and undulating plain, furrowed throughout its length and breadth by valleys of more or less extent, each occupied by a stream. The strata are generally calcareous. The whole area, which has a general slope towards the W., belongs to the basin of the Garonne, which traverses it in a N. W. direction receiving within the department, on its left bank, the Gers and Baïse, and on its right the Lot. The Dropt, another tributary of the Garonne, waters a small part of the N. Not quite one-fourteenth of the whole surface is waste, about one-eighth wood, one-eighth vineyards, and can be considered more than one-half arable. A small part of the W., also, is occupied by the barren sands characteristic of the Landes. The sloping banks of the streams are generally clothed with vines. The only wines of any repute are those of Figeac, Thézac, Bast, Châteauneuf, Arnaud, and Maumus. A great proportion of the others is made into brandy. The principal grain crops are wheat, maize, rye, &c., about one-fourth of which is exported. Among other crops may be mentioned tobacco, hemp, and fruit, particularly prunes and chestnuts, which form an important branch of trade. The principal trees are the oak-tree, the common oak, and the sycamore or cork tree. The latter supplies the principal part of the consumption of France. Great numbers of poultry, particularly geese, are fattened. The only metal is iron, which is mined in sufficient quantities to supply several blast-furnaces. Fine building-stones, and extensive beds of gypsum and marl are wrought. Cork-cutting is perhaps the most important manufacture but sail-cloth and household linen, calicoes, muslins, glass, paper, leather, glass, earthenware, and brandy are also made, though to a limited extent. This department early distinguished itself in the Reformation, and as one time furnished an asylum to Calvin, at Figeac, was the protection of Marguerite de Valois. For administrative purposes it is divided into 4 arrondissements—Agen, the capital, Marmande, Nérac, and Villeneuve d'Agon subdivided into 30 cantons, and 312 communes. Pop. (1852), 541,845.

LOTH par Soot. Sutherland 11 m by 5. Pop. 640.

LOTHIAN, an extensive and fertile dist. Scotland, lying along the E. shore of the Firth of Forth, comprising the three cos. Haddington, Edinburgh and Leith and county, respectively East, Mid, and West Lothian.

LOTHINGEN, a prov. France, co. LOURAIN.

LOTS WIFE, a remarkable rock in the N. Pacific lat. 59° 50' N. lon. 142° 53' E. Its singular likeness to a vessel under canvas has excited much surprise and disappointment in those who have been deceived by it. It rises almost perpendicularly to the height of near 800 ft.

LOTTE, a vil. Rhénish Prussia, gov. Münster, circle Tecklenburg, with a parish church and an annual fair P 1300.

LOTZEN, a vil. Prussia, prov. E. Prussia, gov. and 42 m. S.E.W. Samlanden, esp. dist., on Lake Löwenitz, and the canal of Johannisburg. It has a court of justice, a church a castle, and a trade in linen, corn, and cattle. Pop. 1580. Area of circle, 265 sq. m. Pop. 27,568.

LOU NAH, or LOU NAH, a city, China, prov. Szechuen, esp. dep. of same name, 160 m. N. W. Chungking; lat. 32° 25' N., lon. 104° 27' E. It is fortified, and has a considerable trade.

LOUBOU, a native state, lat. Calabes, on the S. E. peninsula, W. side Bay of Boul. It is extensive and fertile, and its rivers yield gold. Its capital is of same name.

LOUBOU, or LOUBOU, a river, France, which rises in the Little Atlas, some N. W., and, after a course of about 100 m., falls into the Atlantic at El Anzab, near the parallel of 35° N. Vessels of 150 tons ascend a short distance by the aid of the tide.

LOUDEAC, a cit. France, dep. Côte-d'Or, 34 m. S. E. Dijon. It has a handsome church, with a lofty belfry and a covered market for the sale of linen, which is the staple of the place, and is sold here in great quantities. There are also forges, and iron and paper mills. Pop. 1650.

LOUBON, par Soot. Ayr 18,169 ac. P 4710.

LOUBON (Latin, lobon), a cit. France, dep. Vienne, 45 m. S. E. Tours. It is an ancient city, once a large place, but its actual population requires; has several squares and well-fortified bastions, lined by high and well-built houses; a fine walk on the site of its ancient walls, of which vestiges still remain; a court of first resort, a communal college, an agricultural society, manufacture of woollen and linen cloth, common lace, leather, and trinkets; a trade in corn, linens and oliver seeds, white wine, nut-oil, leather, honey wax, dried fruit, hemp, flax, and sheep. Louvain was formerly the cap. of a small territory called Louvain, and was inhabited chiefly by Protestants. Its property was destroyed by the revolution of the Edict of Nantes. Pop. 4071.

LOUVE, or LOUVE, a river, France, which rises near Annonay, around. Fountains, dep. Doubs, flows directly into W., passing Quingey, enters dep. Jura, passing Crumans and Chamblay and after a course of above 70 m., joins l. bank Doubs a little below Dole. Its chief affluent is the Lison.

LOUGA.—1, A river, Russia, which rises in the W of gov Novgorod, and, shortly after entering gov St. Petersburg, passes the town of Louga, receives its chief affluent the Orelja, and, proceeding N.W., falls into a bay of the Gulf of Finland. A little above its mouth an arm, called Rossen, leaves the main stream and proceeds S.W. to the Narva. Its whole course is about 180 m., and admits of transport by barges and rafts the latter constituting chiefly of timber obtained from the extensive forests which line its banks, and conveyed to Jamburg and the port of Narva.—2, A tn. Russia, gov St. Petersburg, cap. of dist. and on above river with a trade in wood. Pop. 800.—The distance is that throughout, and contains much arable pasture and wood land, area, 8500 sq. m. m. Pop. 70 980

LOUGAN, or LOVAGAN, a river Norway, which is formed by numerous brooks from the Langfjeld and Sognefjeld mountains, flows S.E. through the Gulland-Dal, and falls into the N. extremity of Lake Mjøsen, total course, 150 m.

LOUGANSKAJA STANITZA, a tn. Russia, gov Don Cossacks, 105 m N Novo-Tcherkassk. It stands amid fine forests, and has a famous fair, which lasts a fortnight.

LOUGANSKOJE, a tn. Russia, gov and 148 m E Ekaterinodar, with an extensive foundry, at which a vast number of bombs and cannons are yearly cast a good deal of machinery is also made. Near it is a government model farm, for the cultivation of dyewoeds and tobacco.

LOUGHAN, par lral Meath and Cavan 9828 ac. Pop. 2750

LOUGHBOROUGH a market in England on and 104 m N.W. Leicester, and a station on the Midland railway. Its four principal streets are tolerably straight and very clean, well paved, and lighted with gas. Houses mostly of brick and the town altogether has a respectable and thriving appearance. It has two elegant churches a hand some N. Catholic, and various Dissenting chapels a free grammar and several other schools, a mutual improvement society a philosophical and a literary institution. The principal manufactures of the town consists of hosiery of all kinds, and more particularly of that kind called Patent Angora, in which about 2000 persons are employed. In the neighbourhood are a famous ball foundry, several dye-works, mill-kilns, slate-quarries, corn-mills, and an iron-foundry. Pop. 11 172 — (Local Correspondent).

LOUGHBRACKAN, par lral Meath 2160 ac. P. 509

LOUGHBRICKLAND, a tn. Ireland, on Down on a small lake, from which it takes its name, 10 m N N E Newry. It has a handsome parish church, a commodious R. Catholic chapel and Presbyterian and Methodist meeting-houses. P. 407

LOUGHCREW, par lral Meath, 5983 ac. Pop. 905

LOUGHGALL, a small vill. and par. Ireland, on and 5 m. N by E. Armagh. The village has a church and school. Pop. 894. Area of par., 10 925 ac. Pop. 7378.

LOUGHGILLY, par lral Armagh, 16,090 ac. P. 7125

LOUGHGILL, par lral Antrim, 46,819 ac. P. 4841

LOUGHINISLAND, par lral Down, 12,486 ac. P. 5083

LOUGHKEEN, par lral Tipperary 10,851 ac. P. 2169

LOUGHMORE, two pars. lral Tipperary—1, (East), 6014 ac. Pop. 1871.—2, (West), 4855 ac. Pop. 1565

LOUGHOR, a tn. Wales. See LOUGHOR.

LOUGHERA a market tn. and par. Ireland, co. Galway. The town is beautifully situated on an acclivity on a small lake of some size, 2 1/2 m. E. by S. Galway and contains generally of very old limestone houses. It has a parish church, a R. Catholic chapel, a Catholic monastery, with a neat chapel, a Carmelite monastery, a workhouse, police-barracks, fever hospital, several public and private schools, and a meeting also a theatre. It also possesses an extensive brewery, two tanneries, and six corn-mills, and a little linen-weaving is carried on. Loughera was once fortified, and the remains of its walls may still be traced. It also contains the remains of an old castle and monastery. Pop. 8851. Area of par. 5987 ac. Pop. 7340 — (Local Correspondent).

LOUGHTON two pars. Eng.—1, Bucks 1620 ac. Pop. 1000.—2, Essex 8170 ac. Pop. 1387

LOUGHGOR ISLAND, one of the Urrall Islands, Morlock group. lat. 5° 20' 20" N. lon. 158° 28' E. It is in the form of a horse-shoe, and forms an excellent port. It is of small size, and, in the centre, is covered with broad fruit trees, while on the shore the coco-nut and other trees abound. The island, naturally, has no fresh water but rain water is collected in various ways by the natives, who are hospitable, kind, reserved, of agreeable manners, and above middle size.

LOUHAN, (also Loungwe), a tn. France, dep. Bas-Rhin, l. bank Saut, where here begins to be navigable, 48 m. S. Dijon. It is by no means of a pleasing appearance, has a various church in the ogival style a well-endowed hospital, court of first resort and commerce, and communal college, manufactures of leather and flour, and a trade in corn, flour, maize, poultry, pork, horses, and cattle partly transit between Lyons and Switzerland. Pop. 8340 LOUI TCHOU, a city China, prov. Kiangtong, cap. of the most E. dep. of the empire, on the E. side of a peninsula, 250 m. S. Canton, near the mouth of a small river which falls into the China Sea, and forms a good harbour.

LOUIS-PELLEPE LAND, the N. portion of a tract of land in the Antarctic Ocean off S. Shetland, about lat. 63° 30' S. lon. 57° W. Its outline was traced for a distance of about 120 m. between lat. 63° and 64° S. by Admiral D'Urville, of the French navy. It is crowned with numerous peaks, covered by continual snows of unknown depth. Were it not for the blackish rocks rendered visible by the melting of the snows which form their limits on the coast, the land could not be distinguished from the numerous fields of ice by which it is surrounded.

LOUIS (Puer), cap. of Mauritius. See Port Louis.

LOUIS (Sr) or LOUIS-LEZAN, a city and com. France, dep. Haut-Rhin, 14 m. E. Altkirch. It has a custom-house, manufactures of glass hats, and iron works. It lies on the Rhine frontier, at the termination of the French portion of the railway from Strasbourg to Basel. 1 op. 1805.—2, An ad. W. Africa, Senegambia, belonging to the French at the mouth of the Senegal. It is low and sandy about 1 1/2 m. long and has two small ship-building yards.—3, A tn. (called Andor by the natives) on the above island. lat. 10° 5' N., lon. 16° 38' W. It is the capital of the French possessions in Senegambia. It regularly laid-out, has government offices, barracks, an hospital, a church, an agricultural society, a board of health, a charity school for boys, and another for girls. Pop. (1849) 9967.—4, A lake Lower Canada, 9 m. S.W. Montreal, formed by an expansion of the St. Lawrence. It is 80 m. long by 7 m. broad and is separated by Perrot Isle from the Lake of Two Mountains, which is an expansion of the Ottawa. This lake for many years formed the limit of the French colony towards the W.—5, A tn. Held, S. side of S.W. peninsula, lat. 18° 15' N. lon. 78° 22' W. It lies at the head of a bay of the same name opposite a number of small lakes, which shelter the bay on the S. towards the ocean, and form it into an excellent harbour capable of receiving the largest ships. The anchorage is good. The houses of the town are mostly built of wood.

LOUIS (Sr), a city America, U States, Missouri on bank Mississippi, pleasantly situated on a gentle elevation overlooking the river, 750 m. W. Washington, and 1801 m. by the river, above New Orleans, to which the navigation is always open. It is regularly built, has some spacious streets, and extends over a great area. Most of the more recent houses have been built of brick, but there are, also, some of stone, and generally white-washed. Amongst the public buildings are the city hall, the cathedral, the U States land-office the theatre, concert-hall, and the St. Louis university, all these are handsome structures, as are, also, several of the churches, which are numerous. The benevolent institutions comprise, with several others, a Protestant and a R. Catholic orphan asylum, an orphanage of same, called the Convict of the Sacred Heart, for conducting female education. The history and educational institutions are the St. Louis university, already mentioned, under the direction of the R. Calhoun, with libraries containing 7800 volumes; the medical department of Kansas College, occupying a spacious building, capable of accommodating 400 students, with a hall for lectures, chemical laboratory, etc.; the Western Academy of Science, with a museum of natural history and mineralogy, &c. The city is well situated for commerce, having a great command of internal navigation, which affords ready access to a vast extent of country not only by means of the Mississippi, but also by the Missouri and Illinois, which join that river 18 m. above St. Louis and the Ohio, which covers 175 m. below it. It is the principal W. depot of the American fur company, which has a large establishment in the place, employing nearly 1000 men. A great amount of furs of every description is here collected, and 10,000 dried buffalo tongues have been brought in during a single year. In 1848, there arrived at St. Louis, besides 615 flat boats, steam-boats, with an aggregate tonnage of 449 735 tons, and in the same year the port owned 28,506 tons of steam-boats, and the gross imports and exports were estimated at $15,000,000. St. Louis was founded in 1764, by the French from the Illinois, a trading post with the Indians, but it long remained an unconsiderable village, in recent times its progress has been very rapid, as evidenced by the increase of its population. Pop. (1840), 16,489 (1850), 82,744.

LOUISIA or LOUISIA, a seaport in Russia. See LOVIA.

LOUISBURG a seaport in British America, on the E. coast Cape Breton, 28 m. S.E. Sydney lat. 45° 53' N. lon. 60° W. It was founded by the French, regularly fortified, at this expense, and formed a fine handsome town, of an oblong figure, and formerly league in circuit, but the British, after capturing it in 1748, found it so situated that it again fell into the hands of the French, completely dismantled it and it has ever since, notwithstanding its excellent harbor, been allowed to remain a mere heap of ruins.

LOUISIAD ARCHIPELAGO, an extensive group of islands, S. Pacific Ocean, comprised between the parallels of 10° 40' and 11° 40' S. lat., and the meridians of 151° and 154° 30' E. lon. About 80 are already known, but many others, it is believed, remain yet to be discovered. They appear to be nearly all low islands, although some of them but thinly. The principal islands are Bonin, South-east, Pison, Jonson, Pig, St. Agnes, &c. The greater part of the larger islands is either covered with dense forests, or grassy tracts, with here and clumps of trees they contain considerable heights.—Mount Ratissauke or South-east island being 3689 ft. high, and the mountains in the W. portion of St. Agnes attaining an elevation of 3379 ft. One of the most remarkable features connected with the Louisiade Archipelago is the manner in which its shores are protected by coral reefs. Some of these are inner, others outer, more or less distinct in character, and the remainder are usually round or oval. The inhabitants belong to a race of Papuan, and are generally of a savage and treacherous disposition, although in some instances their conduct has appeared sufficiently friendly.—(Voyage of the Beagle.)

LOUISIANA, one of the southern U. States of America, situated between lat. 29° and 31° 50' N., lon. 89° and 94° W., bounded N. by Arkansas, N. E. and E. Mississippi, from which it is partly separated by the river of that name. S. E. and S. the Gulf of Mexico, and W. Texas, from which it is separated chiefly by the Sabine, length, N to S, 240 m., breadth, 210 m., area, 45,350 sq. m. The far greater part of the surface consists of an immense alluvial flat, through which the Mississippi and several of its tributaries, particularly the Red River pursue a winding course, branching off into numerous arms, and either covering a large portion of the country with permanent lakes and swamps, or frequently laying it under water by inundations. In the N. and N. W. the surface becomes undulating, and still remains covered with dense natural forests, composed chiefly of variation of oak, hickory, black walnut, gumtree, magnolia, and poplar; but, with the exception of this portion, the elevation above the level of the sea nowhere exceeds 50 ft., and in many parts does not average above 10 ft. The Red River, in entering the state on the N. W., has only a single channel; but, after flowing in at about 80 m. on the N. and, sending its waters by numerous minor channels, intersects, and forms a kind of net-work, over a space 50 m. long by 4 m. broad. In like manner the Mississippi, about 8 m. below the junction of the Red River begins to branch, and send off from the W. or E. bank, first the Atchafalaya, then, about 120 m. lower, the Plaquemine, which unites with the Atchafalaya, and lastly the Lafourche, with numerous smaller offshoots; and on the E. or I. bank, the Bayou, which, in its course, expands into several lakes, of which Pontchartrain is the most considerable. The whole area included between the Atchafalaya on the N., the Atchafalaya on the W., and the Gulf of Mexico, forms the delta of the Mississippi, and exhibits, on a scale of unvaried magnificence the vast changes which a mighty river is capable of effecting, both on the surface of the land and the bottom of the sea. Almost the whole of the S. part of Louisiana has been conquered by it from the latter; and, as if unwilling to recover its right of conquest into the hands of man, it continues forcing its way into new channels, and overflowing its banks, so as occasionally to resume possession of an area which is estimated at nearly 10,000 sq. m. Beginning at lat. 32° and proceeding S. to 61, the tract inundated has an average width of 20 m., and from 51° to the outlet into the Gulf, 40 m. Below Lake Pontchartrain, while it lasts, covers all the land into sea. The most elevated portion of the delta is that on the immediate banks of the river. There the deposits of a long succession of ages have accumulated, so as to form a kind of natural barrier from 400 yards to 1½ m. in width, higher than the land more remote from the stream, and capable of being converted into a means of protection against its floods. The obvious advantages thus attainable, have not been overlooked, and the margin of the river has been still further raised by means of an artificial embankment called the Levée, which on the E. bank commences at Point Coupée, 173 m., and on the I. bank, 50 m. above New Orleans, and is continued for more than 139 m. The tract thus defended is of remarkable fertility, and is both better cultivated and more densely peopled than any other part of the state. Wherever the surface in other parts of the state is dry enough to admit of regular cultivation, it is, with few exceptions, fertile, and raises large crops of cotton, sugar, and rice which are the staple productions. Of the ordinary cereals, a good deal of oats, very little rice, and almost no wheat are grown. But the Indian corn, potatoes, hay, and tobacco, form important items of agricultural produce. There are no manufactures deserving of notice but the trade is very extensive. In the years 1849, 1850, and 1851, the exports and imports amounted in value to—

	Exports.	Imports.
1849	— $7,834,785	$2,045,684
1850	— 7,303,614	2,341,770
1851	— 11,338,545	2,610,081

The most numerous religious denomination is that of the S. Catholics, but Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, and Episcopalians exist in considerable numbers. The legislature, composed of a governor elected by the people for two years, and thereafter ineligible for four years; a senate of 22, chosen for four, and representative assembly of 97, chosen for two years, meets biennially in New Orleans, the capital. Among the works of internal improvement most deserving of notice are several railroads, of limited extent, extending in New Orleans from Pontchartrain and several other places in its vicinity the Mexicana Gulf railroad, and that of New Orleans and Mobile, which, when completed, will have a length of 364 m., of which 30 m. are in this state, and the Bevels, Croadwell, Orleans Bank, and Vicksburg. The first settlement was made by the French in 1684, and named Louisiana after Louis XIV. In 1717 it was ceded to a chartered company, one of the wild and ruinous schemes of the notorious Law. In 1763, it was ceded by France to Spain. In 1800, re-ceded to France and in 1803 purchased from France by the U. States. It formed a constitution, and was admitted into the Union in 1812. Pop. (1850) 800,763, of whom 230,967 were slaves. In 1860 the population had risen to 708,007, of whom 331,726 were slaves.

LOUISVILLE, a city, U. States, Kentucky, 1 bank Ohio, 50 m. W. Frankfort, on a gentle acclivity, with the principal streets, one of which is above 1 m. long, all parallel to the river, and well lighted with gas. It contains a court-house, city hall, jail, a university, two hospitals, a medical school, two orphan asylums, an asylum for the blind, a Magdalen asylum, 30 churches, several railroads, benevolent, and literary institutions, six grammar-schools, and from 40 to 50 private schools. Louisville is the seat of most of the commercial and manufacturing business of the state and contiguous territory; and has rolling and flour mills, six saw-mills, machine shops, steam bagging factories, ropewalks, breweries, distilleries, a large cotton, and an extensive woolen factory. The mouth of the Bearpaw Creek, which here joins the Ohio, forms an excellent harbor for steam-boats, large numbers of which ply on the river. In 1849 there were packed up here 96,000 bags. Pop. (1840), 21,210; (1850), 43,317.

LOUKH, or LOUKA, a tn. Russia, gov and 80 m. S.E. Krasnoe, on river of same name. It has three churches, and some trade in ironware. Pop. 1000. — The river flows generally E., and joins the Kizma in gov Vladimir, total course, about 80 m.

LOULE, a tn. and par Portugal, prov and 9 m. N. W. Algarve. It stands on a hill is surrounded by old walls, and contains a castle, two monasteries, a nunnery an almshouse well-endowed hospital and female penitentiary. Pop. 8245.

LOUP (St.), numerous small places, France, particularly — A tn. dep. Haute-Saône, at the foot of the Vosges, 30 m. N. W. Vesoul. It has manufactures of druggs, straw hats, oil, leather, and glue. St. Loup is an entrepot for the cherry brandy made in the district. Pop. 2612.

LOUPOIGNE, a vil. com. Belgium, prov Brabant, on the Dyle, 15 m. S.E. Brussels, with a brewery, a flour-mill and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1005.

LOURCHES, a tn. France, dep Nord, 7 m. from Valenciennes. Pop. 3036.

LOURDES (see Leprieux) a tn. France, dep. Hautes-Pyrénées, 11 m. S. W. Tarbes, near the Garo-de-Pas. It is situated at the confluence of four valleys where the roads from Tarbes, Bagneres, Argelès, and Pau meet and consists of a picturesque and gloomy looking fort which is built upon a rock, and commands these roads, and around which the town, consisting of narrow, dirty streets and mean houses, is clustered. It has manufactures of fine linen handkerchiefs, crags, and stockings, a trade in milk cows, and three annual fairs. Pop. 3540.

LOURDES DO BAIRRO (St.) a tn. and par Portugal, prov Douro, 15 m. S.E. E. Aveiro. Pop. 1900.

LOURICALL, a tn. and par Portugal, prov Estremadura, com. and 26 m. S. W. Coimbra, with five churches a convent, four hospitals, and an almshouse. Pop. 3280.

LOURINHA a tn. and par Portugal, prov Estremadura, com. and 12 m. N. W. Torres Vedras near the sea coast. It contains an hospital convent, and almshouse, and has an annual fair. Pop. 2325.

LOUTH, a small maritime co. Ireland, prov Linnis, bounded, N. by Arragh and Down, E. by the Irish Sea, S. by the W. Mouth and Monaghan, length 25 m. breadth, 15 m., comprising 300,955 acs, of which 178,973 m. are arable. In its coast-line, a spacious indentation occurs called Dundalk Bay on the E. It is rugged and mountainous, but in all other parts level or undulating. The soil is clay-slate and graywacke, and in a few districts mossy tan limestone. The soil is generally fertile, excepting on the elevated tracts. The number of acres under crop, in 1851 was 116,721, of which a great portion was occupied by wheat, oats, barley, bere, rye, potatoes, pease, beans, and turnips. Many of the farms are very small. The fishery district of Dundalk, in this county extends the whole line of coast from Warren Point to Ballyvaughan comprising 52 m. of exact tides boundaries, which had in 1850 299 registered fishing vessels, employing 1876 men and boys. The same year, the number of national schools in operation was 79, attended by 11,316 children. Louth contains six baronies, and 64 parishes, and returns four members to parliament—two for the county, and one each for the boroughs of Drogheda and Dundalk, which are the principal towns. Pop. (1841), 111,979; (1851), 128,411. — (See St. Paul's.)

LOUTH, a vil. and par Ireland, co. Louth, 7 m. S. W. Dundalk. The former, situated on the Glyde has the remains of an ancient priory founded by St. Patrick. Pop. 865. Area of par., 17,539 ac. Pop. 9845.

LOUTH a market tn. and par England, co. Lincoln. The town, in the fertile valley of the Lode, at the E. extremity of the Wolds, 27 m. E. N. E. Lincoln, a station on the Great Northern railway, is well built, generally of brick, and lighted with gas. It has two 24th-century churches, one of which is a fine old structure, with an aylet nave, about 500 ft. high. There are also eight places of worship belonging to various dissenting bodies, eight schools including a free grammar and various other endowed schools, a mechanics institute, a society for the promotion of Christian knowledge, a savings bank, a dispensary and several other charities. Carpets, worsted, soap, and oil-cakes are manufactured to a great extent. A canal, communicating with the Humber, enables a considerable trade to be carried on, to London, Hull &c. in corn and wool. Area of par., 8320 ac. Pop. 10,568. — (See Local Correspondent.)

LOUTAK, or LOUK, a tn. Russia, gov Volhynia, cap. dist., r bank Sayr 158 m. W. N. W. Jitomir, consisting chiefly of wooden huts. It is the see of a Greek bishop, has a castle, several churches a school, and a little trade. Pop. 3500.

LOUVAIN (Flemish, Leuven, German, Löwen) a tn. Belgium, prov Brabant, on the Dyle and the E. railway, 15 m. E. by N. Brussels. It is not fortified, but is surrounded by a dry deep fosse, and an earthen rampart from 80 to 100 ft. high, which has been cut through by the road from Brussels to Malines. It forms almost a perfect circle diameter nearly 2 m. Though the streets are regular, the houses are indifferently built, and the whole town has a dull, melancholy look. Many of the public buildings, however, are deserving of notice. Of these, the principal are the Hôtel de Ville, one of the richest and most beautiful Gothic buildings in the world, elaborately and exquisitely decorated in every part of its exterior by sculptures of subjects taken, for the most part, from the Old Testament; the collegiate church of St. Peter, almost opposite the Hôtel de Ville, built at the end of the 14th century, an edifice of vast extent, and rich in works of art, particularly a fine Holy Family by Matsys; the churches of St. Gertrude, St. James St. Quentin, and Notre Dame, all elegant and noble structures; the Pope's college, and the Salle de France. Louvain possesses courts of first resort, and of commerce a university with a library of 105,000 volumes formerly of European reputation, to which the town once owed the surname of Louvain the learned, but which is now monopolized by the Belgian priesthood, under the name of université catholique, a college, academy of fine arts botanical garden, anatomical hall cabinet of natural philosophy, chemistry, and natural history a collection of pictures, several of them first-rate; a superior primary school, belonging to the Government, different private and free schools, several hospitals and benevolent institutions. In the 14th century, Louvain was one of the most important manufacturing towns, and in broad-clothes alone, employed about 15,000 workmen. But they were a turbulent race, and, commissions having taken place, their rulers banished great numbers of them. Many others emigrated of their own accord, and brought their art and industry into England. This important branch no longer flourishes here. A few woollens are still made, and also bonnets, hats, ribbons, soap, oil, candles, leather glass, earthenware &c. but by far the most important manufacture at present is beer of which above 300,000 casks are annually made. For a general trade, the town is well situated, having ample communication both by railway and the canal of its name. Pop. 24,624.

LOUYEGRASSE, a vil. com. Belgium, prov and 12 m. S.E. Liège, in a valley near the Amblève. It has several mills, limestone quarries, and limekilns an iron mine, and two annual fairs. Pop. 1758.

LOUVEN, a river, Norway which rises in the Hardanger-field, where it is fed by numerous small lakes and torrents, flows first E. then S.E., expanding into several lakes, and passing the town of Kongsberg; and after a course of about 100 m., falls into a bay of the Skager Rack, near Laurvig.

LOUVIERS (see Leprieux), a tn. France, dep. and on both sides of the river Eure, 17 m. S. W. Rouen. The old town, on a bank river, is almost entirely built of wood, the new town, on a bank, is built of brick or burnt stone, and has a long and handsome street, which leads to the high road, and crosses the different branches of the Eure by three bridges. It has an interesting church, supposed to date from the period of the First Grande; article of first resort, and commerce; and a consulting chamber of manufacturers. Louviers ranks with Rheims and Sedan as one of the three principal clothing towns of France. It has more than forty cloth factories, employing from 7000 to 8000 persons in and around the town, several worsted-mills, an extensive weaving and factory, numerous blacksmiths, dyeworks, and a factory for spinning machinery and steam-engines. The chief trade is in broad-cloth, of which about one-third of the quantity made is exported to foreign countries, chiefly Flanders and Italy. The other articles of trade are corn, wood, charcoal, flax, wool, &c. Pop. 9670.

LOUZA, a tn. and par Portugal, prov Douro, 18 m. S.E. Coimbra, at the foot of a mountain of same name. It has an hospital and almshouse, and manufactures the best paper in the kingdom. Pop. 3614.

LOUZA, or Luma, a river Russia, which rises in gov Volynsk, flows N.E. to the W. pruss. Lohk, and, after a course of above 200 m., joins a bank Jag, about 18 m. S.E. Veliki-Ustuy.

LOVAS-BANAT, a market tn. Hungary, co. and 10 m. N.E. Stuhlweissenburg with two churches, a synagogue, and a fine castle; and a considerable trade in wine. P. 4104.

LOVAT, a river Russia, which rises in the N.E. of gov Viatka, flows N.N.E. across gov Pakov, passes the towns of Valtke-Laki and Kholm, enters gov Novgorod, and falls into Lake Ilmen by two branches: total course, about 500 m. Its chief affluents are, on the S. the Polist, and on the E. the Kossow, and Pola. By means of the Lovat and Dwina canal the two rivers are connected, and furnish a long stretch of important inland navigation extending almost in the form of a circle from St. Petersburg, through Lakes Ladoga and Ilmen, round to the Gulf of Riga.

LOVENDEGEM a tn. and com Belgium, prov F. Flanders, 6 m. W. Ghent, with linen-weaving and some trade in butter and other kinds of agricultural produce. P. 4625.

LOVENICH a vil. Russian Prussia, gov and 24 m. N.N.E. Aix-la-Chapelle, with a church, and manufactures of woollen cloth, and silk goods. Pop. 1660.

LOVERE, a vil and par Italy Lombardy gov Milan, prov and 22 m. N.E. Bergamo cap dist. on the N. extremity of Lake Iseo. It is an ancient place, has many fine buildings, private and public, including two very beautiful churches: it has also a gymnasium, a female institute, several theatres, two walk mills, and a commodious harbour, at which a considerable trade is carried on, especially in fine gypsum, with which the neighbourhood abounds. Pop. in 2513 last. 12,453.

LOVERSALL, par Eng York (W. Riding); 2132 ac. Pop. 195.

LOVENTON par Wales, Pembrokeshire 1233 ac. P. 159.

LOVINGTON, par Eng. Somerset; 823 ac. P. 230. LOVIRA a maritime tn. Russia, Finland, on the Gulf of Finland, 140 m. W. N.W. St. Petersburg, in an island district. It has clean streets, and carries on a flourishing trade, exporting iron in bars, tobacco, and salt. Steamers ply daily to Helsingfors. P. 8000.—(See Finland, par in Prince E. Galitzin.)

LOVRIN a vil Hungary Thaurer Thassa, co. Torontal, about 8 m. from Kisdin, with a church, and a trade in corn, maize, hemp, and wine. Pop. 2341.

LOYTCHIA, a tn. European Turkey, Bulgaria, L. bank Osna, 40 m. S. Nikolop. Pop. 3000.

LOW ARCHIEPELAGO, or FAKROV GROUP, a series of low coral islands in the Pacific, amounting in number to between 80 and 90, and situated between the Society Islands, the Marquesas, and Friendly Islands, over not less than 10° of longitude. The most important, from extent, or the interest attached to them, are Anahu, or Chiné Island, the Gambier Islands, and Pitcairn. They are under the nominal supremacy of Tahiti, and are supposed to have a pop. of about 10,000.

LOW BLECK a group of three small isles, N.E. coast Australia, Trinity Bay, lat. 10° 25' S.; lon. 142° 30' E. (One is low, sandy and well wooded, about 300 yds. in diameter situated at the N.W. extremity of the other two are merely groves of mangroves on the reef.—(Foster of the Beche-de-mer).)

LOWDHAM, a vil and par England, co. and 7 m. N.E. Nottingham with an ancient church, and place of worship for Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists; a national school, and manufacture of stockings. Area of par., 3910 ac. Pop. 1596.

LOWELL, a city, U States, Massachusetts, 3 leas Merrimack, 25 m. N.W. Boston; lat. 42° 55' N.; lon. 71° 30' W., mostly and substantially built of brick, but chiefly constructed for its manufacture, and for the rapidity of its growth, circumstances which have obtained for it the designation of the 'Manchester of America.' It has numerous places of worship, twenty-nine public free schools, and eight grammar-schools, one of which occupies a very handsome building, a lyceum, the Lowell institute, and the mechanics' association, a library an hospital, and two savings-banks. The goods manufactured are sheetings, flannels, drillings, prints, shirtings, negro-cloth, carpets, rug, broad-cloths, water-proof woollens, and muslins. There are 12 incorporated manufacturing companies in Lowell, employing 45 mills, 219,000 spindles, 7644 looms, 7644 spindles, and 3829 mules. The quantity of manufactures produced is 1,920,000 yds. per week of cotton goods, and 37,331 yds. of woollen goods. Other manufactures are produced in the city in addition to those already specified, employing about 1500 hands. There is also an extensive bleachery. Average wages of females, clear of board, per week is two dollars, but some of them earn double that sum, of males, clear of board, per day 80 cents or about 8s 6d. The water-power here is very great, and easily available. It is produced by a canal 60 ft. wide, 6 ft. deep and 1½ m. in length, with a fall of 30 ft. There is a railway from Lowell to Boston, and several other branch railways. In 1816, the site of the city was almost a wilderness. P. (1838) 3533, (1840) 30,796, (1850) 32,964.

LOWEN a tn Prussia, prov Silesia, gov and 36 m. S.E. Breslau, L. bank Neisse. It contains a Protestant church, school, and hospital and has manufactures of tobacco, tile-works a trade in cattle, and five small fairs. P. 1107.

LOWENBERG a tn Prussia, prov Silesia, gov and 77 m. S.S.W. Liegnitz, cap. district, L. bank Neisse. It is walled, has four gates, a court of law and several public offices: two Protestant and two R. Catholic churches a synagogue, town-hall, several schools, and an hospital, manufactures of woollens and linen cloth, vinegar-works, walk and gypsum mills, and a trade in wool and cattle. Lowenberg was stormed by the Russians in 1813. P. 4297.—The circle is fully throughout rears great numbers of cattle, and has valuable mines. Area, 231 sq. m. P. 71,171.

LOWLAND an all N.W. coast of W. Australia belonging to the Mitchell group, and about 18 m. N. Harvey Island. The surrounding sea swarms with fish among which are seen numerous sharks, and small whales or fin backs.

LOWENSTEIN a tn. Württemberg circle Neckar, at the foot of Mount Löwenstein, 27 m. N.N.E. Stuttgart, with the ruins of an old castle, vitreal works, several mills, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1047.

LOWENZ, or LOWENZ, a vil and lake, Switzerland, one and 5 m. W. N.W. Solvay, at the foot of the Rothenberg. See GURZAU.

LOWES (Lock or sax) a lake Scotland co. Shetland, only separated by a narrow neck of land from the more celebrated St. Mary's Loch, into which it flows. It is about 1 m. long, and scarcely ½ m. wide, and is one of the earliest feeders of the Yarrow.

LOWESBY par Eng. Lancashire; 2530 ac. P. 248.

LOWESTOFT a seaport in and par England, co. Suffolk, on a height sloping gradually to the sea, 40 m. N.W. Ipswich. It consists of a principal and several subordinate streets, the former nearly 1 m. long, well paved, and kept remarkably clean and is lighted with gas. The principal public buildings are, the parish church, a handsome structure, with a tower and a spire, a chapel of ease and chapels belonging to the Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists, the Independents and Baptists, a townhall, theatre, assembly-room, and subscription reading-room and library. For education there are two free schools, a British school, and several private schools, among which is one of an superior description, which prepares students for the universities. There is also a mechanics institute. The chief charitable institutions are an infirmary and a laborers' hospital. There are no proper manufactures of any consequence, but ship-building is carried on with some vigour; and there are several breweries and refineries. The trade, which was formerly almost confined to coasting, having received an important impetus from the formation of a harbour and a branch of the Harwich and Yarmouth railway communicating with it, now extends to Holland, Denmark, and Sweden. The shipping which visited the port in 1845 was 1014 vessels (87 108 tons), and had risen in 1850 to 1875 vessels (108,298 tons). The harbour dues during the same period rose from £4882 to £26088. About 60 boats, employing about 800 men, are occupied in the herring and mackerel fisheries. Potter, well known for his translations of Æschylus and other Greek dramatists, was born here. Area of port 1685 ac. Pop. (1841), 4647, (1851), 6781. (Local Correspondent.)

LOWICK two par. England.—1 Northampton; 3200 ac. Pop. 445.—2 Northumberland 12 528 ac. Pop. 1941

LOWICK, a tn. Russian Poland, on the Bzura, 45 m. W. S. Warsaw. It is walled, and has three churches, an old castle, Parist college, and gymnasium monastery, hospital manufactures of refined wax and a trade in horses and cattle. It was once cap. of a principality. Pop. 3380

LOWTHER, par Eng. Westmoreland 3530 ac. P. 494.

LOWTHERSTOWN, a tn. Ireland. See INVERSTOWN

LOWTHORPE par Eng. York (E. Riding); 1960 ac. Pop. 257

LOXA, a tn. Ecuador dep. Azuay, cap. prov. of same name. 80 m. S. Quito. lat. 4. S., lon. 79° 21' E., in a beautiful valley 6768 ft. above the sea. It has an extensive trade in embona-bark, which is found in the forests of the mountainous country E. of Loxa, 8000 to 9000 ft. above sea-level. The quality of the bark is excellent, and the quantity abundant. Pop. 10 000

LOXARÖN, a tn. Spain, prov. Navarra, 1 bank Berreana, 35 m. from Pamplona, with a church, an old Capuchin convent, courthouse, prison, Latin and two primary schools, manufactures of leather and oil and flour mill and several distilleries. Pop. 9086

LOXBOROUGH, par Eng. Devon, 761 ac. Pop. 139

LOXBORE, par Eng. Devon 1580 ac. Pop. 817

LOXLEY, par Eng. Warwick, 1820 ac. Pop. 887

LOXTON par Eng. Somerset, 1303 ac. Pop. 269

LOYALTY ISLAND, a group, consisting of two large and three small isls. S. Pacific Ocean, N. E. from New Caledonia, about lat. 21. S.; and lon. 167° 50' E. They were discovered and named by Cook, and have, until lately been little known.—See LA

LOZÈRE, a dep. France, bounded N. by depa. Haute-Loire and Cantal, E. Ardèche and Gard, S. Gard and Aveyron, and W. also Aveyron. lat. 44° 7' to 44° 56', lon. 3° to 4° E., greatest length, 65 m.; greatest breadth, 46 m. area, 1967 sq. m. The department is mountainous, and is divided into three distinct regions—the N., consisting of basaltic and granite rocks, and called Montagne, yielding rye, a very little barley and oats, and faggage; the S. W., calcareous, and called Causses, producing in addition, wheat and fruit being the most fertile portion of the department; and the S. E., schistous, called the Cevennes, growing large quantities of chestnuts and potatoes, the mulberry, and, on occasional patches, the vine, from which an indifferent wine is obtained. The mountain regions depauperate, in summer immense flocks of sheep from Langrédou. The principal heights are, the plateau of the Palais at Eot, 5077 ft. La Marguerite, 4983 ft. and La Louche, 4937 ft. Four considerable rivers, the Allier, Lot, Tarn, and Gardon de Milet, a tributary of the Gard rise within the department, and, by the courses which they take, indicate its three general slopes. The first, in the N., furrowed by the Allier and several of its tributaries, belongs to the basin of the Loire, the second, which has a S. E. direction, belongs to the basin of the Rhone, the third, including the greater part of the department, belongs to the Grands. On this last slope several small lakes cover The Massif are numerous, including iron, argilliferous sand, copper, and antimony; but none of them seem capable of being worked to much advantage. The quarries are of marble, gypsum, porphyry, granite, &c. Neither manufactures nor trade have made much progress. This department nearly corresponds to the country of the ancient Gabales, and, under the Romans, formed part of Aquitaine Prima and Septimania. The most sacred considered in it by Louis XIV. in the attempt to extirpate what he called heresy, have left an indelible stain on his memory. For administrative purposes, Lozère is divided into 3 arrondissements—Mende, the capital, Florac, and Marvejols; subdivided into 24 cantons, and 194 communes. Pop. (1853), 144,706 LOZORNO or LOZOS, a vil. Hungary, Higher Danube, ca. Presburg, about 4 m. from Stampfen, in a well-wooded district. It has a parish church, and several flour-mills. Pop. 1564.

LOZOYA a tn. Spain, New Castile, prov. and about 50 m. N. W. Madrid. It is indifferently built, and has a church, courthouse, and primary school, flour-mills; and a trade in charcoal, wood, and wool. Pop. 2672

LOZWEIL, a vil. and par. Switzerland, ca. and 24 m. N. E. Bern. It has a church, and, in the vicinity, the ruins of a remarkable old building, with a number of marble pillars and a diaphanous pavement, have been found. Pop. 2490

LU [Latin Lucus] a vil. and com. Italy, Paduano, div. and 18 m. N. W. Albaredo, with three churches, two monasteries, a townhouse, a sulphureous spring, and a trade in wine. Pop. 8098

LUANCO (SANTA MARIA) a seaport in Spain, Asturias, prov. and 21 m. N. by E. Oviedo, on the Bay of Biscay. It contains a parish church and a primary school and has a small harbour, which, in 1840, was visited by sixty sailing vessels. The principal exports are grain, timber, and salt provisions. Pop. 1750

LUARCA, a tn. and port, Spain, Asturias, prov. and 87 m. N. W. by W. from Oviedo, on the Negro river, are crossed by a bridge of three arches. It is tolerably well built, has a church, several chapels, a townhouse, custom-house, prison, three schools, and manufactures of woollen fabrics, chisellets and soap, and some fishing and grain trade. Pop. 3000

LUBACZOW a tn. Austria, Galicia, cirela, and 35 m. W. N. W. Zolotow 1 bank river of same name. It contains a castle, and a Greek and E. Catholic church

LUBAN ISLAND one of the smallest of the Philippines N. W. entrance to the Strait of Manila, lat. (N. point) 13° 52' N. lon. 120° 8' E. (N.) It is high in the middle, but low at each extreme. The N. part is lined by a dangerous reef

LUBAE, a tn. Russia, gov. Volynia, on the Ruten, 70 m. S. W. Jitomir. Pop. 8800

LUBALOW a tn. Russian Poland 16 m. N. N. E. Lublin, near 1 bank Wiepra, with three churches, an elegant castle and a Capuchin monastery. Pop. 1700

LUBBICK, a tn. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. and 12 m. W. Münster, cap. circle, on the Mühlbach, with a church, courthouse, manufactures of tobacco and leather and some trade in linen. Pop. 2750.—The circles produce some corn and flax, but has several tracts of heath. Area, 164 geo. sq. m. Pop. 89 968

LUBBEK, a vil. and com. Belgium prov. Brabant 21 m. E. Brussels, with a mill and a trade in corn and timber. Pop. 1911

LUBHEN, a tn. Prussia, prov. Brandenburg gov. and 40 m. S. W. Frankfurt, cap. circle, on an island in the Spree. It contains a castle, four churches, a grammar-school, and an hospital. Several courts and public offices. Has manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, and some general trade. P. 4691.—The circles is uniformly flat, and not very fertile, but rears many cattle. Area, 808 geo. sq. m. Pop. 28,691

LUBBENAU a tn. Prussia, gov. and 41 m. S. S. W. Frankfurt, 1 bank Spree with a church, castle, picture gallery, and library and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, and brandy. Pop. 8123

LUBBENHAM, par Eng. Lincoln 2400 ac. P. 601

LÜBECK, a principality, Germany, belonging to the duchy of Oldenburg, but enclosed within the duchy of Holstein, consisting chiefly of two separate districts, N. of the town of Lübeck, and several villages in various localities; area, 128 geo. sq. m. It is divided into four bailiwicks, chief town, Rosta. Pop. (1845), 21,517

LÜBECK, or LÜBECK one of the three free towns of Germany, and a member of the German Confederation, on a low ridge at the confluence of the Warnow with the navigable Trave, 85 m. N. E. Hamburg, and 13 m. from the Gulf of Lübeck, a bay in the Baltic. It was formerly surrounded by walls and bastions, which have been levelled down and converted into pleasant walks, but it is still entered by four gates of ancient feudal structure—that named the Holsten Gate being remarkably beautiful, and the whole town, with its numerous gable-ended houses, many of them richly decorated and highly picturesque, furnishes a striking specimen of the quaint architecture of the 15th century. It consists of five quarters, and the communication between the opposite sides of the Trade is kept up by means of four bridges. The building and objects most deserving of notice, are the Dom or cathedral, a structure of red brick begun in 1170 but not completed till 1541 surmounted by two spires 416 ft. high and containing a choir-screen, regarded as one of the finest specimens of wood-carving in existence; a stone pulpit and brass font, both of admirable workmanship; and a great number of interesting monuments the Marienkirche (St. Mary's church) also of red brick, in elegant pointed Gothic, with a beautiful high altar and chancel, both of black marble the

THE MOUNTAIN GATE, LÜBECK.
From Illustrated Voyage Published at Hamburg, etc.

R. Catholic chapel; the town or senate house, in antique Gothic, somewhat defaced by modern repairs, but still a fine twisted structure, containing several noble halls, with fine ceilings and carving and possessed of considerable historical interest, as the place where the deputies of the 86 Hanse Towns held their sittings; the gymnasium, school of design, normal navigation, and numerous other schools; the town library, of 87,000 volumes; the dead end, church, blind and lunatic asylums; the orphan and other hospitals; the Infirmary, and a great number of well-endowed charitable institutions. The manufactures, once of great importance, but now greatly decayed, consist of woolen and linen fabrics, starch, hats, soap, cards, tobacco, glass, animal charcoal, leather, sail-cloth, vinegar, medical instruments, and articles in gold and silver there are also numerous breweries and distilleries. The trade, consisting chiefly in the export of corn and cattle, and the import of wine, colonial produce, and manufactures, still continues to be extensive, though it is subjected to formidable competition particularly from Kiel. A more serious obstacle to the prosperity of Lübeck is the gradual shallowing of the Baltic, which threatens ultimately to leave it without a harbor. It is connected by railway with Hamburg and Berlin and the whole European railway system. Steamers in considerable numbers keep up regular communication with all important ports in Russia, Sweden, and Denmark.

STATEMENT OF THE NUMBER AND TONNAGE OF VESSELS ENTERED AND CLEARED AT THE PORT OF LÜBECK, in the years 1843-4, and 1860-3.

	Entered.		Cleared.
	Vessels.	Tons.	Vessels.	Tons.
1843	874	104,669	825	104,709
1844	86	102,877	86	102,839
1845	810	109,292	823	111,078
1846	893	102,226	861	102,669
1849	1184	166,014	1181	171,416
1861	1074	171,824	1040	170,380
186	1931	1,486	1270	161,300
1862	1302	183,312	1304	187,473

As a member of the German Confederation I think had the 36th vote in the plenum and in the minor council shared the 17th vote with the other three free towns. Its contingent to the Confederation was 407 men. It also is the seat of a superior appeal court for the free towns and of several other courts and offices peculiar to itself. It possesses a territory exclusive of the hallwink Bergedorf, which it holds in common with Hamburg, of 86 geo. sq. m. This territory instead of forming one contiguous whole, consists of 10 isolated portions, enclosed partly by Holstein, partly by Lauenburg, and partly by Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

Pop. 27,247, territory, including half of Vorpommern, 47 1/2 geo. sq. m.

LÜBEN a. m. Franke, prov. Steile gov. and 14 m. N. N. E. Liegnitz, esp. circle, on the Kallertbach. It is walled, entered by three gates, and has a court of law and several public offices, two churches, a town-house, old castle, riding-school, two hospitals, and a house of correction; manufactures of woolen and linen cloths, and the works, dye works, worsted, silk, and other mills. Pop. 2848.—The climate is well wooded, but sandy, and not very fertile. Area, 186 geo. sq. m. Pop. 81,106.

LÜBERSAC, a m. Franke, dep. Corbach, near r. bank Haino-Verder, 22 m. N. W. Tulla. Pop. 1431.

LUBINA, a vil. Hungary, Hither Danube, co. Neutra, about 28 m. from Gálgoon. It has a Protestant church, and extensive manufactures of linen, which are disposed of both in Hungary and Moravia. Pop. 2500.

THE SQUARE-BUILD, MARKET-PLACE, AND CATHEDRAL, LÜBECK.—From Illustrated

Rechtskirche (St. Giles church) of small dimensions, surmounted by a lofty spire; the Petriskirche (St. Peter's church), built in 1160 but repaired and decayed in 1626 and three other Lutheran churches, a Reformed church and LUBLIN, a tn. Russian Poland, cap. walled, beautifully situated on a height above 1 bank Mistrina, 94 m. S.E. Warsaw. It consists of the town, properly divided into a high and a low town, and surrounded by walls and ditches, and of a large suburb; but is poorly built, most of the houses being of wood, and the streets narrow and irregular. It is the see of a bishop, and the seat of a superior appeal court contains 18 churches, one of which is a cathedral, and at least three others are handsome structures; an elegant townhouse, a palace, which belonged to Sobieski, a Picquet college, a diocesan seminary, central schools, an old monastery a military house of correction, a theatre, an orphan and several other hospitals, possesses agricultural, scientific, and musical societies, and has manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, a trade in cloth, corn, and Hungarian wine, and three annual fairs, one of which lasts a month, and is numerously attended by German, Greek, Armenian, Russian, Turkish, and other dealers. On a steep height near the town are the remains of an old castle, built by Casimir the Great. Pop. 13,000.—The wyeiron lies wholly within the basin of the Vistula, which bounds it on the W. It is extensively covered with woods and marshes, but has several tracts of good arable and pasture land. Its only metal is bog-iron ore. Area, 5078 geo. sq. m. Pop. 490,000.

LUBLINITZ, a tn. Prussia, Silesia, gov. and 30 m. E.N.E. Oppeln, cap. circle, with two churches a synagogue, and an hospital, a court of justice, and two mills. P. 2128.—The climate is well wooded, but not highly cultivated Area, 292 geo. sq. m. Pop. 46,864

LUBLA, several places, Hungary particularly —1, (Leibla, Leblach, or Leblach), on the Elbe, a bank Popper, 18 m. N.N.E. Leutschau, with a church, salt-works, a trade in wine, mineral springs, and a bathing establishment. Near it are the ruins of the old castle of Leblach, which figures much in the early history of Hungary. Pop. 2100.—2, (Up-Leblach or New-Leblach) A vil. Hither Thams, on Elbe, about 26 m. from Leutschau, with a church. Pop. 1213.

LUBNA, a vil. Bohemia, circle Chradim, about 10 m. from Letomeshel. Near it are extensive glass-works, the produce of which bears a high name, and is largely exported. Pop. 1286

LUBNAIG (Loon), (The Crooked Lake) a small lake Scotland, co. Perth, 8 m. N.W. Callander about 5 m. long, and $\frac{1}{2}$ to 2 m. broad. It has at a considerable elevation and is enclosed by lofty bare hills, receives the waters of Loch Doin and Loch Veol, and unites with the stream emerging from Loch Venabour in forming the river Tath. Its waters are remarkably pure.

LUBNA, a tn. Russia, gov. and 85 m. W.N.W. Pultowa, cap. circle, on the Dnie. It is an old town, has three churches a monastery, and a veterinary school, with a small botanical garden, and a considerable trade, and important annual fairs. Lubni, while fortified, was long beleaguered by Charles XII. Pop. (1861), 2287.—The climate is remarkably fertile

LUBOMLA, a tn. Russia, gov. Volhynia, 220 m. W.N.W. Jitomir, with a blast-furnace. Pop. 3615

LUBRIN a tn. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 28 m. N.E. Almeria. It has narrow, winding ill-paved streets, a parish church, courthouses, and two schools, manufactures of linen and coarse woollens, numerous flour-mills, a trade in dried peas, oil, and wine. Pop. 5009

LUBRIKEN a tn. Germany, Mecklenburg-Schwerin circle and 34 m. S.W. Schwerin, cap. bailiwick. It has a church and a gypsum quarry. Pop. 1800 Area of bail, 18 geo. sq. m. Pop. 2761

LUBZ, a tn. Germany, Mecklenburg-Schwerin, on the Elbe, 30 m. E.S.E. Schwerin; entered by two gates. It has two churches, a poor-house, a mill, and a trade in cattle. P. 1874.

LUO (Lo) (anc. Luos Augusti), a tn. France, dep. Var, 27 m. N.E. Toulon. It has manufactures of woollen cloth, corse, varnished, and glass; a brandy distillery, numerous tanneries, and a trade in excellent chestnuts. Pop. 2806.

LUCAINENA, two places, Spain —1, (Lucanense de Tiberis), A tn. Andalusia, prov. and 25 m. from Almeria, with a church, the ruin of an old castle, a courthouse, a primary school; manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, and a trade in oil, barley, corn and fruit. Pop. 1205.—2, (Lucanense de las Alpujarras), A vil. Andalusia, prov. and about 85 m. from Almeria; with a church, manufactures of exported articles, and a flour-mill. Many of the inhabitants are employed in the mines of the sierra de Gader. Pop. 809

LUCAIN, a vil. and par. Ireland, co. and 7 m. W. Dublin. The village, a bank Liffey, here crossed by a stone bridge, has a parish church, R. Catholic chapel a Methodist meeting-house, savings bank, school, and a obelisk to the spot, attended efficacious in cutaneous disorders. Lucaín gives the titles of baron and earl to the family of Bingham. Pop. 578 Area of par, 1126 ac. Pop. 1009

LUCAIN, a tn. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 40 m. from Almeria. It is very poorly built, and has a parish church, a primary school, manufactures of linen and hemp goods, and a trade in corn wine, oil, and cattle. Pop. 1545

LUCAIN (San), Spain. See BARRIGUAN

LUCAIOS, a group of islands. See BARBADA LUCAYOS.

LUCCA (Ducry or) (Italian, Duomo di Lucca or Lucchesa), a territory of Italy, formerly incorporated with Tuscany and bounded at that time, N. by Tuscany, a portion of the Papal States, and the duchy of Modena. E. and S. Tuscany and W. Gulf of Genoa, Tuscany, and Modena greatest length, N.W. to S.E. 40 m.; central breadth, about 18 m. In the N. it is covered by the central chain of the Apennines, from which several ramifications stretch S., gradually subiding, and finally merging into plain as they approach the sea. The rocks consist principally of chalk; but a considerable tract to the E. of the town of Lucca, and another near the coast, is covered by a deep and generally rich alluvium. The only river of any importance is the Serchio, which, rising in the Apennines, traverses the duchy in a S. direction. It is not navigable, but is much used for irrigation. There are two considerably lakes, Bismonta and Mammuciole, and there are thermal springs among the hills, about 12 m. N. of the town of Lucca, celebrated from the earliest times. With exception of the N. part of the duchy, which, from the height of its mountains, furnishes chiefly pasture, chestnuts, and timber the whole surface is adapted for cultivation, the hills for the vine, and more especially the olive, and the lower valleys and plains for all kinds of cereals, and, on particular spots, for maize. The soil is remarkably fertile, and the culture of it is considered the best in Italy. The mulberry also grows almost everywhere; and vast quantities of excellent silk are obtained upon and exported. This article and oil and corn, furnish the chief sources of wealth. There are no manufactures of any consequence. For administrative purposes it is divided into 12 communes. Pop. 175,169

LUCCA (French, Lucques) a tn. Italy, Tuscany cap. above terr in a fertile and well-irrigated plain, near 1 bank Serchio, 87 m. N.W. Florence, with which, and with Pisa and Leghorn, it is connected by railway. It lies within view of the Apennines, enclosed by several of their ramifications, covered with vineyards and handsome villas, inspiring to the town with its walls flanked with bastions, and its numerous towers and spires, a very striking appearance, when viewed from a distance. It is entered by four gates, and is well built, having numerous handsome houses and streets though not regularly formed, they are spacious, clean and well paved. It contains numerous antiquaries, and one of the spots least attractive in itself, but most interesting to the antiquary, is the fish-market, the large oval of which is the Roman amphitheatre, while the buildings around it though converted into modern dwellings, are in a great measure composed of the ruins of the amphitheatre, and exhibit huge solid arches, and masses of brick and stone, on their original sites. The principal edifices and public establishments are the Duomo or cathedral, with a magnificent facade, in imitation of that of the cathedral of Pisa, a Romanesque portico, and stained glass of the richest kind the Church of San Michele, an ancient and imposing structure, with curious Romanesque columns and capitals the Church of San Francesco, founded in 656, furnishing an interesting specimen of early Christian architecture, and adorned with fine mosaics, frescoes, and paintings; at least nine other churches, most of them deserving of notice either for their antiquity or their architecture and ornaments, the Ducal Palace, a large pile, though scarcely a third of what was originally intended, and remarkable chiefly for its great marble staircase, the Palazzo Borghi, a ponderous edifice of red brick, in the Italian Gothic style, with multicoloured windows and gloomy stories, more resembling

Burmes than a palace, and now converted into a warehouse
— a distance of some miles, and several superior educational institutions; a botanical garden; a library; a small but handsome theatre; and as equivalent, carried from a distance into the city, over 400 elephants. The municipalities consist chiefly of silk goods, woollen cloth, and bonnets; and there are numerous silk-mills. The trade is almost confined to the above articles of manufacture, agricultural produce and oil-wine, particularly the latter which bears a large share, and is largely exported. Lanna at the age of an archipelago, and the seat of several important courts and public offices. First an Etruscan, then a Ligurian town, it afterwards became a Roman colony.
About the end of the 6th century it fell under the power of the Lombards, from whom it passed to the emperors of Germany. In 1847 it purchased its freedom from Charles IV. and became a republic. It was taken possession of by the French in 1799, and, a few years later by Russia, in favour of Prussia, and has since remained in her hands. An article of commerce between the city and Fokien, Canton, and Amoy, is now brought to this place.

— Chap. 8, p. 694.

LUCCA, a vil and com. Scully prov Girgenti, dist.
and 7 mi. S.W. Biscom. Pop. 1960.

IUCE, two vils. and two pars. Scotland co. Wigton—
1 (New) a vil. and par., the former 9 m. E. N. E. Stranver recently built. Pop. 278. Area of par., 10 m. by 6 m. Pop.
791.—2, (Old, or Glenside), a vil. and par. 10 m. E. by S.
Stranver. Area of par. 40.850 ac. P. 3241 (Glenstranver).

LUCE BAY a spacious bay S. coast, Scotland, co. Wexm., as called from the river of same name which falls into it. It is nearly 19 m. wide at the entrance, between the Mull of Galloway on the W., and Barrow Head on the E., and is beset with dangerous sunken.

LUCE (GRAND) a tn. France, dep. Sarthe, 15 m S E. Le Mans. Its principal edifice is a modern chateau built on the site of an ancient fortress, and surrounded by a fine park. The manufacture consists of linen cloth and canvas. P 1192

LUCE (SAFZA) a vil. and com. Tuscany, div. Pisa, about 9 m. from Lari, near I. bank Fiume. It has two churches, a school and the remains of an ancient castle, several mills, and a castle in ruins and dil. Pop. 2012.

LUCENA.—1 A city Spain, Andalusia, prov and 30 m. S.W.E. Cordova, in an agreeable plain. It is well built, has several squares, generally wide, clean, paved streets, lined with handsome edifices, a large, handsome, and highly decorated parish church, several chapels, four convents, two ladies' colleges, and a variety of schools and benevolent institutions; a town and season-house, prison, two hospitals, an orphan asylum, storerooms, a magnificent "casse" is one of the principal squares, and, in the environs, extensive cultivated fields and vineyards. Mineral waters, shoes, soap, sugarcoats, delft, glass, brandy, wine, oil, vegetables. Pop. 16,852.—3 A. in. Gen. Valencey prov. and 13 in. N.W. by N. Castellon-de-la-Plana, with a handsome Cordilian parish church, three chapels, two schools, a spacious townhouse, prison, secondary manufactures of linen and woollen fabrics, wine, and oil. F 2903.

LUCENDA, ta. S. Africa. See KASIKOW.
LUCENICO or LUCENOVY, a vil. Austrian Illyria, circle

Görz, near the Isnitz, with a church. Pop. 1180.

LUCENTO, a vil. Italy Lombardy div. and near Turin, 1. bank Dora Riparia, with a church, and the remains of an old castle. Pop. 1246.

LUCERA, [Latin, Lucerna] = a Napol. or Caprilanese dist. and 11 m. W.N.W. Forgo, on a rocky eminence, surrounded by ancient walls, with five gates. It is generally substantially built, though the streets are narrow and ill paved.
It has a cathedral, formerly a mosque, adorned in its interior with 18 pillars of serpentine, supposed to have originated from the ruins of the temple of Vesta. The town is a fine traverse, an extensive pile of buildings, containing not only the court of justice and other offices, but residences for the judge and officials and the public prison, and the royal college. Lucera is the seat of a bishop, and the seat both of a high criminal and of a civil court. On the edge of the mountain which the city stands, are about 2 m. distant the remains from it, the castle, built by a king with a deep tower surrounding it, and a wall of 12 m. in circumference, and the prospect, as its most curious object, a deep tower of exquisite workmanship. Feb. 1839.

LUCERAME, a vil. and com. France, dep. Alpes Maritimes, 14 m. N N.E. Nice, in a valley, near the entrance of the Paillon, with an ancient church, hospital, mont-de-piété, maison de la charité, and a trade in wood and charcoal. P 1302

LUCCERNA, a tn. Gardinia. See LUERNNA
LUCEBNE, con. tn., and lake, Switzerland. See LUERNN.

LUCHENTE, s in Spain, prov and 85 m. from Valencia, with a church, townhouse, old castle, hospital, two public schools. Ironworks. And a trade in oil and wine. P 1207

LUCHON, in France. See BATHINGS DE LUCHON

LÜCHOW, a tn. Hanover, prov and 88 m. E & E.
Lüneburg, city hall on the Jctse, with some trade in linen.
Pop. 1848: 11,140.

LUCHTRINGEN a vil. Rhemish Prussia, gov and 40 m.
S.R.R. Minden, r bank Weser over which there is here a LUCIA (BART), a (in Sicily, prov and 15 m. W S W

LUCIA IN MELANEO (SANTA) a tn. Naples prov. Principato Citra dist. and 5 m. N N W Salerno with an abbey

LUCIA (Str.), one of the British W India Windward Islands, 21 mi. N by E. St. Vincent, and 20 m S Marcellus Island. (N point) 14 6' N, and lon. 60° 57' W; greatest length N to S 14 m. greatest breadth 14 m. Area about 270 sq m.

It is evidently of volcanic origin, and, with exception of the splines of Great Isles and Vieuxfort, the one near its N. end, and others either near its E. extremity, has no elevated, rugged, or otherwise noteworthy surface. Many of the splines assume very fantastic shapes, and several of them have no access as to the interior having been, probably at various times, the seat of a volcanic eruption. The volcanic activity of the S. end of the island, where the volcanic activity is still attended by the splashes vapors, which are continually rising from it. Two of the most remarkable cones are the Great and Little Pines, situated near the S.W. shore, and shown in the accompanying engraving. The greater part of finished, and especially the more mountainous parts of the island, is covered with a growth of vegetation, and the valleys and lower heights, are well cultivated, and remarkably productive. The detached land, of which almost innumerable fertility

Elsewhere the sugar-cane either must be annually planted, or cannot be successfully reaped before the second crop, but here, in ordinary soils, the plant continues productive for six, and, in some instances, has not required replanting within 80 years. This amazing fertility is counterbalanced by the general unhealthiness of the climate. On the higher grounds, the European constitution is not very seriously affected, but the marshy valleys are so deadly, that the negro not actually born on the spot, suffers equally with the European. The dense forests, and the rank vegetation of the swamps, are evidently the great causes of disease, and more recently since many of the former have been cleared and several of the latter laid dry, the salubrity has been greatly improved. The staple produce of the island is the sugar-cane, from which in 1852 there were made and exported 8 762,415 lbs sugar 164,800 galls. molasses, and 8375 galls. of rum. The only other article deserving of notice is cocoa, of which in the same year the produce was 181,992 lbs. At one time coffee was cultivated to such an extent that, in 1841, the produce amounted to 151,887 lbs. In the following year however, it sunk to 2612 lbs., and though, in 1844, it suddenly started to 33,814 lbs., it fell as rapidly in subsequent years; and if now cultivated at all, is not so significant a scale, that it no longer figures in the list of exports. The abolition of slavery has certainly not had an injurious effect on the prosperity of the island. In 1837, previously to the abolition the export of sugar was only 41,850 cwts., whereas it now, as shown above, exceeds 78,325 T (1852) 97 480.

THE PITONS, ST. LUCIA.—From an original drawing by Frank Hollist, R.S.

LUCIA (SANTA) one of the Cape Verde islands, N.W. of St. Nicolas, and S.E. of St. Antonio. It is about 6 m. long by 8 m. broad, and has a very mountainous surface, particularly in the N.W. It is uninhabited, and fringed by reefs.

LUGNANO, a m. Tessany, prov. and 41 m. S.E.E. Florence, 1148 ft. above sea-level. Pop. 3074.

LUCILLO, a m. Spain, prov. and 87 m. W. W. Leon with a courteous, primary school, manufactures of linen, and a market every fortnight. Pop. 1486.

LUGITO, a m. Naples, prov. Salerno, dist. and 12 m. W. S. W. Lario. Pop. 3560.

LUCKA, a m. Germany, Saxe-Altenberg, bail. and near Altenburg, on the Schmeiner; with a church, a mill, and a trade in salt. Pop. 1485.

LUCKAU, a m. Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. and 46 m. S.W. Frankfurt, sup. circle, on the Havel. It has three churches, a courthouse, gymnasium, hospital, orphan asylum, and deaf and dumb institutions; manufactures of cloth, linen, starch, gunpowder, and tobacco, and four annual cattle markets

In 1815, the Prussians defeated here the French, under Oudinot. Pop. 4846. —The canal is flat and well cultivated. Area, 288 sq. m. Pop. (1846), 58,709.

LUCKENWALDE, a m. Prussia, prov. Brandenburg gov. Potsdam, on the Havel, 81 m. S. Berlin. It has a parish and hugh school, a court of justice, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, arylates, and leather; a blackfield, a paper-mill, several breweries and distilleries, and six cattle-markets. Pop. (1846), 7216.

LUCKHAM, or LOOCHAM, par. Eng. Somerset; 4126 ac. Pop. 511.

LUCKINGTON, a par. Eng. Wilt. 1625 ac. Pop. 890.

LUCKIPOOR, or LAKHNEPOOR, a m. Hindustan, prov. Bengal, dist. Typerah, 60 m. S. by E. Dacca lat. 22° 55' N.; lon. 90° 56' E. (n.) near the bank, and within a few miles of the mouth of the Great Magma, with which it communicates by means of a small river. The Magma has a breadth, near Luckipoor, of more than 10 m. and, during the rainy season, appears more like an inland sea than a river, most of the islands being submerged. A peculiar cotton stuff, called Bafana, and other coarse goods of excellent quality are manufactured here and in the neighbourhood.

LUCKNOW, a city, Hindustan, cap. Oude, 530 m. W. N. W. Calcutta, lat. 36° 58' N. lon. 80° 58' E.; bank Goomty here crossed by a stone bridge of 10 irregular, pointed arches, and by a bridge of boats. The river opposite the city, is about 100 yards wide and is navigable, for large boats, from its junction with the Ganges, between Ghazipoor and Banar, to a considerable distance up the country. Lucknow lies nearly all Eastern coasts, has an imposing and picturesque appearance from a distance, with its innumerable minarets, gilded cupolas, and brilliantly-coloured cupolas and mosques; but, like them also, fails to realize, on near inspection the promises of the remotest view. It may be said to be divided into two portions—the court end, and the bazarr or mercantile, which is 3 or 4 m. in length, and, in some places, nearly as much in breadth; but the streets are narrow and dirty, and the houses generally mean. In the better quarter it is otherwise. Here the buildings are handsome, and the streets broad and clean; one of the finest of these, called Humez Ahsat, runs parallel with the river towards the bridge, and traverses a considerable portion of the northern quarter. In the centre of this street is a lofty portal, ornamented with many small towers; and, at the further extremity, is the Imam Baras (holy palace), whence the Viceroy Ahsat ad Dowlah is buried. There are, besides, many stately khans, and some handsome mosques and pagodas, in various parts of the city, and not a few of them in the remotest and most wretched quarters. With exception, however, of the royal tombs, and the innumerable beach, or embankment, a beautiful structure, the principal edifices of the city are all of modern construction. The houses are built on the ground-floors of this house, which are three stories high. The two upper stories are furnished with neatly-carved verandas, which run like balconies in front of the sitting-rooms. The scenery around the city is very pleasing, especially along the banks of the Gonomy. The river here exhibits a scene of great activity—traffic boats, small boats, and fishing-boats, rowing to and fro in constant succession. Luebury is at present (1883), and has been the seat of Government since 1774, when it was removed thither from Fynabed. Pop. estimated at 300,000; but Van Orick (1848), says 800,000.

LUCKNOW.—From half view from the N. E. side, St. John, Esq.

LUCKPUT, or LUCKPUT BORDEN, a tn., W. Hindostan, Cochin, on the Kora, or E. branch of the Indus lat 38° 47' N lon. 68° 56' E. It stands on the W. brow of a hill that rises from a swampy plain, and is fortified, but so indifferently as to be a place of no strength. The scenery or most of the sea, on which Luckput stands, was favorable at that point, being only a foot deep, previously to the occurrence of the violent earthquakes at Cochin in 1823. There is now in consequence of the shock, 18 ft. water at the same spot. Other parts of the channel were also deepened by the convulsion, and a portion of the inland navigation of this part of the country which had been closed for centuries, became again practicable. Pop. about 5000.

LUO, a tn. Naples, prov. Abruzzo-Ulteriore II, dist. and 26 m. S. Aquila, W. bank of Lake Fucino. It is walled, and has two churches. Pop. 1870.

LUON, a tn. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, in a marshy district, at the extremity of the canal of the same name, 20 m. N. Bochum. It is a large but dull, irregularly built, dirty and unhealthy place, has a large Gothic cathedral, with three naves, and five open lofty spires, and a trade, chiefly in grain, horses and ship timber, pottery &c. Luon is a bishopric to which Cardinal Richelieu was appointed at the age of 22. In 1793, the Republicans debated the Vendéens beneath its walls. Pop. 4189.

LUTION, par. Eng. Hereford 1917 m. Pop. 178.
LUZ, a vii. Hungary, Hither Thracia, co. Esmirna, on the Thracian, here crossed by a bridge of boats, about 16 m. from Tokay. It has a Protestant parish church, and a productive fishery. Pop. 1945.

LUDAMAR, a country Central Africa lat 14° 26' to 18° 38' N lon 8° to 10° 18' W having the states of Karta and Hambar on the E., Jafra and Kason on the W., and the Sahara on the N and E. The inhabitants consist entirely of Moors, who depend for subsistence on the rearing of cattle, being almost entire strangers to agriculture. The women weave cloth from goats' hair and convert the skins of their cattle into saddles, bridles, pouches, &c. The principal town is Benoum lat 15° 5' N, lon. 9° 40' W. Jafra, about 23 m. to the westward, is also a considerable place.

LUDAS, a vii. Hungary, Hither Thracia, co. Bana, on an extensive lagoon and morass of same name, between Torik Kana and Maru Theresopol. It has a productive fishery of carp and pike. Pop. 2106.

LUDGROUCH par. Eng. Lincoln 2250 m. P. 572
LUDHUCH par. Wales, Pembroke 1607 m. P. 265.

LUDU, or LUDU, (anc. Thapsos), a tn. Turkey in Asia, Palestine, pers. Gasa, 55 m. N. W. Jerusalem recently and substantially built, with about 400 houses, a conspicuous minaret, and the remains of the church of St. George.

LUDDEN, par. Ire. Limerick, 1904 m. Pop. 513.

LUDDENHAM, par. Eng. Kent 1438 m. Pop. 224.

LUDDSDOWN, par. Eng. Kent 1863 m. Pop. 298.

LUDDINGTON two pars Eng.—1 Lincoln; 5889 m.

Pop. 1080.—2 on the Avon, Huntington 690 m. Pop. 150.

LUDE (Lat. [anc. Ludon]) a tn. Prussia, dep. Berthine, 1 bank Lake 25 m. S. E. Mem. It has a church, townhouse, hospital and several schools, and is noted for its ardent and celebrated medicinal, an imposing-looking chateau, finely situated on the edge of an activity overhanging the Lake; manufactures of linen and woollen stuff, and leather, and a trade in corn, nuts, chestnuts, hemp, thread, cattle, swine, and poultry. Pop. 2250.

LUDENSCHEID, a tn. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. and 21 m. S. W. Arnsberg, in a mountainous district; with two Protestant churches, manufactures of buttons, flint, knives, and other articles of hardware; and cotton and other mills. Calamine is wrought in the neighbourhood. P. 3806.

LUDFORD, two pars. Eng.—1 In Hereford; 1887 m.

P. 512.—2, (Magno and Parva) Lincoln 2810 m. P. 793.

LUDGERSHALL, a tn. and par. England, co. Wilts. The town 15 m. N. E. Salisbury, has an Established church two Dissenting chapels, a charity school, and the ruins of an ancient castle. Near it, a few years ago, the great seat of England, now in the ruins of Sturton, was located. Area of par. 1778 ac. Pop. 660.—(Local Correspondent.)

LUDGERSHALL AND TERREVIEW, par. Eng. Berks 2430 m. Pop. 514.

LUDGVAN par. Eng. Cornwall; 4084 m. Pop. 2329.

LUDHAM, par. Eng. Norfolk; 1977 m. Pop. 929.

LUDINGHAUSEN, a tn. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. and 16 m. S. S. Münster, dep. circle, on the Elver; with a church, several public offices, manufacturers of linen and elgite, four dry-works, and several mills. Pop. 1820.

LUDITZ, or LUDITZ, a tn. Bohemia, circle Eibengau, l. bank Sirena, 54 m. W. Prague, with a church. P. 1409.

LUDLOW a par. bar and par. England, co. Salop, in an elevated and commanding position, 23 m. E. by E. Shrewsbury near the confluence of the Teme and Cora, the latter of which is here crossed by a handsome stone bridge of three arches. It has spacious and well-paved streets, lighted with gas, and lined with many handsome houses, the town being a favourite residence of opulent and respectable families; a townhall, guildhall, jail, and urban workhouse, a fine old Established church, and two Dissenting chapels numerous charities, including a free grammar and a blue-coat school, a lying-in institution, a dispensary and a set of almshouses also, a reading-room and museum, a public subscription and two circulating libraries, assembly-rooms, a theatre, a manufactory for woollen cloth, yarn, flannel, and blankets several cotton-works, a paper-mill, and an iron-foundry but most forms the principal article of traffic. The remains of the ancient castle of Ludlow have an interesting and picturesque appearance; and a delightful promenade has been formed along the most fine and pure of the rock. Near the town are several mineral springs. The borough returns two members to Parliament, registered electors (1851), 450. Pop. (1851), 5376.

LUDWIGSBURG, a tn. Württemberg, circle Neckar, dep. dist. and 8 m. N. Stuttgart. It is the second town in the kingdom, and is handsome and well built. Most of the streets are spacious and lined with trees, and so uniform in appearance as to produce a feeling of monotony. The only buildings deserving of notice are the palace, which has respectively from the royal residence; the theatre and opera. There are also four churches, two military schools, a custom-house, lyceum, picture-gallery and arsenal. The manufactures consist of woollen, linen, and cotton cloth, silks, tobacco, earthenware, jewellery, needles, cartridges, &c. There is also a cannon-foundry connected with the arsenal. Since it ceased to be the royal residence, Ludwigsburg has rapidly declined. Pop. 6200 Area of dist. 54 sq. m. Pop. 28750.

LUDWIGSDORF, a vii. Prussia, prov. Rhine, gov. Breslau, circle Glatz. It consists of several detached parts and has a B. Catholic church, and several mills. P. 1025.

LUDWIGSHAFEN, a vii. Baden, Lake circle, ball. Stockach, on the Lake of Constance, on which it has a harbour. It has a church, a castle, a brewery, tile-works, and a considerable transit trade. Pop. 817.

LUDWIGSLUST a tn. Germany, Mecklenburg-Schwerin, 20 m. S. S. E. Schwerin. It contains a handsome palace, which, still 1837 was the residence of the Duke; a picture-gallery a museum, which possesses a collection of Bohemian antiquities chiefly found within the duchy; an institution for the deaf and dumb, a church, and a seminary. Its only manufactures are sailcloth and glassware. Pop. 5356.

LUDWIGSTADT, a tn. Bavaria, Upper Thuringia, dep. dist. 37 m. N. N. W. Bamberg, with a handsome church, manufactures of hosiery, pottery, and writing-station. Pop. 860 Area of dist. 40 sq. m. Pop. 9900.

LUEBIA, a tn. Spain, Aragon, prov. and about 60 m. from Saragossa, 1 bank Arba-de-Lencia; with two churches, an old castle, a primary school, several mills, and a trade in charcoal and in wood. Pop. 947.

LOFFENHAM two pers. Eng. England—1 (North) 1899 as. Pop. 443—2 (South) 1417 as. Pop. 487

LOFFINCOTT, par. Eng. Devon, 971 as. Pop. 96. LUFIJI, river and valley, Africa. See KILWA

LUFTON, par. Eng. Somerset 292 as. Pop. 24

LUGA, a to. Russia, gov. and 90 m. S.W. Petersburg cap. along on river and sea. It is built of wood, and has a church and a market. Pop. 800.—The country is well wooded and fertile. Area, 8078 geo. sq. m. P. 78,690

LUGAGNANO a to. and com. Parma, Italy and 19 m. S.E. Piacenza, at the foot of Mount Corno, 1. bank Arda. It is a very ancient place, contains a parish church, which bears date 1219; and a public school and has an important weekly corn market. Pop. 4921

LUGANO (Lago 29), (Latic, Comasco Lacus) a lake, partly in the Swiss can. Ticino, and partly in Aemuria Italy, between Lakes Maggiore and Como. It abounds nearly 200 ft. above the level of both these lakes, and is of a very irregular shape, throwing out arms in all directions, and forming only a very narrow trunk. Its greatest length may be about 20 m. greatest depth, about 100 fathoms. It is fed by a number of small torrents, of which the largest are the Magliana, Veduggio, Casarate, and Margoglia and discharges itself into Lake Maggiore, by the Tress. It abounds with fish. Its scenery is very imposing, being much more gloomy and rugged than that of the celebrated lakes on either side. A steamer plies regularly on the lake and between the two villages of Maldo and Biasotto where it narrows a handsome bridge has recently been thrown over it.

LUGANO, or LAURA, a to. Switzerland, can. Ticino, cap. dist., and beautifully situated on the N. shore of the lake of same name, in a small semicircular valley, 15 m. N.W. Como. It consists of white, wall built houses, mostly of three stories, and other elegant and imposing. It has several churches, of which that of San Lorenzo is a fine structure, conspicuously seated on a commanding eminence and another, called San Maria degli Angeli, is adorned with some fine paintings by Bernadino Luini. There are numerous shops, numerous, in hospital, an old bishop's palace, and theatre. Its manufactures consist chiefly of silk goods, open silk, leather hats, tobacco, and books, particularly cheap editions of works prohibited in Italy. The trade, also, is considerable, Lugano being the principal entrepot for the traffic carried on across the lake, between Italy and the countries on the N. side of the Alps. Pop. (1850), 5143

LUGANBOKE, a to. Russia, gov. Ekaterinodar, on the Lena. It has extensive iron-works, at which a great number of masters and workmen are annually sent. Pop. 1984.

LUGAR, a beautiful small river, Scotland. Ayrshire, which falls into the Ayr, near Cairn.

LUGARES (SARCO), a vil. La Plata, prov. and 14 m. W. Buenos Ayres. In 1852, the slaughter house was here finally defeated by Uruguay.

LUGDE, or LEIDE, a to. Friesland, prov. Westphalia, gov. and 25 m. S.E. Münden, on the Ems, where it is walled, has three gates, two E. Catholic churches, a paper-mill a lace factory, and a mineral spring. Pop. 2069.

LUGO, a river, England and Wales, rises in Radnorshire, and, after a S.E. course of about 40 m., falls into the Wye, co. and 4 m. S.E. Hereford.

LUGHMAN, or LAHMAN, a dist. in N.E. of Afghanistan, lat. 34° 25' to 35° N. lon. 70° to 70° 40' E. It forms part of prov. Jalalabad and is bounded N. by Hindu Kohat, E. the Kama, S. the Cabool, and W. the Alishang length, about 40 m., and breadth, 20 m. It is very rugged, but fertile and populous. The British prisoners reserved from the massacre of Cord Cabool, were conveyed by Mahomed Akbar Khan into this district.

LUGO (San. Leone depreto), a city, Spain, (Valencia, cap. of prov. 40 m. S. by S. Hendrix on a hill, 1. bank Muro, here crossed by an old bridge of eight arches. It is well built, surrounded by ancient walls, flanked by semicircular towers, and commanded by a ruinous castle. It has wide, clean, regular, and paved streets; two principal and 10 smaller squares, a handsome Gothic cathedral, two parish churches, several chapels, two convents, two hospitals, town and session houses, a prison, barracks, theatre, various schools, and other benevolent institutions, an orphan asylum, episcopal palace, with extensive library; some pleasant public walks, and rapid subterranean baths. Manufactures:—Linen and woollen fabrics, leather, hats, soap, white wax, cream-of-tartar, paper, candles, wine, and oil. The chief employment of the inhabitants is agriculture and cattle-rearing. Lago contains many Roman remains. Pop. 7269.—(Madoz and Mallado).—The province, bounded N. by the Atlantic, E. prov. Oviedo and Leon, S. Orense, S.W. Pontevedra, and W. Coruña, lat. 42° 32' to 43° 47' N. lon. 8° 53' to 9° 4' W. is of so rugged and mountainous a character that not above 230 sq. m. of its total area, 6068 sq. m., are cultivable. The coast-line is very irregular and presents precipitous cliffs to the sea. Cape Raton, in this province, is the most N. point in the Spanish peninsula. The mountains, generally bare, and rocky towards the summit, but tolerably well-wooded near the base, afford excellent pasturage, and contain mines of iron, antimony, and argentiferous lead, though little wrought, besides of building-stones, granite, marble, crystal, and quartz. The valleys are for the most part fertile, though very poorly cultivated. The principal rivers are the Eo, Mazon, Oro, and Miño. The inhabitants are principally engaged in tillage, cattle-rearing, fishing and as muleteers—they are honest, and much attached to their native hills, hospitable, but proud of their descent andaverse to innovations of their ancient customs. Education is deplorably neglected, and much of the agricultural labour is done by women. Besides Lago, its capital, it contains the towns of Mondoñedo, Monforte, Ribadeo, and Viveiro. Pop. 419,487

LUGO, a to. Italy Romagna, 83 m. S.E. Ferrara, on the Reno supposed to occupy the site of Lucus Flaviae whose temple was in the neighborhood, and to date from the time of Marcus Bruttius, proconsul of Ravenna. It is an important provincial town, and contains a fine piazza, surrounded with porticoes, but suffered dreadfully in 1786, when it was sacked by the French. It trades in hemp, flax, rice, wine, and brandy, and has an important annual fair which lasts a fortnight. Pop. 9842.

LUGO, several places Hungary, particularly—1, a vil. Thutser Thies, co. Szabolcs, about 13 m. from Nyir Bator with a Greek church. Pop. 1438—2, a market to Thutser Thies, co. Krasowa, on the Theiss; with two churches, a townhouse, and military barracks. Pop. 6600 LUGRIV a vil. and com. France, dep. Haute Savoie prov. Chablais, S. shore Lake of Geneva, E. from Thonon with an ancient church, supposed to date from the 11th century and manufactures of cherry brandy. Pop. 1274.

LUGWARDINE, par. Eng. Hereford, 2097 as. P. 670

LUING, an isl. off W. coast, Scotland co. Argyre, separated from Bute island, on the N. by a narrow strait. It is about 74 m. long, and has a picturesque appearance.

LUINGUB a vil. and com. Belgium prov. W. Flanders, 80 m. S. Bruges. It has manufactures of linen, an oil-works, brick works, a bleachfield, and two flour-mills. Pop. 1243.

LUIS-DE-EL PAS, a to. Mexico, near the E. frontiers of dep. Guaymas, and about 36 m. N. W. Queretaro, with productive silver-mines.

LUIS-DE-FORTES (SAN), Bolivia. See FORTES (SAN LEONARDO)

LUIS (SAN)—1, A prov. and in La Plata.—The province is mostly between lat. 33° and 34° S. lon. 64° and 67° W. and surrounded by provs. Cordova, Mendoza, and San Juan. The soil is poor; and the suburbs, in some parts, rocky and mountainous. Agriculture is little attended to, but cattle are reared in considerable numbers. The inhabitants, who are scattered over the extensive or cattle-farms, live in continual dread of the Indians, and are altogether in a miserable condition. Pop. about 25,000.—The town of Luis is prettily situated on the W. slope of one of the knolls of the Sierra de Cordova, 2417 ft. above sea-level 428 m. W. N. W. Buenos Ayres. It has some little trade in horses and skins. Pop. 1509.—2, A vil. Spain, in a plain, S. side of Almorox with a church, a primary school, two flour-mills, and a trade in corn, wool, and cattle. Pop. 1988.

LUISIANA (LA), a vil. Spain, Andalucia, prov. and 40 m. from Seville, on a plain, with a church, primary school, prison, and mineral springs, considered efficacious in cutaneous affections. Pop. (agricultural), 2941

LUIS (Rio) in Brazil. See MARANHÃO or MARAYHAN

LUIS-ALVES, or MANOEL ALVES DE MENDONÇA, a river, Brazil, which rises in the Serra de Itatia, in the N.E. of prov. Goyas passes a N.W. course, through a country which is very little known, and fewer & less numerous, in about lat. 30° N. Its whole range is estimated at 150 m., and, except in a few areas where extensive areas of forest and mountains are TAJUAN, or LUXAN.—A river, La Plata, which enters the estuary of the Plata on the W side, 18 m. N W Buenos Ayres, after a course, generally E., of about 120 m.—S. 12 m. on above river, near and 55 m. W Buenos Ayres.

LUIAH, a vil. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 60 m. from Granada. It has ill-paved, dirty streets, a church, courthouse, prison, primary school, building-estate, licantoma, and gypsum quarries, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1222

LUKAWETZ, or LOUWETZ, a market tn. Bohemia, circ. Königgrätz, about 4 m. from Reichenau; with a church, school, a mill, and iron-mines. Pop. 1906.

LUKELINGO, a m., E. Africa. See KILWA.

LUKE'S (8v), per Incl. Dublin, 28 cc. Pop. 174

LUKIANOW, or LUKOJANOW, s. in RUSSIA, gov. smolensk, 96 m. S.E.E. Nijni-Novgorod, esp. circle, at the confluence of the Khochochichewka with the Koscha. It has a church. Pop. (agricultural), 1200.—The circle is well wooded, very fertile, and rears great numbers of cattle. P 185,000.

LUKKKE (Nouze and Bourd) two tons. Scumbe The str. now in ruins and deserted, is 12 m. S.E. Shakpor;
 lat. 17° 48' N; lon. 68° 44' E. It was ruined by the oppressive exactions of the Anwers of Balode. S. Lukke is on a bank facing, 70.0 m. N.N.E. Hyderabad lat. 26° 14' N lon.
 68° 1' E. near a small lake. Close to the town is a sulphurous spring, which flows from the base of a calcareous precipice

LUBKEE MOUNTAINS, a considerable range in Nevada, connected with the Hile or Brashers mountains of Boloshistan. They lie W from the Indus, stretching E. from Soliman to near Kurrahee, gradually diverging from the river. They appear to be of porphyry, are very bare of vegetation, and much furrowed by water-courses. Highest peaks 10,000 ft.

part, about 1000 ft.

LULA, or LAVASA, a vii ind. Barbaia, div Samari prov Nucero, at the bottom of a small valley, rendered un healthy by stagnant water. It contains several churches and has manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, and a trade in cheese. Pop. 6241.

LULEÅ.—1 A seaport town, Sweden, lin. N. Bothnia, or Piteå, on a small peninsula at the mouth of the Luleå, in the Gulf of Bothnia, 51 m. W. S.W. Fennosc. The present town was a goodly one, at which some 100000 immigrants and 1000000000 dollars worth of goods were sold in 1890. It is replaced another town called Luleå (Luleåstadsfjärden [old town]), which was founded by Gustavus Adolphus, and became of some importance, but lost it by the receding of the sea. The church, which is large and handsome, and market-place are still in the old town. Pop. 11891.—2 A river, Sweden, which issues from a long and narrow expanse forming a lake of same name, Hjä Pitån, in the NW of Sweden, flows S.S.E. receiving numerous tributaries, and, after a course of about 220 m., falls into a bay in the Gulf of Bothnia, at the town of Luleå.

LULLIN a vil. sadcom. Francos, dep. Haute Savoie, prov.

Chabins, about 10 m. from Thomon, with a church. P 1002.
LULLINGSTONE, par Eng. Kent, 1520 ac. Pop. 51
LULLINGTON three pars. Eng. —1, Derby 2983 ac
 Pop. 679 —2, Somerset, 687 ac. Pop. 118. —3, Sussex, 1163 ac. Pop. 26.

LULLYMORE, par Irel. Kildare 1858 ac. Pop. 94.

LULWORTH (East and West) par Eng. Dorset 4954
Pop 651

LUMBARDO, a vil and some Italy Piedmont, div Genoa, prov Chiavari, near Clesigne, in a mountainous district, near the sources of Lavagna, with a parish church. Pop. 2637

LUMBIER, a tn. Spain, prov Navarra, 23 m. E.S.E. Pampeluna. It has tolerably good and well-paved streets; a church, summary townhouse, prison, and two schools; and a trade in corn and wine. Pop. 1,000.

LUMMALES, a tn Spain, Leon, prov and 46m. W.S.W Salamanca. It has wide, but dirty and ill-paved streets, a church, chapel, storehouse, townhouse, two schools, and some domestic weaving. Pop. (arrivment) 2050.

LAURENCEAS, v to -Espe, Old Castle, 1600 and 25 m.
N. Logansport, with a church, townhouse, prison, primary school, and a little trade in wool. Pop. 1190.

LUMELINA, a. de. lumina. See MONTELA.

LOURELLO, de LOURELLO, a vil and com. Ardegnan.
Sainto, div. Novara, prov. Lombardia, r bank Agogna, 10 m.
S.S.R. Mortara. It has a good square, two parish churches, and a monastery, with a church attached to it, and a trade in agricultural produce and milk. Pop. 2161.

LUMENCHA, a small rd. Spain, Bay of Biscay, at the mouth of the Ebro, and the entrance of the port of Sagunto, consisting chiefly of a rocky height, which commands that town. It had a battery, which the British destroyed in 1810 and has a very ancient hermitage.

LUMEZZANE, two outcrops vills. Italy Lombardy, prov. and 9 m. N Brescia.—1 (Pieve), L bank Mella, in the valley of Lumezzane, with a parish and several auxiliary churches. Pop. 1488.—2, (Sania Apollonia) with a parish church. Pop. 1996. In both villages are manufactures of cutlery—iron-wire, swords, and sicks.

LUMMEN, a tn. and com. Belgium, prov Limburg, 9 m NW Hasselt; with a church, three chapels, three com-mercantile houses, and three schools. Pop. (agricultural) 5208

LUMPHANAN par Boot Aberdeen 7020 no. P 1088
LUNA a to Spain, Aragon prov and 25 m. from Saragossa, with two churches, a courthouse, prison, and primary School Pop. (Agricultural) 945

LIVELAND, San Antonio, Texas 78204

LUNCARTY a village Scotland, co. and 2½ m. N Perth memorable for a victory obtained by the Scotch over the Danes, in the 10th century. It is a station on the Perth and Forfar railway and the seat of a most extensive linen manufacture.

LUND was Eng. E. York: 3254100. Box 309

LUNA per Seg. A. York; 2960 ac. Pop. 608.
LUNA in Stregas, Kila, 2950 ac. On an extensive plain the town is situated at the foot of a mountain 5 m to the west, in a very ancient place, and its Pagan temple had risen to such importance as to collect a population of 80,000. It was then surrounded with wooden fortifications, and had its warehouses filled with the merchandise and treasures which the Guanine had carried off in their piratical excursions. In the middle of the same age, it became the seat of an archbishop, and the field of his jurisdiction extended along the coast of Peru, and embraced the whole Spanish territory. The present town occupies a large tract of space, and is a very irregular built and though it cannot have been done to improve it in recent times, it has still a very antiquated appearance. Before the Reformation, it contained 21 churches and six monasteries. It has now only three churches—two of them, a cathedral, a large hospital, and a convent. The principal occupations are sugar planting and land is the university opened in 1479, comprising the buildings of an old castle, possessed of a library of nearly 60,000 volumes and MSS., an observatory, a museum, physical cabinet, etc., and attended by about 800 students. Other occupations, drawing of noses, are the botanical garden, the observatory, the theatre, the school of medicine, the hospital, the treasury, and the Neomarian or infirmary. The establishments consist chiefly of woolen, and other goods; and there are several tanneries and tobacco factories. Pop. 1584.

LUNDEN, a vil. Denmark, Holstein, W. Dänemark, 67 m. N. N. W. Hamburg at the extremity of a belt of sand, which here stretches into the Marsh. It has a church, supposed to occupy the site of a fort called Lind, built by King Waldemar II. and two large annual fairs. In the neighbourhood is the house of the famous Leadvogt Marcus Sowa. Pop. 1600

LUNDENBURG BRACHLAWA, or BRACHLAW, a market town, Austria, Moravia, circle and 58 m S.E. Brunn, on the railway from Vienna, and on the Taja, with a chapel, a castle, a trade in cattle, and two annual fairs. Pop. 2156.

LUNDIE AND FOWLES, per Scotland, Fowles; 6400 no.

LUNDY ISLAND, England co. Devon, at the entrance of the British Channel, 10 m. N.W. Hartland Point. Area, about 9000 ac. It is defended by lofty and precipitous rocks, LUNDYE, a river, Afghanistan, one of the principal tributaries of the Cabool, rises on the N. declivity of the Hinduo Kook, N. of Peshawar. It flows N.E. to S.W., and from the north into the Gulf between the higher mountains and the lake, lat. 34° 10' N., long. 71° 42' E.

LUNKE, a navigable river, Magdalen, which rises in the mountains of Westphalia, flows S. and W. past Kirch-Lunke and Lüneburg, and, 6 m. below the latter, falls into the Ems by a broad estuary; total course about 50 m.

LUNEBURG, a m. Hanover, gov. dist. (südwestlich), of same name, on the Ems, and close to the railway from Hildesheim to Harburg, 38 m. S.E. Hanburg. It is walled, has six gates, and communicates across the river by seven bridges; has several squares, but is, in general, ill built, having dark and narrow streets, and dull, old-fashioned houses. It contains few churches, a monastery, which was secularized in the 17th century, but still contains an extensive library, a music, arsenal, townhall, theatre, gymnasium, military academy, military hospital, ordinary hospital, and several other benevolent, educational, and literary institutions. It has manufactures of paper, tobacco, sugar, and ringer, numerous breweries and distilleries, and a considerable trade, particularly transit, carried on by the Elbe. Near it is a salt mine, which has been worked from a very early period, and the produce of which forms an important article of exportation. Pop. about 9000.—The district is almost entirely flat, and, along the banks of the river, has both good arable and rich meadow land, but an extensive tract, known by the name of Lüneburger Moor, occupies its very centre. Area, 834 sq. m. Pop. 119,681.

LUNEL (anc. Lunellum), a m. France, dep. Hérault, 15 m. N.E. Montpellier, on the canal of its own name, and the railway from Montpellier to Nîmes, near r. bank Vidourle; it has infantry and cavalry barracks, liquor factories, and numerous distilleries of brandy and spirits, and has a trade in corn, flour, excellent sweet wines, brandy, &c. In the 10th century, Lunel was a place of strength and almost entirely inhabited by Jews, whose celebrated rabbi, Solomon Jarchi, had here a famous synagogue. Its fortifications were razed, in 1622, by Cardinal Richelieu. Pop. 8797.

LUNKEN, a m. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. and 23 m. N.W. Arnsberg, at the confluence of the Saake with the Lippe. It has two churches, and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, bonnet, leather, and tobacco. Pop. 2250.

LUNEVILLE (anc. Mortua), a m. France, dep. Meurthe, near the junction of the Vesouze with the Meurthe, 15 m. S.E. Nancy. It has generally straight streets and regular buildings, a modern and handsome church, a palace, built by Leopold, Duke of Lorraine, at the beginning of last century, and subsequently embellished and occupied by Stanislaus, ex-king of Poland, manufactures of common cloth, calicoes, bonnet, embroidery, leather and worsted gloves, brown earthenware, furniture, and stores, a good deal of wool and cotton is spun, and there are also bleachfields and breweries. The trade is in wine, corn, brandy, hemp, flax, wood, and embroidery. Luneville possesses a court of first resort, an agricultural society, a communal college, and is one of the largest, cavalry stations in France, having very extensive barracks and exercise ground. The treaty of peace, in 1801, by which, as a consequence of the battle of Marengo, the Rhine became the French frontier, was signed here. Pop. 12,164.

LUNG-LOU, a river, China, prov. Quensu, flows S.E., and joins the Hsueh-hing, after a course of about 800 m. Chief cities on its banks, Khyuen and Low-tsoen.

LUNGA, an isl., W. coast, Scotland, co. Argyll, separated from Scarra by a strait, remarkable for the violence of its current. It is about 3 m. sq., and abounds in slate.

LUNGEN, a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. Unterwalden, Ob dem Wald, in a beautiful valley at the foot of Mount Brünig, and at some distance from the S. end of the lake of same name, 9 m. S.E.W. Surren. It is originally stood on the banks of the lake, but, after many unsuccessful attempts, a tunnel, 1890 ft. long, in 1868, intended to drive off a portion of the waters to lake Surren, was driven into the bottom of the lake, 100 within 6 ft. of the water, and forced into a communication with it by exploding a barrel of gunpowder. The surface has thus been so much lowered, as to injure the beauty both of the town and lake, but compensation is expected from the land acquired. Pop. 1838.

LUNGHO, or Lungau, a m. Naples, prov. Calabria-Citra, dist. and 6 m. R.W. Castelvillari, near r. bank Tiro, with a Greek convent, and near it a mine of rock-salt. Pop. 3706.

LUNGWITZ, or Assen-Ottow-Lungwitz, a vil. Saxony, circle and 42 m. S.W. Weissen, on the Dresden road. It has manufactures of linen and hosiery, a large cotton-mill, and several extensive quarries. Pop. 4300.

LUNIGIANA, a small territory Italy formerly belonging to Tuscany between Piedmont, Parma, and Modena even, 197 sq. m. It is divided into 11 communes, chief town, Pontremoli. It is watered by the Magra and its affluents. Pop. (1844), 55,320.

LUNTEREN, a vil. Holland, prov. Gelderland, 17 m. N.W. Arnhem, with a church and school P (agricultural), with environs, 1900.

LUNZENAU, or Lunzow, a m. Saxony, circle and 3 m. W. Leipzig, 1 bank Mulde. It is well built, has a handsome church, and manufactures of linen and shoes. Pop. 3787.

LUPAK, a vil. Hungary, Thither Thale, on Krassova, about 8 m. from Dognasza, with a church. Pop. 1004.

LUPO (Lupo), a m. Naples, prov. Caserta, dist. and 31 m. S. Campobasso, on a height; with three churches. P. 1800.

LUPETIT, par. Eng. Devon, 4293 ac. Pop. 761.

LUPBA, a m. Austria, Transylvania, co. Unter-Thurnburg, cap. dist., on the Aranyos, 36 m. W. Nagy Koyod with four Greek churches. Pop. 3099.

LUQUE, a m. Spain, Andalucia, prov. and 37 m. S.E. Cordova. It has two squares, steep, and, for the most part, badly-paved streets, a spacious church, some chapels, a convent, to wondrous, three hospitals, three schools, a seminary, an ancient castle, formerly of great strength, manufactures of linen, woollen, and especially fabrics, oil, and a little wine, and some trade in cattle. Pop. 3763.

LURAGO, a vil. and par. Italy Lombardy gov. Milan, prov. Como, 6 m. S. Erba, enclosed by beautiful hills, near the Lambro, with a church and brick and tile works. P. 3200.

LURAS, or Lauras, a vil. and com. Sardina, div. Sassari, prov. and N.E. Tempio on an elevated and healthy plain. It has several churches and a primary school and a trade in wine, brandy, cheese, hides, wool and corn. Pop. 1840.

LURATIA, a m. Italy, Lombardy gov. Milan, prov. and 9 m. E. Como, with a church, and an old castle, and has a trade in wine. Pop. 1981.

LURE (anc. Lutera), a m. France, dep. Haute-Saône, near r. bank Ognon, 16 m. N.E. Vesoul. It is tolerably well built, though the houses in general are low in height, and has municipal offices, occupying the extensive and fine buildings of the old princely abbey of Lure, a handsome college, a parish church, a court of first resort, an agricultural society, communal college, and manufactures of hosiery cotton stuffs, straw hats, and leather. Pop. 5198.

LURGAN, a market in Ireland, co. and 15 m. N.E. Armagh, on the railway to Belfast. It consists principally of one spacious street, containing numerous handsome buildings, which extend for nearly a mile along the Belfast and Armagh road, and has a courthouse, brown-linen hall, Established church R. Catholic chapel, and several dissenting places of worship, several schools, a dispensary and union work-house. The inhabitants are principally employed in the linen and woollen manufactures. Brewing is also carried on to some extent. Pop. 4905.

LURGASHALL, par. Eng. Sussex; 4850 ac. Pop. 744.

LURISTAN, or Louistan, a dist. Persia, a S. division of prov. Irak Ajemi, bordering on Khuzestan and Fars. It is extremely mountainous, having the mountain ranges of Elward and Awas on its N.E. boundary, those of Bakhtyari to its centre, and the Luristan mountains on its S.W. border. It has, nevertheless, many fruitful valleys and luxuriant pastures, but agriculture is wholly neglected by the natives, who prefer a wandering and pastoral life. The latter, consisting of numerous and different tribes, are a rude and savage people and own no law but the will of their chief, the most ferocious of which are the Bakhtyari, who pursue their bloody feud with the most bitter intensity. As the inhabitants reside both summer and winter in tents, there are no towns, and very few villages, in the country.

LURU, a river, Turkey in Europe, Albania, formed by the junction of various head streams, which rise about lat. 39° 55' N., lon. 19° 50' E., whence it flows S. and falls into the Gulf of Arta, at lat. 39° 5' N., lon. 19° 50' E.; total course, 50 m. to 40 m.

the Alps. About a mile out of the town, a square block of granite, called Schwedenstein [the Swedes' stone], over which an elegant equestrian monument has been erected, marks the spot where the great Gustavus fell. Lütlin contains a castle, and a church. Pop. 1700.

LUVINO or Luvio a town and com. Italy, Lombardy, prov. Milan, prov. and 24 m. N.W. Como. E. shore Lake Maggiore. It is well built, has a court of justice, a handsome parish church, an hospital, several schools, and a considerable trade with Switzerland. Pop. 1942.

LUXEMBOURG, prov. Eng. Somerset, 8740 ac. P. 512. LUXEMBOURG, or LUXEMBOURG, a prov. Belgium constituting the W. portion of the grand duchy of Luxembourg bounded N. by prov. Liège, E. duchy Luxembourg, S. France, and W. prov. Namur; length, N. to S., 67 m., breadth, 37 m. Area, 1705 sq. m. It is elevated and mountainous, highest summits over 2000 ft., and is generally covered with forests of excellent oak, &c., a branch of the Ardennes traversing it S.W. to N.E., and forming the water-shed between the basins of the Meuse and the Moselle. The principal streams are the Ourthe, Sambre, Lesse, Sura, Homme, and Petta. The soil of the lower valleys is tolerably fertile, but, with this exception is generally a thin, sterile gravel, or hungry clay. The mountain pastures, however, are excellent, and rear great numbers of sheep, horned cattle, and horses, the last, in particular, being a hardy, spirited race, and largely exported to France, for light cavalry. The minerals include coal, copper, marble, and slate, but iron is the only valuable ore. The chief manufactures, in addition to iron, are leather and cardenware and the shod trade, after wool, is cattle. For administrative purposes, Luxembourg is divided into five arrondissements—Arion, the capital, Bastogne, Marche, Neufchâteau, and Virton subdivided into 20 civil and 16 military cantons. Pop. 187,978, the large majority of whom speak French or Walloon.

LUXEMBURG (GRAND DUCHY) a territory belonging to the Dutch monarchy and till recently the 11th state of the German Confederation, bounded N. and E. by the Netherlands, S. France, and W. Belgium, greatest length N. to S., 55 m., greatest breadth, 34 m., area, 1228 geo. sq. m. It forms part of the plateau of the Ardennes and has a rugged and mountainous surface, covered in many parts with heaths and morasses, though in general well wooded. Its drainage belongs almost entirely to the basin of the Moselle, which forming the S.E. boundary receives part of it directly and the far greater part of the remainder by the Sura and its tributaries. Agriculture is limited in extent by the nature of the surface, and has not made much progress, but the pastures rear great numbers of cattle, sheep, and horses. The last, in particular, have long been in high repute for light cavalry and are largely exported. The only other important export is timber. The inhabitants are of German origin and speak German, though French is almost universally understood. They are for the most part zealous R. Catholics, and there are few parts of Europe where the Jesuits are allowed to have greater influence. For administrative purposes the grand duchy is divided into the three districts of Luxembourg, Grevenmacher, and Diekirch, containing eleven cantons. Pop. 168,750. Luxembourg in early times was much more extensive than at present, and though forming part of Germany, was ruled by its own princes, who at the same time were sovereigns of the state of Brandenburg. It was first governed by counts, one of whom Henry IV. was elected emperor of Germany in 1308 and assumed the title of Henry VII. In 1364 it was erected into a duchy by Charles IV., and, in 1443, came by marriage to Philip of Burgundy, and, through him to the house of Spain. By the peace of the Pyrenees, in 1659, part of it was ceded to the French and took the name of French Luxembourg, but, in 1714, it all merged in the house of Austria, and remained with it till the execution of the French revolutionary armies incorporated it with the French Empire. In 1814, it was converted into a grand duchy and given to the king of Holland, who possessed it, in succession with Holland and Belgium, till 1830, when, in consequence of the revolution of the latter, part of it became a Belgian province. The remainder, constituting with the Dutch, forms the present grand duchy.

LUXEMBURG, a town, belonging to Holland, cap. above grand duchy, recently one of the fortresses of the German Confederation, 115 m. W. S.W. Frankfurt-on-the-Main, and 117 m. W. II.

S.E. Brussels. Its natural position is so strong, and the different powers into whose hands it has successively fallen, have done so much to extend and improve its means of defence, that Carnot pronounced it to be the strongest place in Europe, after Gibraltar. It is divided into a low and a high town. The former lies along the banks of the Alste, is surrounded with walls, and consists of two quarters, called the Grind and the Pétitbourg. The latter stands 200 ft. higher, on a steep and steeped rock, and is approached from below, by flights of steps and steep streets, cut out of the solid rock, so as to be passable for a carriage. The whole rock is surrounded by a strong wall, deep ditches, and a double row of formidable out-works. The most remarkable part of the fortifications, called Le Bosu, consisting of a rocky promontory which commands the valley both above and below, has been so deeply excavated as to contain casemates capable of receiving 4000 men. The high town, which this properly forms the citadel is about 550 yards long, by 430 yards broad. The whole town is well built, and contains three good public squares, four churches, three chapels, and a synagogue, townhouse, old and new, the governor's house, town library, the marshalls, partly used as a theatre, the two old and famous monasteries of the Dominicans and Franciscans, and the old abbey cathedral, partly fitted up as barracks, an atheneum, with 16 professors, a R. Catholic seminary for priests, a normal and several elementary schools. It has manufactures of wax, several distilleries and breweries; tanneries for chamois as well as ordinary leather, dye-works, &c.; and a trade in gold and silver wares, paper, iron, honey, wine, vinegar, wood, china, hats, hosiery, &c. Luxembourg is the see of a bishop, and during part of the year, the residence of the leading families of the duchy some of whom have elegant mansions in it. Its neighbourhood abounds with fine promenades. P. 11,148 exclusive of the garrison mustering about 5000 men.

LUXEM, or LUXEN (anc. Luxovium) a town in France, dep. Haute-Saône, 17 m. N.N.E. Vesoul. It is well built; has churches, a townhouse, and a Benedictine cloister; and parish churches much frequented, thermal baths, manufactures of straw hats, cherry brandy, hams, leather, and rummery, and near it, a paper and cotton mill, cotton factories, potteries, naileries, and important iron-works. Pop. 2402.

LUXOR a vil. Upper Egypt. See THEBES.

LUXULIAN or LUXULIAN prov. Eng. Cornwall 5304 ac. Pop. 1439.

LUZ (anc. Alaso) a town and com. France, dep. Haute-Pyrénées, at the foot of a lofty mountain called the Pic de Burgos, 18 m. S. Tarbes. Its church, in the E. gothic style, enclosed within a castle furnished with battlements and loop-holed walls, was founded by the Templars, in the 11th century and is remarkably curious. In the valley of Luz there is a powerful petrifying spring. Pop. 3840.

LUSA river Malagasser N.W. coast, the bar at the mouth in lat. 14° 36' 9" N., lon. 47° 45' E. The river, after forming an extensive lagoon 8 m. inland, discharges its water through a channel extremely narrow often more than 60 fathoms deep with lofty and precipitous hills on either side.

LUXERN, or LUXEM, a cantonal capital in Switzerland, bounded N. by Lucerne, E. Argau, Zug, and Schwyz, S. Bern and Unterwalden, and W. Bern, length, N. to S., 30 m., breadth, in the S. 10 m., in the N. 22 m., in the centre 28 m., area 448 geo. sq. m. The surface is very much broken by ramifications of the Bernese Alps but runs level above the line of perpetual snow. The Tomlihorn, the culminating point of Mount Pilatus, and of the canton, is 10,768 ft. above the Lake of Luzern, and 7116 ft. above sea-level. Small valleys are numerous, but the only one of much extent is the Entlebuch, which is about 80 m. long, and flanked by mountains clothed with forests or green pastures. The principal rivers are the Reuss, which, considered as a continuation of the Rhine, rises on the S. borders of the canton, and traverses it centrally in a N.E. direction, the Aar, Suren, and Wigger, with its numerous tributaries. All these rivers have a direction more or less N., and belong to the basin of the Aar, and through it to that of the Rhine. Luzern is well supplied with lakes. Within its own boundaries it has those of Boppach and Baldeg, with many more of smaller size, with Eng. It shares the Lake of Zug, and with Unterwalden and Schwyz, the most important of all, the Lake of Luzern. The strata seem chiefly to belong to the secondary Impatiens; the Hebe and Andromeda of which are largely developed. Flax and several other mountain plants are almost entirely composed of them. In the sands of several of the streams gold is found. Coal, to a limited extent, exists in several places. The soil, though generally inclining to sand, is fertile, and its cultivation is well understood. Cereals and fruit are raised in abundance, and a few sheltered spots are laid out in vineyards. Chestnuts, almonds, and figs, ripen on the banks of the Lake of Lunau. It very hence has been called the climate, on the whole, is mild. In the higher lands, however, it is severe, and some of the loftiest summits are never free of snow before the end of May. The pastures are extensive and excellent. Manufactures have not made much progress, but trade, chiefly transit, is considerable. The far greater part of the inhabitants profess the R. Catholic religion, which is established as that of the canton. The government is vested in the Great Council [Grosse Råd], consisting of 100 members—80 elected by the people and 20 by the 80. The executive is exercised by the Little Council [Lilje Råd] consisting of 15 members, elected by the Great Council for three years, under the presidency of an Ämman or Schultheiss. For administrative purposes, the canton is divided into five bailiwicks, subdivided into 74 communes. As a member of the Swiss Confederation, Lunau makes third, and is one of the three directing cantons or corvées. Its contingent of troops is 5717 of money $1491. Pop. (1840) 122,782.

LUXEIN is in Switzerland exp. above can., and one of the three seats of the Swiss diet, on an activity at the W. extremity of Lake Lunau traversed by the Reuss, which here issues from the lake, and is crossed by four bridges of which three are covered, and curiously ornamented with pictures suspended from their roof. It is surrounded by castles of feudal watch-towers, and walled on the lake side. The town is well built, and the streets are regular, spacious, clean, and well paved. It has a town hall, Jewish college, now partly used for the lyceum, a Jewish church, parish church, with two ancient towers. Luxine convent, with handsome church, large town hospital, poorhouse, demery, arsenal, mint, casino &c., and, besides the college or lyceum, several well-conducted educational establishments. One of the most interesting monuments of Lunau is that erected to the Swiss guards who fell at Paris, in 1792, while defending the Tuilleries. The chief figure is a colossal lion, the whole, designed by Thorwaldsen, was executed by a sculptor of Constantinople. Lunau has some transit trade, but the manufactures are unimportant. They consist chiefly of cabinet-work, and the preparation and spinning of fine-silk for hosiery, gloves, ribbons, and neckcloths. A good deal of cotton, hemp, and flax, is also spun, and made into goods, which find their chief market in Italy. The environs of Lunau are rich in beautiful walks and splendid views. Pop. (1850) 10,068.

LUXEIN FROM THE CATHEDRAL BRIDGE.—From Steiner's Malheur in der Schweiz.

LUXON (Luxon) WASHINGTON, or VIK-WASHINGTON, the largest, and, in many respects, the most magnificent lake near the centre of Switzerland, 1406 ft.

above sea level, surrounded by cone Lunau, Solvay, Uri, and Unterwalden, and hence called the Lake of the Four Cantons. It is very irregular in its shape, being divided into three reaches, which, separated by narrow straits, cannot be seen from each other, and have consequently the appearance of distinct lakes. The whole length of the lake, measured on a line drawn through its centre from its W. to its E. extremity, is about 35 m. its breadth, measured on its lower branch, from S.W. to N.E., is 9 m. but, on an average, does not exceed 8 m. Its depth varies much, and gradually increases from W. to E. being near Lunau 800 ft. in parts to 1000 ft. It presents every variety of lake scenery, but the loveliest and largest reach, is comparatively gentle, but beautiful in the middle reach, it increases in boldness and grandeur in the upper reach where lofty mountains descend from over the lake, and descend in sheer precipices to its very edge, it is singularly sublime. Owing to the violent storms which suddenly burst over the lake its navigation is extremely dangerous. Steamers ply regularly upon it.

LUXIA (Barva) several places, Brazil particularly—1. A tn. prov. Sergipe, sometimes called Santa Gertrudes do Rio Real, on a height above the small river Guatarama, a tributary of the Real, 28 m S.W. Rio Christoval. It is one of the oldest towns in the country, but at present is very insignificant. Mandioca, rice millet, and haricots, are raised for home use, and cotton and tobacco for exportation. Pop. dist. 1890—2, A tn. prov. Alagoas, formerly called Alagoas do Norte, on a lake, N.W. Maceio. It has a church, and exports sugar and tobacco. Pop. dist. 1890—3, A tn. by S. Goyas, between the rivers Ponto Alto and Rio-Bartolomeu. The inhabitants have some gold washings, raise great numbers of cattle, and make excellent cheese and large quantities of quinine marmalade for exportation. Pop. dist. 8000.—4, A vil. and par. prov. Minas-Geraes, 1 bank Guandu or Velhas, 60 m N.W. Ouro Preto; with a church and an hospital. Around it millet, sugar-cane, and haricots, are raised and cattle are reared. Pop. dist. 6000.

LUXIN LUCIN or LIOCHIN a tn. Russia, gov. and 130 m N.W. Vitebsk between two lakes, on the Louja. It has a church, synagogue Jewish school, and some trade. Pop. about 1700.

LUXON or LUXON an Isl. Indian Archipelago, the largest of the Philippines. It lies between the Chinese Sea on the W., and the N. Pacific Ocean on the E. lat. 12° 30' to 18° 40' N. lon 119° 45' to 124° 10' E. Owing to the great irregularity of its shape it is scarcely possible to give an accurate idea of its length, but a line drawn through its centre N. to S., and continued thence to its N.E. extremity is about 550 m., its greatest breadth is about 130 m., but where its N. and S. portions are united by a narrow isthmus, it diminishes to 10 m. area estimated at 57,508 sq. m. It consists, as has been already mentioned, of two portions, connected by an isthmus. That on the N., constituting at least four-fifths of the whole, is of an oblong shape, and tolerably compact, the only large bays which break the continuity of its outline being those of Langayan on the W., and Manila on the S.W. the S., or rather S.E. portion, is extremely irregular, being deeply indented by the bays of Lamon on the W., Bagay on the S.W., St. Michael on the N., and Lagway and Alibay on the E. Its surface is very much diversified, but its most prominent features are two mountain chains, which, under the names of Sierra Madre and Cordillera de Caraballo, stretch for about 120 m. over the N. portion of the island, N. to S., in directions nearly parallel to each other; they meet near its centre, form a single chain, which proceeds in a S.E. direction, almost skirting the S. shore, and traversing the narrow isthmus, then turns E., spreads out over the S. portion of the island, and terminates magnificently towards the E. and S.E. coasts, in a series of lofty isolated heights. The Sierra Madre, which forms the W. chain, is not very elevated in the N., but, rising rapidly as it proceeds it, ultimately attains a height of at least 7000 ft. the Cordillera de Caraballo, or E chain, attains, in the N, a height of about 4000 ft., but has many summits which exceed 6000, and probably 7000 ft. Several of the loftiest heights are in the E. part of the island, where, situated near the coasts, they form a very conspicuous object at sea. Almost all these mountains are of volcanic origin, and many disastrous eruptions from them are on record. Among the three which are still in activity, Taal Alibay and Batuman, the last, in the E. of the island, is one of the best known from serving as a kind of light-house to navigators. The largest river of the island is the Agapi or Cagayan, which, formed by two streams from the central mountains, flows almost due N, through the province of Cagayan and, passing Lillo, up to which it is navigable for considerable vessels, falls into the sea at Apurri, after a course of about 180 m. Another river, of less magnitude, but more navigable importance, is the Pasig which issues out of the Lake of Bay by seven branches, and is navigable by vessels of 400 to 500 tons. One of the branches communicates with Manila, and is constantly covered with canoes and other small vessels, proceeding to it with the products of the interior and E. part of the island. The other principal rivers are the Abra, Agno, Pampanga, and Cebuano. By far the largest lake is that of Bay, which is above 100 m. in circuit, and contains the large island of Taim. Recovering the greater part of the drainage of the E. part of the N. division of the island by streams which are available for transport, it greatly facilitates the means of communication between the most important provinces. Next in magnitude, but not inferior in wild and remarkable beauty is the Lake of Bonobon or Taal with smoking volcano in its center. There are various other lakes, some of them, however, deserving particular notice, except Cagayan in the NE and Camran towards the W. Owing to the general fertility of the soil, the abundance of moisture, and a tropical temperature, the vegetation of Luzon is almost unimpeded in luxuriance. Even the loftiest heights are crowned with gigantic forests, while the plains and valleys are covered with the richest verdure, or occupied by the most abundant cultivated crops. Among these, the first place is due to rice, which is extensively grown both on the plains and on the hills, and yields moderate returns, not only furnishing the chief article of food to the inhabitants, but leaving a large surplus for export chiefly to China. Next in importance to rice is the sugar-cane, which is grown to a very large extent, and produces sugar of excellent quality particularly in the provinces of Pampanga, Bulacan, and Laguna. Other vegetable products of importance are the Abaco, a kind of banana, valuable for its fibre, which serve the purposes of hemp and are sometimes so fine in texture as to be mixed with silk and woven into cloth; various species of palm, cotton coffee, cinnamon, maize, and particularly tobacco, the cultivation of which, though somewhat obstructed by being made a Government monopoly, has long been extensive, and continues to increase. The animal kingdom contains none of the larger and fiercer animals, but abounds with those available for domestic purposes. Among others are the ox, originally imported from Spain and America, but now completely acclimated, and scattered in immense herds over almost all the provinces; the buffalo, which not only runs wild in the forest, but has been completely domesticated, and is invaluable both for agricultural purposes and for transport, the goat, common in almost every quarter, the deer, and the wild sow. Among other animals whose utility is less apparent, are numerous varieties of the monkey tribe. The mineral kingdom furnishes in considerable abundance both gold and iron. The former is washed from almost all the streams and, though no gold mines have yet been worked, there cannot be a doubt that a careful search would discover them. The latter is particularly abundant in many provinces, and more especially in Bulacan, where it is seen in many places piercing the surface, and might easily be worked to an almost unlimited extent. The other more important minerals are copper, coal, sulphur, marble, pumice, agates, lapers, and sardines. The mountains of the island, though necessarily of limited extent, are not undeserving of notice. They include cotton and silk tanneries, oranges, tobacco, leather, plain and varnished, embroidery wood and ivory carvings, mats, and carriages remarkable both for their elegance and their soft easy movements. Great skill is also displayed in building boats, canoes, and other large vessels. One of 600 tons, built by the natives, has made many voyages to Spain, and is considered the best ship belonging to the port of Manila. The principal articles of trade have already been incidentally mentioned. The inhabitants form a considerable variety of mixed races, among which the Negritos, many of whom still live in a savage state, and independent of Spanish authority, have the best title to be considered aborigines. The other principal races are Tagala or pure Indians, apparently of Malay origin, and mixed Indians formed by intermarriage with Chinese, Japanese, and Negroes. For administrative purposes, Luzon is divided into 19 provinces; its capital is Manila. Eight earthquakes have occurred since 1627, the most recent in July 1882. See M.A. MALLA. Pop. 2,176,980 — Mallat, Los Islas Philipinas, Boletín Oficial de Filipinas October 1892.

LLZSNA a vil. Hungary, co. Lipitan about 4 m. from Keneohl with a church, and a mineral spring. Pop. 1839.

LUZY, a tn. France, dep. Kivra, co. the Hainle, 40 m. E.S.E. Never with a trade in wood, charcoal, swine, and game. Pop. 1594.

LUZZARA, a tn. Parma, r. bank Po 4 m. N.N.E. Gnasalla, with two hospitals several public schools, manufacture of woollens, and a trade in corn and cattle. In 1793, a battle was fought here between the French and Austrians the latter commanded by Prince Eugene. Pop. 1000.

LUZZI a tn. and com. Naples, prov. Calabria-Citra dist. and 9 m. N. Cosentino, with seven churches, and an hospital. Pop. 3141.

LYARLE, a vil. Balochistan, prov. Las r. bank Poreally, 16 m. to 30 m. above its mouth, lat. 35 37' N., lon. 68 20' E. with a very limited salt-factory.

LYBSTER, a vil. Scotland on Galloway 18 m. S.W. Wick, near Amherst Bay with an Establishment and a Free church and a harbour capable of receiving vessels of 100 tons burthen. Pop. 460.

LYCHEN, a tn. Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. Potsdam, 46 m. N.W. Berlin, with a church, hospital, woollen and linen manufactures some fishing and a mill. P. 1938.

LYDBURY par. Eng. Salop, 1690 ac. Pop. 964.

LYDDE a decayed market in and par. England co. Kent. The town 3 m. S.W. New Romney has an elegant and spacious church an independent chapel, and a national school. Area of par. 13,568 ac. Pop. 1665.

LYDDEN par. Eng. Kent 1422 ac. Pop. 231.

LYDEAND two pars. Eng. Somerset—1, (Dishap), 4886 ac. P. 1866—2, (St. Laurence) 2697 ac. P. 711.

LYDFORD two pars. Eng. Somerset—1, (East), 706 ac. Pop. 214—2, (West) 1900 ac. Pop. 836.

LYDH 435 par. Eng. Salop 3668 ac. Pop. 188.

LYDLINCH, par. Eng. Dorset, 2448 ac. Pop. 407.

LYDOCH (Loch) a small lake, Perthshire, co. Perth and Argyll, about 8 m. W. Loch Rannoch. It is 7 m. long.

LYGUMKLOSTET, a vil. Denmark, 4500 and 46 m. N.N.W. Schleswig cap. bail on the Lokob. It owes its origin to a rich Christian monastery founded in the 12th century the church of which, a handsome Gothic edifice, is now used as the parish church, while its other buildings are used as public offices. The monastery was secularized at the Reformation, and its lands now form almost the entire bail with 17,000 ac. 46 geo. sq. m. Pop. 1200; had 2100.

LYK, a tn. E. Prussia, gov. and 62 m. S. Gumbinnen, cap. circle, near Lake Somman. It has a church castle, and gymnasium, and four general and two linen fairs. Pop. 2397. Area, 816 geo. sq. m. Pop. 84,998.

LYKAVA, a vil. Hungary Hither Danube, co. Lipitan, about 2 m. from Rosenberg. Near it are the ruins of an old castle, built by King Matthias Corvinus. Pop. 1928.

LYME-REGIS, a bur. & sport, market tn., and par. England, co. Dorset. The town between two rocky hills, 23 m. W. Exeter on the borders of Devonshire, is intersected by the Lyme, which rises 3 m. to the N. A portion of it being built on a steep declivity, presents a striking appearance and the coast being bold and rugged, and the surrounding scenery of the most picturesque description, delightful and extensive views are obtained on all sides. The streets are well paved and lighted with gas, and the houses, in general, are neat and respectable. It has an Established church, greatly increased by their narrowness, and the tall angular buildings by which they are lined. These, crowded together into the smallest possible space, exclude both sun and air, and in some measure account for, though they by no means excuse, the filthy and pestilential state in which they are perpetrated are more remarkable for their antiquity than for the beauty of their architecture. The cathedral, on the slope of the Fourvières, on the bank of the Saône, is in the Gothic style of the time of Louis XI and has four towers, two of which flank the W front, while the other two, shorter, but more massive, form the transepts.

Higher up the slope is the church of Notre Dame, an annexed edifice, occupying the site of the Forum Vetus, built by Trajan. Beside it is a lower or Belvedere, 830 ft. above the Saône. On the other side of the Fourvières is the church of St. Irénée, the second bishop of Lyons and companion of Polycarp, who had conversed with the apostles. The church itself is an uninteresting modern structure, but it stands on the grave of the martyred bishop, and has beneath it a crypt, in which Polycarp, at the age of 86, is said to have preached and then made of Christians, at a later period to have been massacred by orders of the Roman Emperor Septimius Severus, A.D. 202. A little above the cathedral is the Palais de Justice, and lower down, on the opposite bank of the Saône, is the church of the Abbey of Ainay beneath whose sacristy, and penetrating below the bed of the river are gloomy dungeons without light or air in which many of the early Christians were immured prior to martyrdom. Other noteworthy churches are the church of St. Nizier of the 14th century one of the largest in the town, that

1. Cathedral.
2. Palais de Justice.
3. Hospice de l'Antiquaille.
4. Hôtel de Ville.
5. Palais des Arts.
6. Hôtel, Florissant, and Hôtel de la Cour.
7. Hôtel de la Cour.
8. Hôtel de la Cour.
9. Hôtel de la Cour.
10. Hôtel de la Cour.
11. Hôtel de la Cour.
12. Hôtel de la Cour.
13. Hôtel de la Cour.
14. Hôtel de la Cour.
15. Hôtel de la Cour.
16. Hôtel de la Cour.
17. Hôtel de la Cour.
18. Hôtel de la Cour.
19. Hôtel de la Cour.
20. Hôtel de la Cour.
21. Hôtel de la Cour.
22. Hôtel de la Cour.
23. Hôtel de la Cour.
24. Hôtel de la Cour.
25. Hôtel de la Cour.
26. Hôtel de la Cour.
27. Hôtel de la Cour.
28. Hôtel de la Cour.
29. Hôtel de la Cour.
30. Hôtel de la Cour.
31. Hôtel de la Cour.
32. Hôtel de la Cour.
33. Hôtel de la Cour.
34. Hôtel de la Cour.
35. Hôtel de la Cour.
36. Hôtel de la Cour.
37. Hôtel de la Cour.
38. Hôtel de la Cour.
39. Hôtel de la Cour.
40. Hôtel de la Cour.
41. Hôtel de la Cour.
42. Hôtel de la Cour.
43. Hôtel de la Cour.
44. Hôtel de la Cour.
45. Hôtel de la Cour.
46. Hôtel de la Cour.
47. Hôtel de la Cour.
48. Hôtel de la Cour.
49. Hôtel de la Cour.
50. Hôtel de la Cour.
51. Hôtel de la Cour.
52. Hôtel de la Cour.
53. Hôtel de la Cour.
54. Hôtel de la Cour.
55. Hôtel de la Cour.
56. Hôtel de la Cour.
57. Hôtel de la Cour.
58. Hôtel de la Cour.
59. Hôtel de la Cour.
60. Hôtel de la Cour.
61. Hôtel de la Cour.
62. Hôtel de la Cour.
63. Hôtel de la Cour.
64. Hôtel de la Cour.
65. Hôtel de la Cour.
66. Hôtel de la Cour.
67. Hôtel de la Cour.
68. Hôtel de la Cour.
69. Hôtel de la Cour.
70. Hôtel de la Cour.
71. Hôtel de la Cour.
72. Hôtel de la Cour.
73. Hôtel de la Cour.
74. Hôtel de la Cour.
75. Hôtel de la Cour.
76. Hôtel de la Cour.
77. Hôtel de la Cour.
78. Hôtel de la Cour.
79. Hôtel de la Cour.
80. Hôtel de la Cour.
81. Hôtel de la Cour.
82. Hôtel de la Cour.
83. Hôtel de la Cour.
84. Hôtel de la Cour.
85. Hôtel de la Cour.
86. Hôtel de la Cour.
87. Hôtel de la Cour.
88. Hôtel de la Cour.
89. Hôtel de la Cour.
90. Hôtel de la Cour.
91. Hôtel de la Cour.
92. Hôtel de la Cour.
93. Hôtel de la Cour.
94. Hôtel de la Cour.
95. Hôtel de la Cour.
96. Hôtel de la Cour.
97. Hôtel de la Cour.
98. Hôtel de la Cour.
99. Hôtel de la Cour.
100. Hôtel de la Cour.

1. Hôtel de la Cour.
2. Hôtel de la Cour.
3. Hôtel de la Cour.
4. Hôtel de la Cour.
5. Hôtel de la Cour.
6. Hôtel de la Cour.
7. Hôtel de la Cour.
8. Hôtel de la Cour.
9. Hôtel de la Cour.
10. Hôtel de la Cour.
11. Hôtel de la Cour.
12. Hôtel de la Cour.
13. Hôtel de la Cour.
14. Hôtel de la Cour.
15. Hôtel de la Cour.
16. Hôtel de la Cour.
17. Hôtel de la Cour.
18. Hôtel de la Cour.
19. Hôtel de la Cour.
20. Hôtel de la Cour.
21. Hôtel de la Cour.
22. Hôtel de la Cour.
23. Hôtel de la Cour.
24. Hôtel de la Cour.
25. Hôtel de la Cour.
26. Hôtel de la Cour.
27. Hôtel de la Cour.
28. Hôtel de la Cour.
29. Hôtel de la Cour.
30. Hôtel de la Cour.
31. Hôtel de la Cour.
32. Hôtel de la Cour.
33. Hôtel de la Cour.
34. Hôtel de la Cour.
35. Hôtel de la Cour.
36. Hôtel de la Cour.
37. Hôtel de la Cour.
38. Hôtel de la Cour.
39. Hôtel de la Cour.
40. Hôtel de la Cour.
41. Hôtel de la Cour.
42. Hôtel de la Cour.
43. Hôtel de la Cour.
44. Hôtel de la Cour.
45. Hôtel de la Cour.
46. Hôtel de la Cour.
47. Hôtel de la Cour.
48. Hôtel de la Cour.
49. Hôtel de la Cour.
50. Hôtel de la Cour.
51. Hôtel de la Cour.
52. Hôtel de la Cour.
53. Hôtel de la Cour.
54. Hôtel de la Cour.
55. Hôtel de la Cour.
56. Hôtel de la Cour.
57. Hôtel de la Cour.
58. Hôtel de la Cour.
59. Hôtel de la Cour.
60. Hôtel de la Cour.
61. Hôtel de la Cour.
62. Hôtel de la Cour.
63. Hôtel de la Cour.
64. Hôtel de la Cour.
65. Hôtel de la Cour.
66. Hôtel de la Cour.
67. Hôtel de la Cour.
68. Hôtel de la Cour.
69. Hôtel de la Cour.
70. Hôtel de la Cour.
71. Hôtel de la Cour.
72. Hôtel de la Cour.
73. Hôtel de la Cour.
74. Hôtel de la Cour.
75. Hôtel de la Cour.
76. Hôtel de la Cour.
77. Hôtel de la Cour.
78. Hôtel de la Cour.
79. Hôtel de la Cour.
80. Hôtel de la Cour.
81. Hôtel de la Cour.
82. Hôtel de la Cour.
83. Hôtel de la Cour.
84. Hôtel de la Cour.
85. Hôtel de la Cour.
86. Hôtel de la Cour.
87. Hôtel de la Cour.
88. Hôtel de la Cour.
89. Hôtel de la Cour.
90. Hôtel de la Cour.
91. Hôtel de la Cour.
92. Hôtel de la Cour.
93. Hôtel de la Cour.
94. Hôtel de la Cour.
95. Hôtel de la Cour.
96. Hôtel de la Cour.
97. Hôtel de la Cour.
98. Hôtel de la Cour.
99. Hôtel de la Cour.
100. Hôtel de la Cour.

1. Hôtel de la Cour.
2. Hôtel de la Cour.
3. Hôtel de la Cour.
4. Hôtel de la Cour.
5. Hôtel de la Cour.
6. Hôtel de la Cour.
7. Hôtel de la Cour.
8. Hôtel de la Cour.
9. Hôtel de la Cour.
10. Hôtel de la Cour.
11. Hôtel de la Cour.
12. Hôtel de la Cour.
13. Hôtel de la Cour.
14. Hôtel de la Cour.
15. Hôtel de la Cour.
16. Hôtel de la Cour.
17. Hôtel de la Cour.
18. Hôtel de la Cour.
19. Hôtel de la Cour.
20. Hôtel de la Cour.
21. Hôtel de la Cour.
22. Hôtel de la Cour.
23. Hôtel de la Cour.
24. Hôtel de la Cour.
25. Hôtel de la Cour.
26. Hôtel de la Cour.
27. Hôtel de la Cour.
28. Hôtel de la Cour.
29. Hôtel de la Cour.
30. Hôtel de la Cour.
31. Hôtel de la Cour.
32. Hôtel de la Cour.
33. Hôtel de la Cour.
34. Hôtel de la Cour.
35. Hôtel de la Cour.
36. Hôtel de la Cour.
37. Hôtel de la Cour.
38. Hôtel de la Cour.
39. Hôtel de la Cour.
40. Hôtel de la Cour.
41. Hôtel de la Cour.
42. Hôtel de la Cour.
43. Hôtel de la Cour.
44. Hôtel de la Cour.
45. Hôtel de la Cour.
46. Hôtel de la Cour.
47. Hôtel de la Cour.
48. Hôtel de la Cour.
49. Hôtel de la Cour.
50. Hôtel de la Cour.
51. Hôtel de la Cour.
52. Hôtel de la Cour.
53. Hôtel de la Cour.
54. Hôtel de la Cour.
55. Hôtel de la Cour.
56. Hôtel de la Cour.
57. Hôtel de la Cour.
58. Hôtel de la Cour.
59. Hôtel de la Cour.
60. Hôtel de la Cour.
61. Hôtel de la Cour.
62. Hôtel de la Cour.
63. Hôtel de la Cour.
64. Hôtel de la Cour.
65. Hôtel de la Cour.
66. Hôtel de la Cour.
67. Hôtel de la Cour.
68. Hôtel de la Cour.
69. Hôtel de la Cour.
70. Hôtel de la Cour.
71. Hôtel de la Cour.
72. Hôtel de la Cour.
73. Hôtel de la Cour.
74. Hôtel de la Cour.
75. Hôtel de la Cour.
76. Hôtel de la Cour.
77. Hôtel de la Cour.
78. Hôtel de la Cour.
79. Hôtel de la Cour.
80. Hôtel de la Cour.
81. Hôtel de la Cour.
82. Hôtel de la Cour.
83. Hôtel de la Cour.
84. Hôtel de la Cour.
85. Hôtel de la Cour.
86. Hôtel de la Cour.
87. Hôtel de la Cour.
88. Hôtel de la Cour.
89. Hôtel de la Cour.
90. Hôtel de la Cour.
91. Hôtel de la Cour.
92. Hôtel de la Cour.
93. Hôtel de la Cour.
94. Hôtel de la Cour.
95. Hôtel de la Cour.
96. Hôtel de la Cour.
97. Hôtel de la Cour.
98. Hôtel de la Cour.
99. Hôtel de la Cour.
100. Hôtel de la Cour.

mitted to remain. To this remark there are, of course, exceptions, particularly in those quarters where affluence and luxury have fixed their seat; but as a general fact it cannot be denied that Lyons is one of the dirtiest abodes in Christendom. The best parts are the magnificent quays, with their finely planted walks, stately mansions, and capacious warehouses. Some of the squares, also are good. Among them may be mentioned the Place des Terreaux, facing which stands the Hôtel de Ville and in which De Thou and Cinq Mars were of St. Bonaventure the parish saint of Lyons, the church of the Chartreux surmounted by a superb dome, which from all quarters of the city, is seen rising conspicuously above the other buildings, the Église de l'Observance, Église des Antiquaires, Église St. Just, and Église St. Louis. The archiepiscopal palace, situated near the cathedral, is a large edifice of no architectural merit. In this palace a great number of Protestants were butchered in 1572, as a reward to St. Bartholomew.

In the Place des Terreaux stands the Hôtel de Ville, considered one of the finest edifices of the kind in France, though so very irregular in its style, that it cannot be said to belong to any particular order of architecture. It is an isolated square the façade of which is in the Place while two of its sides form each the commencement of a handsome street, and is surmounted by a dome of 164 ft. high. The library [Bibliothèque Publique] occupying part of the buildings of the college, on the Quai de Retz is the best provincial collection in France. It contains 14,400 volumes, and has, besides a rich collection of engravings and MSS. The Palais des Arts or Museum, facing the Place des Terreaux, occupies the ancient convent of St. Pierre, which dates from the earliest Christian times, and is a fine majestic edifice, more in the style of a palace than a monastery. It contains a picture-gallery, a cabinet of medals, a gallery for statues and another five ancient stupas, a depot of mechanical inventions for the fabrication of silks, with a library attached; a free school of beheaded and the Place Bellecour the latter not surpassed in beauty and extent by many in Europe. The public edifices of Lyons are not so numerous as its extent might lead us to anticipate, and not a few of those which excite the deepest design, and a large hall, used as the Exchange. The chief educational establishments are the Royal College, founded in 1519, situated on the Quai de Rhône, and, notwithstanding the many changes, both of name and nature, which it has undergone, still an important establishment, with a full complement of professors, and a numerous attendance of students, the Institution in Marcelline, affording a substantial gratuitous education to 230 sons of artisans; and a veterinary school, one of the completest and best managed establishments of the kind; connected with educational institutions, may be mentioned the Hémus Garden (Jardin des Plantes), near La Croix Rousse, which is the principal seat of manufacturing industry. Other notable establishments are numerous, and on a large scale. The most important are the Hôtel Dieu, the Maison de la Charité, a very extensive almshouse or porchouse, the Mont de Piété, occupying the Manufacture or demerit attached to the cathedral and the Hospice de l'Antiquaille, on the site of the ancient Roman palace or praetorium, where the celebrated Germanicus, and the emperors Claudius and Caligula were born, and now used partly as a lunatic and partly as a Magdalen asylum, and general penitentiary. There are several prisons—the New Prison an extensive building, well arranged; the Maison des Religieuses, now employed as a military prison, and the prison of Rozette, regarded as a model in its kind. Lyons, as the chief place of the 19th military division, has extensive barracks, in which a great number of troops are always kept, and is surrounded by a line of detached forts, which crown its different heights, ostensibly for the purpose of defence, but more probably as a means of repressing the turbulent spirit for which great masses of the population have long been notorious.

LYONS. THE CATHEDRAL AND BRIDGE OF SAINT-GEORGES. From Higher View in the North of France

As a manufacturing town Lyons early acquired, and has long maintained, a first place. For the silk manufactures it is the most important locality in the world: thus forms its great staple, and employs, directly and indirectly about 80,000 persons. The only other manufactures deserving of notice are hats, books, jewellery and liquors, besides dye-works, foun- dries, glass-houses, potteries, tanneries, breweries, and chemical works. Lyons is admirably situated for trade, on two navigable rivers, which make it a great entrepot both for the N and the S. It forms the common centre where the roads from Paris, Marseilles, Bordeaux, and Geneva, from Switzerland, Italy and Aveyron, all meet. It communicates with the Rhone by the Rhone and Rhine Canal while several other canals, branching off from its rivers, give it ample means of transport over a great part of the interior of the kingdom. More recently railways have been constructed which pass through it, and proceed, without interruption, from Paris to Avignon. The chief exports are raw silk, wine, brandy, oil, soap, flax, hemp, rice, salt, cotton, wool, coffee, dyes, earthenware, and timber and the exports, spun-silk and silk goods, ribbons, hats, straw bonnets, woollens, furs, skins, bones, coral, floor cloths, linens, paper, hemp, ironware, &c.

The origin of Lyons cannot be traced. When Caesar invaded Gaul it had become a place of some importance, and it ever after figures more or less in the subsequent history of the Roman empire. Several emperors, in succession, making it their occasional residence, and tying with each other in adorning it. It early received Christianity and towards the end of the second century numbered thousands of Christians among its inhabitants. Its first bishop, Pothinus, died a martyr in 197, and his successor, the celebrated Irenaeus, whose work against heresies is one of the most interesting literary remains of Christian antiquity died also a martyr in 302, and with him no fewer than 15,000 Christian converts. Lyons was afterwards sacked by the Huns and Visigoths, who levelled many of its noblest Roman structures with the ground. In the sixth century, it fell for a time into the hands of an army of Europeans from Spain, and suffered drastically; but recovered its prosperity under Charlemagne, on the dissolution of whose empire it became the capital of the kingdom of Provence. Subsequently, it fell under ecclesiastical domination, and was long governed, or rather misgoverned, by a succession of tyrannical and factious archbishops, who bore its name. Louis IX, who had been chosen arbitrator to settle some serious quarrels which had arisen among the inhabitants and their ecclesiastical superiors, managed to give a decision in his own favour, and Lyons was annexed to the crown of France. Its prosperity was much more promoted by temporal, than it had been by spiritual rule. It owes its new glory, and several of its finest edifices to Louis XIV. The revolution of 1793 brought fearful reverses along with it. The inhabitants, finding their industry paralysed, and their trade destroyed, had no difficulty in tracing these results to revolutionary violence, and reconstituted accordingly. The Convention let loose its forces upon them, and wholesale butcheries, of the most revolting description continued for many days to deluge the town with blood. Since that period, questions of an economical or rather socialist nature, have been keenly agitated, especially among the working-classes and the bitter fruits have already been more than once reaped, in the form of most alarming revolts. Numerous persons, whose names make an important figure in history were natives of Lyons. Among them may be mentioned the Roman emperors, Marcus Aurelius, Claudius, and Caracalla the celebrated general, Gaius Marius, nephew of Thebanus. St. Ambrose, St. Irenaeus, and Pope Clement IV. Pop. (1822) 156,169.

LYONS (Gulf of) See LION (Gulf of).
LYONSHEAL, par Eng. Hereford; 4656 ac. P 923.
LYPSE (Eolito) or TORN LIPSE, a market tn. Hungary, co. Soli, on the Wang about 5 m. from Ruzschi, with a castle and a paper-mill. Pop. 1801.

LYS (Fleuve, Lys) a river, which rises in France dep. Flandre-Calais, flows E.N.E. into Belgium, passes Mons and Courmieu, and at Ghent joins the Scheldt, total course about 130 m. of which about 95 m. are navigable.

LYR, or Eas a river Italy Piedmont which rises in the S. slope of the Pennine Alps, near Mount Rose, flows first S.E.E. then easterly to W. and joins L. bank Dora Baltes about 4 m. below Fort Bard, after a course of nearly 87 m.

LYSKOVA, or Luskova, a market tn. Russia, gov. and 45 m. E.S.E. Nijni Novgorod r. bank Volga with a castle, six churches of stone, manufactures of cloth and yarn, and a large annual fair for horses and cattle. Pop. 4000.

LYSS or Liss, par Eng. Hants 3679 ac. Pop. 748.
LYTCHET two pers. Eng. Dorset.—1. (Metracore), 3229 ac. Pop. 878.—2. (Minster), 3244 ac. Pop. 878.

LYTHAM a vil. and par England, co. Lancaster, 11 m. W. Preston. The villa, a fashionable bathing-place on the estuary of the Ribbles, contains a church R. Catholic chapel Methodist meeting-house, and several schools. Area of par 15,542 ac. Pop. 2698.

LYTHAN (St.) par Wales Glamorgan 1248 ac. P 135.
LYTHE, a vil. and par England co. York (Y. Riding), 4 m. W. N.W. Whitby. The villa is well built, and has an ancient church, a Wesleyan chapel, and a school. Area of par, 28,130 ac. Pop. 3292.

LYTTELTON (Port) a vil. New Zealand, Middle Island, Canterbury settlement, on Port Cooper.

M.

MAAD a market tn. Hungary, co. and 30 m. W.S.W. Zemplin, dist. Tokay, for the celebrated wines of which it is the central locality, being visited at the season of the vintage by numerous wine-dealers from distant quarters. It has a bathing establishment and stone quarry. Pop. 5644.

MAARSDIJK a vil. Holland, prov. and 5 m. N.W. Utrecht, 1 bank Vecht with a Protestant and a R. Catholic church, three schools, and manufactures of vinegar and paper.

MAARSDIJK a vil. Holland, prov. and 6 m. N.E. Utrecht, with a church and school. Pop. (agriculture), 767.

MAARTENSDIJK (St.) or Smeekens, a vil. Holland, prov. Zealand, 141, and 7 m. W. by N. Tholen, with a most Protestant church, a school, a tannery, a saw and a corn mill. Pop. (agriculture), 1897.

MAAS, or MAUSE, a river Netherlands. See MUSE.

MAAS (Taz. New) [Dutch, De Huisse Maas], a river, Holland, a name given to the arm of the Merwede, prov. S. Holland, which unites with the lake at Krumpen, flows W past Rotterdam, Delfhaven, Schiedam, and Vlaardingen, is divided into two branches by the island of Rozenburg reunites below Brielle, and falls into the N. sea. — MAAS (Taz. Old), [Dutch, De Oude Maas], the name given to the L. arm of the Merwede, prov. S. Holland. Part of its waters are drawn off through the Dorische KII to Holland-diep. It flows past Old Beyerland, sends off a further portion of its waters through the Spuis to the Harigvliet, and unites with the New Maas near Goorvliet.

MAARLAND.—1 A former department, Holland, which included the present prov. of S. Holland, and a small portion of N. Brabant. — 2, A vil. Holland, prov. S. Holland, 7 m. W by N Rotterdam. It is a pleasant-looking place, and has a Protestant church, to which is attached a beautiful monastery, a R. Catholic church, and two schools. Saw bark, and walk mulls, some salmon-fishing and duck shooting, and a limited trade in cheese and grain. Pop. 1738.

MAASLUIS, or MAASLUISZ, a fishing tn. Holland, prov. S. Holland, 10 m. W Rotterdam, on the bay Maas. It has most town and communal houses, two Protestant churches, a R. Catholic church and a synagogue, an orphan hospital and four schools. The herring and cod fishing are the chief employments, though not now carried on to the extent they were formerly. Still the excellent harbour is annually frequented by above 400 vessels. There are also three building yards, two sail-makers, a tannery, rope-walk brewery and herring-curing establishment. Pop. 4096.

MAASTRICHT a tn. Netherlands. See MASTRICHT.

MAZE, par Eng Cornwall 2569 ac. Pop. 616.

MAZETHORPE (St Mary and St Istan) united par Eng Lincoln 2805 ac. Pop. 430.

MABOOM a tn W Africa country of the Timmanees, lat. 8° 33' N lon 11° 52' W on the route from Bokale to Palaba. It consists of an old and new town at the distance of about 2 m from each other the former inhabited by Timmanees, and the latter by a few families of Mandingoes. The country around is thickly wooded but the farms are well cleared and the pastures rich and amply stocked with cattle, sheep, and goats.

MAHYN (N.), par Eng Cornwall 4067 ac. Pop. 773. MACAGUA, a river Brazil, prov. Rio-de-Janeiro which rises in the serras das Aguas-Compidas, at the N. extremity of serras dos Orgaos, and flows W S W to the Bay of Niteroi a part of the Bay of Rio-de-Janeiro. It receives several affluent and, in the lower part of its course, has a channel 2 m. wide, but, owing to a bar across it, cannot be entered by vessels of any size, excepting at flood-tide.

MACAEL, a tn. Spain Andalusia, prov. and 36 m. N E Almeria. It is very poorly built, has a large parish church, a primary school, and some mines of iron, and quarries of beautiful white marble. Pop. 1154.

MACAIE a tn and seaport, Brazil, prov. and 100 m. E N E. Rio-de-Janeiro on a river of the same name, where it falls into the Atlantic. It is a dull-looking place, with ill-furnished and unpaved streets, lined with mud houses, which, for the most part, have thatched roofs. The harbor, however, is excellent, and is defended by a fort. Drigs can come close up to the town, and vessels of larger size find secure and commodious anchorage below the bar between the mainland and the island of Santa Anna. The trade, chiefly in coffee, sugar, dye-wood, deals, and timber is extensive.

MACAO, a tn. and par Portugal, prov. Beira-Baixa, com. and 23 m. E S E. Thomar. It has manufactures of coarse woollen stuffs. Pop. 3180.

MACAO [pronounced, Macao], a seaport tn and Portuguese settlement, China, prov. Quang-tung, irregularly built on a high peninsula that terminates the island of Macao to the S. and joined to it by a narrow isthmus N. from the town, lat. 22° 10' 30" N lon 118° 30' E. It occupies a slope gradually descending to the sea, backed by a range of lofty hills, and having an extensive campo or plain stretching E. It is nearly surrounded with water, and is open to the sea-breezes on every side. The houses occupied by the foreign population are large, roomy and open, and the shops are numerous. There are several R. Catholic churches, a semite-house, in the middle of the town, and both a Portuguese and a Chinese custom-house, several schools, and a female orphan asylum. The quay or 'Praça Grande' is commodious, forms a pleasant drive, and is protected by a battery, several others crowning the adjacent heights. Good water is abundant, and the markets are well supplied with meat, poultry, fish, vegetables, and fruits of various kinds. The harbour is formed between the peninsula, on which the town stands, and the large island Two-Hen-san, to the W; it is narrow at the entrance, but has 20 and 21 ft. at low water, close to Fort St. Jago, situated on the E. point, and from hence, along the E. shore, to the town the depths continue nearly the same. Macao is considered the healthiest residence in S. E. Asia. Near it, in a beautiful garden, is the grave of the Portuguese poet, Camoens, who has composed the Lusad. The settlement is ruled by a governor aided by an elective senate, composed of two judges and three aldermen who preside, alternately for a month. The Chinese inhabitants are governed by magistrates of their own. The settlement is about 8 m. in circuit and its limits landward, are defined by a barrier wall stretching across the isthmus, where a guard of Chinese troops is stationed, to prevent foreigners from trespassing on the Inner Land. The Portuguese settled at Macao about the year 1550, when the Emperor of China granted them permission to reside on a rock or peninsula, by their stipulating to have a harbor, with a fort, which defends both it and the passage of the river; and besides on a considerable trade in rice, cotton, and fine timber for cabinet-work. The cane and various kinds of fruits grow in the district, in great abundance, without cultivation. Pop. 6000.

MACARSCA, or MACARSKA, a tn. Austria, Dalmatia, circle and 29 m. S E. Spalatro, on a bay of the Adriatic, near the mouth of the Karakum. It is built at the foot of a chain of hills, behind which rises the lofty summit of Mount Biorhore. has a parish church, and used to carry on a considerable trade with the Turks, but, in 1815 and 1816, the plague having carried off the half of the inhabitants, the trade almost ceased and has never recovered. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture and fishing. Pop. 1800.

MACARTHUR, three rivers, Australia, one of which flows into the Gulf of Carpentaria. N coast, opposite Sir Edward Pellew's Islands, about lat. 15° 40' S. The second is in Griggs Land, Victoria, S. Australia. has its sources in the Australian Alps, and joins the Perry previously to the latter falling into Lake Victoria. The third, in Co. Gloucester New S. Wales, is an affluent of the Gloucester river.

MACARTHUR'S ISLES, a group of four low, bushy islets, off N.E. coast Australia, about lat. 11° 40' S., lon. 148° E. They are encircled by a reef more than 2 m. long and, on the S.E. separated from Bird Isles by a channel about 4 m. wide.

MACASSAR, MAKASSAR, or MAKASSAR, a town, Indian Archipelago, near the S.W. end of the S.W. peninsula of Celebes, cap. of the Dutch prov. of same name, defended by Fort Rotterdam. Macassar the capital of the native state of same name, was destroyed by the Dutch in 1669 and the present town called by the Dutch Tjandjaring was built on its site. It lies near the mouth of a river lat. 5° 8' S., lon. 119° 35' E. and is a regularly built, pleasant place the streets are broad, planted with trees, and cross each other at right angles, and the whole place has much of a Dutch aspect.

A STREET IN THE MALAY QUARTER, MACASSAR.
From Journal of the Malay Archipelago, Vol. 1, p. 100.

It is surrounded with walls, outside of which are the three suburbs of the Dutch village, the Malay village, and the Bakhro or New village. Macassar is reckoned a healthy place, the climate being almost as free from rain as that of Lima. It was made a free port in December 1846, and carries on a considerable trade, both coasting and with China. Pop. (1846) 20,000. The Dutch province or district, conterminous with the adjoining islands, a population of 150,000.

—The GOVERNMENT of Macassar includes all the Dutch possessions in the island of Celebes, and a population of 310,000.

MACASSAR, GOA, or GOACH, a native state, lat. Celebes, S.W. peninsula, bounded N. by the Dutch province of Macassar, E. by the State of Southata, S. by the Java Sea. It is in a badly decayed condition. Its climate is healthy and its soil fertile, cattle, horses, and rice are the chief products still not in sufficient quantity to meet the home consumption. Salt is obtained from natural salt-panns, and the taking of trepang and turtle is carried on. Macassar was at one time a powerful kingdom, having dominion over the greater part of Celebes, and also over numerous neighbouring islands. The Portuguese landed on it in 1612, and, in 1666, the Dutch compelled the sultan to surrender of the district they now possess. The kingdom suffered greatly from the repeated attempts of the natives to expel the Dutch, whose power was only thus more firmly fixed. Pop. about 70,000.

MACASSAR (STRAIT OF) the passage between the island of Borneo and Celebes; lat. 5° 20' S. to 1° N. varying in breadth from about 200 to 70 m. It contains the Islands of Pulo Laut, Balahegan or Little Paternosters, Pamarang, and numerous islets and rocks.

MACAUBA, a town in Brazil prov. and 870 m. W.S.W. Bahia, 10 m. from the source of the São Francisco, with a church and a primary school.

MACAYO or MACICO, a town and seaport, Brazil, cap. prov. Alagoas, 130 m. S.W. Pernambuco with three churches, a Latin and primary school, and a harbour, admitting coasting vessels only with anchorages for larger vessels below the bar. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in cultivating cotton, sugar-cane, and provisions, in boat building, distilling and trading in rum. Pop. of dist., 6000.

MACLAI a town in E. coast Africa, on the Mozambique, which supplies itself into the sea about 20 m. N. Sofala, about lat. 19° 15' S. The woods in the vicinity abound with elephants, and the river with crocodiles.

MACCARTHY'S ISLAND See GAMBIA.

MACCHERIO or MACCHERO a village and town, Italy Lombardy prov. Milan, dist. Monza, near the Lambro, with a church. Pop. 1000.

MACCHIAVALFORTORE, a town in Naples, prov. Salerno, dist. and about 16 m. E. Campobasso, with four churches and an hospital. Pop. 2000.

MACCLESFIELD a market town and port near England, Cheshire, 16 m. S. by E. Manchester on the North-Western and North Staffordshire Railways, a canal unites those of the Grand Trunk and the Peak Forest and on both sides of the Bolton which is here crossed by a wooden and two stone bridges. It is pleasantly situated near the S. extremity of the forest of same name, and consists of four principal streets which meet in the market place, and are clean well paved and lighted with gas. In consequence of an act obtained in 1814, numerous improvements have been made, including among others the introduction of an ample supply of good water. Among the principal buildings are the church of St. Michael, an ancient structure, founded by Eleanor Queen of Edward I. in 1178, and recently modernized by extensive repairs and embellishments. St. Peter's, in the early English style and St. Paul's, with a tower and spire, 141 ft. high, and a fine organ. Four other churches belonging to the Establishment, places of worship for the Independent Wesleyan Primitive New Connection and Association Methodists Friends, Baptists, Socinians, R. Catholics and Moravians a handsome and spacious guildhall recently erected, in the Grecian style, and containing court assembly and concert rooms, a subscription library of 20,000 volumes, a theatre, large almshouse &c. The principal educational establishment is the free grammar-school to which a commercial school has recently been added, and there are also national and other schools, a school of design, a museum, a mechanics institute and various charitable endowments. The staple manufacture is silk, in all its various branches, including about 70 mills employed in throwing silk and numerous establishments in which broad silks, handkerchiefs, and similar goods are made. The cotton manufacture has also made considerable progress, and there are several large dye-houses, foundries, and breweries. Another article made to a large extent is buttons. In the vicinity are extensive coal-works, and stone and slate quarries. Besides two weekly markets, there are five annual fairs. Macclesfield returns two members to Parliament. Pop. (1851) 39,048.

MACDUFF a burgh of barony and seaport in Scotland, 60 and 1 m. E. Beaufort within the parish, but of which it is included, at the mouth of the Don, in the Moray Firth. The river separates the town from Beaufort and is crossed here by a bridge, has a small jail, townhall, Established and Free church, a school, library, mill and a bathing establishment; manufactures of ropes, sails, and twine, and fish-curing. It exports cattle, grain, and fish, and imports lime, coal, timber, and bones for manure. Pop. 2597.

MACEDONIA, an ancient territory, Europe, bounded N. by the chain of the Balkan, W. that of Pindus, S. Mount Olympus and Olympus and the Archipelago, and E. Kar-Bu or Maço. It is now included in the Turkish prov. Roumelia, and forms the western end of Ulsay, Shingandil, Mossur, Salendia, and part of Dask of Gallicia.

MACELLA, a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. Turin, prov. and about 3 m. from Fenerio, l. bank Chisone, here crossed by a wooden bridge. It has two churches, an old castle, and charitable endowment; and trade in corn, cattle, dairy produce, and silk. Pop. 1900

MACERATA, a co. Italy, cap. delegation of same name, 31 m. S. Ancona, on a lofty eminence above the Fosse, midway between the Apennines and the sea. It is walled, has six gates, one of which, Porta Fie, is in the form of a triumphal arch, streets, in general, straight, spacious, and close, and lined with handsome houses and several palaces. The square, in the centre of the town though irregular in shape, is of great extent, and contains the cathedral, the provincial palace and theatre. There are also six other churches, and 18 convents—five for females. Macerata is the see of a bishop, and has a court of first resort, and an appeal court for delegations Macerata, Urbino—Pesaro, Ancona, Ascoli, Camerino, and Fermo. The university was suppressed, but has been replaced by one of a secondary description, in which theology, philosophy and medicine are taught. There are also a museum, a library, and two literary societies. Immediately outside the gate is a stately palace, erected for the national game of gallone, and said to be the largest in existence; and, about 1 m. beyond, is the church of Madonna della Virtù, regarded as one of Bramante's best designs. Pop. 16,000. —The MACERATINO is bounded N. by deleg. Ancona, W. Urbino—Pesaro and Perugia, S.W. Camerino, S.E. Fermo, and E. the Adriatic; greatest length, E. to W., about 54 m., greatest breadth, 30 m., area, 73 sq. m. Its climate is temperate and healthy, mountains, well wooded lower slopes covered with a fertile soil, well cultivated, and producing, in abundance, corn, fruit, and hemp. Many cattle also are reared, and there is a considerable export of wool, honey, and wax. It is divided into five districts—Macerata, the capital, Fabriano, Recanati, Loreto, and San-Severino. Pop. 220,180

MACERATA FELTRINA or MACERATA DI MONTE FELTRO a co. Italy, The Marches, 11 m. N.W. Urbino. It is the see of a bishop, and has numerous rivers.

MACETOW, a vil. and com. W. Prussia, 1991 sq. Pop. 796

MACGILLICUDDY ROCKS, a picturesque mountain range, Ireland, co. Kerry extending for 19½ m. from the lakes of Killarney on the E. to Lough Carra on the W. It is the loftiest mountain-range in Ireland Carnatna, the highest peak, rises 2404 ft. above sea-level

MACHAIR, two parts Scot. Aberdeen —1 (New) 8380 ac. Pop. 1998—2 (Old) 8 m. by 4 m. Pop. 21,767

MACHEOUL [Latin Machocobus] a co. France, dep. Loire-inférieure, 20 m. S.W. Nantes, on the Falloon, at a short distance from the extensive forest of its name. It was originally the capital of the duchy of Retz, possessed a strong castle, and was otherwise well fortified, and defended by a moat. Both castle and city were demolished by Louis XIV. The present town is miserably built, streets, though tolerably wide, irregularly laid-out, ill paved, and rendered at once disgusting, and almost impassable, by the accumulations of garbage. It has a trade in horses and cattle, for which several fairs are held. Pop. 1763

MACHELLEN, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. E. Flandres, 15 m. S.W. Ghent with a distillery, two saw-mills, and some fax and woolen manufactures. Pop. 2672

MACHEN, par Eng. W. Somerset, 5168 ac. P. 3210

MACIANA, an isl. Brazil, in the mouth of the Amazon, on the equator, about 20 m. long, by 7 m. broad.

MACIAR, a co. U. States, Maine, 161 m. E. by N. Augusta, on river of same name. It has a courthouse jail, and numerous mills. Vessels of 250 tons ascend the river all down to the town. Pop. 1351

MACKEOWA, a co. Russia. See MACKOWA.

MACKEYN, a vil. and com. a contributory par. hon. co., and par. K. Wales, and 22 m. E. N. E. Montgomery, about 2 m. from L. bank Dery. It is beautifully and picturesquely situated, fertility and well built, has a townhall or manor-house, a handsome church, independent Calvinistic, and Wesleyan Methodist chapels; an endowed free school, and a day and national schools; a set of almshouses, some charities, a book society, and news-room. Some manufacture of flannels is carried on. The Dery is navigable to within 2 m. of the town, and affords a means of carrying on some export and import trade the former consisting of bark, oak timber, iron-ore, &c.; the latter rice, wheat, coal, oil, limestone, kites, and groceries. Mackyneth is supposed to have been a Roman station. Pop. hon. 1865. Area of par, 1486 ac. P. 1460

Vol. II.

MACKENZIE ISLANDS, a cluster of small isls. N. Pacific Ocean, belonging to the Carolines group, lat. 10° N. lon. 140° E.

MACKENZIE RIVER —1 A large river British America, N.W. territory. Rising in the N. extremity of Great Slave Lake, it flows first W., then N., and finally N.W., and, after a course of about 750 m., falls into the Arctic Ocean by numerous mouths, the most W. of which is in lat. 68° 50' N. lon. 106° 37' W. Its principal affluents are the Mountain, the Peel and that by which it receives the waters of Great Bear Lake. It has a number of forts along its banks. It was discovered and navigated by Alexander Mackenzie, in 1793.—2, A river, E. Australia, lat. 28° 36' S. lon. 149° E.; flows N.E., through a deep and narrow valley. Near its mouth, fine coal has been found.

MACKINAO, a vil. L. State, Michigan, on an isl. of same name, 265 m. N.W. Detroit. It is defended by a fort, carries on a brisk trade in furs, has a safe and commodious harbour, and annually exports immense quantities of fish.

MACKORTH, par Eng. Derby, 5400 ac. P. 510

MACLEAY, a river, New S. Wales, flowing S.E., separating co. Macquarie and Dudley, and falling into the Pacific Ocean, 65 m. N. Port Macquarie. It gives its name to the fertile districts now formed into the co. of Dudley, Saxby, Raleigh, and Graham.

MACLEOD, a lake and fort, British N. America, W. territory lat. 55° N. lon. 132° 15' W. It is about 75 m. in circumference, and abounds in fish.

MACLONIGH par Ire. Cork 3608 ac. P. 1192

MAGNAEN LOUGH, a lake, Ireland, co. Fermanagh and Leitrim, 11 m. W. by E. Enniskillen, greatest length 4½ m. average breadth, 1 m. It contains several small islands

MACNEILL'S HARBOUR, an inlet, Vancouver's isl. on the coast of which are islands of cork, which have been partially worked. lat. 50° 30' N. lon. 127° 17' W.

MACMILLER, a vil. lat. Carolina, div. S. Carolina, par. Alghero, E. N. E. Cagliari. It has four churches the remains of an old castle, a primary school, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, and bed-covers, and a trade in cattle and cheese. Pop. 1650

MACON, a city, U. States, Georgia, 30 m. W. S. W. Milledgeville, chiefly on r. bank Ocmulgee here crossed by a bridge 889 ft. long. It has a courthouse, jail, an elegant market-house, five churches, a college, three academies, two schools, and three printing-offices. A great deal of cotton is shipped here. Steam boats ply on the river. Pop. 3927

MACON [Latin, Matrona], a co. France, dep. Saône-et-Loire, in a fertile dist. r. bank Saône, 53 m. E. Chalons. It is irregularly built, with narrow ill-formed streets, but has several handsome modern buildings. The ramparts have been levelled, and converted into agreeable walks. The quay is broad, high, and of great length, and is lined by several good houses and cafés. A bridge of 12 arches, sometimes attributed to Caesar, but not earlier in date than 197, connects the town with that of St. Laurent, on the opposite bank, in dep. Ais. The principal edifices are the military, Maison de St. Charles, Hospice de la Providence, Hôtel de Ville, containing a small theatre and public library and Hôtel de la Préfecture, formerly the bishop's palace. The manufactures are woollen covers, cloaks, agricultural and other implements, masks, earthenware, &c. There is also a fine copper foundry. The trade is in wine (Burgundy) corn, flour, hops, ship timber, cattle, &c. Macon possesses courts of first resort and commerce, an agricultural and scientific society, a royal college, and primary normal school. Pop. 1821, 21,655

MACONNAIS (the) [Latin, Aduca Matronensis], a co. and small dist. France, which depended on prov. Burgundy, and now forms around Macon, in dep. Saône-et-Loire.

MACOSQUIN, par Ire. Derry, 17,728 ac. P. 5025

MAÇOT, a vil. and com. France, dep. Savoie, prov. Tarentaise, l. bank Isère, S. N. E. Montiers; with a modern church, a courthouse, and a charitable endowment. Mines of argentine lead are worked in the vicinity. Pop. 1247.

32

MACOTERA a tn. Spio, Leon port and 24 m. from Salamanca; with a church, townhouse, prison, and primary school; manufacture of coarse woollens, and a trade in corn and wine. Pop. 1960.

MACQUARIE—A. A. report to New S. Wales, cap. co. of same name, at the mouth of the Hastings 196 m. N. E. bydney lat. 51° 25' S., lon. 152° 57' E. (n). It stands on a gentle ascent, and is well built, houses generally of brick streets broad, straight, coated with dark red gravel and flanked like garden walks. A tall square church-tower is conspicuously prominent on the highest part of the town. A group of magnificent trees encircle Fort Macquarie, and extends along the banks of the river. No vessel drawing more than 9 ft. water is able to enter the harbour with safety but there is good anchorage outside.——The coast, between lat. 51 and 53° S. and lon. 152° and 153° E. is of a triangular form, about 96 m. in length S. W. to E. and 40 m. in width at the base, diminishing to less than 10 m. towards the apex area, 2800 sq. m. It is highly covered with good timber and free from mountains. has several pretty high mountains and in some parts, extensive plains covered with beautiful verdure, and many large flats covered with high grass.——

2. A large river, New S. Wales, formed by the Fish and Campbell rivers, at the N. E. extremity of Bathurst co., from which it flows with a singularly tortuous course, in a N. W. direction, passing through the co. Wellington and it ultimately flows into the Macquarie marshes, about lat. 30° 50' S. its entire course being about 230 m. exclusive of minute streams. In some places, it is broad and deep in others, much obstructed by falls.——3. A lake or arm of the sea, New S. Wales co. Northumberland communicating with the ocean by a narrow inlet. It is of a very irregular form having several long narrow bays extending into the land on all sides its entire length may be about 18 m.——4. An uninhabited lat. S. Pacific Ocean lat. (N. point) 54° 19' S. lon. 156° 56' E. (n). It is high (highest peak 1200 to 1500 ft. above sea level) and much broken apparently covered with verdure although a long tufted rank grass is the only plant to be met with near its shores. It is almost entirely covered with sea-birds. At a distance of 2½ m. from the shore, no wind was found with a line of 500 fathoms.——5. A port, N. side of New Zealand, 4° W. coast, Forerunners Point lat. 46° 20' S. lon. 168° 10' W. (n).——6. A harbour Van Diemen's Land, W. coast lat. 42° 11' 30' S. lon. 145° 10' E. it extends inland, in a S. E. direction, for about 30 m., diverging at its head right and left into two extensive coves or creeks, termed Birch's Inlet and Kelly's Basin. The entrance, which is very narrow is formed by a moderately high bluff named Cape Corvelli, lat. 42° 10' 45' S. lon. 145° 16' 30' E. on the S. shore, and on the N. by a long sandy beach. Nearly midway on the mouth of the harbour, there is a small island or reef of rocks. The S. entrance, which is the best, is over a bar that extends for ½ m. outside the narrow part of the entrance, and has only 9 ft. water on which the tide flows with great rapidity. Inside the depth is from 8 to 12 fathoms but there are extensive sandy shoals for more than 4 m. among which are narrow channels, shallowing in some places, from 15 to 7 ft. at low water. Farther inland the water deepens to 10 to 20 and 25 fathoms for several miles.——7. A river Van Diemen's Land, which rises in the N. E. part of Campbell's district about lat. 42° 10' S. flows W. and N. W., receives Lake and in some few points extends even to the sea shore. According to the natives, there are four great forests in the island—Alamassota, on the E. shores, Bonmaru, and Estemini kiatra, on the W., but these units, and are not separated by open tracts. It is said that, W. of Ankova there is a tract of forest, a week's journey in width, and wholly uninhabited.

MACRI a tn and gulf, Asiatic Turkey. See MAKR.

MACRINITZA a tn European Turkey Thessaly about 15 m. E. Trikala with dye-works, for dyeing thread, in which there is a considerable trade. Pop. 2000.

MAIRONEY see Ind. Cork. 8571 se. Pop. 8001.

MAIRONIS [anc. Marcia or Helmia] a tn Grecian Archipelago off E. E. extremity of Livadia, from which it is about 5 m. distant greatest length, N. to S., 8 m. average breadth, little more than 2 m. It remains entirely in a state of nature, and has no appearance of having ever been inhabited.

MACROOM or MACRUMP a market tn. and par. Ireland, co. Cork. The town, 21 m. W. Cork on the Sullivan, in an open vale, is approached, on all sides, through a line of valleys, and has a recently-erected market-house, a neat courthouse, with a bell-tower attached, a constabulary police barracks, a small but neat parish church, a spacious R. Catholic chapel with a lofty tower, a dispensary, several schools, a temple in corn and in pigs, which are slaughtered here and then sent to Cork. Macroom castle was the birth-place of Admiral Sir William Penn, father of the founder of Pennsylvania. Pop. 8719. Area of par. 12 867 ac. Pop. 7704.

MACUGNAGA (Latin Macugnaga) a vil and com. Italy Piedmont, div. Novara, 10 m. W. S. W. Donno d'Ossola with a large and handsome church, mines of antiferrous and aspidiferous iron, contained in a matrix of quartz. P. 611.

MACULLAH a tn Arabia. See MAKALLAH.

MADA (NAG), a market tn. Hungary on Bachelos, 51 m. S. E. Zemplin with a church, and a yearly market. P. 1618.

MADAGASCAR, a great Isl. Indian Ocean, generally considered as appertaining to Africa. From Cape Amber, its most N. point, lat. 11° 57' S. to Cape St. Mary its most S. lat. 25° 45' S. it extends nearly 1000 m. in length, its longest axis being inclined to the meridian about 18° E. of N. The S. coast runs in the direction here indicated, for 500 m. with little deviation. Cape East, called Ngouel by the natives in lon. 50° 55' E. and Cape St. Vincent, lon. 48° 10' E., exhibit its extremes of longitude but the greatest breadth of the island measured at right angles to its greatest length, hardly exceeds 850 m. and its average breadth cannot much exceed 240 m. Area estimated at 240 000 sq. m. From the nearest shores of Africa (at Mozambique) Madagascar is distant 106 gns. m. from the Cape of Good Hope, 600 m. from the Mauritius, 166 m. from the Isle of Bourbon, 150 m. from Reunion.——As the interior of the island has been little explored by Europeans, our information respecting its aspect and character is still far from being accurate and complete. The often repeated statement, that a chain of high mountains runs through the whole length of the island, appears to want evidence. It seems certain however, that a tract of elevated land, rising by successive terraces, divided by chains of hills, extends N. to S. throughout the island, and that the N. half, at least, of this tract, assumes a mountainous character. It is only on the S. E. extremity of the island, near Cape St. Vincent, that the high land reaches the sea, whereby also the coast is bordered by a broad sea of low and level land sometimes below the level of the sea from which later it is protected only by the beach thrown up by the surf. This sea of low land has on the E. side of Madagascar a width varying from 20 to 50 m. on the W. of double that extent it is over-spread with marshes, and is the chief seat of the malignant fevers for which the island is so unhappily notorious. Within the marshy flats rises a chain of hills, which is, indeed, but the external declivity of the elevated country, and within this again, another similar range indicates the ascent to a still higher tract. The most elevated land of Madagascar as yet known to Europeans is included in the kingdom of Ankova nearly in the middle of the island and supposed to be from 4000 to 5000 ft. above sea-level. It is nearly surrounded by mountains—those of Angoro on the E. and Ankarakra on the S. W. being reckoned among the highest of the island, and attaining an absolute height perhaps of 9000 to 10 000 ft. The central plateau seems also to be surrounded on all sides by a belt of thick forest, which reaches down to the maritime plain, and in some few points extends even to the sea shore. According to the natives, there are four great forests in the island—Alamassota, on the E. shores, Bonmaru, and Estemini kiatra, on the W., but these units, and are not separated by open tracts. It is said that, W. of Ankova there is a tract of forest, a week's journey in width, and wholly uninhabited.

Rivers—The rivers of Madagascar are exceedingly numerous indeed, there is hardly another country in the world so copiously watered yet few of them offer, even to a moderate extent, the advantages of internal navigation. They fall rapidly from the highland of the interior, and then spread into lakes in the low maritime regions, so that they reach the sea-shore with slow and feeble currents, unable to overcome the tides and currents of the ocean, hence their mouths, particularly on the W. coast, are all barred. On the N. W. side of the island, where the elevated coast is broken into inlets and deep bays, the rivers which fall into these are often accessible, and navigable in boats to some distance. The largest of these rivers is the Betalohaka, which falls into the Bay of Bombetoka, nearly in lat. 16° S. This inlet about 30 m deep, is divided into two parts by a promontory on its E side the lower portion, towards the sea, forms a secure and capacious harbour capable of holding the largest fleets, the upper portion is a shallow lagoon, navigable only by vessels of little draught. Boats can ascend the Betalohaka to a distance of 160 m. At this point, the main stream, coming from the high mountains in the S.E. is joined by the Ikupa, which rises further S in the same chain flows round Tananarivo the capital of the kingdom, and then waters, in its descent, the beautiful and fertile valley of Betanakitatra. Whenever civilization shall resume its progress in Madagascar the valley of the Betalohaka will soon become the wealthiest and most important portion of the island. Of the Sambaho, S of Cape St. Andrew and said to be a great river we know but little, the Manantra, falling into a bay of the same name N of Morondava, (lat. 20° 30' S.) is likewise noted for its apparent magnitude. The Yonghe lake, flowing into St. Augustine's Bay (lat. 23° 40' S.) is reported to be as large as the Loire. On the W, the chief rivers are the Manangara, in lat. 23 S, the seven mouths of which are all inaccessible and the Manguru (lat. 20° S.) which is also completely barred at its mouth. The latter river flows chiefly N to S, by the side of the great forest Alancanotra. The river Mandrara and Ambile, on the E. coast, the Mangafy in St. Louis Bay 24° 48' E. coast the Manzantra and Mahala, a little S of 21, the Manoro, lat. 20° the Andoveranda, lat. 19° the Ivondra, near Tamatave lat. 13° 12' S; the Tentingue, opposite to St. Mary's Island, lat. 17 S, and the Tang snale, opposite to St. Mary's Island, at the bottom of Antongil Bay, lat. 16° 23' S., have all derived some importance from their vicinity to French forts or factories. At Matatana river in lat. 22 S, on the same coast is an Arab settlement, of more ancient date.

Lakes.—The low coasts exhibit not unfrequently chains of lakes, running parallel and close to the sea-shore, formed, in some cases, by the overflowing of the barred rivers, in others, by the sea, and are fresh or salt according to circumstances. At Ivondra near Tamatave, on the E. coast, the chain of lakes, beginning with that of Nosy vé (many islands), extends above 150 m. along the coast, and the portages, between the lakes, rarely exceeding 3 m. It affords a ready means of communication with Antoveranda, whence the road proceeds to the capital, and also with the river Manguru. In the interior of the island are several lakes—known chiefly by report, as that of Imame—and to be 100 m. long, and only 1 m. wide. Terraka or the Image of the Ocean, and Iasy famous for its fish, in Kinkina, the central elevated district.

Geology.—According to the missionary accounts, the prevailing rocks (doubtless in Ankoza, where the missionaries resided) are granite, syenite, and pure quartz, but they mention, also a long series of stratified rocks, which probably compose the subordinate ridges, or nearly all beyond the central heights. These are clay slate, a fine variety of which, excellent for roofing, occurs in the Betaloka country S of Ankoza, graywacke, sandstone, limestones of different ages, some containing fossil remains, and some being fine marble. In the mountainous district of Ankaratra, volcanic rocks occupy an extensive area. Basalts there cover the ground for 50 m. with scoriae, pumice, and lavas in various states, numerous cones of granite protruding through the superincumbent heaps of more recent igneous rocks. The missionaries deny, in general terms, the existence of any active volcanoes on the island while French traders, on the other hand, report that volcanic fires are still occasionally seen near St. N. extremely. The mountains overlying the claystone, seem to contain iron, but the chief deposits of the valuable metal lie in the neighbourhood of the volcanic rocks, near the middle of the island. The gold and silver mines, so much extolled by the early advocates of colonization in Madagascar are now no longer heard of. Copper is said to be frequently found, but does not seem to be wrought by the natives. They have, however, manganese, plumbago, rock-salt, an important article of inland trade. Iron, sulphur from pyrites, and it is said that excellent coal, too had been found near the sources of a river falling into the Betalohaka, and is now used by the natives for their furnaces.

Climate.—As Madagascar extends through 11 of latitude, and is varied in respect of elevation, it necessarily presents some variety of climate, though the temperature is somewhat equalized throughout by the circumstance that the most elevated part of the island is also that which is nearest to the equator. The heat, on the coasts, is often intense but on the highland of Ankoza, the thermometer rarely rises above 83° in the winter that is from May to October. It often sinks, at the same place, to 40° fall and night are frequent, and it is said that ice is often found in the mountains of Ankaratra. On the coasts, the rains are nearly constant, beginning in the evening and lasting sometimes all night. In the interior, the winter is dry and agreeable. The Madagascar fever of the coasts is as fatal to the natives of the interior as to Europeans; and yet only Ankoza, with some elevated spots at the N. extremity of the island, and at the S., near Fort Dauphin, are exempt from it. One district, on high ground, two days journey from the capital, is so fatal, that sentences of exile to that spot is considered equivalent to sentences of death. The diseases that prey most on the natives are, besides fever small-pox, leprosy and cutaneous malades of an aggravated description. Notwithstanding the pallid character of a large portion of the island, it is said that there are, among the natives, numerous examples of great longevity.

Vegetation.—Although the interior of Madagascar remains still unexplored by botanists, enough is known of the vegetable productions of the island to prove their richness and variety. Of 400 plants collected there, 100 are altogether new, and 200 more form new species. The most important trees are the Dalab (Adansonia) the Ravinala (Urena speciosa), Flaco (Cassia senegalensis), the Raka a Sague, from the filaments leaves of which is made a kind of cloth while the stem furnishes a drink like spruce-beer. The Avoha (Delonix regia) which furnishes the materials of a coarse sort of paper, the Ambaravatu (Typha edulis) feeding the native silk worms the Areca, three species of Pandanus (Bambusa), the Anala, yielding a gum greatly valued as a preservative cement; Copal and other gums, among the Savinara (Agave schottii), which produces a highly fragrant all-spice, besides these are numerous dyest woods, varieties of Indian fig, tamarind, sugar-cane trees and shrubs yielding gum elastic (India rubber) and the macore or papyrus peculiar to the island. Ginger pepper and indigo grow wild in the woods. Cotton, sugar-cane, tobacco, and hemp are also cultivated. Except in the N. W. and W. where the Sakalava subsist chiefly on arrow-root, the principal food of the Madagascar is rice, of which grain they cultivate 11 species, and yet its introduction into the interior is said to be comparatively recent. The coast nut (on the coast) the plantain and bananae are of still later date. Several kinds of yams, manioc, maize, millet, beans, &c. add to the general abundance. Besides the native fruits, the orange, peach, citron, mulberry and even grapes, introduced by Europeans, are now widely diffused over the island. Coffee is found to thrive well and 10 or 12 vegetable oils are made for home consumption.

Zoology.—There are few formidable wild animals in Madagascar, and the list of its beasts of prey numbers only an ounce or small leopard, the wild cat, wild dog and bushy-tailed fox. Crocodiles are numerous in most of the rivers, but in general they are not considered to be dangerous. Snakes of great size are often met with, but there are few venomous species. Scorpions and centipedes however are common and there is a spider, the bite of which is said to be often fatal. Little is known of the animals inhabiting the interior, but native reports have been thought to indicate the existence of the unicorn, a species of oryx, &c. also and to hunt the deer. The spurs are numerous in the woods but also the large bats, some of which, as well as monkeys, are eaten. The birds are very numerous, and poultry plentiful. The horned cattle in which chiefly lies the wealth of the Madagascar are of the humped kind like those of India species. There are, however, wild cattle in the forests which have no hump, and are said to resemble the handsomest of our breeds. The Madagascar sheep resembles that of the Cape of Good Hope, being long-legged and black, clothed with hard matted wool, and affording inferior mutton. However, recently introduced have multiplied rapidly, but they are still deer and none of them in the wild state. Lemnys, which is certain seasons spread in countless multitudes from the S.W. coast over the whole island, are routed waned to separate the wings, and eaten in great quantities. Eggs also, those of the crocodile included, afford a plentiful subsistence, and in the Betanien country, S. of Antankya, the chrysalis of the native silk-worm is esteemed a dainty and is eaten by all classes when in season.

Division.—Respecting the internal division of Madagascar into states and provinces very different accounts have been given at different times, and indeed we may naturally suppose that it has frequently changed according as principles, increasing in strength, absorbed others, or decaying fell to pieces. It is probable, too, that these enumerations of states have never been either correct or complete, and that even at the present day when the island being reduced nearly all under a single rule, is less liable to political fluctuations, the names of provinces are popularly used without any reference to ascertained limits or distinct jurisdictions. The danger being thus pointed out of conceiving various territorial names, fortuitously preserved by tradition, to represent co-ordinate parts of one organized kingdom, it only remains for us to state that the best-informed writers at the present day divide Madagascar into 22 provinces:—

1. Vahimagana, the country of numerous crocodiles at the N. extremity of the island. It is mountainous and thinly peopled and comparatively salubrious. The inlets on its E. coast fire fine harbours, as that of Diego Suarez or Mahavela, Andranova, Port Laqueux, and Voharua. S. of this province, on the N.W. coast of the island lies—2. Diavao, low, woody and liable to fever. The bays of Mariada and Passandava are conspicuous but somewhat shallow, open to the mouth of the latter lies the island of Nossebe which was taken possession of by the French in 1840.—3. Maroa lies S. of Voharua, on the E. coast it is hilly and abounding in rapid forests, yet tolerably healthy fertile and populous. In this province 1. Ant. m. l. Bay a gulf extending N. and S. about 35 m. long and 70 wide. At the head of the bay is Maroeta, or Mary-tide, of which the French have had possession for two centuries. On the mainland N. of this island, was Louisbourg, the settlement founded by Benyowsky.—4. Ivongo, S. of the last-named province, but extending to the full of the latter, is like Maroa, well wooded and productive, and able to export both cattle and rice. Opposite to the coast of this province lies the island of St. Mary from 6 m. to 16 m. distant from the mainland, and belonging to the French. It is about 30 m. long and 8 m. wide, very fertile, but unhealthy. The inhabitants of this island on the mainland opposite to St. Mary are famed for their dexterity and boldness in spearing whales from their light canoes. From this point, N. to Antungui the coast abounds in excellent oysters.—5. Antankana, W. of Ivongo, in the interior chiefly on the side of the mountains includes many very rich but inaccessible valleys. On an island, in Lake Nossebe stands Ralodra, the capital of the province, a large town, surrounded with a triple fence of palisades. Fine cotton and silk are among the productions of the district. With these the natives manufacture handsome fabrics they make also beautiful carpets, and excel in jewellery, silver-smiths, gunsmiths, and cabinet-makers.—6. Antankana extends from the N. confines of the last named province to those of Iboina, and the sea-coast. It is low and exceedingly fertile, and yields countless herds of cattle. Great numbers of these are exported from the Bay of Boribetok near the mouth of which on the N. side and in Ambongo stands the town of Mayinga, much frequented by Arab merchants. The natives of this province are the least civilized of the Madagascar.—7. Antankana in the middle of Madagascar is S. of Antankana, and N.E. of Ambongo. It is an elevated country with hills rising about 500 ft. above the general level, which has been estimated to be 5600 ft. above sea-level. To the absence of marsh and forest it owes its perfect salubrity and as the Hovas [the people of Antankana] are much superior to the other native tribes in industry and civilisation, Antankana supports a large population. It embraces three districts—Yonianga, Imamo and Emerna, formerly independent states. From the last spring the dynasty which has established its sway over the whole island. The capital of Emerna, named Tananarivo [the 1000 towns] covers an elevated and steep ridge about 2 m. long. This capital of Emerna, of Antankana, and of Madagascar, stands in about lat. 18° 56' S. and lon. 47° E. It is supposed to contain about 7000 houses and a population of 35,000 souls exclusive of the troops.—8. Antankana or Antankana is a narrow strip of territory E. of Antankana and Antankana, running N. and S., so as to form a terrace between the hills on the W. and the river Mangara on the E. This province is inhabited by a peculiar tribe, the Benanano [the antankana or antankana] under the new order of things they are sufficiently exclusive and are exempt from military service, but only that they may devote themselves to a perhaps harder avocations for they are bound to serve as porters and to carry all burdens between the capital and the sea-coast. Proceeding S. from Ivongo along the E. coast, we find in succession the provinces of—9. Mahavela, 10. Tananaiva, and 11. Botanama. These all resemble each other in the productiveness of their forests, the chains of lakes running through them and in plentiful climate. The first of these three is often ravaged by wild swarms from the woods. Fanar trade. Tananaiva offers one of the best roadsteads on the coast. The river Betanana [much red earth] is given to a large tract of country lying between the Mangara and the coast.—12. Antankana follows on the E. coast S. of the river Mangara like the preceding it has a deadly climate yet it is frequented by French traders, who draw from it large supplies of cattle and rice of superior quality. Going still along the E. coast, we meet with the following provinces in succession—13. Mantana, 14. Nangadano and 15. Antankana. These resemble in physical character the maritime country further N. the rivers are barred, the depressed coast is lined with lakes and marshes a heavy surf breaks on the shore so as to render landing difficult, and there are no secure harbours. Mantana is supposed to have been colonized at an early period by the Arabs. Antankana terminates the coast, and includes a hilly and healthy tract, in which we situate Port Dauphin, a settlement long maintained by the French but now abandoned. W. of these maritime provinces, and S. of Antankana to the province of Betalio extends along the hills of the interior. It appears to be a fertile and healthy country, abounding in cattle but is little known to Europeans. The provinces of—17. Antankana, 18. Malafaly, 19. Fiherana, 20. Tsimbala, and 21. Ihara, form the N.W. portion of Madagascar which is said to be thinly peopled and much less civilized than the N. and E. of the island. Antankana is little more than a great forest, inhabited by wild cattle.—22. Mantana lies between Ambongo on the N., and Fiherana on the N. Antankana and Betalio bound it on the E. and the sea on the W. The bay of Marondra, lat. 20° 27' S. at the mouth of the river Mantana affords good anchorage but is unhealthy. This town of Mantana, rather Antankana, four days journey up the river is said to contain 2000 houses. The country possesses great natural resources but without roads and without commercial freedom (for the Hovas monopolize all the trade) no progress can be made in the development of its hidden wealth.

The People.—The population of Madagascar at the present day affords, in variety of feature and complexion, proofs of its having sprung from distant races, while, on the other hand, the perfect fusion of language throughout the island exhibits such a perfect blending of these various races as could have been effected only by the operation of assimilating influences during many ages. The ruling race in Madagascar is also the fairest. The Hovas who have established their sway over nearly the whole island, are distinguished from the other natives by their light olive complexion, the absence of thick lips, and by their active figures, they are well made, but rather under the middle size. The Sakalava, who possess the W. coast from the S. limit of Mantana to Cape Amber are quite black, with thick lips, craped or woolly hair, but not depressed features. They are active, strong and vigorous, very frank and courageous, and, though inferior to the Hovas in aptitude, appear superior to them in many noble qualities. These are the extremes of the fair and dark races. The Betalio tribe are of a light copper colour with thick lips, and long hair. They are attached to agriculture and more peaceable than the N. Hovas. The Betanamaraka, who occupy the E. and S. coast, are rather darker than the Hovas whom they otherwise resemble. The Betanamaraka, or tribe of the interior, have more of the negro character, short robust figures, and fringed heads. Some families of the Antaimyr in Matitane, lay claim to an Arabian origin and call themselves Zafyrdraime, the children of Amra. On the E coast may be found also many families of Indian and of French descent.

Manners Customs, &c.—In attempting to describe the manners and social condition of Madagascar it will be expedient to confine our attention to the Hovas, from whom the other tribes differ not essentially but only by various degrees of indolence and rudeness. The Hovas retain many indications of their Eastern origin. They are sprightly courteous, and flexible have great fluency of speech, and the poetic faculty in a high degree with unusual activity of imagination exhibited chiefly in the composition of fables and romantic fictions. They are strongly attached to ancient usages, and show some inclination to divide into castes. Formerly the Andrienas or nobles alone enjoyed the privileges of slaughtering cattle, they were the only butchers, but this custom is now falling into disuse. The chief distinction of a great man is to have many wives although polygamy is familiarly called by a name which signifies 'the cause of strife.' The number of wives permitted depends on the man's rank, but must be less than 15 the possession of a domine being reserved to the king alone. The houses of the better classes are built of wood, and, as good as the native carpentry that they are perfectly firm, though joined without nails. They are all oblong in variable places N and S, with the door to the W, and the erection of them is always begun for luck at the N E. angle. They have often verandahs, but no chimneys, though in Antankra fires are frequently required in the evening. The roof neatly covered with rushes rises to a disproportionate height and ornamented poles at the gables indicate by their length, the owner's rank. The rich man has many such houses. The dwellings of the lower classes are constructed of bamboo, or rushes, or even of clay, and these have coloured pink or yellow, have a good appearance. The villages, generally if not placed on inaccessible heights are surrounded by deep ditches. The dress of the Madagasy consists chiefly of the malaka, or cloth round the loins and the lambo, or mantle these are of various stuffs—ruffa fibre (the cheapest hemp, cotton, silk or banana, which sometimes sink in brilliancy. Caps are worn of all materials from grass to velvet shoes and stockings have been introduced of late years, and many wear rather good silk. The Madagasy take much stuff which they do not apply to the nose, but lodge it copiously in the mouth under the tongue. In general they show much aptitude for the manual arts. As silversmiths, gemsmiths, and carpenters they rapidly acquire the art of Europeans and with some of the rudest construction they make excellent and handsome cloths. The religious opinions of the Madagasy are nowhere clearly set forth. They appear to believe in a good and an evil principle but their chief objects of worship are idols, rendered formidable by the arts of their guardian priests. Any offences given to these are sure to incur an accusation of sorcery, a crime expiated by falling from the edge of a deep precipice. The accused is, in most cases, subject to the ordeal of the tanguin or tanghin, a poisonous nit, which operates, in small doses, as an emetic. He swallows three bits of the skin of a swell and then drinks a broth containing the tanghin. If he throws up the bits of skin he is acquitted, otherwise, he is condemned and executed at once. A fifth of the whole population is said to be put off annually by the tanghin.

Government.—The government of Madagascar seems to be a monarchical despotism. Public assemblies are still called and addressed by the sovereign, but not consulted. The monarchy is hereditary but the order of succession appears not to be ascertained the reigning sovereign affecting to appoint his successors. A body of judges sits constantly in public to hear complaints and settle disputes but they are not guided by any written code of laws.

History.—The English established a factory in St. Augustine's in 1644, but the climate, and hostility of the natives, compelled them to abandon it at the end of two years. The French East India Company made settlements on the E coast as early as 1642, in Antongil Bay St. Mary's islands and elsewhere; however they too were forced to yield to the climate, and to confine themselves to the elevated district of Fort Dauphin. But even there they could not succeed their attempt to colonize the E. coast were recommenced in 1745 and again failed and in 1773, the celebrated adventure, Denyovack encouraged by the French court, conducted an expedition to Antongil Bay, but being thwarted and maligned by the colonists of the Isle of France, he too perished. The Isle of France or Mauritius, having fallen into the hands of the English and the French factories on the coast of Madagascar having been always considered as depending on that colony, the governor, Sir Robert Farquhar, claimed, by proclamation, in 1815 the sovereignty of Madagascar. This was an important epoch in the history of that island. Radama, born in 1773, had succeeded to the throne of Antankra in 1808. At that time, Europeans were so little known in the interior that the Hovas dreaded them as reputed enchanter. The Government of Mauritius however laboured successfully to inspire confidence and Radama sent his brothers to this island to be educated. They returned to Tananarivo in 1817 accompanied by their tutor Sergeant Martin, a native of Cors. This man originally a Quaker acquired a paramount influence over the mind of the king and his counsels all of a humanizing kind, produced the happiest results. Radama himself may be compared, with respect to the readiness of his genius, and ardour for improvement, to Peter the Great. But a faint outline can be here given of the changes which he wrought in his country. He abolished infanticide, and discouraged, as much as possible, the belief in witchcraft and other superstitions. He formed a regular army on the model of our Indian sepoy trained by General (originally Sergeant) Brady, a West Indian militia. With this force, 50,000 including artillery he subdued the whole island. He mediated opening roads and canals, and actually commenced cutting through the necks of land which separate the lakes along the coast. He encouraged the Protestant missionaries, and above all, their schools. In short, Radama whose principle it was that truth and justice were the foundations of his throne, was one of the most remarkable civilizers the world has ever seen. He died, prematurely in 1828, leaving a son then but a child, by a younger wife, but was succeeded on the throne by his chief wife and sister Manalavona, who in a short time, manifested her desire to undo as far as possible, his innovations. The schools were closed the British agent insulted and the missionaries left the island in 1830. Since that time the native Christians, who had become numerous, have been subjected to cruel persecution and many of them suffered martyrdom in 1839. The French were expelled from their settlements on the E. coast, by Radama, in 1825 and again by the queen's troops, in 1831. In 1840 the English and French cruisers in those seas, having united in an attempt to humble the Hovas, by attacking some forts on the coast, were repulsed with great loss. 1 op estimated at 4,700,000.—Boothby Discovery and Description of Madagascar 1847 Flacourt, Hist de la Grande Ile Madagascar 1698, Drury's Journal of 16 years Residence in Madagascar 1729 Monbon 1 Abbe Voyage à l'Ile de Madagascar 1791 Legrand de Lacour, Voyage à Madagascar 1840 Guillard, Documents sur l'Ile de Madagascar 1845 Ellis, History of Madagascar 1838.

MADALFNA See MAGDALENA

MADAMPÉ, a in Clayton dist. Gallie on a river of the same name, in a beautiful and fertile country. Pop. nearly 3000.—Croft's Gazetteer

MADAL OLLAM, a maritime tn. Hindoostan, presid. Madras V. Cochin, 88 m. E N E Masulipatam N bank of the great S branch of the Godavary, at its outlet lat. 15° 35' N, lon 81° 40' E. Long cotton cloths are manufactured in the vicinity.

MADAR a vil. Hungary, co. and 11 m. from Komorn with a church and a workhouse. Pop. (agr. incl.) 1412.

MADARAS, two places, Hungary.—1 A free market tn., circle Hather Thales, dist. Greater Cumanas, 87 m. W S W Deliczein. Pop. 1310.—2 A vil. Hather Danab, co. Bacs, 41 m. S W Segedin with a church. Pop. 3086.

MADARASZ, a vil. Hungary Thither Thess co. Smith mar, 9 m. from Smathour Yemets with a Greek church 1 op. 1516.

MADDALENA (La) an isl off N coast Sardinia, at the entrance of the Straits of Bonifacio, about 52 sq. sq. m. It is elevated, composed for the most part of granite, and has very little ground fitted for cultivation, though some grain is grown, and the vine seems to thrive. On its S shore is a town of same name, with a spacious, well-sheltered harbour deep enough to admit war ships. It is defended by a fort, and contains a church and a primary school. The men are, for the most part, seafaring, and the women make some linen, nets, and gloves. Pop. 2116.

MADDALEONI a ru Naples, prov. Terra di Lavoro, dist. and 8 m. S. E. Caserta. It has six churches, four convents, an hospital, and a royal college, with six professors. The noble aqueduct, which conveys water to the royal palace of Caserta, is conspicuous here. Maddaloni is supposed to occupy the site of the ancient Bucaula. Pop. 11,000.

MADDHILJEH, a vil. Beaud. 28 m. W. Sakhr on the route to Larkhana lat. 27° 36' N. lon. 68° 24' E. It contains about 150 houses and 20 shops; and is abundantly supplied with water by wells lined with burned brick.

MADDHILJEY, per East Perth 2430 ac. Pop. 598.

MADDINGTON, per Eng. Wills 5973 ac. Pop. 598.

MADBY (Locu), an arm of the sea, Scotland, on the N. L. of N. Uist, one of the Hebrides. It takes its name from three remarkable rocks called Maddies or dogs, which stand near its entrance, and rise precipitously to the height of about 90 ft. within it affords deep and safe anchorage for any amount of shipping. It is now frequented.

MADEFALRA, or MATINOR, a vil. Austria Transyl. vana, co. Udvarhely on the Ahdnes, about 80 m. from Kronstadt. It is a strategic place, in a mountainous district, and is occupied partly by a military frontier. Pop. 1145.

MADFHURBT, per Fog. Suora. 1008 ac. P. 204.

MADEIRA or MADERA, a river S. America, the largest of the tributaries of the Amazon. It is formed, on the frontiers of Bolivia, Peru and Brazil chiefly by the union of three large streams—the Rio Marmore, and Cuiapo or Itene. It first assumes the name of the Madeira about lat. 10° 30' S. lon. 65° 30' W. from which point it flows nearly due N. for about 60 m. when it turns N. E. and flows in this direction till it joins the Amazon at lat. 2° 15' S. lon. 51° 10' W., after a course of about 700 m. direct distance. Its affluents are numerous, and many of them considerable rivers all the largest join it from the S. and S. E.; those on the N. and N. W. being comparatively insignificant.

MADEIRA ISLES, an island group Atlantic Ocean belonging to Portugal, about 440 m. off the coast of Brazil 12 m. broad. It consists of a mass of volcanic rocks, whose highest peak reaches an elevation of upwards of 8000 ft. Through the W. half of the island runs a central ridge, about 5000 ft. high on which is an extensive plain called Paul de Serra. The F. portion of the island though elevated, is less so than the W.

THE ESTHORA PAN MADEIRA From a sketch by L. H. Shepherd, Esq. 1851.

From the central mass steep ridges extend to the coast, where they form perpendicular precipices of from 1000 to 2000 ft. high. These cliffs are interrupted by a few small bays where a richly cultivated valley approaches the water between abrupt precipices, or surrounded by an amphitheatre of rugged hills. These narrow bays are the sites of the villages of Madeira. The most striking peculiarity in the mountain scenery of the island, is the jagged outline of the ridge, the rudely shaped towers and sharp pyramids of rock which appear elevated on the tops and sides of the highest peaks, as well as on the lower elevations, and the deep precipitous gorges which cut through the highest mountains almost to their very base. The most remarkable of these gorges is called the Curral or Courel. The road round the island is, in many places, exceedingly picturesque, being laid often between lofty cliffs, or along the front of precipitous crags.

MADEIRA

THE ADJACENT ISLANDS

zen, and 210 m. N. the island of Terceira, consisting of the islands of Madeira and Porto Santo, and the three islets called the Desertas; lat. 32° 22' to 33° 2' N. lon. 16° 13' to 16° 28' W. The largest island Madeira, is 84 m. long, and hanging the sea. One of the most remarkable portions of this winding road is the Estreito Pan, on the N. side of the island. Although the island be rough and mountainous throughout, its slopes are clothed with rich and luxuriant verdure. Terrace are visible on every side, and every available and accessible spot is turned to advantage. The richest vine district in Madras, and the part where grows the Malmsay grape, is the valley of the Cama da Lobos, on the S. side of the island. In good years, the quantity of wine produced is 35,000 pipes in recent times, however it has been reduced to 15,000 pipes, and in 1853, a disease having destroyed the vines, the quantity of wine obtained was only 400 pipes, and so had in quality as only to be suitable for being made into vinegar. On leaving Panchal the capital of the island fruits, flowers, and vegetables crowd upon the sight; in the lower portions, groves of orange and lemon trees are mingled with the vineyards; higher up, bananas, figs, pomegranates, &c., are seen; and again, still higher the fruits of the temperate zone—namely apples, currants, pears, and peaches. Coffee and arrow root, both of excellent quality, are also grown. Wheat, barley, rye, and Indian corn are raised, but only to the extent of about one-fifth of the quantity consumed; consequently the almost total destruction of the vines in 1853, brought the inhabitants into the greatest distress.

The people are industrious, sober and civil. They are of the old Arabian stock, and have little of any mixed blood among them. The men are very muscular, rather above the middle height, strongly built and capable of enduring great fatigue. The women are generally very ugly. The houses of the lower orders are wretched huts, the door being the only aperture for light and smoke. The language spoken is, Portuguese, but with a rapid intermixture.

The climate of Madras is very equable, and famed for its salubrity; the mean temperature is 65° and the extremes 74 and 63°. Some doubt has been entertained whether the climate of Madras really deserves all that has been said in its favour—doubts probably arising from unreasonable expectations of its efficacy without a due regard to attendant circumstances. 'Unquestionably' says Mr. Wilde, 'many have been deceived by the promises held out of Madras, but who were they? Patients whose cases were so utterly hopeless that not a chance remained for them. I am happy to say, professional men do not now yield to the importunities of patients whose cases they look upon as irretrievable, by sanctioning their removal to Madras—an advice as cruel as it was useless. But I will say that, independent of its acknowledged efficacy in chronic affections, the climate of Madras will do more to ward off threatened diseases of the chest, or even to arrest them in their incipient stages than any I am acquainted with. The Madrasians were known to the Romans under the name of Purpuraria Insula. They were discovered by Don João Goncalves Zarco, and Tristão Vaz, in 1482 and the name Madeira was given to the principal island, from the handsome forests of building-timber (in Portuguese, Madras) which then covered it. It is about 110,000 Ses DIKRIKAS and PORTO RAYTO—(Wilkes U States Exploring Expedition. Wilde's Voyage to Madras, &c.)

MADLEY MARKET, a market to and per England co. Balop, 15 m. S.E. Shirebury 1 bank River here crossed by an iron bridge of one arch erected in 1779 where part of the parish is named Iron Bridge. It has a church and market house, and near it are iron and porcelain works, and coal mines. Area of par 2809 ac. Pop. 3025.

MADLEY par Eng Stafford, 1784 ac. Pop. 1655.

MADERNO a vil and com Italy Lombardy, prov Milan, prov and 20 m. N.E. Bergamo, with an ancient Gothic church, a paper mill and a trade in paper wood charcoal, and olive-oil. Pop 1452.

MADHARAJPOOR a tn Hindoostan prov Ajmer 24 m. S.E. Jaipur lat. 25° 35' N. lon. 75° 30' E.

MADIGNANO a vil and com. Italy Lombardy prov Milan, prov Lodi & back Bergamo with a church a manufactory of fire-arms for service, and several mills. Pop 1156.

MADINGLEY, par Eng Cambridge, 1768 ac. P 352.

MADIOEN or MADION, a maritime prov., in Java, bounded N by Rombeng E. Kediri W. Surakarta, and S the Indian Ocean. It is undulating hilly, and very fertile, well watered by the Madim and Solo both navigable, and by the Koejan, Loukak, and Poenggoel, &c., producing rice, tobacco, cotton, coffee, indigo, all of which are to a limited extent exported, sent chiefly inland by the Madion and Solo. It is well off for schools some of which are noted over all Java. It was formerly part of the territories of the Prince of Montonggora, and came into the hands of the Dutch in 1850. Pop. (1845), 270,000.

MADISON a tn. U States, Indiana, 7 bank Ohio, 80 m. S.E. Indianapolis. It has elegant, regular and spacious streets a courthouse jail, market-house, and six churches two foundries, a factory for steam-engines, a cotton factory, a boat-yard, and several mills. Thousands of hogs are annually slaughtered here. Pop. 3798.

MADISWELL a tn and par Switzerland can and 23 m. N.E. Bern, in a fertile district, on the Langgouten an affluent of the Aar. It has a neat church with a handsome tower. Pop. 3126.

MADJICOSEMAH, or MELIA CO SHIMAS a group of 17 isls. large and small in the N Pacific Ocean, between the isls. Formosa and Loo-Choo to the latter of which they are tributary lat 24 to 25° N. lon. 123 10' to 125° E. The largest are Typtan, Patchuan or Pw-tahung-san and Rocko-ko-ko. The variety and beauty of the vegetation that clothes the sides of the mountains in these islands, is represented as being very striking. The soil is arable, and produces the common plant, one of the chief objects of cultivation, is betan rice, some yams, sugar-cane, and a kind of wheat. Agriculture, however, is little understood, the land being rudely and superficially ploughed with a single ox. Herds of large black oxen browse on the hill sides, which are covered with a high, rank, weedy grass, and troops of shaggy half wild ponies scamper over the grassy plains. The dwellings of the natives are surrounded with stone walls, moss-grown or covered with creeping plants, and numerous shady trees springing up from among the houses. These latter are of wood and mud, neatly thatched, and constructed with very considerable pretensions to domestic comfort. They are of one story and the floors, a little elevated from the ground, are covered with well made mats, and extreme cleanliness predominates throughout. The people, who in physical appearance, resemble the Koreans and Japanese, are of the most amiable disposition rarely quarrelling or even betraying feelings of resentment, and never having recourse to offensive weapons. The upper classes have a highly polished manner, and greet the stranger with a distinctly propitiatory cry. They are at great pains in dressing their long black hair, which is stretched back and secured in an elegant top-knot, adorned with ornamental hair-pins. Their dress consists of a loose robe, of varied pattern, having large wide sleeves, and secured about the waist by a long sash. Their food is extremely simple, consisting chiefly of the betan rice, and other vegetable, varied with fish. They indulge in smoking and are passionately fond of tea. They do not exhibit much mechanical ingenuity their only manufactures being a coarse kind of cloth, and some nets and fish line gear very indifferently wrought. I am assisted by Sir Edward Belcher in 1845-46 these remote islands were almost wholly unknown—(Belcher's Voyage of the Samarang Howland's E. India Directory).

MADLEY par Eng Hereford 5360 ac. Pop 927.

MADOCSA a vil Hungary, Mithier Danube, co Tolna, about 4 m from Fek with a church and a trade in corn and malza. Pop. 1236.

MADOES (Sri par Scot Perth 1162 ac. Pop 288.

MADON, or MADONIA a mountain group, Sicily, prov Palermo S of Cefaly forming the water-shed between the Fiume Granio on the W., and the Pollina on the E. To the S.E., it links with the Neptunian chain culminating peak Mt. Angelo. These mountains are mainly composed of limestone, and occasionally contain gypsum, rock-salt, sulphate of soda and magnesia, petroleum, and lignite.

MADON VA DEGLI ANGELI (SANTA) or MARIA SANTA DEGLI ANGELI a vil Italy Umbria 11 m. P S E Perugia It has a celebrated church which given it its name and which though almost ruined in 1837 by an earthquake, is still a majestic edifice.

MADRAS (PRESIDENCY OF), one of the great territorial divisions of British India, bounded N by preadl. Bengal and Rombay the Nizam's dominions, and Nagpore, and E. W., and S. by the Indian Ocean. It comprises the larger proportion of peninsular Hindoostan, embracing the whole of the Carnatic, and extending across the peninsula, includes all the British territory—Malabar Canara, &c.—S. and W. of Mysore which latter, as well as Travancore, is completely unknown; lat. S.

to 20° N. lon 73° to 85° E. For revenue purposes it is divided into twenty one divisions or collectorates, of which eighteen are regulation districts under the Madras government, and three are non-regulation districts under the control of an agent of the governor their names, area, and population are as follows —

DIVISION AREA and POPULATION of MADRAS PRESIDENCY

[illegible]

The central portion of the peninsula is occupied by a table land, rising undul on all sides by an undulating or plain country, gradually decreasing in height as it approaches the sea, the whole enclosed E. W. and S. by three mountain ranges, called, respectively, the W. and W. Ghats, and the N. gherry mountains. The two former run parallel to the E. and W. coasts, the third traverses the peninsula from S. to N. E. forming a connecting link between them (See GHATS). The N. gherry range forms a mountain tract of about 42 m. in length, and 14 m. broad with a general elevation of 5000 ft. The principal rivers are the Godavari and Krishna or Krishna, with their tributaries, and the I. annas, Palar, Pennar, Cavery, Coeleroon, and Vepfey. There are no lakes of any importance, but many salt lagoons or salt-pans of the sea. The climate is generally a hot one, the heat in India, but differs widely in different localities according to passing from the low places on the coast, where it is the hottest, through all the gradations of temperate regions, till on the tops of the Nellocherry, the thermometer at the cold season falls to 81. The heat on the E. side of the peninsula, where, at the mouth of the Krishna, it has been known as high as 106° at midnight, is much more oppressive than on the W. side, but even in the hottest places the air is cooled and the ground refreshed in May, June, and July by frequent showers, or by torrents of rain. The soil along the coast, particularly those of the Carnatic, is for the most part light and sandy. inland it consists of a decomposed syenite, impregnated with salt which, in dry weather, covers the ground with a saline efflorescence, still the district of Sanyas on the banks of the Coeleroon, is esteemed the granary of India. There are some extensive forests, the principal yielding teak, ebony and other valuable timbers. The other principal agricultural productions are rice, wheat, barley, maize and all the other grains common in India except cane, areca, yam, plantain, tamarind, jack fruit, mango melons, cocoas nuts and a variety of other fruits grains, turmeric, pepper tobacco hemp, and cotton, for the growth of which it seems to be particularly well adapted. There has been a large increase of late years in the cultivation of sugar in Madras, as will be seen from the following table showing the imports of that article into the United Kingdom from that presidency —

1949	1	1941	25.4
1945	101	18	1.5

The value of the mica exported in the last month of the year was $216,000.

The value of the sur. computed in the last manner for was 2216 100

There are two kinds of sugar made in Madras, one from a species of date tree the other from the cane. The former is of a very inferior description and brings but a low price. The wild animals met with here are those common to other parts of India, namely the elephant, tiger, cheetah, bear, leopard, spotted deer, antelope, jackal, wild dog, jungle sheep, &c. Cotton cloths were formerly manufactured here to a great extent, but the superiority of British piece-goods has nearly extinguished this branch of industry in India. A hide, however well done in the F. factories of the presidency and elsewhere, is not valued at more than 100 rupees. The silk and cloth manufactures, and silks also continue to be much esteemed in a limited extent.

The government of the presidency is vested in a governor subordinate to the governor-general of India. He is assisted by a council of three members, one being the commander-in-chief, and three secretaries, placed over the revenue and justice, political and military departments. In each of the twenty-one districts into which the presidency is divided there is a European collector who exerts also the chief magisterial functions. The chief civil officer of the presidency is the chief secretary, who is assisted by a number of secretaries. The council consists of the bishop and archbishop of Madras, and prominent clergymen in different parts of the presidency. There are no monastic Protestant monasteries and St. Catholic chapels. Madras and Hyderabad being the sees also of St. Catholic bishops. The languages of particular notice are Tamil, Telugu, Canarese and Malayalam with some lesser dialects spoken by the more backward tribes on the mountainous hill and Gopuram hills. The official language of the presidency is English. In the N. E. and Hindooistan is the language spoken everywhere by the Mahomedans.

MADRE-DE-DIOS (ANCUTLAGOO?) Patagonia, W coast lat. 50° to 51 N lon. 75° W It consists of several islands, and has for its inner or E. boundary Concepcion Strait.

MADRENTILLO par Eng. Worcester 1182ao 1 176.

MADRID is a central pro Spain fortress one of the five into which New Castile is divided, bounding N and N W, by pro Segovia, S W Avila, S Toledo, and E Guadalajara, greatest length, N to S, about 54 m central breadth, about 20 m. The whole surface is elevated, and particularly in the N., is covered by mountains belonging to the sierra de Guadarrama. It is wholly included in the basin of the Tago which forms part of its boundary on the S. and receives the Manzanares, chiefly from the Tago, Aguara, Rio Jarama, and Rio Guadarrama. The soil in general, is not so much a meagre fertility, a great part of the whole province consisting of a plain elevated, and rugged table-land bordered by mountains covered with snow during the greater part of the year: but there are several fertile districts particularly those of Alameda and Aranjuez and good crops of wheat, barley, rye, and oats are produced and some wine, oil and hemp. The principal live stock are sheep and goats. The most important minerals are lead, copper and iron and there are also mentions of coal, iron, soap stone, and marble. Castile produces also much manufactures and trade are wanted. Capital Madrid. Other important towns, Alcala and Salamanca. Pop 408,737.—(Mason.)

ADRIOL the cap. city of Spain New Castle prov. of its own name, on the Manzanares, whose skirts it lies on the W and is crossed by five bridges whose gigantic arches form a striking contrast with that of the river exceeding during floods to which it is subject in the centre of the Iberian Peninsula lat. 40° 20' N lon 3° 45' W 2450 ft. above sea level. It is built on several low and irregular and hills, and is surrounded by a barren and extensive plain, which has or 15° higher than London but when the S.E. wind blows, it frequently rises to 80°, or even 100° in the shade, while in the sun the heat and glare are of African intensity. Although Madrid is 10° S. of London the mean annual winter temperature is 43° F. or only 3° higher than that of our capital; but, during every winter a degree of cold is experienced which is very rare in London. The average mortality was 1 in 38, while in London it is 1 in 42. The climate is particularly fatal to young children, who, during dentition, die in great numbers.

In shape, the town is almost a square, with the corners rounded off its diameter E. to W. being 18 m. and N. to S. about 2 m. It is walled, but not efficiently for resistance, and entered by 16 public gates, large and small the front of which are the Puerta de Alcala on the N. and the Puerta de San Sebastian on the S. On the other, the high way to Aragon, and the Puerta de Tudela on the E. which was begun in 1815 and erected in commemoration of the happy issue of the war of independence. Madrid contains 512 streets, and 70 squares of all sizes distributed in the following manner:—The Plaza Mayor, like Temple Place in London, is in the centre of the capital, although once the E. gate. This small plaza is situated in the middle of the long line of streets which traverse the city from the Prado (usually) on the E. to the river on the W. This Calle de Alcalá, a spacious, wide, straight thoroughfare, is the main artery of the city. The Calle Mayor (greater or main street) &c. These are crossed near this point by two other important streets—the Calle de Monteria and Calle de las Carretas the Mond Street and Regent Street of Madrid running N. and S. The Calle de San Martin is the widest street in the city, and the Puerta de San Sebastian is the widest gateway—the centre where the stream of Madrid life and the tide of affairs flow and ebb. Also, up, in the streets

MADRID

1. Valerio Rossi (Royal Palace).
2. Hume N. Sore (Royal Museum).
3. Diana M. Sore (National Museum).
4. Leonardo da Vinci (National Museum).
5. Leonardo da Vinci (National Museum).
6. Leonardo da Vinci (National Museum).
7. Leonardo da Vinci (National Museum).
8. Leonardo da Vinci (National Museum).
9. Leonardo da Vinci (National Museum).
10. Leonardo da Vinci (National Museum).

9. Plano Alto
 10. Plano do Crasto
 11. Plano do Ilham Negro
 12. Pico de São Marcos
 13. Plano de In. Grande
 14. Pico de Turco
 15. Plano de São João
 16. Plano de São João
 17. Plano de São João
 18. Plano de São João
 19. Plano de São João
 20. Plano de São João
 21. Plano de São João
 22. Plano de São João
 23. Plano de São João
 24. Plano de São João
 25. Plano de São João
 26. Plano de São João
 27. Plano de São João
 28. Plano de São João
 29. Plano de São João
 30. Plano de São João
 31. Plano de São João
 32. Plano de São João
 33. Plano de São João
 34. Plano de São João
 35. Plano de São João
 36. Plano de São João
 37. Plano de São João
 38. Plano de São João
 39. Plano de São João
 40. Plano de São João
 41. Plano de São João
 42. Plano de São João
 43. Plano de São João
 44. Plano de São João
 45. Plano de São João
 46. Plano de São João
 47. Plano de São João
 48. Plano de São João
 49. Plano de São João
 50. Plano de São João
 51. Plano de São João
 52. Plano de São João
 53. Plano de São João
 54. Plano de São João
 55. Plano de São João
 56. Plano de São João
 57. Plano de São João
 58. Plano de São João
 59. Plano de São João
 60. Plano de São João
 61. Plano de São João
 62. Plano de São João
 63. Plano de São João
 64. Plano de São João
 65. Plano de São João
 66. Plano de São João
 67. Plano de São João
 68. Plano de São João
 69. Plano de São João
 70. Plano de São João
 71. Plano de São João
 72. Plano de São João
 73. Plano de São João
 74. Plano de São João
 75. Plano de São João
 76. Plano de São João
 77. Plano de São João
 78. Plano de São João
 79. Plano de São João
 80. Plano de São João
 81. Plano de São João
 82. Plano de São João
 83. Plano de São João
 84. Plano de São João
 85. Plano de São João
 86. Plano de São João
 87. Plano de São João
 88. Plano de São João
 89. Plano de São João
 90. Plano de São João
 91. Plano de São João
 92. Plano de São João
 93. Plano de São João
 94. Plano de São João
 95. Plano de São João
 96. Plano de São João
 97. Plano de São João
 98. Plano de São João
 99. Plano de São João
 100. Plano de São João

- a Par la de V. Inca.
- f Puerta de Brachadun.
- f Puerta de Tolosa.
- f Puerta de Segura.
- f Puerta de San Fernando.
- f Puerta del Alcazar.
- f Puerta de S. Bernardino.
- f Puerta del Duque.
- f Puerta de Francisco.
- f Puerta de S. Blas.
- u Puerta de S. Sebastian.

no visible limit but the horizon, except on the N.W., where it is bounded by the mountains of Mamu-Sierra and Guadarrama. In winter the climate is exceedingly severe, and even in summer when the heat is also excessive, cold killing blasts descend from the mountains of Guadarrama, producing, by the sudden change of temperature, pulmonary complaints. The mean temperature of the three summer months is 76° 2°.

flats, having the staircases in common, each apartment is protected by a solid door, on which there is generally a small window, from which the inmates inspect visitors before they let them in. The interiors, according to our notions, are uncomfortable and unfurnished, and the kitchens, offices, and other necessaries, are dirty and inconvenient. In some few houses there are fireplaces, which render the winter more beds, patients of both sexes and all ages to the number annually of 13,000 to 14,000, are admitted. The Inclosure or founding hospital receives about 1500 children annually, and, connected with it, is the Colegio de Niños de la Paz, to which girls are transferred to be educated at the age of seven years. There is, besides an hospital of incurables, a lying-in asylum, an hospital for priests, a savings bank and various other benevolent establishments. Near the S.E. corner of the Plaza Mayor stands the Carcel de Corte or state prison built in 1634. Those who enter, if they have no money may bid adieu to hope, while judges, jailers, and lawyers are often accomplices after the fact with a rich criminal. Here also are the tribunals of the Audiencia or supreme court. In 1847, the number of prisoners who entered was 2018, and there were 264 still incarcerated at the close of the year. The Carcel de Villa stands at the N.E. extremity of the city, beside the gate of St. Barbara. In 1847, the number of persons incarcerated was 3608 and there were 377 in prison at the end of the year. There is also a model prison a house of correction for young men several female prisons, the Arrepentidos, the Magdalena, &c.

Places of Amusement and Recreation.—There are seven theatres in Madrid, but three of them are very small and one, the grand Teatro de Oriente, is unfinished. (In the P., outside the gate of Alcala, is the Plaza de Toros [bull-ring] a building which is about 1100 ft. in circumference, and capable of containing 12,000 spectators. In an architectural point of view, it is inferior to that of many provincial towns the exterior being bold and plain while the interior is fitted up with wooden benches, and is scarcely better than a shambles. The bull-fights began in April and continue till November taking place generally on Monday afternoon. Here thus an unusual spot is the best of its kind. There is also a circus for equestrian performances, a hippodrome, a durama, a club called Casino del Principe and various other places of amusement. The Prado [jardines] nearly 2 m. long, is the Hyde Park of Madrid, but notwithstanding its name, it has no grass here, on the winter mornings and summer afternoons, all the beauty rank and fashion appear. Here may be studied to advantage the costume and manners of the Spaniards, walking or talking or sitting and smoking, and here may be seen their fastidious and lumbering vehicles driving round and round day after day in the same monotonous routine and contrasted with those the gayest equipages of the foreign universe and a few of the grandest. Altogether, the scene is quite unique in Europe. The Prado extending along the E. side of the city was levelled and planted by the Conde de Aranda, under Charles III. and laid out by Jose Harrois sits in garden walks. It contains a botanic garden a charming spot, kept in excellent order both in a botanical point of view and for the purposes of recreation and delight and is become daily charming as surrounding with the noblest environs of Madrid. When the hosts of summer set in this garden becomes a place of great resort. There are besides the gardens of the Buen Retiro, those behind the royal palace, those of the Real Casino the Casa del Campo, where horse and hurdle races are given the Paseo de la Florida, the Paseo de la Alameda, which occupies the greatest part of the city, that of Atocha, a winter promenade on account of its being sheltered from the cold that of Las Alcañices de Isabel at the N.E. corner of Madrid in which stands the Fuente Castellana besides which there are various other promenades.

Museums, Libraries, &c.—The Royal Museum of Painting and Sculpture, which stands in the Prado, is a huge, lumbering, commonplace edifice. Here there are more than 2000 pictures for many of which rooms are not yet prepared. To give a slight notion of the contents of this museum let it suffice to say that there are 27 Bolognas, 49 Brougels, 8 Alonso Cussos, 10 Claudes, 22 Vanduycks, and 16 Guido. 50 by Luca Caracci 13 by Antonio Moro 46 by Murillo 3 by Parmegianino 21 by V. Peruzzi, 10 by Raphael 53 by Spagnoletti, 64 by Rubens 28 by Spagnoletti, 38 by Tintoretto 45 by Titian 27 by Tintoretto 62 by Veronese 34 by Paul Veronese 10 by Wouverman 14 by Zurbaran with specimens of many other Italian Flemish and Spanish artists of equal note. But there is little order or systematic arrangement, and there is no series of pictures, marking the chronology either of art in general, or of any school in particular. The gallery of sculpture is very inferior. Some of the best antiques once belonged to Christina of Sweden, and were removed hither from San Ildefonso. A new museum, established in the suppressed convent de la Trinidad, was opened to the public by Espartero, in 1843. Here have been collected from the convents and galleries of Don Carlos, and the Infante Sebastian, some 1500 pictures, good and bad. Besides these, there are several good private galleries. There is also a museum of natural science, a museum of antiquities, and a numismatic museum, containing 150,000 coins and medals. The National Library, founded by Philip V., is in the same building with the museum of antiquities. It contains 130,000 volumes, is well managed, and is open to the public daily from ten to three. The library of San Isidro consists of 66,000 volumes.

Educational Establishments.—Compared with the time, not far distant, when the schools of San Fernando and San Anton were the only places of instruction for the poor, the education of that class is now in a flourishing condition. In 1844, three free schools for each sex were established in each of the 10 municipal districts into which Madrid is divided, and these are attended by an aggregate number of about 4000 children. Besides these, there is also a number of infant schools. The University of Madrid, which arose out of that of Alcalá de Henares, founded in the 16th century stands in the N.W. quarter of the city. In the section of 1817-18, the matriculated students amounted to 3637. There are, besides, numerous other schools, academies, and colleges public and private, including a normal school a deaf and dumb institution, a normal school for the blind a commercial school schools for engineers a Conservatorio de Musica, an academy for the fine arts, with a gallery of 800 pictures, few of which, however, are good a veterinary college an academy of medicine and surgery &c. In the Buen Retiro stands the observatory constructed in the form of an Ionic temple.

Hotels, Bath, Reading-rooms, &c.—Until lately the hotels were among the very worst in Europe, but the number of new coach companies, by bringing in more travellers, has created a demand for better accommodations. Some of these companies have set up inns or paradores of their own while many coffee and tolerable restaurants have been established principally by foreigners. Some of the hotels and lodging houses have better houses which there are numerous separate little establishments. Madrid is celebrated for its asparagus, grown at Aranjuez, and the hoyos is a light puff paste the confectioners shops are mostly kept by foreigners. During the scorching summer the snows of the Guadarrama chain furnish materials for cool drinks and ices in abundance, which are sold in the streets and especially by Valencians. There are many subscription and reading rooms. In 1843 the newspapers of Madrid amounted to about 46 or seven times the number that existed ten years previously. Their circulation is chiefly confined to the capital in Spain as in France, the journals hold a higher social position than in England, because they lend rather than reflect, public opinion.

Commerce, Industry, &c.—An open horse-market is held every Thursday. The markets for staples are tolerably well supplied, those of San Ildefonso San Felipe Neri and La Alameda de Alcala are the best. The public exchange is held in San Martin from ten to three o'clock. A stock exchange or Bolsa de Comercio was established in 1831 and as all men in power use their official knowledge in taking advantage of the turn of the market, the Bolsa divides with the court and army the moving influence of every election or crisis of the moment. The national bank called de San Fernando, was founded in 1827. It issues notes for 500 and 1000 reals ($4 15s and $9 10s), which will not pass out of Madrid for all who are not Madrileños wisely prefer local dollars to court paper. The circulation is about £120,000. A general life and home insurance company was only founded in 1842 on new here is only security for person or property, long doubly hazardous. The manufacturers, among others, consist of tapestry carpets fine silk and porcelain, silver-work, buttons, iron castings and machinery, coach-making, paper, &c. On the S. side of the city in the section of the rail way to Aranjuez the only one as yet which Madrid possesses.

History.—If Madrid existed at all in the Roman period, which is very doubtful, it probably was the insignificant hamlet Majoretum at all events, Majunt was only a Moorish outpost of Toledo, when captured, in 1063, by Alonso VI.

Henry IV, about 1481 made some additions to the older town, which was placed on the W. eminence, over the river, and the narrow streets still contrast with the modern portions which have sprung up to the N and S. Madrid was once surrounded with forests, which afforded good cover for boars and bears, on account of which it was made a royal hunting residence. These woods have long been cut down. Madrid only began to be a place of importance under Charles V, who, gay and plumeless, felt himself relieved by his brisk and sacred air; and, consulting only his own personal comfort, he deserted Valladolid, Seville, Granada, and Toledo, to fix his residence in a spot which Iberian, Roman, Goth, and Moor had all rejected. Declared the court by Philip II, in 1560 (who became more attached to it as the Imperial rose) the city rapidly grew up, at the expense of the older and better situated capitals. It is the creation of a century, for it has not increased much since the age of Philip IV, then indeed, with reference to London and other European capitals it really was entitled to rank high but now it has been outstripped even by our provincial cities. The gross mistake of a position which has no single advantage except the fancied geographical merit of being in the centre of Spain, was soon felt, and on Philip II's death his son in 1591, on desiring to remove the court back again to Valladolid which however, was then found to be impracticable such had been the creation of new interests during the century in the preceding reign Philip II had neglected the opportunity of making Lisbon his capital which is admirably situated on a noble river and the sea had thus been done Portugal never would or could have revolted or the peninsula been thus discovered, by which the first blow was dealt to Spain's greatness. Pop. 206,714.—Madrid, Diccionario Geográfico-Histórico-Histórico de España, Madrid, 1847, Ford's Hand-Book of Spain, &c.

MADRIDENOS a in Spain, New Castile, prov. and 40 m. S.E. Toledo near the Anagran, here crossed by two bridges. It is very poorly built, most of the houses being merely of earth, and generally uninhabited only in the lower story. It has two churches a nursery two suppressed monasteries a very ancient watch tower, prison hospital a primary school and manufactures of fine bowman in a declining state several oil and flour mills, and a trade in corn fruit and saf. Pop. 51,441.

MADRIGAL, a in Spain, Old Castile, prov. and 85 m. N. V. Avila. It is walled, has a good square two churches, a convent chapel, townhouse, hospital prison, and two schools. Pop. (agricultural) 2050.

MADRIGALDEJO a vil. Spain Extremadura, prov. Cáceres, 1 bank Rueda, 50 m. E. Medinas. It has a large church a courthouse, with prison a primary school, a suppressed convent and a trade in oil wine, and cattle. It is an ancient place and many Moorish remains have been found near it. Pop. 896.

MADRIGUELAS, a in Spain New Castile, prov. and 24 m. S. Alhambra with a church courthouse primary school manufactures of woolen and linen cloth, and a trade in cattle wine, wheat, and saffron. Pop. 2251.

MADRON par Eng. Cornwall 5991 a. P. 11,716. MADRONERA, a in Spain Extremadura, prov. and 80 m. E. by S Cáceres poorly built; with a church, and a public storehouse, which serves as a townhouse and school. Pop. 2081.

MADURA, a in Hindoostan grand Madras Carnatic cap. dist. Madras and Dindigul, 8 bank Vagha, 85 m. S. S. W. lat. 9° 55' N., lon. 78° 14' E. It is surrounded by a lofty wall of stone with square bastions, but in many places much dilapidated. The streets are unusually wide and regular for an Indian city, but the private dwellings are mean and wretched forming a striking contrast with the magnificence of the public edifices, the most extraordinary specimens of Hindoo architecture in India. The principal of these are the great temple, containing various shrines, but chiefly devoted to Mahadeva, with its spacious area, shrines, and four colossal pedestals, such a pyramid of 10 stories, and covering in all an extent of ground sufficient for the site of a town, the palace a vast structure but now falling to decay, with an elevated dome, 90 ft. in diameter and in front a choultry or covered building for travellers called Tirumala Naka, 312 ft. in length and covered with grotesque sculptures. Near the town is a remarkable eminence called from its shape, the Elephant Rock. There was formerly at Madura a college called by the natives Maha Panikam. During the Carnatic wars, from 1740 to 1760 Madura sustained many sieges. Pop. about 80,000.—The DASTUR, which includes Dastur out, is near the S. extremity of the peninsula, lat. 9° to 10° 45' N., lon. 77° 10' to 79° 10' E. area, 10,700 sq. m. and, to a large extent, is composed of marsh and jungle. In the N. and W. it is mountainous and covered with wood, with a good deal of low, stony ground between. There are, however, some fertile valleys among the hills, and considerable tracts of productive plain. It is watered by the Vagai, a considerable stream, which falls into Palk's Strait. Different kinds of paddy are grown in the low grounds where ample means of irrigation in the form of tanks and rivers, are common. Chief exports—pepper, goods, cotton rice, and oilseed. Imports—bata, oil seeds and coconuts. The ancient sovereigns of this country were named the Pandian race, and the district is supposed to be the Ragia Pandion of I. colony. The island of Ramessum, in the Gulf of Manar, is in this district. Pop. (1851), 1,758,791.—(Trigonometrical Survey of India, &c.)

INTERIOR OF THE PALACE, MADURA.—From Dunder's View in India.

MADURA and Indian Archipelago off I. and Java, from which it is separated by the Strait of Melina about 3 m. wide at the W. end of the island but nearly 80 m. on the S. Cape Kiasong, the W. point of Madura, is in lat. 6° 45' S., lon. 112° 45' E. (a) and (cap. Fast. its most E. point, in lat. 6° 58' S., lon. 114° 50' E. (a). The island is about 105 m. long E. to W. and 30 m. broad. It is divided into three portions, of which Bangkaling and Bunnang occupy respectively the W. and E. ends, and are regarded by their own natives who however are tributary to the Dutch, to whom also the central portion, Pamakassan, exclusively belongs, forming a dependency of the province of Soerabaya. It is uninteresting but not unimportant and, though in general well watered by small frequently breakish rivers, yet in some places especially on the coast, there is a want of water and the soil is consequently unfruitful. The interior, however, is fertile, though not so productive as Java. Main, coconuts, tobacco, Jamaica pepper, and tamarind, are the chief products and the exports include also birds nests country cloths, white and striped, poppy-oil, rattan-mats and baskets, &c. The N. coast is bold, but on the S. coast are two large bays in which anchorage is to be found. The seas all round are plentifully stocked with fish, the taking of which constitutes a chief source of employment and support to the natives. The only important mineral known to exist in Sumatra, which is plentiful. The chief towns are Banghalang, Panamakkan and Samang or Samang. The trade of Madura is limited with the returns for Java (which are) Pop. 268,048.—(Van der Aa Ind. Noord. Nederlanden.)

MADURA STRAIT or the narrow channel separating the island of Madura, on its W. end, from that of Java. It is about 5 m. broad at its narrowest part, but expands to about 5 m. near Seerang. The name is also applied to the wide expanse, about 30 m. broad, between the E. coast of Madura and the N. coast of Java.

MAELIA, a town in Spain, Aragon, prov. and 68 m. N. E. Saragossa, 1. bank Malarranca. It is well built, has three handsome squares, a church, three chapels, a townhouse, with fine clock-tower and an hospital. Pop. (agricultural) 2945.

MAELSTROM, a whirlpool Norway. See MALERSON.

MALINCHING, par Wales, Merioneth, 5485 ft. 804.

MAER, par Eng. Stafford 2736 ac. Pop. 513.

MALRIE KREKEM, a vil. and comm. Belgium prov. F. Flanders, on the road from Anderlecht to Grammont and on the Maech, 15 m. S. Ghent. It has a brewery, a bleach-field and several mills. Pop. 1444.

MALINCHING, par Wales, Brecon 4014 ac. Pop. 234.

MALINCHING (Dutch, Maestricht) German Maestricht Latin Properius de Aloum Tricentum septuaginta an impregnable fortress on the left bank of the Rhine, 11 km. from the sea, 17 a stone bridge, communicating with the suburb of Wyck, so included within the walls of the fortress, which are about 3 m. in extent. It is on the Belgian frontier 50° 51' N. 5° 41' 9" E. It is considered one of the strongest fortresses in Europe and by opening sluices, can place the surrounding district all under water. With its suburb, Wyck, it has seven land-gates and three towards the river, but none of them remarkable. In general the town is closely built but it has two open places, the 1. a 2. a 3. a 4. a 5. a 6. a 7. a 8. a 9. a 10. a 11. a 12. a 13. a 14. a 15. a 16. a 17. a 18. a 19. a 20. a 21. a 22. a 23. a 24. a 25. a 26. a 27. a 28. a 29. a 30. a 31. a 32. a 33. a 34. a 35. a 36. a 37. a 38. a 39. a 40. a 41. a 42. a 43. a 44. a 45. a 46. a 47. a 48. a 49. a 50. a 51. a 52. a 53. a 54. a 55. a 56. a 57. a 58. a 59. a 60. a 61. a 62. a 63. a 64. a 65. a 66. a 67. a 68. a 69. a 70. a 71. a 72. a 73. a 74. a 75. a 76. a 77. a 78. a 79. a 80. a 81. a 82. a 83. a 84. a 85. a 86. a 87. a 88. a 89. a 90. a 91. a 92. a 93. a 94. a 95. a 96. a 97. a 98. a 99. a 100. a 101. a 102. a 103. a 104. a 105. a 106. a 107. a 108. a 109. a 110. a 111. a 112. a 113. a 114. a 115. a 116. a 117. a 118. a 119. a 120. a 121. a 122. a 123. a 124. a 125. a 126. a 127. a 128. a 129. a 130. a 131. a 132. a 133. a 134. a 135. a 136. a 137. a 138. a 139. a 140. a 141. a 142. a 143. a 144. a 145. a 146. a 147. a 148. a 149. a 150. a 151. a 152. a 153. a 154. a 155. a 156. a 157. a 158. a 159. a 160. a 161. a 162. a 163. a 164. a 165. a 166. a 167. a 168. a 169. a 170. a 171. a 172. a 173. a 174. a 175. a 176. a 177. a 178. a 179. a 180. a 181. a 182. a 183. a 184. a 185. a 186. a 187. a 188. a 189. a 190. a 191. a 192. a 193. a 194. a 195. a 196. a 197. a 198. a 199. a 200. a 201. a 202. a 203. a 204. a 205. a 206. a 207. a 208. a 209. a 210. a 211. a 212. a 213. a 214. a 215. a 216. a 217. a 218. a 219. a 220. a 221. a 222. a 223. a 224. a 225. a 226. a 227. a 228. a 229. a 230. a 231. a 232. a 233. a 234. a 235. a 236. a 237. a 238. a 239. a 240. a 241. a 242. a 243. a 244. a 245. a 246. a 247. a 248. a 249. a 250. a 251. a 252. a 253. a 254. a 255. a 256. a 257. a 258. a 259. a 260. a 261. a 262. a 263. a 264. a 265. a 266. a 267. a 268. a 269. a 270. a 271. a 272. a 273. a 274. a 275. a 276. a 277. a 278. a 279. a 280. a 281. a 282. a 283. a 284. a 285. a 286. a 287. a 288. a 289. a 290. a 291. a 292. a 293. a 294. a 295. a 296. a 297. a 298. a 299. a 300. a 301. a 302. a 303. a 304. a 305. a 306. a 307. a 308. a 309. a 310. a 311. a 312. a 313. a 314. a 315. a 316. a 317. a 318. a 319. a 320. a 321. a 322. a 323. a 324. a 325. a 326. a 327. a 328. a 329. a 330. a 331. a 332. a 333. a 334. a 335. a 336. a 337. a 338. a 339. a 340. a 341. a 342. a 343. a 344. a 345. a 346. a 347. a 348. a 349. a 350. a 351. a 352. a 353. a 354. a 355. a 356. a 357. a 358. a 359. a 360. a 361. a 362. a 363. a 364. a 365. a 366. a 367. a 368. a 369. a 370. a 371. a 372. a 373. a 374. a 375. a 376. a 377. a 378. a 379. a 380. a 381. a 382. a 383. a 384. a 385. a 386. a 387. a 388. a 389. a 390. a 391. a 392. a 393. a 394. a 395. a 396. a 397. a 398. a 399. a 400. a 401. a 402. a 403. a 404. a 405. a 406. a 407. a 408. a 409. a 410. a 411. a 412. a 413. a 414. a 415. a 416. a 417. a 418. a 419. a 420. a 421. a 422. a 423. a 424. a 425. a 426. a 427. a 428. a 429. a 430. a 431. a 432. a 433. a 434. a 435. a 436. a 437. a 438. a 439. a 440. a 441. a 442. a 443. a 444. a 445. a 446. a 447. a 448. a 449. a 450. a 451. a 452. a 453. a 454. a 455. a 456. a 457. a 458. a 459. a 460. a 461. a 462. a 463. a 464. a 465. a 466. a 467. a 468. a 469. a 470. a 471. a 472. a 473. a 474. a 475. a 476. a 477. a 478. a 479. a 480. a 481. a 482. a 483. a 484. a 485. a 486. a 487. a 488. a 489. a 490. a 491. a 492. a 493. a 494. a 495. a 496. a 497. a 498. a 499. a 500. a 501. a 502. a 503. a 504. a 505. a 506. a 507. a 508. a 509. a 510. a 511. a 512. a 513. a 514. a 515. a 516. a 517. a 518. a 519. a 520. a 521. a 522. a 523. a 524. a 525. a 526. a 527. a 528. a 529. a 530. a 531. a 532. a 533. a 534. a 535. a 536. a 537. a 538. a 539. a 540. a 541. a 542. a 543. a 544. a 545. a 546. a 547. a 548. a 549. a 550. a 551. a 552. a 553. a 554. a 555. a 556. a 557. a 558. a 559. a 560. a 561. a 562. a 563. a 564. a 565. a 566. a 567. a 568. a 569. a 570. a 571. a 572. a 573. a 574. a 575. a 576. a 577. a 578. a 579. a 580. a 581. a 582. a 583. a 584. a 585. a 586. a 587. a 588. a 589. a 590. a 591. a 592. a 593. a 594. a 595. a 596. a 597. a 598. a 599. a 600. a 601. a 602. a 603. a 604. a 605. a 606. a 607. a 608. a 609. a 610. a 611. a 612. a 613. a 614. a 615. a 616. a 617. a 618. a 619. a 620. a 621. a 622. a 623. a 624. a 625. a 626. a 627. a 628. a 629. a 630. a 631. a 632. a 633. a 634. a 635. a 636. a 637. a 638. a 639. a 640. a 641. a 642. a 643. a 644. a 645. a 646. a 647. a 648. a 649. a 650. a 651. a 652. a 653. a 654. a 655. a 656. a 657. a 658. a 659. a 660. a 661. a 662. a 663. a 664. a 665. a 666. a 667. a 668. a 669. a 670. a 671. a 672. a 673. a 674. a 675. a 676. a 677. a 678. a 679. a 680. a 681. a 682. a 683. a 684. a 685. a 686. a 687. a 688. a 689. a 690. a 691. a 692. a 693. a 694. a 695. a 696. a 697. a 698. a 699. a 700. a 701. a 702. a 703. a 704. a 705. a 706. a 707. a 708. a 709. a 710. a 711. a 712. a 713. a 714. a 715. a 716. a 717. a 718. a 719. a 720. a 721. a 722. a 723. a 724. a 725. a 726. a 727. a 728. a 729. a 730. a 731. a 732. a 733. a 734. a 735. a 736. a 737. a 738. a 739. a 740. a 741. a 742. a 743. a 744. a 745. a 746. a 747. a 748. a 749. a 750. a 751. a 752. a 753. a 754. a 755. a 756. a 757. a 758. a 759. a 760. a 761. a 762. a 763. a 764. a 765. a 766. a 767. a 768. a 769. a 770. a 771. a 772. a 773. a 774. a 775. a 776. a 777. a 778. a 779. a 780. a 781. a 782. a 783. a 784. a 785. a 786. a 787. a 788. a 789. a 790. a 791. a 792. a 793. a 794. a 795. a 796. a 797. a 798. a 799. a 800. a 801. a 802. a 803. a 804. a 805. a 806. a 807. a 808. a 809. a 810. a 811. a 812. a 813. a 814. a 815. a 816. a 817. a 818. a 819. a 820. a 821. a 822. a 823. a 824. a 825. a 826. a 827. a 828. a 829. a 830. a 831. a 832. a 833. a 834. a 835. a 836. a 837. a 838. a 839. a 840. a 841. a 842. a 843. a 844. a 845. a 846. a 847. a 848. a 849. a 850. a 851. a 852. a 853. a 854. a 855. a 856. a 857. a 858. a 859. a 860. a 861. a 862. a 863. a 864. a 865. a 866. a 867. a 868. a 869. a 870. a 871. a 872. a 873. a 874. a 875. a 876. a 877. a 878. a 879. a 880. a 881. a 882. a 883. a 884. a 885. a 886. a 887. a 888. a 889. a 890. a 891. a 892. a 893. a 894. a 895. a 896. a 897. a 898. a 899. a 900. a 901. a 902. a 903. a 904. a 905. a 906. a 907. a 908. a 909. a 910. a 911. a 912. a 913. a 914. a 915. a 916. a 917. a 918. a 919. a 920. a 921. a 922. a 923. a 924. a 925. a 926. a 927. a 928. a 929. a 930. a 931. a 932. a 933. a 934. a 935. a 936. a 937. a 938. a 939. a 940. a 941. a 942. a 943. a 944. a 945. a 946. a 947. a 948. a 949. a 950. a 951. a 952. a 953. a 954. a 955. a 956. a 957. a 958. a 959. a 960. a 961. a 962. a 963. a 964. a 965. a 966. a 967. a 968. a 969. a 970. a 971. a 972. a 973. a 974. a 975. a 976. a 977. a 978. a 979. a 980. a 981. a 982. a 983. a 984. a 985. a 986. a 987. a 988. a 989. a 990. a 991. a 992. a 993. a 994. a 995. a 996. a 997. a 998. a 999. a 1000. a 1001. a 1002. a 1003. a 1004. a 1005. a 1006. a 1007. a 1008. a 1009. a 1010. a 1011. a 1012. a 1013. a 1014. a 1015. a 1016. a 1017. a 1018. a 1019. a 1020. a 1021. a 1022. a 1023. a 1024. a 1025. a 1026. a 1027. a 1028. a 1029. a 1030. a 1031. a 1032. a 1033. a 1034. a 1035. a 1036. a 1037. a 1038. a 1039. a 1040. a 1041. a 1042. a 1043. a 1044. a 1045. a 1046. a 1047. a 1048. a 1049. a 1050. a 1051. a 1052. a 1053. a 1054. a 1055. a 1056. a 1057. a 1058. a 1059. a 1060. a 1061. a 1062. a 1063. a 1064. a 1065. a 1066. a 1067. a 1068. a 1069. a 1070. a 1071. a 1072. a 1073. a 1074. a 1075. a 1076. a 1077. a 1078. a 1079. a 1080. a 1081. a 1082. a 1083. a 1084. a 1085. a 1086. a 1087. a 1088. a 1089. a 1090. a 1091. a 1092. a 1093. a 1094. a 1095. a 1096. a 1097. a 1098. a 1099. a 1100. a 1101. a 1102. a 1103. a 1104. a 1105. a 1106. a 1107. a 1108. a 1109. a 1110. a 1111. a 1112. a 1113. a 1114. a 1115. a 1116. a 1117. a 1118. a 1119. a 1120. a 1121. a 1122. a 1123. a 1124. a 1125. a 1126. a 1127. a 1128. a 1129. a 1130. a 1131. a 1132. a 1133. a 1134. a 1135. a 1136. a 1137. a 1138. a 1139. a 1140. a 1141. a 1142. a 1143. a 1144. a 1145. a 1146. a 1147. a 1148. a 1149. a 1150. a 1151. a 1152. a 1153. a 1154. a 1155. a 1156. a 1157. a 1158. a 1159. a 1160. a 1161. a 1162. a 1163. a 1164. a 1165. a 1166. a 1167. a 1168. a 1169. a 1170. a 1171. a 1172. a 1173. a 1174. a 1175. a 1176. a 1177. a 1178. a 1179. a 1180. a 1181. a 1182. a 1183. a 1184. a 1185. a 1186. a 1187. a 1188. a 1189. a 1190. a 1191. a 1192. a 1193. a 1194. a 1195. a 1196. a 1197. a 1198. a 1199. a 1200. a 1201. a 1202. a 1203. a 1204. a 1205. a 1206. a 1207. a 1208. a 1209. a 1210. a 1211. a 1212. a 1213. a 1214. a 1215. a 1216. a 1217. a 1218. a 1219. a 1220. a 1221. a 1222. a 1223. a 1224. a 1225. a 1226. a 1227. a 1228. a 1229. a 1230. a 1231. a 1232. a 1233. a 1234. a 1235. a 1236. a 1237. a 1238. a 1239. a 1240. a 1241. a 1242. a 1243. a 1244. a 1245. a 1246. a 1247. a 1248. a 1249. a 1250. a 1251. a 1252. a 1253. a 1254. a 1255. a 1256. a 1257. a 1258. a 1259. a 1260. a 1261. a 1262. a 1263. a 1264. a 1265. a 1266. a 1267. a 1268. a 1269. a 1270. a 1271. a 1272. a 1273. a 1274. a 1275. a 1276. a 1277. a 1278. a 1279. a 1280. a 1281. a 1282. a 1283. a 1284. a 1285. a 1286. a 1287. a 1288. a 1289. a 1290. a 1291. a 1292. a 1293. a 1294. a 1295. a 1296. a 1297. a 1298. a 1299. a 1300. a 1301. a 1302. a 1303. a 1304. a 1305. a 1306. a 1307. a 1308. a 1309. a 1310. a 1311. a 1312. a 1313. a 1314. a 1315. a 1316. a 1317. a 1318. a 1319. a 1320. a 1321. a 1322. a 1323. a 1324. a 1325. a 1326. a 1327. a 1328. a 1329. a 1330. a 1331. a 1332. a 1333. a 1334. a 1335. a 1336. a 1337. a 1338. a 1339. a 1340. a 1341. a 1342. a 1343. a 1344. a 1345. a 1346. a 1347. a 1348. a 1349. a 1350. a 1351. a 1352. a 1353. a 1354. a 1355. a 1356. a 1357. a 1358. a 1359. a 1360. a 1361. a 1362. a 1363. a 1364. a 1365. a 1366. a 1367. a 1368. a 1369. a 1370. a 1371. a 1372. a 1373. a 1374. a 1375. a 1376. a 1377. a 1378. a 1379. a 1380. a 1381. a 1382. a 1383. a 1384. a 1385. a 1386. a 1387. a 1388. a 1389. a 1390. a 1391. a 1392. a 1393. a 1394. a 1395. a 1396. a 1397. a 1398. a 1399. a 1400. a 1401. a 1402. a 1403. a 1404. a 1405. a 1406. a 1407. a 1408. a 1409. a 1410. a 1411. a 1412. a 1413. a 1414. a 1415. a 1416. a 1417. a 1418. a 1419. a 1420. a 1421. a 1422. a 1423. a 1424. a 1425. a 1426. a 1427. a 1428. a 1429. a 1430. a 1431. a 1432. a 1433. a 1434. a 1435. a 1436. a 1437. a 1438. a 1439. a 1440. a 1441. a 1442. a 1443. a 1444. a 1445. a 1446. a 1447. a 1448. a 1449. a 1450. a 1451. a 1452. a 1453. a 1454. a 1455. a 1456. a 1457. a 1458. a 1459. a 1460. a 1461. a 1462. a 1463. a 1464. a 1465. a 1466. a 1467. a 1468. a 1469. a 1470. a 1471. a 1472. a 1473. a 1474. a 1475. a 1476. a 1477. a 1478. a 1479. a 1480. a 1481. a 1482. a 1483. a 1484. a 1485. a 1486. a 1487. a 1488. a 1489. a 1490. a 1491. a 1492. a 1493. a 1494. a 1495. a 1496. a 1497. a 1498. a 1499. a 1500. a 1501. a 1502. a 1503. a 1504. a 1505. a 1506. a 1507. a 1508. a 1509. a 1510. a 1511. a 1512. a 1513. a 1514. a 1515. a 1516. a 1517. a 1518. a 1519. a 1520. a 1521. a 1522. a 1523. a 1524. a 1525. a 1526. a 1527. a 1528. a 1529. a 1530. a 1531. a 1532. a 1533. a 1534. a 1535. a 1536. a 1537. a 1538. a 1539. a 1540. a 1541. a 1542. a 1543. a 1544. a 1545. a 1546. a 1547. a 1548. a 1549. a 1550. a 1551. a 1552. a 1553. a 1554. a 1555. a 1556. a 1557. a 1558. a 1559. a 1560. a 1561. a 1562. a 1563. a 1564. a 1565. a 1566. a 1567. a 1568. a 1569. a 1570. a 1571. a 1572. a 1573. a 1574. a 1575. a 1576. a 1577. a 1578. a 1579. a 1580. a 1581. a 1582. a 1583. a 1584. a 1585. a 1586. a 1587. a 1588. a 1589. a 1590. a 1591. a 1592. a 1593. a 1594. a 1595. a 1596. a 1597. a 1598. a 1599. a 1600. a 1601. a 1602. a 1603. a 1604. a 1605. a 1606. a 1607. a 1608. a 1609. a 1610. a 1611. a 1612. a 1613. a 1614. a 1615. a 1616. a 1617. a 1618. a 1619. a 1620. a 1621. a 1622. a 1623. a 1624. a 1625. a 1626. a 1627. a 1628. a 1629. a 1630. a 1631. a 1632. a 1633. a 1634. a 1635. a 1636. a 1637. a 1638. a 1639. a 1640. a 1641. a 1642. a 1643. a 1644. a 1645. a 1646. a 1647. a 1648. a 1649. a 1650. a 1651. a 1652. a 1653. a 1654. a 1655. a 1656. a 1657. a 1658. a 1659. a 1660. a 1661. a 1662. a 1663. a 1664. a 1665. a 1666. a 1667. a 1668. a 1669. a 1670. a 1671. a 1672. a 1673. a 1674. a 1675. a 1676. a 1677. a 1678. a 1679. a 1680. a 1681. a 1682. a 1683. a 1684. a 1685. a 1686. a 1687. a 1688. a 1689. a 1690. a 1691. a 1692. a 1693. a 1694. a 1695. a 1696. a 1697. a 1698. a 1699. a 1700. a 1701. a 1702. a 1703. a 1704. a 1705. a 1706. a 1707. a 1708. a 1709. a 1710. a 1711. a 1712. a 1713. a 1714. a 1715. a 1716. a 1717. a 1718. a 1719. a 1720. a 1721. a 1722. a 1723. a 1724. a 1725. a 1726. a 1727. a 1728. a 1729. a 1730. a 1731. a 1732. a 1733. a 1734. a 1735. a 1736. a 1737. a 1738. a 1739. a 1740. a 1741. a 1742. a 1743. a 1744. a 1745. a 1746. a 1747. a 1748. a 1749. a 1750. a 1751. a 1752. a 1753. a 1754. a 1755. a 1756. a 1757. a 1758. a 1759. a 1760. a 1761. a 1762. a 1763. a 1764. a 1765. a 1766. a 1767. a 1768. a 1769. a 1770. a 1771. a 1772. a 1773. a 1774. a 1775. a 1

